BIG LOCAL INDUSTRIAL PLANT THREATENED BY FIRE

Protest Against Suburban Road Tax---Sun Defeated Again---Newfoundland Wins Her Case

LABRADOR HINTERLAND AWARDED NEWFOUNDLAND BY PRIVY COUNCIL

Decision of Judicial Committee is Against Canadian Claims

OLD TREATIES

Question Referred to Their Lordships By Common Consent

London, March 1. (C. P. Cable)—Newfoundland's claim to ownership of the territory in the Labrador Peninsula is sustained in substance with two reservations. This is the decision of Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council who were asked to define the boundary between Canada and Newfoundland in Labrador Peninsula.

The dispute between the two Dominions was referred to the Privy Council by consent of both parties. The two reservations, or rather points of detail, are, first, that while Newfoundland claims that the southern boundary of Labrador should be northward from Blanc Sablon Bay to the 52nd parallel and thence westward along a parallel line until it reaches the Height of Land, which point is considered to be west of the junction of a parallel with the Romaine River.

Newfoundland Wins

Their Lordships define the boundary as following a parallel only as far as the river, thence turning southward to the water shed, which turns northward shortly west of the river. From the water shed it should run, according to the decision, north and west along the Atlantic rivers' watersheds to Cape Chidley, at the northern tip of Labrador.

The second reservation from the concessions to Newfoundland of the decision that Woody Island, a small Island opposite the boundary between Quebec and Newfoundland at Blanc Sablon Bay belongs to Canada and not Newfoundland. This Island is not named on the majority of maps.

The definition of the boundary places a considerable portion of the Newfoundland hinterland under Newfoundland's jurisdiction, because the boundary running north from Romaine River to the northern tip of

Message From Neighboring Province — Fine Pictures Shown

Pleading an interprovincial tolerance similar to that which exists amongst members of the same family Mrs. Scott Macdonald described to her own personality and views and each county loyal to the parent, Madame Thais Prevost, speaker at the regular meeting of the Women's Canadian Club last evening, did much to cement that warm friendship which exists between Lieut.-Governor Cockshutt between the provinces of Quebec and Ontario.

The speaker who was introduced by Miss Hurley, president of the Women's Canadian Club of Belleville, spoke of the deep appreciation felt by the Club in Quebec, of which she is President, at the generosity of the Belleville organization in stretching hands across the border line to invite her to speak here. In this year of the celebration of Confederation nothing could, she said, have been more appropriate, continuing by expressing a hope that she would be able to show the audience the open heart of a true Canadian, if I do this, she said, and succeed in wedding one link to the chain which is to bind us together it will be a great and lasting satisfaction to me and I will feel I have indeed done something for my country.

SHEEP RAISING IS PROFITABLE

Bank of Montreal Issues Valuable Book For Free Distribution

At the present time there is possibly no more profitable line of livestock, or one in which less labour or equipment is involved, than sheep raising, particularly as it applies to the small farm or as part of a mixed farm."

So is the statement made by Mr. George H. Hutherd, Dominion Animal Husbandman, at the Central Experimental entitled "Sheep for Profit, Wool and Money", which has just been issued by the Bank of Montreal for free distribution through its local branches.

The booklet, a copy of which has been received here, runs to 48 pages and is 50 pages a wealth of information regarding the keeping of sheep, and this information is illustrated by close up on 120 photographs and drawings which in themselves form a comprehensive guide to the various breeds of sheep, and to the methods by which small flocks may be made profitable.

The information given in the booklet is straight and to the point. It tells how to select the most profitable types of the breeds, how to raise the young, how to keep the flock in health, how to feed and house them—in fact almost everything that the average owner of a small flock needs to know. A feature is a photograph showing the various grades of Canadian wool, with a description including both the Canadian and American terms for the grades.

The fact that the booklet is distributed gratuitously to applicants at the local branch of the Bank indicates a realization by the Bank institution of the fact that anything which makes for the profit of the individual, makes also for the welfare of the whole community.

CUSTOM RETURNS UP

An increase of $6,866.29 is shown in the Customs returns for Belleville for February, 1927, over the same month last year. The returns for February 1926 were $212,255.91, and for February 1926, $185,389.62.

BUILDING SLOW

Only Two Permits Issued During February For Total of $1200

Only two building permits were issued during the month of February, 1927. On February 18th, a permit was issued to W. A. Irish for alterations on his home at 175 Moira street, for $500. The other permit was issued to W. E. Sanford, 92 Pinnacle street, for the amount of $700 to erect a new dwelling.

BIG DISASTERS TAKE TOLL OF 68 BRITISH MINERS

Cwm, Wales, March 1.—Fifty-two coal miners are believed to have lost their lives as a result of explosion early this morning which entombed them in the gasfilled workings of the Marine Colliery here.

New Port, England, March 1.—At noon today twenty-two bodies were reported to have been found in the Marine Colliery where an explosion occurred this morning. Three injured men who could not be moved were also located. Twenty-five men were still entombed and it was feared might be dead. Gas was so bad that rescue work was suspended to allow ventilation of the mines. The flames seriously hampered the efforts of a large body of rescuers to reach missing men. Many of the rescuers had to receive medical treatment, and volunteers immediately took their places.

Members of the night shift were working in a special part of the pit when the explosion occurred. During the darkness of early morning, about 52 were brought up alive, many of them badly gashed. Distressing scenes were witnessed at the pit head where relatives of entombed men waited for news as rescue parties came up.

Twenty-Two Known Dead

Cwm, Wales, March 1.—The toll of miners dead since this afternoon was twenty-two, while hope had been abandoned of rescuing thirty others who were trapped in a section a mile and a half from the main shaft. Hundreds of women and children, families of the entombed miners, gathered about the pithead and there were pathetic scenes as they rushed forward in a wealthy vain attempt. Throughout anxious hours the greatest heroism under the tragedy was displayed by these women.

MUNICIPALITIES REQUEST RELIEF FROM ROAD TAX

Twenty-eight Towns and Cities Object To 20 Per Cent.

FEEL THE BURDEN

Ald. A. B Collins and City Engineer Gaudaur Represent Belleville

Toronto, March 1.— Representatives of 28 municipalities of the Province of Ontario waited on Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways and Public works today and strongly urged relief from the payment of the twenty-five per cent. share of the cost of suburban roads on the ground that increased aid in the operation of civic services of the last ten years had rendered them with the problem of obtaining sufficient revenue to meet the added expenditure. In fact, said some members of the deputation, municipalities "do not know where to turn" for relief.

Hon. Mr. Henry said he appreciated that the municipalities had a difficult situation to handle. They were not passing through a stage of development in the province and he was sure that the government would give their request sympathetic consideration. Although he could not say at present what would be the cost of suburban roads was equal, he promised that the government would endeavor to give the municipalities relief if it could possibly be done.

Mr. Henry added that the government hoped in the near future to devise a scheme whereby truckers and freight haulers who competed with the railways, would be compelled to pay their share of the cost of maintaining the roads of the province.

The solicitor for Controller William Morrison, Hamilton; Mayor Stevens, Niagara Falls; Mayor Bellamire, Galt; Deputy-Reeve Gill, Eastview; Ald. A. B. Collins, Belleville; Mayor Parker, Woodstock; Mayor Simons, Brantford; Mayor Meeker, Galt; Ald. C. Grob, Kitchener and Harry Maloney, Guelph and additional towns represented were Galt, Guelph, Kingston and Owen Sound. Chas. Campbell, City Engineer, of Belleville, was present.

SMITH MYSTERY ALMOST SOLVED

So far no definite light has been shed on the identification of the body of John Smith, who died last night in Oklahoma City. Horace Smith, who may possibly be the son of the deceased man, is still in the city, but the investigations of the dead man by which he hopes to clear the mystery.

The sinking of the steam lake vessel D. L. Marsh in Lake Ontario on August the 8th, 1917, with 22 lives lost is recalled by many local people. Of the crew of 23 men Smith was the exception of Capt. John Smith and the mystery has remained unsolved.

It was learned here that a Belleville woman while visiting in Toronto some six years ago noticed a man whom she took to be Mr. Smith on the street. However he disappeared before she could talk to him and ever since the occurrence has been unable to locate him. Mr. Smith's alive. At the time of the tragedy a memorial service was held in St. Thomas Church for the victims.

It is understood that Mr. Smith who died in the U. S. left a considerable amount of money which will go to his two remaining children Horace and Mar garet of Belleville.

SMALL FIRE IS SOON SMOTHERED

Fire broke out on the roof of a vacant house at the corner of Adams and Coleborne streets, and property of Mrs. Mann Veranese, owned soon today. Although it is not certain, the cause of the fire is attributed to a defective chimney, the blaze being a considerable time.

The firemen had considerable difficulty in extinguishing the blaze.

ANOTHER DEFEAT FOR SUN'S ARMY NEAR SHANGHAI

Dissention in Northern Forces Are Leading to Disaster

Shanghai, March 1—Nationalist scouts today declared that Marshal Sun Chuan Fang's troops defending Shanghai had suffered another defeat near Nanking, 28 miles south of here. Confirmation of the report could not be obtained from competent authorities but local Cantonese often receive battle information far ahead of the official reports.

General Disatrs

Serious dissentions between the two allied Northern armies defending Shanghai against Cantonese was foreshadowed today when one of the leading Generals of Marshal Sun, nominal master of this territory, refused to fight with the Shantung forces, which are coming to Sun's aid. The dissenting General, Ming Chih Yuan, had previously given Marshal Sun a good deal of trouble and his staff, deserted this morning. General Ming commanded a division.

What action the leaderless division is taking is not known at present, but further serious discention is feared in the defending armies, which are digging in and looking for an expected attack by the Cantonese.

The Shantung troops of Chang Tsung Chang, now fortunal military power in the region, were proceeding toward Sun today in increasing numbers this afternoon.

More Troops Arrive

Shanghai, March 1.—Troops of General Chang Tsung Chang, military governor of Shantung province, who has come to Sun's aid, continue to arrive from Nanking, the latest word here. Most of the northern troops are concentrating in the vicinity of Shanghai very few of them going to Sun's front.

Trouble at Canton

Canton, March 1.—A large demonstration against British shipping and military movements at Shanghai, was staged here yesterday. Canton merchants declared a strike against the demands of the unions which they consider ridiculous. Large forces of troops were concentrated here in case the strike broke out, which threatened to grow into a widespread labor out break under communist direction.

QUITE LAMB LIKE

March is It's Best Behavior Today But Promises Trouble

Coming in like the proverbial lamb, March promises to go out, if legends are depended upon, like a lion. A mild first cought of days in the month almost invariably portend a wild ending and the wildness of the day is usually judge by the tempestuous condition more than by the temperature. Today not only is the sun bright and scarcely a breeze stirring but the temperature varying between 7 and 22 degrees is not at all unseasonable.

FIRE DESTROYS MOULDING PLANT OF CARTHAGE MACHINE COMPANY

Loss Will Likely Not Exceed $15,000 — Work To Go On

LITTLE LOST TIME

Fire which broke out in the foundry of the Carthage Machine Company on Water Street, at 6.45 last evening completely demolished the equipment in the structure and only the bare walls remained this morning. The building which was constructed of concrete blocks with a wood frame was a roaring furnace a few minutes after the conflagration was discovered and the firemen upon their arrival found a stubborn foe to battle.

The fire started in the south western corner of the foundry which is a subdivision of the main building. This section is made of corrugated iron and wood and the blaze soon ate its way around the walls and spread to the main building which was in a few minutes a seething mass.

The flames lit up the sky and could be seen for miles around and a crowd of spectators watched the vivid display with a very few minutes.

Mr. F. L. Hemings, manager of the plant when seen by the Intelligencer this morning refused to make any estimate of the loss but stated that it was covered by insurance. Mr. F. W. Wilson vice-President and cast. of the chief stock holders was not able to give a definite answer at this particular time. However it is not believed that the amount would exceed $15,000.

Firemen Arrive Quickly

The firemen reached the out-of-the-way spot in record time despite the bad condition of the roads leading into the plant. Two streams of hose were played on the burning building but such headway had been gained that it developed into a problem of preventing the useless shop, which it directly faced, from falling a prey to the flames. Constant efforts on the part of the firefighters succeeded in this end. In the machine shop is situated many valuable pieces of mechanism and had this building caught on fire the loss would be serious.

The men had been out of the building only 15 minutes when the blaze was discovered. It is presumed that one of the hot coals of the furnace came in contact with one of the small wooden partitions which are used in connection with the work. Mr. Heming's stated that this condition often arises but the fire is generally stamped out before any damage is done.

Men Out, of Work

Only the moulders will be thrown out of work and these men only for about two weeks. Re-building will commence at once and it is expected the plant will be used at last week. Mr. A. K. Hinde and Mr. A. F. Wardell from Carthage were in Belleville on the fire. In Belleville tonight and there will be only minimum delay in repairs.

A large loss is situated in the main building is likely to be the most valuable piece of machinery to be damaged. The interior heat is likely to

G. W. V. A. DANCE GREAT SUCCESS

Cards and Dancing Attracted Big Crowd of Friends

Two hundred and seventy-five guests at the Great War Veterans dance last night enjoyed one of the most successful and delightful dances ever given in the city. Too, ladies' committee, Mrs. Hilton, Mrs. Gilt, Mrs. Gabriel, Mrs. Lancaster and the members of the executive committee, Messrs. James Varley, James Lanmer, George Lancaster, George Irvine and A. E. Baldwin, worked tirelessly in completing arrangements for the splendid event which will go down in the annals of the G.W.V.A. as one of the outstanding successes they have yet sponsored.

Keen playing featured the euchre games and in this, Mrs. Orno won first prize, a tea service donated by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Baldwin; Miss Lena Mikel, second prize, a cut glass vase and dish donated by Mcintosh Bros., and Mrs. Francis Oatrom, third ladies' prize. Mr. Yerrow won first gentleman's prize, Mr. Lavis, second, and Mr. Frank Cross, third.

An unusual feature attended the drawing of the door prize, in the fact that Mr. Fred Symons fought a ticket casually, never entered the entertainment. But when the prize was being examined, it was found that he had been lucky enough to have drawn the number enabling him to it's hundred pounds of sugar donated by Mr. M. J. Lynch.

After cards a really excellent dance was enjoyed and the music by the Rhythm Kings was equal to any ever previously heard in the city. This is nevertheless, sometime of Miss Margaret Guyer, Bob and Dutch Turney and Harry Wesse, has already created for a enviable reputation in the city and promised to be a real musical acquaintance to Belleville dances.

The committee in charge are deeply indebted to all who in any way contributed in making the affair the success it proved to be.

TROTSKY MAKES BITTER ATTACK ON G.B. BRITAIN

Moscow, March 1.—Making his first appearance after months of retirement, Leon Trotsky, former commissioner for war and marine, has launched a bitter attack against Great Britain. Addressing a gathering yesterday, he charged that Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary and his party had organized the execution of fifty strike-breakers in Shanghai, adding: "We would drown these foreign executioners and aid in sending them to perdition."

Referring to British protest against the Soviet programme, he declared emphatically that no British note could prevent Soviet Russia from helping the Chinese. "The real object in despatching the note, he said, was to weaken the Soviet's attention from China while England increased her intervention there."

ASH WEDNESDAY FIRST OF THE LENTEN SEASON

Tomorrow, Ash Wednesday, will be celebrated by special services in the churches of England in the city, and St. Michael's Church. In mediaeval days when the custom of confessing and being shriven was observed on Shrove Tuesday, on Ash Wednesday a very impressive service was carried on. The palms used on the previous Palm Sunday were burned to ashes and each of the congregation marked with the sign of the Cross with the ashes of the palms while the priest repeated "From ashes you came unto ashes you shall return." The names of notorious sinners were read out and they were denied the privileges of the Church until Easter.

In the present age, Ash Wednesday the beginning of the penitential season of Lent, is celebrated by a simple service, generally known in the Church of England as the Catechumen service. During Lent special services are carried on during the week.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

A man exercising no forethought will soon experience present sorrow. —Confucius.

WAIT FOR PROVIDENCE

As none of the City Councillors or Civic Officials seem to have noticed it, we would like to point out that Belleville's streets are in a condition which would disgrace a back country village. So far no one has been killed attempting to navigate them but that is due solely to the patience dexterity and "sense sense" of the motorists and not in any way to the Civic authorities.

Many people have to drive cars during the Winter and the life of every car driven during the past week has been considerably shortened, while every person using the streets has been seriously in danger of injury.

Within the past day or so a belated attempt has been made to scrape off some of the top snow, but, it has effected no improvement. A gang of men with pick axes and sleighs could break up and carry away the ice in quick order and this course would give much needed work to some of our citizens. No one seems to have thought of that, —

But spring is coming. A kindly Providence will let the Sun shine long enough some day to clean up the streets and business will then be able to proceed.

NEXT 25 YEARS

Scientists agree that the future holds tremendous scope for inventive genius. The secrets of nature, guarded so assiduously through the ages, one by one are falling before the progress of knowledge and each advance reduces the resistance of the succeeding step. Marconi, whose name will be famous while time endures as that of the man who discovered the principles of wireless telegraphy, predicts that the next quarter century will see perfected the wireless transmission of power, radio, movies and television, and Edison the other day declared the extraordinary development of the past century had but penetrated the surface of possibilities.

"I believe," said Marconi in a recent interview, "the next quarter century will see developments in the wireless field quite as important as those which marked the last twenty-five years. I am as you know, unalterably opposed to entering the realm of prophecy. But, aside from the transmission and reception of wireless messages, I believe there are two great outstanding things that will most likely be developed before long. Looking into the future, I believe there is to come the transmission of power by wireless. I am further convinced that the perfection of television and moving pictures by radio will be realized. Both have been accomplished in a small way. Other experiments show that moving pictures by radio are possible."

"Isn't," said Signor Marconi again, "is in the air all about us and it is in the water of the sea. The problem is to get it out....Doubtless at no distant day we shall be obtaining all the heat —and, heat is power, remember—that we need out of the air and the water." Power, he suggests, may be transmitted by the "beam" system of wireless, thereby "there is much to be done before such a thing is a practical solution of the transmission of power."

"Marconi leaves a distinct impression of a future world run by wireless, comments the writer in the New York Times Magazine, who records the interview. "The motor car of the future will likely draw its power from the ether, as will ships and locomotives, and factory engines. Wires will disappear."

Stranger things have come to pass in the last quarter century.

EASY PICKINGS

Answering a query in the House of Commons the Government stated that Hon. N. W. Rowell is paid $200 a day, $20 a day living allowance, and actual transportation expenses, for his work as counsel on the customs probe commission; also that R. L. Calder, associate counsel, is paid $100 a day, $15 a day living allowance, and actual transportation expenses.

It is not so hard to understand how one man can command a salary of $200 a day and another $100 a day, although the spread does seem considerable; but there will be a lot of figuring among the fellows who live in a week and less as to the reason why two men, working on the same job and traveling together, should not be able to exist on the same daily allowance. Here's a chance for the economists to get busy with pad and pencil.

COST OF LIVING

The federal department of labor gives the "index number," which represents the cost of living in Canada, as 157 at the end of the year 1926. That means that, as compared with the year 1913—the year immediately preceding the Great War—which is taken as the standard of comparison, (being represented by the figure 100), the cost of living is at the present time slightly more than half as much again as it was immediately before the war. The peak of high prices occurred in 1920 when the index figure rose to 200; but it has declined since then, subject to occasional fluctuation. Comparison with other countries is favorable to Canada, though in the case of Germany the cost of living is but 4 slightly lower rate than that of Canada. The United States' figure is given as 174.8 for June last, but there has been a sharp decline since that month, judging by the official returns of the United States bureau of labor statistics, which give for January the lowest number since June, 1924. The present figure, according to that authority, is only 166.9. However this may be, Canada has reason to be satisfied with the rate of her progress towards normalcy. There will be variations, but so long as the general tendency is in it the downward direction the public will be satisfied.

A TIED SENATE

Replying to a question in the house the other day, Premier King said that every person appointed to the senate during the last five years has pledged his support to any measure of senate reform that may be introduced by the Liberal government.

A man must be indeed hungry for public office who would give such a pledge. Every senator so pledged has stultified himself. To such pledge ought to be exacted from self-respecting men. The measure of senate reform which the government introduces may not commend itself to all of its supporters; would advise it to decide that the only effectual way to mend the senate would be to end it, and might introduce a measure providing for the senate's abolition, and these pledged senators would be bound in honor to vote for it, no matter how much they might disapprove of it.

A general promise of support to a measure of senate reform should have been sufficient to satisfy our reformning premier. To exact from candidates for the senate a blanket pledge binding them to support any measure of reform which the government may see fit to purpose, is unfair; it is too much like requiring the prospective senator to sign a blank check, to be filled in at leisure by the government when it chooses to purpose to do so.

THE EDITOR SAYS

Could not some of the energy devoted now to haling good citizens to Police Court for leaving a thin coating of snow on the sidewalks in front of their residences, be more profitably used in making Front Street safe enough to drive a car on. We believe it would be better really for the city as a whole.

Some one wants to spend $185,000 for a new gas plant. What's the use? If the tax rate jumps much more no one will have enough money left to buy gas.

Still it would be nice to have a good flow of gas for despairing tax payers to use in ending their struggles. They wouldn't need to worry about paying for it.

Premier King is in the United States for a much needed rest. Couldn't some one find him a good permanent job over there? Something like he had during the war.

Why not make this a good year in Belleville? After we get the $300,000 School started and make a beginning on the $185,000 gas plant, we could build a new City Hall and lay out a few excavations and things like that.

"But, dearest, which of the six are you?"

The bride and the groom were visiting in San Francisco. They stopped at a restaurant where a big young waitress served them.

"Would you care for some lobster mean salad?" she asked.

"What is it?" asked the confused groom.

"Just lettuce alone," replied the waitress.

Maid: Because master kissed me, mum.

"Lady: And you didn't like it, eh?

Maid: Oh, I didn't mind it; it was the mistress who didn't like it.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

Hon. E. B. Ryckman stated during the federal election campaign last fall that it costs fifteen dollars a minute to conduct the proceedings of the house. In this case it is evident that every second cut off the session is worth-while record—and economy is something the interests the country. An enormous sum could be saved by adherence to a rigid program from which unnecessary legislation is omitted and by an understanding that lengthy speeches are often expensive frills. A member of parliament who takes up an hour of the house's time at a cost of nine hundred dollars should be prepared to give an account-ing to his constituents. There are a number of contentious matters to come up during the session. A lot of money will be wasted over them at the best, but a lot could be saved if members kept in mind the cost of conducting the country's business, and, above all kept in mind the fact that they are sent up to Ottawa to do business rather than to talk.—Toronto Globe.

All who believe that Hon. W. L. M. King, Premier of Canada, is telling the truth in controversy with the Ottawa Journal please signify in the usual manner.

TRACTOR IN ACTION

Operating from one o'clock this morning until five, the Purdom tractor brought here by the Ford dealers for demonstration purposes, has travelled about 37 miles in fairly passable condition. Street Superintendent Henderson accompanied the tractor on its morning trip and City Engineer Campbell relieved him this afternoon to closely observe the action of the machine.

STONE AND IRON

Night—and the shadow of great walls.
The city sleeps, her muffled pulses start—
And ebb, flogging in the long halls,
I lie alone with wakeful heart.

In stone and iron bound.
Bound the old sorrows; anxiety and travel.
My heart listens, not a sound!

My heart listens.....A cry
Pierces the dark—a lonely voice somewhere
Troubles, and is still. I hear a cry
Out of the dark somewhere.

Night slumbers so.....
The canyons are Empty—no echo now
For a lone cry
Far-off, that troubles and is gone.
Then silence—the silence of the grave.
—John Hall Wheelock.

COUNTRY STORE STILL EXISTS IN SMALL PLACE

Did I hear correctly the other night over XYZ—that the general store (the country store) is passing out of existence? Not by a jugful! Not while the boys in the country have use to admit it, and in the country men where I come from I know there are dozens of olden days still lives. I have a step-brother who runs one right in the village where he and I were born, though he is nearly old enough to be my father, he ng a pro-duct of father's first wife.

When I visited this store last not so long ago, I could still ladle lard out of a far-end tub, that it, far end of the store, and then walk to the front and sell a box of aspirin tablets. There is no drug store in that village yet.

Country store orators still exist! They sit on that old keg of nails beside the antediluvian stove, spit on just as relentlessly as it ever was, and they settle all the biggest questions of the day.

I have an uncle, veterinary surgeon in that neighborhood, and a former school teacher and an old-time Grit of the Oliver Mowat school, for this village is about seventy miles from Toronto, north-west. He got the Globe every day about noon, and if he did not he would drive ten miles to Lindsay to buy one, because he was the only man who took a daily paper there.

He would search the news and editorials with fierce eagle eyes to find an utterance that would displease him, and then the row would start, with the orators.

"I declare or I swan" some of them would start. "What is this country coming to?"

Finally you hear a bang on the counter with his big fists. He is now past eighty and I think the Globe of today by its queer change in politics will add zest enough to make the old man live to be a hundred.

I like to hear the owner of the store tell of his early days in that store of his predecessor when we were children.

They used to sell hoop-skirts and bustles. A 16-inch corset was the one in chief demand.

"No country store in these days could stand if it sold face paint or powder, for it was not used, unless a woman wished to be ostracized or styled a strumpet. Even in my day there a box of powder was purchased in a shamefaced way, and always under a whisper or low murmurs.

"Suggestive of staples sold in bulk—I recall finding my sister, now a staid mother of many bairns, sitting with her chum in summer bathing their feet in a great bin of cool, white rice, as children.

"I remember the mousey looking rats that women wore, in their hair now replaced by combs for bobber hair, etc. The corset section is almost out of business, and the rack of red petticoats and other garments with Mother Hubbards is no more.

"The greatest change is the ever increasing number of strange faces This when I sit by that stove, in the super-hour lull before the evening mail arrives. I picture the kindly people of years ago, the folks of my youth and am comforted by the rich tablets of memory enscrolled with love and simple affection of adolescence. When such stores pass so will pass a bit of early Canada, the last of pioneer days."—C. D. Cliffe.

PLEASING SKIT PRESENTED BY JUNIOR ARTISTS

Before a packed house "The Minister's Wife's New Bonnet" was presented at Bridge Street Church last night by the Bridge Street Amateur Dramatic Club.

The play rather took the form of a musical comedy, and was presented in two acts. Many scenes were shown that related to the problems and joys of a rural church in a rural community.

The name of the play taken from the fact that the minister's wife was appointed to attend a conference in a distant city as a delegate. She didn't, however, have a hat to wear and all the women in the community were quite certain that she should borrow their particular hat.

A scarcely identifiable skeleton of Irene throughout the play, and those parts when director special assistance Miss Theo Reid as "Mrs. Grundy", the Rev. Grundy, played by Mr. Abe Sprague, "Aretha Pugsley" Miss Mina Baker and "Knossi" by Mr. Arthur Clare.

The certain ones, with a song by the director—the well known one, "How dye do everybody". The first scene opens with the Rev. Grundy and his wife in the manse room, having a quiet talk just before the weekly evening service begins.

It is in this scene that the minister's wife, Mrs. Grundy, is selected to attend the Sunday School Convention and decide upon the styles of the new bonnet declaring "this is not vanity, but what in Rome do as the Romans do."

In the next scene, a meeting of the Women's Sewing Circle, the Improvement Committee of the small church met. Many humorous little incidents occurred here, as they did throughout the whole performance.

At this point Miss Vivian Walker, ably portrayed by Miss Florence Barber applied for admittance to the Church Sewing Circle and she was received and cried behind her back but upon entering the room, everyone came forward to welcome her hand and say how glad they were to meet her. "Miss Vivian" rendered a very touching solo in a fine voice at this time.

Following "Miss Walker's" song, some of the women of the church rush in with various "scandal" for the Sewing Circle to the convention. (Creation doesn't describe them—one has a whole robbin nest on her hat, another a whole vegetable dinner).

And so ended the first act of this interesting little playlet, musical comedy as between acts a skit entitled the "Crystal Gazer" was presented.

This was carried out opened with "Prelude to High Voice", portrayed by Nora Whitney, gambling because the child is not present for choir practice. The community girl started however, rehearsing their song for a "strawberry social". "Pre'ose High Voice" is quite successful in his leading of the choir during this rehearsal.

The play certainly reached a climax when it came quickly to the end. The choir rendered different selections throughout the second and last act, as well as the solos which lasted for the min ister's wife.

But all the minister bonnet trimmers were surrounded when they found that "Miss Walker" the mysterious city girl had trimmed Mrs. Grundy's own bonnet for her.

This was the end of the play, and the curtain fell to a roll of thunderous applause from the friends, parents and children who had enjoyed the playlet. The cast deserve great credit for the way in which the play was carried through, and the chorus was quite good. Mr. F. B. Benson was the director in the performance and the showed way in which the skit was received much credit accompanied him for the time available and energy which he put in the production.

FIRE DESTROYS

The many pets and other articles used in the foundry may be partially replaced but the greater percentage will have to be replaced.

WATER PRESSURE LIGHT

The manager and officials of the Company warmly praised the manner in which the brigade handled the fire, but expressed severe criticism of the low pressure available. Had the blaze got a hold on the main buildings there would likely have been no chance of saving them as it was impossible to get a strong enough stream to get up on the roof.

The Belleville Machine Co. started in the city some two years ago and although the plant has not been carrying on with a full staff at present they expected to go ahead in full force in the Spring. They occupy the building formerly used by the Wilson Co. where they have manufactured during the war period. The headquarters are at Carthage N.Y., a few miles from Watertown.

SPIRIT OF OLD

Madame Fremont, in her charming English tinged with a most delightful French accent, spoke of the interest every Quebec citizen feels for the British flag which stands for freedom. In order that the Canadian may not forget the flag it is necessary that the tree of friendship should be planted in the hearts of every child. Her life, she observed, is first private life lived on a larger scale but the petty differences which exist in private life cease to exist in public life may become intolerable. If the two provinces of Quebec and Ontario but knew each other better would be none of this intolerance and they should come to a closer understanding with each other. Speaking of the speaker's appeal to overcome misunderstanding was the wider study in Ontario of the French language in order that those of Ontario may judge conditions and public movements in the province of Quebec. Any hearsay which is often the cause of misunderstanding. He who speaks several languages has broadened his mind, Madame Fremont said. The speaker made a touching reference to the appreciation felt by the Women's Canadian Club at their Excellency Viscountess Willingdon's address at a luncheon given by the ladies' men's at Ottawa.

As each individual is entitled to his own personality, so each province should have the right to retain their own ideals. It is the narrow mind which caused trouble and we et each province should be proud of their own ideals. The speaker made a touching reference to the appreciation felt by the Women's Canadian Club at their Excellency Viscountess Willingdon's address at a luncheon given by the ladies' men's at Ottawa.

As each individual is entitled to his own personality, so each province should have the right to retain their own ideals. It is the narrow mind which caused trouble and we et each province should be proud of their own ideals which will cement the union conductive to strength. Quebec, however, has the same feeling of loyalty as Ontario.

Madame Fremont pictured the wonderful work prepared by country for the present generation; the women who sacrificial all the comforts and wonderful beauty of their home for the sake of the pioneers, risked the perils of a savage ridden country in order that they might bring to the land company think of the perils they braved. Champlain's wife snowed the terrible conditions she lived in, among the wild and we who come of a tradition loving race cannot forget these things, cannot forget the sacrifices made by all of those who fought for us. We live up to the motto of the Province, "I Remember." The speaker made a touching reference to the resolutions of home and country the speakers read passages from Longfellow and Tennyson in French by Blake.

Madame eulogized the spirit of Lieut.-Governor Cockshutt when a by-election was held in this city. She expressed the hope that the two provinces might be drawn together in a more friendly understanding. The only remedy for misunderstanding the speaker offered was the teaching of little children the golden rule. "Do unto others as you would they should do unto you." Let us remember, she said, that each individual effort will consolidate the general result and that our principal part as women should be to promote peace, teaching tolerance. Let us remember that the industry by buying Canadian made goods.

The speaker refuted the oft repeat ed suggestion that Quebec is isolated reminding the audience that she has produced many of the world's great literature, best art, schools, etc. The heart of Quebec is loyal, she said, her pulse is beating ready to give its best to the country of which she is an integral part.

Following her interesting and patriotic address, the speaker showed some very fine pictures of Quebec, explaining each comprehensively. At the conclusion of the showing of the views, on behalf of the Club, Miss Hurley thanked Madame Fremont for her splendid address assuring her that all who had heard would profit not only by the ideals expressed but by the historic references which had revived interest in this oldest of Canadian provinces.

News and Views for the Average Woman and the Occasional Man

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

"Lew, Lew, what have I done to you?" Christine paced the floor and beat her small hands together in an agony of remorse.

Doris leaned an elbow on the white marble mantel and watched her in silence. His eyes were inscrutable.

She wished desperately that he would say something; upbraid her; denounce her. Anything would be better than this strange calm.

When they had come back to her apartment after their marriage, he had gathered her in his arms and whispered:

"My wife! At last! After so many long, cruel years."

She had seen the passion flare in his eyes, as his arms crushed her and his lips closed down on hers. Despite her effort to meet his kiss, she shrank from him, and the lips under his were cold as ice.

He had released her quickly. Seizing her by her slim shoulders, he looked for one long, revealing moment into her eyes. Then his hands dropped and he turned away. Then was a utter weary droop then over to his shoulders, and the muscles of his thin cheeks twitched.

"I understand, Christine. I thought it was too good to be true."

"Oh, Lew, I could kill myself! I am a coward! I—I am despicable, but I can't help it."

Now she walked the floor and wrung her hands in despair over a situation that was a thousand times worse than it had been a few hours before. He could see the painful sense by picking up his hat and overcoat.

"I'll be going along home, now. You've had a pretty strenuous day for a convalescent. You'd better go to bed and rest." And he went away.

Christine spent a sleepless night. What was she to do, married to a man to whom she never could force herself to be a wife, alone, penniless, with two children dependent upon her for their daily bread?

She rose early the next morning and recklessly defying the cold and the slush because necessity drove her, began another weary round of the agencies.

For days, luck was with her. She happened to meet an editor who was just leaving his office. He was in a tremendous hurry, but he stopped to chat for a moment. When she made her plea for a job, he said:

"You go up and see Miss Perkins. Tell her Ashby sent you. She was asking only this morning for an assistant in her department. It's probably only routine work. Maybe she'll use you as an errand girl. Suzanne is temperamental, so, if she hires you, better watch your step."

He went his way. It wasn't until long afterward that Christine learned that he had sent her to the temperamental editor more as less by way of a joke. Miss Perkins had reached the age when a woman bristles like a cat at the sight of another member of her sex, younger and prettier. She would have rejected Christine on sight, if given a free range of choice, but Mr Ashby was her superior and she had to accept any applicant he recommended. Moreover, Christine was willing to work for a ridiculously low salary which allowed Miss Perkins to have just that much more for herself, since her department was endowed with an aggregate sum to be dispensed as the editor saw fit.

Christine went home, flushed with success, her weariness forgotten, her worries over the problems of her new matrimonial venture but in the thrill of having obtained her first definite literary job.

When luck turns, it sometimes accomplishes the revolution with complete thoroughness. The night comes and the dawn appears. There is a rift in the cloud of troubles. It was so with Christine that day.

"I have an opportunity to be transferred to our branch at Syracuse. I am grasping it as a way out of a situation which I can sure must be very painful to you. I think, after all that has happened, that we could scarcely continue to see each other on the old basis of friendship—at least, not for a while.

"I shall be leaving town in a day or two. In the meantime, I shall arrange that a part of my salary be sent to you. You must take the best of care of yourself and not be worried. Don't think for an instant, Christine, that I blame you. I love you and shall love you all my life."

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

At the place where I worked last I fell in love with the chauffeur. He gave very attentive; I grew to love him dearly.

Then I found that he had been keeping company with another girl for two years. He had given her a diamond. But he has told me that he will not get married for at least a year. He says, "There is many a slip between cup and lip."

I have found another position and I tried to forget him. I can't. He still calls me on the phone and makes dates of which the other girl knows nothing.

I know it must end sooner or later. The thought is driving me insane. What you please help me?

HOPEFUL.

HOPEFUL: If the young man you speak of is engaged to another girl, it is wrong for you to accept his attentions. If he cared more for you than he did for his fiancee, he would have broken his engagement before this.

Refuse to see him again. A man who distributes his attentions can never bring you happiness. And remember the longer you see him, the more attached you may become and the harder it will be to break with him.

SHOULD WIVES OPEN HUSBANDS' MAIL?

By ELSIE MARLOWE

If you suspected that all was not as it should be with hubby's conduct would you open his mail? Or do you open his mail anyway? If so, what does he think about it?

We dropped this mild, innocent little question into circulation recently as if it was just like dropping a depth bomb. Everybody blew up at once. Here, who had only been married six months, said that she wouldn't dream of doing such a dishonorable thing. Others, who had been married twelve years, said she wouldn't dream of NOT going it. Here come two more answers:

DEAR ELSIE:

In my opinion nothing is so unpardonable as snooping. I am happily married and I think there is nothing like trust and confidence to make marriage a success, and there is nothing I can think of that shows mistrust more plainly, than opening another's mail. Of course, I would feel hurt if my husband didn't read his letters to more than them to me but if he didn't, I certainly wouldn't snoop. I know that if he should open my letters there would be a battle royal, although I never receive letters from any one other than a few lady friends or relatives.

A letter more trust and confidence would go a long way toward decreasing divorce cases.

A DUTIFUL WIFE.

And here come the big guns from the other side—

DEAR LADY:

I'm a snooper and proud to be one! I feel that I have a perfect right to open my husband's mail, since he has forfeited my trust in him by his actions. How long would he keep from opening MY mail if I had forfeited HIS trust?

I sympathize with Another Snooper. Of course, it isn't "honorable" to open another's mail, but generally the party in question has forfeited consideration by doing things that aren't "honorable." Just how much "honor" would Snooper's husband have if he thought friend wife was getting mail from another member of the "honorable sex"? Not very much, I'll wager.

From personal experience and observation, among my friends, I find that very little honor or fair play governs between husband and wife. Let us illustrate:

Twelve years ago, I married a man of good family and good education. I worshipped him. I started out with more than usual trust and high ideals. Changed my tastes to suit my dear partner, made allowances for bad temper and discourtesies to myself and friends. Although not of a jealous nature myself (because I felt that to love a person there must be trust and honor), these sentiments were not reciprocated by my honorable partner. If I talked with an old friend he would scowl and act generally morose.

I loved to dance and dine in public places occasionally (which we could well afford), but that was not his pleasure. The only recreation of my own choosing I got was when I visited out of town. He it said to my credit, I didn't want to dine and dance with any one else.

Several years later—I was married about three or four years then —while going through his "out pockets before sending them to the cleaners, I found letters from some girl. I never did ask an explanation. He knew I had seen them. He apologized. I agreed to forget. At certain intervals, the same thing happened.

You say, "why accept his support," etc. Now is when I really start to laugh. Of course, I could "throw up the sponge." I am no dumbbell, if I do say it, and have earned a fair living with fess less effort and no grief. But let me tell you something. If you had worked alongside of your husband for three years or more, starting him up in business, and were in a fair way to see the fruits of your labors rewarded, would you step out, leaving what you had built up by the hardest work and self-denial? I venture to say you wouldn't take your own advice.

At the time 15 years ago) when we had suffered severe financial losses, my so honorable partner objected himself to the extent of $300, some being a gift to an institution—not a charitable institution either—without either my knowledge or consent. I ask you, just how much honor is there in that? At the same time he was giving away this amount, we had to use bonds that belonged to my dad, for living expenses. My furniture had been sold and we were living in furnished apartments, which I loathe.

Now I open all mail, and at times when I find an order has been given which I do not approve, and order is countermanded by me pleasantly. And what's more I have he one father's consent and approval. He realizes his son's weakness and limitations.

As I said before, I could earn my own living, and that very easily, in comparison with my present activity. I am merely being practical.

An intimate friend of mine helped her homerific husband through college by taking in boarders, and how did he repay her? Well, this honorable man takes a vacation by himself, when he feels like having an outing, and goes to the wilds of Canada on a hunting party. And although friend wife made a fairly successful professional man out of a grocery clerk—she has to ask for every dollar she wants.

Now, I know women who count and dole each lunch and carfare money to their husbands, who doubt their every move and never give them a minute to do as they wish. I do not approve that extreme. But the obligations that involve good-sized amounts should be approved by both parties. And if a woman is foolish enough to help a man to the top, it isn't too much to ask that she get fair consideration in return.

BOSTON BEANS.

Dear worry, friend. I won't discuss your idea of "honor." It's a broad which is new to me and which I frankly confess I do not understand. You are evidently sensitive, intelligent, capable and you started your marriage with high ideals. Yet, you decided to remain with a man for whom you had but all respect and love, and go live a life utterly unworthy of your pride and dignity, IN ORDER TO RETAIN THE COMMERCIAL PRODUCTS OF THREE YEARS' WORK.

Had you been sick or encumbered with children or unfitted to earn your living, I would have understood that decision and given you pity for your predicament, my dear. But as I am undefriend and pity the tragic extremity which drives poor mothers to sacrifice all their ideals. But I confess I cannot understand an "honor" which would stoop to such an act to save a few dollars.

EAST AND WEST NOW CONNECTED

Continental Divide Has Been Pierced at Last; Started 1923

Denver, Mar. 1.—The Continental Divide—the barrier erected by the Rocky Mountains separating East from the West—has been pierced and man has walked beneath it.

President Coolidge touched a golden telegraph key in the White House at Washington setting of the charge of explosives that removed the last rock barrier in the Moffat tunnel, 26 miles west of Denver. Gov. W. H. Adams of Colorado and Gov. Dern of Utah, chanted over the big piles that erected and in a handclasp of greeting and friendship joined East and West beneath the crest of Jamis peak, 9,242 feet above sea level.

Hardy pioneers and gold seekers more than 70 years ago first conquered the mountain passes of the Divide as they wended their precarious and circuitous routes over and around the almost insurmountable peaks. A half century or so later, men again conquered the Divide when the airship first braved the treacherous air currents that play about the peaks. And now, man again, through the Moffat tunnel, 6.01 miles in length through the heart of the Rockies has conquered the range.

The first shovel full of dirt marking the start of the gigantic task was turned on Sept. 22, 1923. Straight through the heart of James Peak, one of the highest in the Rocky Mountain range rises the tunnel to Denver, workers have since driven their way. Starting at an elevation of 9,195 feet above sea level at West Portal, the charge of explosives tonight brought the workmen at the two camps together at an altitude of 9,242 feet, and still more than 1000 feet beneath the peak of James Peak.

The Moffat tunnel, longest in the United States, will be used by the Denver and Salt Lake Railroad, and will reduce the rail distance, with the exception of an eastward cut-off rail line 173 miles between Denver and Salt Lake City and will open to commerce a territory comprising approximately one-fifth of the entire state of Colorado. It contains some of the largest coal deposit fields in the country, as well as some of the richest farming lands of the Rocky Mountain region.

The tunnel, which cost $13,000,000, climbs for 20 miles of four per cent the start of the straight line tunnel from Sept. 22, 1923. Straight through the heart of James Peak, one of the high peaks in the Rocky Mountain range rises the tunnel to Denver, workers have since driven their way. Starting at an elevation of 9,195 feet above sea level at West Portal, the charge of explosives tonight brought the workmen at the two camps together at an altitude of 9,242 feet, and still more than 1000 feet beneath the peak of James Peak.

MASSASAGA

Last Friday evening a banquet given by the W. M. S. of Massasaga and Huff's Island, was enjoyed by all who were there.

During the afternoon the school was a scene of hustle and bustle after the school was let out. Preparing to seat about two hundred for a banquet was no easy matter but aided by the men, the ladies laid the table cloths and spread out the victuals as they arrived. Every lady in the neighbourhood certainly did their part and by the time eight o'clock came the tables were fit as we might express it, for say king. The piles of food, the delicious platters of meat, and the many, other tempting delicacies looked very tempting by the time the doors were opened to the guests.

The head table was in the senior room, running parallel with the window, at this table sat the speakers' table and visitors. The head chair was occupied by John Wesse, Ex-Warden of Prince Edward County, who very ably filled the office of host for the evening. On his left sat the entertainers for the evening.

During the time that the victuals were being consumed the Centre Orchestra gave some very interesting selections, which enjoyed the whole all. For the community singing led by Mr. Davidson, Mr. Robertson of Massasaga, and the whole assist, everybody was satisfied that they had sufficient for their stomachs, their attention was directed to the solemn, and programme that was awaiting them.

The first was a toast to Our King, followed by a toast to Our Country, both of these were proposed by Mr. Wesse. The toast to Our Country was responded to by Mr. John Diamond of Hillsville, whose description of trips in the Eastern Provinces were indeed very interesting and instructive. This was followed by a selection from Mr. R. Smith of Belleville, which was followed by a song by Mr. Harold Howard, also of Belleville. The accompaniment for both was played by Mr. Diamond.

Mr. F. Sherbert then proposed a toast to Our Educational System which was responded to by Mr. F. C. MacLauren, Principal of Belleville High School, in his response, he said that our Educational System is not our birth, but that was back in our forefathers' time somewhere in the ages gone by erected our present training. He stated that this was brought out by certain inherited tendencies which we appear to have each as he represented in his own case a particular feeling for the bagpipes when certain strains are played on them.

Four members of the Mission Band then sang a number of fitting selections for the occasion. Both Mr. Howard and also Mr. Smith gave a few more interesting selections.

The following toasts were also proposed and responded to: Our Own W.M.S., Our Mission Circle and Band, To the Ladies, and last of all To the Men. Mr. Wesse then moved a vote of thanks to all who had helped him in any way in making the banquet a success. This treasurer also announced that the proceeds were about eighty dollars. Considering the raising of the elements out this the banquet was a decided success with an attendance of one hundred and eighty people. Due to car trouble Mr. Wilson, the minister, was unable to attend. The meeting or rather the banquet was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

The farmer came from far and near,
To see how Roy could make it clear,
That his way was the very best,
To kill a pig and have it dressed.

Far roasting just come here and try
Wirst we can do for ear and eye,
You cannot judge till you could see
What wonders we could do for thee.

Then when the dressers were begun,
The teacher was Miss B. Robson,
And oh! the clothes that we did make,
New York would never undertake.

She mixed the blacks and red and green,
And such a sight was never seen
As when the girls went on display,
And took a walk down on Broadway.

And now we wish will take a turn

The boys were taught to judge the stock
And pick out one from any flock
Which gave most milk in any stable,
Or made best beef for any table.

Then came a teacher Mr. Kirk
And then the boys he set to work,
To learn what all the fields contain
Of animals as well as grain.

The bees and poultry he took next
And every day Ross had a test
That all the boys would have to learn
If they would ever run a farm.

But if you want to raise some fruits
Or vegetables and other roots
And cannot get your seeds to grow
To Owen at Brighton you must go

They got a very little lamb
One that the boys let run with them
When all on Owen they were gnawing
They made some pants and coats and vests.

On Fridays we did have a treat
Of songs and music and debate
The "Whirlwind" it was read with rate
For bits of news was printed there.

The W. M. S. and Ladies' Aid
Presented the banquet for which we paid,
The fee it was a little mite
And two friends we could each invite.

When the Agricultural School did start
Roy Atkins took the leading part,
Of all the lessons for the week,
And that was how the school began.

There we went years for one and all,
So Lake went to the Orange Hall,
That Owen Sine milking farms took
From Mrs. Stetson and Nelson Rusk.

The ladies then some lessons took
For how to sew, as well as cook,
To make a hat or a pole bean pot
With lace and ribbon put upon it.

For cooking lessons you should come
For we have only just begun,
But could you see the tarts and pies
Tenold bring the water to your eyes

When we would of the things partake,
Which Miss Frog and her cooks did make,
Fond never, indigestion knew,
Reverse the food was made just so.

Miss Joyce nursing lessons taught
And how with fear our mind was wrought
For oh! the medicine she'd make
And some of it we had to take.

THE COMING COAL STRIKE

We have had numerous requests for further information relating to the ordered coal strike, in the United States, both between the union miners and the operations owned by companies employing union labor, and, to be more definite, would say that this will not in any way affect the hard coal market, and that non-union miners' bituminous will continue to function. Opinions differ as to whether the production of coal by non-union miners will be sufficient to take care of the requirements of the Country, including Canada's share, but the very best authorities contend that with the enormous supplies that railways and industrial corporations have already accumulated, that no serious shortage will occur for at least six months after April 1st, should the strike become effective.

Use our LEHIGH and LACKAWANNA hard coal, SOLVAY COKE and "ORIGINAL" POCAHONTAS which are the most outstanding grade on the market.

BELL TELEPHONE MEET Y'S MEN'S CLUB FOR CITY LEAGUE HONORS

Defeated Canadian National Express in Fast Game By Score of 4-3

The Bell Telephone team won the right to meet the Y's Men's Club in the final game for the championship of the City League by downing the Canadian National Express in a hard-fought game at the arena last evening by a score of 4-3. The sudden death game for the championship will be staged at the arena on Friday night commencing at 8.15. It was originally scheduled for Wednesday night but the Y's Men have arranged to play basketball in Napanee that night and by the consent of the Bell Telephone it was held over.

That night's game was a thriller from start to finish and in reality it was one of the fastest and best games of the current season. The Bell Telephone had all the best of the play in the two opening stanzas but in the final chukker the Express boys came back strong and their supporters had every confidence that they would knot up the affair but when time was called there was still one goal down and pressing hard. The green shirts certainly lived up to their reputation of being strong finishers and certainly had the boys from the Pinnacle street building bottled up in the last few minutes. They were completely disorganized and the C.N.R., with everybody up on the attack were fighting with all their might to score the equalizer.

In all truth the Bell Telephone should have won by a larger score. Times without number they waited in on top of Boland only to shoot wide of the net or have that individual make some hair-raising saves. "Pat" surely did turn in a fine game and no blame for the defeat can be laid at the feet of that individual. One goal was of the soft variety but he more than made up for that with his marvelous work.

The game was characterized by smart goal-tending and flukard at the other end was not far behind Boland on the night's play although the former intermediate goalie had a bad evening than the Bell Telephone net-minder. Buskard, too, looked bad on at least one goal. The Canadian National also missed some pretty chances to tally when a pile-up occurred in front of the Bell goal and a single swat at the puck would have changed the complexion of matters.

There was quite a little rough stuff and the losers were the worst offenders but Basil Dowdall boys laid a little heavy on the hickory at times.

Referee "Pick" Arnott came in for a certain amount of shots on his work but a good deal of it was unwarranted. "Pick" handled a fair session from a spectator's point of view and although he may have allowed one or two things to slide by he checked upon everything very closely. Players must remember that a referee's is not the most-sought-after job in the world and "Pick" has given good satisfaction to most of the teams operating in the City League.

Bell Telephone, most of whom are veterans of many years' hockey service, were believed to be falling at the end of the second period but they came back with a new dash and pep in the final spasm. Every man on the ice worked hard for a victory and there was really no one who stood head and shoulders above his mates.

The ice, one of the fastest sheets of the season, provided the best kind of hockey and the boys are hoping Jack Frost will be kind for the titular battle on Friday night.

Connolly, Duval and Anderson were probably the best of the winners. The trio were all very effective and bore the brunt of the work. Teamwork on the part of both aggregations featured the game.

"Bill" Pinkie, "Sammy" Symons and "Ted" Whalen all played smart hockey for the losers. "Ted" Whalen who is generally tricky around the net was watched closely all evening. Pinkie with his cork-screw rushes was a dangerous man. "Bill" is the same hard-checker of old and used his body to the greatest advantage.

"Josh" Canning was also one of the bright lights but his good display of hockey was marred somewhat by his numerous visits to the penalty box.

Duval opened the scoring after a minute of the face-off. It was a solo effort well-executed and he completely fooled Boland. This was the only tally of the period.

Connolly put the Bell Telephone two up when after ten minutes of play in the middle stanza. It was a beautiful shot watch-high that nestled near the top of the twine.

Anderson came back in the third period to score another from close in. At this juncture Addison Lloyd's crew went to work and "Red" Whalen slapped in their first goal. However, Turcott sailed down the boards to notch the Bell's fourth goal.

"Bill" Canning batted in Pinkie's rebound and a few moments later "Sammy" Symons threw the spectators into a frenzy by getting the final counter.

The Big Game

Friday night's game promises to outdo all the rest if the weather man does his bit. The Y's Men triumphed over the Bell Telephone early in the season but "Vern" Weir and Company will stack up against an entirely different aggregation. The "boiler" boys have improved by leaps and bounds and a tidy battle is sure to result. Two officials, namely "Pick" Arnott and Ken Collins will be in charge. The officials of the League are planning for a big night. A combination hockey-bronco-dance scene between two well-known "outlaw" organizations is down on the card. This game is worth the usual admission price alone. The spectators will be given a treat when these opera stars throw over the boards. Besides this another set is being cooked up, the nature of which has not been divulged. It will occupy the time between the periods.

The tickets which are 25c are on sale from either the Bell Telephone or Y's Men's Club players or at Potter's Butcher Shop or from the Secretary-Treasurer at the Intelligencer office. Fans are advised to keep this date open.

Lineup of last night's game:

Boland	Goal	Buskard
Fiskin	Defence	Duval
Canning		Clarke

George Young's Attitude

In the eyes of North America, Geo. Young your maestro have discredited your honor as actors. If you only knew how outsiders look upon your actions by not attending the banquet that your home town tendered you at all hours? Bill Hastings was invited, also Ignesse some silly headed yap of a propeller, stated it was only an advertising stunt to remove your mother from the train. For these reasons you insult the Chief Magistrate of your City and in fact your whole city. I feel quite satisfied that it is not your fault. It is through your managers. I am not surprised at Levy urging you not to attend the banquet, but I am surprised at O'Byrne. Surely he cannot be an Irishman if he is I am ashamed of him and hence forth I am a Polack, although born in Ireland. I know nothing about your private affairs between you and Hastings but no one thought the love you had for your old home and especially the love for the land of the Maple Leaf, that you would forgive and forget for at least two hours it is to bad you are spoiling your wonder ful sequence event. Be a good sport George...be broad-minded, when you get older you will understand this friendly criticism.

READING INCLUDED IN INTERNATIONAL LG.

New York, Feb. 28.—The Reading club of the International League will remain in the circuit and operate next year under a novel arrangement, made possible by the desire of the other clubs in the league to cooperate and help out the present management. It was decided Saturday that such club in the International league would provide certain players to bolster up the tail-enders of the Toole circuit, and William Ashton, president and majority stock-holder, has agreed to take advantage of the offer.

It is understood that negotiations are under way by Ashton to obtain Ruthe Marquard, former star major league southpaw, as manager.

Under his novel agreement with rival magnates, Ashton will obtain three pitchers, two catchers, three infielders and four outfielders.

When "Soldier" Jones, Canadian heavyweight champion, battles Harry Gains for the championship, his bride —a charming English girl—will be on hand to give him every encouragement. Mrs. Jones is an ardent fistic fan and in England when the "Soldier" met Bombardier Wells, she was at the ringside disguised in male attire, and this in spite of the fact that she had been specifically ordered not to attend the bout.

Victors in last night's Canadian Y.M.C.A. five pin bowling championship competition, the local "Y" received a telegram of congratulation this morning from Social Secretary Rusmall of the Brandview Y in Toronto. The battle, he'd fought on every Y bowling alley in Canada was connected by wire at the central receiving station at Toronto where the splendid scores were compared and Belleville convincingly down as winners. The locals fought hard for the honor they won and have distinguished themselves and brought their home city into most favorable prominence.

Only one game was played last night at the Y Alleys this being in the Y. M. C.A. Canadian five pin Championship tournament. The scores being rolled on the Association alleys and scores telegraphed to Toronto. The proposal to have Brockville and Cornwall teams join up with a new Eastern Ontario O.H.A. Group will be looked upon most favorably by the local hockey magnates. The jump to Cornwall is especially long one and cuts a big hole in the coffers of the local club. It has been suggested that Cornwall and Brockville come up with a new Eastern Group to include Smith's Falls and a team from Ottawa. The port of Ontario has been for the need away from the Ontario Association but the class of hockey played in the Ottawa Valley League would no doubt warrant the entrance of one or two of the teams into the Intermediate O.H.A. This would leave Belleville, R. M. C., Queen's and Kingston to fight it out. Trenton dropped out because of the long jumps and the moguls in that town might be influenced to come back in. Picton after playing one or two games in the Lake Shore League during the current season threw up the sponge and may also be included in the new circuit. It has also been stated from reliable sources that Napanee are anxious to secure a berth in the Intermediate O.H.A. grouping. With a line up to date arena together with some of the smart material that appeared here the other evening against the Bell Telephone team the hollow town may be the ideal entrant. Winners of these two groups would then be pitted against each other in the final round of the O.H.A. playoffs.

An inter-county hockey series has now been formed between Brockville, Smith's Falls and Perth. The games will comprise the schedule each team having two games, home and two games at home for a city which has been donated to be finals for yearly at the close of each regular hockey season. These three teams are old rivals, being formerly for years in a group by themselves and always putting a keg be and all.

hockey with such players as "Bill" Symons, Harold and Allen Burke, Frank Frizzo, Ernie Higgins and others of Brockville, Art Moore, Percy Chrisholm, Naud, Higgins of Smith's Falls and Ken McKeown, Archie Kincaid, Cole "Texas" Brady and Stone of Perth all wonderful performers, most of these players have quit the game but there is still a few of them left to cover the bowels against fire this series.

While managing the Detroit Tigers Ty Cobb, like John McGraw, gave instructions to his pitchers, often before each ball was delivered. But as the infallible baseball Athletes this year, Cobb will have nothing to say about the strategy of Connie Mack's lineups. The venerable leader manager doesn't believe in telling his shortstop-pokers how to foul enemy batsmen. He prefers to let them do their own thinking r receive signs from the catcher.

In which group for the Wolverine fans, Detroit scribes are relating instances of Cobb's methods of handling the Tigers pitchers. Earl Whitehill, southpaw, is described as elated over the departure of his old mentor. It appears that Whitehill in a certain game was pitching against the Yankees with Johnny Bassler warming the mound, when Babe Ruth came up in a pinch with men on bases, after being retired the first time on strikes and again on a pop fly. As Whitehill was preparing to pitch to Ruth, Cobb yelled from centerfield:

"Walk him!"

Whitehill obeyed orders and the Bambino was passed. But Manager Cobb's team won the game, had been fooled twice by a lie curve ball which the southpaw delivered over the inside corner. With the count two and two, Cobb ran in from his position and said:

"Give him a curve over the outside corner!"

Noticing from Mowatt's stance that he was set for another low curve, in-

PENNOCK AND WHITEHILL BEST OF SOUTHPAWS

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—The two most effective southpaws in the American League, I say them, says Eddie Collins, are Herbie Pennock, of the Yankees, and Earl Whitehill, of Detroit.

"There may be other left-handers with more stuff, but Pennock and Whitehill are by far the most trouble some for me.

"I rank Pennock as one of the greatest southpaws in the history of baseball. Whitehill has the chance of becoming just as famous."

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Swither, old-residents of Bismuth, recently celebrated their golden wedding, surrounded by their entire family of nine children, seventeen grand children and one great grandchild.

CRITICS SELECT ATHLETICS AND GIANTS FOR 1926

New York, Feb. 28.—All of the major league ball clubs are in their spring training camp or are getting ready to move southward, and within a comparatively few weeks baseball again will be the big sport talk.

Owners who have their money invested in the g me were concerned not so long ago about the effect on the customers of all the scandal talk, but they seem to be confident again that a bigger and better season is approaching.

There may be more interest in the pennant race this season, than but because so many changes have been made in both the American and National leagues, that 1926 form and figure cannot be applied accurately.

The New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics are getting set to attempts.

John McGraw has made changes in the team since it flopped into the second division last year, and there is no doubt that he wants to celebrate his 25th anniversary as manager of the club by winning a pennant.

But there are other clubs in the league that will be decidedly in the running.

The St. Louis Cards won the pennant last year in the National league, and the Cincinnati Reds were only two games in the rear. The Pittsburg Pirates have a strong club and so have the Chicago Cubs.

The Giants, McGraw believes, will be stronger with Rogers Hornsby on second base and with Eddie Roush playing centre field. The club is out too pitch fully supplied with battery mates however.

Burleigh grimes may have a good year too, but he is well along in years. Mr. Graw is understood to be still after Adolfo Luque, Cuban star with the Cincinnati Reds.

If Connie Mack finds himself kicked off to much the world series by strength in the Athletics, the champion New York yanks probably would have start out the season as the favorite to win.

The Cleveland Indians, after the good race they made last season, certainly can't be ruled out of the battle with a few more of the kind.

If there is to be any upset in the American league, as there was last year when the Yanks ran away with the pennant it may be supplied by the Detroit Tigers.

A great many smart baseball men think that in all the excitement the Tigers have been underestimated and that they are one of the most dangerous clubs in the league.

CAPITOL THEATRE

College life and all that it implies predominately told, with a tremendous amount of suspense, is embodied in the "Tiffany" production, "College Days" seen for the first time here yesterday at the Capitol Theatre. Here is a picture that is well worth while and from the excitement point of view by the large audience last evening—especially during the grid football game climax—there is no doubt that all who saw the film voted it one of the best seen here this season.

With a strong caste, the picture is full of boy thrills and short-skirted dangers in their love and intrigues centered with the slang of the campus, wild roadhouse parties and all the rest of the much discussed lives of the younger generation today. The picture does not, however, fall into the error of trying to play the theme dramatic in a cheap and far unrational sex stuff. They are incidental to the story itself, which concerns the romance of Mary and Jimmy, the ed and football star, climaxing with a stadium battle than which none better has ever been done more convincingly on the screen.

An additional interesting feature of the picture's presentation was that which will neatly be offered tonight and Wednesday, is the clever piano, violin and ballet dance, "Dance of the Pans" by nine clever young pupils of Miss Audrey Mikel. These young ladies have never been seen to better advantage in their Terpsichorean art than in their presentations last night and their skillful and finished performance well merited the excellent reception they received at the hands of an appreciative audience. Altogether the programme is one of the best the Capitol has offered this season.

BELLE THEATRE

Predictions are being made that the crowning of Charles Chaplin's own story "A Woman of Paris" starring Edna Purviance, will stand forth in motion picture history as an epochal event that will even eclipse the greatness of the present day photo-drama.

The entire story and production, conceived and produced by this master cinema genius promises to reveal a treatment of a vital problem, presented with a fearless simplicity yet with an unbounded psychological force that will blaze a new trail along the highway of motion picture production.

The theme is a startling one, and made the more so because of the utter simplicity with which it is handled and permeates it. It presents a problem dealing with the basic and fundamental life, commenting upon it in interesting fashion rather than attempting to solve it.

"A Woman of Paris" will be presented at the Belle theatre tomorrow, being the first Charles Chaplin production to be released through United Artists corporation, the combined organization of the foremost stars and producers of the motion picture industry, Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith.

REGENT THEATRE

The film production of one of Thomas Burke's most famous Limehouse tales, "Pennikiltoes," heads an excellent entertainment bill at the Regent Theatre, with Colleen Moore—golden curls instead of her sleek, dark bob—in the stellar role. Throughout the film is the colorful atmosphere of the world's most stately waterfront slum.

FORMER M.P.P. SENTENCED

Perth, Mar. 1st.—Former M.P.P. (ng. A. H. Carr, director of extension for the Ontario Legislature Financial Aid Branch, was sentenced to 18 months in the Ontario Reformatory for theft of $1,000 from William Linton. The sentence was committed ten years ago said the case was one of several misappropriations of clients' funds. The penalty for such a crime was 14 years. The fact that the offence was committed ten years ago and that only now has a daughter Marion Linton, of Toronto, moved against Hall criminally, was given as a reason for the light sentence.

NEW PLANT FOR OSHAWA

Oshawa, Mar. 1.—Serious consideration is being given at the W. E. Phillips Co., Ltd., head office here, to a proposal for the installation of a 200 H.P. turbine to supply independently generated electric power at the factory, according to Lt. Col. Phillips, president of the company.

The plan is started to be a reaction to the present unsatisfactory service here in Hydro power, both in view of recently increased rates and serious interruptions in service which cause considerable loss to the manufacturers.

QUEEN'S S. S. REUNION

Kingston, Mar. 1.—On Sat. 26, the Montreal students of Queen's Summer School held their annual reunion and as usual it was an occasion of great pleasure. Between Kingston and Smiths Falls, New Brunswick, there is no university affording teachers an opportunity to complete the work of an Arts degree, so Queen's has a clear field. The gratitude of the teachers for the open door to academic advancement which Queen's offers is very delightful and encouraging. A. H. Carr, director of extension work, and W. T. MacClement, of Perth, director of the Summer School, were the representatives from the university, and received the most cordial and kindly treatment from the Montreal alumni. Students and graduates expressed their interest in Queen's and its work in emphatic and kindly ways.

No other city in Canada has a more loyal and enthusiastic group of extra-mural students than Montreal the school office as believe.

PETERBORO I.O.D.E.

The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of the 27th Regimental Chapter I.O.D.E.: Honorary Regent, Mrs. E. B. Cleg Regent Mrs. Cottrell, 1st Vice Regent Mrs. T. W. H. Young, 2nd Vice Regent Mrs. H. F. Poole, Secretary Mrs. D. A. Doonia, Treasurer Miss Maude Rogers.—Standard Bearers Mrs. R. S. Clark, Councillors Mesdames B. B. Gillespie, C. Stapleton, S. TRAGEDY IN PRUSSIA

Grudziesz, West Prussia, Feb. 23.—Franz Lewandowski, 21, is charged with having murdered five members of his family because they disapproved of his intended fiancée. The tragedy occurred in the small village of Grandzagen, near here.

Franz's seventy-year-old grandmother and his young sister were instantly killed with an axe, and his father, mother and younger brother were mortally injured. Franz denied guilt when questioned, but bloodstains on his hands and clothing led to his arrest.

MANY PLACES TO EAT YOUR MEALS IN HUGE GOTHAM

New York, Mar. 1.—Strangers in New York invariably remark on the infinite variety of environment in which they may take meals in the big city. A dainty bit can be obtained in the lofty tearoom of a piled up cloud retailer. A full meal from soup to nuts, is available for the price in the subterranean recesses of the subways, below the water line of the neighboring Atlantic. A feast may be spread in a stable at one time, a part of a great fifth Avenue establishment, or a banquet obtained amid the clutter of smashing crockery and empire smoke in a Bowery night restaurant. One can get three snacks a day at a total cost of 3 cents or less or spend $30. or more for big hotel compleasures. Life is yours on either appropriation. The variety is not only of environment, but of appetite, taste and purse.

Big fortune have been made in the eating house business in New York. From a waffle shop tucked away in a railyard terminal to a dining palace at an annual rental of $50,000 is the progress achieved by one woman, either in the space of five years. Significant this is, not only of the growth in size but in New York's aesthetic taste, as regards the background against which it will echoure to take food.

Some time ago this same woman established her restaurant in the Italian style. The new place is to be Spanish in tone of the latest popular restaurant in the traditional democratic white tiles have made way for Moorish archways. Simple vegetarian dishes are served in an atmosphere of dim monastic cloisters.

Nevertheless, the one caution in talking of New York is not to generalize. There has been, on the one hand, this drift from the simple dining establishment to the ornate. There has been, on the other hand, a great movement toward the small-store and drug-store counter. Crowded are ye coffee shoppes and the standups have where, in an atmosphere more or less suggestive of Old England Hall, white-capped cooks sizzle at vast pistol-packing on a stage fireplace.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

Lady Maude and her father were dining out that night, so that Travers and Rafe ate their dinner by themselves. The stately ceremonial of the meal, the number of servants, the subdued splendor of the room, all depressed Rafe and still greater effect on Travers, who was more capable of appreciating them; as a matter of fact, he was more awed by his surroundings than Rafe had been; and he was inwardly surprised at the self-possession, the magnificence, which this rough mirror, this brother of his, displayed in the presence of the servants, and he noticed that though Rafe's manner was unceremonial, more free and easy than that which prevails in good society, they screened from the butler downward, not only regarded the young earl with evident liking, but with marked respect.

"It is because he is the Earl of Strangate," Travers said to himself bitterly, but he was wrong; the silent, nakedness men who moved like well-oiled automata about the room had been quick to recognize the true, innate nobility of Rafe's nature, the high standard of manliness, which proclaimed itself eloquently in his superb frame, in the glance of his clear eye, the ring of his voice, his unaffected and disarming as it generally was.

After dinner they sat and smoked for a while, and Travers the while fell into talk of the life at Jumping Jane. Rafe did not want much drawing, and in a few moments, with a blank glare in the corner of his mouth, he informed Travers eager, inquisitive mind of many of the eccentricities in the life of the club. Once he spoke of Plenie, and as her name left his lips he stopped, as if arrested by vivid memories.

Travers pricked up his ears. "The life of a girl in such a world as that must have been describing, not have its interesting side," he said casually. "Was she a pretty girl?"

Rafe bit his brow. He had mentioned Plenie's name in the course of a story, but he did not want to talk about her. Travers noticed his reluctance, and grew more curious.

"Oh, yes, she's pretty enough," said Rafe, "but she's good all through, is Plenie."

"I suppose a girl, pretty and straight, as you describe this one, does such havoc among the men must be greatly in the majority."

"Oh, yes, ever so many of the boys want to marry Plenie," said Rafe, "but they haven't got her to say 'yes,' and I don't think—"

Well, as I was telling you—"

He went on with the story of a boy and lover's journey in china; but Travers understood as well as if Rafe had told him, that there had been tender passages between the girl Plenie and him; and Travers stored up the inference in his mind, so as to be storing up every little detail connected with Rafe, for future use. Every hour, it may almost be said every minute, since fate had thrown him and his half brother together so closely, Travers was more obsessed by his idea, his feverish longing to gain the advantage of Rafe; to use him if possible, to revenge on him the wrong which his father had wrought Travers.

They went out later in the evening, and Rafe proposed that they should go to some place of amusement. It was too late for a theatre, and they turned to a music hall. Thanks to education the entertainment at such places has greatly improved; but some of the items are still extremely silly and, strangely enough, considering his mother's taste, Rafe was not greatly amused. Already his mother, with Lady Maude was sitting up a sort of standard. As he sat, with his elbows on his knees and his chin propped in his large hand, and fixed upon futile juggling and listened to the puerile songs, he pictured Lady Maude's beautiful face growing more intelligent, impressive, and eventful, if it had existed that she should be present.

"I don't take much stock in that show he remarked to Travers surprise. "See you to-morrow, gardner!"

As he was entering the house the St. Ives' carriage drove up, and Rafe, with instinctive natural politeness, went down to it to help Maude to alight. He blinked at his eyes rested on her loveliness, and he hesitated to hold out his hand; but she gave him readily.

"Oh, Rafe, I've been dying to see you!" she said. "Papa has gone to bed, and I've been so dull! Have you had a good time?"

"Yes, thanks," he said, and he felt that he was telling a lie.

"Where have you been?"

"Oh, to a music hall," he said, and he felt that he was telling another lie.

"Then you must tell me all about it," she said, and she looked at him with a smile that made his heart beat.

HOPE ABANDONED OF SAVING MEN CAUGHT IN MINE

Rescue Workers Strive Frantically to Reach Entombed Miners

London, March 2.—Little or no hope is held that the men imprisoned by the colliery explosion near Owen yesterday can be rescued alive, Although one report from Cardiff said that five of the imprisoned men had been rescued, this was not confirmed by late despatches from the scene, which indicate that all twenty-eight men originally reported missing may be considered dead. This would bring the death toll to fifty-one as Lie before 23 underground men have been recovered.

Rescue Work

At an early hour this morning the galleries leading to the barrier had been cleared of gas and drilling operations were working to clear the passage. The task, however, is a difficult one which probably will take many hours. When the explosion occurred there were a hundred and twenty men in the staff. Sixty-nine of these were able to reach the surface immediately or were helped out soon afterwards, but those toiling in the lowest part of the mine were trapped by masses of debris. In a short time dense clouds of poisonous gases enveloped the galleries, preventing the descent of rescue parties.

Second Accident

Fourteen men are known to have lost their lives in a colliery accident near Mansfield, England. A cage laden with miners into the pit was struck by tons of piping which had collapsed. It crashed to the bottom where nine men were at work.

CITY HAS LOST PROMINENT MAN

Lewis Terwilligor, Well-known Figure, Mourned By Many

There passed away at his home on Moira Street this morning one of Belleville's prominent and outstanding citizens in the person of Lewis Dedyer Terwilliger. The deceased had been in failing health for some years past and his death was not altogether unexpected. He was born in the county of Prince Edward some sixty-seven years ago but had resided in Belleville during the major portion of his life. He was a son of the late Levi B. Terwilliger of P. E. County.

Surviving are two daughters—Mrs. Gertrude at home and Mrs. H. J. Pasto of this city and one brother, William, of Fort Morin. His wife predeased him to the grave sixteen years ago.

The late Mr. Terwilliger was for some years manager of the local branch of the William Paterson Co. Ltd., and for many years was closely associated with the late Hon. Mr. Paterson, President of the Company. He was prominent in Masonic circles being a member of Eureka lodge, and also Moira Chapter besides having been made a life member of the Chapter. Mr. Terwilliger was a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows No. 31 Lodge and he will be remembered for his activities in connection with the Oddfellows Band. He was manager of the organization under the leadership of W. H. Biggs. Mr. Terwilliger took an active part in the opening life of the city having owned the Belleville Driving Park for many years and was also prominently identified with athletic circles in the early days. He was at one time a member of the Board of Education.

Mr. Terwilliger was a member of the Methodist Church. He was a life-long liberal.

CANADIAN GOV'T WANTS TO SUPPLY FOOD FOR ESKIMOS

Ottawa, Mar. 2.—A wireless message has been received by the Northwest Territories Branch of the Interior Department from Forsild Brothers at Point Barrow, Alaska, reporting on the progress of their work on Reindeer investigation.

These two Dutch brothers are now on a twelve hundred mile push across Alaska and the extreme north coast of Canada, making an investigation into the possibility of moving reindeer from Alaska into the Canadian Territories for the purpose of maintaining a food supply for the Eskimos. Game in that section of the Canadian North is in danger of extermination and the survival of the Eskimos is menaced.

The Forsilds went into the north country last June and will not come out until Spring of 1928, when they will make a report to the Government on all phases of the reindeer question, including the commercial possibilities. It is expected that within a few weeks the little two man expedition will be in the delta of the Mackenzie River. The men are trained naturalists and botanists and are sons of the Governor of Greenland.

Yankee Government Evident ly Believes They Own Whole Ocean

San Francisco, March 1.—That the U.S. Government has carried its war against liquor smuggling to the high seas without regard for the twelve mile limit in cases where ships involved are known rum runners, became apparent today as federal officials discussed the seizure yesterday of the freighter Federal, owned by the Consolidated exporters, Inc. of Canada, three hundred miles off this port with upwards of one million dollars worth of Scotch whiskey aboard. Whether small guard guns were used to overcome resistance by the Federal's crew is being boarded was not made known, in the meagre radio dispatches received here 10 hrs. after the capture, but gunners were authorized to fire on the Federal. The ship is being removed to San Francisco by four coast guard boats. Captain and crew were put under arrest and the ship is in charge of a prize crew of coast guards. She will arrive here tomorrow.

FINE QUARTETTE PLEASES CROWD

Hart House Musicians Are Greeted By a Capacity House

A last evening an unusually large audience welcomed the Hart House String Quartet, presented by the Presbyterian Club, in the Memorial Hall to the war Alber College, Belleville, is extremely fortunate in having such a beautiful combination. Added to its gothic beauty, this almost perfect acoustic makes it an ideal concert hall, as the artists themselves were heard to remark afterwards.

This year being the centenary of the death of Beethoven, the greater part of the programme was devoted to his works. One of the entitle quartets, op. 18, No. 2, in G major opened the program, and this was followed by the Grieg number revealed themselves as truly great. The beauty of their tone, their perfect ensemble and delicate tempos were wholly satisfying.

The second number was devoted to some French Canadian airs by Auber and Cherry Ripe, two old English songs admirably arranged by the English composer, Frederick Delius, were played with appealing rhythmic swing and charming melodic effect. Arrangements of the French Canadian airs were by Dr. Seigneur en Panoir, and A Saint Malo, by our own Canadian composer, Emmanuel Hamel. Both numbers were played under their stipulated rendering of the magnificent week-stick in unusual effect, exquisite in coloring, extraordinarily melodic and striking in climax.

As an encore the second group of the quartet gave six Scotch dances by Carl Marii Van Weber.

After the programme, the artists and the executives of the Club were entertained by Mrs. Bishop in the Principal's Apartment.

The officers and members of the Presbyterian Club are deserving of congratulation for their efforts in bringing this outstanding musical offering to Belleville. That local citizens do appreciate good music was well demonstrated last evening by the large appreciative audience, and it is to be hoped that this enterprising Club, encouraged by such support as was given last evening, will continue in its good work and efforts towards the development of the better class of music in our city.

BRIBERY BREAKS UP SUN'S FORCES

Reported That Commander Had Resigned and Withdrawn Troops

Shanghai, March 2. — Movement of Shantungese troops into the war theatre south of here was believed by competent foreign authorities today to have reached a volume sufficient to stop the Cantonese advances on Shanghai so far as actual fighting is concerned. However, the question has arisen as to whether the defenders will be able to withstand the political propaganda tactics of the Southerns, which hitherto has been uniformly successful. The utter collapse of the once mighty forces of Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, who until ten days ago was the chief defender of Shanghai, has been brought about principally by "boring from within" on the part of the Cantonese.

Leaders Desert

One after another Marshal Sun has lost his five provinces, and there has been a minimum of actual fighting since he started his campaign against the Nationalists. A series of defections and betrayals whereby Admiral Sun's generals sided. Nationalists in the destruction of his domain has culminated in the surrender of Nanking, which has been eliminated as a military factor. Other generals have followed the step taken by Gen Ming Chun Shih, one of Sun's leading commanders, who refused yesterday to fight along with the Shantung army. Meng and his aides deserted Sun. The result of this was the announcement that all of Marshal Sun's forces were being withdrawn from the front at Sungkiang, 28 miles south of here, leaving the army of Gen Chang Ching Chang, Shantung commander, alone to bar the Cantonese advance toward Shanghai.

Sun Resigns

Unconfirmed reports from Hankiug, provincial capital from where military operations are being directed, said Sun had telegraphed his resignation as vice commander of Aikunchun (All Honors armies) to Marshal Chang Tso Lin, Northern dominion. BALDWINS BOOED AS THEY VISITED STRICKEN MINERS

Premier and His Wife Face Hostile Demonstration at Cwm

Cwm, Wales, March 2.—An angry demonstration against Premier Baldwin was staged by miners today around the pithead where the disastrous mine explosion occurred yesterday. The Premier and Mrs. Baldwin, arriving at noon, were greeted with booing and there were shouts of "Why don't you go down in the mine yourself?"

The demonstration began as Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin left the mine office where they had inquired about the progress of rescue work and voiced their sympathy for the stricken, lamenting from the offices they found a crowd of several hundred persons assembled waiting for them. There were some exclamations in Welsh and then a voice was heard above all the others, crying excitedly in English: "What about the men lying in the black vein?"

Face Hostile Crowd

For a moment it looked as the Premier and his wife stood alone in the face of hostility while their car was being brought around. Mrs. Baldwin was deeply agitated and seemed on the verge of tears, clutching her husband's arm. When they had entered the car, she sank back with an expression of pained amazement. The Prime Minister's wife spoke to women who had lost husbands or sons.

Use Pet Canaries

Meanwhile, bodies were being brought up from the nearby pit. All night long rescue parties had labored feverishly while there was a crowd in the area blocking them from the entombed men, although experts said there was no hope that any more alive. Throughout the long hours of darkness, women hovered about the pit head awaiting news of their men. For the most part they were silent, giving evidence of phlegmatic courage. Canaries were used to test the quantity of gas in the mine. These were pets, brought by women from their bereaved homes.

JUBILEE PLANS

It is clearly time to begin organizing for the national observance of Canada's diamond jubilee if the celebration is to be something more than a display of fireworks and nebulous oratory.

The Dominion government has already laid plans for a representative national committee; but owing to the size of the country such a committee cannot hope to accomplish much without the active co-operation of the provinces, the municipalities, and the education authorities generally.

Special efforts should be made to impress the facts of Confederation upon the minds of the rising generation. Long before Dominion Day the school children should be learning about the meaning of the diamond jubilee. They should take an understanding part in patriotic exercises before the schools close for the summer. Historic scenes, reconstructed under the supervision of competent Canadian authorities, might be told by moving pictures in the schools.

The time that remains, too, is no more than sufficient to allow for the organizing of local pageants, the laying of foundation stones, the planning of parks, city squares, town halls and other public improvements which should rise up in Canada to mark this sixtieth year of our nationhood.

DEATH PENALTY

The house of representatives of the Michigan state legislature has voted for capital punishment by 61 to 35. The fate of the bill will now depend on the action of the senate and the governor. Capital punishment was abolished in the state over eighty years ago but the prevalence of the crime of murder in recent years has brought about a notable change in public sentiment.

The bill as it is does not give entire satisfaction to the advocates of capital punishment. It leaves it with the jury to name the punishment, whether death or imprisonment for life, when a person has been convicted of murder. It is feared that the reluctance of juries to condemn to death will partially nullify the intent and effect of the law. Under our own system the responsibility of the jury ends with the finding of the verdict. In capital cases the punishment follows automatically. The law takes the responsibility.

TIMBER WEALTH

A reforestation plan of a far-seeing nature has been outlined by Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests for the province of Ontario. In the Legislature recently, on the occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of the first authorized timber sale in the province, Mr. Finlayson stated that the people must realize that they have to face a reforestation policy and must make the necessary provision from year to year to rehabilitate the timber industry in Ontario. The new Forestry Bill, which is the policy of the Ministry in legislative terms, seeks to divide Ontario into three sections for the purpose of reforestation. In Southern Ontario a determined effort will be made to interest farmers in planting out their waste land. All manner of departmental aid and instruction will be forthcoming, and as a special inducement to subscribe to the scheme, the Government assures the farmer who agrees to bear the expense of planting 10 per cent. of his acreage under reforestation, that he will be exempted of taxation on the acreage involved. It is also proposed to depopulate the Laurentian shield (Central Ontario), which is particularly adapted to reforestation, and to transfer the settlers, all expenses paid, to the clay belt further north and there provide them with 160 holdings equal to those abandoned. Up where extensive tracts of valuable timber are still to be had, the Government policy will be one of "giving nature a chance," with the ever-watchful eye of the forest all patrols ready at all times to aid the furtherance of that policy.

"Our timber wealth must remain," said Mr. Finlayson, in deploring the fact that in the infant stages of the industry here had been no efforts at conservation. "Timber must be treated as a crop and not as a mine."

Governments had erred in the past, he said. Lumbermen themselves had erred. Money in good timber that had gone up in smoke he contended, would certainly have gone a long way toward paying off the provincial debt. Old methods of lumbering, he added, had been designed apparently for no other reason than to invite fire and disaster.

"One of the fixed policies of this Government," said he, in referring to the good record of the pulp and paper industry in Ontario, "is to stop the export of pulp as soon as possible." The first pulpwood sale had been made in 1891. To-day Ontario was producing 2,000 tons of paper daily and in the next 20 or four years would raise that figure to a daily output of 4,500. He was glad to note that poplar, which long held second place in this industry by virtue of the fact that spruce is extensively used for newsprint, was now coming into its own in the field of finer paper.

The Government, said Mr. Finlayson, was hesitating now to make further commitments as to the expansion of the paper industry in Ontario. The possibility of the market being unable to absorb production had, he inferred, influenced this hesitation.

Leading up to a validation of Ontario's forest industries, Mr. Finlayson elucidated the belief that while the old pine were things of the past, Ontario still possessed, he contended, the finest stands of white pine in the world and even at the present terrific rate of consumption, they would last for many years, part unexpended by the succeeding wrath of the present day.

Ontario's timber production for the past five years the Minister of Lands and Forests valued at approximately $120,000,000. In view of the fact that the Government spends nearly a million dollars yearly in its fire protection for the industry, Mr. Finlayson thought that the lumbermen—particularly those who bought their limits under the old system that gave them Crown as well as cutting rights to the limits—should pay a more adequate fire tax than they do at the present time. Out of this fire protection the Government last year drew a revenue of $306,119.51.

The Ontario Government also proposes the establishment of a Forestation Board to be composed of members of the forestry staff at the University of Toronto, Government experts and men from the large pulp and paper concerns of the province. Such a board, Mr. Finlayson explained, would be voluntary and the cost to the people of the province would be confined to small administration expenses. They would conduct a series of experiments throughout the province and he believed would be of great assistance in building up its future wealth.

EXPERT'S JOB

The federal radio inspector, manufacturers and dealers of incompletely erected aerials. There are probably many aerials which would not meet with the approval of experts, and which may be sources of potential injury or death. The popularity of radio seems a congestion of overhead wires in some districts, and it is not always easy to arrange the aerial so as to give the best results and ensure freedom from danger. The advice of the inspector that the erection of the aerial should be left to experienced electricians is well worth heeding. Reports of fatal accidents arising from disregard of the necessary precautions are frequent, and it is impossible to be too careful. Electricity is a dangerous thing to play with and the simple copper wire in the hands of the inexperienced or careless may become the deadliest menace.

British Interests in China

Apart from the lives of its nationals Great Britain's material and territorial interests in China are enormous.

But "what we have we'll hold" is not the inexorable or predominating watchword; for Great Britain has declared a readiness to discuss, or even accommodate her Chinese policy, in the extra-territorial sense, to reasonable negotiation with any Chinese government capable of giving effect to the decisions finally reached. China's irascible nationalism would humble Great Britain out of China neck and crop, but as a distant table conference, it might be difficult to show that China would profit by that course to any extent.

There is fair play in British trade methods as in other directions. There is exemplary guidance in British methods in China. It has been shown in the course of the national finances of the Peking government from exploitation during a course of many years.

The Tongtse Valley has been Britain's special sphere of interest in China since 1857. It cannot be held that Chinese material interests were jeopardized there.

In addition to that sphere of interest Britain holds these other stakes. The island city of Hong Kong was taken over in 1842 at the end of a three years' war under the older order of things. China has lost nothing there.

A 99-years' lease to 400 square miles of mainland near Hong Kong was an affect in the German menace at Shantung, ended in the Great War.

A 99-years' lease to the seaport of Weihaiwei was secured at the same time and on the same theory.

There is an informal British protectorate over Thibet, historically part of the Chinese Empire but fought by John Bull. A refugee Dalai Lama was shut off; for Chinese "wild men," too.

Britain has railway construction and mining rights in the Yangtse Valley and the province of Shansi, citizens in return for which have agreeing to keep an eye on the militant Germans in Shantung province as an auxiliary to Hong Kong and Weihaiwei.

There are also British strategic areas of several square miles, known as "concessions" in the centre of the cities of Shanghai (dating from 1843); Amoy (1851), Hankow (1861), Kiukiang (1861), Chinkiang (1861), Newchang (1861), and Tientsin (1861).

The right of "extra-territoriality," is also Great Britain's. It means the right of British citizens in China, whether they live in British concessions or outside of them, to be governed by British law and tried by British officers. In avoidance of what are called Chinese torture courts.

There are the chief British concessions in China. France, Germany, Russia and Japan all possess similar rights, in principle, if not in so great bulk, in China.

But now Great Britain declares readiness for a readjustment. It would conceivably be an excellent tree of work for the League of Nations or the World Court, if present complications did not promise more for these great tribunals. China lacks stable government. Great Britain is trying to bring it about.

Prince and President May Open Peace Bridge

The new four million dollar Peace Bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie is to be opened in May next, if present plans carry, and it is hoped that the Prince of Wales and President Coolidge will be present to take similar parts in the ceremony. There is no draw span throughout the 6,040 feet of the new bridge, but it is high enough at the Buffalo end to permit of the largest vessels passing underneath it. Already there is evidence of a large increase in population at the Canadian end of the bridge, due to the facilities it will offer for easy crossing of the Niagara River at this point.

The new Peace bridge will also serve to link Canada and the United States telephonically. Provision has been made in the bridge for nine ducts to enclose telephone and telegraph cable, and Bell Telephone construction men have already installed the cable which will replace the submarine link now running between the waters of the Niagara River at Squaw Island. This new track for telephone talks should eliminate the many difficulties which invariably arise from underwater telephone cable in our northern waters.

ACIDS CAUSE BAD KIDNEYS AND BLADDER
Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing poison, waste and poisons, etc. You may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sore headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.
To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then get fine and bladder disorders disappear.
This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidneys and bladder disorders. By all means, drink lots of good water every day.

SENT HOME AGAIN

The two girls from Picton who were taken into custody by the local authorities on Friday last were given two years suspended sentence by Magistrate Mikel yesterday afternoon. The girls, both of whom are of tender years, have had a varied career and are rather an adventurous pair, but the Cadi in his remarks to them mentioned the penalty that might result if they were taken into the toils again which it is hoped will have some effect in quelling future wanderings. They were advised to take part in church work and obey their parents. Inspector T. D. Ruston was present on behalf of the Children's Aid Society.

PRESENTED WITH COMFORTER

The Alert Bible Class of Holloway Street Church met last evening at the home of Mrs. Varey, 70 Cedar Street, and presented her with a beautiful comforter. In the absence of Mrs. Stewart, the President, the presentation was made by Mrs. Hall to which Mrs. Yager responded. A social half hour was spent afterward.

"Y" TEAMS TO NAPANEE

Three teams, a men's volley-ball and two basketball, squads, men's and girls', will leave the local "Y" tonight at 6.30 for Napanee where they will meet similar teams from that town on the armouries court. The girls' team will be composed of: Centre, M. Holway; Forwards, L. Curry, C. Crucil. Fr. Steicher; Defence, S. Melchior, M. Cooke and P. Melchior. Men's intermediate team: "Vern" Weir, John Kerr, "Army" Armstrong, "Ed" Buchanan, "Jimmy" Alexander, Sam Curry, "Matt" Morrison and "Bert" Scott. The men's volley-ball team will be chosen from "Bob" Brown, "Bob" Mumings, "Al" Stillman, Harry Poste, Geo. Griffin, "Doc" Heffner and "Bill" Flaiz.

ORANGE EUCHRE

A very successful euchre was held last evening in the Orange Hall. Those fortunate enough to win prizes were: Ladies' 1st, Mrs. J. Hanna; 2nd, Mrs. E. Follwell. Gents' 1st, H. Ainsworth; 2nd, E. McQuaig. The consolation prize went to Mrs. D. Poste and Mr. B. Robinson.

MISS COOK ENTERTAINED

Miss Evelyn Cook entertained about thirty young friends at a delightful dance given at her home on West Bridge Street, last evening. A lucky number dance of which Mr. Abe Weir and Mrs. Thomas were winners and a puzzle dance were charming affairs, in the latter the young people found their partners by locating the young ladies with the portion of a puzzle missing from the one he held. Music by Mr. Gerald Demarck was thoroughly appreciated.

NEXT CONVENTION HERE

Mr. J. O. Merity, Court Deputy of Court Metro 33, Foresters, returned last evening from Ottawa where he attended a banquet given to Hon. Chief Ranger Joseph McCallum. Mr. Merity stated this morning that the triennial meeting of the High Court of Eastern Ontario would be held in Belleville during the month of June.

MOOSE PARTY

The attendance at the Moose euchre and dance last evening eclipsed all other similar marks and was voted the most successful of the present season. Three hundred persons took part in the card party and dance. The Ben Ton Orchestra supplied excellent music for the affair. Refreshments were served at midnight. The prize-winners were as follows: Ladies' 1st, Miss K. Offenrike; 2nd, Mrs. T. F. Demo; 3rd, Mrs. B. J. Black. Gents' 1st, Geo. Tice; 2nd, F. Gauthier; 3rd, J. Collins. The door prize was won by Mrs. E. Smith.

FARMERS FEAR THAW

Farmers in Hastings County are watching the weather conditions with greatest anxiety, fearing the little snow now left on the fields will be melted quickly, leaving fall wheat exposed to the frost. This would undoubtedly prove disastrous to the crop and the agrarians would lose out to the extent of many thousands of dollars.

VISITED MOIRA CHAPTER

Rt. Ex. Comp. H. J. Clarke, who was appointed Superintendent of Prince Edward District R.A.M. at the meeting of Grand Lodge in Ottawa recently, paid an unofficial visit to Moira Chapter last night. Mr. Clarke's appointment is the result of office of District Superintendent was a well deserved tribute to his ability in Lodge work having attained the position after six years as a companion. This is a phenomenally short time to become a superintendent and at the same time generally considered better than the average.

MR. GIVINS' FLOWERS

In all the years of horticultural experience, Mr. W. J. Givins, of the T. Givins & Sons, florists, has never had more pronounced success with bulbs and other spring flowers than this year. The hot March sun is making the pansies, tulips, etc., in his garden on the corner of Dundas and to back this statement up he brought into The Intelligencer office a large bouquet of golden daffodils which he presented to the members of the staff. Proof to last what a state of perfection these golden beauties may be brought. Their size and brilliance of color were a revelation. The flower lovers who were fortunate enough to see the magnificent blooms

DAVID MORAN

The funeral of the late David Moran took place yesterday from his late residence in Rathdonbog yesterday afternoon, the service was conducted in Burn's Church by the Rev. Wilkinson. A large number of friends were in attendance and many floral tributes were in evidence. The bearers were S. Vaughey, E. Rathbeck, S. Moran, D. Orr, S. Calnan and W. Clark.

WILLIAM THOMAS WATKINS

A very sympathy is extended to Mr. Wm. Watkins and his wife, Mary Thomas, of Ivanhoe, in the loss of their third and youngest child, a bright little girl of 12 months. The family had reached here from South Wales only two weeks ago and the death from double pneumonia, on Sunday, 20th Feb., 1927, was a severe shock to the parents and friends.

The funeral was held Wednesday from the home of the mother's parents to the cemetery at White Lake. The service was conducted by the minister of the Pastoral charge, was largely attended by neighbors. The text was Matt. 18, 10: "For I say unto you their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven." The hymns sung were, "There's a Home for Little Children" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus".

The family are natives of Tonypandy, South Wales. The child's mother is a sister of Mrs. Mahoney of this city.

46TH MILESTONE OF CITY MISSION

Rev. F. L. Brown, Superintendent Domestic Missions, Pays Visit

The forty-sixth anniversary of the founding of the City Mission was celebrated in the little mission house on Dundas street, last night with a fine "supper", prayer services, discussion of matters, musical entertainment and two very interesting addresses, by the Rev. Brown of Toronto and the Rev. J. S. McMillan.

To begin the evening a free tea was given to the scholars and their parents and over a hundred scholars and their mothers and fathers enjoyed a delicious meal. Following the tea, the regular anniversary services were held, at which reports of the work for the past year were heard, all of, which were very encouraging.

Toronto Divine

The presence of the Rev. F. L. Brown of Toronto, Superintendant of Domestic Missions in the United Church of Canada was much appreciated and his address was listened to with great pleasure by all.

In his talk he referred largely to the missions in Northern Ontario.

The Rev. J. C. McMillan, pastor of the City Mission, next gave a splendid talk in which he referred to the early days of the Mission and its founders, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Schuster.

After these talks the school took part in a musical programme and Mrs. E. J. Ridley kindly rendered a solo which was much appreciated by the audience.

Another interesting feature of the evening was a short history of the beginning of the school, given by Mrs. Captain Smith, one of the first scholars of the school after its organization.

Week's Work

This is a sample of the week's work which is carried on at the Mission. Two services are celebrated on Sunday, a mother's meeting on Wednesday afternoon, a sewing school on Wednesday after school and the Little Loyal Temperance Legion meets on Wednesday evenings. The public are always welcome to any services in the church. The Rev. J. S. McMillan is the pastor. His circuit includes the Centre Street Methodist, Bannister and the City Mission. Cottage prayer meetings are held in the homes of members of the congregation.

For many years the City Mission has stood out as a beacon light where kindliness and good-will are shown to those in less fortunate circumstances.

MINING GOSSIP

Another effort is to be made to rejuvenate the Miller Independence Gold Mines. Shareholders are being urged to subscribe for another stock issue to carry out certain recommendations of the company's engineer. Forty-five thousand dollars, it is claimed, is required to properly open up the ore shootings in the property by Mr. Hotchkin, who has thoroughly examined the properties.

A large amount of money has been spent in development of the Miller Independence from time to time. The property was equipped with a small milling plant, but this was destroyed by fire during one of the bush conflagrations in the north. Some rich ore has been developed at the Miller Independence, but for the most part the shots were short and the veins lost.

Work at the Bell-Ben Lorrain mines is proceeding at a good rate with the installation of the mill. Most compressor was completed a short time ago. The new shaft house is now under the work. Boilers have been equipped with a self-dumping skip equipment, doing away with a lot of the old-time work. Eight shaft has been connected right through to the 400-foot level.

Drifting is under way both north and south on the 200 and 400-foot levels on the main vein. In the north face at the bottom hole heavy cobalt fire is said to be showing. To the south the vein shows cobalt and niccolite, characteristic of the district. Several veins of this nature developed on the adjoining Lorrain Consolidated had great width and persisted for several hundred feet, but a very small amount of silver was found in them, however.

Do Modern Girls Lack Common Courtesy?

By ELSIE MARLOWE

Albert has filed a new complaint against the Modern Girl. It isn't her short skirts to which he objects—IT'S HER SHORTAGE OF MANNERS. And we'll say that Albert has sprung a youthful!

DEAR ELSIE:

I'm a young chap past nineteen and, like a good many others, enjoy the company of young ladies. But, Elsie, there is something wrong with them today. I do not know if they were any better in days of yore, but they sure do fall short of one thing today and this is in common courtesy.

In the several years that I have been girls out, which has been very often I have always made it a practice to believe that a girl was good until she proved herself otherwise. But that is not coming to the point. I have taken girls out many and many a time, have shown them a good time, took them back home again safe and sound and have not tried to pet my money's worth out of them, and I have yet to be thanked for taking them out.

It seems to me that common courtesy is sorely lacking. I have not asked for anything but companionship and appreciation, and yet one and all, as soon as they reach their home, they make a bee-line for the door with "good night." They be entirely wrong, and it may be that I should not expect it but it seems that "I had a very pleasant time, thank you," would not be too much for a girl to add to her "good night." Some of my friends agree with me, and come disagree, and I would like to have this set straight.

Then now I am giving up a girl whom I respect very much and whose company I enjoy equally well, for nothing but that reason. It is possible that I am a crank, or do not clearly know the position of a girl who is taken out by a young fellow, but it seems to me that ordinary, common, everyday courtesy demands that a young fellow be thanked!

Please understand that I do not say a girl should get on her knees and make all kinds of obeisances to me, but, as I said before, merely extend common courtesy.

I would very much like to have your opinion on this, and I am sure a great many other young fellows would be interested.

Yours very truly, ALBERT.

In this, the lobbed hair age, Miss Sinclair Sjogren of Toronto possesses the unique distinction of having the longest hair of any woman in the world. Its longest strand is 10 feet 6 inches in length and when let out trails behind her like an abbreviated train. When she does it up she braids her hair into two plaits, winding them around her head like a turban. "If a woman finds her hair a burden," says Miss Sjogren, "there is no reason why she should not shorten it, but I don't find mine a burden.

Do I agree with Albert? I DO—100 per cent.

I am a Modern Girl's sincere admirer I like the way she dresses and the way she's trying to think. I believe that she is going to give the world some of the finest wives and mothers that the human race has ever seen. BUT I'M HERE TO SAY THAT HER MANNERS NEED MANICURING.

There's a reason for her impoliteness Albert. The Modern Girl detests, and has a good reason to detest, the fawning obeisances and sticky sentimentality of bygone days. She knows that grandma's flattery and flutterings too often hid fear and dislike and actual deceit.

But grandma had no other course. She licked the hand that fed her and there was no other alternative in sight.

The Modern Girl doesn't believe in that sort of sex hypocrisy. And in her fight against it, and her delight in her own independence she has gone to the other extreme of rudeness. That's a big mistake." Courtesy is a very subtle and beautiful tool, and the girl who discards it shows a great lack of intelligence.

You're wise in leaving such a girl, Albert. Perhaps, though, you'd be still wiser if you had a frank talk with her before you left her, and showed her this letter. There's one very fine thing about the Modern Girl—she's usually a good sport. Perhaps your girl will be a good enough sport to take a tip in time, if you give her a chance.

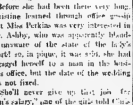

CUTLERY MAKERS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Sheffield, England, March 1.—Cupid's activities have thrust a suggestion of romance into the prosaic cutlery industry.

Prospects of an unusual number of weddings throughout Britain has caused all kinds of optimism among the manufacturers of knives, forks and other household necessaries which leads the Sheffield Chamber of Commerce Journal to comment thus:

"With the mining and manufacturing trades getting into their stride, we may expect many more weddings in the next few months, and there will be correspondingly an increased demand for table cutlery, plate, and all household utensils. We also anticipate a better demand for garden tools this year, as our people will have more money than in 1926."

HEARTS' HAVEN

CHAPTER XXXII.

JOBLESS AGAIN

To Lewica letter, Christine replied.

"Ah, you are good! I wish I could love you as you deserve. We made a mistake—but it is very unfair that you alone should have to pay for it. No, my dear, I cannot accept financial aid from you. I have landed a job and shall soon be on my feet again. You need not give me another thought. I have taken too much of your time and consideration already."

"Well, I see you got around Suzanne all right," he said laughingly. "But remember what I told you. She is the czarina of her department."

Christine soon realized that there were no idle words. Miss Perkins ruled her little domain with an iron hand. She made every one under her earn every cent of his pay.

Christine would come home at night worn out from tramping around town gathering material for local articles about frocks, furniture, fuss, vanities, and household mortlers. The work was pleasant enough, but she kept a watchful eye on the fiction department, hoping for a chance to sell a story.

She soon learned that Miss Perkins was possessed of a strong personal jealousy which extended beyond her profession to professional rivalry. She liked to be the center of the social life of the office. From her comfortable reserved chair behind the best desk in the office, situated in the most desirable corner, she would graciously receive each of her minions, both male and female, who were able to snatch a few minutes for a chat with the queen. She liked to have them around her, especially the men.

She was a tall, full-busted woman with a rich hair and peculiar light gray-green eyes. Without being at all pretty, she had style and a flair for selecting and wearing clothes.

Before she had been there very long Christine learned through office gossip that Miss Perkins was very interested in Mr. Ashby, who was apparently blissfully unaware of the state of the lady's heart. As in a page, it was said, he had engaged himself to a man in the business office, but the date of the wedding was not fixed.

"She'll never give up that job for Sam's salary," one of the girls told Christine. "Gosh, I wish she wouldn't! I can make time for 2, but, of course, As'by May say, and it seems to me he likes you pretty well."

Christine knew he did, and she liked him very much indeed; he was so jovial and pleasant. Each day he would enroll in for a little chat with her and ask how she was getting on.

On these occasions, Miss Perkins would cast vicious glances at his back, and Christine soon noted that, after his departure, Miss Perkins would be very snappy toward her. Other young men in the office soon came to follow their chief's example, for Christine was prettily and smilingly always ready to listen to the stories of their achievements, their best-paced fears, even confidences about their sweethearts.

This did not please Miss Perkins, who saw her own following growing smaller.

One day, after several members of the staff had stopped at Christine's desk for a chat, Miss Perkins, bearing a sheet of paper in her hand, and coming over to Christine, pinned it on the wall to the right of the latter's head.

It said in big, black letters "Line will please form on this side."

"I rather think you need that," said Miss Perkins, with a smile that made Christine think of a Cheshire cat's grin as it was such a mechanical movement of the lips, so completely lacking in humor.

On another day, Christine happened to meet Mr. Ashby coming in from lunch, for they mounted the stairs together. At the top, they came face to face with Miss Perkins, who, apparently, jumped to the conclusion that they had lunched together. She gave Christine a venomous look. Later that afternoon, she found occasion to say: "Really, my dear, you must economize more on your work. You have had so little extra revenue that you are really almost reckless to me, but, because I believe you have some ability, I am pushing up with a lot from you."

Christine flushed and bit her lip, but she managed not to make a retort. It seemed she was extra tired that day. Her nerves were on edge, and she was sensitive in her little sketches.

She must not let this woman's dislike of her force her into relinquishing her job, she thought. She worked harder than ever, and one day it did she was too busy for any conversation with the male members of the staff.

The climax came one day in early spring, when the first violets were appearing on the trays of the street venders.

Christine had been able to do a favor for Sam Scott, the fiance of Miss Perkins. He was in the big editorial department of the magazine, and she, in her cubby-hole around town for snappy fash ion paragraphs, had had him to lunch with a small little specialty spot. He put the deal over and made a very little commission for which he thanked Christine, fervently. She said that it was nothing and forgot all about the matter.

But a few days later, when he came in from luncheon, he was carrying a little bouquet of violets. He walk up upstairs to "the editorial rooms and laid it on Christine's desk.

"Say, I brought you this," he said awkwardly. "Violets seem so kind of nice and spring-like. They kind of suit you." /

A sound that was almost like a hiss made them both turn.

Miss Perkins was standing behind them. Her eyes were blazing but she said nothing. Christine felt horribly uncomfortable.

How could the man, in his mistaken sense of gratitude, have been so stupid? Of course, Miss Perkins

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LARUE:

I am a girl in my teens and am very much in love with a young man eight years my senior. He says he loves me; but he is somewhat interested in another girl, and he never openly asks for name to his friends.

Do you think he thinks more of me than he does of her? He says he wants to marry me. Does that prove his love for me?

DORIS MAE.

DORIS MAE: The young man is apparently of his emotions. It would be unwise to marry him until he has shown greater stability. Until such a time do not bind yourself to any promise of marriage. I would also suggest that you are older young men. It is your right, until such a time as you feels a little more certain of the young man's affections.

Hollywood fashion extremists are said to be wearing little electric lights on their slippers. Isn't it enough to be light-headed?—Detroit Free Press.

Wool georgette, variously designated as crepe Georgia and wool Roma, is highlighted as a fabric of great interest in dresses of sports and tailored genre by layers just back from Paris.

The omnipresent costume flower is continually appearing in new forms, and one of the latest being the cluster of small field flowers made of colored feathers, primarily designed for wear with the tailored costume.

Madame Jenny believes skirts are too short, indicating that, while she is one of the creators of them, she is not entirely pleased with them, and adds: "Women will carry fashion to an extreme limit before a reaction sets in. It seems as if the limit of shortness has been reached.

London hears that it is now practically certain that the first two courts will be held at the end of May and while preliminary lists of American debutantes who will be favored by presentation are now being compiled in spite of much speculation as to who the lucky ones will be, the names are being kept secret.

Pintucking often is the only trimming on a costume, novelty pleatings are important, shirring is frequent, and matelasse effects are making their appearance more frequently each day. Any one in doubt where often a plain blouse is posed over a shirt pleated and stitched in this manner, or where blouses are worn over pintucked skirts.

Agitating has arisen in London for private swimming tanks for society women, and while New York society has not made a tank in their Colony Club, London women must either go to the south coast of England or use public swimming tanks. And these are only usable in summer, while nowadays the Riviera is the nearest place where the English debutante can swim.

Shoes to match the costume are remounted this season at Palm Beach where leather pumps in brilliant colors are chosen to match the frock or to carry out the trimming note. Red shoes, red hats and red purses are worn by several of the smartly dressed women, while in other instances a blue dress may be seen with blue shoes.

When recently the King and Queen of the Belgians paid London a flying visit to view the Flemish Exhibition their Majesties stayed simply in Claridge's Hotel, where the King and Queen of Roumania called on them, and it is declared that this was the first time Kings and Queens have been entertained in a hotel bedroom in London.

ARTISTS STILL TEMPERAMENTAL

Atlantic Ga., March 1.—Uneasy lie the heads that provide for temperamental artists," is a paraphrase easily applicable in the small coterie of Atlantans who care for visiting grand opera stars and concert artists.

Even though temperament is kept more in check than in the past, they know almost anything still may happen when an artist is to be served.

Paderewski, for example, hated his last concert here until an attendant placed a fan in the far end of the auditorium. Then Richard Crooks, the tenor, came along only to interrupt his mid-matinee recital until windows were ordered.

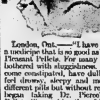

There is a story of how Rosa Ponselle required the management to place a carpet from her dressing room to the stage, because she did not want her costume to touch the floor. Thinking the carpet would prove useful to other artists, officials let it remain. The next star, however, refused to go on the stage until it was removed.

Few opera stars appearing here, however, go to unusual extremes. Chaplin's agents used of all day before an evening performance in sleepy, Gallicized, like many singers, does not accept engagements on the day she is to appear and there are others who refuse to sumit anyone to their rooms.

LAUGHTER CAUSE OF WEAR IN THE THEATRE SEATS

London, Mar. 2.—Plays that cause laughter wear out theatres seats much more rapidly that does serious drama. Consequently, when audiences rock with mirth night after night for three years, as London folks have at "The Farmer's Wife," Eden Phipotts's comedy of Devonshire rural life, which has just ended its long run at the Court Theatre, the joke is partly on the owners of the theatre.

The Court is closed for a month while new bottoms are put in the seats. Then another Phipotts play "The Blue Comet", will be produced.

Not even Bernard Shaw can boast that any of his plays ever wore out seats in a London theatre. It's lengthy "Back to Methuselah", was staged at the Court Theatre—one act a night for four nights in succession constituting a performance—but the red plush seat cushion showed little if any wear after the play's short run.

Miss Evelyn Hope played Aramintu Dench in "The Farmer's Wife" 1,200 times in London without missing a single performance.

"Toward the end of the run I had a stronger obsession that I could not utter a line of my part," Miss Hope plained after laying aside the makeup of the rustic part. "I think nearly all the members of the cast got the same way. We imagined we had dried up and couldn't say the lines. In fact sometimes we did forget. You can know lines too well and say them too often. But every actor knew the lines of all other members of the cast and there were plenty of prompters on the stage to pick one up. It is strange that one forgets one's lines, but can always remember the other lines in the play."

King George and Queen Mary several times during its long run, went to see "The Farmer's Wife" Eden Phipotts wrote the comedy several years ago, but had difficulty in inducing a manager to give the "thick" play a tryout. They all thought the day of rural comedy was gone. Sir Barry Jackson finally staged the play and it had to be moved along for many weeks before it blossomed into a perennial which has been surpassed in the length of its London run only by "Chu Chin Chow", "The Beggar's Opera" and "The Maid of the Mountains", all musical shows.

MUSCLE SHOALS PROJECT WILL NOT BE SETTLED

Washington, March 1.—The long fought question of Muscle Shoals power project will apparently not be settled at this session of Congress. This is the opinion expressed by most of the leaders in House and Senate.

This means that much of the battle over Muscle Shoals, the great power project in Alabama, will have to be fought over again in the new Congress. It also means that it is made extremely uncertain, whether the plant will ever be leased. It is probable that in the new Congress the sentiment for continued government ownership of the plant and perhaps government operation will be stronger than in the present Congress.

Much more is involved in the problem than generally realized. If the government keeps its hands on Muscle Shoals it will be a precedent for government ownership of other power projects. Private power interests do not want the government to set the example by keeping the Muscle Shoals property and running it. They fear power rates for power, not to mention low-priced fertilizer. They are moving all possible influence to get the government to give up Muscle Shoals through a lease to private interests.

The example of what is being done in respect of hydro-electric power in Ontario and, the low rates there given the public is a large factor in the Muscle Shoals fight. Senator Norris has repeatedly dwelt on the low rates in Ontario. Naturally, private power interests here do not want such competition.

BRING SETTLERS TO THE SUGAR BEET DISTRICT

Lethbridge, Alta., Mar. 3 (By C.P.).—The Canadian Colonization Association intends to concentrate during the present year on bringing settlers to the sugar beet districts in the irrigation sections of Southern Alberta. This statement was made to the Lethbridge Board of Trade by T. O. F. Herser, manager of the Association.

Mr. Herser stated that last year about 7,000 Mennonites from the steppes of Southern Russia had been brought to Western Canada and that they had readily absorbed. In the past two years the association had brought out nearly 1,661 families, mostly from Europe, who, settling on more than 460,000 acres of land, had populated between eighteen and nineteen million dollars of live assets in recovering farms held by banks, mortgage companies and others, into productive and valuable assets.

Of the settlers brought out, 77 per cent were Russian Mennonites. These settlers, Mr. Herser said, were drawn from the landed aristocracy of Russia before the Soviet revolution, who subsequently were deprived of their lands. They had established a record of 95½ percent success among the families settled in the prairie provinces.

THE COMING COAL STRIKE

We have had numerous requests for further information relating to the predicted coal strike in the United States to-day between the mine miners and the operators owned by companies, employing union labor, and, to be more definite, would say that this will not in any way affect the hard coal market, and that non-union miners minute blindness will continue to function. Opinion differ as to whether the production of coal by non-union miners will be sufficient to take care of the requirements of the Country, including Canada's share, but the very best authorities contend that with the enormous supplies that railways and industrial corporations have already accumulated, that no serious shortage will occur for at least six months after April 1st, should the strike become effective.

INTEREST GROWS IN FINAL GAME OF CITY LEAGUE

Kiwanis Club and Recreation Rats to Furnish Real Fun

Friday night's game in the Senior City League is the talk topic of conversation in sporting circles these days. Opinion is divided as to the outcome as both the Bell Telephone and T's Men have their backers. The wire and cable men have been improving regularly until now they are in the best of shape and promise plenty of action. They are out to secure revenge for the defeat handed them by the T's Men early in the season. Vern Weir, Armstrong and Company are all set to dominate matters and in the finest of condition. The Bell Telephone with Duval, Connolly and Anderson, their three scoring aces in the pink are rarin' to go. The boys are hoping that the present cold weather will continue until Friday.

Besides this championship fixture the Kiwanis Club are gathering together an aggregation that will stack up against Stub Barrett's Recreation Rats in a six-line feature. In this game the boys will not be restricted to anyone set of rules and the game promises to be a thriller. Broom, basketball, lacrosse sticks, and any conceivable means of torture will be in order and the boys are hoping to teach the fans a few new tricks of the trade. A referee has not yet been selected but with the importance attached to this game the teams are thinking of importing Lou Marsh or Tom Monroe. However, lack of finances may prevent this move and applications for the job will be received at the Secretary's Office up to the hour of five o'clock noon—pardon, night, Thursday, the 3rd. Applicants must state age, weight and salary expected and also mention experience in pugilistic circles as the official chosen must be able to protect himself from flying fists, pop bottles and the like which are sure to be in evidence before the frame is over.

Fred Brason who is in charge of the Kiwanis crowd has promised to bring out a team that would make Eddie Thomas' Marcons look sick. He has not divulged the nature of his line-up but fans may rest assured that it will be a speedy one.

Stub Barrett who has charge of the Recreation Rats is gathering a bunch of boys whose prowess on the bowling alleys is known far and wide but no mention has been made of their experience with a hockey stick. Mr. Barrett came out with the startling announcement last evening that he had signed Gerald Lynch of "Y" fame. Mr. Lynch is out on the trail of a pair of skates but, if failing to locate a pair will appear in uniform on a pair of skis. This game will be worth the price of admission alone. There may be a few other surprises in store for attending patrons. Time, date and place—8:15 Friday evening at Belleville arena.

Interest in Friday night's triple fixture in the City League bowlers is growing rapidly. The Bell Telephone gang are coming out with a determination to win but Vern Weir and his cohorts will be trying with every ounce of energy to prevent them from attaining their ends. The game between the Kiwanis Club and Stub Barrett's Recreation Rats should be a real knock-down.

LESTER PATRICK LORE OF INTEREST

Manager of Rangers Stamped as Peculiar Character by N. Y. Scribe

New York, Feb. 23—Lester Patrick manager of the New York Rangers, is a veritable treasure chest of tales about other persons. Getting him to talk a bout himself is like plucking flies out of molasses. If Patrick managed the Rangers like he answers questions about his own past, present and future, the team would be in the cellar, far out of the running for the championship of the world.

So in digging up a few pertinent facts about him it was necessary to consult not only Patrick himself for the cut and hired cutlassary date yarns, but also a grizzled old veteran whom Jack Filman hockey boomlugger delivered bag an baggage. This old timer will be given his finger first if only as part of the compound to Patrick for concealing so many details.

"Les Patrick, as I remember him up in the fee," said the veteran, "was one of the headiest players in the game. In all my experience I can think of no one who topped him, and there are the men whom I would place on a par with him in this respect. He was a wonderful fence man but the greatest value was his ability to outguess the other fellow.

"He had a treacherous shot and a tricky way of working his way down on the nets. He was fast, a clever stick carrier, and while he was his head was which enabled him to carve a name for himself in hockey annals.

"Some will say that it was not as much the brains as a peculiar skating style which made him one of the most dangerous centers in the league, as well as a gumdy man on the defence. That is true to a certain extent, but the head was all important. He was the type who was very hard to check. He could switch to either side with a deceptive spurt of speed and he was by no means a one-way player fellow was quite

"Don't miss "College Days" at the Capitol. It should make those who have attended college see their old days come back to them—the hazing, their little fights, their love affairs with co-eds, the pep and disappointments they experienced while in college. The story has been written by A. P. Younger, the author of "Brewster's Millions", who seems to understand the subject well; and, because it has been directed by Richard Thorpe ability, one is made to feel as if he/she a real life occurrence. A football game forms, of course, an important part of the whole story—the hero, who had been expelled from school once and been given a second chance, breaks a rule and is put in the back bench during the game; but something happens and he is put back in the game to win it for his college. It will be shown for the last time tonight.

BELLE THEATRE

For real, genuine, interesting entertainment go to the Belle theatre and see Charles Chaplin's first dramatic production, "A Woman of Paris," with Edna Purviance. This United Artists attraction, which is playing today and Thursday, is one of the real treats which are so often sought, but so rarely seen, in pictures. This magnificent drama of life carries one through a phase of Parisian life, following the career of Marie St. Clair as through we had known this interesting character oneself, that one feels one is a part of the drama being enacted.

How to the end, which has nothing to do with passionate close-ups, romance everlasting, but is instead, utterly human, reasonable—the aftermath of a molten, passionate, muchtried soul. "A Woman of Paris" gives a certain resemblance for the spectator to take away from the theatre, something all think about—the fact that life still rolls on around us, much like the horse-drawn country cart and the millionaire's limousine.

REGENT THEATRE

When a young man overhears some gleams concerning a mysterious future heiress for him, only naturally delightful and exciting consequences follow. This is exactly the situation in Universal's newest picture for F.B.O. called "The Merry Cavalier," which will be shown at the Regent Theatre, Thursday, being begin a 3 day run. The picture abounds in action, intrigue and humor, and is graced with a fine romance. There are also some new Talmadge stunts which

88 NEW MEMBERS

Kingston, Mar. 2.—Since the secretary, H. D. Whitman, undertook a campaign to boost the membership of the Board of Trade, at the first of the year, eighty-five new members have been enrolled, and it is expected that many more will be added to the list of "city boosters."

ANOTHER WILD CAT

Oshawa, Man. 2.—Another wild cat, supposed to be the mate of the one shot at Thornton's Corners some time ago, was shot Sunday morning by Mr. Edward Smith, of North Oshawa. For some time, Mr. Smith has been bothered by the animal around the buildings and Sunday morning followed the tracks which led to the woods some distance from the barn, and there surprised it. The carcass measures 25 inches from tip to tip and weighs about 25 pounds.

FINED $200

Oshawa, Mar. 2.—Charged by Chief Constable O. D. Friend with selling liquor contrary to section 40 of the Ontario Temperance Act, and pleading guilty to the charge, George Sy Shaw, of Cedardale, was fined $200 and costs, and sentenced to Waiting bill for thirty days as well in police court here yesterday. In default of the fine he will be required to serve three months. This is the minimum sentence which is possible for Magistrate A. P. Hind to impose since Premier Ferguson tightened up on the O.T.A. several months ago.

POLICE FIND STILL

Kingston, Mar. 2.—Sergeant John Naylon and Detective Thomas Mullingar today confiscated a liquor still they located in a down-town apartment, which had recently been rented by some newcomers. The still had been dismantled, and hidden under the floor'ng. The case will be further investigated.

In Brockville, tanglefoot from furniture shop belonging to Richard Hensley was badly damaged by fire, with contents. Burning shavings started the blaze.

FIRE IN CREAMERY

Deseronto, March 2.—About 7:30 Sunday evening the fire brigade received a call to the premises of the Deseronto Creamery, where fire had broken out in the boiler room. The fire truck was a little slow in arriving, but soon had the fire under control. The damage to the building will amount to a few hundred. The loss was covered by insurance.

KIWANIAN'S SONS ATTEND TODAY

It was a big day today for the sons of local Kiwanians for the boys were privileged to attend with their dads a Kiwanis "Father and Son" luncheon at the Queens; and not only did they attend, but the boys showed the Club members a whole lot of talent in their capable entertainment, with piano and vocal solos, and recitations.

Rev. J. J. Maguire, of Picton, a prominent boys' worker contributed in no small measure to the success of the gathering by delivering a fine address well to the boys with a few pointers for their dads thrown in. Mr. Mellor pointed out some of the duties of a father towards his son, one of the most important of these being in the example which should be set the offspring. Boys were naturally hero worshippers and "idolaters" in a sense, and above all they were prone to imitate what their "dad" did.

Exemplary conduct of the parent then, in all things was the initial of the son from proper ideals and proper habits.

Mr. Mellor's address was one of the best to which Kiwanians have listened in some time and was one bound to make a deep impression on the youthful guests of the Club.

C. H. Holland, of Seaforth, recently received word of the death of his brother, William Holland in Vancouver, where he had been postal inspector some years.

It cost the County of Middlesex $70,647.87 for the maintenance of pupils attending schools in 1926 at institutions outside of the district in which they were residents.

In view of pressure on the transportation facilities of the Canadian Pacific Railway when the full tide of immigration and harvest travel is felt in the coming summer and fall months, the railway has already taken steps to cope with this by sending 250 colonist cars for repair and overhauling to the Angus Shops, the work to be finished upon them not later than April 1st.

The presentation of H first aid awards to members of the P. and O. terminals staff by A. D. Al fresco lunch on the rinks is the latest innovation to provide the unusual for the guests at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec. At the fashionable hour smartly uniformed waiters dart out upon the ice pushing a serving table mounted on skates. Its crowning glory is a steaming tea urn and its appearance is the signal for the skaters to gather round to slip real English tea. The innovation has proven a great success for it adds the finishing touch to an afternoon's skate.

A new variety of wheat has been developed by Frank Leverton, of Minburn, Alberta. Its vital quality is its drought resisting strength. This new variety of grain has been registered at Ottawa as "Vermilion." In 1919 Mr. Larcombe discovered in his wheat crop a few head that were obviously crossbred and that showed drought resisting quality. He kept the kernels, sowed them in 1920, and gradually built up 1,000 bushels. The wheat is also reported to be heavy yielding.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"I hope you haven't had a dull evening," she said as she stood in the drawing-room, pulling off her long gloves.

"No," said Rale, "but it hasn't been burning gay all the same. I've been in some kind of a show with Travers, I say," he broke off suddenly, his frank honest eyes searching hers, which met his calmly, placidly. "I hope you like him?"

"I've seen so little of Mr. Travers—" began she, but Rale interrupted with a short laugh.

"Oh, come, now, Lady Maude!" he said, almost reproachfully. "A good fellow you can reckon up a man, or a good woman for that matter, in ten ticks of the clock. He is a good fellow a white man—"

"That settles it, of course," she said, with a laugh and a slight shrug of her gleaming shoulders. "When you say that—well, there is nothing left to say."

"You try and like him," said Rale, who was not quite satisfied with this wholesale submission. "I'm game on him myself."

Rale was up at six the next morning which, strange as may seem to his grumbling in the servants' hall over the early rising which it necessitated on the part of three or four of the domestics, groomed the mare, and took her out into the park. She was in sweet-tempered mood, she was beautiful, and at once had given her heart to this giant, whose touch was as light as a woman's, and who talked to her as to a horse, and generally a mare, loves to be talked to.

"It's something wonderful the way 'e handles 'is orf-'un," the head groom had said. "That mare will listen for 'is footsteps, and she'll follow him about the yard like a dog. Some men are that gift with 'orses; it's born with 'em, said 'e, bein'ship's got it strong."

When Rale had brought the mare home and refixed her down, and told her half a dozen times that she was a beauty and he was right-down fond of her, he got into his cold bath and ate the tremendous breakfast which was laid for him in the mess room. Travers came in before he had finished, and regarded the remains of the meal with silent astonishment.

"Here you are!" said Rale, tossing over a packet of letters, for already his correspondence had begun to grow large. "The usual rough, I expect. It's astonishing what a number of people want money, and they all seem to think that I left out into the world to provide 'em with it."

"Talking of money," said Travers, with a nasty sneer, "I've had some money to give you this morning." He took a packet of bank notes from his pocket and placed them in front of Rale, who inquired:

"Hello, what's this?"

"They came from the people we bought the jewelry and the motor car from yesterday," said Travers; and for the life of him he could not help eyeing the notes wistfully, for the cause he had decided to adopt hurt him badly. "It would not give a man any pleasure—not another commission on what he had purchased, and they—those people—thinking I should accept it, and it is me. Of course, they sent more, because a check would be useful."

Rale did not confess as Travers had expected he would, but he counted the notes, and looked straight at Travers.

"Of course, I knew you were not acquire, pardner," he said, and he 'umbled as he spoke, for he was tasting the satisfaction he should have in paying for Maude that Travers was an honest man. "All the same, I'm glad you brought 'em."

"Shall I send them back?" asked Travers.

Rale was simple in many ways, but he was shrewd enough in some.

"I guess not," he said dryly; and coolly he put the notes in his pocket. He resolved that some day they should be transferred to Travers. Leaving Travers at work on the letters, Rale went in search of Lady Maude; she was standing in the hall with her outdoor things on.

"Where are you going?" asked Rale wistfully.

"I'm going to my dressmaker's," she said, with a smile. "It's such a beautiful morning that I'm walking."

"I say," said Rale pleadingly, "let me go with you. I'm dying to stretch my legs."

"Why, of course," she said pleasantly.

They started. Rale silent, and subject in the subtle joy of walking beside her that he started as if from a dream when she turned to him with a laugh. "I said I was going for a walk, not a race, Steadfye."

"Eh? Oh, I beg your pardon! I didn't know I was walking so fast. I was deep in thought. Shall I tell you what I was thinking about?"

"If you like," she replied coyly.

"Well! I was thinking that, if anybody had told me three months ago that I should be walking in this town with the most beau—I mean, a lady like you—I should have bucked, just laughed, but as true."

"Nothing is so strange as truth," she said.

"That's one," he laughed. "I'm feeling that every day. So are we here already? How long shall you be? I'll wait for you, if you'll let me."

"That will be unkind on Madame Beaumont—the dressmaker, I mean. I should like you to wait, if you're sure you're not be bored."

"We could take a little walk in the park afterward," suggested Rale eagerly and timidly.

"We could," she admitted. "Well, I will be as quick as I can."

Glowing with pleasure, with the satisfaction of the promised walk, Rale lit a cigar and sauntered up and down with his hands behind his back. He still felt his tilted over his brows, he eyes half closed. But though they were half closed, they were keenly observant, and presently they opened fully, and his lips drew straight as he saw, coming up the steep little street, a real wagon drawn by one donkey, struggling bravely with its too heavy load.

Nationalists Attempting Circling Movement to Cut Off Nanking

BRITAIN ADDS FORCES

No Truth in Reported Clash Between Chinese and British

Shanghai, March 3.—There are increasing indications today that the next major effort by the Nationalists would not be a direct advance upon Shanghai, but a thrust in the direction of the Nanking railway with the object of cutting off General Chang Tsung Chang's Shantungese forces from their base. A Nationalist raiding party is reported to have engaged the Northerners at Wusieng and there are other indications that the Southerners are advancing in a circuit to the west of Taihu Lake. Li Pao Chang has left for the North. It is reported he feared to remain, owing to the bloodings of strike agitators for which he was responsible.

Land More Troops

Shanghai, March 2.—One thousand Royal Marines from the British steamer Minnetola landed today and marched through the settlements. Thousands of foreigners and Chinese gathered at the allotting base to welcome the Marines. Squads of soldiers, sailors, and sporting were required to maintain sufficient room for the column to pass.

Settle Strike

London, March 3.—An Anglo-Chinese agreement has been signed at Jehang, settling the strike and boycott there, the British government was officially advised today. Situation was described as serious when negotiations began.

No Clash With British

Shanghai, March 3.—Reports spread in various parts of China of a clash between Chinese and British Troops in Shanghai, are authoritatively denied. There have been a few cases of strong-arm bluffing by Chinese in small groups before entering the International settlement, but otherwise days have passed without incident. Train loads of troops from Nanking today continue to arrive from Nanking today to fill the gap in Shanghai defences armies caused by the disintegration of Marshal Sun Chuang Fang's forces. Approximately eleven thousand Shantung Troops are now on the Sungkiang front while another large contingent is being dispatched to Woosung to protect Shanghai from the north.

All told seven infants, ranging in age from one to three months, died at the farm since August of last year.

By quite some two holes had been dug in the ice ready for the heavy thermit containers to be placed therein. The ice is 2 feet 4 inches thick. Twenty-four cases of the ice destroyer are piled on the dock at the end of Victoria Park.

The Position

The holes were bored in the ice about two thirds of the distance from the end of Victoria Park to the lighthouse and nearly opposite the Schutze Coal dock. Dr. Barnes arrived in Belleville the day before yesterday.

The wreck-age burst into flames almost immediately. Spectators and officials who had been clocking the time of the trials, hurried to the spot and found the driver's body lying near the wrecked car. He had apparently been killed instantly, as the head was nearly severed from the body.

Prisoner's Attorney Says Fair Hearing Impossible at Brockville

BAD REPUTATION

Marriage to Dead Woman's Sister Has Excited Hostility

Toronto, March 3.—Judgment was reserved by Mr. Justice Kelly at Osgoode Hall today on the application of H. H. Davis, on behalf of Alfred DeBruges, charged with the murder of his common-law wife, for an order changing the venue of trial from the united counties of Leeds and Grenville to any other county in Ontario.

Mr. Davis referred to outbreaks of applause among the spectators at the inquest and preliminary hearing as indicating the hostile attitude towards the prisoner which would make it impossible for him to have a fair and unprejudiced trial in his home county.

Bad Reputation

F. P. Brennan represented the Crown. The feeling in the township of Elizabethtown, Leeds, where the DeBruges lived, contended his counsel, was strongly against DeBruge because he had married the common-law wife of his common-law wife. His solicitors had been shouted as if they were as bad as accused for defending him. Mr Davis added. Mr. Davis suggested that the trial should be held at Ottawa.

"The people of Ottawa are less likely to be affected by newspaper reports." His Lordship commented after Mr. Davis had stated that very full reports of the preliminary proceedings had been given in the local newspaper. Brockville is the present venue. Mr. Brennan read affidavits showing that order was observed at the preliminary hearings except for one outburst which was immediately quashed by the magistrate. He said that although DeBruge had a bad reputation in the neighborhood, this would not prevent him having a fair trial, as it would not extend to outlying portions of the county.

May Be At Picton

Justice Kelly asked if there was any objection to Ottawa after examining the sheriff's list. Mr. Brennan suggested that if the venue was to be changed, Picton would be a desirable place.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Pride of all others the most dangerous fault
Proceeds from want of sense or want of thought.

IT JUST HAPPENS

A Philadelphia doctor, described as an internationally known surgeon and scientist, reached his 80th year the other day without knowing why. He admits that he knows no more than anybody else about the secret of living long. It just happened, he declared, God perhaps that was as good an explanation as any. Some people just keep on living in spite of the laws of health, and others die young while observing all the rules of health. Nevertheless, the laws of health are not to be despised. There is no reason to doubt that they are lengthening the lives of many people.

A SOCIAL REVOLUTION

In addition to its political and military aspects, the crisis in China, according to competent observers on the spot, is beginning to assume the character of an acute social struggle. This new phase will bear watching, if only because it is largely the handiwork of Red Russian agents who are playing Moscow's game, and the outcome may well become a matter of international interest.

Communism in China is an artificial movement so far. The country is even less far advanced on the road to modern industrialism than was Russia at the time of the Red coup. The material for what the bolshevist doctrine ca a proletariat are present in the great port cities, but they still form an incredibly small, unorganized mass.

At the same time, and largely because of this very primitiveness of his materials, the alert apostle of class war finds here many opportunities that might be lacking if Chinese labor constituted an enlightened group having a definite program to pursue.

As it is the revolutionary agitators in China are bending their efforts to the wholesale exploitation of mass credulity and ignorance. How slight is the basis for genuinely social revolution may be inferred from the manner in which the Reds foregoing their internationalism pose as advocates of every nationalistic aspiration of their Chinese patron, anything and everything serves so long as a semblance of "class consciousness" can be faked.

This is not to say, however, that the radicals have been altogether unsuccessful in their crusades to make confusion in China worse confounded. What could please Moscow better than a Chinese social war interwoven at a time when even the Cantonese leaders seem to be growing tired of the political tutelage that the Kremlin sought to exercise over the destinies of China? That such suspicion of sovier designs has increased lately, and that it threatens to result in the formation of an anti-China sentiment against Red influence is evident.

SOME ONE MUST KNOW

In the Main Estimates at present before Parliament there is one item that excites our curiosity. It is an item which asks for $8,000 for an assistant private secretary for the Prime Minister, "notwithstanding anything in the Civil Service Act." This vote, we think, should be challenged. If it isn't, then the first thing the country will know it will have to build an addition to the East Block to house Mr. King's secretaries. Already he has a host of them. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was at least as great a man as Mr. King, got along with one private secretary; so did Sir Robert Borden, and so did Mr. Meighen. Mr. King has three—if not four. They are, we believe, very able, competent young men and just why Mr. King should want the country to put up another $8,000 to get him another private secretary, and just why that private secretary should be paid $3,000 a year—the salary almost of a Cabinet Minister—seems to need explaining.

ANOTHER JOB

Cable despatches from London tell that the Soviet Government of Russia have informed the British Foreign Office that in view of the resolutions passed by the Imperial Conference the Moscow Government can no longer accept the British Foreign Secretary as the spokesman for the British Empire. The British Foreign Secretary, say the Soviets, can speak only for Great Britain; if Canada or Australia or South Africa want to deal with them they will have to do so separately.

Well, remembering Mr. King's "Magna Charta" speeches, who can blame Moscow? After all, those Dobbins are busy people and can't be expected to read our papers every day, so they probably haven't yet heard of that last speech of Mr. King's in Toronto, when he threw our "Magna Charta" into the Don River.

And why not a Minister to Moscow? The Senate is getting overcrowded and Government patronage isn't getting fat enough—and there are Mr. Motherwell and Mr. Peter Heenan looking on to their jobs. The Honorable Peter, although a pale sort of warrior when key fighting conditions, is a bit of a Red when he gets up in the North country, and might make a hit with the Moscow men; while as for Mr. Motherwell—well, if he got into Russia he probably think he was merely back among his Saskatchewan constituents.

A WESTERN GRIEVANCE

Brooding over the fact that British Columbia, with a population of only 525,000, pays only one-tenth of the total income tax, while Nova Scotia, with a population of 540,000, pays only $500,000, the Vancouver Sun wakes words against "central Canada." "Some days," it declares, "the people of British Columbia will wake up to the fact that one spot in the future of this dominion is something more than footing central Canada's bills."

What's the matter with the east? What electrals a march against central Canada, because Nova Scotia has $81 to go big? Does it suppose that N.S. is a part of central Canada? Central Canada consists of Ontario and Quebec, and the Sun will find that both of these provinces pay a much income tax in proportion to their population as British Columbia pays.

The truth is, probably, that the Vancouver paper has been overpowered to tell "central Canada" that it does so as a matter of habit whenever it feels grouchy. However, the tax grievance against the two central provinces is a typical western grievance, with as much foundation in reason as most of such grievance have.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

It was a very cold day and Isaacs and Cohen had walked about four miles without either making a single remark. "Why don't you say something?" said Cohen.

"Freeze your own handle!" said Isaacs.

Modern Mother: Did he succeed?

"No."

"Then it wasn't my daughter."

"Tough matter?" asked the grocer.

"Yes, tough. I made a pie with it and my husband cut it hardly cut it at all."

GOOD TIMBER

The tree that never had to fight
For sun and sky and air and light,
That stood out in the open plain,
And always got its share of rain,
Never became a forest king
But lived and died a scrubby thing.
The man who never had to toil,
Who never had to win his share,
Of sun and rain and light and air,
Never became a real man
But lived and died as he began.
Good timber does not grow in ease:
The stronger wind, the tougher trees.
The further sky, the greater length.

MINING GOSSIP

NEW MANAGER

Notwithstanding reports to the contrary, development has not commenced at the No. 1 shaft of the Castle-Trethewey Mines. Early last week pumping operations were commenced to dewater the 200 foot shaft and approximately 2,000 feet of lateral workings. This will require at least a month's time, so that actual development of this section of the property will not be under way until early in the summer. The shaft is to be sunk another 200 feet. With the added knowledge of the geology of the Miller Lake section, the management is of the belief that former work at this location was at too shallow a depth. It was here adjoining the Miller Lake-O'Brien the unsuccessful development of the Trethewey resulted in a reorganization of the company into the present Castle-Trethewey Mines.

NEW MANAGER

Three managers have had a hand in the development of the Castle-Trethewey and a fourth, Angus Campbell, assistant manager of the Miller-Lake-O'Brien, has just taken over the direction of operations at the property. Owing to the proximity of the workings of the latter company, it is probable the present manager has a better knowledge of where to look for ore in this section of the Castle-Trethewey than any who preceded him.

Seamer Vaulan left Buenos Aires carrying the bodies of U.S. airmen killed in a mid-air collision.

Campbell and several other engineers is preparing to conduct further operations. A quantity of calcium chloride was placed around the piers of the railway bridge yesterday afternoon. Dr. Barnes is highly pleased with the results of the experiment performed here. A quantity of Thermit is expected to arrive in the city today and will be transferred immediately to the mouth of the river. The party have been carrying on a general probe and investigation of the existing conditions during the past two days.

BACKED DOWN HILL

R. D. Kennedy, traveller for a Toronto wholesale house, injured his arm and shoulder this morning. His motor having become overheated he had stopped to let it cool and got out with the intention of loosening the cap on the radiator, in some way the car started to back down the hill on Victoria Ave. Mr. Kennedy grabbed hold of the front of the mud-guard and was dragged about ten feet before letting go, his hand was cut and his shoulder wrenched. Luckily the wheels kept in the ruts and on reaching Pinnacle Street, it turned the corner and gradually came to a stop. Mr. Kennedy did not consider his injuries serious enough to attend the doctor here and said if medical attention was necessary he would get it in Kingston.

THE COMING COAL STRIKE

We have had numerous requests for further information relating to the predicted coal strike in the United States fields between the union miners and the operators owned by companies employing union labor, and, to be more definite, would say that this will not in any way affect the hard coal miners, and that non-union miners mining bituminous will continue to function. Opinions differ as to whether the production of coal by non-union miners will be sufficient to take care of the requirements of the Country, including Canada's share, but the railroad authorities contend that with the enormous supplies that railways and individual corporations have already accumulated, that no serious shortage will occur for at least six months after April 1st, should the strike become effective.

Use our LEHIGH and LACKAWANNA hard coal, SOLVAY COKE and "ORIGINAL" POCAHONTAS which are the most outstanding grades on the market.

BAY TRAFFIC

Traffic across the Bay on the Bay of Quinte continues fairly heavy. Due to the thaw and freeze-up following the broken road has become unclear and the traffic has been diverted to drive the bushed road. Work on the Bay Bridge is progressing as rapidly as possible and it will probably be in shape for traffic in six weeks.

Y. M. C. A. NEW FURNISHINGS

With a membership including representatives who have been active in the organization for a quarter of a century, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. work tirelessly in keeping the supplies in the dormitories of the institution in first class condition. Toward this, during the past several weeks the members with their president, Mrs. Boyes, have held quilting bees at which the sidedrawn quilts, shabby and worn by years of service were each prettily recovered in attractive and serviceable chintzes, added to this four very fine blankets have been provided for the dormitories which are thoroughly appreciated by the hyndefarers. The parlor windows have been provided with new net curtains which have added to the general appearance of the building.

MYSTERY SOLVED

Boomers in the Y.M.C.A. building were aroused from their slumbers during the early hours of this morning by five loud reports which sounded not unlike shots from a revolver. Those who were disturbed were unable to make any discoveries upon craning their heads from the windows. The police, when asked about the mystery, stated that nothing had been reported by the officers on the night shift. It is believed that a motor car was the cause of the disturbance when the owner had difficulty in starting it after an evening spent in the cold night air and as a result it backfired, causing the loud noises to be heard.

LOCALLY RELATED

At Ottawa Dame Rumor has it that Col. G. M. Bleasr, Chief Electoral Officer of the Dominion, a near relative of Mrs. R. Bell, Charles Street, is to retire on the first of April to resume the practice of law. C. G. Power, Liberal member for Quebec South, is said to be in line for the post which carries a salary of $12,000 per year.

Peterboro, March 2.—Sterling won the right to meet Tweed in the finals for the championship of the Hastings County Hockey League by defeating Marmora here last night, 3 to 2, in the game to break a three-cornered tie which existed. The winners had already through most of the contest and fully deserved their victory. They played better combination, backchecked a great deal better and outskated and outshot their opponents.

It was the good work of Neal in goal that kept Marmora in the race. The sterling team was right in on him time after time, sending in three or four successive shots at times, but he turned them aside. His team mates bunched and gave him little protection. At the other end, Smith was not often pressed The Marmora team played most of the time as if protecting a lead, keeping three men back and shooting from the blue line and their attacks were easily taken care of.

On Tuesday evening Miss Beatrice Jones, Dundas street, entertained about thirty-five of her relatives with their wives and families at a charming social evening at her home. After several hours spent in music and games the party reluctantly broke up, the cousins and their families present all delighted with the reunion and deeply indebted to their hostess for the happy few hours spent.

WHEN SKITTISH SPIRIT DEVELOPS LATE

By ELSIE MARLOWE

"You'd pay three dollars to see this drama acted in your favorite theatre. There are no footlights on this printed page but your heart will be plugged if it doesn't quicken to the pathos of this letter.

"You should have seen my wife when I married her," writes Joe. "She sure was pretty. All the boys were crazy about her. But that was fifteen years ago.

"We've had lots of trouble since then. She has worked hard to help me and of course that has changed her looks. But now that things are going smooth, just about the way elderly folks ought to have them, she now think my wife will grow old and settle down? I'll say she won't. She won't even admit she's growing old.

Even though she has lost some of her good looks she tries to swing that same old wicked line. Besides this she does a lot of flirting with my friends who seem very much disgusted about the fact. I have hardly a friend left. She can't see that. She thinks she is doing the men a favor. My friends feel very sorry for me. I surely cannot see what she is gaining by it. When I mention the fact, she just laughs it off and says they are crazy. What do you think of a woman like that?"

What do I think of a woman like that. I think such brave and merry thoughts that they cannot be expressed in common words or ordinary printer's ink. Gallant little lady with the wrinkling face and the game old wicked line" and the gay, fearless heart that laughs at the years! Heart-of-gold that toiled beside you through the hard, hard years turning her back staunchly on all the fun an admiration, sticking to her man "for better or for worse," giving her youth and her beauty that he might be served.

And now he "rubs because she won't say she's old; because she "won't settle down as elderly people should do"; because she still "swings a wicked line" and "flirts a bit!"

And he says he's losing his friends.

I'll bet he is! But it isn't his lady's fault. It's the fault of his own soul, withered, ungrateful spirit!

Am I "messing you, Joe? Believe me I AM.

Is that all the thanks you have to give for what she has given you?

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am very much interested in a young man whom I do not know and with whom I would very much like to become acquainted. I do not know anyone that could introduce us.

I see him every day and I think he would like to get to know me, too. What shall I do?

BUBBLES.

BUBBLES: If the young man wishes to make your acquaintance, he will make an effort to find a mutual friend who will introduce you. A friendship begun in any other way is inadvisable and undignified.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

A boy cousin visited me and has asked me to write him. Is it proper? Who should write first?

IGNORANT OF FACTS.

IGNORANT OF FACTS: If the boy is anxious to start a correspondence it is his place to write you first.

Four babies; they're grown now. And now there's money and time to play. But she's sixty-two and he's sixty-five. Too old and tired to play. Has not the old or tired to love and find joy and peace in each other. But this is what he writes:

"About ten years ago I noticed a change in my wife. From being open and sincere she became secretive and underhanded. She is also illiterate. Two months ago I gave her $200 to put on a young car. But instead of doing as I said she put the money in a bank in her own name, secreting the bankbook. She hides the receipts and names of collectors coming to the house. She has lied to me in many ways, causing me worry and suspicion. I have lost all love faith and respect for her. Do you think I would be happiest to be separated from a woman of this attitude?

"W. J. R."

So you've lost all respect for her, have you, because she hid the money and doesn't tell you about the collectors? And you have forgotten all the real—all the years when she didn't have any money to hide, when she was helping you make that money which now you call YOURS

Lost all love for her?

You're forgotten that first dreadful day when she went down into the shed one and came back with your little son in her arms—forgotten how white her face was, how sunken her eyes, and how that sweet lay in a deathly rigor about the gray lips that still had courage to smile.

Lost all respect and love, because in her fear and her old age she clings to you —poor little woman who is getting to be a mumbly child again.

And you think you might be better separated from her? But how will you separate the memory of those nights when she cradled her head on your knee and you planned for the future? And what will you do when you grope for her hand when your last hour comes, and call her name and find her not, that you're sent her away?

Oh, silly, silly little angry boy who's pretending to be an old man, forget your temper and go take her in your arms. There's so little more left to make up to her for all she has been to you. Don't waste it in hating.

Little girl crying over death of her canaries, woke a Montreal family, and saved them from suffocation by a short-cuit fire.

HEARTS' HAVEN

FRESH TROUBLES

On the following Saturday, Christine, for the last time, rolled down the top of her desk in the office, slipped on her wrap and hat, and walked out into the street.

She was jobless, and only her week's salary stood between her and destitution.

She had been too proud to question Miss Perkin's dismissal. There was no use to whom she could appeal since Mr Ashby was away on a business trip. It rather amused Christine to know that Miss Perkins had had the grace to leave the office much earlier than her usual, and so escape the regretful good-byes of the staff to Christine.

It also embittered her, for she knew what jealousy, and personal animosity lay behind her dismissal. The only comfort which she hugged to her heart was the reassurance that she had been doing good work, such good work that her superior had feared her, in addition to having been jealous of her.

Christine's experience at the Paradise restaurant had not done nearly as much to destroy the faith in private business in her soul, as her encounter with Miss Perkins. At Meyer Cattlebore's she had seen a new phase of life—a one-sided phase which opened her eyes to things which she had never known or suspected before, but, in spite of it, she had met with kindness and consideration. It there, after night had not taken a certain bloom from her. Quite unconsciously, she found herself, after that experience, making excuses for the vagaries of human conduct. Many things that would have shocked her a year ago, went unnoticed now, or were greeted with a shrug.

But it was Summer Perkin's action which had hurt her most. How she could say: She, too, felt a desire to hurt someone. It was only when she had arrived home and had gathered her children into her arms that she felt cleansed of the bad impulses that had held her in their grip for a time. Looking into their flower-like faces, she was ashamed. Junior, in particular, she felt, had been against her forgot. He was her fast mate. She worshipped him. Little Louise, combining shyness with a strange self-sufficiency, seemed not to need her, or if she needed her, did not demand her

WHAT'S NEW
(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The spring evening wrap gleams with metal.

Corded or rep weaves and twills are smart for spring suits and tweed is much worn in bornia effects

New hats in Paris fit as closely to the head as the shingle itself, and follow its lines exactly. They either cover the hair entirely or leave the smallest tuft visible at the side.

New York shops are showing the "Witch Ball Lamp," the colored spheres of glass, known in the Highlands of Scotland as a "Witch-Ball" and used to charm away an evil fay, having been cleverly converted into a modern lamp of greatest decorative value—now used to chase the shadows from some gloomy corner.

New variety of bandit face appeared in Winnipeg. They courteously ask victim's address and promise return of valuables.

It was really Louise who looked after Junior, although Christine had hired a young girl to stay with the children while she was at work.

Looking worshipfully into the face of her small son, Christine cried:

"My darling, you look so pale. Don't you feel well today?"

Lowie piped up:

"He fell down today when we were playing in the square. It was ever and ever so long before he would open his eyes."

Fear clutched Christine's heart.

"He fainted? My darling Junior!" Louise nodded.

"He was all white," Carlotta piped him up. She ran to a drug store and brought something in a glass. He was all right after that."

On the following day, Christine took her son to a physician. The fee consumed most of her money, and she learned something which made her more determined than ever. Her boy had a weak heart, the physician said. He must have the best of care.

Christine was almost on the point of writing to Lewis Hayes—the husband who was not her husband—and asking him to help her in the unforeseen crisis, but her pride held her back.

Luck favored her the following Monday. She obtained a job as a cashwoman in one of the little specialty shops in the "Fifties", where she had gone occasionally to find material for her fashion sketches. The wage was a mere pittance, but she felt that it would not be long before she would be able to find work on the staff of some magazine.

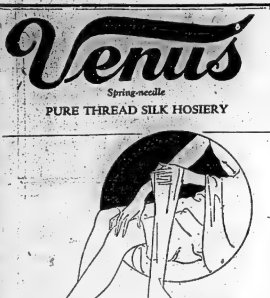

Somehow, misfortune could not kill her feeling that she had the ability to write.

It was late in June; and she was barely receiving a living for herself and the children, when she managed to obtain a job on the staff of a theatrical magazine.

Quite innocently and sincerely, she plunged into a new life which very nearly accomplished her ruin.

BATTLING NELSON STOLE FILM AS HIS MEMENTO

Chicago, March 3.—Here's the grip of "The Game" personified, Oscar "Battling" Nelson, once lightweight champion of the world, appraised a fight film as a memento worth taking risks in order to secure and retain. The film depicts his battle with Ad Wolgast many years ago. In the South Clark Street Police Court recently, Municipal Judge Max Luster ordered "Bat" sent to the Psychopathic Hospital for examination after policemen had endeavored to secure extradition papers to send the pugil ist to Silver Bow county, Montana. Nelson is accused of purloining the film there and bringing it to Chicago.

Judge Luster ordered Nelson's case held over until March 8, until a report from the hospital could be secured. As the "Durable Dane," as he was once more hailed in fistic circles, was led away, old timers in the court discussed Nelson's memorable encounter with Wolgast, which took place in 1910. The battle lasted forty rounds, and, according to the records, the referee gave Wolgast credit for a knockout decision over "Bat." In the previous year they had fought ten rounds to an decision.

Police said how they were refused admittance when they went to his home, and after a temporary siege had been declared Nelson surrendered.

"Bat's" fondness for tokens and souvenirs of his great fights and the days of his one glory in the 1900's was described by old time acquaintances.

"He seemed to treasure anything that might serve to remind him of the good, old time," declared one veteran of pugilistic management. "An old glove, an old shoe or pair of trunks which he had worn in one of his truly great battles had a value in his eyes."

Jack Dempsey reiterates that he will box Gene Tunney or nobody. That amounts to a statement that Dempsey is through. The former champion, denying reports that he is entertaining an offer to box Jimmy Maloney, remarks that if he is not good enough to beat Tunney he is not good enough to beat anybody.

That seems to make it unanimous. Dempsey was by no means good enough to cost Tunney. Whether it was the porcupine, the poisoned cream, thumbscrews or the dusty locks of Jack Kearns, the former champion was soundly beaten at Philadelphia, and he seems to have placed his finger on the right spot by stating that he is not good enough to beat anybody.

Kingston Whigs-Standard — The meeting of the C.O.B.L. has been set for March 26th instead of March 23th. It did seem strange that that association should get busy so early in the year as February. The next question is, will the C.O.B.L. have enough teams to operate satisfactorily this season? It hardly looks like it.

The local C.O.B.L. team will hold a meeting this week, when plans for the season will be discussed. Our thing is certain and that is regardless of the attitude of the C.O.B.L., Kingston will be given good ball this summer.

About to start his second season as a Giant, Ty Tyson hopes for a better break in fortune than he got last year, when a bewildering series of injuries kept him off much of the time and impaired his efficiency when he was in the line-up.

"No matter how tough it gets for me this year it can't possibly be as tough as it was last year," he said. "Getting my first real chance in the big league—having when I was up with the Red Sox as a pitcher I never had a chance to crowd in with Ruth Stone, Mays and Scott until I mentally handed to be at the peak, I never got there, what with the broken bones, wrenches, twisted muscles and attacks of influenza that fouled on on me between March and October. I guess some of the fan-thought I was a bust. I'll show 'em this year, though."

PILES GO QUICK

WITHOUT SALVES OR CUTTING

Thousands who have piles don't know that quick and permanent relief can be accomplished with internal medicine. Cutting or any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will not remove the cause.

But circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in many, many cases with a marvelous record of success, such a wond-rful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from J. S. McEwen in the drug. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you.

Goes 18 Miles, Does Own Housework

"For years I couldn't eat, my stomach was so weak. Went 18 miles for Adlerika. After a few doses, I began to feel better and now do my own housework."—Mrs. L. A. Austin.

Because Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, it gives the system a REAL cleansing, and clears out old poisons which usually cause sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. Just ONE spoonful stops GAS, and relieves that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never guessed was in your system and which may have long caused trouble. No matter what you have tried for stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At any Druggist.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You damp-en a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

USE SULPHUR TO CLEAR SKIN

If you are suffering from eczema or some other itching, embarrassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

This sulphur preparation, because of its germ destroying properties, seldom fails to quickly subdue itching, scales or sores. The first application makes the skin cool and comfortable. Rash and blotches are healed right up. Rowles Mentho-Sulphur is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a small jar from any good druggist.

Here and There

Passengers aboard the Canadian Pacific Empress of Scotland were not deprived of visiting China on the present round-the-world cruise of this ship, on account of the recent trouble in that country. Word from the cruise director is to the effect that the passengers received a warm welcome at Shanghai and that the Chinese were most friendly.

A new Canadian bird, the "cuffaro," has made its appearance. It is a cross between a turkey and a Rhode Island hen, and was first brought to public attention at the Edmonton poultry show. George Spurgeon, who raised it, claims that it will effect a revolution in the poultry business, as it combines the best features of the hen and the turkey. It has a hen body and a turkey head.

His Majesty King George and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales have notified the British section of the World Poultry Congress that they intend to exhibit poultry at the congress exhibition to be held at Olympia from July 27 to August 4 next. There is also a possibility of the Queen of the Netherlands and King Alfonso of Spain sending exhibits, in which case the Canadian capital will be the first city in the world privileged to house the exhibits of several royal flocks.

The Indians of the three prairie provinces last season produced approximately 1,000,000 bushels of grain, of which about half, or 488,000 bushels was wheat, according to a recent government report. There are about 25,000 Indians in the area in question and the portions reserved for their use are some of the most fertile land of the west. They had 97,000 acres of land under cultivation in 1926 and they own about 23,000 head of cattle and 35,000 horses of a good type.

Warren Cordingly of Ashton, Idaho, won the 83-mile dog race from Calgary to Banff held recently in connection with the Banff annual Winter Carnival. The race was one of the hardest fought in the history of three events. Cordingly's lead dog broke down and was carried to the finish line on the sled by Mills' team, of Banff, picked to win the race, was attacked by town dogs near Calgary. Both drivers and dogs were badly bitten but stuck to the trail and finished.

Applications for permits to develop hydro power in Western Ontario and Northern Manitoba have been made that represents an ultimate volume of 5,000,000 horse-power, indicating the industrial growth that this territory is achieving. These range all the way from the Lake of the Woods country to the valley of the Nelson River, and relate to pulp and paper mills, mining plants, civic hydro promotion and transportation projects.

During 1927 more than 8,000 Hungarians will emigrate to Canada, according to Albert de Hayden, Hungarian Consul-General to Canada, who is here on business in connection with the 6,000 countrymen who came in Canada last year. "My investigations have shown," he said, "that on the average the newly arrived Hungarians are doing fairly well despite the fact that this is a dull time of the year in farming and to a lesser extent in industrial plants."

The following wire was received recently by C. E. Usher, general passenger traffic manager, C.P.R., "from J. C. Phillips, president of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective Association:—

"On behalf of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective Association I want to extend our appreciation for your very fine exhibit at the Sportsmen Show and the efficient way it has been handled by your representatives."

REGENT THEATRE

For your health's sake you had better see Richard Talmadge in his newest R. B. O. production, "The Merry Cavalier," showing at the Regent Theatre. The picture is packed with laughs and every situation, no matter how gripping or full of suspense, has a delightful comedy side which Talmadge plays to great advantage. This past master of dirill and daring feats, is also an adept in the art of handling deft humor. You will be delighted, too, with delicate love story which is woven into the theme. Charlotte Stevens plays the part of the girl who is the object of his devotion. The cast also numbers other favorites in the moving pictures being Jack Richardson, William H. Tooker, Joseph Harrington and R. O'Farrell.

BELLE THEATRE

Ann Pennington, dainty little Follies star, and a host of others are at the expense of Army officers when she visited Fort Hancinen with the Victor Schertzinger company to film Peter B. Kyne's colorful story, "The Golden Strain," which comes to the Belle Theatre tomorrow.

In this Fox Films production, Miss Pennington, Madge Bellamy, Kenneth Harlan, Hobart Bosworth, Frank Beal, Frank McGlynn, Jr., and others are featured.

Now, out in Arizona, there are innocent automobiles, but everyone rides a horse. In fact, many of the horses at the Army post are considered the best in the world. But none was as spirited as "Eagle," a red-faced pinto, which Frank McGlynn Jr. is Arizona.

The following morning there were four striking mounts just outside Miss Pennington's quarters—but they waited and waited and waited.

Would she ride—could she?

She would—she could—and she did, for while the officers waited, hoping against hope that she would select one of the mild-mannered animals of the Government stables—Miss Pennington breezed in, wearing a dainty riding habit of autumn brown. She had been out for three hours, having been in the saddle long before dawn—and she was riding "Eagle." The most handsome steed in the Schertzinger outfit.

After this the officers did not hesitate to offer Miss Pennington their spirited steeds—and one chap even proffered a polo pony. Don't miss it.

FIRE DEPT. REPORT

Kingston, March 3.—Many people in Kingston can remember when at the first clang of the firebell a fine team of grays came galloping along the street drawing the steam pumper behind, smoke and sparks, with the driver straining every muscle to keep the spirited animals under control. Small boys were enthralled and grown-ups felt a certain pride in the time made by the hipposs. The world has marched forward, however, and the extent to which horses have been replaced in the local fire department by motor trucks is amply demonstrated in the report just issued by Fire Chief Aynsloong for the year 1926. It reads:

Motor pumper responded to 200 calls; motor hose car responded to 153 calls; motor ladder truck responded to 130 calls; motor hose car No. 2 responded to 31 calls; motor ladder truck No. 2 responded to 60 calls; horse ladder truck responded to 18 calls; hose hose car responded to 1 call.

COUNCIL MEETING

Canaseraga, March 3.— The town council at their regular meeting last night passed the estimates for the year which will require a levy of 36.25 mills for general purpose and 19.65 for school purposes of 20 mills on the dollar for all purposes. Andrew Edwards was appointed the councils representative on the board of Education. A by-law regulating the sale of milk in town, presented by Councilor Bishop, and approved by the medical officer of health, Dr. J. P. Sinclair, to come into effect on May 1, was passed by the council. The fire and light committee was given permission, in addition, to some necessary small articles, to purchase six pairs of rubber boots and 200 feet of ice.

QUEEN'S HEAD ENGAGED

Kingston, March 3.—The engagement is announced of Principal R. Bruce Taylor of Queen's University, Kingston, and Miss Muriel Bray of New York. The wedding is to take place early in the summer and Dr. Taylor and his bride will spend their honeymoon in England. Miss Bray is one of the editors of the Book of Knowledge, and was doing some special work at Queen's University last summer. She spent some time also visiting friends there. Last week-end she visited in Montreal.

STUDENTS FOUND GUILTY

Kingston, March 3.—At a session of Arts Court of Queen's University members of the freshman year were found guilty of breaking the rules of student organizations, and were sentenced to pay $200 on or before March 5. This is but one result of the Calaraqui escapade of last week. Members of Levana who went on the sleigh drive have been fined $1.50 each. Financial penalties which are being imposed will be sufficient, it is hoped, to cover all damages done to the hall at Calaraqui. Just to prove that they were not rid of the mischief-making spirit yet all the freshettes paid their fines in coppers.

PORT HOPE MAN DIES

Port Hope, March 3. — Charles Hutchings of Port Hope, leading merchants, passed away at his home there Monday evening after an illness extending over several months. Mr. Mr. Hutchings was born in Somersetshire, England, some 68 years ago and came to Canada at the age of 21. His family resided for many years on a farm near Port Hope and until 1900 Mr. Hutchings lived at the homestead. Twenty-seven years ago he took over a butcher-grocery business there. He was a Mason, a member of the United Church and in politics a staunch and active Conservative. He was also interested in sport. Surviving are his widow, one daughter, Pearl, and a son, Howard.

U.S. engineer who was arrested by the Soviet in 1921 told of many cruelties Russian prisons. He is returning to Washington.

Miss Carrie Lee Steele once famous as Shakespearian actress, and she wished to "die gallantly" as she died from a nervous breakdown in Philadelphia.

"Worth its weight in gold" Says Ottawa Matron

Mme. Beatrice Charlebois could not hold pen to write. Nerves completely shattered, health ruined. Now alert, vigorous and strong, she gives praise to Tanlac

The two-year ordeal which she passed through before Tanlac came to her permanent relief, was recently described by Mme. Beatrice Charlebois, of 222 Rose St., Ottawa.

"What I endured in that time could not be told," she said. "I was so weak I could hardly walk. My appetite was poor and my stomach gave no end of trouble. Gas and pains would bring on fainting spells.

"My nerves were so completely shattered that I jumped in fright every time the doorbell rang. My head trembled so that it could not hold the pen to write my name. Night after night I've gone without sleep, too nervous to lie still for even a few moments. Here my housework became too much for me.

"I tried all kinds of remedies in those two years but can honestly say I got no more than real relief. It was the use of Tanlac I've regained health, built me up so that I've gained 15 lbs., eat and sleep fine and have nerves as calm and steady as ever. Tanlac is worth its weight in gold."

Build up your health on Tanlac, nature's own tonic made from roots, herbs and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 62 million bottles sold.

The Irony of Love
By Charles Garvice

Rafe stopped and watched. Propelled by the balking brute of a driver, who, of course, was seated on the wagon, came at the striving and straining animal and struck it twice across the head with a heavy whip. The horse shook its head and, breathing hard, stretched its tail again. With a speed, some thing in a man of his bulk, Rafe was beside that wagon, had gripped the man by his collar, and jerked him on the flat of his back into the middle of the road. And, almost at the same instant, as it seemed, was at the head of the panting, horse patting it and speaking to it encouragingly.

The driver picked himself up, looked round him as if he were not sure that he had been struck by lightning of that he had been hurled from his seat by some superhuman unseen force, scanning hurriedly, looked up to Rafe.

"Do are you a fittin' off" he demanded, with more oaths, "and wadger mean by interfering?"

Unfortunately for him, he did not continue himself to profanity, but doubled his strong fist and aimed a blow at Rafe's nose. Rafe, still patting the horse with his left hand, struck out with his right, and the man staggered and fell with the wagon and fell in a confused heap, still engaged with the horse. Rafe, with his foot stirred up the man.

"Go and pick up behind, you pudding headed idiot!" he said, not angrily, but with a kind of exhilarated contempt. "You've got too big a load. The horse was doing his best and you set to hiding him! You make me tired!"

The man, as he wiped the blood from his face, stared at this extraordinary individual, and, without a word, applied himself to the wheel; the load moved, the hill was won, and the wagon passed on. Rafe's anger had not left him, but it had gone out, and he really as if nothing had happened, he felt it and patted up and down against Prescott by the nose rumbled, and Lady Maude came out. She was paler than usual, save for two spots of red on her cheeks, which were certainly not red, but it is scarcely the word by which to describe the glow in them.

She had witnessed the incident from the window, had gripped the dressing-room's arm, and perceived her calling out, had stood motionless; her line had pattered her breast coming fast, her heart beating, her eyes fixed on Rafe. To say that woman worship struggle in a man is to utter the most hackneyed of truisms, but when that strength is excited in behalf of a whole, or a dumb animal, that worship burns like a pure flame.

"It was burning now, as she walked beside Rafe, and it was some time before she could control her voice to ask politely but casually:

"I hope you haven't been bored, Steadyre?

"Not a bit," he replied cheerfully. "There's always something amusing going on in this town of yours. But, I say I want to tell you about Travers."

He proceeded, in a tone of triumph, to tell her of Travers' refusal of the commission; but Maude scarcely listened. For the first time in her life the sensation of a man had moved her, had aroused within her heart an emotion to novel an extent, that she was well-nigh frightened by it.

Rafe did not see Travers' honesty and integrity all the way home, and Maude made the proper responses, but still unobtrusively. When they reached the house she went straight to her room, and, without troubling her maid, began to take off her outdoor things; but, with her hat still on, she sank into a chair beside the window and with her brows knit thoughtfully, gazed across the square.

Medical men agreed a lubricant is better than a laxative

MORE than half the doctors quest oned in a recent coast to coast investigation stated a lubricant is better than a laxative for constipation.

One prominent doctor stated "the continued use of laxatives produces an obstinate intestinal inflammation which only aggravates the constipation. Laxative drugs increase the condition which they are supposed to cure. The worst cases of constipation are those which have long made use of laxative drugs."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Nine doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons:
1. Nujol is not habit-forming.
2. A more natural method;
3. A lubricant is better than a laxative; 4. Does not gripe; 5. Is not irritating and 6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine, its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and thus prepares the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it.

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist, today. Doctors advise it for constipation, whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

HYDRO IS ASKED FOR FIGURES TO JUSTIFY INCREASE

Warkworth Death Probe to Continue --- Government Liquor Control Bill Ready Next Week

DETAILED FINANCIAL STATEMENT DEMANDED FROM THE HYDRO COM.

Open Forum Meeting of C. of C. Discuss New Power Rates

NOT JUSTIFIED

Ald. Collins Claims Increase Will Cripple Belleville Industrially

At an open forum meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held in the Queen's Hotel last night, the vital and interesting question of the increased rates put into operation by the Hydro Electric Power Commission were discussed fully, new important letters read and two resolutions passed.

Want Statement

Alderman A. B. Collins was the speaker of the evening and in a clear and concise form explained the seat of the present trouble and moved a resolution, which in brief demanded that a statement of receipts and expenditure, and of total profits and losses incurred by the operation of the Hydro, a similar statement of total annual receipts and expenditures of losses or gains in each municipality, having contracts or using power with Central Ontario and Trent systems, a similar financial statement in regard to such enterprises as the Peterboro Electric tramway, also a tabulated statement as comparative rate of increase for electrical power, be given by the Hydro Commission. A short resolution, moved by Mr. William Deacon in short-asked that the City Council take official action requesting the Hydro to furnish this city a full and complete financial statement.

Gas Next

It was also moved that a similar meeting be held night's gathering be called to discuss the gas problem.

The speaker of the evening, Alderman A. B. Collins, then arose to speak, and the following is a brief summary of the interesting address of the Alderman.

"The meeting has been called to deal primarily with the situation arising from the Hydro Electric Power Commission's new schedule of rates. I wish to allude to the fact that in 1921 Mr. Justice Sutherland was appointed to examine the Hydro situation in this province.

"The Sutherland Report" embodied in it the report of Mr. Clarkson of the Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth Firm of Chartered Accountants, the Auditors for the Commission, in which Mr. Clarkson points out that the Province of Ontario paid for the assets comprising the Central Ontario Power System the sum of $3,250,000.00 by ten year bonds, and Mr. Clarkson further emphasizes the fact that in 1914 prior to the purchase of the undertaking by the Province, the physical assets of the System were appraised by Engineers of the Commission and upon the basis of such appraisal the value of said physical assets at the time of the purchase was set at $1,612,000.00 and the price paid for the purchase price $2,628,000.00 was allocated as the price paid for water rights, franchises and other assets of an intangible and non-income bearing nature.

Paid Too Much

"What did this mean to you and me? It means we paid more than $2,000,000 in excess of appraised values. And here seems to be the genesis of the present trouble. The municipalities in this region were saddled with this load.

"In the Clarkson report it was pointed out that the system in Ontario was unsatisfactory. He suggested that a Hydro Commission be formed.

"This system was overloaded with an interest charge of some $107,000 annually. The function of the Power Commission is to generate and distribute power. Unfortunately when it does outside these functions, it fails miserably.

"Gentlemen, a perusal of the report issued by the commission will convince you that most of the enterprises of the Hydro have been operated at a loss."

The speaker went on, "There has been an increase in the commercial and industrial rates and it might be inferred that these rates were increased to make up deficit accruing for non-profitable undertakings of the Commission."

Belleville Suffers

Alderman Collins next read a clipping of one of the Premier's speeches showing the losses of the various assets that the Hydro Commission took over.

"The sub centre that has suffered and suffered seriously is the City of Belleville. The $20,000 surplus it ordinarily going to cover the deficits in Peterboro and other places."

The speaker read a report showing the power supplied in 1922 or 1923. This report is known as the Gregory report.

In short the speaker quoted vital parts of the report, one part showing that Belleville showed large profits that year.

"The Hydro is a publicly owned utility. While other municipalities have not been contributing in any way, the citizens of Belleville have given $250,000 in ten or eleven years. We feel in the past we have not received all the information necessary re the Hydro Commission and that the people of Central Ontario have not been taken into the Hydro's confidence.

"I will not say this is not justifiable, but I say that the citizens of Belleville should have been given an opportunity of hearing just why these rates have been increased.

Hon. Narcisse Perodeau, the venerable lieutenant-governor of the province of Quebec, who in addition to being one of the wealthiest men in the Dominion of Canada is one of the kindliest, not only in the family sense, but in the sense of the public weal. Last Christmas, according to information that has just leaked out, he disbursed the sum of two million dollars among his four children, believing that it is better to give in life than after death.

G. C. BILL DOWN NEXT WEDNESDAY

Toronto, Mar. 4.—The Ontario Legislature will not receive the Government Control Bill until next week. The appearance of the measure became evidently delayed until that date when the Chamber, commencing yesterday afternoon, the longest sitting of the present session, failed to wind up the budget debate. The House fell short of this point by the speeches of the party leaders, which consequently do over until next Tuesday, when the discussion will finally be concluded.

BOARDS CLASHED OVER POX SCARE

Provincial Health Authorities Order Schools and Churches Closed

The smallpox epidemic has produced an unusual situation in Melrose where, while the local Board of Health has decided that the spolic is under control sufficiently for the schools and churches to function again, the Provincial Board of health has stepped in and ordered the continuation of the closure of the schools and universal vaccination. The Township Council has communicated with Toronto explaining their view of conditions but the reply from the provincial authorities will not be received until Monday. Meanwhile the Church at Melrose will remain closed at least over Sunday, March 6th.

Another angle has arisen in the matter of vaccinating all the children. If this order should be carried out it practically means the closing of all the schools in the vicinity while the vaccination is in course of "taking" as most children would undoubtedly stay out with sore arms. While many are in sympathy with all sround vaccination again the public has been practically cleared up and the cases reported previously are isolated and can be dealt with supposedly as occasion for alarm of further spreading.

SEVEN SHOTS OF THERMIT PLACED

Dr. Howard T. Barnes, of McGill University is continuing his Thermit operations on the Moira River today. Seven charges of the chemical were exploded yesterday afternoon at intervals in the mouth of the river from the rift way bridge southward. Three more holes will be fired this morning and it was deemed advisable to retain the remainder of the explosive and apply it tomorrow. Up to the present time four hundred pounds of the fluid preparative have been used and the rest of the shipment of 1,000 received yesterday will be applied tomorrow.

Dr. Barnes when asked about the experiments stated that he was quite confident that it was in his estimation, both successful. The ice in the river at the present time is from 18 to 20 inches thick which indicates that the water is finding an outlet, although the middle surface is solid, somewhere. Dr. Barnes hopes to have the solution that will end Belleville's disastrous floods forever. He has spent many years in the study of the problem and the properties and peculiarities of ice. Dr. Barnes marvels at the deep concentration involved in the study of ice and believes there is still many more angles to be probated.

City Engineer C. D. Campbell and Engineer of the C.P.R. and C.N.R. Railways are practising in the city while the operations are being performed.

Mr. Barnes is conducting these operations on the St. Maurice River and will leave for that point as soon as the Thermit work here is concluded.

Not so long ago Miss Harris had a similar accident in Australia being flung across the footlights into the audience. Now she has resolved to keep on her own feet when dancing.

LEGAL FIGHT TO FOLLOW SEIZURE OF RUM RUNNER

Owners of Federalship Claim Shelling Was Act of War

PANAMA TREATY

U. S. Government States That Arrangements Permitted Action

San Francisco, March 4.—The battle between the U.S. Government and Canadian liquor exporters over the steamer Federalship and her million dollar cargo of Scotch whiskey was transferred from the high seas to court today. The ship, recently seized under coast guard fire, swung at anchor under guard. The court had title in the offing promised to be unusual one as Captain Stone, the only person to be arrested, insisted that the coast guard boats which made the seizure, had committed an act of war by shelling his vessel. Guard vessels shot five times, two of the shipound shells taking effect on the Federalship, Captain Stone declared. Captain Stone, who is held for arraignment today, said he would ask the Panama Government, under which Federalship is registered, to declare war against the United States unless amends were made for the use of force on the high seas.

Seized Under Treaty

New York, March 4—Seizure of the Canadian-owned steamer Federalship under Panamian registry, with a cargo of liquor valued at one million dollars, while three hundred miles off San Francisco, was the first move to eliminate notorious rum-running craft which has been operating in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans under Panaman registry, states a Washington dispatch to the Herald Tribune. Despatch says the seizure of the Federalship which is owned by the Consolidated Exporters of Vancouver, B.C., followed successful negotiations between the United States and Panama whereby the latter government adopted a new law which provided that vessels under Panama registry which were guilty of habitual smuggling or piracy against a friendly nation" automatically forfeited their registry.

PROPOSE BUYING RAW MATERIALS IN BELLEVILLE

Aldermen Donahue, Hyde and Goudy are a committee selected by the Council to confer with the Building Committee of the Collegiate Institute School so that they may satisfy themselves that steps have been taken to allow the removal of the material locally and in Canada as possible.

The City Treasurer has been advised that the Provincial Government intends that they are expected to make immediate settlement of their indebtedness to the city in connection with their bonds and that unless the matter is settled within ten days the city solicitor will proceed to collect on the bonds. Notification to date and the City Solicitor take such action as is necessary to satisfy the city's claims to the term of the new agreement between the city and the Company.

The two fire bells will be wired shortly for electric fighting and the tender of the Quinte Electric has been accepted to do the work.

A bylaw will be prepared forbidding the placing of billboards throughout the city at certain centres and streets.

Tenders will be called shortly for the repair of boxes of the market, tolls for the year 1927, during hours April 1st.

The City of Belleville will take Advertising space in the Tourist Guide which is being prepared by the Ontario Motor Camp Association of New York was the substance of one of the recommendations passed at the regular meeting of the Civic committees last evening.

C. N. R. Car Ferry Between Cobourg and Rochester to Handle Traffic

No longer will motorists have to drive around by Niagara Falls in order to cross Lake Ontario, if present plans of the C. N. R. are carried out. A railway representative was in town this morning talking about the ferry service between Cobourg and Rochester, which is to be much improved this coming season, and gave out the welcome information that the boats expect to handle motor cars for tourists. Already many picnics and excursions have been booked for the summer of 1927.

MAN SENTENCED TO MONTH IN JAIL

H. Gould Gets Term For Serious Offense on Young Girl

H. Ward Beecher Gould, shoemaker employed on Pinnacle street, was arraigned in Police Court this morning on a charge of indecent assault upon a young girl under age of 14 years of age and was sentenced by Magistrate Mikel to one month in jail.

The young girl is the daughter Jean, of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Carter, 68 South George Street. She and her sister were playing on the street when he is also yesterday to be merded and it was there that the offense occurred.

Gould was convicted in June, 1922, of a similar offense upon a young girl, offering her money, and received a suspended sentence. The witnesses appearing against him today were the little girl, her sister, and the child's mother.

Mr. Mikel replied that all three were unreasonable. In respecting the prisoner the magistrate said that perhaps Gould deserved sympathy rather than a stiff sentence as he must be a pervert.

SMITH MYSTERY IS CLEARING UP

"I am almost convinced that the John Smith who died in Oklahoma City is my father and is the Captain John Smith mourned as drowned in the sinking of the George E. Marsh on August 8th. 1917," Mr. Horace Smith told The Intelligencer this morning when interviewed by a member of the staff.

He recalled the circumstances up the week and said that from the day the coal barge sank in Lake Ontario, he had heard nothing of Captain Smith whose body alone had been discovered with the eleven others wh., perished.

At present Mr. Smith anxiously awaits a telegram and documents which will probably clear up the non-finals of the body at the time of the wreck and exchange from Oklahoma inquiring for Margaret Smith.

The documents sent for by Mr. Horace Smith will be transmitted by air mail from Oklahoma to Chicago and the quickest possible time for the latter to the city is six days. According to this schedule they may come to Belleville tomorrow.

REMEMBERS MARRYING 10 BUT THERE WERE OTHERS

San Francisco, Calif., March 4.—The attested crime record of Albert "Pete" Kromey, burglar, forger, safe cracker, arch-hypnotist, poet, musician and prize fighter, who was held in jail here today to face an uncertain number of charges, startlingly out does the career by Don Juan.

Tennis in song and story with one exception—murders—of what his name is clear. Arrested here yesterday as a house burglar, Kromey confessed that in spite of having spent 18 of his 53 years in prison, he had found time to woo, win and marry at least ten women without the formality of a single divorce. There were others, he said, which he could not remember because he had felt them before he had become thoroughly acquainted.

"Women are easy" he told the police. "I met them at church, parties, dances and any kind of social gatherings that provided an opportunity. Then I would sing to them, talk poetry, love them—and they were mine."

INSTRUCTED TO PRESS PROBE IN MYSTERIOUS WARKWORTH DEATHS

IS NOT RETIRING SAYS DR. TAYLOR

With reference to a statement which recently appeared in the Toronto press that he intends to retire from the principalship of Queen's University, Dr. R. Bruce Taylor says that at the present time he has not the slightest idea of retiring but, on the other hand has in mind the planning and extending of the town of Queen's University.

Dr. Taylor's engagement has occasioned pleasure wide interest and Miss Muriel Bray, his fiancee, is the second daughter of Mr. Arthur Bray and the late Mrs. Bray, of Hastings, England. She was educated in Sussex and at St. Andrew's University, where she obtained the degree of M.C.A. She came to Canada in 1916, to join the staff of Bishop Strachan's School, Toronto, and after spending several years there took up literary work in New York, in connection with the Book of Knowledge. She has one sister and a large share in the editing of these volumes although her expert knowledge of French and Spanish is a grandeur, but has contributed largely with her own pen.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

OTTAWA POWER

The Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal bill, promoted by the Sifton interest and other powerful influences comes before Parliament again this week. On the last occasion this measure made its appearance in the House Sir George Perley "talked it out" and the same fate should befall the bill again.

This is not a question of anybody desiring to prevent the Sifton interests or anybody else from building the Georgian Bay Canal. If the gentlemen who are interested in getting this bill through Parliament really want to build a canal, by all means, let them go ahead and build it. But there are other things involved. One of these is that the original Georgian Bay Canal charter conferred very wide water power rights upon its holders, and that, therefore, passage of the bill which comes to Parliament this week, and which simply asks a renewal of the original charter will hand over those wide power rights to the Sifton interests.

There has been altogether too much subterranean work in connection with this power question. Too much lobbying, too many conferences behind green baize doors with powerful supporters of the Ministry. Too many high-powered lawyers. As a consequence the King Government today finds itself behind the devil of the Sifton interests and the deep blue sea of the Sir Herbert Holt interests, and doesn't know which way to turn.

Parliament, however, ought to be free to act as it pleases. And Parliament will be derelict in its duty if it reserves the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal charter in its present form.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S VICTORY

Sir Patrick McGrath who, despatches say, was responsible for assembling the material upon which the Privy Council extended Newfoundland's territory overnight to four times its previous recognized size is well known in Canada. For many years before he entered public life P. T. McGrath wielded great influence in the Colony as newspaper editor and international correspondent. More recently he has been Newfoundland's most respected statesman. He has been a frequent visitor to Ottawa in search of the blue books and official information out of which he takes fiendish enjoyment. There is no man knows more about Newfoundland and its hinterland than Sir Patrick and we can well imagine that he overwhelmed the London judges with data in support of his country's case.

But for the spruce and possible minerals—and even with them—it is just a question whether ownership of Labrador is an asset or a liability. By the time Labrador is ready for development or exploitation it may be that Newfoundland will be willing to make a free gift to Canada of her portion of it. Hence there is still need for worry over the judgment.

TOO MANY LAWS

The Baumes crime commission, whici yesterday reported to the New York state legislature at Albany on ways and means of checking the crime wave, declared that nation-wide legislation, if necessary, to keep firearms out of the hands of those who use them for criminal purposes. Among other things recommended were perfection of a system to give authorities greater control over receivers of stolen goods, substantial increases in the personal of police departments, abolition of part-time parol boards and the ousting of justices of th peace from the benches of criminal courts It is said that there has been a noticable decrease in crime in New York state since the Baumes bill became effective and it is pointed out that, if there has not been a general decline, it is because crooks chased from New York by the more stringent regulations are operating now in the other states of the union where police regulations have not kept pace with the profession. The question will not down, however, that the crying need in the United States is not more laws, but a serious effort to enforce the workable ones that have been on the statute books for years. There have been so many laws in the United States that a young man named Rodney Dulcher, who writes pieces for the papers from the press gallery at Washington, has figured it out that no living mortal, be he ever so assiduous, could ever possibly hang on to this vale of tears long enough to read all the laws he is supposed to obey. The sixty-ninth congress, at present in session, he has estimated, will add 1,100 new "thou shalt nots" to the extensive list. "Since the first congress convened in 1789 rather more than 51,000 federal laws have been passed," writes Mr. Dutcher. "And these he it remembered, are only a fraction of the laws the United States has upon its statute books. There are 48 state legislatures working constantly on new and better laws; there are city councils, county boards and boards of selectmen taking themselves very seriously and piling up the total constantly." A conservative estimate of the number of laws passed in the United States is 10,000,000. Hundreds of thousands of respectable citizens break some law or another every day, unwittingly. And just as many others, without a qualm of conscience, break what their judgment tells them are too utterly ridiculous to command respect. It is this lack of respect for the law, more than any other thing, on which crime batters, perverts its ends. And the way to beget respect for law is not to make new laws, but to weed out the useless legislation that clutters up the statute books and put teeth in laws that have the strength to bite, but not to expose.

ROYAL COMMISSION ANALYST & Zam-Buk

A PURE emollient of great healing power—one well adapted for treatment of skin injuries and diseases. This, in brief, is the report of W. Lascelles-Scott, F. S. Sc. (Lond.), of Little Ilford, England, after submitting Zam-Buk to a series of clinical and personal tests.

DR. SCOTT writes:—"I have chemically analysed the unguent preparation known as "ZAM-BUK," samples having been obtained from the makers direct and by independent purchase. Zam-Buk is a balsamic ointment of pale green colour, and agreeable aromatic odour. Its constituents being exclusively of herbal origin, Zam-Buk contains none of the impure and often irritating mineral drugs and animal fats present in less carefully prepared ointments; hence it never exhibits a tendency to rancidity.

"Zam-Buk is possessed of rare antiseptic and bacteriacidal power which promptly alleviates cutaneous disorders due to parasites and pathogenic organisms. Moreover, its astringent and balsamic constituents render Zam-Buk an emollient of great healing power.

"I have no hesitation in certifying the curative merits of Zam-Buk. It is well adapted for the treatment of superficial injuries and skin disorders."

POPULAR BRIDE

Arranged by Mr. Albert Buckle, the Sunday School Class at Tabernacle Church of which he is leader, and friends, numbering about seventy, five, gave a delightful surprise party last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ventress, 212 George street, in honor of Mrs. Clayton Smith (nee Doris Ventress). During the happy evening which was spent in music, games and contests, the bride and groom were presented with a beautiful pair of silver candlesticks, a token of the young people's affection of the popular bride.

BROKE HER ARM

Mrs. Albert Crosby of Amelisburg fell yesterday at her home in Amelisburg, fracturing her arm. Dr. Victor Trail was called and the injured woman brought to the office of Dr. J. J. Robertson, where the fracture was X-rayed and reduced.

HEAR LECTURE

Belleville High School students packed the Regent Theatre this morning when Mr. Alan Fenwick, who comes to the city from the Department of Mines and Forests, gave a splendid, address on Reforestation dwelling upon the asset timber wealth is to the country. The slides shown, which are owned by the Ontario Government, proved exceedingly interesting to the young people who will doubtless carry a deep appreciation of the necessity of conserving the timber of the Dominion and replacing that hewn for commercial purposes. Miss M. Mellbourn, manager of the Regent, very kindly placed the house at the disposal of the lecturer.

LOCAL TEAM LOSES

The local badminton players were trimmed to the tune of 35 games to 28 games by the Princess of Wales Own Regiment Badminton Club, Kingston, last night. Those players that represented the Belleville Club were Messrs. A. H. Ketcheson, Geo. Graham, R. H. Martin, M. Robb, R. G. Quirk and H. M. Jones and Mrs. Walter Scott, Mrs. R. H. Martin, Miss K. Porter, Miss S. Ross, Miss M. Kerr, Misses Ilene and Margaret Keiller.

ARENA LAST BAND SATURDAY NIGHT

D. H. S. LOSES TO KINGSTON

Last night in Kingston the Belleville High School Juvenile Basket, ball team lost to Kingston by the score of 16 to 14. The score at the end of the first period was 14 to 6 for the winners. As far as the play was concerned D.H.S. had more than their share and only over-enthusiasm and the strange floor made it possible for Kingston to run up an eight point lead in the first period. This game was the first that either of the two teams have played in the O.A.B.A. but both lives played like veterans and their defensive style was nice to watch. For Kingston Allan was the only scorer of note and he was outstanding in the first period when he scored ten points as a result of five field baskets. In the second period "Stumpy" Miles held him to two fluky baskets which were on the only points made by Kingston in the second fifteen minutes. For B.H.S. Gilbert Chadwick and Miles made a strong defence, while Faulkner, Redmond and Calwell worked a nice passing game that should have brought better results.

News and Views for the Average Woman and the Occasional Man

Wives Take a Fling at Flirting Husbands

He would look at a pretty ankle and smile back if a pretty eye twinkled at him.

It was Tess sniffed and snorted and re-sniffed when that bit was her lawfully Married Husband of many years' standing. In vain she raved that flirting was a vulgar pastime. Hubby grinned and went right on looking and smiling.

So then Tess wrote to me and asked how she could cure him. She admitted that she was the World's Prize Mate in every other respect but he simply couldn't make his eyes behave.

And I answered: "Why worry? What's the harm of looking at a pretty ankle? Why grudge a smile when you control all the rest of the stock?"

Was it a popular answer with the Wives Union? Yes it was NOT! As witness this answer:

DEAR ELSIE:

Have read your answer to Tess, and I surely do not agree with you on the subject of harmless flirting. It is dangerous, vulgar and in cheap enough for single folks to stoop too, but for married people it is downright common.

Flirting leads to dates and then soon wife finds hubby is growing cold toward her. And nine chances to one out of ten, when a husband acts indifferent, there is another woman in the case. If the stands for it she is a fool. Such actions would drive almost any good woman to do rash things.

If Hubby continues this sort of action, sooner or later it will all end in the divorce court.

No man that loves his wife as a husband should, will flirt. If Tess's husband tells her to flirt, he is no man, and he doesn't care for her. He is a disgrace to the male sex.

Well, Elsie, not for me—because men who pick up girls are lower than dirt and so are the girls who go with them. In fact, those men don't deserve to be called men, as they are a very poor imitation in pants.

A married man should find happiness at home with his wife. Would you like to stay home and rock the babies to sleep, while Hubby goes out to view the ladies' ankles, and to get a kick out of life? I suppose the Wife is going to get her kick out of washing the dishes.

"A REAL PAL

That's what Bertha wonders.

Here's the well-known scenario. Lovey young dream—weeks or plans and promises—dates — flowers — phone calls—increasing devotion. Then the smash —a silly lover's quarrel over a trivial misunderstanding.

His attempted reconciliation but he said that his love had turned to hate And Bertha wonders if this can be possible.

DEAR ELSIE:

Recently the young man that I have been keeping company with and I have separated. After we separated I realized how deeply I loved him and I went to him and admitted my mistake, it, the cause of our disagreement. I asked to start over again. We were both at fault and I was confident that with a better understanding of each other we would get along fine But everything I said or did was in vain

He said that his love had turned to hate. Of course, I felt fully for a while—I think I still feel bodily, but I know I will get over it in time.

DO YOU THINK THAT IF THE LOVE HE CLAIMS TO HAVE HAD FOR ME WAS SINCERE AND TRUE, IT COULD TURN TO HATE AND REMAIN SO?

BERTHA.

How about it? Do you think real love can turn to hate? Let 's hear your opinion.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

THE BEGINNING OF A CHANCE

Christine forced her self to work pleasant. It brought her into contact with a new and interesting class of people—quite different from the set she'd been in magazine office where she had worked under the autocratic Miss Hakins; far removed from the cheap, little cabaret where she had danced. Different, too, from the salesroom of the smart little speciality shop where she had served as a young thing.

She was both eager and thrilled about the theatrical people with whom she came in contact every day. To her the glamour of the footlights was still about them, even when they received her in negligee in quite too tidy apartments, and talked to her over their morning coffee.

At first, her interviews were notable for their originality. She asked eager and naive questions, and voiced the enthusiasm she felt. Sometimes her queries brought forth gales of laughter; sometimes they were met with a gravity which indicated some really worthy response. She had the knack of interpreting any mood, and she put into her work all the freshness and enthusiasm which still struggled to survive, in spite of her bitter experience.

But little by little, the character of her work changed. It began to take on some of the hardness and sophistication which she encountered on every hand. This was due partly to the fact that she had learned to be ready with a flippant retort when someone made an impertinent remark, and partly to the fact that she discovered it was best to wink at things which formerly would have shocked her.

Partly also, the change was due to the fact that her colleagues laughed at her naivete.

"Say, what did you tell them kid you like to fer?" One of them demanded, when she came in with an interview from a well-known comedian who had spent an hour expounding to her his theories on life and death. "He was just having a good time. Why didn't you ask him about that girl he got into it up with last year? That's what the dear old Public wan.s to know."

Another one asked her brazenly what part of the "sticks" she hailed from. "Didn't ja hear there was a Broadway before Ike made dough?" the girl asked.

Christine learned to laugh and answer with some flippant, current phrase. She learned to creep into her vocabulary very easily. Almost before she knew it, she had become as New Yorkers call any other of the thousands of so-called New Yorkers who were born in small towns throughout the country.

She had another bitter experience about this time.

The bills our youthful care for Junior were so large that she could not meet them. She swallowed her pride and, for the first time, wrote to her family for financial assistance. She would not have done it for herself, but for him she felt no sacrifice was too great.

Her father sent her the money, but he rebuked her again for leaving Harvey Blanton.

"If you had acted as a decent and sensible woman, You would now be a respectable widow, and, no doubt, could have made a second marriage which would have solved the problem of your future in a happy manner."

Christine then wrote him that she had married a second time, that she had married Lewis Hayes, but, finding that she could not love him, they had parted immediately.

The reply to this was scorching.

"No daughter of mine could act in such a shameless and disgraceful fashion. First you run away from one man; then, almost before he is decently buried, you marry another, with whom gossip has already connected your name and you leave him. Your mother and I, Christine, being decent and conventional folk and having a certain pride in our position in this world, are forced to wash our hands of you, unless you come to your senses."

Christine tore up the letter.

"Now I not alone," she thought grimly.

About that time she made the acquaintance of a girl named Nina Marvey. She was not very quite sure what Nina's job was. It had something to do with advance publicity for shows, and it seemed to net Nina a very good income. She had an apartment of her own and dressed stunningly.

"Quite simple to manage," Nina explained with a shrug, when Christine admired a leopard-skin coat she was wearing. "Out-side of my apartment, my salary goes on my back. I rarely have to buy a meal, except breakfast. There are plenty of free parties, and my entertaining is all done in my home

OPEN FORUM

Many cities are taking over the distribution of their own power, and it is quite possible that Belleville might do that also. And therefore I wish to move the following resolution:

Moved by Alderman A. D. Collins, seconded by Mr. W. C. Springer.

Whereas in general statement of account, applying to the municipality of the City of Belleville as a unit, has been given out or published by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario since the local wholesale system was acquired by the Province of Ontario in 1916;

And whereas no adequate knowledge of our position, our present status or our prospective future development is possible without the most complete and accurate knowledge of our own financial standing as well as the comparative financial standing of the other municipalities associated with Belleville in the Central Ontario System;

Therefore be it resolved that this meeting of the members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce respectfully request the aforesaid Hydro Electric Power Commission to furnish this organization with a statement showing the following essential facts:—

(1) A statement of the total receipts and expenditures and of total profits or losses incurred by the operation and administration of the local hydro electric power system within the municipal corporation of the City of Belleville for each year since the system was purchased by the Government of Ontario.

(2) A similar statement of total annual receipts and expenditures and of losses or gains in each municipality having contracts or using power within what are known as the Central Ontario and Trent Systems.

(3) A similar financial statement in regard to such enterprises and utilities as the electric railway at Peterborough; the gas plants at Peterborough, Cobourg and Oshawa; the waterworks at Cobourg; the pulp mill at Campbellford and all other corporations, utilities, etc., that are operated and administered as individual units within the Central Ontario System.

(4) Also a tabulated statement showing the comparative rate of increase for electrical power, commercial and domestic, lighting for each individual municipality within the Central Ontario and Trent Systems, as announced by the Hydro Electric Power Commission the latter part of January, 1927.

(5) And also the wholesale rate for power chargeable to Belleville and the other individual municipalities under the new rates, as well as under the old rates, for each year since 1916 and the peak load of power used in each municipality in each year under Hydro operation.

Following Mr. Collin's address general discussion was in order. Mr. J. J. Henly explained that the rates would be about 3% in favour of western Ontario.

Everybody said, however, that owing to the full and capable talk of Mr. Collins, they had nothing to say. The motion was carried unanimously.

Another resolution, moved by Mr. William Deacon was also passed unanimously. The resolution is as follows:

Moved by Mr. William Deacon, seconded by Mr. Robert Wright and resolved that the meeting of members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce urge upon the City Council of Belleville the necessity of taking official action requesting the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario to furnish to this city a full and complete financial statement such as is given in detail in another resolution carried at this meeting in regard to hydro electric operation and administration in this and other municipalities making up the Central Ontario and Trent Systems.

Prior to Alderman Collins' address, Mr. J. O. Henly arose and stated that he had communicated with the Hydro Commission, and wished to read his letter to the Hydro Commission and the Commission's answer to him. The letter read:

February 1, 1927

Mr. O. H. Scott,
Manager, Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Scott:—

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce held yesterday a prolonged discussion took place in regard to the recent announcement of the change in Hydro Electric rates as applied to users in the city of Belleville.

After the matter was discussed from various angles it was decided that the Board of Directors and the public generally at Belleville were in possession of very meagre information in regard to the announced changes and their probable effect financially and otherwise on users here.

It was therefore moved by Mr. W. B. Deacon, seconded by Mr. Mackenzie Simpson, and unanimously carried, that I should be instructed to write to you and earnestly request you to supply us with all essential information in regard to the proposed change.

I am, therefore, referring you to further our Board of Directors with a statement showing a comparison of the present and the immediate past rates for power, for commercial and for household lighting. Also the Directors ask and like to obtain from you a statement of total and expenditures for the said distributing system at Belleville for each year since the Hydro Electric Power Commission took over the system from the previous owners.

Also they would like to get from you an estimate of the total amount that Belleville would pay per annum as an increase due to the present change. Also to an approximate estimate of the percentage of increase to be paid to industrial users, (a) for commercial lighting, (b) for domestic lighting.

The Directors also kindly request you to furnish them with the reasons or reasons for these changes.

In view of the annexations and prosperous condition of Belleville in supplying a population approximately $20,000 per annum to the general fund of the Central Ontario System while other municipalities such as Peterborough, Bowmanville and Napanee show considerable loss, would it not in your opinion be possible to secure a readjustment of rates with a view to the repudiation of Chisholm permits and the provision that it be evidently made for such unprofitable utilities as the radial railway at Peterborough, the gas works at Cobourg, etc.

The preparation of replies to these requests we know will involve considerable work and the requests have been made only because of the exceeding importance of the matters involved as well as the large financial interests. We feel also that the industrial future of this part of Ontario is seriously concerned in the changes that were announced.

Thanking you for past courtesies and looking forward with some hope that action may be brought about to improve our prospective condition in the announced policy, I am,

Very truly yours,
[illegible]
J. O. Henly,
Manager.

Office of the Secretary,

February 23, 1927.

Mr. J. O. Henly,
Manager,
Chamber of Commerce,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—

Replying to your favour of the 9th instant, addressed to Mr. O. H. Scott, I beg to advise you that this matter has been remitted to my Commission, and I am instructed to reply to the question as set out in the Resolution of your organization, as follows:—

1. The following is a comparison of 1917 — the cents due to rates charged in 1926 and its new rates for 1927, and the rates in 1916 charged by the Electric Power Company.

	Domestic Commercial Power
	charges per K.W. Hr.	charges per K.W. Hr.	charges per H.P. Yr
1916 —	8.0c	5.0c	$25.00
1926 —	2.7c	3.5c	21.50
1927 —	3.1c	3.0c	22.50

Up to the year 1926, no attempt was made to distribute all of the charge entering into the cost of power, to the various municipalities operated direct by the Commission, a general financial statement only being prepared and submitted to the Government. This was published in the annual report of the Commission and showed the total profits or loss on the whole Central Ontario System, including the Niagara System which was purchased by the Government at the same time as the Central Ontario System.

2. The following tabulation shows the estimated average rate per K. W. Hrs. for lighting as supplied by the Commission to your Municipality for each year from 1917 to 1926 inclusive.

	Domestic	Commercial	Av. Ltg.
1916 —	8.0c	8.0c	8.0c
1917 —	3.7c	3.4c	4.4c
1918 —	3.5c	3.1c	4.3c
1919 —	3.4c	4.3c	4.15c
1920 —	3.3c	4.7c	4.0c
1921 —	2.9c	4.5c	3.75c
1922 —	3.1c	4.3c	3.7c
1923 —	3.0c	4.1c	3.55c
1924 —	2.9c	3.9c	3.4c
1925 —	2.8c	3.7c	3.25c
1926 —	2.7c	3.4c	3.1c

4. The total saving to the consumers in the City of Belleville during the period from 1916 to 1926 with rates actually in force for each year during that period, over the rates charged by the Electric Power Company when the plant was taken over in 1916, was $36,202.52, and the saving under the rates charged in 1925, over the rates charged by the Electric Power Company in 1916, for the year 1925, amounted to $15,800.00.

5. The total estimated annual increase in revenue from the Belleville System, due to the recent increase in rate, is approximately $28,000.00. This annual increase over 1926 revenue is approximately 17.8%, but is 40% lower than the increase in revenue from the Peterborough System, which is 57.8%.

*Additional First and Refunding Mortgage Income Gold Bonds may be issued in series under the conservative restrictions of the Trust Indenture, which provides that future Bonds may be issued only for refunding purposes and for the acquisition of additional stores, up to 60% of their appraised value.

Mr. C. H. Rennie, President, and who is to be General Manager of the Company, summarizes from his letter to us as follows:

Company: Canadian Department Stores, Limited, has been incorporated for the purpose of effecting a consolidation of 12 department stores operating in the principal cities of the Province of Ontario and one store operating in Montreal. The individual stores have been established and in successful operation for a period averaging more than 44 years, and in the majority of cases are the leading merchandising institutions in their respective communities. The population of the Province of Ontario represents approximately one-third of the entire population of the Dominion. The Province absorbs more than 46% of the merchandise distributed in Canada, and contains over 36% of the total homes in the country. The territory served by the stores to be owned by the Company embraces more than 50% of the population of the Province.

Security: The First and Refunding Mortgage Income Gold Bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage on the fixed assets of the Ottawa store and all the other fixed assets of the Company now owned or hereafter acquired, subject only to $2,500,000 First Mortgage 6½% Bonds to be presently outstanding.

A consolidated balance sheet of the amalgamating stores as of December 31st, 1926, as certified by Neff, Robertson & Co., chartered accountants, after giving effect to the consolidation and the financing in connection therewith, and including fixed assets, as appraised by Canadian Appraisal Company, Limited, shows net tangible assets of approximately $8,672,000. The Company covenants that it will pay no dividends on its capital stock while any of these bonds are outstanding, if such payment will reduce its net current assets below $2,000,000.

Earnings: Net earnings, as certified by Neff, Robertson & Co., available for interest on these Series "A" bonds for the ten years ended December 31, 1925, after deducting all operating expenses and annual interest requirements of the First Mortgage Bonds to be presently outstanding, but before deducting depreciation and certain non-recurring charges, have averaged $598,551 annually, or nearly twice the annual interest requirements of this issue. In no year of the above period have such net earnings been less than the combined annual interest requirements of the First Mortgage and First and Refunding Mortgage Income Gold Bonds to be presently outstanding.

It is expected that centralized buying of merchandise from large manufacturers and economies to be effected through consolidated operation will result in a substantial increase in net earnings from even the present volume of gross business. Based upon specific assurances from many manufacturers and wholesalers and a careful survey of possible operating economies, it is estimated that the net earnings available for bond interest for the first full year of consolidated operation will be in excess of $1,000,000, or more than three times the interest requirements on these Series "A" Bonds.

Purpose of Issue: The Series "A" bonds are being issued in part to the former owners of the constituent companies in payment for their properties and in part for cash to provide funds for the retirement of constituent company indebtedness, working capital and other corporate purposes.

Sinking Fund: A sinking fund, starting March 1st, 1930, payable out of available net income after paying all interest on these Bonds, equivalent annually to 2% of the largest amount of Series "A" bonds ever outstanding, is designed to retire bonds through purchase at or below 105 and accumulated interest or through call by lot at that price. In addition to this regular sinking fund, it is provided in the Trust Indenture that after the payment in any one year of Dividends on Common Stock an amount equivalent to 20% of any further Common dividends paid in that year will be set aside and used as an additional sinking fund for the retirement of bonds of this issue.

Management: The management of the Company will be under the direct supervision of Mr. G. H. Rennie, President, and who is to be General Manager, and who for the past several years has been Assistant General Manager of Robert Simpson Company, Limited, of Toronto. Mr. Rennie's executive staff and the Board of Directors will be composed largely of men previously associated with the successful operation of the various constituent companies.

These bonds are offered when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to the approval of all legal details by Messrs. Hearst, Mills & Hearst for the Company and Messrs. Osler, Hoskin & Harcourt of Toronto for the Trustee. Delivery will be made in the form of temporary bonds or interim receipts on or about March 15, 1927.

There will be delivered with each $1,000 bond of this issue 5 shares of the no par value Common Stock of the Company.

Orders may be telephoned or telegraphed at our expense.
A Descriptive Circular will be mailed upon request.

Y'S MEN AND BELLE TELEPHONE IN FINE TRIM FOR TONIGHT'S TILT

Kiwanis Club Ready For Battle With Recreation Rats

All roads lead to the arena tonight where fans will be given an opportunity of witnessing the calibre of hockey that has been played in the City League and also in the bush leagues in the present season.

The Bell Telephone still smarting under the defeat handed them early in the season by Vern' Weir and his Y's Men's Club and the lads from the Finnish St. Institution are out to show the league leaders that they are now the best. The Y's Men's Club with Name in goal, Drew and Symons on the defence Wels, Armstrong and Groh for the forward line with Lally, Alexander, Blanchard and Harden for relief duty is a mighty sweet-looking aggregation. At least five of them have had experience in the O.H.A. ranks and know the tricks of the trade. Everyone of these boys will work together and with their speed and aggressiveness, are the favorites to win.

Big Bill Bell Telephone squad are not to be overlooked and will be in there fighting from the drop of the hat. Basil Bouillitte's boys went through two hard battles with the C.N.R. Express but are still in good shape.

Bullard who has seen considerable service in the nets is a clever goalie and the Y's Men will earn every goal they get.

Durst and Clarke shape up as a nice defence. Durst is especially fast on his skates and is clever with the stick. Clarke does not possess the speed that his running mate does but he uses his weight to good advantage. Anderson and Connoly on the wings are very fast and can be watched closely.

Armstrong overhandows Turcot a trifle in the puck position although the latter is a hard-worker and never stops trying.

Aikman and Dean will work as rule and cause no weakness in the line-up when they are inserted into the fray.

It was deemed advisable to have two officials and Ken Colling will act as judge of play "Pek" Arnott who is developing into a smart arbiter will act as referee.

It's practically a toss-up between the two teams and the supporters of both teams will be out in large numbers.

THE REAL SET-TO

The Kiwanis hockey squad will look up with the Recreation Rats in what promises to be a bitter arguments. The "Ks" who are coached under Fred Brazen are rousing out in full regalia and the rubbishers are advised to come prepared to split their sides at the comic opera which has been promised.

"Style" Barrett's Recreation Rats with "Slats" Kerr, Harry Evans, Earl Foster, etc., in the line-up are sure to be a scream. This game will consist of two 15 minute periods between the regular game. Everything from cow-bells to tennis rackets will be in vogue for this game and the spectators are requested to voice their comments during the progress of the game.

The game is for the championship of the old People's Home League and the winners will be privileged to choose their own reward after the game, whether it be an oyster supper or a bun feed it is expected that two or three substances will be on hand as the local hospital is expected to do a great business.

The first game will get away at 8.45 pronto and ticket-holders are requested to be in their seats at the appointed time. At a late hour today Wall St. quoted the odds at 20-10 in favor of the Kiwanians.

"TONIGHT'S" GAME

Tonight should see a large crowd of fans flock to the arena for the final game of the City League. The Y's Men and Bell Telephone are both travelling at top speed and the rival customers are sure to be treated to a sterling exhibition. The Bell Telephone employees are turning out in full force while the members of the Y's Men's Club are behind their team lock, stock and barrel. Most of the Bell Telephone boys are now in the best hockey following but they have had plenty of experience at the game in former years and have also made a lot of friends and supporters here this season. There is little to choose from between them and it will be a fight to a finish. The Kiwanis - Recreation - Rats game is being discussed all over the town and the entering sport promises to eclipse anything that has been staged in hockey circles here this season. The first game will get under way promptly at 8.15.

PLAY AT FRANKFORD TONIGHT

The Intelligencer puckchasers will journey to Frankford tonight and will engage the home team in an exhibition game. Frankford have a fast team and as yet this season have not had a game in Belleville rough, but the ink-slingers will try to do the needful this evening. The players will have a game that means speed team tonight in that they will be without the services of Sam Curry in goal. Pete Latchford will be between the sticks in his stead with L. Cook and Jack Rooney in front of him. E. Doyle will be in centre ice with J. Smith and Dan O'Loughlin flanking him. B. Brown, J. Canning and Martin will look after the relief work. Jack Arnott will referee.

SOFT-BALL MEETING

Soft-ball fanciers are reminded of the meeting at the "Y" on Saturday night to complete the business of organization. The Men's League with four fast teams is practically assured and prospects are bright for a most successful season of indoor ball. The Girls League is still up in the air and the meeting has been called mainly for the purpose of getting a line on the different clubs. The exclusion of the Belwyns and High School teams means that any players on these teams who wish, may sign with other clubs. However it is desired that one club does not monopolize the best players as this was the reason advanced for keeping them out. Joe Gower has promised a team from Foster Ward and Joe has some smart ball-players in his vicinity. Jack Allen is anxious to enter a girls' team while the Frontenac Paper Box and Dawson Shirt are still undecided. If these four enter it will mean two nights a week with both the male and female players performing on the same evening.

WIN HONORS IN INDUSTRIAL LG.

The City Battery are champions of the Industrial League following last night's game in which they defeated the Hastings Paper Mills 4-0. The Battery outfit have won five and lost one game and were certainly the best of the four teams in the Industrial League. They may possibly meet the winners of the City League for the City championship. The City Battery are well-outlined in young bloods, all of whom are fast and tricky. Several of them have had experience in Junior O.H.A. company. Last evening the Hastings Paper Mills held the score down in the first two periods but the City Battery came back in the third and unleashed an attack that was not to be denied.

Leo St. Denis, with two goals to his credit was one of the most effective men on the ice. Weir and Mahaffey, Matthews shared the scoring honors with him.

Raymond Rose was the fastest of the Paper Mill crowd and had to be watched continually.

In the second game the Ritchie Wolves were triumphant over the Cleese by a score of 3-1. The Cobourg crowd were weakened by the absence of Williams and Symons.

BELLE THEATRE

Ann Pennington, dainty little Follies star, got a thrill—and an inspiration—while working at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., in "The Golden Strain," a Fox Films production, based on Peter B. Kyne's romantic story, and now at the Belle Theatre. Miss Pennington, accompanied by Director Victor Schertzinger and the other members of the company, attended a dance given by the soldiers of the Tenth Cavalry. The soldiers told Miss Pennington they would reveal a newcomer if she would agree to dance the Charleston. She did—and the master of ceremonies then demonstrated the "Hunchback Crawl"—named in honor of the make known as the fadwinder. Miss Pennington declared the dance was a living poem—and promised to take it back to Broadway. Hobart Bosworth, Madge Bellamy, Kenneth Harlan, Grace Morse, Lawrence Davidson, Frank Hagney, Jr., are other members of the Schertzinger company.

6. The percentage of increase in the bills of domestic, commercial and power consumers varies for different consumers, depending on the hours' use of the load supplied in each case, and as the new rate differs from the former rate in form, it is impossible to give you accurate figures in this regard.

7. If you will refer to the above tabulation, you will find that the domestic lighting on an average, has increased approximately 20%; commercial lighting 18%; power 3% over 1926 rates, but is lower than the franchise rates of 1916 by 35½% for domestic lighting; 34% for commercial lighting and 13½% for power.

8. The recent adjustment in rates is occasioned by the refinancing of the system. The 4% Government bonds originally given to the Electric Power Company for the system, have now matured and the Provincial Government has issued a new loan at a higher rate of interest—approximately 5% instead of 4% which the purchase bonds carried. This brings an added burden in the annual operation of the system of approximately $90,000.00.

In addition to this, the system up to the present, has not provided for any retirement of capital, and it is now proposed to provide an amortization fund or sinking fund for this purpose. This fund will amount to approximately 1% of the total investment in the system, which includes the original purchase price of $2,250,000.00 and extensions, amounting to over $500,000.00 since that date, or a total of over $1,000,000.00. Setting up such a fund will bring an added burden annually in the operation of the system of about $140,000.00. The System has been operated without loss or gain to any extent for a the past ten years on the rates charged during that time, so that the reasons for any increase in rates are chiefly due to the above items.

9. In the last paragraph on the first part of your letter, you assumed that there is not an equalization of the charges and profits that are required by the operation of other utilities. The recent adjustment of rates provides for an equalization of these burdens, in as far as it is possible for the Commission to do so, and still observe its contractual obligations it assumed in the contract made by the Electric Power Company. Your inference, therefore, that there is not an equalization of these charges is not correct.

Yours truly,
(Signed) W. W. POPE,
Secretary.

The Irony of Love
By Charles Garvice

The strange emotion caused by the scene between Rafe and the coal driver had ebbed, but it had left a ripple behind; she was still uneasy and troubled. She was not a susceptible girl, and she had as yet passed unmoved through the throng of men who had admired her beauty and, some of them, fallen deeply in love with her. Until that moment no man had had the power to stir her heart; it was not because she was cold, but because her ideal was so lofty, her standard very high, and no one of the many who had fallen a victim to her charm had come up to that standard.

Certainly Rafe did not. Notwithstanding his title and his wealth, she could not ignore the fact that he was a miner, that he was rough and unsophisticated; she knew little about his past, but the little she knew set up a barrier between them. She would marry some day, of course, but the man would not only be one in her own set; but a man of culture and of refinement, not a man with Rafe's past.

She told herself that she had got excited over the scene in the street before her; that, after all, there was nothing particularly heroic in a great, strong young fellow like Rafe administering punishment to a bullying coal driver.

Nor for a moment would she admit to herself that she felt anything warmer than admiration for Rafe's great strength and phenomenal courage. And yet she was glad that she was going to lunch with a friend, and that she should not meet Rafe again. All dinner time, till through lunch, during which her friend chattered aimless, and the afternoon they spent together, shopping she tried herself to recall Rafe's numerous mistakes, his roughness, his ignorances. But something within her rebelled at the word "cunning"; he was made a very noble Orson, a wild man from the woods, but she knew that he was not cunning.

She had so impressed all his defects of manner and untrodden upon herself that she was almost guilty of startling with a sudden revulsion of feeling when, just before dinner, he fortunately opened the door and ushered in Rafe's evening clothes.

"Fine feather make fine birds," and Clyde, in conventional attire, looked not ill, a splendid specimen of manhood but strikingly distinguished. Strangely enough, he did not appear ill-at-ease or self-conscious.

"Mr. Travers is a gentleman, of course," said St. Ives, with a nod. "With all his follies he had to deal with were, Lord knows, how much more we pay for

THE COMING COAL STRIKE

We have had numerous requests for further information relating to the predicted coal strike in the United States fields between the union miners and the operators owned by companies employing union labor, and, to be more definite, would say that this will not in any way affect the hard coal market, and that non-union miners mining bituminous will continue to function. Opinions differ as to whether the production of coal by non-union miners will be sufficient to take care of the requirements of the country, including Canada's above, but the very best authorities contend that with the enormous supplies that railways and industrial corporations have already accumulated, that no serious shortage will occur for at least six months after April 1st, should the strike become effective.

Use our LEHIGH and LACKAWANNA hard coal, SOLVAY COKE and "ORIGINAL" POCAHONTAS which are the most outstanding grades on the market.

THRILLING TALE OF RESCUE IN STORM THRESHED SEA

Getting Ready For Bigger Belleville Fair --- Ottawa House Deals With Old Age Pensions

MARITIME RIGHT BILL LOOMS NOW AS BIG QUESTION

House of Commons Well Advanced With Session's Business

POWER RIGHTS

Contentious Charter For Georgian Bay Canal Scheme

Ottawa, March 5.— The House of Commons made considerable progress this week. It not only adopted the budget in principle, but it passed all stage of the Old Age Pensions Act which was the subject of a long debate both last session and again this year. An amendment to the Soldiers Settlement Act, one of the measures left over from the last parliament when it was the close of many debates went through the committee stage and received a second reading yesterday. Last year at this time the Commons was still debating the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne so it will be seen how much farther ahead proceedings are this session.

The report of the Royal Commission on Maritime Rights fills a big place in the political horizon and it had been expected that the debate on this would be launched about the Middle of March. Plans of the government have been to clear up the budget resolutions in committee and estimates before the Maritime Rights debate is started. Develop ments of next week may change this.

The Government's bill to amend the Indian Companies Act which would require Indian companies to take out an annual license from the Insurance Department is meeting with strong opposition in the Banking and Commerce committee of the Commons. This committee did not reach a vote after yesterday's discussion but it will be resumed next Tuesday when it is expected the vote will be taken.

The bill to provide for the renewal of the charter of the Montreal Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal Company stands out as the most contentious of the private bills. It has already occupied three of the House's sessions and still has plenty for dealing with bills of this class.

Opposition to the bill is based on the contention that the bill in addition to giving the company the rich to build a canal along the French, Mattawa and Ottawa River from Georgian Bay to Montreal gives the company important power rights along the course of the proposed canal.

CHARLIE SAID TO BE COMING HERE

According to W. C. Mikel K.C., Charlie Chaplin has not seen fit to visit his wife to attend the Belleville Golf Club Ball he invites on attending son. The Committee is afraid that if he does there will be a scene right in the Ball Room and they are thinking seriously of cancelling the invitation to Mrs. Chaplin. Some however, say that the whole affair is a plot for a great moving picture; that the Chaplins have never really quarrelled but have merely pretended to quarrel, and that they will greet at the Belleville Golf Club Ball and begin their pretended quarrel and live happily ever afterwards, and that the Belleville Golf Club Ball will live in one of the greatest moving pictures the world has ever seen. Peope everywhere night after night will pick out their Belleville friends in the great ball scene.

NEW PROV. CONSTABLE TO JOIN LOCAL STAFF

Word has been received here that P. C. Woodcraft of Cochrane has been appointed to the local Provincial Police Forces and will arrive here about March 21st. The new constable has been associated with the Provincial Police for some five years and is said to be a highly qualified officer. He will be attached to the local District Headquarters Staff under Inspector Lougheed. He is a married man.

Nothing definite has been decided about the flag to be flown from Canada's new legation at Washington, but the design most favored has been the one pictured above. In the above picture the fly of the flag is red with the Canadian coat of arms on the fly.

SMOKERS IMMUNE

Tobacco Kills, Oil All the Germs, Says Prominent French Scientist

Paris, March 5.—Smokers are less likely to take grippe than non-smokers, says Dr. Henri Bouquet, the well-known French medical writer, who also declares experience has shown that smokers are practically immune from cerebro spinal meningitis. Recent tests, he points out, seem to prove that tobacco has antiseptic properties sufficient to kill off microbes which inhabit the mouth, where many diseases have their origin.

TRIES A RIDE

Decides That Railways Are Here To Stay and Takes a Chance

Bridgewater, N. S., March 5.—Edwin Howe, who was past middle age when steam travel first came to Nova Scotia, reached the decision the other day that railways had come to stay and he might as well accept them. He has just taken his first ride. He was ninety-six last birthday.

SIPHONED WHISKEY FROM GOVERNMENT WAREHOUSE

Chicago, Ills., March 5.—More than six hundred cases of booze was used by thieves in siphoning whiskey from the Government warehouse to an apartment building. It was revealed today after the police and federal agents had captured four men in a spectacular pistol fight and recovered thousands of dollars worth of liquor.

The four arrested were "Roddie" O'Donnell, who was held for $40,000 in connection with the slaying of Assistant State's Attorney McGlaughlin last year, "Pat" Semmons, known to police and gangland power, John Ezra and John Davis. A fifth man was pursued over the roof of the warehouse but he escaped amid pistol fire by dropping down the wall of the building, which houses a million dollars worth of liquor.

O'Donnell and Barry were found manning two high pressure pumps from which the raiders trailed a long stretch of hose to a battery of tanks in the apartment building. These tanks had already received whiskey which federal agents estimated was worth two hundred thousand dollars.

Rev. "Joe" Handley Gives Outstanding Address To Big Gathering

MANY VISITORS

Toronto, Oshawa, Port Hope Cobourg, Napanee and Other Clubs

Rotarians one hundred and fifty strong gathered in the Quinte hotel to attend an enthusiastic banquet and Inter City meeting, the Belleville Rotary Club, the hosts, last evening. Representatives from Toronto, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Peterboro, Trenton, Napanee and Kingston Clubs were present and the main feature of the evening was an wonderful address by Rev. "Joe" Handley, of Perry, New York, District Governor of District No. 27.

Short and interesting 20 second talks were given by the presidents of the respective Rotary Clubs represented. Dinner started at 7.30 sharp, Rotarian "Charley" Dolan presiding. The dinner was enlivened by songs from Mr. J. Arnold Thompson, Mr. Jimmie Bank ier, Mr. Al Stillman, Mr. Sandy Bunnie, the Radio Four and others, both visitors and local men.

Rev "Joe" Handley

Mr. Dolan welcomed the members of the inter clubs, and following this the Rev. Handley arose and spoke.

"Fellow Rotarians", began the speaker, "after hearing your marvellous singing, soloists and quartets, I can't understand why you want to hear me speak. I'll wish I had an opportunity to say all that is my heart. While I've tried to give my bit to District 27, it has given much more to me. When I get good sight of this year I'll carry away wonderful memories with me.

The speaker's address was replete with humour, the Rev. Handley relating a funny story every few minutes.

World Power

I would like to talk to you on Rotary as a world power. But I am a believer that Rotary has something more than a little sphere in its own community. I believe it will become a world power in three things. I think Rotary has a wonderful future.

New York, N.Y., March 5.—Historians and archaeologists today believed Dr. George A. Reisner of Harvard University might be the victim of a practical joke dating back five thousand years.

Seeking the mummy of Queen Hetepheres, wife of Senefru and mother of Cheops, Dr. Reisner journeyed to Egypt on the word that the Sarcophagus has been found. He discovered an empty Sarcophagus.

The grave was at the bottom of a vertical shaft, cut one hundred feet through limestone. It had been undisturbed through the centuries. Why such a burial place should be carved from rock, inscribed with the Queen's name and sealed without her mummy —that was a mystery.

The solution advanced by science is that wily King Cheops, who had a mammoth pyramid built to protect his own remains, thought to safeguard the mummy of his mother by an elaborate trick.

Grave robberies were frequent in those days and rich treasure was entombed with royalty. King Senefru and his Queen had been buried with pomp. Cheops, heir to the throne of the Pharaohs, might prevent a second violation by building the great Sarcophagus at Giza which Dr. Reisner has found empty—and placing the body of his mother elsewhere in secret tomb.

For this supposed resting place of the ancient Queen, Dr. Reisner is now searching. The quest is centred about the glittering Sarcophagus which bears the name of the Queen, on the chance that King Cheops might have chosen to seal the mummy in a recess of the shaft.

With live, strong committees chosen last evening, and backed by unusual enthusiasm the Fair this year promises to be the biggest and best this district has ever seen. The Board's activities will commence on June 3rd and when the usual June races will be held and some splendid entries will feature this event.

The annual exhibition promises all kinds of thrills with the thousands of dollars worth of attractions booked for the occasion. Basiles Band, internationally famous and familiar to radio fans, is one of the big band leaders, Barney Demarest with his marvellous troupe of equestrians in which the fast bait mills track will be used, the Stubblefields acrobats, Hugo with his daredevil dive from a slender 90-foot ladder, Cherbin who stands upon the loop on his cycle dives through a sea of flames.

On the last day of the fair the professional auto races which have thrilled thousands in the big cities of the States will be run and promise to be a marvellous wind-up to a fair which will be handed down in history as one of the most ambitious undertakings any organization in Ontario has sponsored.

35 CENTS DOZEN FOR FRESH EGGS

"I see in the paper it cost one cent a day to keep 'chickens', why you ask 35 cents a dozen for eggs when each 'chicken' lays a egg a day?" "Would better learn more about the hens habits and you'll find they don't lay an egg a day". So argued a good farmer's wife and a native of Jerusalem over a basket of eggs on the market this morning and in the end the eggs sold at just the price originally asked, 35 cents, the lowest figure they have reached this year. The hens concerned in lay very freely by two weeks ago and eggs are much more plentiful than usual this time of year which accounts for the weekly decreasing price on the local market. Butter remains high selling at 45 cents a pound, the same price as was asked at Christmas time. "It is not likely to go down until the pastures are open again and feed is very high" one of the vendors stated.

Chickens sold at from 25 cents to $1.35 each and ceram at 30 cents a pint.

POTATOES UP

On the outside market produce sold slightly higher than last week, potatoes having taken a fifty cent jump selling to day at 82 a bag. Apples sold at from $1 to $1.25 a bush., Onions 5c a lb. and cooking varieties and spies of first-quality at 75 cents a peck.

Beef sold from 22 to 28 cents a pound and beef by from 14 cents 1022 cents a pound, some of the cheaper cuts at 10 cents a pound.

Four six weeks old collie pups were offered at $2.50 and it was with difficulty many a mother dragged fearful children past the wriggling quartette. "I want one mother" each sobbed and sent longing glances at the pretty little creatures.

NOTED DIVINE HERE TOMORROW

Of special interest to Belleville folks is the visit tomorrow of Rev. David Watson, A. B., D., who comes for the Sunday from Trinity United Church, Peterboro, to our city. Mr. Wark is an old Albert College graduate and here married one of our local young ladies in the person of Miss Louie Mallory, daughter of the late Burnham Mallory, ex-County Treasurer.

Serving in the Methodist ministry at points in western Ontario and in Nfld. land, and as associate pastor with Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies in the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, a few years ago

FALLS ARE TRICKY SAYS COMEDIAN LOOKING OVER

Niagara Falls, N.Y., March 5.—A flow of water over a small section of the American Falls, near Luna Island, was held in check for a short time today while a barge steel chest was suspended partly over the brink and Ed Wynn, famous Broadway comedian, stood up in the chest and peered over the edge of the Falls to the jagged rocks below. The stunt was the climax of a screen comedy that Wynn has been making. Wynn was pale and nervous as he clambered out of the chest back to dry land after the director in charge had declared the scene perfected. "Never again for me," said the comedian, wiping perspiration from his face, "these Falls are tricky."

RESCUED FORTY MEN FROM FIRE SWEPT STEAMER

Another Tale of Heroism Added to Annals of the Sea

STORM RAGING

Flames Forced Sailors Into Storm Tossed Life Boats

New York, N.Y., March 5. new tale of heroism was added to the annals of the sea today in the rescue without incident of the crew of forty of the fire-swept Spanish freighter, Cabo Hatteras, between Fire Island and Montauk Point, 150 miles off New York. It was the Cabo Torres, a sister ship of the doomed vessel that emerged unheralded from the blackness of the night to range itself alongside the burning ship when the nearest aid was believed miles away.

How Captain Zaldes and his crew were picked up from their storm tossed lifeboats after they had abandoned their ship following a fire in the engine room which they were without means of extinguishing, was tersely told in a radio message from the Cabo Torres. The Captain of the latter said he was standing by to tow the Cabo Hatteras," but that heavy seas prevented this from being done.

Details of the cause and extent of the fire are unknown. It was thought probable that the resultant blaze might have disarranged the power or electrical equipment so as to cause the blaze.

FINE ACTING BY THURLOW CLUB

Young People From Eighth Line Put on Snappy Play

Bright, witty and splendidly acted, "Home Came Ted" put on by the Maple Leaf Club in the Eighth Concession of Thurlow, proved a brilliant success and was thoroughly appreciated by the capacity audiences which assembled in the Tabernacle Church lecture room last night.

The young people taking part had the happy knack so necessary to good acting, living the life of those they impersonated and each entered whole-heartedly into the play. Each showed considerable histrionic talent and each spoke with the assurance of trained elocutionists while endued with the right pipe required in a splendid offering reflecting greatest credit upon the young people responsible for the production.

The evening opened with piano solo, Miss Helen Dafoe; reading, Miss Bird and vocal selection by Gardner Duff. Mr. Charles Hanna, ex-M. P., very capably filled the chair of chairman.

The action of the play centred about the plot of Ira Stone to gain control of the local factory which was the life of the small town in which it was situated and when Ted the heir to the controlling interest in the factory, failed to show up for the meeting of the board of directors, his pay knew no bounds. However, everything turned out well and all was cleared up and everyone was happy.

As Sam Stone, Mr. Ralph Sills did some nice work actbs the part of an Irish lad to perfection. Miss E. Wells as the lovely Diana and Miss A. Sills a quaint and delightful old maid, Miss Leonaberry; Mr. H. Palmer was excellent as the villain, Ira Stone, and Miss C. Sills made a peppy negro maid, Aunt Jubilee; Mr. G. Sills was good as Mr. Maine and Mr. C. Rae excellent as Jim Ryker; Miss H. Sills made a charming Molly, while Mrs. Bennett made a real hit as Henrietta, an Hawaiian widow. Mr. B. Sills as the hero Ted, brought down the house. Mr. H. Cranston acted Elsie perfectly and Mr. R. Lott made a splendid Senator in the part of Senator M. Coffee.

manufacturers of automobiles fighting accessories will not be annoyed by the legislation. All that will be necessary will be to produce a lamp that will meet with the approval of the minister of highways and the regulation will make the noise. It is apparent that Hon. Mr. Henry has given the problem of high-way-traffic no little thought, and it will be interesting to watch the results that people from the new regulations he has ordered. The speed limit of 35 miles an hour he believes will make for greater safety on the highways than the old limit of twenty-five miles an hour. There is no suggestion, however, that the policy of fining automobilists who drive slowly is to be borrowed from the books of our cousins across the border. And the motorist who jogs along on a crowded highway is re-cognized as being almost as great a menace to traffic as is the lad with the heavy accelerator foot who considers a speed limit only in the light of something to be broken. The abandonment of the regulation which declares a speed of 40 miles an hour comes under the head of reckless driving is the outstory of changing conditions. Many will agree with Hon. Mr. Henry that more carelessness is involved in a speed of 35 miles an hour in congested traffic than in a 40-mile rate on a clear stretch of concrete.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

While the weak bend with strongest backing.
Is Pride, the never-failing vice of fools.
POPE.

A STIFF PRICE

A Woodstock, Labor member of parliament, for Centre Wimbpre, is the political correspondent of a Winnipeg paper called the News. In this column of correspondence we find this interesting bit of gossip: "It would be of interest if the public could know on what grounds think-to-overthrow are handed out. Gossip about the corridors credits that one individual contributed $50,000 to party funds at the last election, and he has now been appointed a lieutenant - governor." Is there any connection between his generosity to his party and his appointment?

A MODERN WONDER

Two men, one in London, England, and the other in San Francisco, held a conversation by telephone a few days ago, and heard each other quite clearly. The distance in attempting over 7,000 miles. Conversations between London and New York are now quite frequent, but all long-distance records were broken by the talk between London and Sub Francisco.

It is not expected, however, that the new record will remain for long unbroken. The time will probably come when it will be possible to hold a conversation between any place in any part of the world and any another place. Who knows but some day it will be possible to talk with Mars assuming that there is anybody in Mars to do the talking and the listening from that end?

SPRING FEVER

A New York physician has created or discovered a scientific name for a very old disease. It is "neurasthenia," a combination of two Greek words meaning "nerve" and "lose," and is used to describe a psychological ill which creates a feeling of panic in the presence of spring.

The symptomic it appears, is not pity worthy inflicted for mental labor, but like the person who has a deadly fear of standing on heights of being trapped in closets or walking through cemeteries at night, he is prey to a curious "dread of unknown shadowy ills that may befall him if he works."

Fastening a fancy name on laziness will probably have no marked effect on the public's attitude toward the bodies "from" is a shorter, more expressive and more memorable description, than psychosis. The rest of the world, which has its own periods of unrestless-ness over work, will still be inclined to attribute any permanent condition of that sort to what is known, however, inaccurately, as shiftlessness. It will require more than a Greek name to upset the idea that laziness is voluntary and as far as fear is concerned it will take time to wipe out the force of the old saying, "He isn't afraid of work-why, he can lie down beside it any day and go sound asleep."

MOTOR LAWS

If necessity is the mother of invention invention is the procreator of new laws. Demonstrate yesterday told of legislation which makes it compulsory for cars equipped with four-wheel brakes to have a special light at the rear-end of approaching following traffic of that fact. The light will serve as a warning, of course, that the four-wheel brakes make it possible for the car to stop quickly and the legislation is designed to prevent rear-end collisions. As practically all of the new models have four-wheel brakes,

The Nursing Mother

Often Finds Herself Weak and Feeling Worn Out.

The nursing mother more than any other woman needs rich blood and plenty of it. The demands upon her health are many and severe. Household duties and the care of her children exact heavy toll, while hurried meals, broken rest and indoor living tend to weaken her. No wonder she is often indisposed through weakness, headaches, backaches and nervousness. In this condition the blood will always be found weak and watery, and relief will come only through enriching the blood. For this purpose Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the best blood-making tonic known. Through their use many weak, ailing wives and mothers have found new health and strength. As an example of this Mrs. Sarah Cortes, Ellesmere, N.B., says:—"While nursing my baby I became run-down, very weak and nervous. My head ached all the time and I was not able to do my work. I had often read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began using them, and what a blessing they proved. Before I had used a half dozen boxes I felt like a new person, and by their continued use for a while I was entirely restored to my former health and strength. I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to everyone suffering as I did."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MARCH WEATHER DANGEROUS TO BABY

On Account of the Very Sudden Changes in Temperature.

Our Canadian March weather—one day bright, but sloppy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep the little ones indoors. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which reach their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better, brighter days come along, a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach sweet and his bowels working regularly.

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and thus relieve colds and simple fevers and keep baby fit. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

UNIQUE CLEANING OFFER

Sprague's, Cleaners and Pressers, have taken a new step locally towards effecting a saving of considerable importance for citizens of this city and district in their cleaning and pressing bills. During the month of February, this firm offered to clean and press any gent's suit or overcoat, lady's suit, gown, long coat or dress for just one dollar—considerably less than the usual price. Now Sprague's have extended the time limit for the offer. During March also, this special rate of $1.00 on ladies' and gents' cleaning will apply—a most unusual offer made possible with the extra volume of business being done by Sprague's through this offer—and it's a mighty profitable plan for every patron of the cleaning and pressing house. Years of experience in this line have given Sprague's work a high reputation. It is, in short, the best work at lower prices. A phone call to 292 will bring a driver promptly to your door.

Johnson, French Manager of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company of Kingston, gave a splendid address on "Life Insurance As a Profession." PRESENT EMBLEMS

At Albert College tonight Dr. G. S. Stobbs, president of the Albert College Alumni Association, will present emblems to the members of the Albert College hockey teams who have won particular distinction throughout the season. ROTARY

The boys now-a-days are different than they used to be. A boy now days knows more than his grandfather did! The Rotarians have their hands full with the growing boy and their work for him.

We must realize that in dealing with boys of tomorrow we have a different being than the boys of yesterday. The Rotary will become a great power if we can control the boy of today. The biggest job you have today is to be a good father.

No Crippled Children

The ideal of this organization is to control the world so that there is no crippled children in our mid-t, not only to take care of crippled children. We Rotarians are trying to teach the boys to dream. So I say to you to night that I believe the Rotary is becoming a world power since it is inculcating its ideas into boyhood.

Last year in the U. S. the Rotary Clubs received to health 5661 boys and girls. That's physical health. Rotarians, let's begin to build our boys from the inside out, not outside in.

The speaker went on to say that 23 boys and girls had committed suicide in Syracuse high school and adjacent. The Rotarians ought to stand to help the boys and girls of tomorrow to do something and to be something. The ideals of Rotary were unheard of 30 years ago. Unfair competition, cut throat competition there was. If a man has the wrong motive, no matter what he achieves, the whole structure is tinged. I'm vitally concerned that the business of tomorrow will stand investigation. There is no room for dishonest business men in Rotary. I tell you tonight a new day has come in the business men in the world. We have 320,000 men in 56 nations of the globe living the Rotary ideal.

Detroit, Mich., March 5.—Hudson Motor Car Company has entered on the largest manufacturing schedule for February is in entire history with a daily output of 500 Hudsons and 700 Essex.

Since the introduction of new cars the first of the year, distributors and dealers have been urgent in asking for additional shipments. As cars have arrived into the hands of retail buyers this demand has increased consistently. As a result all tents, schedules for production have been sharply advanced.

In January 12,000 Essex cars were shipped. The new Hudson Supersixes ran into production February 1. GRADS SCORE LUCKY WIN OVER LONDON

Toronto, March 5.—Varsity Grads defeated London Twelfth Battery, 4 to 3, in the Allan Cup elimination series game at the Arena Gardens last night, but only Lou Hudson stood between the O.H.A. senior champions and their first defeat of the season.

The Gunners went into the last period leading 3 to 1 after outskating and outplaying the Grads team in the first and second, but within four minutes after the final chukker opened Hudson got one of his fast and daring rushes placed the puck between Reynolds and Bouchard, jumped through and recovered the puck, the goal that made the count 3 to 2.

Then after Trottier had tied the score Hudson crowned his effort when he flipped in a rebound off Detcher's shot which was brilliantly stopped by Gordon. Hudson again repeated from end to end to beat defence de come up he did for his first goal and drive the puck past the Gunners' net guardian.

TWEED WIN HONORS IN HASTINGS LEAGUE

Peterboro, March 5.—Tweed won the Hastings-Timmons Cup, emblematic of the championship of the Hastings County Hockey League, by defeating Stirling here in the final game by two goals to one in a game that went ten minutes overtime. This marks the second year that the Tweed team has captured league title, the winning goal was of the fluky variety. George Geraldi took a gallop swing at a loose puck on the blue line, and it hit a Stirling player and glanced into the net out of reach of Hulin. However the victory was earned, the Tweed team employing many chances to score the winning goal. Teams:

Tweed—Goal, Brown; defence, Minogue and Quinn; centre, Howden; wings, G. Geraldi and M. Geraldi; subs., A. Geraldi and Hansford.

Stirling—Goal, Hulin; defence, H. Ingram and Tulloch; centre, J. Ackers; wings, Wallace and Scott; subs., F. Ingram and H. Ackers.

Wives Take a Fling at Flirting Husbands

Not more laziness of the body—but mental and moral laziness. Understand that we're not discussing those forms of laziness which arise from physical disorder—improper functioning of the glands, toxemia. There are such forms of laziness and they require medical attention. But there are other forms, which all of us know, which do not have their root in any physical ill.

Here's Marie, for example. Laziness goes all through the warp and woof of Marie's being, like a shoddy thread through a fine tissue. She admires the excellent things of life—brisk, active bodies, strong, alert minds—and she's always saying that she will be brisk and alert herself. She's always making tremendous starts. Housecleaning her bedroom—picking out a fine book to read—deciding to do her daily dozen in the morning—starts a correspondence course on dietitancy. But always, as soon as the first enthusiasm has cooled, she lags in her tracks. The bedroom is never quite finished—always there's an untidy clutter in the closet. She reads the first two chapters in a book, does the first three lessons by mail, exercises for three days running—then stops. Lazy.

Here's her letter. It's a desperate letter—a veritable cry from the pit. What answer would you give to it?

DEAR ELSIE:

Can you help me? I am a victim of laziness. Man could accomplish wonders were it not for laziness. A thousand times I have told myself that I will no longer be lazy—that I will exert myself. For within me I feel that without this evil, I would be master of myself and everything.

Again and again I have attempted to rid myself of the curse of mankind. Again and again I resolve to start afresh, to work myself up by ridding myself of my lazy habits. I laugh at laziness one day, telling myself that I will not be ruled by it. Day's down in my heart, however, I know that I cannot rid myself of my curse.

I give in to laziness at the least resistance. I want to fight to accomplish something big in life, but my laziness overcondition, so ambitions.

MARIE.

There's only one thing in all the world that can rid you of laziness and that's YOUR OWN PRIDE. Some day you may become thoroughly ashamed of your own condition, so ashamed that you'll cringe with disgust, and when that day comes you'll begin to fight your way out.

"But I am ashamed now," you cry. Oh, no, you're not. "You're irritated—but you're 'not really' ashamed. In your secret heart you have a hundred excuses for your laziness. You say you were born that way—you call it a "curse"—you feel that God has fastened it on you and that it's up to Him to hand you its remedy on a silver platter. And so you soothe your own pangs.

But your theory is the bunk. God didn't pick on you nor will He perform a miracle to relieve you of your burden. You are no more burdened than other human beings. Everyone is born lazy. No one wants to work. Hard labor is as repulsive to the pitiest little girl next door as it is to you." Only she has too much pride to stump in her tracks. And your pride is fast asleep and snoring through its nose.

There's your number, Marie. And now that you know it, what are you going to do about it?

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Paris notes that hip-length coats are prominent and some of the latest models have large side pockets which stand away from the body of the coat, thus producing a marked "dare" effect.

A Paris authority reports the long sleeve is an established favorite, even for tea-dance frocks, but further remarks that short-sleeved frocks will be worn this spring and summer, but long sleeved models will be considered more correct, and some of the new sleeves are very elaborately trimmed.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

A TASTE OF BOHEMIA

Nina's apartment was as daring and colorful as her own personality. It was reached by a queer, greenish-blue door, bearing a brass knocker in the shape of a lion's head. Her living-room, or studio, as she preferred to call it, was hung with cheese-cloth dyed a bright orange. There were black divans and black and red cushions, and peacock feathers arranged in the shape of a fan over a big, empty fireplace, defying superstition as Nina defied convention.

A piano in one corner was used mainly for holding trays of cocktails. The chairs and tables were put to a similar use, and the guests generally sat on cushions on the floor, surrounded by cigarettes and ash-trays.

Nina worked hard in preparation for her guests, making innumerable sandwiches in her small kitchenette, squeezing lemons and oranges, but the fun brought the liquor and frequently the delicacies for a last supper for they al knew Nina's little way.

Around eleven o'clock, if no one had brought anything, she was in the habit of saying:

"Dear me, aren't we all famished? If I only had some mushrooms and some cheese, I could stir up the most heavenly dish. Tommy, won't you be a darling and run over to the delicatessen in the next block? Wait till I get my purse."

Usually Tommy, or Jimmy, or Jerry, as the case might be, gallantly declined to be reimbursed for his purchase, and somehow Nina never had exactly the right change to give them before they left.

Christine first heard of Henry Sanford in connection with this little ruse of Nina's

"Henry is the only one that ever call ed her bluff," one of Nina's friends confided to Christine. "My dear, he did it, actually, and he's a millionaire! Gosh, you should have seen her face when he took a dollar and seventy-five cents out of her two-dollar bill and gravely gave her twenty-five cents in change. I'll say Nina was game, though. She told him to keep to keep the quarter for a tip, and he laughed and did it. Of course, he sent her gorgeous orchids the next day."

Christine had remembered the name of Sanford, and when she came out Friday evening, Nina told her that she was expecting him that night.

"Oh, I am glad. I have always wanted to meet him."

Nina looked up from the bread she was cutting and made a significant grimace.

"You are not the only little girl who has an eye out for Sandy. He hasn't a thing to do but spend money, and he amuses himself by backing theatrical productions, especially plays by new talent. I think he likes to be spoken of as a patron of the arts, but I'll tell you privately that he doesn't know whether Rembrandt is a cheese or a painter."

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Forgive me if I sound like a fool, but what I am going to tell you is, oh, the truth—the sad truth.

I am married and have two children. Up to last year things were going along nicely, but then my husband's brother came to live with us. He was sick with the flu and I had to take care of him for a few months. Before he left our house I had learned to love him as I have never loved anyone before. He told me that he loved me, too.

He is married and has two children, but does not live with his wife. Now he has gone to another city to live and every time he comes to see us I have all I can do to keep from going away with him.

Oh! Annie Laurie, don't tell me to forget him. I simply can't do it.

HEART-BROKEN WIFE.

HEARTBROKEN WIFE: No, my friend, I won't tell you to give him up. I'll let you come to the realization that this is the only sensible thing to do, yourself. If you went off with this man you would find your lot the same as the hundreds of other women who have taken a chance. You would find yourself miserable and neglected and unhappy. And perhaps what seems strangest of all, you would find what you considered love with all its romantic trappings, nothing but a tarnished dream.

BELLE THEATRE

Hilarity distinguishes "The Nervous Wreck," Al Christie's latest laugh special featuring Harrison Ford, Phyllis Haver, Chester Conklin, Marc Susin and Hobart Bosworth, which will be on view at the Belle theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. Ford, well known romantic leading man, proved himself a fine comedian by his performance in "Up in Mabel's Room." This was one of Ford's first opportunities at comedy, and it is said it offered him a small part in which the comedy possibilities contained in the title role of "The Nervous Wreck."

Phyllis Haver, a graduate from the Sennett comedy school, is one of the brightest feminine lights in the feature comedy field, and the same may be said of Conklin and Mark Susin are synonymous with laughter.

The screen rights of "The Nervous Wreck" were purchased at heavy expense and against high pressure bidding. The picture combines clearly the old celebrated Owen Davis play, but presents the story on a far grander scale, the locality of presenting shifting to the plains, Arizona cattle ranches and down in the desert, met with in staging the play, was nothing to the Christie forces, who actually produced the western farce just as it was described in the original best seller by E. J. Rath.

REGENT THEATRE

Eisfeld's Follies seem to be a school for motion picture training, judging from the cast of First National's "Second Hand Blonde," at the Regent Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Dorothy Mackaill has the featured position, and Lowell and Louise Brown has the second feminine lead. Both are former Follies dancers.

Miss Mackaill secured her first American engagement with the Follies just after she came to America from England several years ago. She graduated from the Follies to pictures and is now one of First National's most popular feminine players.

Miss Brooks started her career with the school of Ruth St. Dennis dancers and toured the United States with them for two years. Then she danced in George White's "Scandals" and at the Cafe de Paris in London and later became a sensational dancing success in "Louie the 14th" and the "Follies."

The brilliant pair of ex-Follies dancers are seen as Coney Island entertainers in "Just Another Blonde." Jack Mulhall has the featured male role in "Just Another Blonde" and William Collier, Jr., has the second male lead.

For the second time only in three years a gull has been known to fly across the Atlantic Ocean. The bird was marked with an identification ring in the Faroe Islands in Jun. 1924, and discovered in Labrador in the October of 1925.

TILLIE THE TOILER—

CITY CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY Y'S MEN FROM BELL TELEPHONE BOYS

The City League was wound up in real "big league" style last evening before a banged throng of 250 fans. The Y's Men are champions and will retain the honors for another year until the title is wrested from them.

It was a real game, lightning fast from start to finish and the crowd were well satisfied with the exhibition given. The winner was on top of a 3-1 score at the final bell and their victory was well-earned and justly deserved.

The Y's Men's Club is a new entrant in local sport circles but they have made a auspicious start and gained a host of friends by clean play and gentlemanship that has predominated in every game in which they have taken part this year.

The Y's Men won the game on their energy and th Bell Telephone boys acknowledged after the game that they were beaten by a better team. The winners certainly dominated the play and the foul-bunk marvelled at the exhibition that they put up. The Bell Telephone tried hard and gave their best but they were up against a superior aggregation.

Called through time after time

The wire and cable men who were also new to Belleville fans have improved by leaps and bounds this season and it was an entirely rejuvenated team that stacked up against the Y's Men earlier in the season.

One goal was disputed when in the third period the Y's Men's Club offered that Duval knocked the puck in with his hand in a melee and from the penalty box it looked as though he did. However, the referee and judge of play claimed they didn't see it and it was allowed. Again in the third period one of the Y's Men's players drifted one in which looked as though it had got past Bickford but hit the post and bounced out again but the goal judge had left his post and it was not allowed.

The game was fast and quite a little rough stuff crept in and there was some that escaped the eye of the officials but the majority of the offenders were given a rest in the penalty box.

It was the sort of game where no one player could be picked as a star. Every man on both teams worked hard and combination play prevailed.

Frank Symons was subjected to a severe rub but he stuck to his guns well and delivered the goods. The rest of the boys who took part fought valiantly.

The Bell Telephone boys threatened to tie things up in the last few minutes and Nurse was bombarded and the Y's Men's net had some narrow escapes.

Just when the excitement was at its height the lights were suddenly switched off and for a few minutes it appeared as though the game might not proceed. The officials at the arena claimed the teams had completed their allotted limit however, a little persuasion resulted in having them turned back on again for the remaining five minutes.

For the first 15 minutes the teams went scoreless but it remained for Vern Weir to dint the heap and he banged in from a melee. This was the only tally of the goalkeeper.

In the second period Symons counted in an enich Bickard unaware and he slapped in a rebound which the goalie just that Belleville has had in years.

A banquet will be held in the Y.M.C.A. next Friday evening at 6.30 when all of the players who have played in the City and Industrial Leagues will get together. Tickets have been placed in the hands of the various team managers and it is desired that as many as possible attend.

THE BURLESQUE

As was predicted the Burlesque game between the Kix-nix Club and the Reckless Rats was a high producer "Bush" Barrett, manager of the Rats was unable to be present but his team was on deck.

The display given by the two crack aggregations was a scream, and lent a touch of color to make the evening a success. Adorned in such rament as clown costumes, old overalls, straw hats multi-colored uniforms etc., they certainly presented an amazing appearance a tennis ball was substituted for a puck in view of the accident the boys were a little afraid of carrying home cracked ribs or broken necks. Nobody has as yet been able to figure out the score but however, that matters not in the wild scramble that took place.

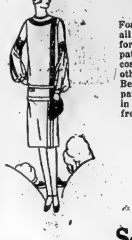

"Al" Hirbon appeared with a lacrosse stick to play hockey and his display of the great Indian game was marvellous to behold. "Stan" Kerr with his phenomenal display held the attention of the crowd and had "pro" scouts been present he would surely be giving up his job to join the pro ranks.

Earl Foster as "Doc" Sawbones drew more than one laugh.

Fred Bunce came out of the fray with a big black eye but no one has been able to discover where he got it as he wasn't near the puck at all.

George Griffin was the mystery man and it wasn't until the final whistle that all his play and gave the fans a new innovation in the Camel Walk and Charleston combined.

The Super-Six Principle freed to the Limit —

5-Passenger Sedan $2580

and Beauty to Match Its Matchless Performance

The body styles created for the New Hudson Super-Six have shared equally with its brilliant new performance in its enormously successful reception everywhere shown. At the New York Show and all subsequent Automobile Shows the Hudson-Essex exhibit has outdrawn any other by two and three to one. It is the high point of the year in interest, discussion and sales activity.

The new Hudson bodies are of such variety and beauty as will satisfy all demands for luxury and exclusiveness as well as comfort and price advantage.

The Super-Six principle, now freed to the limit, delivers its power with the smooth flow of an electric motor. Throughout the car is engineered to make full use of its ounces of energy. And so the Super-Six goes under way faster and with a total absence of the violent lunge usual to high-powered cars.

It glides into motion from a standing start. Even at high you always have untapped reserves of power for quick acceleration. Four-wheel brakes just as softly and effectively check your speeds.

In motor and chassis, both new, the Hudson Super-Six reaches new heights of speed, safety, comfort and performance.

In the Essex Super-Six—sharing all these advantages in comfort, safety, quality, and unequalled motor efficiency—there are five new bodies—entirely new in appearance, beauty, smart upholstery and appointment.

CITY BATTERY MEETS Y'S MEN

On Tuesday evening fans will be given an opportunity to compare the class of hockey as played in the Industrial League with that of the City League. The City Battery, winners in the former circuit claim they can trim the Y's Men and the argument will be settled at the arena on Tuesday night commencing at 8 o'clock.

The Y's Men with a team of veterans will be stacking up against an aggregation of younger players most of whom have played in Junior O.H.A. company.

This should be a real game and it is a certainty that those who witnessed last night's game will be on deck on Tuesday night for the latest League fixture.

Those who have not taken in any of these Industrial games have been missing a treat as fast hockey has been in order.

FRANKFORD BOYS TRIM THE PRESS

The Intelligencer pucksters lost a hard fought game to the Frankford Seniors last evening at the village by a score of 6-1. The home team were the best throughout and the newspaper boys from all reports did exceptionally well to hold the score down to the low figure. The Frankford team have improved wonderfully this year and under the able tuelage of Mr. M. M. Meachem, up to the present, have won eight and lost four games against fast teams. They expect to enter the Hastings County League next year.

The Frankfordors literally bombarded the Belleville net and had it not been for the superhuman work of young "Pete" Latchford the score would have been tripled. He was hit in the head, hands, pads and arms but he didn't flinch an inch and played a marvellous game.

A packed house greeted the teams in the new Frankford arenas and the spectators claimed it was the best game played there this season. The home team were heavier and knew their own rink to perfection, but the Intelligencer boys put up the class of hockey that was applause from the home folks.

The visitors were augmented by the services of Jack Rooney of the Intermediates and Martin of the Tigers but the rest were the regular players who have taken part all season.

Jack Smith gave a great exhibition of back-checking and skating and was almost "all in" when time was called. He was the best of the printers' team.

After twelve minutes of play Lawrence drove one in from a skirmish. The play was fast throughout but rough. Munn got the second fully shortly before time. Jack Smith opened the second stanza by getting a hard-earned goal. Bill O'Malley and Lawrence scored for Frankford in the third period. Rooney had some tough luck when he hit the post.

Jack Arnott refereed a fast game and checking on everything closely. The visitors were given a supper after the game.

JOHN ST. INTS. WIN CH. LEAGUE

John St. Intermediate hockey team won the championship of the Church League by handing the St. Andrew's boys a 5-2 trimming at the arena last evening. The game was fast throughout and there is some smart material for next year's Junior team from among the ranks of these boys.

"Vic" White and G. Miles both turned in smart games for the winners. J. Byrnes and D. Anderson were probably the best of the winners. It was a fine game and well-played. "Pick" Arnott

SINICAL SADIE SEES

LOST—In a rut on Front Street, Whom? Why, Alderman Cherry!

What a fine looking lot of police Belleville can boast. Sinical Sadie says they are quite "arresting."

Woman—(after trying in vain to understand all the foreign music she tried to tell us at the Hart House Quartette Concert)—"Well, I'll take your word for it!"

Premier King Holidaying in States
Sinical Sadie says the Ottawa Journal "made him tired." Or it may be he is like the spoiled child who says, "If you won't play my way I'm going home."

Oh, Mr. Cherry, while the rain Have pinched for you much strife,— My private grudge comes from the fact You've shortened much my life.

"Cherry Ripe"
Sinical Sadie says Perhaps she will have her revenge when the robins return.

A Sermon in Song
"She is only a girl that men forget, Just a toy to enjoy for awhile, But when men settle down they always get An old-fashioned girl with an old-fashioned smile!"

The Spirit of Bargaining
A deaf old lady of obvious Scotch lineage entered a shop to make some purchases. "What's the price of this silk?" she asked of the young shopman. "Seven shillings," was the reply. "Seventeen shillings!" she exclaimed, "I'll get yon silk cheaper." "Only seven shillings, ma'am, is the price of the silk," replied the honest shopman. "Oh, seven shillings," said the lady sharply. "Well, I'll get you five!"

First Spring Thoughts
I guess it's pretty early To be thinking of a kite, Or playing ball or marbles "Cause it got so warm last night; But still how can you help it? In the very midst of snow The blowing of the south wind Makes a fellow's memory slow.

I feel it in my fingers And I guess it's not the frost; I want to catch a baseball That some other fellow's tossed. The knees all right for sledding, But I want to snatch a fly, Right off the bat a-sailing 'Neath an open April sky.

But, golly, think of April Being weeks and weeks away! Tonight again it's freezing, So the morning papers say. The airman's all right for skating When it's ice from rim to rim, But today I'll say I'm longing Just to take a little swim.

JUST IN PASSING

INCENTIVE

Forenoon and afternoon and night— And day is gone.— So after a span of time there is Twixt dawn and evening.

Youth—Middle life—Old age.— And life is past.— So live each day that God shall say, "Well done!" at last.

RULES FOR THE MARRIED

Eight rules for a happy married life were compiled the other day by a Lutheran minister in Brighton. How nice if he could make the people of his own country the country of divorced parties! Here they are as follows:
1. Overlook each other's faults.
2. Continue courtship.
3. Do not let the sun go down upon a disagreement.
4. Exert loving obedience.
5. Remember that a child's rightful heritage is the interest of both father and mother.
6. Consider your financial problems with mutual confidence.
7. Remember that your first allegiance is to your husband and wife.
8. Pray together and play together.

CATS

Suppose sold to me the other day

"You have written so much in favor of the dog, why don't you say a word for the cat?" Well, I like cats—the furry kind I mean. There is a beauty comes to me on very often. He gets up on the window ledge and taps on the pane to be let in. Now the cat is not a particularly affectionate animal. It has a warm heart when in the mood, but it is so independent. It cannot be bothered sometimes at all. We may get a glad greeting on our return home, it purrs and rubs against us, but in a few minutes or many see it on the shoulders of the delivery boy arriving his luck with the same satisfaction.

Is there any animal so thoroughly enjoys a lesson as a cat or as resentful? When it stretches itself out on a sunny spot, or when it curls into a ball is in no-ones way, grave and solemn. Of course for usefulness it cannot be compared to a dog, for a cat's only accomplishment is to catch mice. But they are often a joy and many are the tales told of their faithfulness. One concerns a cat that was carried by bees around the northeast corner of Scotland to a place over 50 miles distant. Nine months later, week and reunited, the cat came back, having crossed mountains and lochs it had never before seen!

Any animal helps develop a child's character and a childhood cheated of its birthright of pets is not to be thought of. A little goldfish in a bowl is better than none at all.

The Irony of Love
By Charles Garvice

Maude wondered for whom the jeweler had been bought—for the only article which could be described by that designation, which Rafe once were the pearl studs and the ordinary plain gold sleeve links. She had not long to wait for the information, for when the dessert was on the table the door opened and Eva came in. Her eyes were bright as stars, her lips were twisted in the effort to conceal a smile, and she walked as on a particularly airy tee-down; and as she went up to her place beside Rafe, she shot him a little glance of mutual confidence; they read down her eyes, as if she and he had a secret between them.

I wonder why a feller
Always wants a different thing
From what he's got—the winter
Is as jolly as the spring.
At least I'll say it's nearly
Just as jolly—but I think
There's more fun on the diamond
Than the finest kind of rink.

"What is that on your neck, Eva?" asked Maude.

"I told you Auntie Maude would see it the very first instant," she cried, and she slipped from her chair and ran round to Maude. "Aren't they beautiful, Auntie? I found it on my dressing table this evening. Look at the case! Isn't it exquisite of him?"

Maude examined the necklace, and, smiling, raised her brows as she glanced at Rafe, who was grinning with delight at the child's ecstatic pleasure.

"Yes, they are very beautiful, Eva," she said. "You must take great care of them, for they are very beautiful pearls—"

"Yes, you'd better take care of them, young baby," cut in Sir Ives, as the child ran round to him, "for they cost me at least a dozen of a lot of money. That's your idea of a present to a kid, eh, Stranleyn?" he added to Rafe, with a shake of the head.

"Oh, she'll take care of 'em right enough," said Rafe easily. "Of course, she'll only wear them up to twelve o'clock at night! after that they vanish, like the carriage and the rest of it, eh, Cinderella?"

"I'll take the greatest care," dear Blondeau," Eva assured him, and as she went round to her place she stopped beside him, and, putting her arm round his neck, held up her soft little face. "Do bend down, Blunderbore, you're so high up, and I want to give you a kiss. I say, many, I Aunt Maude—I mean, it's quite proper, isn't it? You would if he'd given you such a beautiful present."

"Yes, I think it's the least you can do," said Maude, in her serene way, but to her annoyance and consternation, she had to fight down the color which threatened to rise to her face. But, though she did not blush, Rafe's face was red as he bent and kissed the child, and he wondered, and whether Maude would have kissed him, but what she would, have said if he had bought one of the costly things he had longed to buy.

HEADACHES

In some occult fashion, headaches are often relieved by treatment of the feet. A pain at the back of the neck may sometimes be relieved by the application of a very hot sponge to the nape, just where the nerves gather at the root of the brain. It may just as often be obviated by immersion of the feet in very hot water. This seems to draw blood from the head, and leave it cool. Especially is this plan efficacious after a morning spent over a kitchen fire. Again, a hot water bottle to the feet will give relief—especially if they feel cold, which they frequently do when a headache from nerve exhaustion is our portion. Gentle friction of the scalp of the head is another undoubted method of giving relief to a nervous head. Let some one gently part the hair and comb it back, passing the fingers along the scalp at the same time.

HUMAN HEARTS

There are devoted hearts, whose perfume rises
Like a sweet evening-psalm;
And gentle hearts that, bruised, still make a balm,
And thankful hearts that, like the fragrant flower
Or odor,
And shady hearts, most restful, deep and calm;
And simple hearts like daisies of the field;
And hearts like heliotropes,
So full of holy hopes
They e'ance turn their gaze away from God.
Flower-hearts or herb-hearts, creeping
In Heaven's large house there is room for all.

F. LANGBRIDGE.

THE ATHABASCA TRAIL

My life is gliding downwards. It speeds from sea to sea;
When it shoots the last dark canyon to the plains of Fairway;
But while its stream is running through the years that are to be,
The mighty voice of Canada will ever sing to me.

I shall hear the roar of rivers where the rapids foam and tear,
I shall smell the virgin upland with the bal-sam-balm air,
And shall dream that I am riding down the winding, woody vale;
With the packer and the packhorse on the Athabasca trail.

I have passed the warden cities of the Eastern water-gate,
Where the hero and the martyr laid the corner-stone of State.
This habitant, coureur-des-bois, and hardy voyageur—
Where lives a breed more strong at need to venture or endure?
I have seen the gorge of Erie where the roaring waters run,
I have crossed the Inland Ocean lying golden in the sun.
But the last and best and sweetest is the Ark ide by hill and dale,
With the packer and the packhorse on the Athabasca trail.

I'll dream again of fields of grain that stretch from sky to sky,
And the little prairie hamlets where the cars go roaring by,
Wooden hamlets as I saw them—noble cities still to be
To girdle stately Canada with green from sea to sea;
Mother of a mighty manhood, land of glamour and of hope,
From the Eastward seaboard Islands to the sunny Western slope.
Evermore my heart is with you, evermore till life shall fail,

—Arthur Conan Doyle.

LET ME TELL YOU!

Meat, to be used in making soup, should be placed in cold water and gradually brought to a boil.

A little borax should be added to the water in which sateen or any other cotton material with a glossy finish is cooked. The shiny surface will be retained much longer.

Haddock served with an egg sauce, or with curry sauce, or a cream sauce poured over it and baked en casserole, is very tasty. A nice salad is made from cold left-over fish.

Hay water is ruinous to real silk stockings, while to reduce the best results in washing, the rinsing must be thorough and the drying should be effected without wringing.

Stove pipe may be cleaned by placing a piece of zinc on the coals of a hot stove. The vapors arising from this will carry off the soot by chemical decomposition.

Scorched fabric can be restored if the threads are not injured. Wet the spots and expose the material to the sun. Repeat until the spots disappear.

PLAYED SCHEME FOR BOBBED HAIR

London, (By Mail).—A truly fantastic story was told the Paris police recently by a little twelve-year-old girl named Prarie, of Echelles, near Chambery.

She described how she had been stopped by bandits who demanded her money or her life.

Then, she said, they tried to cut off her hand. At that moment two soldiers appeared and the sailed to them to help. The bandits made off.

An extensive search of the countryside was made by police and village gers, who were unable to trace the men.

Then the story came out. The girl had invented the tale. Her parents refused to let her have her hair bobbed, so she cut her hair herself and wounded her hand in order to give an appearance of truth to her explanations.

Nerves on Edge

When the nerves go wrong everything is wrong.

The whole human body including each and every organ is dependent on the nervous system for energy and direction.

When nerve force becomes exhausted the organs fail in their functions and the result is discomfort and pain.

Headache, neuritis, sciatic-rheumatism are often developed. But there is also restlessness, nervousness, irritability, sleeplessness and depression and discouragement.

To regain health and vigor the nervous system must be restored by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

The use of narcotics and opiates only relieve pain at terrible expense to the nervous system.. Lasting relief can only come by feeding the nerves. Your system has failed to do this and it is therefore necessary to employ Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to bring the nervous system back to normal.

GENARO'S WIFE OPENS SUIT IN DIVORCE COURTS

New York, March 4.—Frankie Genaro, diminutive pugilist, went to sit by the family fireplace in the Bronx and draw contentedly while his pretty girl-wife rocked their two babies to sleep. But that was before the Black Bottom craze into vogue and ere Frankie had turned that gentleman pro fem blondes. That was back when Frankie could indulge desperately in such a diversion for himself.

Now things are quite different. Frankie, the scrapping champion of the ring, is cast as a school girl and later made his wife, have been separated for several months, although few of their friends knew about it. They entered a separation agreement whereby Frankie was to pay $50 a week for the support of his children.

In the meantime Frankie lost his punch, on the experts say, and his sighting eye became glazed from too much cabaret and night club training. He lost a decision to Newsboy Brown in the new border a month ago simply because he couldn't stand the pace.

And the loser's end of the encounter was nothing much to speak of. Frankie already far behind in payments to his wife under the agreement, could not liquidate his liabilities.

So today Mrs. Genaro, the former Gertie Carson, served the former Adonis' $1,000 back alimony, which she claims is still due for divorce. She said she would ran flyweight champion with a summons due her. Mrs. Genaro announced she name a pedestaled hostess of the Silver Slipper Club as co-respondent.

ate which he believes was used by Abraham Lincoln to split rails when he was a young woodchopper in Gentry, County, Indiana, was put on display at the courthouse here today by C. L. Vandeveer, deputy county collector.

The axe was accompanied by an affidavit stating Vandeveer inherited the relic from his grandmother, Mrs. Savala Vandeveer, who died here a few years ago at the age of 96. It was given to Mrs. Vandeveer by her husband's uncle, William Smith, in 1862. The affidavit states he and Lincoln made rails together in Indiana many years prior to that.

The relic tends to refute an old campaign yarn denying that the martyred president ever split rails.

A Mother, Her Child, and One Dime!

Easy to Keep the System Sweet at Any Age

Many people who never have to take laxative eat a candy cascaret now and then. Do you know why?

They have found that cascarets sweeten the whole system—brings an immediate change in the entire body. It prevents bodily chemistry from ever making one unnecessarily offensive to others. And what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Take after the lining of the bowels. Mineral oils leave a coating that the blood must carry through the pores. How much better to cascarets the system, and cause the bowels to expel everything by normal muscular contraction! To say nothing of the cleaner, sweeter condition that lasts for days—a wholesome condition that makes the use of deodorants quite unnecessary in January or July! Men and women whose years have brought on sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week is all the tonic they needed.

Cascara is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every druggist has for 10c and 25c.

"NOW I KNOW" A drug can be—and now has been—put into one with purgatives that leave even a child's system so acid you can detect it in the perspiration. A little cascara is a perfect sweetener, and my boy and I both love his candy.

PUBLIC preference chooses the inimitable Chrysler "60"

7-Bearing crankshaft (regular manufacture)
Oil filters
Air cleaner
4-Wheel hydraulic brakes
Full pressure lubrication
Manifold heat control
Levelizers front and rear

These, with many other features that cannot be imitated, have been embodied in the Chrysler "60" ever since its introduction.

These typical features of the Chrysler "60" were harmonized into the car's original engineering design—and are thus uniquely Chrysler—insuring that flashing speed of 60 miles and more per hour, enviable acceleration of 5 to 25 miles in 24 seconds, with the almost magical handling and operating ease that are typical of every Chrysler six endure throughout its long life.

It is for this fundamental reason that the Chrysler "60" has been accorded a public preference that has contributed substantially to Chrysler's dramatic rise from 27th to 4th place.

CANADA'S JUBILEE

Sixty years ago the Dominion of Canada was born, which makes this year Canada's Diamond Jubilee Year. It is a Jubilee Anniversary and it is also a Jubilee of Progress and good deeds accomplished. This year Canada excuses from the ordeal of laughing up after the wise Scout's "Be Prepared", be ready, confident and eager to help reap the harvest of prosperity for fourscore up.

Canada needs her boys today, every bit as much as she needed her sons in the dark days of 1914-18. Do not listen to the talk of a few who are in favor of the United States taking over Canada, the United States is a great country but Canada is still greater. Canada is ours today, tomorrow and forever. We shall never sell our greatest possession, left to us by our ancestors, who came here, fought an eight year war, severed all their family ties, and suffered untold hardships that we might have a country to be proud of.

Boy Scouts carry on, act as example for others, help to make our country greater day by day. Remember the Scout promise.

CONFEDERATION

July 1st marks the sixtieth birthday of the Dominion of Canada. The present is therefore a suitable time to review what Canada has done since confederation. Canada has more than sixty years of history, in fact it is nearly four hundred years since, in 1535, that the French came to the spot which is now the City of Quebec. As early as 1813 the English were on Hudson Bay and from their efforts Canada began to grow. When federation first took place in 1867 the new Dominion was composed of four provinces: Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Later the provinces of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, and the unorganized North-West Territories were added to it. From the North-West Territories were formed the three provinces: Manitoba (1870), Saskatchewan (1905), and Alberta (1905). Today Canada is the largest single state in the British Empire, and represents one third of its entire area.

Canada's boundaries are very simple—an ocean on the east, one on the north, one on the west and the United States on the south. This however, is only part of the story. The life of the country has in the past sixty years broadened out and a strong national spirit has matured. Canadian Literature, has come into its own, our schools are becoming more and more Canadianized, and there is existing a spirit of friendship for the Mother Country that is greater today than ever before.

CORRESPONDENTS WANTED

Mr. McQueen an ex-naval officer has agreed to help with the organizing, and to allow the use of his boats for training purposes, it is to be hoped that the formation of such a troop will be of interest to some of the older boys.

THE BOY WE WANT

A boy that is truthful and honest
And faithful and willing to work;
But we have not a place that we care to disgrace
With the boy that is ready to shirk.

Wanted—a boy you can tie to,
A boy that is trusty and true,
A boy that is good to old people,
And kind to the little ones, too.

A boy who is nice to the home folks
And pleasant to sister and brother;
A boy who will try when things go awry,
To be helpful to father and mother.

These are the boy we depend on—
Our hope for the future, and then
Grave problems of state and the world's work await Such boys when they grow to be men.

PURE WATER NECESSARY

Ottawa, March 4.—"Any city with a defective water system must be considered a backward city," stated Paul Hansen, consulting engineer of Chicago, last night at the annual banquet of the Canadian section of American water works association. Later Mr. Hansen said: "The most important and vital of all our necessities is pure water.

IS THE UNITED CHURCH TO HAVE WOMEN PASTORS

Montreal, Que., March 5. (C. P.—Shall the United Church of Canada make ecclesiastical history by admitting women to the ordained ministry of the lasting every Presbytery of the United United Church, is the question now agitating the mind of the Rev. Dr. D. L. Ritchie, Dean of the United Theological College, Montreal; President of the Conference of Montreal and Ottawa, and chairman of the Presbytery of Montreal, United Church of Canada, in an interview with the Montreal Daily Star.

The question was debated at the biennial meeting of the council of the United Church of Canada here last June when a resolution was carried to the effect that the matter should be sent out to all the Presbyteries of the United Church in the Dominion, for the opinion, and that all should report their findings at the next biennial meeting of the Church to be in Winnipeg in June, 1928.

Dr. N. Leslie Pidgeon, who was responsible at the General Council meeting last June for postponing the adoption of the amendment to the constitution of the United Church which sought to open the door to permit the entry of women into the ministry said: "I still think that the entry of women into the ministry wouldn't strengthen the church."

Rev. Dr. J. W. G. Ward of Emmanuel Church knew of no reason why women possessed of the gifts and qualifications necessary to preachers of the gospel should be debarred from the ministry. "Women ought never to have St. Jonas Church, said. "God gives his church pastors, evangelists, teachers, apostles and prophets. Women have excelled in all these lines, especially as evangelists, teachers and "prophets." Rev. Dr. H. Dixon stated. Geographical and economic conditions prevailing in Canada, not always considered when discussing the question of women entering the sacred ministry, mentioned by the Rev. Dr. J. A. McIntosh, pastor of the Dominion-Douglas United Church.

While conditions were as at present Dr. McIntosh said again, he thought it would be unwise to admit them to the ministry. Rev. W. J. Johnston, pastor of the Owenway United Church, saw no reason why they should not be admitted. "I am in favor of women entering the ministry," he said. Rev. Dr. P. Boer, professor at the United Theological College of Montreal thought that a lot depended on the individual woman herself. "I am quite in favor of it because I think it would be only the exceptional woman who would want to enter the ministry," he said.

At Toronto an intercollegiate debate resulted in the unanimous decision that women were not eligible for the ordained ministry of the United Church of Canada. The debate was participated in by students from the United Theological College here, who spoke for the women, and a student from Knox and Victoria Colleges, Toronto, who were for barring women from the ministry.

has always been foremost in protecting and serving the interests of the tea-drinking public.

What "SALADA" does is, therefore, frequently imitated. Since 1892 every pound of "SALADA" has been sold in metal foil containers—the most effective known way to preserve the full flavour of tea.

This is one reason why more "SALADA" is used today than any other tea sold on this continent.

It never varies—always delicious!

General Motors today announces an entirely new line of Pontiac Sixes, notably enhanced in beauty, incorporating numerous refinements in design, carrying new low prices—and constituting the most electrifying development in the low-priced six field since the now-historic introduction of the original Pontiac Six!

New Fisher Bodies Never before in any low-priced six have been achieved such commanding beauty and luxury. Lending luster to even the Fisher tradition of masterly craftsmanship, the new bodies by Fisher are longer, lower and superbly executed to the slightest detail.

All New Duco Colors To emphasize their inherent smartness, all body types are finished in new combinations of Duco colors. Ranging from Beverly Blue and Black on the sedan to Cherokee Gray on the Sport Cabriolet, the originality and freshness of these combinations accentuate the beauty of the new bodies.

New Beauty and Style Pontiac Six beauty has always been outstanding. But now in these new and finer models has been achieved not only new beauty, but also an arresting rakishness—the result of a deeper radiator; larger, heavier, and more sweeping crown fenders; and more massive headlamps. Windshield pillars are narrowed to conform to the accepted custom-built vogue and to provide a wider arc of visibility. Window ledges are smartly recessed and finished in a contrasting color. Every wanted appointment has been provided to maintain Pontiac Six standards of convenience and luxury.

Mechanical Refinements In addition to the numerous elements of greater beauty and style, the new and finer Pontiac Six introduces many new features and refinements in engineering design—such as tilting-beam headlights with foot control, new transmission and brake levers, steering wheel with aluminum spider, a clutch even smoother and more positive in action and an oil-sealed universal joint.

Two New Body Types Two entirely new body types of characteristic beauty have been added to the Pontiac Six line. These are a dashing, youthful Sport Roadster, finished in Lucerne Blue, striped with Faerie Red; and a 4-passenger Sport Cabriolet, with Brevoort Green top and fenders, and body in Cherokee Gray striped with orange to rival the vogue and smartness of the highest priced cars of the day. Both are offered at prices which reflect the economies of General Motors' tremendous purchasing power.

• • • • • • • • •

From the hour of its introduction, the Pontiac Six kindled enthusiasm all over the land. Developed on the great General Motors Proving Ground, it introduced elements of stamina, performance, economy and comfort unheard of at the price. Already more than 75,000 are serving owners with complete satisfaction.

Now there is a new and finer Pontiac Six, built in vast new factories and offering even more commanding beauty, even more advanced engineering at even lower prices—a triumph reflecting all the experience, skill and tremendous resources of General Motors!

Come in! See this history-making car!

SPRING STYLES IN MEN'S WEAR ANNOUNCED NOW

March winds blowing again and Spring not very far behind them. And speaking of Spring makes a man turn his thoughts of his Spring attire. So here are a few items for you straight from London, as to what will be the thing in men's wear for this Spring. English styles and clothes being models for American and Canadian men, we in this country will naturally fall in line with these ideas.

The popularity of the double breasted coat for 1927 business suits seem to be if anything, on the increase. Certainly it is almost an exception to run across a single breasted one just now. The main reason seems to be that this style is inside itself to the average build. Another advantage is that in warm weather an accompanying vest is unnecessary. There are certain small points to be noted in the cut and appearance of the newest business suits. Coats will be a little longer with the waist line less defined. Trousers are somewhat looser than last year a measurement of 17 inches at the ankle being about the average choice.

Double - breasted chesterfield overcoats are very popular with blues still predominating. Gone are fleeces and naps, with the demand now by hard-faced and closely woven materials. Incidentally, the velvet collars once popular fashion—is being revived, and added smartness.

Only two colors are considered permissable for evening waist-coats—white and black. If the latter be worn the material should be of the same material as the coat. Evening dress trousers are being cut fairly loose, thus adding to comfort. To make them long well, a couple of small pleats are added below the waist line. The practice of sewing a strip of braid, (or two strips) down the outside of the trouser seams has been discontinued.

So there are a few points about 1927 Spring styles you'll be seeing soon.

Thedy Andrikidis, well-known Tailor, of 208 Front street, can provide you with any of these up-to-date Men's styles and colors in a suit or overcoat.

POLICE CHIEFS FAVOR THE ALL STEEL CAR BODY

Has Saved Many Lives and Helps to Avoid Accidents

Approval of all steel automobile body construction was expressed by all but 34 out of approximately 500 police chiefs interviewed on the subject of Highway Accidents and Safety Precautions, according to a statement in a recent issue of the Literary Digest.

These police chiefs from all parts of the country were interviewed in the making of a survey which was submitted to the Second National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, held recently in Washington under the supervision of Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

As quoted in the Digest, Harold D. Buttenheim, editor of The American City Magazine, in analyzing the results of the survey to the conference, said:

"The last question dealt specifically with inquiring the attitudes by constructing closed car bodies of steel on the same safety principle as the all steel railway coach. All but thirty-four answers this affirmatively. A number of the chiefs were decidedly emphatic in their answers, making experience of theirs which indicated conclusively that in the wrecks involving all steel bodies they had found the strength of steel had saved the lives of passengers.

"One California chief pointed out that not only did the all steel body protect passengers in unavoidable wrecks, but that the reduction in the size of the pillars supporting the top gives the driver a better view of the road and permits greater opportunity to avoid accident than the bulky wood posts often used in closed car construction.

This is a sincere tribute to Dodge Brothers, the first automobile manufacturers to recognize the strength and safety of the all steel body. The all steel body is destined within a few years, I believe, to replace the wood framed automobile body just as certainly as the all steel railway coach and the all steel steamship have replaced those made of wood.

ADDS ANOTHER BUSINESS FRONT

Coleman Street is beginning to take on a more business like appearance every day. In addition to such attractive bookins and enterprising establishments as the City Battery Service, Sills the Hardwood Floor Men and the Quinte Electrician, the pawnshop notes now another and it's Ala Tire Shop—adjacent to the City Battery Service. Al Hitchon, well-known local proprietor, has recently had a new front built in the premises, in the window of which he will display a varied assortment of Goodrich Tires, for which Al has become dealer. A new office is also being fitted up in the front part of the building which will shortly present a most attractive appearance with the completion of the alteration work.

With signs of Spring in the air, evidenced by the increased use of cars, the Tire Repair business at Al's Tire Shop is constantly on the increase. Satisfactory work and prompt service are helping to bring it about too, and the visitor to Belleville's newest Tire Repair Establishment finds that the Vulcanizing work is a specialty—in fact, anything in the rubber line can be vulcanized for you at Al's Tire Shop.

Perhaps you have a pair of rubbers, boots or mackinaw boots that have a hole in them, but are otherwise perfectly valuable and serviceable. At Hitchon can repair them for you and make them as good as new. Just leave them in at 301 Coleman Street, and have them put in first class shape. You'll have no difficulty finding the place; its in the same building as the City Battery Service conveniently located.

NEW VAPORIZER ON FORDS GIVES UNIQUE RESULTS

Better Combustion and Greater Fuel Economy Are Benefits

More complete combustion of fuel, greater economy and speed, and increased flexibility, particularly at low engine speeds, feature several models of the Ford engine which are on display for the first time at the Montreal Motor Show. These improvements are the result of prolonged experiment which culminated in the development of a new vaporizer, now standard equipment. This vaporizer, is an improved hot-plate system which is more efficient in breaking up all qualities of fuel. Its greater effectiveness is particularly noticeable with low grade fuels.

The carburetor previously standard on Ford Cars was designed when gasoline was of a higher grade, more volatile than the general run of fuels now on the market. It functioned perfectly with high-grade fuels but with the advent of heavier fuels pre-heating was desirable particularly in cold weather. To meet this requirement a hot air intake was designed. The new vaporizer is a further improvement and ensures perfect combustion of low grade fuel under the hardest climate conditions.

The new vaporizing system is an integral part of the carburetor and exhaust manifold. It is simple in design and absolutely efficient. The preheating, or vaporizing unit is a continuation of the lead from the fuel cup and is bolted to the exhaust manifold. Incorporated with the exhaust manifold is a thin steel plate which contacts with the hot exhaust gases and which is brought to a temperature of 600 Fahr. within thirty seconds after the motor is started. Gasoline drawn up the fuel lead is then conducted in contact with the hot plate and is instantaneously vaporized. Grooves are stamped in the hot plate and these grooves break up the wet vapors, facilitating complete vaporization.

Above the hot plate is the air intake and choke. From the top of the fuel cup a hollow pipe rises and passes through the exhaust manifold to the air intake, supplying a constant draft of hot air which mixes with the gasoline before it is brought to the hot plate. The action of the new vaporizing system is best illustrated by likening it to what occurs when a drop of water comes in contact with a very hot surface. It immediately rises in the form of steam.

PUBLIC'S DESIRE FOR COLORS SEEN IN DUCO WORK

Local Refinishing Station Busy Supplying Demand For Colors

The ever increasing demand on the part of the motoring public for brighter colors and a greater variety of colors for their motor cars is apparent, and easily in the number of new cars being turned out—including the higher priced line cars—in greens, blues, reds and various shades and various combinations of these, but it is evident, too, in the use of refinish cars.

A few years ago—and not so long at that, most makers produced their cars only in sombre black,—or possibly in a dark blue finish,—but the manufacturer who turned out a brilliantly hued car was an exception. But to-day—Well, take a drive along any highway and you will see all the colors of the rainbow represented in the cars; and there is no reason why this shouldn't be the case either.

Perhaps—who can say—the car producer unconsciously benefits by the change of ideas, considering that many persons will run a car of a certain bright color for one season, and, tiring of the color, will turn it in on a new one. But while such a condition may to some extent increase the sale of new cars, it has done something else. It is a fact that at the present time, body styles have become pretty well standardized—they seem to be all one way now. The biggest car producers—with a few exceptions—have made no radical changes in the body lines of their cars for the past two or three years.

Well, then, if a person tires of the colour of his car at the end of a year, what is he going to do? It looks like a new car, as in style and runs perfectly. The only drawback, is its certain color which his perhaps become hideous in the own eye.

Here is the solution which many motorists are adopting. With the advent of Duco, the car finish now used almost exclusively for the highest car products and the policy of the Duco people to appoint trained re-finishers in each district, a method may have to the Duco Re-finished in any one of a hundred or so colors—or color combinations, applied in exactly the same manner and color as well inside.

The casual visitor these days to the re-finishing rooms of Isaac Stephenson, local Duco man, in the Greenleaf Building, encounters a lively spot, with many cars of all makes and sizes awaiting their new Duco finish. Mr. Stephenson will explain to you, while he skillfully prepares a car for its new coat, that this public demand, today for varied and changing car colors has contributed in no small way to the great expansion of the local Duco Re-finishing business, for the business is growing and with a recently enlarged quarters, presents the busiest scene one could wish for. And this witnessed during the 10th odd years since its establishments.

First class work, with a two year guarantee attached to this, the use of genuine Duco only—no imitations, and applied by men who know their work—these are some more reasons why the business is growing. If the public wants bright colors, Stephenson will provide them; and if they want them changed every year, Stephenson will change them and keep them in style—even though Duco will last indefinitely and need not be re-newed.

And contrary to popular conception Duco jobs may be had for as little as $25, no magic methods are used, but practical work by experts and satisfactory work—combining with public taste to build up a big business for the local Authorized Duco Re-Finisher.

JAMIESON BONE COMPANY
DISCONTINUES BUSINESS

An announcement of considerable interest in the business world was that received a few days ago of the discontinuance of the contracting business of Jamieson Bone and Company, for several years one of the city's leading Contracting and Building firms.

Mr. Jamieson Bone having taken over the local management of the Homer Gibson and Co., Stock Brokers with offices in the Chamber of Commerce Building, has as yet made no announcement as to the future of the Jamieson Bone Company business. It has stated however, that there is a possibility of the business being taken over by one of the two or three concerns at present angling for it, in which case, it would be carried on as before. On the other hand, should these negotiations fail, the business will be let lapse and the property sold.

It is expected that before a month, a definite decision will have been reached and an announcement madeas to the future of the Jamieson Bone Company business.

SPECIAL COURSE FOR CHEESE MEN GREAT SUCCESS

The Special Cheesemakers Course at the Eastern Dairy School Kingston, Ont., which has just been completed was a big year of particular interest. This Course, or more properly speaking Convention, is intended for makers in Eastern Ont., that have spent some time in the business, and who wish to keep in touch, with the latest advancement, so as to be able to meet their competitors in the markets of the world on a more intelligent basis.

Cooperative defects, and difficulties met with in the average days work are taken up and remedies prescribed. Cheese judging, grading and other subjects of importance receive special attention. The mere fact of meeting fellow makers and rubbing shoulders, with him for a few days, is in itself an education.

The attendance of makers was about 60, this is a small per centage of the total in Eastern Ont., which in 1926 was 607 makers. The attendance in general is made up of our best and brightest makers who are anxious to keep abreast of the times, and in return give to their factories, or employees the most efficient service possible.

The issuing of gradol certificates to Ontario cheese makers, which comes into effect on March 1st., 1927, was discussed with the makers by Geo. H. Barr, Director of Dairying, for the Pro. of Ont. This is a matter of great importance to the makers, and was placed before them in a very clear and concise manner. To obtain a first class certificate it is necessary, that a maker shall have made in 1926, 85% first grade cheese or better. A second class certificate 85% or beter, and permits will be issued to those, for a two year period only, who in 1926 fell below 85% First grade cheese. After the two year period, no permits will be issued, and that class of maker will be out of business.

Newfoundland's claim to ownership of territory in the Labrador peninsula is sustained by the decision of their lordships of the judicial committee of the privy council, who were asked to define the boundary between Canada and Newfoundland in the Labrador peninsula.

The dispute between the two dominions was deferred to the privy council by common consent of both parties.

To the left is Aime Geoffrion, of Montreal, who headed the Dominion of Canada delegation of barristers. To the right is Sir John Simon, who handled the case for Newfoundland.

The map shows the territory under dispute.

He of course has the opportunity, during the two year period of raising his standing to First or Second Class certificate. It is entirely up to the man.

Many addresses were delivered by well known authorities in the business, Jos. Burgess, Chief, Div. Dairy Produce, and Chief Grader for Canada, demonstrated the grading of cheese, and on the defects found, in them. Cheese of the different grades were secured, and the makers given an opportunity to place them in their respective grades, this in its self was most interesting and instructive, and should go a long way in helping the makers to determine the quality of their own products.

Dr. Hood, Chief, of Dairy Research, of the Dairy Branch Dept. of Agr. discussed the matter of cheese flavours, their origin as relating to Starters, and Cheese factory equipments. The great importance of cleanliness in preparing of Starters, and cleaning the equipment in daily use in the factory.

Mr. Frank Jones, Chief, of Dairy Manufactures, of the Dairy Branch, Dept. of Agr. Ottawa, gave a paper on cheese of different characters the effect of excess moisture, lack of moisture, effects of different temperatures. This information was the result of experiment work, performed during the season of 1926 when a number of cheese were purchased and held at suitable temperatures. They were graded each week and an accurate record kept of the changes in grade etc.

Dr. Reid, Bacteriologist, of Queen's University, also discussed the making of cheese from a Bacteriological standpoint, the working out of different tests to discover flavours, etc. in milk.

Mr. G. G. Publow, Chief, Dairy Instructor, of Eastern Ontario and Mr. L. A. Zufelt, Supt. of the Eastern Dairy School, discussed the dairy situation from all angles. Particular stress was laid on the finish of our Ontario cheese, many are put up in a very slovenly, and far from attractive appearance this one thing, finish, will largely determine the standing of Ontario, for First Grade cheese in 1927. It was agreed that there was not a single reason for any maker sending out a lot of poorly finished cheese, this is entirely under the control of the maker, and in accordance of his mechanical ability, it would be very unfortunate if our makers neglect this matter of finish, and be means of lowering our standing in this Province.

Judging from the interest taken at this course, and at all times by the different authorities part-icularly, they are sparing no pains, time or effort, to raise the standard of Ontario cheese. Their efforts are meeting with success in that in four years the quality of our cheese has been raised 10.3%.

There is evidence in plenty, that a different view is being taken by former and cheesemaker, as to Dairy Instruction in our cheese factories, and the Government Grading of cheese. Once confidence has been established in the minds of farmers and makers, that the instruction and assistance given by the various Dairy organizations, such as our Dairy Schools, Instruction and Grading Staff, that improvement in the quality of Ontario cheese can, and is being made. They are not slow to fall in line co-operate and in-sist on further advancement.

QUESTION OF THE NEW SCHOOL TO COME UP TONIGHT

Mystery Of Captain John Smith May Be Solved--Earthquake In Japan Kills Many Hundreds

EARTHQUAKES IN JAPAN REPORTED CAUSING DEATHS

Telephone and Telegraph Wires Down Prevents News Coming Out

113 DEAD

Eighty of Victims Were At-tending Moving Picture Theatre

Tokio, Japan, March 7.—Reports from Osaka say an earthquake shock to day put telephone and electric lines out of communication there, but apparently there was no other damage. It is reported, but without confirmation, that Tajima district, which was wrecked in the 1925 quake, may be severely slaughtered. Conflicting dispatches from the quake area are reaching newspapers. A message from Osaka to Horbi Shimbun reports 113 killed and injured. Eighty of the victims were in a moving picture theater which partially collapsed.

Houses Collapse

The newspaper reports thirty houses collapsed and many others were damaged. Fifteen fires were started, most of which were quickly extinguished. The Nippon Shunbun Rengo News agency says that outside of several injuries in moving picture collapse there is no evidence of serious disaster. Detailed reports from the Tajima region have not been received. The quake, according to latest colligan, may have centred at Kobe, where the clocks were stopped and street car services suspended.

FACES MURDER CHARGE TUESDAY

Another murder trial will open tomorrow in Belleville when Abraham Robinson will be charged with the killing of Charles St. Charles, bailiff of Madoc village who was shot on the Robinson farm at Eldorado on November 15th of last year. St. Charles died of wounds at the home of his daughter in Madoc some weeks ago. Since that time Robinson has been awaiting his trial in Belleville jail. He will be defended by Class. A. Payne. The trial will be held before the Hon. Justice Logic. C. Cunningham, of Kingston, who is regarded as a clever speaker, and criminal lawyer will act as Crown Prosecutor.

Robinson who is 77 years of age is a hardened veteran of the old school and since the accident he has acted in a reticent manner. This is the only criminal case on the docket and it is believed that the action will be of a comparatively short duration.

The murder case is scheduled to start tomorrow morning but it is not expected it will go to trial until the afternoon as the selection of the jury will occupy some time.

TEN YEAR OLD MYSTERY OF WRECK EXPECTED TO BE CLEARED UP NOW

Captain Smith of "George E. Marsh" Reported Drowned

BODY NOT FOUND

Son Thinks That His Father Has Just Died in Oklahoma

The ten-year-old mystery of the disappearance of Captain John Wesley Smith of the coal barge George E. Marsh, was believed to be almost cleared up this morning when his son Horrace Smith, of Toronto, who has been visiting locally, received a letter from Harrah, Okla., explaining that the body was still belng held.

On Thursday, February 24th, messages were received in the city to locate Margaret Smith whose father, John Smith, had died in Oklahoma. Embry Smith in the city was unsuccessfully canvassed but the books of Moira Lodge A.F. and A.M. revealed the fact that a brother listed as dead, named Captain John Smith, had once been a member of the Lodge. This clue was followed and records showed that Captain John Smith who had been in charge of the barge George E. Marsh, had never been proven dead, his body alone, of the twelve who had perished in the ship never having been recovered. It was found that Margaret Smith, a daughter of the supposed drowned Captain had married Neil McGrenan, one of the two survivors who had clung to an upturned yawl from the schooner and drifted to Amherst Island. The other survivor was William Smith brother of the Captain.

The Wreck

The schooner which was owned by Mr. J. J. B. Flint, was purchased in Chicago. She was brought to Belleville by Captain Smith and over hauled. On her fatal voyage she had been chartered by the Dominion Coal Company.

In his story of the wreck, Neil McGrenan said that the schooner began to leak at midnight during a heavy gale, just off what is known as the Main Ducks, some miles from Kingston on Lake Ontario. The leak was bad and the three pumps were immediately applied but the breach was too faster than the pumps could empty. The vessel continued to float until about 5 o'clock when off Prinee Point she settled and sank in about twenty-five feet of water. All on

Mrs. Herrington was with her daughters instant in all good philanthropic and public-spirited work throughout the war and especially interested herself actively with the forwar movement in the Red Cross, the Girl Guides and Victorian Order of Nurses and local Church. She will be universally respected by a wide circle. Mrs. Herrington was before marriage Miss Tilley, daughter of one who will be remembered by the old boys at the High School. Her funeral will be at St. Mary Magdelene's Church, Napanee, on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m., and many to Cobourg will attend from this district where she was so well known and esteemed.

SANITY IN SPORT EXISTS IN ENGLISH UNIVERSITIES

New York, N.Y., March 7.—"Sport in education" rather than "sport versus education" is the principle governing amateur and collegiate athletics in Great Britain Dr. Howard J. Savage of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching said today.

"There is no conflict between athletics and studies at Oxford and Cambridge, he said, in a statement issued by the Foundation preliminary to a more extended report of scholastic sports in England and surveys of college and university athletics in Canada and the United States.

Half of the Oxford and Cambridge under-graduate bodies participate in rowing, and three fourths in all sports, he said, but 75 percent are working for honor degrees. He declared "any team eight to twenty per cent participate in athletics at the New English and Scottish Universities."

OPENING TOMORROW

Prince Edward Residents Greatly Relieved Over Bay Bridge

The Bay Bridge will be in readiness for traffic by tomorrow night and will probably be officially opened the day after. The filling in by putting gravel on the stone which is the last stage previous to the bridge standing in readiness for horse-drawn and motor vehicles will be completed on Tuesday night and the bridge, closed since the 26 of January, in use once more.

This announcement will be hailed with greatest relief by both Belleviliians and Prince Edward County people who have looked with alarm on the fast disappearing ice by which they have crossed since the closing of the bridge fearing that, should it remain closed and the ice melt, they would have to trean by way of Trenton.

ROTARY PASSES APPROVAL VOTE

By Large Majority Favor Erection of New High School

For some unexplained reason the Rotarians were asked at their luncheon today to pass a resolution endorsing the erection of the proposed new Collegiate and Vocational School according to the plans already approved by the Board of Education. Presumably it is the intention to use the favorable vote record as extra pressure on the City Council to pass the resolution through without submission to the tax payer. A small minority of Rotarians refused to vote on the resolution as they evidently felt that it was not a proper matter to come before the Rotary Club.

At the luncheon today there was no outside speaker. There was President of Rotary, Mr. W. B. Deacon, Mr. G. H. Scott and Mr. C. M. Bell, told of the founding and subsequent history of the local Club which was the ninth Rotary Club to come into existence in Ontario. A regrettable feature was that of the twenty-four charter members only three now connected with the Club.

ROBINSONS ARE HERE FOR TRIAL

Brother and Sister of Prisoner Expected to Give Evidence

Mr. Lemuel Robinson and Miss Eliza Beth Robinson, brother and sister of Abe Robinson, who will stand his trial for murder at the spring assizes commenced arrived in town today where they will stay during the period of the trial.

When court is opened Crown Attorney Ponton will address the brother and sister appeared to be in the best of health and spirits and were optimistic about the outcome of the trial.

The evidence at the murder trial will be largely circumstantial and Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will be the two very important witnesses for the defence throughout the trial.

The Robinson family have had a hard row to hoe and it is apparent in the tired features of Lemuel and his sister. Both are thoroughly convinced of the innocence of their brother. Abe, and have maintained a steady stand on this basis for the past two trials. Charles Payne is the defendant's lawyer and A. B. Cunningham will be the Crown Prosecutor.

SPECIAL MEETING CALLED TO DEAL WITH BUILDING

Board of Education Will Draft Resolution For Funds Tonight

NOT UNANIMOUS

Mayor Wilmot Expected To Be Home This Weekend

Tonight a special meeting of the Board of Education has been called to draw up a resolution for submission to the City Council requesting that funds be provided for the erection of a new Collegiate and Vocational School according to the plans approved by the special building committee of the Educational Board.

Whether this resolution will be submitted to City Council for action tonight or not has not been decided. The time of presentation will probably depend a good deal on the attitude of the trustees at tonight's meeting. It is understood that the directors of our schools are not unanimous, some of them believing that the matter might better wait over until the return of Mayor Wilmot who is expected home at the end of this week. Some sort of an understanding, it is generally believed, was given the Mayor before he left for his holidays that this matter would not be pressed in his absence.

Attempt Forca Vote

It is difficult to understand the necessity of attempting to rush the matter to a head in Mr. Wilmot's absence, as in any event there is a lot of preliminary work to be done.

If the solution is brought before the meeting of the City Council the result is difficult to forecast. Some of the Aldermen are known to be opposed to voting such a huge sum of money without submission to the ratepayers who will have to foot the bill. On the other hand one or two members of the Council have expressed the opinion that the only way in which the Collegiate can ever be erected is to rush the vote through without any reference to the feelings of the taxpayers as they say that the taxpayers would never approve so large an expenditure.

Attention to the meeting tonight of the trustees and the Councillors promises to be mighty interesting and no doubt some ratepayers who are interested in the tax rate will be present as a gallery to see how their elected representatives handle so important a question.

ASHES AND SUN HELPING THERMIT

Engineer Campbell Confident Thaw Flood Will Be Avoided

The sun, with aid of calcium chloride has caused the ice in the mouth of the Moira river from the lower bridge south to ag.

In an interview this morning with R. A. Lawrence, Dr. Barnes assistant and Charles Campbell, City Engineer, the latter engineer learned several important facts.

Three channels have opened under the railway bridge between the second, third and sixth panels from the East. One channel is opened under the lower bridge and another channel is being formed.

Between these channels a solid "hump" of ice has formed and it is here that the danger of a flood comes in. If cakes of ice should jam across this hump, thus closing the water channels, naturally the outlet for the water would be closed off and the result would be a flood.

In an event of this nature occurring, however, the "hump" of ice could be blasted, but the City Engineer said this morning that he thought the heat of the sun would cause the hummock to disappear. Also his assistant watched on the ice by the lower bridge and they are hoping to rot the ice, slowly eating their way through the compressed mass and doing their bit in clearing the river.

Dr. Howard T. Barnes left for New York today, but his assistant Mr. Lawrence is still in the city watching the result of the Thermit.

Mr. Campbell said this morning that the ice is fractured to the extent of three hundred feet below the lighthouse, the work of Thermit.

Thirteen shots of half-units of the Thermit were placed in the Moira River on Saturday.

Dr. Barnes will return to the city on Thursday of this week.

NINGPO IS SCENE OF ANTI-FOREIGN RIOTING SUNDAY

Plans Are Laid For Another General Strike at Shanghai

HONG KONG TOO

Cantonese Pay $400,000 For Damage Done British Subjects

Shanghai, March 7.—Development of a menacing anti-foreign situation at Ningpo, south of Shanghai on the coast of Chekiang Province, commanded the attention of the British naval and authorities today and the flotilla leader, H.M.S. Keppell was sent to that port.

Announcement by Kuomintang (Cantonese left wing) of plans for an anti-Imperialist demonstration of a big scale tomorrow has brightened the nervousness of British and Americans remaining in Ningpo, and several Englishmen left Shanghai Saturday. Previously, nearly all British and American women and children had been removed. On Saturday a minor hostile demonstration at the China Mission Society's Hospital, caused two English nurses hurriedly to gather their few belongings and take refuge on a Shanghai steamer.

FORIGNERS ARE ENEMIES

Handbills have been distributed calling on the populace to consider British, Americans, Japanese and French as their enemies because of Shanghai dispatch of military and naval forces to Shanghai.

Trouble is again developing in Shanghai, co-incidentally with the Nationalist approach to Soochow. The Japanese cotton mills, where the Japanese mayor's forces are on guard is the latest hybrid strife. The wounding of a mill official, allegedly by a workman and threats to kill the "manager" of another mill, have brought on a lockout affecting 2,000 workers.

The foreign police have learned that the general labor union is raising funds to buy arms, supplementing the planned purpose of seizing the arms of the northern troops when the Nationalist Army is decisively victorious. Propaganda preparatory to a general strike is being vigorously carried on by means of handbills thrown from the roofs of high buildings in the International settlement. There are indications, however, that the general strike may be delayed for several days, allegedly because the Cantonese wish it to synchronize with the arrival of their army on the outskirts of Shanghai.

TRENTON BOY IS GIVEN POSITION

James Edwin McKibbon, newly appointed Collector of Customs at Trenton, Ont., was notified of his appointment this morning by telephone message from the Intelligencer. When called to the phone and told that this week's Canada Gazette contained his appointed to the important position, Mr. McKibbon said "It's the first I've heard of it. No official notice has been received here."

Since Mr. B. C. Armstrong, the former collector left Trenton for a military course in Toronto, Mr. A. L. Mallery, of Deseronto, has been acting Collector of Customs.

Mr. McKibbon the new Collector is a Trentonian born and bred. His parents had lived in the Trent for the past forty years. Before entering the Customs service two years ago he had been in business in the town and being universally popular, his appointment will be received with greatest satisfaction.

SIX DAY RIDER LANDED IN A SPECTATORS BOX

New York, March 7.—The first serious accident in a six day bicycle race ever to involve spectators here marked the insauration of the 42nd grind in Madison Square Garden. Scarcely an hour after fifteen teams started their long marathon last night, Emil Rohrbach, of France, was caught in a jam and after smashing into another rider catapulted off the track and into a box. One of the period of his cycle struck Mrs. Walter of Detroit, over her eye, inflicting a deep gash that required hospital treatment. Rohrbach was knocked unconscious and suffered cuts in his head and abdomen. He returned to the race today, however.

"Let there be harmony in things essential—Liberty in things not essential—Charity in all."

A PRAYER

God let me live each lovely day
So I may know that come what may
I've done my best to live the way
You want me to.

Forgive me if I do not pray
The ultra-sanctimonious way
In church on every Sabbath day
As some folks do.

Just let me know if I should stray
That I may stop along the way
At any time of night or day
And talk to you.

POLITICIANS AND WAR

Mr. Lloyd George is not one of those who, who prefer, to let sleeping dogs lie. It was the politicians, he asserted recently, who won the Great War. "If anyone is inclined to think evil of politicians," he added, "let them remember that it was the countries with politicians that lasted to the end."

A provocative statement, which prompts a counter-thrust. Setting aside the theory entertained by military men that semi-military men had some thing to do with the final victory, Mr. Lloyd George's self-congratulatory little observation prompts the thought that politicians as a class can also claim the honor of having ended the war.

A review of history suggests that politicians have started more wars than they have ever brought to a successful conclusion. European history furnishes many illustrations. Napoleon Bona parte was a skilful politician, and his adviser, Talleyrand, had an even keener sense of political values, but their policies turned France into an armed camp, and eventually brought her to the brink of economic ruin. Italy had her Machiavelli; but they brought no peace to Italy. Germany had her great Bismarck but upon Bismarck and Napoleon He-ngany illustrations. Napoleon Bona parte was a skilful politician, and his adviser, Talleyrand, had an even keener sense of political values, but their policies turned France into an armed camp, and eventually brought her to the brink of economic ruin. Italy had her Machiavelli; but they brought no peace to Italy. Germany had her great Bismarck but upon Bismarck and Napoleon Hesaid another politician—as much as anyone else rests the responsibility for the last war. Those two men sowed the wind and succeeding politicians had not the sagacity to avoid reaping the whirlwind.

It is probably true of politicians than of any other class of men that "the evil that men do lives after them." But Mr. Lloyd George is concerned about the rest of the quotation which avers that the good which men do is often interred with their bones. Not if Mr. Lloyd George can prevent it!

If it should really be true, as the quick-witted little Welshman claims, that it is the politicians who win wars, it is the very least they can do after having played so large a part in bringing them on.

QUEBEC'S JOB

Quebec has lost little time in starting the proposal that Canada buy back the land awarded to Labrador by the Privy Council on Thursday.

Charles Cahan, of Montreal, M.P., for the St. Lawrence-St. George division of that city, suggested in the house that Canada repurchase the territory covered by the award. The minister of justice replied in behalf of the government, expressing the opinion that the government's best course would be to wait for the full text of the award before taking any action.

Of course Mr. Cahan's suggestion will have the cordial approval of all the Quebec members, for his idea is, no doubt, that the purchase money for the proposed transaction in real estate would be provided out of the national treasury. But one can readily understand why the proposal would not be likely to meet with the enthusiastic support of members from other provinces. Some years ago Newfoundland was willing to sell to Labrador claims for $90,000,000—more than the cloud on the title to the property has been removed, the price asked will no doubt be greater. If the territory were purchased by Canada the chief beneficiary of the transaction would be Quebec province. The area of that province would be increased by 110,000 square miles; the province would be assured of potential revenue from the pulpwood and timber that now amounting to tens of millions of dollars; it would also be assured of the revenue amounting to millions annually, from the utilization of millions of horse-powers of water power. The benefits obtained by the dominion as a whole (not to mention those would be incidents) and much less.

Should it be decided to regain the alienated territory by purchase, a substantial proportion of the purchase price ought to be provided by Quebec province.

A CORNER LIFTED

The Customs Commission closes with the prize mystery of its Winnipeg sittings unsolved. That is the mystery of why the export liquor interests of Saskatchewan were protected, when excise officers were trying to check them up on infractions of the law.

The evidence makes it at least a fair assumption that Hon. Jacques Bureau, the minister of customs, now a senator, learned the orders that recalled the excise or preventive officers when they invaded the territory where these interests were operating, and gave instructions that they were to be kept on other work, and, in general, that they should not get the department into "trouble." That is all right as far as it goes. It means that the commission should have some pertinent questions to ask Mr. Bureau when, and if, he is called to the witness stand.

Why did he interfere?

A thoroughly vile business—like compounding and export of poisonous concoctions labelled as whiskey—was carried on in the Saskatchewan territory for a period of several years. How villainous these alleged liquors were was shown by court evidence in a Yorkton case where there was testimony as to the action of the compounding process that was positively revolting.

Unquestionably much of this poisonous liquor came into Manitoba, and much of it was also sold in Saskatchewan in violation of the law. Moreover, bearing American labels and American revenue stamps, printed in Winnipeg, was sent across the line for bootlegging purposes. Hold-ups, robberies, hi-jackings," and even murder, marked the transportation end of the business. The whole situation was exposed in the columns of The Tribune time and time again. There was continual protest from law-abiding people of Saskatchewan, until finally the government of that province, when the pressure became overwhelming, wiped it out.

That was the business—a degrading, despicable business—that was protected by Ottawa authority. Until the Customs Commission set here it had never been officially investigated. Now at least a corner of the curtain has been raised, and we see Hon. Jacques Bureau as the protector. But why? The public does not know. It will not rest satisfied until it does.

"My dear young lady," said the elergyman, in grieved tones as he listened to an extremely modern young woman telling of some of the very latest j.zz on the piano, "have you ever heard of the Ten Commandments?"

"Whittle a few bars," said the young lady, "and I think I can follow you."

During his first few days in camp the young recruit was the victim of so many practical jokes that he doubted all men one night while he was on guard. the ill figure of one of the officers loomed up in the darkness before him.

"Who goes there?" he challenged.

"Major Moses," replied the officer. The recruit scented a new joke.

"Glad to meet you. Major," he said cheerfully. "Advance and give me the 11 commandments."

An old farmer would not believe that people who were miles apart were able to converse over a telephone wire. One day his wife went to a distant friend who had a telephone in her house. During the afternoon the farmer rang his wife over from a thunderstorm in the house of a neighbour who also possessed a telephone, and who persuaded the farmer to call up his wife as a little experiment. Following instructions, the farmer put the receiver to his ear, and after the usual preliminaries shouted, "Hello, Sarah!" Just then a flash of lightning struck the wires, and he fell to the floor under the force of the shock. Rising to his feet and shaking his head wisely, he said, "It's wonderful! That was Sarah right enough!"

THE OTHER MAN

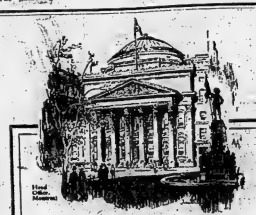

Perhaps he sometime slipped a bit
Well, so have you.
Perhaps some things he ought to quit,
Well, so should you.
Perhaps he may have faltered—why,
Who's always do, and so have I;
You must admit, unless you lie,
That so have you!
When painting some as black as ink,
As some folks do,
Perhaps, if we would recollect,
Perfection we would not expect,
But just a man halfway correct,
Like she and you.
I'm just a man who's fairly good,
Im just like you.
I've done some things I never should,
Perhaps like you—
But, thank the Lord, I've come to see
The rest of men with charity;
They're good enough if good as me—
Say men like you.

MANY of our business subscribers know of the intensive and valuable service rendered by MacLean Building Reports. They have 250 live agents in Ontario. Accuracy in their reports of proposed construction is vital, but speed in securing them is of utmost importance. Recently they asked permission to send 250 copies of one of our advertisements to these agents. It was entitled "Business is good—if you go after it."

Their letter accompanying our advertisement was headed "Go after Reports and you will get them!" and they added: "If the proposed construction is within reasonable radius, get the report—by telephone. We will repay your charges." All these calls are handled on the Station-to-Station basis.

How much more business could you do if your representatives were authorized to promptly telephone news of new business they hear of?

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES START

Drs. Crossley and Leonard Open Revival Week With Large Congregations

Holloway Street United Church was filled at both morning and evening services yesterday for the opening of the Crossley-Leonard Evangelistic Campaign. It is many years since Mr. Crossley has visited Belleville but the people have evidently not forgotten his stirring appeals. This is Mr. Leonard's initial visit to Belleville. The latter acts as song leader and efficient as his exceptionally well talented in this line.

Mr. Leonard led in the revival singing during the services.

Yesterday morning Mr. Crossley pleaded on "Three Priceless Treasures," and was listened to with rapt attention.

At the evening service he chose as his topic, "Wrong Views of God."

"The first is an abstract view," he said, "many of us have as a great creative power. We know of God's existence by the workings of the universe, the revelations of the stars and the changes of climate. Unseen things are more real than those visible," he said.

"Only the crudest parts of the material universe are visible. We cannot see gravity, electricity yet we know they exist. When you pray where do you locate Him? We must have Him where He is. In our hearts if we are Christians and at our heart's dark door if we are not.

"Sometimes we take a harsh view of God," stated Dr. Crossley. "We are taught to think of others as they think of us and we know God loves us. Why should he not love Him? No one can love a hard master and God is nothing else but kindly. He is forgiving o sinners and possesses an Eternal heart."

Dr. Crossley spoke by the difference of opinion when Scriptures are misinterpreted. He referred to some of these. "The Prodigal Son had acted wrongly but he worked up a penitential expression and returned and was received with open arms."

Heathenish View

"People oftentimes take a heathenish view of our Saviour," continued Dr. Crossley, "Jesus died in order to manifest the love of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. The Bible tells us there is but one God."

Dr. Crossley illustrated Jesus as a light throwing out comfort, light and heat to a sinning world, "Jesus came to this earth and lived and suffered the claims of Truth and Justice when he laid his life down. It's the individual love that wins and Jesus still lives to be loved by us."

These services will continue every night throughout the week.

A KNOWLEDGE OF CHRIST IS CURE

Rev. Wren, M.A. D.D., Preaches Inspiring Sermon at Bridge St.

Rev. David Wren M.A., B.D., of Peterborough, who conducted the morning service at Bridge Street Methodist Church last evening was heard by a congregation which taxed the capacity of the Church and his inspiring sermon, bringing home the truth that the great remedy for the world-parent day difficulties was a knowledge of Jesus Christ was heard with keenest interest by all present.

Speaking from the text "Though He was rich, for your sake He became poor," Mr. Wren told of how a few years ago an artist painted a picture bringing out new ideas which produced revolutionized art. An Englishman crossing a copy of the artists master piece on bringing it into his home found that to harmonize with the work of art all the appointments must be changed, being about harmony. Other pictures similarly painted were sold to different English homes with the result the entire household appointments of many of the British homes were revolutionized to harmonize with the new idea of art.

Something akin to this, he said, happened twenty centuries ago when in a manger in Jerusalem a babe desired to change the whole world was born. Becoming disturbed the world. Since his coming every movement in the history of the world has been connected with the problem of how it will appear in relationship to Christ. History shows that every revival of any movement every attempt at a solution of any problem depends upon its relationship to Christ. Mr. Wren said "I am greatly disturbed with the conflict in the thought world and I am convinced that the only solution to the present conflict is the understanding and accepting of Jesus Christ". The question of the ages has been How shall we interpret Jesus Christ and the answer is "give Him the proper place and setting.

In the lesson tonight we learn of the price the Lord paid that all might know Him. This Apostle said "Our Master, to become human entered in to a life of poverty". This poverty was not only the poverty of the land but the poverty of the surroundings with which he had to work. He knew the poverty of language to interpret what he was to tell, and the poverty of the character o the audience he had to preach to. A time his words fell upon unresponsive ears and thankless. He could not always get the confidence for which he sought made heart and mind were dissatisfied but He knew that the day would come when all could hear and understand.

In the unrest of today we must turn to Him, accept Him and follow His teachings.

MINING GOSSIP

No official information is available on the Amulet-Ace situation. It is known, however, that Hans Lunberg is in charge of present work, that he is away, the acting manager of both properties under orders to drill on Mr. Lundberg's instructions. The latter returned from Manitoba this week-end and should be on the ground by Monday or Tuesday. It is understood that the pit or winze being sunk through the boulder clay, where the first drill failed to penetrate, is now almost down to bedrock and that the drill will be set up there immediately.

Mr. Lundberg has decided that the first drey hole to be sunk down will be at this point, which his electrical diviner has indicated is the apex of whatever mineralized body deflected it. The drilling to date has been at a shallow diameter in other parts of the two properties, for geological purposes only. Some of these holes have picked up traces of mineralization. The Amulet is undeveloped, is setting up a machine a the bottom of its shaft to send in a horizontal hole through to the Ace a long days.

A progress report on the Hendry Creek Mine for the week ended February 26 shows that all freight has now been delivered at Hudson Station. The total of this is almost 200 tons. Memorial Service

A memorial service for the drowned was held in St. Thomas' Church on Sunday, August 13th, 1917, conducted by Archdeacon Beamish and Rev. Mr. Jones.

Horace Smith is almost sure that the body is that of his father. Mr. Smith may go to Toronto today to visit his sister.

Residents of the Masonic Lodge hotel in Harrah, Okla., and in Belleville, have been assisting in solving the mystery. The dead man had been conducting a four and feed business in Oklahoma and is reported to have left some estate.

LACK OF TEAM PLAY AMONG PARENTS

By ELSIE MARLOWE

I want you to answer this letter for me. It's the old, old problem of a father who "won't help with the children" but who criticizes the mother because of their misdeeds. You've met up with that problem. Probably you have it in your own home. What's the answer?

Should a father be as responsible as the mother for training the children, or does his obligation cease when he pays the bills?

DEAR ELSIE:

What do you think of a man who is lacking in his duty of a Father?

I have two children, a girl of nine, a boy of six. The girl, I'll call her Rose is a pretty child. She looks exactly like she is very wilful and disobedient. Now understand me, she is not bad, but just naughty. For instance, I'll say, Rose, help mother with the dishes." She won't stir, keeps right on doing what she began to do, or what she is at the moment interested in. I have to spank four or five times to get results. Then if I send her on an errand, she pouts and sulks and acts as if she had been given poison.

During most of those scenes that father is in the room or in an adjoining room where he can hear everything. He hears it all and yet he never moves an eyelash—just sits and says nothing. This morning the climax came.

My husband got up with a grouch, I was out in the kitchen preparing break fast when Rose came in to look for a silk scarf. I went and got her her wool one. The result was that she sulked because she wanted to wear the silk one. I scolded her and told her she must not treat her mother so. All the time my husband was sitting in the other room. While Rose was grumbling and I was talking to her he called me—light before the child, of course—"Go hire a hall! That's what you need for your preaching. You're just like the rest of your whole family, talking instead of acting."

Do you know what he means by "acting"? He means beatings. But I do not believe in beatings. I have tried to talk to Rose. I have taken her on my lap and told her how she should talk and act toward her mother. I have told her that some day she will be a mother and she will not like it when her little girl is impudent to her. I have also scolded her at times and even slapped her lightly. Those slaps my husband calls "love pats."

Tell me what's wrong. I told my husband that as a father he should also correct the children—that they get no need to their mother that they don't pay any attention to her, whereas the father, who is home for just a few hours, could steer them on the right track and I expect my responsibility from me. Instead of helping me he insults me unmercifully, as he did this morning—before the children.

And I'm supposed to stand there, Elsie, and not say a word. Just so soon as I open my mouth he brings up some mix, brings in my family, calls me "big mouth," "dumb-bell," "crazy-head," and lots of other things. And the result is I get in—another tears.

What and who is to blame, Elsie? I'm a good wife and mother, my home is comfort, my children's shabby are made by myself, I never go out—always home house-cleaning, baking, sewing. Yet you know that as a mother I'm a failure. Tell me, Elsie, am I? And if so, where and how have I failed?

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a married woman of thirty-four. I have always helped my husband in business and have kept an attractive home and I have always taken care of myself and my clothes.

I am also the mother of four healthy children.

I have had very little pleasure during the eleven years I have been married. Now my husband has turned on me because of his mother. I am not to blame and I pray constantly that he will see his mistake before a separation becomes necessary.

It is constant torture to live in the same house with him. But my children are all I have and I would stand everything for them.

However, all of this is ruining my health to such an extent that I fear for their future. Please tell me what to do.

M. F. C.

M. F. C.: I doubt that your husband is entirely to blame. It is natural and right that he should be fond of his mother. If he were not a fond son he would not make a devoted husband and father.

In these "in-law" conflicts, the mother-in-law is too frequently blamed for everything. It is a subject that lends itself to humor. But not a point in fact you have probably been the cause of more than one quarrel with your mother-in-law. You have probably on several occasions, lost your temper and said things that your husband had every reason to resent.

I would suggest that you call a truce. If you really wish to restore harmony in your home. Simply determine to have no quarrel with your mother-in-law. You know that the old proverb that "it takes two to make a quarrel."

Don't be so ready to take umbrage at little criticisms from your mother-in-law.

Don't lose your temper. Don't say bitter things. If you simply refuse to pick up the glove every time she throws it down, it won't be long before your mother-in-law will co-operate with you in an effort to keep the peace. In fact, I would suggest the peace. In fact, I would suggest a very frank talk with her. Explain to her that your desire to means threaten the wholesomeness of your marriage. I am sure if she thought you were willing to reason and compromise, she would be glad to do anything to save her only son's marriage from ruin.

If you could only bring yourself to understand that your mother-in-law is not an ogre, but a perfectly human creature, chiefly concerned with the welfare of her son. You are a mother yourself. Don't you realize that at some time you might find yourself in a similar situation—with a daughter-in-law, who refuses to compromise?

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

Christine tied an apron over her frock and began to butter thin slices of bread. "Gosh, I am tired!" sighed Nina. "I wish you had come earlier."

"I tried to, but I am worried about Junior. I won't dare stay long, because Vivian's road thru girl very much. He had one of his spells of high spirits this evening, and I'm afraid it has left him very tired."

"He's be a temperamental young-ster?" asked Nina.

"He is exactly like his father," Christine said quickly, as if she dread hark an unwelcome thought. "Just as brilliant and gay and laughing. I think he had one of his spells of high spirits this evening, and I'm afraid it has left him very tired."

"He's be a temperamental young-ster?" asked Nina.

"He is exactly like his father," Christine said quickly, as if she dread hark an unwelcome thought. "Just as brilliant and gay and laughing. I think he had one of his spells of high spirits this evening, and I'm afraid it has left him very tired."

"Oh, good Heavens, you are not going to stay the maternal longing, are you, Christine? There is the bell. Somebody's arrived. Finish up the sandwiches, will you?"

Christine remained in the kitchenette while the rest of the guests arrived. One of them called his head through the opening door and said:

"Great jumping catfish! Look what Nina's got working for her now! Lizzie, I'm going to help."

He came in, and Christine laughingly tied an apron around his waist. They finished the sandwiches together, stopping for a surreptitious cocktail or two. Their absence was finally noticed by the rest of the party, who invaded the kitchenette and dragged them forth.

"No cooking so early in the evening!" one of the men declared. "And besides, I have simply enjoyed the kitchenette for that purpose later tonight."

The group settled itself on cushions on the floor. The cigarettes were passed around and the evening's babble of conversation began.

It was then that Christine noticed the new man who sat a little apart from the others. Introductions were always dispensed with at Nina's, so she whispered to her neighbor:

"Who is the tall, dark, attractive one who looks at us as if we were fodder for dinner?"

"That's Sandy—Henry Sanford, the millionaire."

Christine rose deliberately, walked over to the thin dark man by the fireplace and seated herself beside him. She looked up at him with her most enchanting smile.

"I write."

His brows lifted.

"Books? Poems? Plays?"

She gazed frankly at him.

"I have written a play—it isn't finished yet."

Nina, who happened to be passing with a plate of sandwiches, overheard her confession and shrieked:

"A play? Why, Chris, you never told me anything about it. What on earth do you know about writing a play?"

The whole crowd chuckled and laughed unmercifully.

Christine flushed, but she declared valiantly:

"I don't know anything yet, but I'm going to learn."

She saw very that she had confessed her secret. She hadn't told a soul that her contact with the theatrical work had inspired in her the desire to write playlets. On all sides she heard the chant: "Play? see easy to write; they are the simplest vehicles of expression, and, once you get a hit, you are famous. Everybody is doing it — perfectly obscene young writers!"

Christine had believed this, and, for a long time now, she had been working at night on a play that thrilled her with its possibilities. She was confident that she had something worth while, for she had put into it all of the hard experiences through which she had passed. It was a living, vital thing, because it was the truth. She did not realize how bitter it was.

The crowd teased her unmercifully about her fledgling venture and demanded that she read it.

Only Sanford seemed sympathetic to Christine asked him reproachfully:

"When the play is finished, will you read it?"

"Surely," he agreed. "With pleasure."

Nina called to her from across the room:

"Forget about the play, Chris! Come on and dance for us. We know you can do that, anyway."

A space was cleared in the center of the floor. Somebody played the piano and Christine danced.

Her little evening frock—the only one she had—bouffed plumply on a ridiculous in the theatrical district, excited around her slim body. Her hair, dressed on the latest mode, tumbled about her face she was a delightful little figure, graceful as a leaf blown in the breeze. But the dance was not the dance which had captivated Meyer Cashbert in the Paradise restaurant and had puzzled the critics as to the reason for the prevalence of the slim, sweet girl.

There was a bit more pep in Christine's dancing now. She had picked up new steps that just missed being eccentric. The crowd shrieked and applauded vociferously.

She finished with a mad whirlwind finish, exhausted and panting, into the arms of one of the men.

"She'd be a wow on a vaudeville. Don't you think so, Sandy?" Nina asked the millionaire, who had watched the performance. But he did not wait for his answer, because there was a call for more cocktails, and she had to hurry to the kitchenette.

AMERICAS MOVE SLOWLY TO WEST?

Canada Carries Out Investigations With Other Countries

Ottawa, Ont., March 5 (Canadian Press, Despatch)—The first state of an investigation into a theory that the Americans have been drifting westward has been completed, Canada and twenty-nine other countries participated in the scientific effort to prove the theory first held by Wegener, an Australian geophysicist.

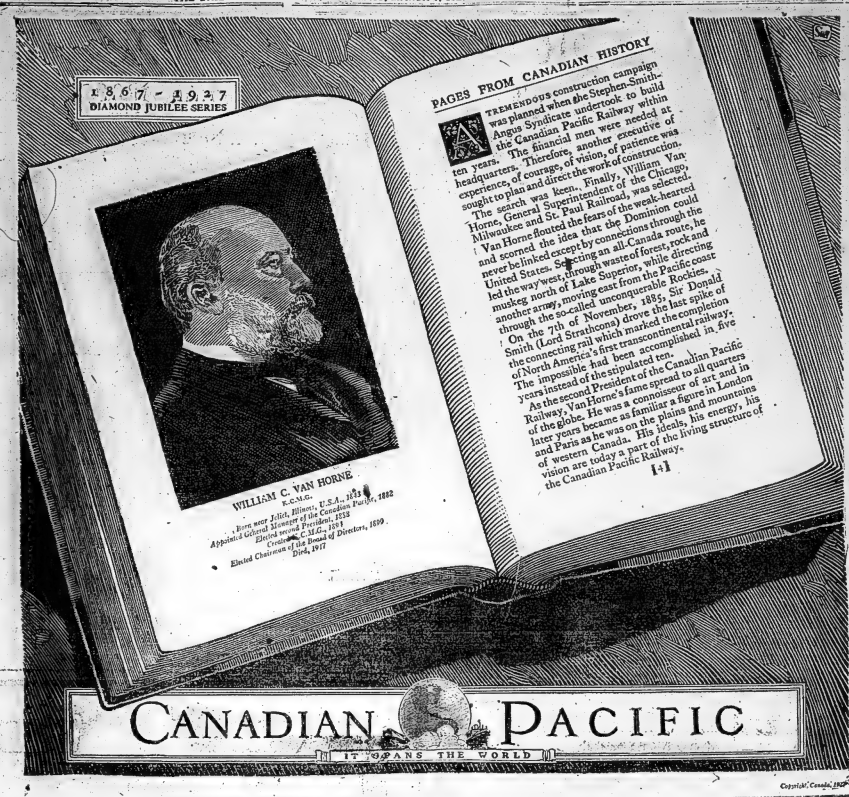

Briefly the theory is that in the progress of the ages the Americans have been gradually drifting westward; it is claimed that existence of a coast range of mountains extending throughout the whole length of these continents is simply the effect of buckleggage crushing at the forward edge due to this drift; the present rate of the drift is estimated at one metre a year.

Through an international arrangement forty stations distributed in thirty countries were united in a longitude net by astronomical observations coupled with radio time signals. The relative longitude of these stations having been determined, it will be possible by a repetition of the observations at some future date to definitely settle the question of continental drift.

Canada took part in the investigation by occupying two stations, one at Ottawa and the other at Vancouver. At each station two telescopes were constantly in use as well as auxiliary equipment of clocks, chronometers and wireless instruments. At Ottawa astronomical observations were obtained on thirty-two nights, and at Vancouver on twenty-five. At each place wireless time signals from five different sending stations were received, and measured at all hours of the day and night, the total number of distinct signals amounting to over 1,200. Observations to determine the relative personal equations of the four observers engaged were made at the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, both before and after the four series of observations.

Other investigations have established many favorable points in connection with the theory of drift. It has been determined that the substratum underlying the surface from of the earth is not absolutely rigid but is susceptible, under the action of long-continued stresses, to gradual deformation. Thus continents may be considered as floating on a substratum which, when considered over long periods of time, acts like a semi-viscous fluid. It has also been proved that at any time there was a much closer association between the forms of plant and animal life on the Americas and Europe and Africa.

EIGHT TEAMS ENTER INDOOR BALL LEAGUE

Each Girls' Team Allowed Four Bay of Quinte Players

Unmistakable enthusiasm was manifested at the indoor ball meeting in the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday evening. The Ladies' League is now an assured success as the following have entered, the League Patricia, managed by Cec. Anderson and John Kerr; Porter Ward, Jim McKenna; Deacon Shirt, Joe Goyer, and Belleville High School, Walter Gerow and Miss Merry. The Frontenac Paper Box and, Al Club were represented but it was deemed advisable to operate only a four-team group, running a double schedule.

Several matters of importance were settled. Ken Colling occupied the chair.

It was decided to hold another meeting on Thursday night when the final preliminaries will be completed and he League will be ready to do business.

At this meeting each manager must submit a list of 15 players to the Secretary, each player to attach his or her own name to the paper. These lists will be compared and no one Player's name may appear on two lists.

It was decided to allow each team in the Ladies' League to use four Bay of Quinte League players, that is those who played last season. Provided they played in one, If of Q. game they will be classed in that category.

The entrance fee for men's teams is $1.00,with a $5.00 forfeit fee, and for the girls' teams the fee is $1.00 entrance plus $2.00 forfeit which will be returned to each team after the season is over, providing they have a full team on deck each time scheduled.

Allan Meagher was added to the umpires' staff and will be an extra member, in case one of the other three cannot be present.

The four men's teams were all represented and managers report their teams ready to go.

Team representatives are urged to bear in mind the fact that the lists and ties must be ready for Thursday night.

The Point Anne team requested that their games be scheduled first in the evening. This will be adhered to as much as possible.

JUST A STIMULATOR

Richford, Vt., March 5.—After paying a fine of $100 here for illegal possession of liquor, the Boston Tigers, professional hockey team, was allowed to proceed to Boston, last night.

The men were detained at the border after 85 bottles of liquor had been found in the special car in which they were enroute from Quebec to Boston. Twenty of those bottles were found in the suit cases of the fourteen men who made up the party, according to customs officers.

The men disclaimed ownership of 65 bottles, but were fined $5 for each of the 20 bottles found in their baggage.

Indoor Ball

The indoor ball season will get away within the next week or two. With Ken Colling at the head the League has certainly picked a capable official and Ken is working hard to get the circuit under way. A double-header each night will be staged and the girls' games should be an added attraction to the fans.

The Hockey Banquet

The tickets for the hockey banquet for the City and Industrial Leagues are going fast. The City League Cup, emblematic of the 1927 title, will be presented to the Y's Men's Club. Short speeches by the team managers and some of the officials with a little sing song will wind up the season. It is expected that several fine players will be present and those who are selling tickets are asked to make a report by Thursday in order that the ladies who are supplying the "eats" may know how many to prepare for.

Baseball Locally

For the past seven years Belleville has been recruited as rosaceae for one of the classiest ball clubs in the Province but this year things "don't look so good." There has been little enthusiasm manifested thus far and it appears as though Senior ball might have seen its best days here. All of the members of last year's team with the exception of Collette and Palmer are still in the city and to make up for these, Scott, formerly of Kingston Ponies and Harper, who pastimed with the Athenaeums in Toronto, are available. But the big problem has resolved itself into securing a pitcher of Central League calibre. "Cilly" Coyer is still in Belleville and will be ready for the cold game, but he cannot carry all of the burden. It's about time a meeting was called to discuss the general feeling in regard to the matter. The annual meeting of the League has been set for the 25th of March. Cairns has departed from Kingston which will leave Joe Daley up against it for a real good ballsman. It has been proposed that an intermediate team be entered but it is doubtful if this calibre of ball would appeal to the public in Belleville where it has nearly always been a dismal failure. The same might cause a great dropping off in attendance. It's certainly a pity that a city like Belleville with a fine new ball park cannot retain a senior club. The patronage has always been of the best and the Nationals were given better support than either the Kingston or Peterboro teams last year. It is to be hoped that the Central League may continue to function and the fans may be treated to the same class of ball as they have in the past.

Kingston have promised, to give fandom there high-class ball whether the Central League exists or not. There are plenty of New York State teams that could be brought into the Limestone City for exhibition games at a small cost.

MAROONS BATTLE RANGERS TO TIE

Montreal, March 7.—For the third time this season the Montreal Maroons battled through a full overtime game on their home ice to a scoreless deadlock. Meeting the New York Rangers at the Forum Saturday night before close to 11,000 spectators in a game which the Maroons needed to win to keep them well to the front to qualify for a play-off position, the local team at least managed to pick up one useful point to aid their cause. The tie, synchronizing with the defeat of the New York Americans at Boston, put the Montrealers four points ahead of the Americans in third place, though the margin is slim enough considering the heavy six-game schedule remaining for the titleholders as compared with the comparatively light six games for Newsy Lalonde's club.

Ottawa, March 7.—"Rabbit" McVeigh, substitute right wing for the Chicago Black Hawks, broke up a stirring National Hockey League tussle here Saturday night with an overtime goal that gave his team a 2-1 verdict over the Senators of Ottawa. The winning tally came after seventeen minutes and forty seconds of extra play on a two-man break, in which Bob Trapp carried the disc for in, to give McVeigh a pass, and was a fitting climax to a contest that was nip and tuck in every sense of the phrase.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 7.—The Canadiens of Montreal, came from behind to defeat Pittsburgh here in a bitterly fought National Hockey League game 2 to 1. Scores by Morenz and Gagne in the third period enabled the Canadiens to triumph. Both tallies were well earned, Morenz's marker being a difficult shot from the right side of the ice.

Toronto, March 7.—Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Detroit Cougars 4-2 in a National Hockey League game here Saturday night in a tussle which, with nothing important hanging on the outcome so far as the standing of the teams was concerned,

H. S. BASKETEERS WIN AND LOSE

Two games of basketball were played at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night. The first between the "Y" Girls and B.H.S. was won by the "Y" team with a score 33-32. The second, a boy's game between B.H.S. and Trenton was won by B.H.S. with the first game was a tie, 14-14 at the end of the first half but in the second half the "Y" Girls gained six teen baskets more than B.H.S. C. Crull and F. Shalders were able forwards on the "Y" team while Mary Roberts and Lina Haines, forwards, were hard workers for B.H.S.

The boys' game was a commercially easy victory for B.H.S. The Trenton boys had a fairly good passing system but the B.H.S. boys proved good checks and easily gained possession of the ball. Davison, centre, was a splendid player for B.H.S. while Nelson, defense, was the star of his Trenton team.

The line-up:

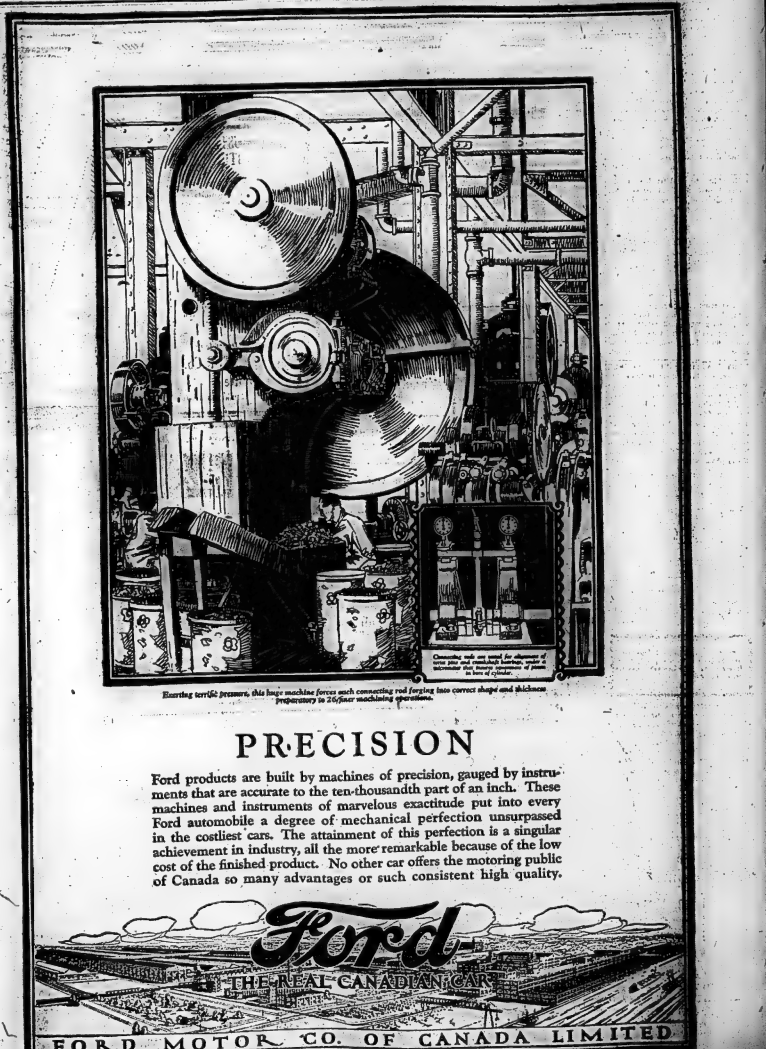

"Y" Girls—Forwards, C. Crull, F. Shelders; jumping centre, E. Porter; side centre, S. Melchior; defense, F. Melchior, M. Code.

B.H.S.—Forwards, M. Roberts, L. Haines; jumping centre, K. Wheeler; side-centre, L. Sprague; defense, M. Fairbairn, J. MacLaurin, A. Twinhan.

Trenton—Forwards, Raymond, Axis; centre, Taylor, Langood; defense, Nelson, Marshall, Carter, Cantel.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Rex Ingram's "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" the film that brought fame to Rudolph Valentino, will be seen at the Capitol three days commencing today. Alice Terry plays opposite him in this screen epic which is a vivid picturization of the famous Blasco Ibanez novel.

An enormous cast was employed by Director Ingram with phenomenal success in translating the great novel to the screen. It's first showing in New York, Chicago, and the other larger centres, aroused great enthusiasm and it was heralded by critics as one of the truly great pictures of all time. Don't miss this wonderful film.

BELLE THEATRE

Sending to destruction the trusty driver which had become a mascot by letting it run wild down the side of California's steepest mountains, followed the filming of the last scene of "The Nervous Wreck," the new Al Christie comedy coming to the Belle theatre today Tuesday and Wednesday. As director Scott Sidney placed the camera batteries along hillsides, cameramen and riders, the players—Harrison Ford, Phyllis Haver, Chester Conklin, Mack Swain, Hobart Bosworth, Clarence Burton, Vera Steadman, Paul Nicholson and Charles Gerrard—watched the tragic end of the machine which for six weeks had been practically a member of the cast.

New and unusual camera effects were experimented with and tried out on the precipitous sides of the machine by Alex Phillips and his assistant cameramen, in order to photograph new thrills and sensations in the chase which preceded the event as well as the fall itself.

A number of cars, bearing California as well as foreign license tags, were parked along the mountain road to watch the filming, and upon its completion the occupants descended to the bottom of the canyon where they secured souvenir scraps of the car which they were told they would see on the screen when "The Nervous Wreck" was presented. Autographs were requested and given by the cast scratched on the unusual medium of pieces of the Ford.

HYDRO RATES

Orlando, March 7.—The next stage in the fight being waged by the Central Ontario Power Association for retention of former Hydro rates and a rebate on the new rates recently put into force without notice all over the Central Ontario area will come on March 15th and 16th, when the Executive goes to Toronto. On the evening of the 15th, president F. L. Mason and his executive will meet in Toronto and discuss the plan of campaign for the summer. On the 16th they will attend in a body at the offices of the Hydro Electric Power Commission on University Avenue.

APPOINTED POSTMASTER

Kingston, Ont., March 7.—Edgar Cook Hillcock, a returned soldier, has been appointed Acting Postmaster of Riverston. He will be given permanent charge next June. Mr. Hillcock has a splendid record of war service and still needs in Toronto and discuss the plan of campaign for the summer.

PAINTERS ON STRIKE

Kingston, March 7.—The boss painters have up until the present time refused to grant an increase in wages to the union painters and decorators with the result that about forty members of the Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers' Union have ceased to work.

Some time ago the union wrote the bosses asking that commencing March 1st, 1927, that there be an increase in wages of ten cents per hour. The bosses, it is understood, decided that they would not comply with the request with the result that the workmen ceased on March 1st and have not returned to their work as yet.

VAULT TO BE PURCHASED

Kingston, March 2.—A steel vault has been specified for the office of the chief adjutant of the Royal Military College, and in it will be placed the books containing the photographs of the cadets of the college since the year 1876. Ever since the day that the college was started it has been the policy to keep photos and the signatures of all the graduates. The photos are placed in beautiful leather covered books. For some time the need of a steel vault has been felt, but it was only recently that the Department of Militia and Defence decided the funds to purchase it.

BRIMS MARK THE MEASURE OF CHIC IN NEW HATS

OF all the features that go to make the New Hats so alluring, brims are the most subtle. Cleverly varied, in whimsical fashion, they give the hats the proper note of distinction. Lovely coloring, smart touches of pleats and tucks in the crown, unusual finishings make the new hats most appealing to the women who look for something different in their head wear.

WHY CAMPBELL'S HATS ARE DISTINCTIVE

Miss Ada Robinson, head designer at Miss Campbell's has spent the two winter months on the staff of Gainsborough, style creators, and has returned to reorganize in Miss Campbell's shop all that is new in millinery.

Individuality is the key note in this establishment. Miss Campbell has no factory-made hats. All models are hand-made or copies of New York and Parisian hats. In her workroom are developed exclusive styles for the delight of discriminating women.

$3000 PAID FOR HISTORIC SUITE

Toronto, Ont., March 5 (Canadian Press Dispatch).—A fine old early American suite of drawing room furniture consisting of settee, chairs and fancifully topped table, five pieces in all, which once graced the drawing room of Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, wife of America's great emancipator, and which for a number of years has been in the possession of C. L. Bedlict of Perth, Ont., has been sold to Henry Ford, the motor king, who will use them in conjunction with his plan to reproduce a facsimile of the old Lincoln Homestead, at Springfield, Ill. The historic suite realized $2,000.

Mrs. Lincoln, after the tragic death of her husband, the president, lived in Chicago with the Alston family, who were old friends. In 1867 she sold her household effects and John Alston bought her parlor suite, all of which are described in a detailed inventory, which is recedpted by Mrs. Abraham Lincoln herself, and is still in existence. The furniture is of particularly early American design, heavily carved, of rosewood, and in an excellent state of preservation. It has been reupholstered recently.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

Kira was allowed to chatter to her heart's content through the rest of the meal, and Maude looked on, without seeming to do so, at the pouting face of seeming beauty. He felt the greatest scorn and the little child, who evidently worshiped him with all her fondle heart. Maude believed that the softness in his eyes as they rested on the pretty, baby face was not all for the second leg sacrificed little child about his clothes, the reader may be disappointed to be told that he was not only willful. Maude found herself pondering over and wondering at his simplicity, his quaintness; they provided no clue as to what was the man he had seen dealt that terrible blow a few hours ago.

When she went into the drawing-room by herself she was conscious of an unusual restlessness. All her life she had been no one of herself, a creature of habit and reflection, she felt, as the weak been able to hold her own not only with the world at large, but with her own spirit. To-night she was opposed by a strange lack of self-reliance, as if the solid earth of her composure were going way beneath her. Presently she drifted to the piano and began to play and sing, and when Rafe came in and looked within the room she would not stop, but composed herself to go on. He went and stood at the mantelpiece behind her, but when she had finished he made no remark, offered no thanks, and as not her will, she glanced over her shoulder at him. She was startled by the expression of his face. He looked like a man wrapped in a dream, a dream of such subtle delight that he dared the awakening from it.

The fact was that Rafe had suddenly discovered what music was to him possible—he would have been amazed if the voice had been that of any ordinary good singer, but it was not only the sound, were expressive to him, but her. Without a word, scarcely turning his head he waved his hand toward the piano. She went on to sing the conventional question: "Are you fond of music, Signor?" But instead, it her own assurance, she began to perform as if it were one of a romantic and passionate. With her he made a gesture of despair and of the piano. She did not move, but sat quite still, quite still, her breath coming almost painfully from her heart. The question which had overwhelmed him had been communicated to her. When at last he rose, she was conscious that she was trembling slightly.

As for Rafe, he was still standing up in his pipe, and looked for gravely. Her voice was still ringing in his ears and in his heart, but his expression was now one of actual pain, for she seemed to him to be still further removed. His star was shining in the loftiest step of heaven and for her sake his reach. He knew that he ought to have thanked her for singing for him but he had been powerless to speak, for her voice added to her beauty, had added to him the strong man's passion in him, the passion which will not bow words, which can only find expression action. As he stood at the fireplace, fumbling his pipe, and looked for a look at her, he felt the desire to take her in his arms and crush her to him should be overmaster him.

He must to apologize the next morning for his rudeness, his want of manners, but though he had rehearsed the words he was sure him no opportunity of speaking them. She greeted him with her usual calm; she was quite friendly, but her shadow was more marked than it had ever been before. In short, she held him at arms' length, whiskey down."

Personal Comment

By Mrs. E. Johnson

"Bell Crove, N. B.—"I became very weak and could not do my work. My nerves were all run down, in fact, I did not care if I lived or not. I also suffered with indigestion. I was getting pretty badly discouraged when a friend advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I am very glad to say it helped me right from the start. Now I am well and like a new person. I will always recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine after that. I give permission to publish this letter trusting it may be the means of helping some other sufferer back to health."—Signed) Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson.

New Collegiate Laid Over --- Captain Smith Known In Oklahoma 2 Years Before Wreck

GREATER LOSSES BEING REPORTED FROM THE QUAKE

Speculative Despatch Places Dead and Injured at Over 5000

FOREIGNERS HURT

Damage to Wires Delays Gathering of Full Information

Tokio, Mar. 8.—Despatches trickling in from over crippled telephone and telegraph lines indicate that the casualties in yesterday's earthquake in Japan, including both dead and injured, may reach five thousand. This figure, however, is speculative Telegrams to Hoehi Shimbun, prefectural police reports as authority, for the statement that there were one thousand casualties in Mie prefecture and four other nearby villages, which were destroyed.

Several foreigners are reported to have been injured at Osaka and Kobe but their names are not given. A number of army aeroplanes have gone to Tango region from Kyoto to investigate the damage. This district, which was hardest hit, is not heavily populated but is studded with small villages the inhabitants of which are employed in the production of silk. The stock exchanges and exchange against the Yen were apparently little affected today, thus indicating the belief that the earth quake damage was not great economically.

In the report of City Auditor H. B. Stock on the Belleville Gas Company for the year ending December 31st last as put low for the twelve months of $7,843.47 is shown. This is largely due to a depreciation in revenue as shown in the following figures:

Gross Loss 1926, $7,407.23; 1925, $10,-115.42, increase 2,017.79.

The funded debt of the Gas Department is listed as 1—A debenture under sinking fund plan (twenty years) for $10,000 issued Jan. 1st, 1910 and maturing January 1st 1935. 2—A debenture under serial plan for $12,113.38 is maintained the remaining eighty dollars being repaid in 1926. 3—A debenture for $12,000 under serial plan which remains unpaid originating from 1922 to 1926.

Mr. Stock found the accounts of the Gas Department all in good shape and the surety bonds in proper order.

C. N. R. GRANTED RIGHT TO BUILD

The Canadian National Railway was given permission by the City Council last night to connect up their stub line on Pinnacle street with the Dower mine Branch line. Certain provisions were inserted that the connecting link must meet with the approval of the City Engineer and the agreement will be drawn up and approved by the City Solicitor.

In his report on the matter to Council City Engineer Campbell suggested that the C.N.R. tracks on Pinnacle street from the proposed new switch to Dundas street be laid on a solid cinder ballast and that from Dundas street south Pinnacle street be repaved with a vitrified brick surface. The sidewalk on the east side of Pinnacle street from Dundas street south on the main railway line Mr. Campbell suggested should be repaired on a straight grade. The excavated material from the track allowance would be used to embrace a roadway on this section to the new elevation.

NEW COLLEGIATE QUESTION HELD UNTIL THE MAYOR GETS BACK HOME

Special Meeting of City Council Called For Next Monday

COL. PONTON OPPOSES

Board of Education Has Resolution All Ready For Aldermen

At a special meeting of the Board of Education held in the City Hall last night a requisition for the necessary funds for the new Collegiate Institute was presented to the City Council. The City Fathers had the matter over until next Monday, when upon the return of the Mayor a special meeting of the Council will be held.

The adoption of the resolution called along very smoothly until it ran into a ragged rock in the form of Colonel W. N. Ponton. The Colonel of course had been against the idea of the building of a new Collegiate Institute ever since the birth of the thought, but very that an odd $320,000 is too much money to spend on the new institution of learning.

The Board meeting was of exceptionally short duration, but Colonel Ponton resumed some very pithy arguments against the passing of the requisition in the thirty odd minutes of the meeting.

"I know I will be outvoted on this matter," said the Colonel, "but I wish to go on record as being amongst the many."

"I look forward to five years hence when Belleville will be such a handsden community that property owners will sell their property and leave and prospective purchases will be frightened away from settling in the city. I may not be here to pass judgment upon today, but upon to-morrow."

The Colonel then mentioned the fact that Kitchener, a city twice the size of Belleville had rejected the thought of a new Collegiate and had inaugurated the old control in the new one, believing that taxation would be too heavy for its citizens to bear.

Mr. John Elliott responded by quoting figures that proved that in comparison to size, even after building the new Collegiate Institute, Belleville would have a lower rate of taxation than Kitchener.

"Colonel Ponton," said Mr. Elliott, "you remind me of the story about the eminent in Scotland that was marching down the street, and one man was out of step. The man's mother said that

IDENTIFICATION OF CAPT. SMITH IS NOT CERTAIN

Apparently Dead Man Lived in Oklahoma Town Since 1916

BEFORE WRECK

Son Still Thinks The Remains Are Those of His Father

Harrah, Okla., March 8—Death's seal today continued to prevent the positive identification of a man known here as John Wesley Smith, whose friends believe left his family at Belleville, Ontario, to secretly start life anew as a produce dealer in this inland town after the vessel he commanded foundered ten years ago.

Captain Smith and eleven others, including his wife and five children, were listed as victims of the sea when his coal schooner, George E. Marsh, took off Pigeon Island, near Kingston, Ontario, August 8, 1917. This report was accepted until yesterday when relatives at Belleville made public a letter from Ben Wilson, Master of the local Masonic Lodge, telling of Smith's death here three days after the fatal March 2nd. Wilson said, without revealing his experiences at sea and without reference to any relatives at Belleville, except by say two years ago that he had learned his wife was dead.

Smith, however, told Wilson the name of the Masonic Lodge at Belleville with instructions to communicate with that Chapter only after his death. He swore Wilson to secrecy regarding the meagre details he gave of his life.

Feared From Belleville

Wilson said he recently received a letter from Horace Smith, son of the sea captain, telling of his father's disappearance. He assured Wilson he believed the dead man was his father and offered to come here if necessary. Friends of the aged man questioned the identity when Wilson declared he had known him for more than two years before the schooner was wrecked. He said the man came here from Newalla, Oklahoma, in 1915, from where he had lived in Oklahoma City. He was about sixty years old and had built up a small produce business here. His estate was estimated at upwards of $3,000. The funeral will be held here tomorrow night unless other instructions are received from Belleville.

Thinks It Is His Father

Despite the statements made by Ben Wilson, Master of the Masonic Lodge in Harrah to the effect that he knew the dead man in 1915, two years previous to the sinking of the ship, Horace Smith is still firmly convinced that the man is his father and has taken steps in motion to notify the authorities there as to the disposal of the body and is still waiting for the photos which he says will clear the mystery.

SICK MAN BORNE OUT OF DANGER

When his home and all the contents were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Dyers' friends in Corbyn rallied to their assistance and by evening had completely furnished the new home. The flames gained rapid progress in the frame and stone building and it was soon levelled to the ground. Mr. Dyers was carried from the house in his bed and taken to a neighbour's house.

Features of the Bill

The features of the Government Control Bill, as it finally passed the Cabinet Council at an early hour this morning are:

Respect for local option areas and provision for a three-fifths vote to change over.

No sale of beer by the glass or with meals.

Permits to be given tourists and transients.

Allocation of stores to be left to Liquor Commission.

Severe penalties to be enforced against law-breakers.

CLEARING DECKS OF CIVIL CASES

All Except One Are Laid Over For Next Assizes

In his address to the Grand Jury this afternoon the Hon. Mr. Justice Logie who is presiding at the Spring Assizes, referring to the docket, said "Observe that there is only one case to come before the jury and it is a serious one in which Abraham Robinson is charged with murder. You do not try the case", he said, "You only hear one side and you may or may not hand in a true bill against the accused.

INADEQUATE EQUIPMENT

"It is your duty", he said to the jury "to inspect the County buildings and equipment during your stay here. We observe that the very seats that you are sitting in are a disgrace to the County of Hastings. Similarly the Judges room is a disgrace and the judges of the old days would no doubt have refused to have sat in such a room."

"You may consider", he concluded "a recommendation in order that the next Grand Jury may enjoy more adequate accommodations."

CIVIL CASES

C. A. Cameron, solicitor for Mr. Wood, appeared in a suit bought about by Frank Smith relating to an automobile accident on the Trent Road several months ago asking for an adjournment until the next Assizes. To this Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, solicitor for the plaintiff, agreed.

The case of Fuller vs Shoemaker a false arrest which came up at the last session but which it is understood, was out of court. Porter, Butler and Payne were solicitors for the plaintiff, Fuller; while Mr. J. Smith, of Trenton acted for the Shoemakers.

EVANGELISTS AT KIWANIS LUNCH

Many and varied are the addresses delivered to local Kiwanians from week to week by prominent men in every walk of life. Today's talk was no exception to the interesting and valuable series the Club members have been enjoying, for the speaker was none other than the well-known Evangelist, Rev. R. J. Crowley, D.D.

Dr. Crowley, a man some seventy-odd years of age, is the advocate of a system of body exercises which he has now practised and to which he attributes the good health and excellent physical condition he now enjoys. It was this system which the speaker briefly outlined to Kiwanians today, and not only outlined, but demonstrated; exercising first the arms, legs, hands, body, etc., combine to complete the series, for which five minutes morning and evening suffice.

Dr. Crowley pointed out some of the advantages of the system of exercise he advocated, which had proven so advantageous in his own case, and which, he maintained, results if conscientiously followed, effect an increase of from one to several years in the life of the average man.

Rev. J. H. Leonard contributed a well received vocal solo.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

The only jewel which you can carry beyond the grave is wisdom.—LANGFORD.

UP TO COUNCIL

At last night's meeting of the Board of Education a resolution was prepared and passed calling on the City Council to provide forthwith the necessary funds to build a new Collegiate and Vocational School according to the plans submitted and to cost $500,294.94.

After a conference with the City Council it was agreed to hold this resolution over for a special meeting next Monday evening when Mayor Wilmot is expected to be present.

The issue is now squarely up to the Aldermen. They will have to assume the responsibility of either granting the money or of insisting that the people who have to pay the bills decide the matter for themselves.

It is generally admitted that the present Collegiate Building is too small and is in a bad state of repair. But no one can blame the Council if it decides that the expenditure of so much money is a question which the ratepayers are entitled to settle for themselves and order the matter referred to them for decision.

OF REAL IMPORTANCE

Parliament is shortly to consider a bill to revive a modified Georgian Bay canal project. The original charter was granted 33 years ago to a group which proposed linking up the Ottawa River with Lake Nipissing and thereby providing a cut-off from Lake Huron to Montreal. After a third of a century no start has been made on the ambitious and highly speculative undertaking for which it provides.

Against this there is the St. Lawrence shipway and power project, infinitely more important from the standpoint of the interests of Canada as a whole. This offers a reduction of not less than six cents a bushel on the cost of exports of the Western wheat crop. It would establish vast savings to all the people in the central section of Canada and the United States in every item of import and export trade, for it would make the lake ports for all practical purposes into sea ports. It is an under taking of equal value to the United States and Canada, and in the long run would not cost either country anything to construct because the hydro-electric power development involved in it would eventually pay the whole cost.

The United States is anxious to get on with this important project. Engineers for both countries have examined it in detail. Sentiment in Canada outside of Montreal is almost unanimous in supporting it. As compared to the Georgian Bay canal scheme its advantages are overwhelming. It is practicable, offers an enormous saving in transportation costs, and will pay its own way.

Why, then, should Canada be fiddling with Georgian Bay canal charters? From the point of view of transportation costs it is a waste of time and money for parliament to give serious thought to it. If there are other interests involved, they should be stated and dealt with on their merits. Certainly the West would view with alarm the resuscitation at this time of our long sleeping friend the Georgian Bay canal scheme. The St. Lawrence waterway project has right-of-way and no distracting factor should be permitted to obscure it.

GOOD TEMPER

The march of British troops through Shanghai may be unwelcome to the Bolshevik agents in that city. But the Chinese population will speedily discover that the British soldiers can be good friends. It has been mainly by good temper and lighthearted dash in such situations that our race has established and maintained the amazing Empire that history has ever known. Mr. Rudyard Kipling, of course, is suspect to our cranks and highbrows, but he has expressed the literal truth when he says that the British position in the world is "all an eminence of temper, good will, reliability, accommodation."

We may, perhaps, suspect Mark Twain of a touch of irony in his assertion that the British are mentioned in the Bible because it is there said that "the meek shall inherit the earth." But the fact remains that wherever men of British stock are in direct contact with other peoples as administrators or protectors, their relations with those whom they govern or protect are excellent so long as there are no malicious outside influences stirring up hatred against them by lying propaganda.

The capacity for light-heartedness even in the grimmest conditions of the British troops in the Great War was a cause of constant marvel to foreign observers—and the British soldier was then the British citizen in khaki. Our men could endure with a jest. In 1914, Nothing made a deeper impression on our Italian allies than the bearing of the British infantry who were sent in 1917 to the support of General Diaz on the Piave. They came straight from days of slaughter in the mud before Ypres but they marched to their new battle front laughing and singing, with a gaiety that was infectious and reassuring.

It is this good temper and cheerfulness of the British people that will prevent the Bolsheviks from ever establishing their depraved, unproveribing, misery-making system in our midst. Bolshevism is something wholly alien to the British national character. No one could for the life of him imagine Lenin or Trotsky ever making a harmless joke or indulging in any but a Satanic kind of laugh. The Bolshevik ruffian is a gloomy, dismal, morbid creature; and recent visitors to Scotland are struck with the utter depression and dejection of the hapless people who are doomed to exist there because there is no escape. Russia is in tragic fact an even more wretched place today than it was represented in the Russian novels of the Czarist regime, where everyone is depicted as plunged in moping melancholy.

THE POOL OF SLEEP

I dragged my body to the pool of sleep
Leaning to drink; but ere my throbbing lip
From the cool flood one Dreadful night dip,
The wave sank fluttering to some unknown deep.
With aching eyes that could not even weep,
I saw the dark deluding water slip,
Slow eddying, down, the weeds and mosses drip
With maddening waste, I watched the surest tide creep
A little higher, but to fall more fast.
Fevered and wounded in the strife of men
I hunted with anguish, till endurance past,
The faint crept upward; sank, and rose again—
Smelled slowly, slowly, slowly—Oh at last!
My seared lips met the soothing wave; and then.....

ANOTHER CYCLONE

It is feared that it has swept the island of Madagascar, where there are many deaths and intensive property damage from last week's cyclone. As yet there is no report as to the actual number of dead at Madagascar, but there is confirmation that the town of Tamatave, on the east coast was virtually wiped out by Thursday's storm.

Introducing Canada's Greatest Chain Store System

FORTY or fifty years ago a trip to town was an event in the life of the rural dweller, frequently occasioning the loss of a day's time, often accompanied by hardship of weather and transportation. Yet, even in grandfather's day, the department or general store formed not merely the shopping, but also the social centre of rural life, and it was then that the foundations were laid for many a successful business.

* * * * * *

Since those days, in spite of the keen price arguments advanced by the mail-order houses, the local department store has continued to find favor with the community which it has served so faithfully, and continued to enjoy the confidence of the buying public.

* * * * * *

Now a new and even brighter day is dawning for these stores. Together, the leading department stores of many important cities in Eastern Canada, as shown on the map, are combining the better to serve their communities, in an extensive co-operative movement which will enable the local department store to compete successfully with the mail-order concern, and to give the rural and small city dweller the same advantages of personal selection and low price as are enjoyed by the buyers in the largest city stores. This great consolidation is known as the Canadian Department Stores, Limited.

* * * * * *

The average age of these stores is in excess of forty years, and some of them were serving the populace long before the days of Confederation or before the country was united by the telephone and railroads. Throughout these years all the stores under individual management have been consistently profitable and successful. Former owners will continue as managers, and have invested to an average extent of over $100,000 or a total of more than two and a half million in the project.

* * * * * *

The remarkable financial success of chain stores recently established in Canada and the United States speaks volumes for the future possibilities of the Canadian Department Stores, Limited. Sales for the 12 leading chain stores in the States last year totalled more than $660,000,000—a gain of $80,000,000 over 1925.

* * * * * *

Through centralized buying, Canadian Department Stores, Limited will have direct access to world markets and will be able to undersell and outsell competitors. Cash transactions will be encouraged and bad debts eliminated. New branches will later be opened in Ontario and other parts of the Dominion. With the modern ease of transportation, present good roads, and with the substantial advantages and economies of large volume purchasing and strong management, these stores are bound to merit and receive an increasing share of patronage and prosperity.

A CORRECTION
It was stated in yesterday's Intelligencer that in the Western Dempsey civil action, the former had to pay the latter $100.00 plus costs of $250.00. This should have read Dempsey is to pay Wearer the money and the latter was given a month's time to tear down the building over which the law-suit resulted.

The following officers of the Argyle Light Infantry were successful in passing the theoretical portion of the examinations of the Provisional school which has been held in Belleville for some time past. The officers qualifying for field officers were: Captain F. G. Rowsay; Capt. Ly. F. Green and Capt. H. W. Jones. Lieut. A. S. Quick and Cadet Officer Howard qualified for the rank of Captain and Provisional Lieutenant M. Clarke qualified for Lieutenant.

BIG CROWD AT HALLOWAY
Dr. H. T. Crossley and Rev. J. H. Holloway held a large congregation spellbound by their oratory and music in Holloway Street United Church last night. The occasion was one of the Evangelistic services which they are conducting here.

Mrs. Mr. Leonard's solos "Pass In On" and "When I think of His love for Me" were very fine and Mr. Crossley's remarks based on the leaves of Fishes was heard with keenest interest.

The central thought of the sermon was that to have an Overflowing Life one must give what you have. This the preacher said applies to the individual service in the work of the Master.

Tonight at the song service Dr. Crossley will preach on "The Seven Crowns of Victory" and will emphasize "Soul Winning" as the "Supreme" Gospel hymns will be a feature of this service.

were all out of step but her son.

"Mr. Elliott", responded the Colonel, "you forget the use of the army. This boy came home the captain of his regiment."

MORE DIFFICULTY
The Colonel then put another rock in the way of the advance of the requisition by saying that the requisition should not be presented to the Council until the return of the Mayor. Mr. McGie stated that that matter should be left to the discretion of the Council—that if they desired to leave the matter over until the Mayor's return they would do so, though the Mayor is understood to have written a letter to the Council stating that if he was not back in the City by March 1st they could go on with the matter.

"I would like to see this famous letter," stated the Colonel. Mr. Arthur McGie replied that he did not have the letter, but that one of the Councillors had told him about it.

THE REQUISITION
The usual signed short requisition in short contains these terms—That the Council pass a by-law borrowing the sum of $300,000 for the building and equipment of the new Collegiate and Technical School on the land situated on the west side of John street and the east side of Church street in Ketchenson Ward. Debentures should be issued to draw interest at 5% per annum payable in 30 years and that a sinking fund be created for the payment thereof and the annual amount be levied and accrued thereof pursuant to the Act in that behalf.

The Chairman of the Board, Mr. John Elliott and the Chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. Arthur Jones were the committee appointed to present the requisition to the Council.

CAPITOL THEATRE
A house crowded to capacity greeted the first performance of "The Four Horsemen" at the Capitol last evening and Rudolph Valentino's greatest success was seen with most profound interest by the big audience. The play mighty in plot and production, developed and staged on from the book of the year, at an expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars, teems with interest from the opening scene where Marguerite and Centaur views his vast acres which are according to his promise to be the heritage of Julio his daughter's son, through the action of the play in which Julio, a libertine, spends a mad youth in the tango and dissipations and later in Paris where he is the hero of the Latin quarter until his death on the battle fields of the Marne when he fell shot by his German cousin Capt. Von Hertzhott.

Everything in the production is rendered on a gigantic realistic and lavish scale, especially the depicting of the symbolic portion in which the mystic seas Conquest, War, Famine and Death dash from the mouth of the Apocalypse Beast to devast the world, riding through the world leaving in their wake sorrow and agony. All in all it is one of the greatest pictures in the history of moving pictures production and one which will probably outlive any other production of the time.

LOCAL CAGERS HEAD R. M. C. ON ROUND 9 POINTS

When the Royal Military College Basketball team comes to Belleville tomorrow night to play the second and deciding fixture which will give one or the other team the right to enter the next round of the intermediate series, they will be faced with a nine point handicap, the result of the win by the local Y players at the home of the Cadets, last night. Chiefly because of the fact that the local cagaballers have not indulged in any too frequent practices of late, at the Campbell St. gym, they were not imbued with over confidence as to what might be the result of last night's game but on the other hand they started in with the determination to give the best they had and that for the whole playing period and their efforts were well rewarded.

Throughout the opening half the play see-sawed back and forth, first one side, then the other registering a score and a half time there was only two points separating the two teams, the Y having the heavy end of the 16-13 count. They had been in progress about five minutes in the final half, when a few of the Belleville players were given a breather and to the credit of the relief men, they made a tidy job of holding down the hard-working cadets. With about ten minutes of the period remaining the college five attempted to force the play and threatened to reverse the order of things but in the nick of time the Weir-Armstrong-Kerr combination opened some rapid fire shooting and when the timekeeper's whistle sounded the Y boys were very much in the picture.

For the Cadets, Chapman, Crombie and Campbell were the scoring aces but at that they could not be said to star any more than their mates as the latter played a lovely game. As for the Y team, every member made his contribution and the team won as a result.

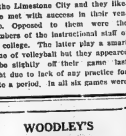

The teams:

Kingston — Forwards, Chapman, Parker, Crombie and Warnock; Centre, Fell; Guards, Campbell, McKay and Odlum.

Along with the basketball team, a team of volleyball players journeyed to the Limestone City and they likewise met with success in their ventures. Opposed to them were the members of the instructional staff of the college. The latter play a smart game of volleyball but they appeared to be slightly off their game last night due to lack of any practice for quite a period. In all six games were played and the local representatives managed to win all of them but in no sense was it a walk-away as in a number of games the Belleville players had come from behind in order to snatch the game from the fire.

The local players who made the trip were Messrs. Brown, Billwall, Griffin, Grub, Poste and Nurse.

FIXING A CURFEW HOUR FOR IMMATURE GIRLS

By ELSIE MACLOWE

Here's one that will put a dint in the dinner hour!

HOW LATE SHOULD A FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL BE ALLOWED OUT AT NIGHT?

Mrs. E. D. started it with:

DEAR MISS MACLOWE:

I have a daughter, fifteen years old who is quite a young flapper. My daughter and I have had many a debate on the subject of the proper time to come home from a party. In my estimation, I would say that the proper time is eleven o'clock but my daughter differs from me by saying that parties begin at ten o'clock and I have no objection to the young girls and boys who associate with my daughter.

Hoping you will receive your keenest interest.

Yours truly,

MRS. E. D.

It certainly does receive my "keenest interest," my dear. This is one of the most troublesome problems in the homes which this column enters. And although I know that I am about to land myself in Juvenile Black Books, I'm going to side with Mrs. E. D. in her eleven-o'clock decision.

"But, gosh! Kids nowadays don't keep baby hours like that," begins the familiar refrain.

Cut it youngsters. That line may make mamma back down, but it doesn't even ruffle my mascot. Kids "nowadays" are no different than kids one hundred or one thousand years ago. A fifteen-year-old girl is a fifteen-year-old baby, whatever the social era. AND NO FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD BODY IS FINISHED— it's an incomplete machine, and it cannot stand the strains which adult bodies can stand. If you drive a new machine at more than twenty or twenty-five miles an hour, what happens? You know as well as I — you wreck the machine. And by the same token, if you drive that infinitely more delicate and complicated machine the human body, too hard or too fast, before its parts are ensouled and, youth, gone to work the body. So, I say, eleven o'clock. And if kid parks don't start before ten, then they had better revise their program.

That's what I think. What do you think, mother and dad?

Are you one of the indignant ladies who think that men should be compelled, to offer their seats to women in street cars. Then what answer have you for this:

DEAR MISS MARLOWE:

I've read a lot of discussion in your column about men giving up their seats in street cars and I have come to the place where I have got to let off steam on this subject. I'll give two of my own experiences.

A few months ago I had the unpleasant experience of buying a woman with a nice four inch French heel step on my toe and suppose to faint. I'm not a weakling, but she most fainty, but the right spot.

Another time I was standing in the aisle of a crowded car when a woman with a baby and packages and what-not came in. As usual they had all the seats. When we got to Jones street an old lady got on and she looked every bit of the invalid I'm sure she was. I noticed that despite the fact she was reeling, many of the so-called invalids were offered her a seat. This arose it my temper to such an extent that I had to do something. That's the way of this letter.

ONE WHO WON'T GIVE HIS SEAT TO A WOMAN

Well, I refer to the ladies even as much as applying such forth-names all the time I spend by women. They would say that God the brains to get up and give a seat.

This evening, on my way home about 6:30 o'clock, the car was filled with women with baby carriages and what not. As usual they had all the seats. When I got to Jones street an old lady got on and she looked every bit of the invalid I'm sure she was. I noticed that despite the fact she was reeling, many of the so-called invalids were offered her a seat. This arose it my temper to such an extent that I had to do something. That's the way of this letter.

WINNIPEG TRIO, WITH VARIED WEAPONS, LOOT STORE

Winnipeg, March 8.—Three bold bandits, armed with daggers, revolvers and "black-jacks" held up the second-hand store conducted by Abraham Tiendel in the centre of Winnipeg's business district.

Flourishing their weapons in the face of the proprietor, they backed him against the wall, and while two held their knives at his throat, the third rifled the till. After looking around the store the bandit who was collecting the loot, plucked a guitar from the shelf. He strummed the instrument for a few minutes, tucked it under his arm and then signalled to his comrades.—The three locked out of the store cautiously, somewhere Tiendel as they retreated. The cash lost amounted to $20.

LENTEN SERVICES WELL ATTENDED

The Lenten services at St. Thomas' Church were remarkably well attended yesterday, the three services, eight o'clock, eleven o'clock and seven o'clock, all having good congregations.

The Rev. Mr. Lyons preached two very fine sermons, morning and evening, the evening sermon being taken from the 7th Chapter of Matthew, the 25th verse.

The sermon dealt fully with the history of the Church of England, her form of worship and her form of Government. The Rev. Lyons stated that in dealing with the question, one must be fair and acknowledge the contributions made by other churches.

"Nothing is to be gained by underestimating the work of others," said Mr. Lyons. "We must be careful not to support our churchmanship at the expense of our Christianity."

He also dealt with certain charges made against the Church and endeavoured to show that they were unfounded by the facts of history.

In closing, Mr. Lyons dealt with the Church's history, her worship and her Government showing that our church order and worship was an expression of the genius of the Anglo-Saxon race. The Church is so comprehensive that she left no realm of human life or experience untouched.

PRINTERS DEFEAT FRANKFORD IN RETURN GAME

Last evening the intelligencer packsters journeyed to Frankford again but this time they did what no other local team has managed to do this season, and that was to win by the score of 3-2.

The locals were much the best last night and but for a few minutes in the first period, had most of the play. The ice was very heavy and the lighter boys from the newspaper office soon had the Frankford boys on defensive as they let all heavy shots and tired quickly.

In the second the ink-slingers came back strong when Jack Smith and Gene Doyle combined, Smith passed to Doyle at the goal mouth and the latter back-handed one into the mesh for the intelli's first tally. Doyle put his team on even terms when he went on a solo effort and scored the second from outside with a drifter that completely fooled Smith. The teams ended the period on even terms.

In less than five minutes after the third period started, Hoosney and Cook combined and Jack brought a crash to the home fans when he sank behind the rubber for the winning tally.

Pete Latchford starred in the nets for the intelligencer. This lad is surely a comer so much so that he even had the hard-boiled home fans applauding his wonderful work.

Rooney played a lovely game carrying the brunt of the attack. He also coached his less experienced teammates to perfection and each man meant all he had and all played a fine game.

W. O'Malley and Babcock were the pick of the losers, although C. O'Malley worked hard all evening. W. O'Malley has all the say-marks of a real hockey player. He is big, can skate fast and is a nice stick-handler and with the right kind of coaching he could be developed into a good Intermediate defence player.

Lawrence was closely checked all evening and soon showed his dislike to the going and was subbed-given. He appeared to be dissatisfied with every decision against the home team and the sooner he gets over this fault the better it will be for him. Once he was hit in the face by a flying stick which was purely an accident and got the idea that the referee and the whole local team were against him.

C. O'Malley and Babcock got the homesters counters.

RICKARD ANGLES FOR STOCK IN N. Y. BALL CLUBS

New York, March 7.—George L. (Tex) Rickard, who made more money out of sport than any one dreamed could be made, is planning to invest his wealth in catering further to the public appetite for organized athletics.

Although most of Rickard's projects are but tentative, he has considered extensively, for his activities to three different cities, purchase of a major league baseball club, an outdoor arena in New York and an automobile speedway outside of Jersey City on Boyles' Thirty Acres, where the memorable Jack Dempsey-Georges Carpentier bout was held.

From a director of the Madison Square Garden corporation, the controlling stock in which is owned by Rickard, it was learned today that the Texan intends to associate with financiers in the building of sports arenas in Philadelphia, Detroit and Pittsburg similar to the famous garden.

Game Postponed

The game between the V's Men and the City Battery teams for the city championship which was carded for the arena tonight has been postponed indefinitely owing to the mild spell of the last few days. Providing the weather gets colder an announcement of new date will be made.

COLLINS' ABSENCE FELT BY CHICAGO SOX

Chicago, March 7.—Johnny Mostil, star center fielder of the Chicago White Sox, regrets the passing of Eddie Collins as manager. He says: "What little success I have had as a ball player can be traced back to he coming of Collins as my manager. He made me believe in myself, but when my confidence was wavering most.

"Under the management of Eddie Collins at Chicago, I feel that I have improved my play 50 per cent. When I came to the majors I hoped to be a star and believed I would.

"Then came several years of mediocre success, in which cynical teasers didn't think as much of my ability as I did. They discouraged me and I was wavering when Collins took charge of the Sox.

"He must have known my traits, because under him I began to play the game I believed I was capable of. I only hope that I do as well for Ray Schalk, who succeeds him."

When Eddie Collins took charge of the Chicago club in 1925, he told Mostil to run wild. He proceeded to steal 43 bases, six times all many, as in the previous season.

Baseball Rumors

It is reported that Point Anne are figuring on placing a strong team in the Bay of Quinte League this year. The Polaires gave Deloro a run for the honors last season and are out to take the championship away from them this year. It is rumored that several well-known Belleville players will be found in the cement-mixers line-up this year. "Soup" Coyne and Company with a little strengthening here and there will put up a sweet argument for any Intermediate teams in this district.

Frankford's Aggressiveness (Contributed)

Many there were in Frankford who decried the building of a new skating rink and Fair building in the village, but the courage and resourcefulness of the faithful few has been fully vindicated. Frankford has indeed enjoyed an unusual successful winter, physically, morally and financially. Much of this has been due to the efforts of the fine hockey team. They volunteered their services for the benefit of the village and all that the corporation can do for these fine young athletes is fully deserved. Under the able tutelage of Mr. M. H. Meacham the team has progressed very favourably. He has given very liberally of his valued time and also of his means, and his efforts have been fully appreciated by his team-mates and the town generally. With an earlier start next winter the team should do well. As it is, the local team has played twelve games and out of these have won eight. A very credible showing indeed, for a new team.

Do you know that Charlie Delehay who is a member of the Varsity Grads' Senior O. H. A. champions got his first real hockey training in Belleville? Delehay was a student at Albert College some four or five years ago and played on the school team while here. He also played a wing for the local juniors when they were put out of the running by Kingston Juniors at Port Hope in a sudden death game. He played for Varsity Seniors last year and is one of those now destined for the Olympic games unless the works is gummed up by the fast Western team.

It appears to us that this writer is just another of those fellows who until lately had never seen a hockey game and as yet he hasn't quite cut on to the tricks of the game, all that we can say is, that if this writer will only watch Lou Marsh closely he might soon get to understand hockey and how it should be played. Nothing certain Lou has forgiven more about the game than probably that some of these U. S. sport critics will ever learn.

Can You Forget Your Past?

"Found Out!"

Here is a young man who thought he could forget his past—who thought he could find happiness with the adorable society girl he was to marry. Then—one unforgettable day—the telephone rang, and—

ROSS was a Matinee Idol—a tall, dark, handsome Leading Man in a local Stock Company. Florrie—a pretty little diamond in the rough—was infatuated with his manly, Thespian charms. She even lied to her Mother—eventually ran away from home. Success came to the young actor, and Society became interested in him. And so Florrie was neglected!

"Florrie and I were frankly fond of each other."

Do most people play the game squarely because of an instinctive desire to prefer the good to the bad?

You will find the answer in "FOUND OUT"—an intriguing romance of love and sacrifice which is unfolded by the Actor himself—from his own life's drama—in TRUE STORY MAGAZINE FOR APRIL, NOW ON THE NEWSSTANDS.

The Crusade of Truth!

The ideal of the TRUE STORY MAGAZINE is to warn youth against the pitfalls, the fatal errors, the loose thinking that have wrecked many a worthy citizen. Hundreds of these unfortunates, who have been purged in the crucible of bitter experience, have been courageous enough to publish their stories in TRUE STORY MAGAZINE for the benefit of others.

Just how successfully this ideal worked out is demonstrated in the fact that, to-day, TRUE STORY MAGAZINE has a monthly circulation of two million—and is read each month by, approximately, six million earnest searchers after the truth.

This Jazz-Mad Age

The editorial in the April issue strikes a note of warning on the evils of Jazz. It is a bold, courageous article, yet full of tolerance. Every young person should ponder over it with profit.

If you are not acquainted with TRUE STORY MAGAZINE, a careful reading of the April issue will surprise and delight you. It is now on the newsstands—price, only 25 cents.

BELLE THEATRE

The fine all-star cast which Al Christie selected for "The Nervous Wreck" is another indication that this comedy is one of the big special productions of the current season. In addition to Harrison Ford who has the title role, Phyllis Haver and a long list of prominent screen players appear in the production. Miss Haver plays the feminine lead, the role of Sally Morgan, daughter of an Arizona rancher played by Hobart Bosworth.

Another great comedy team, Chester Conklin and Mack Swain, were signed for the production. Swain takes the part of a New York millionaire who owns a deluxe ranch out West, while Conklin is seen as a fleeting cowboy.

Charles Gerrard has the role of the tenderfoot fiance to the millionaire's daughter, the latter being impersonated by Vera Steadman, who starred recently in "Meet the Prince," with Joseph Schildkraut and Marguerite De La Motte. Frank Nicholson, who distinguished himself in Christie's "Up in Mabel's Room," with Marie Prevost, is seen as the Arizona sheriff in "The Nervous Wreck," which will be shown at the Belle theatre today and Wednesday.

Scott Sidney directed the production which was adapted by F. McGrew Willis from Owen Davis' celebrated play "The Nervous Wreck" is in every respect a remarkable comedy.

REGENT THEATRE

Dorothy MacKaill and Jack Mulhall scored a decided success hit in their latest feature vehicle for First National, "Just Another Blonde," which opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre.

It is difficult to say who deserves the most praise in this picture, Miss MacKaill, Mulhall or Director Alfred Santell, who has added another real success to his already long list of fine pictures made for First National.

Mulhall and William Collier, Jr. play the parts of young gamblers at a gambling house, Dorothy MacKaill and the remarkably-like Leslie Brooks are a dance hall hostess and an attendant at a shooting gallery, respectively. The two young men have vowed never to fall in love and their life is a fifty-fifty affair. But, of course, love finds a way, even though an airplane crash does help off, and all ends happily.

NO EARLY FREIGHT

Kingston March 8.—I think it would be better if Canadian vessels on the Great Lakes held off handling freight until May," said W. J. Kingston, manager of the Canada Steamship lines, when discussing the early opening of navigation, which will probably be at the end of March or at least much earlier than last year. His opinion was that by holding off it would give the Canadian boats a better chance of competing with the Americans. Mr. King is on a tour of inspection of Canadian ports where C.S.L. vessels secure freight.

CANADIAN MADE GOOD

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"Just what I was going to propose," he said. "You ask Travers; I'll make it a quartett with Lady Quantock; she's one of our oldest friends. He'll look after Streatlyn," he added to Maude as Rafe disappeared again.

Rafe conveyed the information to Travers later in the day, and Travers looked up quickly from his writing, a faint color on his face and a curious look in his eyes. By a coincidence, the new dress suit had come home that morning, for, like Rafe, he had hurried his tailor. It was a tempting invitation; Travers thirsted for the society, to which, in his heart of hearts, he considered he had a right of entry, he hesitated for a moment only.

"Very well," he said, "I shall be glad."

He and Rafe went out together in the afternoon to try the new car. They took darkest withdrawn, but very soon Rafe wanted to drive. He put on very few of several miles, but suddenly, going round a sharp bend, he took it too short by the front wheel nearly ran onto the pavement, and the car tilted dangerously. Rafe laughed of course.

"Nearly had the whole thing at start ing," he remarked. He did not see that Travers' face, pale at most times, had gone deathly white to the very lips. Travers's coarseline showed itself for only a moment, he had mastered it the next and, with a shrug of the shoulders, managed to smile, with affected indifference.

But though Rafe had not noticed the white feather which Travers had displayed, Jackson has seen it, and winked to himself, and mentally drawn the curtain between his master and the secretary.

Rafe arranged that he and Travers should walk down to Lady Quantock's house, which was in South Audley St. and, on arriving at ten o'clock at Claridon House, Travers found Rafe standing on the step, tugging on a white kid glove. He had just put Maude in the carriage and he was thinking of her and not of the glove, which remaining his mother promptly split across the palm.

"It's a plaguey thing," he said, viewing the ruined glove contemptuously, "this crying Travers hand, he added; "you'll be as if it had grown on your hand. I dare say I'll get the hang of it in time Have a cigar?"

They stopped at the corner of the square to get a light, and Travers, chancing to look back over his shoulder, saw a girl walking a few yards behind them. There was nothing peculiar or noticeable in her appearance; she was young and slight, and dressed in a somewhat country fashion, and Travers would not have bestowed a second glance on her if she had not behaved in rather an extraordinary fashion. Almost as they had stopped she had stopped abruptly and sank on her heels with a curtsey peculiarly free and easie, and walked rapidly in the other direction. Travers had had merely a glimpse of her face, but the slight impression he had received was that of a rather pretty face, sunburned but somewhat pinched, from which gleamed a pair of dark-gray eyes In the momentary jumping at a conclusion he had decided that she was going to beg, but there was something in the figure, note of independence, something in the dress which, though rustic, was not poverty-stricken and ragged, which corrected the impression. The trivial incident did not remain with him, he did not draw Rafe's attention to the girl and her sudden retreat.

CHAPTER VII

IN HIGH SOCIETY

There was a line of carriages outside Lady Quantock's house, and a small crowd had collected on the pavement to see the ladies and gentlemen enter. It silence, but with his observant eyes noting everything, Rafe walked through the hall and up the broad staircase to where a very stout, good natured lady dressed in purple satin and wearing a great many diamonds, stood shaking hands with her guests.

"Who's the fat lady?" asked Rafe, in a deep under tone.

"Lady Quantock," murmured Travers

"Lord St. Ives stood near her, and when he told her who Rafe was she extended a very plump hand and beamed on him

"Very glad to see you, Lord Streatlyn," she said. "Oh, dear, isn't he like his father?"

Rafe took the fat hand and gripped it, his face flushing, his eyes glowing.

"You knew my dad, ma'am?" he said "you think I favvy him? Say! that's the nicest thing I've had spoken to me since I came over. I should like to have a talk with you when you've got through with these folks."

Lady Quantock, resecreting her hand, and wondering whether she should be able to see it any more that night, looked somewhat surprised for a moment then her good-natured face broke up into a smile.

"You're a dear boy, and so you shall He's splendid!" she added to Sir Jeremy, who stood grinning. "Doing well, Mr. Baire on. I'm dying to talk with him."

"Right, ma'am," said Rafe fervently "I'm on the spot. This is my friend Mr. Travers; you'll like him."

As Lady Quantock bowed to Travers and himself again, Sir Ives linked his arm in Rafe's and drew him away.

"Fancy her knowing my dad," said Rafe, who was all of a glow with pride and gratification.

"My dear chap, there are scores of people here who knew your father who I—before—when he was a young fellow he fore he left England."

MURDER TRIAL MOVING RAPIDLY TOWARDS CONCLUSION

Government Sale Of Liquor Control Bill To Supercede All Previous Temperance Legislation

ROBINSON CALMLY FACES JURY AS CROWN WEAVES CHAIN OF EVIDENCE

True Bill on Murder Charge Brought After Long Session

NO NEW EVIDENCE

Prosecuting Attorney Brings Out Stories of Witnesses of Shooting

A True Bill of murder was brought this morning by the Grand Jury against Abraham Robinson charged with the killing of Charles St. Charles at Eldorado on November 15th last. The Jury went out at 1 p.m. yesterday afternoon and remained out all afternoon and resumed this morning.

When the accused was ushered into the prisoner's box by Jailer Tom Ketcheson, he appeared to be in good health and spirits after having spent several months in the County Jail. He was attired in the same grey suit that he wore when first brought from his home. He was greeted by his counsel, Mr. Payne, upon his entrance.

Select a Jury

The selection of a jury took about thirty minutes, the following being accepted:—

David Hollinger, farmer, Huntingdon.

John Morrison, farmer, Rawdon.

John Emerson, farmer, Huntingdon.

Harry Delyea, farmer, Hedoc.

Arnold Armstrong, farmer, Sidney.

Robert Wright, farmer, Marmora Township.

William Warham, plumber, Belleville.

Murray Declair, farmer, Elsevir.

Geo. Wallbridge, grocer, Belleville.

Sam Terkington, farmer, Huntingdon.

Clayton Rook, agent, Madoc.

Allen Campbell, laborer, Trenton.

Robinson stood erect while the Jurymen were chosen.

Pleaded Not Guilty

When the charge was read to him he answered in a calm voice "Not Guilty," repeating his next a few later. He conferred quietly with his attorney, C. A. Payne, at different times.

A. B. Cunningham of Kingston, assisted by B. C. Donnan, acted for the Crown. Mr. Cunningham, who is the Crown Prosecutor of Kingston, outlined the situation surrounding the murder. He told of the visit of Charles St. Charles to the Robinson home for the purpose of seizing cattle for arrears in taxes. He went over the story of the shooting touching on the principal points.

Doctor First Witness

Dr. Samuel Ralgeon, physician of Madoc Village, was the first witness called. He stated that at 11 o'clock on the morning of 15th of November he was called to Dr. Thompson's office at Eldorado. He said that it was found that St. Charles had sustained a gunshot wound in the left side, which was bleeding profusely. Dr. Eagleson said that St. Charles remained there until the following night when he was removed to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Berry, in Madoc.

On the 15th day of December St. Charles grew worse and the Crown Attorney was sent for to have a statement taken from the wounded man. The cause of death was septic pneumonia resulting from the gun-shot wound.

In cross-examination Dr. Eagleson said that he had a high temperature for several days following the shooting. Septic pneumonia set in in about a week before death.

Made Post-Mortem

Dr. J. A. Faulkner who made a post-mortem examination said he found a wound four inches from the nipple which appeared like a puncture. A lead scar was visible on his back as well. The wound in the front of the body was between the 5th and 6th ribs. Around the inner a pneumonia condition existed and the eighth rib was shattered.

Dr. R. A. Thompson who practices at Eldorado, a few miles from the scene of the occurrence was called. "Mr. St. Charles was seated on a couch in my home upon my arrival and seemed to be in great agony besides bleeding profusely," he testified. "Stimulants were given him and every effort was made to ease the pain."

"Were you present when the bullet was extracted?"

"No."

Chart of Farm

J. Walter Evans, an engineer, was shown a chart of the Robinson farm which he said he drew up. He pointed out various points on the map which included a bearded cave. Clifford Lloyd identified several photographs taken at the Robinson farm.

Jos Smith, tax collector for the Township of Madoc stated that a tax bill and letter were forwarded to the Robinsons on the year previous. He produced copies of the letter sent out to Robinson requesting payment of the taxes in arrears. Smith said he had personally delivered a bill to Robinson's brother of the noticed man, who refused to pay it.

George White, solicitor for the Township of Madoc, told of issuing the warrant to make the seizure.

W. T. Allen of Madoc Township said

YOUNG SMITH IS NOW DOUBTFUL

Recent developments in the attempt to prove that John Smith of Harrah, Oklahoma, tried to the shaking of Mr. Horace Smith's theory that the dead man is identical with the Captain Smith of the George E. Marsh. Mr. George Dulmage, secretary of Moira Lodge, is inclined to doubt the theory after searching the records of the Lodge. He found that Captain Smith of Moira had been initiated in February, 1923, and got his third degree in December of the same year. Captain Smith had always been prompt in the payment of his dues. Horace Smith in an interview this morning was doubtful on account of the discrepancy of the dates and the fact that no answer was received from the Master of the Lodge in Harrah. Mr. Horace Smith regrets that he did not immediately go to Oklahoma to identify the late John Smith and probably will go if he does not receive the photograph first for last week.

With the local barbers raising the cost of a hair cut from 35 cents to 40 cents and the price of a shave from 15 cents to 20 cents, Van Dyke beards, walrus moustaches and a slowing mane of hair will probably become more popular.

MISERY STALKS UNCOMFORTED IN CITIES AND FIELDS OF OLD JAPAN

Dead Bodies Sprawled Everywhere in Quake Stricken Nippon

SLEEP ON SNOW

Survivors Stand Quietly Weeping Waiting For Help to Come

Tokyo, Mar. 9.—All Japan was organizing today to send succor to the central part of the island, where Monday's calamitous earthquake brought death to at least 2,275 persons, injuries to thousands of others, and untold misery to about fifty thousand persons whose homes collapsed or burned. The condition of the homeless is miserable, owing to cold, snowy weather immediately following the quake and last night's rain. Army and navy expeditions are on their way with food, clothing and medicines and other relief parties are being rushed from Yoko hama, Gobe, Osaka and Kyoto.

The exact number of casualties was still unknown this morning but whether it proves greater or less than present estimates, it is clear that the disaster was one of the gravest in Japan's history. Each succeeding report brings a fresh story of death and suffering.

Fifty thousand men, women and children, scattered throughout the quake area are homeless and in most cases without even temporary shelter. Government and charitable organizations are hastening help by land and sea, but it is feared much time must elapse before the terrible suffering can be fully relieved.

Some idea of the sufferings of refugees in Tanyo is at hand from stories. Hundreds of them were compelled to seek shelter in the lee of storm drifts, sleeping on mats spread on the snow. One private investigator reported that dead bodies were strewn about everywhere, in the streets of the towns and in open fields and that hundreds of injured persons were pleading for medical attention.

Newspapermen who went to the coast town of Amina aboard a destroyer, tells how refugees of all vessel, gathered on the beach, weeping, seeing the approach of help ing quietly. They said all the houses of Amina fell with the first shock, great numbers being buried under collapsing roofs. Fires broke out immediately and soon the whole town was aflame. Police estimate that the death list in Amina will reach more than one thousand.

KNOX COLLEGE IS GRANTED TO CON. PRESBYTERIANS

Important Announcement Made at Meeting Kingston Presbytery

REV. CRANSTON MOVES

The commission on Church property appointed by the Dominion Government has awarded Knox College to the Presbyterian Church in Canada. This announcement made at the Kingston Presbytery held in St. Andrews Church yesterday was received with greatest satisfaction by the clergy assembled.

Rev. R. A. Cranston of Trenton accepted a call to the Presbyterian Church in Hamilton and will conclude his ministry in Trenton on Sunday next. In Welland he will be the successor of Rev. Dr. Cunningham who is now Professor in Knox College. Rev. B. G. Stewart was appointed moderator of the session in Trenton.

At the meeting at which Rev. R. G. Stewart, Moderator presided and which was attended by a large number of clergy and laymen, Rev. R. J. Craig the clerk reported that he had on the 22nd of January moderated in a call in the Church of the Redeemer in Deseronto and that the call was issued in favor of Rev. Girard Graham of Finch.

He stated however, that he would not urge the Presbytery to sustain the call and it was accordingly set aside and Mr. Craig instructed to proceed as soon as the Congregation are ready to issue another call.

Rev. A. E. Cameron who was for several years minister in Melrose, Lonsdale and Shannonville was appointed stated supply in St. John, Hillsdale, Sandhill and Sunbury. It is expected that he will soon be permanently settled there.

The treasurer's report on finances showed everything to be in good shape and most of the congregations commendably prompt in the payment of dues. The statistical report by the clerk showed a steady growth all along the line and the total for all purposes considerably above what was contributed the previous year.

The Clerk reported that seven ministers from other denomination were applying to be received as ministers of the Presbyterian Church.

HEALTH OF CITY BETTER DURING MONTH FEBRUARY

During February, generally considered the most treacherous month in the year, lungly sickness fell off to a certain extent according statistics furnished by Mary E. Shore, of the Victoria Order of Nurses.

Sixty-six were treated of which thirty-six were listed during the month. Of these fifteen were medical, five consumptive, seven surgical, three pre natal, one obstetrical and five infants. Of 363 visits made 226 were nursing visits and of the latter thirty were for infant welfare, twenty-three per natal, six post natal welfare, twelve social service and thirty-eight instructive visits.

One hundred and ten dollars was collected in fees of which thirty-eight dollars and seventy-five cents came from patients and the balance seventy-one dollars and twenty-five cents from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

During the month temporary quarters was obtained in the Y.M.C.A. for the Well Baby Clinic and the Chest Clinic to take place of those formerly used in the Chamber of Commerce building. New scales have been installed in the Canniton School and the work of the term there can now be completed.

BRITISH CRUISER LEFT TO RESCUE WUHU RESIDENTS

Cantonese Mob Looted Custom House—Women Safely on Boats

Shanghai, March 9.—The British cruiser Emerald sailed today from Nanking up the river to Wuhu, where a mob yesterday looted the customs house following the occupation of the town by the Cantonese. All the foreign women and children are aboard the gunboat Kutsang, which apparently has not yet left for Shanghai, although the authorities consider it impossible for them to return to shore in view of the situation.

The United States destroyer Preble is standing by the destroyer Noa is at Nanking within call and others are at Chekiang and Kinkiang.

CANTONESE WINNING

Shanghai, March 9. — Interest in Shanghai and other centres of China has suddenly been attracted to Wuhu, two hundred miles west of here, because of its occupation by the advancing Cantonese and reports of mob rule which the customs house was looted by a mob. Foreign women and children of Wuhu evacuated city today and are on their way by steamer to Shanghai. Details as to exact situation are scarce. No casualties have been reported, but indications are that all foreigners will soon depart from the city.

Latest military events seem strongly in favor of the Cantonese, who are moving in increasing strength down the Yangtze River in the direction of Nanking, from as far west as Hankow. They are reported to be advancing around both sides of Lake Tsihu in their effort to capture the Nankire-Shanghai Railway and thus deal a severe blow to Gen. Chang Tsung Chang, chief defender of Shanghai, by cutting off his communications.

PREM. FERGUSON SAYS PARTY IS UNANIMOUS NOW

Government Control Bill Goes to House Late This Afternoon

YEARLY PERMITS

No Limit on Amount Which Permit Holider May Purchase

Toronto, March 9.—"There is nothing really to tell you," said Premier Ferguson on coming out of the Conservative caucus which considered the bill for Government control of the sale of liquor today.

"Were all the members in agreement with the provisions of the bill?" He was asked. "There was perfect unanimity" he replied. "Everything is lovely."

"Was there any strong objection to the dropping o fthe sale of wine and beer with meals in hotels?" he was further questioned. "No, that matter has been settled long ago" answered the Premier. Mr. Ferguson added that very likely it would be late in the afternoon before the liquor legislation would be introduced in the House. Extra seats have been placed in the galleries and corridors to accommodate the large gathering of the public which is expected to attend the introduction of the legislation.

Still Hoping

Toronto, March 9.—Final conclusion in caucus of the Bill providing for Government Control of the sale of liquor was given by Conservative members of the Ontario Legislature this morning. The legislation will be introduced in the house by Premier Howard Ferguson late this afternoon and it is the desire of the Government that there be an appearance on all points to assume its supports before details of the measure are made public. While no strong opposition to the plan is to manifest, it is still the hope of some Conservative members that an agreement will be reached by which sale of wine and beer with meals in hotels will be permitted. It is more than probable that the views of certain members along these lines will be presented for the consideration of the House when the legislation reaches the committee stage.

Toronto, March 9.—Further details of the nature of the bill were learned during the day. It is a measure full, replacing all the other temperance enactments of the province. It provides for two classes of shops, namely, liquor stores selling hard liquors and stores selling only beer and wine. The view is that the beer and wine stores will be locality conditions, enabling the workingman to purchase his beer with room for conveniences. It is also felt that some rural districts which might not care to have a dispensary, would function a demand for beer and wine stores. The plan is regarded as one which restricting the number of dispensaries, will encourage the consumption of the lighter beverage in place of hard liquors.

To Issue Yearly Permits

Permits are provided for residents of the provinces good for one year, and for tourists and transients good for even month. There is a limit to what upon the amount of liquor which an individual may buy, as such a limit is regarded by the Government as a provision which, in other provinces in which it is adopted, is readily evaded and farcical in practice. Liquor may be drunk where a person is domiciled, and a domicile is not restricted to a private house, but may be one's room in a hotel or in a rooming house. Registered members of clubs which provide living accommodation for their members, may have liquor in their own rooms the member's room in this case qualifying as a domicile.

TODAY'S THOUGHT.

A man may be the company of those who are ignorant like bees compared by the sage to a beautiful girl in the company of blind men.

SAADI.

UNASSIMILATED

It is understood that Mr. Forke, minister of immigration, is favorable to the policy of throwing the doors of Canada wide open for the admission of immigrants from south-eastern Europe. The wisdom of such a policy is doubtful. It was followed early in the century when Mr. Sifton directed immigration policy. There was a great influx of all sorts of foreign people into Canada in those years. It helped to get the wheat plains settled, but the after-results have not proved altogether satisfactory. Mayor Webb of Winnipeg in a recent address made pointed allusion to some of those results. At least 55 per cent. of the people in Manitoba, he asserted, are anti-British in sentiment, and they live segregated in racial communities—aliens in spirit, people apart, and out of touch with the national life of Canada.

If this is true of Manitoba, it must be true also of Saskatchewan and Alberta where there has been even a greater influx of foreign immigrants than in Manitoba. The conditions described by Winnipeg's mayor are not conducive either to national advancement or national unity. Evidently much of the material for our "melting pot" is not assimilable. It is a question whether it would not have been better to do without that material, even at the price of slower economic progress.

FIGURING THE COST

A bulletin issued by the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada shows the cost of government in each of the provinces, together with the provincial revenues, on a per capita basis. The provinces in which government costs most and which raises the most revenue per head of population is British Columbia, and its lead over the other provinces is a long one.

The net per capita revenues of the nine provinces (excluding the Dominion subsidies) in 1926 were: British Columbia, $37.34; Alberta, $14.31; Manitoba $11.81; Saskatchewan, $11.25; Ontario $11.03; Quebec, $9.87; New Brunswick $7.55; Nova Scotia, $6.39; Prince Edward Island, $4.34.

The provincial expenditures for the same year were: British Columbia, $37.15 Alberta, $15.31; Ontario, $12.69; Manitoba, $11.26; Saskatchewan, $10.44; New Brunswick, $9.49; Nova Scotia, $9.18; Quebec, $8.68; P. E. I., $4.91.

Without the Dominion subsidies, there were deficits in the accounts of Alberta Ontario and all three of the Maritime provinces. Even with the Dominion subsidies Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia had slight deficits.

A TRUE BARBARIAN

That Mustapha Kemal, the Turkish dictator, is a crude barbarian is evinced by the fact, as reported, that the mosque of St. Sophia in Constantinople is to be used as a dance hall. Doubtless Kemal supposes himself very modern and western when he does that, or maybe he very bolshevik. The majority dictators profaned ones when Mohammed II., the conqueror, rode into the mosque on horseback. Under the beautiful vaulted ings and around the altars of their fait the noble weapons of Constantinople ha taken refuge when Islam stormed the great walls of the emperors. There they were slaughtered or asked to be sold into slavery. But the victorious sultar when he rode through the doorway, pa a step to the sacrifice, even though h had to deal with a licentious soldiery ra pillage. The Turks, however, still' than to reward for their hardihood. St. Sophia's interior is counted by many as the most beautiful building in Europe. Anyhow, it is the climax of Byzantine architecture. Its vaultings float in space above the heads of those upon its floor. It is the work of the great emperor Justinian and his notorious Theodora. The Turks of the fifteenth century defiled, but scarcely damaged it. And they made it the chief mosque of Islam. For four centuries it has been in the careful keeping of reverend Moslems. Now it is to be profaned both in a Moslem and Christian sense by order of the head of the Anatolian republic. Will the lovely mosaics, the exquisite carvings, the delicate fragilities of the decorations of St. Sophia be damaged by profane feet and the careless handling? As a shrine Kemal might have decreed St. Sophia's extinction. He had the power, he might have had the excuse. But to defile this splendid work of art of the ages by making vulgar use of it, that is unforgivable by any standard whatever.

PAST AND PRESENT

Tomorrow is usually a little further off than yesterday. Both, however, have a perspective which in some way draw them up in nearly their true relation and in other ways distorts the view and makes them appear in strange ways. Yesterday was just a little while since, today and tomorrow will soon be just one of the present days.

There are dreamers who are continually looking for the better day, for the time when men and women will become almost perfect. They forever look back upon the "good old days." Measured by the speed and drive and airplane modern conditions and morals. They never tire of comparison particularly of the modern girl with the girl of their youth and always to the disadvantage of the girl of today. So discerned have they become with the idea that the trend of morals and manners are on the downward track that acts of slightest indiscretion become degrading and the failure of extreme courtliness shows a decadence in man.

Yesterday was not a whit better than the today in which we live and the morals of the youth today are the equal of those in the "good old days." Manners of today are better, there may be less gesticulation but there is more genuineness and unselfishness than was the case yesterday. Prudishness and snobbery are at a minimum and the advancement in those two phases of politeness does more than recompense for what may have been lost in the manners of other days.

If you will look up those who continually bark at conditions today and forever praise those of other days, in a corner and let him recall specifically the customs and manners of the old days it will be easy to convince him that conditions today are as good as a quarter of a century ago.

WHISKERS

A New York preacher last Sunday made a plea for a return to the era of whiskers, not the puffing Dolorita whiskers, or the unkempt growth of the bobo, but the kind that was once so common and was regarded as a symbol of age and authority. The beard, according to the preacher, was formerly the emblem of righteousness and convicted today a man is afraid of looking old, so he shaves his face and dyes his hair. There has been some talk of hate of a revival of the whisker habit, just to show the woman that there are some fashions in regard to which men can not be imitated by them; but it is interesting to learn that whiskers are something more than a mere fashion of wearing the face, and that they really stand for qualities of manhood of which the present generation stands in need.

MINER CLAIMS WILD GEESE AND DUCKS DECREASE

Kingston, Ont., March 5 (Canadian Press Despatch).—Ducks and geese are rapidly decreasing on the American Continent. This is the conclusion reached by Jack Miner, naturalist, after three years of study of the question, in all parts of the continents. The decrease most of the Mississippi is caused by pollution of streams, he says, and the alkili water found in the western United States. In the east the decrease is caused by systematic hunting with pump and automatic guns, especially in the Southern States, where the ducks and geese congregate for the winter months.

The remedy, according to Jack Miner, is a shorter open season, and lowering of the bag limit in the United States to the Canadian level, which is 25 ducks a day and 200 a season, in certain states the lawful bag is 2,000 ducks a season. He believes the United States should cooperate because practically all the ducks and geese are hatched and raised in Canada, and are in this country eight months of the year.

Mr. Miner in investigating the decrease crossed the continent four times in the last three years, and went as far north as Alaska.

DREAMS AND REALITIES

My friend, I find it good
When every leaf is down,
And every bird of Summer is away,
And every after-sun perfect,
To walk a Winter roads and in my heart
Remember April;

To go upon a hill remembering
The grasses deep on them,
And waiting for the rains,
Winter and Spring are Lovers.
Did you know?

When she comes softly to his waiting arms
And the wide earth is shaken with their rapture.

Your heart and mine grow tender,
And there is singing and fragrance
Everywhere.

I saw red bubbling maples in a dream,
In a dream last night.
It was not so.
We are not done with snow.
Falling like blossoms blown upon the dark,
Falling like small whispers.
We are not done with late cold moons' light
And late rains
Hanging like crystal jewels on the sky.
I heard the young birds calling
In a dream last night.
It was not so.
We are not done with snow.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a fist of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then set fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep a bottle handy in the home, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

SEVEN CROWNS IN CHRISTIAN LIFE

Evangelistic Services at Holloway Drawing Crowds Each Evening

An increase in attendance and a deepening sense of the Presence of God characterized the service at Holloway Street Church last night. The congregation, led by the large choir and Mr. Leonard join heartily in singing several gospel songs. Mr. Leonard sang with sweetness and power, "Where the never say Good Bye", and "All is Well". Rev. J. M. Whyte of Eldorado, led in prayer. A very interesting, inspiring and convincing song sermon, entitled "Seven Crowns", six Crowns for each whose an interesting and deep lesson in each was delivered by Dr. Crossley. There were the Crowns discussed:—

1 Crown of 'Loving Kindness', emblematic of the Providences of God and an incentive to Repentance. Dr. Crossley and Mrs. Leonard sang "The Child of the King."

2 Crown of 'Gold', emblematic of dignity or exaltation and an incentive to perseverance.

3 Crown of 'Glory', emblematic of great honor and an incentive to loyalty to the Church. The Evangelists sang 'A Crown of Glory'.

4 Crown of 'Rejoicing', emblematic of unspeakable joy and an incentive to win others to Christ. An impressive solo was rendered, 'Will there be any stars in my Crown."

5 Crown of 'Life', emblematic of immortality and an incentive to bear any trials incident to Christianity. A duet 'Some Sweet Day' was feelingly sung.

6 Crown of 'Righteousness', an incentive to righteousness and Christianity.

7 Crowns of 'Thorns', emblematic of shame and suffering and an incentive to trust and love our crucified Lord. A fervent and urgent appeal was made by Dr. Crossley for all to accept the full Salvation of Christ our Saviour. Dr. Crossley will speak tonight on "The Greatest Revival in History". Public cordially invited.

ROBINSON TRIAL

he had accompanied St. Charles to the Robinson home at previous times for the purpose of settling cattle.

"What happened then?"

Threatened to Resist

"We told Abraham we had come to make a seizure and he said he would resist it. Lemuel spit on his fists and acted as though he wanted to fight Mr. St. Charles said if they started to fight that Elizabeth would probably get into the house, get a gun and shoot him both of us," Mr. Allen stated.

"We then decided to return again a later date."

Frederick Hill, a Provincial Constable, related the story of the visit to the Robinson farm in company with Charles St. Charles and the two Constables, Joe Sharkey and Stanley Lewis.

"St. Charles explained to Miss Robinson that a seizure was to be made," he said, "and then Stanley Lewis and Joe Sharkey drove the cattle from the fields to the laneway in front of the house. The cattle were being separated and just about that time a shot was heard."

Went For Minister

"Where was Lemuel at that time?" asked Mr. Cunningham.

"His cattle and asked Mr. St. Charles if he might go to Bannockburn to get the Rev. Mr. Rodden."

"Did he go?"

"Yes, said Mr. Long."

Mr. Hill pointed out that the location on the plans where he judged the shot to have come from.

"What happened then?"

"St. Charles went on separating the cattle and sent one of the boys on up the concession road," the witness answered.

"About twenty minutes later a second shot was fired and the smoke appeared to arise from the same direction from which the first shot appeared to come," Mr. Hill said.

Heard the Bullet

"What also did you hear?" asked Mr. Cunningham.

"The noise of the bullet as it passed through the air."

"Anything else occur?"

"Miss Robinson came out and talked to St. Charles."

"After an interval of twenty minutes another shot was fired and Constable St. Charles was hit."

"What did you see?"

"He fell towards the gate and yelled, 'Murder, Murder,'"

"What did you do then?"

"I took him to Dr. Thompson's at Stirling."

W. T. Allen was recalled to the stand and said that the whole property had always been assessed in Abraham Robinson's name.

Mr. Payne maintained that the farm was partly owned by Abraham and the remainder by Lemuel Robinson.

Mr. Payne—"Didn't they always refuse to pay the taxes under this arrangement?"

"No, just for the last three years."

Mr. Hill resumed the stand.

Cross examined by Mr. Payne.

"Did you visit the Robinson farm after."

"Yes, on the morning of the 16th and again on the 18th.'

Constable Hill pointed out the spot on the plan where the shot was found at a knoll on the laneway about 90 yards from the gate."

"Who was present at that time?"

"Provincial Police officers."

Foster Bread, a farmer of Marmora Township, about 3 miles from the Robinson farm was next called.

On the morning of the 15th of November he said he went to the Robinson farm for the purpose of threshing. The party consisting of Harold Long and the two Thompkins brothers arrived at 10 o'clock.

"The cattle were in the lane leading to the Concession road and I saw Lemuel come out and start for Bannockburn."

"What occurred then?"

"A few minutes after Lemuel left I heard a shot fired and saw smoke arise from the direction of the knoll."

After the shot was fired Joe Sharkey went to the Concession road and came back into the laneway."

Mr. Bread told of hearing a second shot 25 minutes later and the bullet was heard to go in a south-westerly direction."

"A half an hour a third shot was fired?"

"Forty feet inside the gate."

"Where was St. Charles?"

"Outside the gate."

"I saw him throw up his hands and yell murder, murder and then he was helped into the car."

"What did you do then?"

"I stood in the line near the barn and saw an object crawling over the knoll and it looked like a man."

"Could you tell how he was dressed?"

"All I could see was a gray color."

"Could you identify the man?"

"No'.

Mr. Cunningham—"Is that the only time you saw the man?"

"Yes. I saw him in the edge of the woods by the north walking from tree to tree."

"What happened then?"

"I went back to the barn."

"Anybody come to the house?"

"Yes, Lemuel came back half an hour later. Charles was shot and shortly after Abraham returned to the house.

"You don't know where he came from?"

"No."

"How was he dressed?"

"A grey shirt and a pair of blue over alls."

"Was he carrying anything?"

"No."

"What sort of morning was it?"

"Quite chilly."

Mr. Payne—"You never saw Abe Jan Robinson that day until 12.10 did you?"

"No."

"Did you notice anything unusual in Abe Robinson's appearance at the dinner table?"

"No."

At this juncture the court room was partially emptied as the jury retired to adjourn with several of his friend as they filed out.

Joe Sharkey, the next witness, spoke rather low and Robinson exclaimed, "I can't hear him."

Sharkey told of having walked to the rear of the farm to drive the cattle to the laneway.

"Where were you when the first shot was fired?"

"In the road."

"Where did it come from?"

"From the knoll."

Sharkey said he was sent to the knoll by St. Charles.

"You had more courage than some of them didn't you?" said Mr. Cunningham.

"The second shot," Sharkey said "seemed to come from the same place."

"What then?"

"Lewis went to the knoll."

Sharkey then referred to the third fatal shot which also came from the elevation of ground.

Sharkey said he then went to the barn way after St. Charles was taken away.

The witness told of seeing a man in the woods shortly after the shooting

"Did you recognize him?"

Sharkey was slow in answering this question but finally said he did not.

"Why did you hesitate in answering that question?" asked Mr. Cunningham.

No answer.

Mr. Justice Logie—"Are you telling the truth when you say you couldn't recognize him?"

"Yes."

Sharkey said the prisoner came from the back fields to the house.

"Did he a coat on?"

"I don't know."

"Did you go in the house?"

"Not right away.

Mr. Justice Logie—"why, were you afraid of him?"

Sharkey's answer was Yes.

Mr. Payne—"You say you were afraid of him but as a matter of fact Robinson came down into the barnyard and asked you to disarm?"

"I was afraid of him at first."

Stanley Lewis who accompanied St. Charles to the Robinson farm corroborated the evidence of the last witness in regard to the driving of the cattle to the laneway. Lewis told of his going over to the knoll after the second shot but failed to see anything. Lewis said that the shot came from around and he faced the gate post.

Mr. Cunningham—"Did you see anything after."

Mr. Bread pointed out a man in the bushes some distance away. Lewis observed that the man was running from tree to tree to another in the gully.

"After him Robinson came back to the house shortly after 12 o'clock. Lewis said Abe was attired only in shirt sleeves.

Harold Long was one of the threshers at Robinson's on the day of the shooting. He drove to Bannockburn with Lemuel Robinson to get and arrived back about noon.

Mr. Cunningham—"Where, did you see Abe Robinson that day?"

"He was coming along the fence from the pasture field."

"What time?"

"Around 12 o'clock."

"Where did he go?"

"He went up through the yard and into the house."

"Did you notice anything unusual about him?"

"No."

Mr. Redding testified that Lemuel Robinson came to his house on the 15th of November and he accompanied him back home. At that time Abraham came in from the fields and his sister informed him of the shooting. He replied—"I even give an account of myself" and his sister said, "Thank God for that."

Miss Elizabeth Robinson, sister of the accused, presented a pathetic figure as she ascended to the stand Her actions showed the result of long worrying.

"Do you remember the 15th of November last?" asked Mr. Cunningham.

"Yes.—Mr. St. Charles came to our house."

She told of hearing the first shot and going out into the yard. Later she said she returned to the house and heard another shot and still a little later, another.

"You have no idea where these shots came from."

"No."

"How many rifles had you at your home?"

"A 38-55 rifle and a .44 and a Snyder shot gun."

"When did you see the two rifles previous to the 15th of November," asked Mr. Cunningham.

"I saw them on Saturday the 13th of November."

"Where did you see them."

"In the cellar-way of our house."

"Did you see either of them on Monday?"

"Mr. Donnan had a .44 rifle which he found in a cellar-way."

Alexander Sharkey was called.

"Were you ever at the Robinson farm?" asked Mr. Cunningham.

"Yes, a year ago last November."

Just previous to Miss Robinson's departure from the stand she mumbled something about Alex. Sharkey and the false evidence at the inquest, but Mr. Justice Logie advised her that her remarks might more rather than aid her brother in his fight for his life.

DEATHS

Don't Take Rides With Strangers In Nice Cars

By ELSIE MARLOWE

Pass the Carbrette Charlies with the shiny cabs and the generous offers of a lift to every girl who walks! Our high ways are getting fuller and fuller of these bats. Regardless of the make of the car, or the age, breed or complexion in it, they're all burned up with one idea —THAT THEY'RE IRRESISTIBLE.

Maybe that would have been regarded as a total idea ten years ago, now pin blue ribbons on themselves simply because they're sitting on a gas tank and two pairs of tires.

Now comes Clarsie with a few long needed remarks for this gentry:

DEAR ELSIE:

I would like very much to have your opinion on a matter of much importance to several of my girl friends and myself. I refer to certain men (both young and old) who, because they are driving large, handsome automobiles, believe that every girl, who is walking on the street and is minding her own business, would like to go for a ride.

I do admit that there are many many times and it is certainly very annoying. These men imagine that all they have to do is to open the door, peer out, my sweetly: "Can I give you a lift?" etc. And, when the lovely invitation is refused they become very angry indeed, even as far as to curse and swear at the girl.

I do admit that there are many girls who would gladly accept a ride—girls who do not value themselves very highly—but why in the world won't they leave the girls alone who do not wish to be bothered with anything so cheap and common as a "pick-up" on the street?

Would you advise that we wear large, noisy gums plastered on our backs reading: "NO RIDES WANTED," or just what would you suggest?

CLARIE.

Suggestions from me would be superfluous, Clarie. That letter of yours packs a bigger wallop than a dora zen of mine. I'm for you, little girl!

But while we're on this subject I would like to add a few words for the girls who DON'T refuse the ride. Listen to me. Your mother and aunts, and high-school teachers and old-maid friends have talked themselves black in the face about the dangers of this practice. And you haven't paid any attention because you think they "don't know their onions." Well, maybe they don't. It is quite possible that a means of the middle of 1927 isn't up to all the tricks of 1927. But, believe me, little sisters, I am. That's my job. I'm the preacher and the teacher. I'm a well-versed woman and I spend my time right-but in the middle of the Big Party. And I'm here to tell you that the girl who accepts a "lift" from a strange man IS A RECKLESS, CHEAP LITTLE FOOL WHO EXPANGERS HER DECENCY AND RISKS HER VERY LIFE.

"Oh, but any girl who knows her business can tell whether a fellow is straight or not," say Mamie and Stella, Betty and Roe and Jane.

NO, SHE CAN'T!

My work takes me into the jails and police courts, and every day I see men who have committed crimes against young girls. The wisest doctor, the smartest cop, the most experienced social service worker couldn't distinguish most of those men from the average college chap or respectable business man. The most fiendish man I ever knew looked like a Sunday School teacher.

That's straight goods. I'm not going to beg you to remember and profit by it. I'm just telling you that you're a little fool if you don't.

Keeping Plaits Within Well-Defined Bounds

LICE apartments of modern build, plain this season seem to be serving their purpose well though covering a limited space. For wherever they are confined, a few plaits can give the straightest skirt all the necessary fulness; while used in the latest swing, however restricted, manner shows above they furnish a most unusual and attractive form of trimming. This frock of crepe de Chine employs a darker or lighter shade of the material to finish the inset square neck and to form the clever looped band down the waist front. Shirring of inverted tucks at the shoulders give soft fulness, while two deep tails in the graceful blouse above the tight hipline.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Ostrich is a popular trimming note and is obtainable in all the pastel shades and many two-tone effects are among the offerings while Paris sponsors a new finish of imported ostrich with velvet ribbon for the street costume.

New York reports that cut-steel buckles are being used on afternoon dress shoes and black is an important spring shoe color and the buckle comes in an advance trimming style while colored shoes have buckles of self color and thus we see instances of gunmetal suede with gunmetal buckles, brown suede or kid with bronze buckles, etc., and evening shoes continue to use rhinestone buckles and jewels.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

In order to measure molasses quickly and accurately, dip the measuring cup or spoon into scalding water before measuring.

When washing white silk, or white silk stockings, lukewarm water should be used. Water that is too hot turns white silk yellow.

If you find the boiled icing is not going to be stiff enough after adding the sugar to the egg whites, add a little confectioners' sugar until it is thick enough to spread nicely. It will do the trick, and you will probably like the smooth texture even better than the plain boiled frosting.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

A LITTLE WORDLY ADVICE

Sanford smiled slightly at Christine's astonished expression.

"Why do you look like that? What is there odd about my suggestion that you read your play in my apartment? Surely you are not so conventional that you think anything improper is implied."

"But—but" she stammered, "I never visit men's apartments. One must have some inhibitions, you know," she added, with a smile, not wishing to offend him.

"But my dear girl, look at this from a reasonable standpoint. You can't read your play to me in a public restaurant, and if I can't come to your apartment—at least, you have not invited me to—on account of your—er—children."

He spoke with a smile that made her indignant.

"I have two children," she flared. "You speak as if you didn't believe it."

"At least, you don't look it," he told her. "That's the highest compliment I can pay any woman."

"You are cynical," she accused him. "You'd wonder any that if you could see my children—especially my boy. He's a marvelous child."

He made no reply to her gesture.

"Please spare me the rhapsodies of an adoring parent. I am not in the least interested. That's the inhibition you mentioned."

Something made her shrink from him, as from an unnatural, unclean thing. She saw him as the world saw him—a heartless man of the world who had no pity or feeling, who would sacrifice every thing for his own pleasure.

His experience had taught Christine to make compromises for the sake of a valuable acquaintance, but she had failed to smile and be pleasant even to flatter the people she thoroughly disliked, it seemed to her that position was not afford to give offense. She wanted Henry Sanford's good will, if she could possibly have it.

Her belief in her play, her determination that it should have a fair hearing when it was completed, made her willing to overlook certain objectionable qualities in this millionaire. She dismissed the subject of her children reluctantly and let the conversation lead the conversation for a field. When he put her in his car to send her back to the office, he said, during her home.

"I'll ring you up in a few days. Perhaps we can dine together—oh, in a restaurant, of course," he added, with an amused smile.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young wife of twenty and it seems that there is nothing in the world to live for any more. I was married, when I was eighteen, the man that my father chose for me. At that time I was in love with a fine young man who loved me sincerely and wanted me to marry him. But my father objected to him because he had no money and no prospects, and I was forced to marry against my will.

I moved to another city to live and did not see my sweetheart for two years. Now he has come to this town and wants me to divorce my husband and marry him. And I want to do both. Annie Laurie. But there is one thing which keeps me, and that is that we are to have a baby in a few months.

Please help me. AMY.

AMY: I am sure you would have been much happier if you had married the man you really loved. Amy, that now you cannot do anything to remedy this unfortunate situation. You have your baby to think of, and when he comes your own unhappiness will fade into insignificance beside the joy he brings. If you devote yourself wholly to him and to your home you will learn to forget your own sorrow.

And, furthermore, make up your mind not to correspond with or see this dear friend of yours. It will only be harder for you to give him up if you have an opportunity to renew your old friendship. Write him and tell him that you cannot do what he suggests because you owe it to yourself and your baby to remain with your husband. Make him understand that you are taking this step not because you do not love him, but because it is the wisest thing to do—and I think he will appreciate your attitude.

Won't you write me later on and tell me how things are. I'd love to hear from you again.

She felt that he was laughing at her, and she smiled and retorted flippantly:

"I'm not half as afraid as I pretend."

"I know that very well," was the reply.

Nina was strolling down Broadway when Christine alighted from the luxurious limousine. Her eyes widened. Then she winked broadly.

"I'll say you're a fast worker, Chris. Is this the way you come to work?"

Nina whistled softly.

"Whew! And your humble servant, who presented the 'walking gink' to the bold, bad millionaire, is going to run errands. Come along and tell me the news."

When they were seated at a table, Nina, taking frank interest in her lunch remarked:

"You are a credit as a pupil, Chris. I never saw a girl learn the game so quickly. I'll bet you'll work Sanford to a finish, even if he is a wary bird. You have just the right look of innocence to put it across."

Christine flushed with re-sentment.

"Maybe I am trying to make a little use of his influence, but I honestly want to like him as a friend. I have awfully few men friends."

"What's the use of 'em?" demanded Nina. "You don't have to like them, just because they take you to dinner."

"But then why should I go?"

"Because you want a free meal, you poor simp."

"But that sounds rather—well—cordid."

Nina gave her a disgusted look.

"What do you care? You don't think the men take you out for your conversation, do you? They don't want to listen to your friendly chatter. They like to do the talking themselves."

"But really, Nina——" z

"Listen to me," reiterated Nina, "I have told you before that you can sting along these bobbs for quite a while. Of course, if you really like one of them and want to keep him, that's different. But as for most of them, you can just tell them to go roll their hoops. There is no sense more like them along in a couple minutes.

"Christine stared at Nina curiously.

"Nina—you don't—you aren't really"

"My morals are my own business," snapped Nina, "and you needn't look on virtuous when I try to give you a piece of good advice. You are not play ing the game so awfully squarely yourself. Don't forget you're passing as a widow, when you are really a married woman with a perfectly good husband kicking around somewhere."

"But that's a very difficult and intimate subject to explain—a story that no one would understand, even if he were interested."

"Difficult, my eye!" exclaimed Nina in exasperation. "All you have to do is say you are married. Of course, we both know that the part of men we meet are not the marrying kind—at least, they are not looking for a wife in our sort

Jury Ruled That Liability Was Divided Equally Between Parties.

New York Bank Managers and Gotham Society leaders were represented in court yesterday when Bono Rancovic and his wife Rosie, wealthy plaintiffs in the $5,000 damage suit appearing against Mr. and Mrs. John Orrill, residents of the Town of Trenton.

Late last night the jury fixed the damages at $500 but placed half the liability on the plaintiffs, so that they will collect only $250 from the defendants. They were given costs on a decision of County Court basis.

The case arose out of an automobile accident on Gilmour's Hill, Dundas Street, Trenton, on September 10th, 1926. The plaintiffs alleged that $600.00 damage was done to their car besides both having received injuries which temporarily resulted in their incapacitation. Mrs. Rancovic claims the loss of two teeth in the accident and there were only repaired at a cost of $65.00, besides this a physician's bill amounting to $14.00 was presented.

The Rancovics, both of whom were exceptionally well dressed, proclaim the Balkan States as their original home. "Little Old New York" had evidently been kind to them and good fortune camped on their path and the male member of the family holds a responsible position with a banking concern while his better half has likewise gained an estimable place in the aristocracy of New York. The latter showed to the manner in which she delivered her evidence that she possesses a refinement and education that stamps her as one to be admired.

Terrance McManus who spoke with a distinct Irish accent claims the land of the Shamrock as his birth-place. He has been in America for fifteen years, he said, and since taking up his residence in New York has been employed as a mechanic.

Defence Witness

Mrs. Orrill, the only witness for the defence, told her story in a most convincing and easy style and evidently got excited in the grilling cross-examination.

Only a few witnesses were heard but the trial occupied several hours, having commenced at 3 p.m., yesterday afternoon and continued until 7.30 this evening when the Hon. Mr Justice Logie addressed the jury.

Both Mr. Agar of Toronto who appeared for the defendant, Mrs. Orrill, and also Mr. Graham of Trenton who represented the Rancovics, argued strong cases.

In his final summing-up, Mr. Agar accorsed the Yankees for coming to this country and engaging themselves in an effort to procure some "easy" money from a less-wealthy Canadians.

Mr. Graham appealed to the Jury men on the grounds that the rights of an American citizen should be upheld in a Canadian Court. He maintained that if the tourist trade is to continue our American cousins must be fairly treated.

Drove Big Cadillac

His Honor Mr. Justice Logie, when over the lines regarding responsibility, questioned Mrs. Orrill closely on the effect a small car might have in a collision with a larger motor The Rancovic motor, a huge Cadillac was bowled over by the lighter Hudson which might have some bearing on judging the speed at which Mrs. Orrill was travelling.

Rancovic in his evidence gave his version of the accident, He said they were proceeding slowly in a westerly direction through the Town and suddenly their car was hit and turned table with the result that both he and his wife suffered some injuries. The car was near the curb upon turning over. Rancovic estimated the damage to his car at $600.00.

Travelling For Health

The witness stated that his physician had ordered the trip as a means of benefitting his health. Rancovic stated that he felt physically fit at the present but had a fear of riding in automobiles.

In cross examination Mr. Agar the defendants solicitor asked "Where had you come from?"

Mr. Justice Logie "Probably from Montreal."

"Did your chauffeur know this country?"

"He said he did."

"What speed did you generally travel at?"

"Sometimes 25 or 30 miles an hour, when on country roads, and always 20 miles in the Towns."

"You nor your wife had no knowledge of the approach of this automobile."

"No."

"Is there an intersection running north and south?"

"Yes."

Rancovic admitted that there was a sign at the corner of Mcmurray and Dundas pointing to Toronto. He said his Chauffeur did not notice the sign upon approaching the corner.

"Did your driver blow the horn upon approaching the corner?"

"I don't recall it."

"Were there any brakes applied on your car?"

"No."

Mrs. Rancovic who was driving with her husband and the chauffeur was the next witness.

She told of driving along the road talking to her husband and as they neared the corner a huge object loomed up and she remembered that there was an impact and all was black and she was then helped into a doctor's office. She recounted the extent of the injuries sustained in her knees and elbows. Mrs. Rancovic said that she was forced to remain in bed for some weeks and still experiences some trouble in getting about.

Terrance McManus, the chauffeur of the car was the next witness called. "Did you have a clear view of the traffic coming up the hill from the left?"

"Yes."

When asked how long he had been driving a car, the reply was fifteen years.

McManus stated that he judged the speed of the Orrill car to be going in the neighborhood of fifty miles per hour.

Dr. E. C. McQuaid of Trenton who treated Mr. and Mrs. Rancovic following the accident, took the stand. He gave a brief survey of the injuries sustained by the couple and stated that Mrs. Rancovic was suffering from shock as well.

Chief William Bain of Trenton was the next witness heard. He described the position of the two cars on the north curb.

Dr. H. Richardson, Dentist of Trenton, recounted treatment given to to Mrs. Rancovic on September 10th, 1926.

Klein Orrill, the defendant and driver of the car was the only witness called by Mr. Agar. She said she was driving up the hill on Dundas Street and noticed another car about 75 feet away coming towards her around the corner. Looking up again the car was 25 feet away. On starting to make the turn north on Marmora Street, the other car showed up and turned sharply down the hill.

"When he turned sharply did you have any chance to avoid a collision?"

"No."

Smith vs Clough

This was the first case on the docket for trial at the present sitting before Mr. Justice Logie at the opening of the Assizes today. The action is one for $10,000.00 damages for breach of promise of marriage. The defendant not having received sufficient notice of trial under the Rules, Mr. Justice Logie ordered that the trial be laid over until the next Jury Sittings at Belleville, which no doubt will be in October. The parties both reside in the City of Belleville.

Meagher vs Meagher

This case came before the Honourable Mr. Justice Logie yesterday, and His Lordship made an Order of Reference, directing that the issues raised by the pleadings between the parties be referred to Colonel S. S Lasier, Local Master, for trial. The action is between husband and wife. The husband claims that the monies invested in the payment of three mortgages on properties on Dundas Street in Belleville, for which assignments of mortgages were obtained, were the property of the husband and wife jointly, and that monies earned by the husband. The wife claims that the monies represented

The Irony of Love
By Charles Garvice

"I'll be proud to meet you," said Rafe, in a low voice.

"Alright," said Sir Ives, muttering to himself, "In for a penny, in for a pound it's got to come through."

He and Rafe drew up in a corner of the room, and Rafe looked round him with those calm, observant eyes of his. Of course, it was absolutely novel scene for him, and for a moment he was confused by the brilliantly lighted room, the beautiful women in their exquisite dresses, the lashing of their jewels, the air and hum of voices. It happened to be an interval between the dance, and Sir Ives, catching the arm of a man who was passing, introduced Rafe; other introductions followed, and soon Rafe was surrounded by a little circle. Moreover, the news of his arrival had spread, and a great many were directed to the ward him; a fact Rafe's first appearance in society already promised to create what the newspaper men call a "sensation. All the time he was talking in one and the other, he was looking round the room in search of Maude, and at last he saw her standing beside a man with a sloping forehead and a receding chin, and, notwithstanding these drawbacks, a certain air of self-possession and distinction which Rafe noted.

"I'm going to ask Lady Maude to dance with me," he said to Sir Ives, and breaking away from the group, he strode across the room, his tall figure, and a head higher than that of any other man present, followed by scores of curious and interested eyes.

"Sir," Rafe will you give me this next dance?" he asked.

The man standing beside her slowly raised his eyeglass and, evidently, surveyed Rafe from head to foot, and then upward from foot to head.

Maude nodded, then she turned to her companion. "This is Lord Stranlyre," she said. "Stranlyre, this is Lord Sunborne."

"Proud to meet you!" said Rafe, holding out his hand.

Viscount Sunborne, the son and heir of the Duke of Weybridge, though so startled by Rafe's mode of address, did as Sunborne expressed it afterwards, "you might have knocked him down with a feather!" took the proffered hand and suffered the grip without a wince.

"Lord Sunborne is an old friend of ours," said Maude severely, though she was aware of Sunborne's amazement. "His father's place adjoins ours. I hope you and he will be friends."

"Why, that's fixed, if you say so," said Rafe promptly. "You and I will have a drink together when I've got through this dance, sir. Come on Maude."

The band had commenced a waltz. Rafe looked round him, then stopped short, with a perplexed air.

"What is it, Jane?" inquired Rafe, shaking his head. "We don't move like this anywhere. We stand up under each other and keep our feet going in time with the music, with a swing now and then just to make it lively." "Then you just stand on a reel," said Maude. "That's a Scottish dance. Oh, yes, you'll be able to dance that in Scotland. We don't have it in London—or very seldom. Never mind, we'll sit it out. Shall we go into that corner there out of the way?" she suggested, for already several couples had bumped into Rafe, who stood immovable as a rock, and was quite unconscious of the indignant looks which were shot at him by the injured parties.

"Right for me," said. "Seems to me," he added, as he dropped into a chair beside her, "that I'm up against a lot of new things. I don't know

The Ladies League schedule is drawing to a close for the winter league at the Recreation alleys, some of the teams finishing up their winter grind. In the games last night Ritchies won three points from the Ponies. Miss S. Habbard having a beautiful chance for breaking the alley record and only for her leaving on a double strike in the last frame would of had it, as it was she rolled a high single of 284. High three strike bowlers were Miss V. Rainbird and Mrs. Draycott.

The Optics and Deacons broke even each two wins each both teams playing four players aside. The Optics won the first game and total while Deacons won the second and third games. High bowlers were Miss Ethier and Mrs. Delaup.

The Orchids and Alemite was the other ladies league fixture, the former team winning three points and the latter one, Miss Bowlen's four 304s Carry-

TRAINING CAMP GOSSIP

The Chicago Cubs' new $40,000 baseball stadium, Wrigley Field, is impressing the critical spectators by its sparkling work in the field at Catalina, but the batting against mid-season pitching is still to be tested.

The St. Louis Browns made very little preparation for their first exhibition game, and Manager Dan Howley was not taken aback to await of the New York Giants 13 to 1 victory at Sarasota yesterday.

The batting heroes of the New York Giants in their 15 to 1 trouncing of the St. Louis Browns were Rogers Hornsby and "Pete" Debourreau, late of the American Association, who crashed out a home run in his first trip to the plate.

BOUQUET FOR MARSH

They take their hockey seriously down in New York, and they do not forget to try and pick out the weaknesses of the officials as well as the players. R. K. Arthur, writing in a weekly publication called the New Yorker, hands the following bouquet to Lou Marsh:

"In the Ranger-Pirate melee the highlights were supplied by Arbour of the invaders, and Cook brothers and Stoother, of the Ranger regulars of the line.

"The comic relief was afforded by that droll fellow, Lou E. Marsh, who in the role of presiding genius, played the giddy garden goat to perfection. Or perhaps I should say the serpent in the garden.

"No evidence has been found, to our knowledge, of this gentleman's ever having played the game of hockey, but his record in the matter of marring games is astounding.

"In the first place, he appears to be unable to skate fast enough to keep out of the players' way, so he is never quite on top of the play—in fact, the player is much too often on top of him.

"His awards in the matter of penalties are often so glaringly mistaken that the opposing players forget their rivalry in exchanging smiles and looks expressive of sympathy and commiseration."

GIVES CANADA CREDIT

It was but a few days ago that a writer in an American magazine gave all the credit to American promoters for putting hockey on the sound commercial basis that it is to-day, but there are some men who realize that credit of originating the game belongs to Canada. Before the present hockey season opened, hockey was as foreign to Harry Salsinger of the Detroit News, as sugar is to salt. But he proved an apt student, and to-day knows the game just about as well as he knows baseball. Writing in Henry Ford's paper, the Dearborn Independent, he says:

"No game that we know of is better suited to the American sports' taste than hockey. It carries all the qualities that American sports look for in competition. It has more speed than any other game, more action and color. It is an open game, where competition can be followed closely every second of play. It demands courage and skill, and, above all, team play.

"Hockey," he sums up, "was constructed by the Canadas. They built slowly, but they built carefully soundly, thoroughly. They have provided a game that is even better suited to the American taste than to the land of its nativity. It is the fastest and one of the most popular of sport spectacles."

Babe Ruth stepped out in his first practice with the Yankees at St. Petersburg, Fla., yesterday. One of his drives landed at the feet of a farmer at work in his patch outside the practice field. "I see Babe Ruth is in town again," the farmer remarked.

The return of Bill Dook, veteran pitcher after a year's absence, and his fine showing in practice, together with the speed and condition of "Chief" Wilson, former Giant, are pleasing Manager Wilbert Robinson at the Brooklyn camp.

Manager George Moriarity, of the Detroit Tigers, is enthusiastic over Harry Heilmann's work. Heilmann has been knocking the ball out of the lot with monotonous precision of late. He is usually a slow starter with the bat.

The Swastikas remained in first place by winning three points from their nearest rivals the Pontiac's, the latter team winning their only point in the last game. Mrs. Cole and Miss Gorman were high bowlers.

1,000 Years of Successful Business in Canada

THE experience and assets of more than 1,000 years' business success have been capitalized in the formation of the Canadian Department Stores, Limited. Each of the twenty-two stores united in this organization has had an average of more than forty-four years' prosperity. None has ever shown a financial loss.

Generations ago these were the "general stores" that catered to the needs of a pioneer civilization, and promoted the growth of sparsely settled communities. And as the villages and towns became thriving cities, these stores prospered accordingly, and blossomed forth as up-to-date department stores.

Today, recognizing the great advantages of large volume buying, the department stores have pooled their resources and founded the greatest chain store system in Canada. Through this Canadian Department Stores, Limited, they have a greatly multiplied their purchasing power, and now offer their customers the newest and best of goods at notable savings.

Even in the worst business years Canada has experienced during the past decade audited statements bring out the remarkable fact that all of these stores showed splendid earning power—in fact, actual net earnings in excess of all interest requirements. How many investment fields have shown such a record?

An opportunity for prudent investors to share in the future prosperity of this consolidation is afforded by the issuing of First and Refunding Mortgage Income Gold Bonds that yield 7 per cent. Bonds may be secured in denominations of $100, $500 or $1,000. More than 60 per cent. of this issue is being taken by the former owners of the stores, who continue as managers.

BELLE THEATRE

Remember the Scarecrow? And the Tin-Man? And Little Dorothy? And the Lion? And the Wizard? And the cyclone and all the other thrilling and fun in the land of Oz? Well they are all brought to life in the Chadwick Pictures Corporation screen version of the world's most famous fantastic spectacle, L. Frank Baum's "Wizard of Oz" which is scheduled to be shown at the Belle Theatre tomorrow.

This famous story has been familiar in the world for the past twenty years. Adults have been fascinated and charmed with its whimsical humor which is worthy of the pen of a Barrie; children have been delighted with its reading it again and again. Montgomery and Stone scored a success that gained them fame and fortune in the musical comedy version but the books and play combined could not visualize as effectively the fantastic ideas of the author which will be shown on the screen.

REGENT THEATRE

Art Acord, famous Western star has been given the title role for the all fields in his new picture, "Loco Luck," which opens at the Regent theatre, Thursday.

None of the thrills for which Acord's pictures are famous are lacking in this exciting tale of the range, but rather there is a new variety to them which makes them the more unexpected and dramatic.

Neil Smith, the director, once a cowpuncher, and also the owner of the property, had charge of this picture, and put in the "kicker" which have made him famous.

There is a charming love story between Acord and Fay Wray, his leading lady, which progresses beneath the oil derricks and ends in a blaze of glory with Acord triumphant at the finish. However, Smith cleverly keeps the suspense of the story at fever heat.

In the cast of this picture, written by William MacLeod Raine, are Aggie Herring, William Steele, Al Jennings, George Granite, George Reasterson and George Marion.

WIDE PROTEST

WHY NOT CITY?

Oshawa, March 9.—Oshawa's Aldermen are notoriously slow-to-move and almost minded. Repeatedly—habitually—in speaking of the community in which they have built their career—they could not be "Aldermen—they either the word "Town" when they mean Oshawa. They say "The streets of the Town" or "The Town Solicitor" or "The Town Engineer" or "The Town Hall"—it is significant but surely thoughtless?

TOOK WRONG CAR

Oshawa, March 9.—Manufacturers may have to put distinguishing marks on automobiles soon, so that their owners may know them. Early yesterday afternoon, Elmer Wilbur of Taunton, reported his car stolen and broken knifed Tuesday night. Colonel Bollin, in which case the car, giving numbers of license plate and engine Shortly afterwards Wilbur returned to the station and "called everything off." An ambitious car dealer hurried out north to talk a deal, having taken Wilbur's car instead of his own, which he left parked near the place where the other car had been left. It was a case of mistaken identity.

ALBURY

On the evening of February 22nd a jolly crowd of friends numbering about sixty gathered at the hospitable home of Mr. John Elliott, Albury. The visit came as a complete surprise and caused much merriment when the neighbors came in with well-filled baskets despite the stormy night. After a couple of hours social intercourse in which everyone expressed their regrets at losing Mr. Elliott and family from our locality after a sojourn of fifteen years. A neighbor, kind and willing to help in every way. However, we are glad that they are not going far away and our loss will be the gain for the community to which they are to move. Mr. Earl Bonter called them to order and the following address was read by Mr. Wm. Peck:

"We, your friends, have gathered here this evening on the eve of your departure from our midst, to show our appreciation of your friendship and express our regrets at your leaving, well knowing that our loss will be yours. Many times during the years we are glad to know that you are not going far away and hope to see you often in the future. Your star will be in the west only too short, but knowing that the best of neighbors must sometimes be separated, we have the latch string of our hospitality on the outside should you ever decide to return. We know that you will make new acquaintances and practice the same friendship wherever you advance in life and by keeping friendship in good repair your short days in our new home should be almost as pleasant as the last one's in the old."

To Percy and Wife—

"We are glad to know that you have successfully united your courtship and the bonds of matrimony may the sweet senhyrs of love and harmony propel your life's craft towards the peaceful sea and may you ren ever run into a storm let it be a gale of prosperity and as no rou ners be met as you go through life's cuilds that ship fi sometimes is in danger of striking the rocks of unhappiness and adversity may it be that we know all "rocks" will be confined to the cradle.

"Kindly bear that your combined friendship will never tompder in the shallows of deception we wish to show our appreciation of your friendship and sojourn amongst us by asking you to accept these chairs. This rocking chair we present to the baby hoping that he grows to manhood thinking as much of his parents then as they think of him now. These other ones we present to Johnny and his mother praying that the scythe of time will long spare them to enjoy many days beyond the span of life, ever thinking of old friends while resting in these chairs."

Signed on behalf of the Albury friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott both thanked the friends for their kindness and said they would carry with them the love of the neighbors in Albury and would still feel that they would like to help the old neighbors whenever possible.

ABE ROBINSON IS FREE MAN; JURY BRINGS VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY AFTER FIVE HOURS' DELIBERATION

Brilliant Defense Drags Prisoner From the Noose—Judge Logie Says He is Convinced Robinson Fired the Fatal Shot—Will Try to Have Acquitted Man Locked Up in Some Institution.

VERDICT GIVEN AT 12.01 A. M.

"Not Guilty."

This verdict was brought in by the jury at 12.01 last night in the trial of 62-year-old Abraham Robinson, charged with the murder of Bailiff Charles St. Charles in Eldorado on November 16th, 1926.

This is the closing chapter in a trial in which circumstantial evidence played a leading role and in which the brilliancy of the defense served to literally grasp the life of the prisoner from the shadow of the gallows.

The presentation of the jurys verdict was spectacular! In the crowded court room as assembly who had waited all day for the verdict sat in poignant silence as those on whose hands the fate of the prisoner rested were ushered in for the third time; they having returned on two separate occasions. The first time they wanted to ask questions regarding the different times of day and at the last court session to inform His Lordship that they had not reached an agreement and wished to resume deliberation this morning. The last Judge refused asserting that the law would forbid such a course.

Mr. Justice Logie asked, the foreman, Mr. George Wallbridge if the jury had reached a decision and the answer was "Yes your Honor, we find the prisoner not guilty."

Thinks Robinson Fired Shot

At this juncture Lemuel Robinson, brother of the prisoner who was seated among the spectators broke the tense silence which followed the verdict by jumping to his feet and exclaiming "Thank you gentlemen of the jury".

Sheriff Clare commanded silence in the court and the Judge proceeded to address the prisoner saying:

"Abraham Robinson, the jury has found you not guilty upon evidence that would have equally sustained a verdict of guilty. As for myself I think you fired the shot which killed St. Charles and I think some steps must be taken to have you placed in a safe institution where you will not be a menace to the community and I assure you that a clause to this effect will be lavished in my report. You are now a free man and may go from this court room."

Thanks the Jury

"Thank you members of the jury, you have done me a great kindness" said Abe Robinson as he jumped from the prisoners box and was surrounded by friends who heartily congratulated him on his acquittal. He proceeded down stairs and through the crowd corridor to the jailer's office where he was given his personal belongings by Turnkey H. E. Gaskill, after which he talked for several minutes and expressed his thanks at the treatment given him during his incarceration at the Belleville Jail. He then left the jail a free man to spend his first night in four months at liberty. Robinson though naturally jubilant over obtaining his liberty, displayed considerable nervousness.

Brilliant Defense

Mr. Charles A. Payne, one of Belleville's outstanding young lawyers, in defending the prisoner was confronted by apparently insurmountable barriers which with remarkable astuteness he

STATEMENTS OF A. ROBINSON AND THE DYING ST. CHARLES

DYING STATEMENT ACCUSED ROBINSON

Bailiff St. Charles' dying statement given in court yesterday was:—

I know that I am about to die and have no hope of recovery. While I was at Robinson's farm to seize for taxes and after Lemuel had gone for the minister, a shot was fired from behind the knoll on the roadway. I saw the smoke from the gun. A while after that another shot was fired from the same place. I saw the smoke from the gun and then I saw Abe Robinson raise up from where the two shots had been fired. A while after I went to the gate and another shot was fired from about the same place as the first two and the bullet struck me. I say Abraham Robinson is the man who shot me.

(Signed) C. ST. CHARLES.

ROBINSON DENIES THE SHOOTING

Statement of Abe Robinson regarding the shooting of Constable Charles St. Charles in Madoc Township on the morning of November 15, 1926:—

After being warned that I did not need to say anything and that what I did say would be taken down in writing and used against me at my trial, I make the following statement. I took my rifle out this morning with me when I went milking and I brought it out again after breakfast and brought it back again just before dinner after Constable St. Charles left. The knoll to the south of the barnyard gate is about 75 yards distant. I saw young Sharkey near the barn and another boy. The cows were in the lane at this time. I also saw these boys in the field. I saw a car near the barnyard gate, a big man was standing beside it. I went to the house and saw Arthur Thompkins standing in the door-step. I shook hands with him. He did not say anything about St. Charles to me, but my sister told me as soon as I stepped into the kitchen that St. Charles had been shot. I put the rifle away in the kitchen and went to the barn. I did not go out to see them take him away. I did not go out to see him badly he was hurt. I do not know whether my sister Ella or my brother Lemuel went out to see St. Charles or not. The rifle does not shoot smokeless powder as it is too long for it. I use black powder.

SMITH DOUBTFUL NOW OF IDENTITY

Left For Toronto With His Sister—Remains Are Buried

Horace Smith left for Toronto last evening in company with his sister, Mrs. Neil McClennan, where he will spend a couple of days at Mrs. McClennan's home. Mr. Smith is daily becoming more doubtful as to the identity of the man John Smith, who died in Harrah, Oklahoma. According to messages from that city the body was interred yesterday and there is little chance that should the "man proven to be Captain Smith" as the late George E. Marsh, that the body will be exhumed.

It is possible that Horace Smith may leave for Oklahoma himself and his presence they should clear the mystery immediately. He was undecided as to his course upon his leaving Belleville yesterday.

MRS. BENNETT DIED SUDDENLY

When Mrs Mayor G. A. Bennett returned to her home on Donald street, from the office yesterday, he failed to find his wife but did not worry as he thought she had gone to visit a nearby neighbour. Upon going upstairs later in the evening, however, he found Mrs. Bennett lying dead on her room floor, having succumbed to a sudden attack of heart trouble. She had been ill for a short time.

The deceased was a member of St Andrew's Church, but had not been active in church circles owing to failing health. She is survived by her husband, one sister, Mrs. T. Ewer, of this city, and one brother, William McPherson, of Toronto. The remains will be laid to rest in the Belleville Mausoleum vault.

STRUGGLING HEART BOWS TO ENCROACHING DEATH

Chicago, Ills., March 10.—The span of life kept aglow in the paralyzed body of Alfred Frick for four days by a resolute crew of men, working in shifts to provide artificial respiration, flickered feebly today as the three score workers battled grimly against death.

Through the long night watches they toiled, two by two, compressing and relaxing the lungs that had become numb Sunday morning, fighting to stay the end which physicians feared was near. Except for a brief administration of oxygen, there were no breaks in the rhythmatic body and a bluish color spreading over body features of the 70-year-old patient told of the rise of battle against the straining heart.

ACQUITTED MAN THINKS KILLING WAS BY PURELY ACCIDENTAL SHOT

Stray Bullet From Hunter's Gun Glancing Off a Stone

Free from the shadow of the gallow which has hung over him since November 15th, Abraham Robinson slept soundly last night at the Crystal Hotel and this morning, refreshed and eager to get back home, the courteous host received representatives of the Press.

Robinson expressed resentment to Mr. Justice Logie's address to him following the jury's verdict. He felt keenly the judge's words regarding his discretion in a case for which mentally deficient and said that had the judge been the jury he would undoubtedly now be awaiting death or life imprisonment.

62 Years Old

"I am sixty-two years old," said Robinson, "and yesterday was the first time I have ever faced a Court of Law in my life. I have never been in trouble, have died a credit to my neighbours and I had no hard feelings against Charles St. Charles. I have always maintained that St. Charles was not the right man for the place he held. The people I blame for the seizure of my cattle are those who put St. Charles in the position he held."

Robinson was reticent about discussing the murder but said that he is convinced that the shot which killed St. Charles was fired from hunters in the woods.

Thinks Shooting Accident

"The fatal shot," he said, "was probably fired at a stone and glanced striking St. Charles." He described several occasions on which he had seen bullets glancing with almost fatal results.

"No one pays any attention to a

DEFENSE COUNSEL NATURALLY PLEASED

"This is the end of the case as far as I am concerned," said Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, "and there is no further action to be taken unless on the part of the Attorney-General's Department."

Another trial cannot be instituted by the Crown unless a mistake or error was committed in the one. The Department can take some action to have Abraham Robinson placed in a safe institution apart from his fellow men if they wish to act on the recommendation of the Hon. Mr. Justice Logie which was given according to his statement made following the trial, proposes to make.

Charles A. Payne, counsel for the defense, was naturally pleased this morning following the victory. He stated that Abraham Robinson would leave for his home today and that the case had terminated as far as he was connected with it.

Mr. Payne proposed any attempt to place Abe Robinson in an institution would be strongly opposed by lawyers on his behalf. Mr. Payne will leave the city today on a business

TO FIX FEES

Will Also Decide Amount of Liquor Purchasable at One Time

Toronto, Ont., March 10.—Many important details in the administration of the Government Liquor Control Bill offered by Premier Ferguson, for first reading, in the Ontario Legislature yesterday, are left in the Control Commission, which has been named with D. B. Hanna as chairman, but not officially appointed. The matter of fixing the fee for residential and tourist permits is for the commission, it is understood that this fee will be quite nominal. The commission is also to decide the amount of liquor to be sold at one time and there is almost unlimited powers of cancellation of permits for abuse of privileges.

Forecasts Were Correct

Toronto, March 10.—In the light of forecasts of the bill which have appeared in the last few days, the 144 sections are informative for the sake of detail, rather than for anything entirely new which they communicate concerning the proposed act. There is, of course, to be no sale of beer by the glass or in hotels with meals. An exception is made, however, in the case of "4/4" beer, the sale of which permits may be issued to "any person." Hon. Mr. Nickle's famous beverage is given its place in the legislation to the extent of some dozen sections.

Drinking must be confined to a person's residence, and in this connection a hotel room or a rooming-house room qualifies as a domicile. It is important to note, however, that in the case of clubs, only those rooms which are actually used by members for living accommodation come under this category, and not locker-rooms.

As to Permits

Permits may be issued to persons over 21 years of age, who have been resident in the province for one month, regardless of their nationality. Tourist permits may be issued to transients for a period of one month. No permits may be issued to persons debarred from purchase by the Canada Temperance Act. Permits may be revoked by the commissioners for abuse of privilege, in the case of any convictions for disorderly, or in the case of the conviction of a licensee for operating a disorderly place.

Special permits are provided for clergymen, physicians, wine for sacramental purposes, and for physicians, dentists, druggists and veterinaries, for purposes of their profession. Physicians are limited to six ounces prescriptions, while druggists can only use liquors for solvent and preservant purposes.

Board Has Wide Powers

The Commission is given sweeping powers. Its acts are not subject to review by the Government, and it may refuse without explanation a permit to any individual. It may also withhold shop licenses in any isolated Government control area in which the granting of a license would afford surrounding territory. It controls absolutely the brands of liquor to be handled; the prices to be charged; the method of delivery to be arranged, and the amount to be sold at one time. There is, however, to be no sale upon holidays or election days.

THE WEATHER

Lower Lakes—Southeast winds, fine and milder. Friday—Southerly winds, mild becoming showery.

The title Earl of Ypres was conferred upon the late Sir John French. The present countess is the wife of Sir John's eldest son, now Earl of Ypres. She is a niece of the Countess of Claremont.

OPINION LOCALLY LAUDS FERGUSON CONTROL POLICY

Great Step Towards British Liberty Declares Prominent Citizen

HELP TOURIST TRADE

Hotel Keepers Think They Should Have Had More Consideration

Several citizens were interviewed by the Intelligencer this morning in regard to the new Government Control Bill and the general consensus of opinion seems to be highly in favor of it.

Hotel keepers of course had hoped that they would be allowed to dispense beer and ale at the tables.

"It is a great step toward British free dom and liberty", said Col W. N. Ponton, Jr., "and the people will give much more power to local police. Col. Ponton said he was not condemning Ferguson's measure but he believed that every man should have the right to purchase his glass of ale along with his lunch at a Standard Hotel. "At least we have broken away from the hypocrisy of the Ontario Temperance Act", he declared.

J. V. Jenkins, Proprietor of the Quinte stated that he had been in the hotel business for almost many years and was not worrying as to the outcome. "However, he did say that the people should wait for the deliberations of the liquor commission."

"The Minister of the Interior has been extremely fair in his newspaper pamphlets and literature for the past few years", requesting that the utmost consideration and courtesy be shown to tourists," declared T. J. Power, "but Ferguson's Bill is not exactly a step in the right direction to make the tourists visit a pleasant one.

Mr. Power believed that hotel keepers should be granted the privilege of serving beverages at the tables. He was of the opinion that the liquor trade was one of the big drawing cards to the province and the American visitors always leaves a good deal of his money here which means a direct boon to general business.

"Anybody attempting to take a drink in other place than his room must be arrested by an act once," he said.

LARGE PART OF ONTARIO IS DRY

Residents Under Local Option Enjoy Same Privileges as Others

Toronto, Ont., March 10.—A feature of the new liquor legislation introduced in the Ontario legislature last evening by Premier Ferguson is that it will revive local option in those areas which operated under this system previous to the Ontario Temperance act becoming effective in 1916.

Under the local option law the main provision prohibited the sale of liquor but did not prevent the consumption of liquor in private residence.

Questioned regarding the position of a person resident in a local option area who purchased liquor under a permit outside the prohibited area and brought it to his home, legal officials of the Attorney's General Department stated today that he would be quite within his rights as long as the liquor was consumed in his private residence.

Under Local Option

In 1916 municipalities in the following districts operated under system of local option:

Addington, Algoma Brant North and South, Bruce Crater, North and South Carleton, Dufferin, Dundas, Durham East and West, Elgin East and West Essex North and South, Frontenac, Glengarry, Grenville, Grey County, Haldimand and South, Haliburton, Haldimond, Halton, Hastings East, North and West, Kent East and West, Lambton, Lanark and West, Lanark North and South Leeds, Lennox, Lincoln, Middlesex East, West and North, Muskoka, Nipissing, Norfolk North and South Northumberland East and West, Ontario North and South, Perry South and West, Perth North and South, Peterboro East and West, Port Arthur, Prescott, Prince Edward, Rainy River, Renfrew North and South, S. BATTERED FLIVVERS ARE STRAINING TO NEW GOLD

Tonopah, Nevada, Mar. 10.—Weepah, the new gold boom town of little tents and big dreams, built on hope that ore recently unearthed there which assayed seventy-eight thousand dollars to the ton, may be plentiful, today offered scenes seldom witnessed even in the romantic gold rushes of the West. The dominant factor in the town's life is the "flivver." Battered old automobiles tires wrapped with hay wire to give a good grip on the sandy soil and squared the rubber from occasional boulders, were climbing hills on which even a burro would have balked. Dust or mud, sand or gravel, flivvers clambed up with much spattering and skidded down with great rattling. Life, in Weepah has been reduced to routine. Miners rise before daybreak, cook breakfast at their camp fires, find with sage brush, hop into flivvers and hurry off to their claims, if they have claims and to hunt claims if they are new arrivals. Water for cooking and drinking purposes must be hauled to camp from Tonopah and Weepah selling today at ten cents's gallon.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Honesty is the one rule of business that need never change to keep up with the times.

Behind all the warring factions in China there stands the pathetic figure of Henan Tung, the dethroned boy emperor of the Celestial Kingdom. A recent photograph depicts him, a delicate youth of 19 years, holding an informal reception for some distinguished foreign visitors.

Though the lad was smiling in the picture it is doubtful if he was really enjoying himself. He is but a pawn—and an unwilling one—in the political game. Two years ago he consented to a revision of his abdication agreement with a sigh of relief. "All I ask," he said, "is that I be accorded courteous treatment and freedom." He went on to say:

"It was almost a prisoner in the palace, and I am really glad to be away from it. The court I had to maintain was corrupt and effete, as well as anomalous. But it seemed ordained to me. Now I am free; I want to go abroad to see the world. The whole life was thoroughly bad. I would like first to go to Mukden, to pay my respects to the tablets of my ancestors; then to Japan, and afterwards to the western world. I would like to pursue my studies in history and archaeology, to enjoy life a little and travel in Europe until China is at peace again."

This very modest wish of an ex-emperor has, however, been denied. He is kept a virtual prisoner by the still hopeful royalists, to whom he is still "the son of heaven." Though there is but the remotest chance that the monarchy will ever be restored in China, the boy's happiness must be sacrificed for an empty ideal. But perhaps he has cause for thankfulness in that his life has been spared in an intrigue in which thousands of his former subjects have been cown down like grass.

LAST SURVIVOR

The death last week at Gulfport Miss., of William Henry Orr of Toronto, at the age of 91, removed one of the few remaining physical links with Confederation. Mr. Orr was believed to be the last survivor of those present at the ceremonies which marked the formal union of the Canadian provinces in 1867. He was the first shorthand reporter in Canada, and was one of those who, in the pre-Hansard days, took verbatim report of the long debate which preceded the historic occasion we are to celebrate this year in the Diamond Jubilee.

Later Mr. Orr worked with Horace Greeley, on the New York Tribune, and under Hon. George Brown on the Toronto Globe, before he entered upon a business career. He was credited with having imported the first typewriting machine used in Canada.

Mr. Orr was not one of the Fathers of Confederation, but he was closely related to the family. It is a pity he did not write his reminiscences. He might have created an intimate and invaluable record of the days and the men of that stirring period.

ONTARIO'S PROTEST

The strongly worded resolution, unanimously endorsed by the provincial legislature this week concerning the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay canalization and power project, will leave the Dominion government in no uncertainty as to the sentiments of Ontario. That this legislative assembly desires to record its most earnest and emphatic protest against the attempt being made, by means of a private bill in the Dominion parliament, to alienate valuable water powers from the control and ownership of this province, and thereby deprive the people of Ontario of the advantage of one of our greatest natural resources for the benefit and advantage of private promoters, is one unanimous utterance of the resolution. That is the gravamen of the complaint Ontario has to lay before us in the ostensible imbition of two rival factions to construct a canal; but if the canal project is considered of such importance, it is strange that action should have been delayed so long under the powers already possessed. It is because this canalization scheme improperly involves the disposition of water powers in the Ottawa river—the joint property of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec—that public alarm and indignation are aroused.

Ontario badly needs this extra source of electrical power, and cannot consent to stand idly by and see valuable provincial rights alienated to private hands. No corporation must be permitted to exploit these water powers for its own behoof. The government is called upon to respect provincial rights and protect the rights of the Canadian public in general.

"Whatever is useful," says Mr. Brisbane, "is beautiful." One of Mr. Brisbane's traits is his habit of making flat statements like that and not relapsing upon them. "Oh, no," she said. "That's the chess we always call 'The Visitor.'"

The obligable one sat down again.

His hostess ventured to explain.

"You see," she cooed sweetly, "as soon as it has run, we can never make it go!"

The vicar had been away for some time, having undergone an operation for appendicitis, and the curate, after announcing his safe recovery after services on Sunday, added: "We will conclude by singing the hymn, 'Peace, Perfect Peace in the Appendix.'"

*BELLEVILLE THE BUMPY

Beautiful our City has been called

But strangers now we would be appalled
Could they a view of it now get

They'd never come again, I bet.

If you are called to come down town,
Beware the streets you travel on.
For mud and slush are sable deep,
Just now upon most any street.

East Bridge it sure is such a sight
At the west end you turn to right.
If up Front Street, you have to go,
You may, if you will travel slow.

Five cars in line, I counted once,
Waiting to get across the bumps.
The like of that we've never seen,
And hope we never will again.

What is the remedy, you ask.
To clean the streets is such a task,
Had it been done when it came down.
Before it had been trodden in.

Why then some rolls with a good driver
Could pack it down and make it level
Or better still had drawn away.
We then would had a clean driveway.

"Should be in every home" Says Mme. Villemaire

Three years of stomach and kidney disorders wrecked her health. Now fully recovered and feeling splendid, she thanks Tanlac

Mme. Eliza Villemaire lives at 432 St. Patrick Street, Ottawa. She is ruddy and robust, showing no signs of the distressing ordeals she went through for three years. "No words can express what I suffered," she said recently. "At times I thought my back must break, and I could not even stoop over to set the table.

"My stomach was just as bad, for food would lie there like a lump of lead. I used to bloat terribly, and at times could hardly catch my breath. Nervousness kept me awake half the night. I tried many remedies and treatments but though I spent a small fortune on them, nothing seemed to help me.

"I only wish I had taken Tanlac when my trouble first started for it certainly would have saved me a lot of suffering. The way my troubles disappeared after taking it was almost magical. It built me up and made me a new woman. Now my kidneys never bother me, I am free from all pain and my digestion is splendid. It

I had my way I'd put Tanlac in every home in Canada. That's how much I think about it."

Don't neglect nature's warnings. At the first sign of trouble, take Tanlac, nature's own tonic, made from roots, herbs and barks. Your druggist has it; get a bottle today. Over 2 million bottles sold.

GODDARD—CURRY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Feb. 28th, 1927, at the home of the bride's parents when Emily Annie Sybil Curry, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Curry, 31 Stone Street, became the bride of Edward Henry Vivian Goddard, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Goddard, also of Belleville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Marshall, rector of Emmanuel Church.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. H. Harris, of this city, and looked very dainty in a gown of poudre-blue silk crepe with silver trimmings wearing a bridal veil caught with satin streamers and baby breath and carried a shower bouquet of roses and carnations. The ceremony was performed beneath an archway of evergreen decorated with ferns and roses. Mrs. Curry, the bride's mother, wore a gown of navy blue silk with rose trimmings while Mrs. Goddard, the bridegroom's mother was gowned in burgundy silk with silver trimmings. During the signing of the register Mrs. E. G. Goddard rendered very sweetly "At Dawn That I Met Of You Love."

Following the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining room where a dainty supper including bridal was served.

Many beautiful and useful gifts evinced the esteem and respect in which the bride was held by her many friends among which was a substantial check from the bridegroom's father and a handsome bedroom suite from the bride's father.

Mr. and Mrs. Goddard left for Oshawa where their newly furnished home was awaiting their arrival. The best wishes of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances go with them.

By ELSIE MARLOWE

"She's always telling me how much she's done for me."

Does that phrase sound familiar? Does it take you back to miserable, resentful hours in your childhood? Or, if you're a parent, does it make you feel a bit sheepish?

This letter doesn't tell the story of one miserable hour—but of a whole young life blackened by the cruel nagging of a "benefactor." If you can read it without a tugging at your heart, you're of tougher fibre than I am, my friend.

DEAR ELSIE:—

I have a great problem before me and I wish you would help me with it. I was adopted at the age of three by my aunt. I am now eighteen and all I hear is that I do not appreciate what she has done for me.

I try to please my aunt in every way possible. Everything that she tells me to do I do immediately, even she says that I am ungrateful and disobedient. Perhaps I am disobedient once in a while, but none of us is perfect. Everyone says that I never pay her back for what she has done for me—will you please tell me how—

I can pay her back?

Another thing is—I do not tell her everything, that counts into my life. However, I talk those things over with my girl friends because they seem to have understanding. And somehow she does not. Perhaps you may think that these are things of which I am ashamed, but believe, me, Elsie, they are not. For a time I did tell her everything but she "throws" these things up to me when she gets angry. Do you wonder that I have stopped telling her?

We're always arguing. She tells everybody about me. I get oodles of motherly talks. Everybody is trying to rule me. They tell me I should do this for her and that for her. Now, I'm sick of it all and so tired.

I'm under the doctor's care just now, and she keeps saying: "Look at all I have spent on you." Gee, I didn't ask her to do these things nor did I ask her to raise me. I know this sounds ungrateful, but I am sick and tired of it all, and many times I wish I had never been here.

Will you do your best and help me? I will appreciate it and thank you, most sincerely. A. Z.

Dear little girl, I wish with all my heart that I might help you—and if later I be a comfort, you have it! I have. Your aunt is wrong, of course. Anyone who has had the beautiful privilege of bringing up a child is in debt to that child, rather than vice versa. Yet mere criticism of your aunt will not help you in your present dilemma. Perhaps this little hint will—in every heart there is a hidden hunger, little sister, to be better than other characters, to be more deprayed—the heart longs for love.

As you grow older you will begin to realize the motive which lies even when it is stronger than dynamite—more subtle than black magic. It will win your heart into line if you know how to use it, and are generous and patient and determined. So suppose, instead, of counting grudges you begin to see love in the interests of your aunt. It will be hard at first. You'll have to swallow your temper, and pocket your temper. But keep on trying.

Don't just ACT love. Try to feel it. Stop thinking about YOUR hurts, begin to think about HER. Put you stand her. Pretend that you are a great psychologist or a detective out digging into the secrets of her nature. Make an adventure of it—wage a love war as soldiers wage hate wars. Then see what happens.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

While she prepared the children's simple supper that evening Chlatine thought over what Nina had told her that day. She did not believe that Nina meant what she said. She was confident that her friend's bark was worse than her bite. She could not and would not believe that Nina for all her hardness and frivolity, had a questionable standard of morals.

Nina, she reflected, thought that the world, particularly the world of men, should be conquered by strategy; whilst she, Christine, was determined to conquer it by sheer personal ability. She was confident that she could win. She had proof of it here and there in the praise of editor. She knew she had not hit her stride yet, but she believed that she would, in time.

"Suppose I yielded to temptation?" she thought, as she laid the table for supper. "Suppose I took a look into the beautiful, apparent joys of my son? How could I hold Louise against my will? Oh, Christine, surely, surely you are very safe."

She looked around the little apartment with certain pride. Momentarily her discontentment was wiped out by the consciousness that she had accomplished. She was living rather well now, in a financial way. Her work for the theatrical magazine was fairly regular and was paid for promptly. There was time to write short stories of the "pot-boiling" variety for the magazine which had taken her "Cabaret Sketches."

The question of rent and food, at least was solved, and she and the children were adequately though cheaply clothed. Occasionally she did a bit of advertising copy for a small shop she had come to know during the days under Miss Perkins' régime, and on payment she received a frock or a hat or a bit of lingerie left over from an "end-of-the-season" sale and tossed on the bargain counter for what it would bring.

At Christmas time, Lewis Hayes—that splendid friend who had been left in a repugnant husband—sent her a check which, he carefully explained, was for the Christmas of Junior and little Louise.

"You can't refuse to accept this," he had written. "Jove, I have a right to remember the children, especially Louise, who is in a way, my namesake. I don't know what to buy them—so I am forced to send a check, and I trust you will not take it amiss."

Christine accepted it gratefully and gave the children a real Christmas with a tree and toys such as she never could have afforded. She never looked back upon that Christmas without breaking into tears. She cried then, too, but for a different reason.

She wept for the last friend-hip will Lewis Hayes. If only she had kept him for a friend. If only she had not made the great mistake of believing she could take him for a husband! Their separation had lessened her fear and distrust, however, she remembered the love of the old days instead of the man from whom she shrank on that afternoon when they had been married. It all seemed like a dream now, and she wondered if her weakness, after her long illness, had not had something to do with the state of her mind.

But she was sufficiently wise to let well enough alone. She went on doggedly with her work, especially the work on her play. When the copper dishes were put away, she sat down at her writing-desk—for a few dollars she had obtained a decrepit machine—and worked until late, or until the landlady thumped persistently on the wall as a sign that all noises must stop. The long hours told on her. Henry Sanford, whom she was seeing frequently, noticed it. He took her to luncheon or dinner once or twice each week. One day he said:

"You are working too hard. You are looking fagged. Why don't you take those children of yours—if they really do exist—and run down to Atlantic City for a week. It's pleasant there in the winter, and I have a suite the proper kind at the Clairmont Hotel. I don't be there, of course, but I'll give orders that you are to have every comfort and service. I frequently send friends down so there will be no occasion for gossip."

It was a great temptation for Christine. She was tired, and the thought of a week in beautiful, luxurious surroundings such as she had known when she was Harvey Hanson's wife, was abominate than she could withstand. The beauty and peace of the sea. The freshness of the salt air in the morning. The wide sweep of the blue sky. The silvery expanse of beach for Junior and Louise, poor little city prisoners! The

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens, very much in love with a man in his early thirties. I have known him for five or six years and his loyalty as a friend has completely won me.

My mother knows I care for him and often remarks, "He is old enough to be your father." I cannot see that that makes any difference because mother, married a man who was old enough to be her father, yet her married life has been blessed with happiness and content.

The trouble is that this young does not know of my attitude. I know it is a man's place to woo and win. But when a girl finds herself face to face with a problem of love that is so one-sided—what can she do? He has asked to take me to dances and I have had to refuse because my mother does not approve of modern dances.

Most girls do not wish to marry, young because they want to have a good time while they may; which consists of dances, theatres, automobiles and gay parties and many of boy friends to answer to their beck and call. But I don't want any of these. All I want is the man I love and, as a little child who is lost I do not know which way to turn or what to do.

LADY FIDELIA.

LADY FIDELIA: In a case of this sort I generally advise the girl to let her heart to forget it and grow up. But I mean to make an exception in your case, because I judge from your letter that you are naturally intelligent and unusually mature for your years.

Apparently you know what you want. You have awakened within you and you have a fairly clear conception of what you expect life to give you. Why not have a heart to heart talk with your mother? Tell her that you appreciate her attitude, but that after all she must remember that she did the very thing she is advising you against. Ask her everything you have told me and more. Tell her, too, that you mean to live your own life—perhaps a year—in which to test your love and make certain that the man you love and yourself have a similarity of tastes that make for compatibility, when there is such a wide difference in age.

Explain further to your mother, that if it is to be a fair test, she ought to permit you to go out with him when he next invites you. If she still objects to your going to dances, when he does take you, explain that you spend the evening together none the less. He will probably be delighted to do anything that you suggest. It is more than likely that he is tremendously interested in you, but is prevented from showing it because of the difference in years and the fear that he is too old for you to reciprocate it. I feel that the slightest gesture of friendship from you would crystalize that interest to a point of active reciprocation.

fond that she would not have to prepare on the three-burner gas-plate in a closet.

But something held her back. She forced herself to decline the generous and apparently casual invitation. Something, perhaps, in Sanford's always eyes. The glimpses of luxury which she had in his company were tantalizing to her who had known luxury, and lately had suffered the lack of it keenly.

One night, when they were dining together and started to leave the restaurant it was snowing. He glanced at her thin wrap and threw his own fur coat around her shoulders.

"I've another coat in the car," he said.

She snuggled into the warm softness. The very feel of it was like a caress. She did not see that Sanford was watching her with his curious smile. He understood; he knew just what her reaction was, as clearly as if she had put it into words.

A fortnight later, his play was finished. She told Sanford, and he met her evening when she should deliver with him at his apartment and read it to him.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Neck ornitures for evening are deep "V's," the "V" outline, or a small square for picture dresses, which find a large place among the evening modes in all collections and the low-necklines is not usually seen on the new picturesque frocks destined for evening wear this season.

Vionnet introduces a novelty in a black satin coat with sleeves that are really capes, and a collar made of white ermine gathered into two rings, with long ermine ends that may be arranged in loops or other decorative effects.

Gold ornaments are specially made by some Paris designers to wear with the all-black jersey frocks; and heavy gold bangles adorn the cuff of one sleeve; long gold earrings, a slide buckle, and sometimes a heavy gold linked chain is added.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Lemons ripen when kept, and, since they are desired for their sourness they should be bought only in small quantities. Ripe lemons, deep yellow in color and attractive to the eye, are often on sale at low prices. Unless one particularly likes ripe lemons, they are poor economy.

It is not economical to finish out your cold dancing slippers around the house while working. Women who do their own work require a sensible shoe, on with a moderately low heel and one that will give some support to the ankles, such as an oxford. You will find you are less tired at the end of the day if you have the right sort of house shoe.

Should there be a strong odor of gas in your house, don't blindly search for it and become overcome in the process. Open doors and windows as you go through the house. If you cannot immediately find the cause, telephone the gas company and put on your hat and coat and wait for their arrival outside. Take no chances, particularly avoiding the cellar until all is safe and

In the Crown Prosecutor A. B. Cunningham, of Kingston. Mr. Payne found an opponent highly versed in criminology had prepared a strong case against Robinson. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan who assisted Mr. Cunningham was instrumental in lining up details of the case.

Circumstantial Evidence

Mr. Payne in his final summing up asserted that in cases of circumstantial evidence the Crown must prove to the hilt its facts and circumstances. This case must be consistent with no other theory than the guilt of the accused. "There is no evidence to connect the fatal shooting with Abraham Robinson," Mr. Payne argued. "There is no evidence that shows that he knew St. Charles was at his farm. It is all a matter of conjecture and you cannot convict a man on that. Mr. Payne reviewed the evidence in detail, and finally said, "It is better that ninety-nine guilty men go free than one innocent man be condemned.

Deliberate Murder

"In pulling Abraham Robinson on trial," said Mr. Cunningham, "the theory of the Crown is that of a terrible murder. Absolutely premeditated with a motive behind it was committed that day." The motive pointed to Robinson, he continued, was the prisoner's belief that his property was being wrongfully seized to pay a debt of Township taxes amounting to $140. There is no doubt that the fatal shot was fired from the knoll. Several persons saw the smoke of black powder and one witness saw a man crawling on the knoll.

"We are unable to say that the man in the woods was Abraham Robinson, but Robinson wasn't seen around his farm until 12.10 p.m. after St. Charles had been driven, wounded to Eldorado, and that day was one of the busiest in a farmer's whole year for it was the day the threshers were coming, but there were no signs of him until noon and then he appeared in his shirt sleeves. What was he doing out on that November day from 9 a.m. until after 12 o'clock?

Guilty Conscience

"When he reigned the house and his sister told him about the shooting, what did he say? 'I can account for myself.' Why, it's no concern, did he say that? How did he know that the man who shot St. Charles was not arrested or that there was any suspicion of him having fired the shot. I don't know, but a guilty conscience explains it all. There is no reasonable explanation why he made those words."

Mr. Cunningham said there was no doubt that there were three firearms in the Robinson home. There were three on the Saturday prior to the shooting, in his statement to the police, Abraham Robinson said he took his rifle out that morning and brought it back again. He is flatly contradicted on that point. When he returned he didn't bring a thing. The third gun was there Saturday night but it was missing on Monday night and hasn't turned up to this day.

Missing Rifle

Where is the rifle Abe Robinson took out with him after breakfast that day? That question cries out for an answer. Is his statement he says he saw cows in the lane and cattle in the back of the house. Where was Robinson when he saw the two boys rounding up the cattle in the lane? He says he was in the kitchen when he returned to the house. He's contradicted there by his minister, Rev. Redding. Then as to Mr. St. Charles' statement. It was made by a man who was about to die and the law considers it very improbable that a man would tell a deliberate falsehood to help send an innocent man to the gallows. Of course you must bear in mind that there was no possible cross-examination of Mr. St. Charles. He says he saw Robinson rise up on the knoll after the second shot was fired. It is true, nobody saw Abe Robinson point a gun. True, it is all circumstantial, but if you always have to show who fired the gun there would perhaps be many crimes unpunished. The true test in this, is it consistent with the guilt of the accused and is it inconsistent with the reverse."

Jury Returns Twice

The jury came in at 4.45 and asked for all the exhibits. At 5.30 they filed in again, this time seeking information about the hour the first shot was fired and also when Robinson returned home. The answer to the first question was approximately 9and at a little later than 10 a.m. and the second, Robinson returned at 12.10 p.m.

Then at 11.20 the Jury entered the Court again and through their foreman, George Walbridge, asked that they be permitted to postpone their verdict until morning.

"The practice of the Courts are against that in a case like this," Mr. Justice Legio informed them. "You are locked up in the jury room over night, or I'll have you locked up for the night, which I don't like to do. You can't be allowed to separate after you have once been charged. It would be as unheard of thing to allow you to go to a hotel. If the Council" had provided beds in your room I would have no objection to you deferring your verdict until morning."

Mr. Walbridge said the jurors thought they could give the case that much better consideration but upon receiving the Judge's answer they went back to their room at 11.30 with the intention of concluding their task.

Sister Raises Objection

There was a pause in the trial when David Sharkey had given part of his evidence.

Miss Elizabeth Robinson had raised an objection to the evidence submitted by Sharkey at the preliminary trial which she claimed was untruthful. Sharkey who is rather hard of hearing maintained that he had told the whole truth and expressed his feelings firmly without fear of the defense Crown or Miss Robinson. The matter was settled by Mr. Justice Legio to confide with her brother's attorney and she finally took a seat beside him which she remained for some time. The Jury filed back in again after a short recess and the trial was resumed.

"Are both of the Robinson's in court? Mr. Payne asked. "One of them is missing."

Mr. Payne held that it was improper to identify an accused man in the dock He said he objected to the evidence at the preliminary hearing.

Grounds For New Trial

Mr. Justice Legio said the evidence here is subject to objection and if a conviction is registered the case may be taken to another court.

To Sharkey—"When did you see Abraham Robinson first."

"At his own place."

"Who sent you there?"

"Chas. St. Charles."

"What did you do?"

"I took a steer back and left it loose in the yard and went around to tell them it was there." "Then after came out and gave me the devil, and then two men came out of the house and Len asked me what I was doing there". He asked me if I had any papers to show that I brought the steer back." When I told him that Chas St. Charles told me to bring it back Abraham said. "If he comes out here I'll put a bullet through his G— Dheart.

Used Different Words

Cross-Examined by Mr. Payne.

"Have you ever used any different words from those?"

"No, never."

Mr. Payne read a copy of the evidence submitted by Sharkey at the hearing and it showed that the name of the Deity was omitted there. He used the word "We", will put it that through his de- heart instead of "I".

Inspector E. C. Garnett said that at noon on the 12th of November he went to Dr. Thompson's at Eldorado upon receipt of telephone call. He said he later visited the Robinson home and placed Abe Robinson under arrest. The prisoner was taken with the home of Dr. Thompson at Eldorado when St. Charles was lying on the bed.

"What occurred after your arrival in Belleville" asked Mr. Cunningham.

"He was taken to the Provincial Police officer where he was questioned by myself." Garnett replied. "I said first, you understand you are under arrest and I'm going to ask you some questions which you do not have to answer but whatever you do say will be taken down in writing and used as evidence against you at your trial."

"What did he say to that?"

"He said he understood that."

"Anything else?"

He made a statement and signed it. The statement was produced.

"Where was Robinson taken after that."

"To the police station."

"Did you go back to the Robinson farm?"

"Not until the 28th of November."

"Do you know what firearms were taken away from the Robinson home on the night of the 15th of November?"

"Yes a .44 rifle and an old Snyder."

"Did you see a 38.55 rifle?"

"No."

Denied Shooting

Cross Examined by Mr. Payne.

"Did he say he didn't do the shoot and didn't know anything about it when you took the statement?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you take that down?"

"I didn't think it necessary."

"Wasn't that the most important part of his statement that you didn't take down?"

"I wouldn't say so."

"Is there anything else you didn't take down?"

"No."

Sergt. M. R. Clarke of the Provincial Police testified as to going to the Robinson house and placing Abraham under arrest. He stated that a .44 rifle and an old Snyder shot-gun were found and taken by the police.

"Did you go back to the Robinson farm again?"

"Yes, the next morning?

"What for?"

Rifle Not Found

"For the purpose of finding a 38.55 rifle."

Mr. Cunningham—"Were you successful?"

"No."

Mr. Payne—"Did Abraham Robinson say anything that was't taken down."

"Yes a few things."

"Why weren't they put down in the statement that Abraham Robinson made?"

"I don't know."

"Were you present when Officer Mc Coy took the knife into the wood shed?"

"I didn't see him."

Mr. Cunningham—"What else was said by Robinson in the Provincial Police offices."

"Abraham Robinson said he thought anyone was justified in shooting another party who came to seize cattle for arrears in taxes."

This was the answer in reference to a question put to Robinson by the witness asking the accused if he didn't think anyone who shot an old man in the back was a scoundrel.

Discovery Of Ammunition

Officer McCoy took the stand and gave his version of the arrest of Robinson and bringing in the finding of ammunition and rifle. Two 38.55 loaded shells were found in a sideboard drawer and these were exhibited in court. Officer McCoy said he searched around the farm but failed to locate the 38.55 rifle. A grey coat not unlike an army tunic was produced in court and the witness said he found this under a loose plank in a fence on the Cornerbrook road. "This coat", he said "was damp from being exposed and it looked as if it had often been there about time."

"Several small burrs clung to the coat and the witness said these were on the road when he found it. There were patches of burrs on the ground near the knoll where the man was seen crawling," he stated.

"On the 15th of November I found an empty 38.55 shell on the knoll." The witness said he noticed bits of bark torn from the rail fence at the gate.

Cross Examined—

"You saw patches of these same kind of burrs at different places on the farm not only at this one place?"

"Yes."

Firearm Expert

Albert Tomlin of the D. D. P. the Firearm Expert was then called to the stand. He identified the rifle and shells found in the sideboard drawer. He stated that the rifle was a .44 calibre and the shells were .38.55 calibre.

"Did you ever see that coat before?" asked Mr. Cunningham.

"I don't remember."

Carlton H. Goddard, an expert on firearms, of New York City, and he made an inspection of the bullet taken from St. Charles body.

Mr. Goddard said that it would be impossible to determine whether the bullet was of a 38.55—38.56—or 38.70 rifle.

A Frank Cooper, who is also an expert on firearms, corroborated the evidence by Goddard.

What We Mean By the Term "PROPERLY FITTED"

There's a wider meaning in those two words than has occurred to you, perhaps. For instance, if the glasses you are now wearing fail to give complete relief and comfort, it is probably due to the fact that the lenses do not suit the nerves of the eyes, as well as the muscles of the eyes, at rest.

When we fit glasses we not only provide lenses that balance the sight of each eye with the other, but we also make sure that those same lenses put at rest the ciliated nerve and muscle mechanism that controls the sight. Then, and then only are your eyes "properly fitted."

A watch for the boy

To give a boy a good watch is to awaken his sense of responsibility. His roller skates, his bicycle—these are just boy's things, after all. But a good watch is a symbol of his growing up, a possession of which he will be very proud.

Give him a genuine Green Semi-Thin. He will be quick to appreciate its beauty and timekeeping qualities.

Under the presidency of C. Parsons, Toronto, a new organization has come into being known as the Canadian Brotherhood of Chauffeurs and Mechanics.

Arms Company gave evidence as to the intricacies and workings of 38.55 rifles and bullets.

A bullet was shown the witness which was taken from the body of Charles St. Charles and he was asked if he could determine it's calibre.

It's about a .32."

"Could this have come from a 38.55 rifle?"

"Yes."

B. C. Donnan, County Crown Attorney swore that a .44 rifle and an old Snyder gun were found by the police on Nov. 15th at the Robinson home.

Mr. Donnan told of an interview with St. Charles at the home of Mrs. Berry Bishop on Nov. 14th when the Crown Attorney took a statement from him.

Arthur Thompkins stated that he was in the lane when the second shot was fired. Upon hearing the report he said he looked toward the knoll but could not see any smoke.

Thompkins said he asked St. Charles if he wanted any help and the latter replied in the negative. The builder's only examination was "Im shot in the back!"

"There is considerable shooting in that locality during the Autumn months, isn't there?"

"Yes."

"You wouldn't expect to hear shots come from where these did?"

"No."

Hugh Thompkins was called to the stand.

"Do you know what position St. Charles was in when he was shot?"

"Facing south."

Lemuel Robinson, brother of the accused man, was summoned. He stated that the farm is divided into three separate sections.

When asked by Mr. Cunningham about a visit made to the farm by Alex Sharkey, Lemuel Robinson drew a paper from his pocket to determine the date.

Evidence From Prepared Notes

Mr. Cunningham asked for leave to look at the paper that Lemuel Robinson had in his possession. The witness was obstinate about giving it to him and Mr. Cunningham was compelled to note that it was a prepared copy of evidence, dates, etc., in connection with the case.

Mr. Cunningham queried him and learned that his sister had given it to him and that she had a similar copy. The witness said that it had been written since the preliminary hearing but denied it had been made for comparison purposes.

"You shook him," said the Hon. Justice.

The paper was confiscated by the Crown.

He stated that Abraham was not present at the time Sharkey brought the steer back.

"Did you ask Sharkey for an order to bring the steer back?" asked the Crown.

"Yes."

"Where was Abraham then?" asked Mr. Cunningham.

"He was in the cellar."

"Did he come out?"

"No."

LEONARD ESSAYS A COMEBACK IN THE BOXING RING

Two great champions remained out of the ring for a considerable period of time, essayed a comeback and went rolling down the grand canyon of Fistiana, writes Hyrie Igoe in the New York Evening World.

Jim Jeffries, powerful and unbeatable in his day, stayed out nearly 7 years, came back and was slapped down by Jack Johnson at Reno, Nev.

Jack Dempsey, best champion of all time, remained out of action only 3 years, came back and was cuffed into defeat by Gene Tunney.

Now comes one of the ring's brilliant, retired champions, also wants to succeed where all the others failed.

I don't mean to say he's holding razor and daggers between his teeth. He won't try to pick up where he left off without first giving himself an awful test.

I'm speaking of Benny Leonard, he who vacated his lightweight title because he didn't care to further worry his mother over the outcome of his battles.

OUT OF RING THREE YEARS

He hasn't fought in nearly three years and just the other day he came forward with the soft tread of a window dresser and said that perhaps he might come back—yes, he would come back and show the critics that he still was there. He was even willing to gamble with them and leave it to a jury of scribes.

If that strong limb belt a great unknown around—some gymnasium hard nut—they voted that he still was up to snuff, he would oil up the old fighting shoes and take on Pete Latzo for the welterweight title.

Hulbert Foray will promote this match at the Polo Grounds this year—if Benny decides to fight.

Leonard says he has been training and can come back. I will always doubt that, yet I want to be right in the front row when Benny has his trial bout in a gymnasium. It will be a tragic moment of the history. I fancy it will be as thrilling as any moment of Leonard's career as a lightweight champion.

The test of money is not Leonard's. The seed of reputation is not his. Leonard's name will always be linked with that of Joe Gans. His friends dispute the position of greatest to Gans. I will always believe that Gans at his best could have defeated Leonard at his best. It's silly to try and couple ring heroes who lived in different periods. Simply food for argument and no more.

There is an old saying that they never know when they're through. A fighting man seldom has the good sense to quit when he views the sun-set. Leonard, besides being one of the finest ringmen of history, is an intelligent as any man who ever wore a ring crown. You can bet all the jumping beans in Mexico that he will KNOW whether he can come back and make the grade before you or I ever get a look at his TRYING to come back. If Benny Leonard thinks he can come back it won't be until he KNOWS he can whip a man like Pete Latzo. Whether he comes back or not the fact that he is flirting with temptation in a boxing story, and that's this and other little remarks we will make from time to time concerning his great adventure.

This league has only about three more postponed games to be played and with three or four teams all in the running the results will not be known until all games have been played. The Nujol method is the modern Scientific treatment for Constipation

THAT is the verdict of an extensive inquiry recently conducted among practising physicians. We found that 8 doctors out of 10 recommended the Nujol type of treatment. We found seven out of ten thought laxatives and cathartics harmful if used frequently.

Here are typical statements made by doctors. "Preferable to laxatives because it does not cause patients any pain or discomfort." "Not habit-forming." "Now recognized by all physicians to be better because it is not absorbed." "Ordinary laxatives are too drastic in reaction, too exhaustive." "Helps to establish habit-time." "Is a rational corrective for constipation."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Eight doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons:

1. Nujol is not habit-forming.
2. A more natural method.
3. A lubricant is better than a laxative.
4. Does not gripe.
5. Is not irritating.
6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that palls and poisons colonies.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It simply softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it!

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation, whether chronic or occasional. Avoid substitutes.

Apply Sage Tea To Darken Faded Hair

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use product improved by the addition of other ingredients. It is known as Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and can be obtained at all drug stores for only 75 cents a bottle.

While gray faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

REGENT THEATRE

"The local preview of "Love Luck," an Art Acord starring vehicle will take place at the Regent Theatre tonight."

Eagerly awaited by Acord fans, this picture is one dealing with the heretofore neglected romance of the old Belize, one of the most colorful regions in this country where the possibility of wealth pouring through a hole in the ground has called adventurers from all parts of the globe.

Here, if in any field, gather the rugged men of the world—colorful characters with thrilling life stories if they would only tell them. Most of them are honest and honorable, but some of them are criminals and cutthroats.

CAPITOL THEATRE

While at work in the logging-camp on Orange, the members of the Tiffany Company, who were making scenes for "The Lodge in the Wilderness," suggested from a story by the same name by Sir Gilbert Parker, took delight in living as close to nature as possible.

After the day's work was over and Director Henry McCarty had shouted the last "cut", the players, headed by Jack Stewart and Barbara Burns who play the leading roles in the picture, would enter canoes and paddle across a lake to a forest and there remain with great interest the various floral growths that abounded. Many specimens were gathered by the enthusiastic naturalists and taken back to Los Angeles as souvenirs of a pleasant location trip.

"The Lodge in the Wilderness" will be the feature picture attraction at

BELLE THEATRE

Beautiful Madge Bellamy is Sylvia Douglas, the plucky little heroine of Fox Films "Black Paradise," which opens at the Belle theatre for a three day run beginning today.

In this role she takes the part of a little girl who, on the morning of her wedding, is called upon to choose between protecting her fiance from the detectives, who are following him, or of giving him up to the police for his share in a burglary.

She stands by him, however, escaping with him after a thrilling chase, to a whaler sailing out of the harbor. After a fearful voyage during which her faith in her fiance has steadily decreased, her confidence in the detective has been firmly established, her fear and loathing of the owner of the ship a haunting nightmare, they arrive at the island.

Here they find themselves more in the power of the owner of the ship who it develops is also the owner of this island of Eyles. Here too Sylvia is completely disillusioned about her fiance who falls in love with one of the half-caste girls of the village.

The climax comes suddenly and unexpectedly, and provides the big thrill of the picture which ends satisfactorily to all.

TILLIE THE TOILER— NO THRILLS FOR MAC. RUSS WESTOVER

OUR SISTER CITIES

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

GET WORK

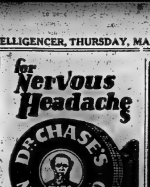

Kingston, March 10.—Youth in the lower quarters this season have secured the unemployed of Kingston in great deal to work which they could not otherwise get. Repairs work started on in the Collingwood dry-dock on some of the Keystone Line vessels laid on the strength. Tenders at the Rathbun gateway all this being done under the supervision of the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company. This yard works the employment of up to one hundred and fifty men, some jobs taking only a few men while others took over a hundred to handle properly.

U. S. TO STRATFORD

Stratford, March 10.—Stratford is to be visited tomorrow by an important delegation from the United States, namely the advancement of the American railway Association on "the utilization of locomotives," which has been traveling over the Canadian National system gathering data in connection with motive power on the Canadian-owned railway.

STOLE RUBBER BOOTS

Oshawa, March 10.—Convicted on a theft charge, a local thirteen-year-old boy was committed to St. John's Industrial School by Magistrate A. F. Hind in children's court here yesterday afternoon. Unless his behaviour warrants his release sooner, he will be held there until he is 21. One of the biggest public school boys in the city, this lad has a weakness for stealing boots, and has appeared before on that charge. This time he was convicted on a charge of stealing a pair of 16oz. rubber boots owned by another lad. Last time he appeared, a pair of rubber boots had been taken. The lad pleaded not guilty, and the case was fought out to an unsuccessful finish by defence counsel Louis Ryman. This lad won a medal as an example one time in school and received the medal the after noon of the same day he had been arrested for a theft charge.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"When the mountain won't go to Mahomet, Mahomet has to go to the mountain—or ought it to be the other way round, perhaps?" she said, with a good-natured laugh. "I'm coming to sit down beside you and talk about our father. What a man he was! If you want me, my dear," she broke off to inquire of a girl who had tripped up to them.

The girl was very slight and so fair that she looked like a piece of rare and delicate china; but, for all of the apparent frailty, Madeline Despard was a very finished specimen of a young woman of the world.

"I only wanted to tell you how much I am enjoying this delightful dance, dear Lady Quantock," she said, with just a suspicion of a lisp, and with an upward glance of her blue eyes at Rafe, lowering above her.

"That's very nice of you, my dear," said Lady Quantock. "I love to see you all happy, as you know. I was a girl myself once, though you would scarcely believe it." This "little Despard girl, as men were fond of calling her, was still directing her babyblue glances at Rafe, and Lady Quantock said with naturelty, "Let me introduce Lord Strathyre, the son of one of my early sweethearts. This is Miss Despard. Lord Strathyre; you must ask her for a dance presently."

"Oh, I'm not so brittle as I look," retorted Madeline, unconsciously uttering the truth. "Shall I be dancing, dear Lady Quantock?" she added, as she seated herself on the chair beside Rafe.

Wondering what "the top" meant Rafe looked from one to the other, and began to talk of his father. Lady Quantock was touched by his ingenuousness and simplicity, and Madeline Despard fixed her wide-open eyes upon him, her lips parted with something like genuine wonder, for Rafe told them quite a lot about the life of Jumping Jane, the Eldorado Saloon, and, of course, dwelt lovingly on his father's "whiteness" and courage. Several other persons strolled up, and, with a glance for permission Lady Quantock, remained to listen. Rafe took them all in with his steady eyes, and soon had the whole audience spellbound, and on the scenes which his appearance had created less interested.

The sensation was not one of excitement and curiosity only, but of something warmer; there was apparent in the narrative himself in the eyes of the men as they stared steadily at Rafe, and in those of the women that side-shadow glance which indicates something sweeter than approval. It has been said of one or two celebrated men that they became famous in a night. Rafe became popular in a shorter time; and when Madeline Despard, trading upon her juvenile and fragile appearance, asked him to take her down to supper, they found themselves the centre of a group of persons, all of whom had a friendly talk for the next week of that "strange and fascinating young man, Lord Strathyre."

Having "piled Pelion upon Ossa" plate with dainties, Rafe sat to work on his own supper; but though he was absolutely hungry, and appeared to listen attentively to his companion's chatter—and she was chattering and making eyes at him for all she was worth—he looked about the room every now and then in search of Maude. Presently he saw her room in on Lord Sunborne's arm. Rafe's eyes were so fixed on her that, obeying the well-known impulse, Maude looked round, saw him, smiled and gave him a little nod, and Rafe raised his champagne glass and nodded back to her in mute fashion.

"Doesn't Lady Maude look exquisite to-night?" said Madeline Despard, with a little plaintive sigh, for she had noticed the sudden change in his face. "I do think her quite the loveliest of women, don't you?"

"Yes," said Rafe, simply.

Madeline Despard's eyes glinted and her cheeks flushed for a moment.

"Some persons think that she is rather acute, but I think that little joy look of hers suits her style of beauty, don't you?"

"Yes," said Rafe, exactly as before.

"But perhaps she's not really as cold as she seems. But, of course, you know her very well! You're living in the same house, aren't you?"

"Yes," said Rafe. He was looking across the room at the other couple, and reminding himself that Maude and the man with the sheltie forehead and chin were old friends, and that he had a right to lean toward her and touch and talk, almost as if they were brother and sister.

"I suppose you know the men who is with Lord and Lady Sunborne?"

"Yes," replied Rafe, still absorbed in his surveying. "I — I met him this evening."

The little girl rose into rose to the delicate face beside him, the blue eyes

People "All Nerves"

What to Do if You Find Yourself in This Condition

The sort of thing that specialists speak of as nervous debility is the run-down condition caused by overwork, household cares and worries. The sufferers find themselves tired, morose, low-spirited and unable to keep their minds on anything, sudden pains startle—and sets the heart palpitating violently. They are full of groundless fears, and do not sleep well at night. Tea lands tremble and the legs feel as if they would give way, following a talk or any exertion. The whole condition of such people may be described as pitiable.

Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of new rich blood. Therefore the treatment for nervousness and run-down health is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which promptly build up and enrich the blood. The revived appetite, the strong nerves, improved spirits, and new strength which comes after a course of these pills, will delight every sufferer.

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Never did a Cup of Coffee taste as good as this....

Such a remark is a tribute to any hostess—but it is deserved when coffee is served with Eagle Brand Condensed Milk instead of cream and sugar.

Eagle Brand improves the finest cup of coffee, gives it a richer "body," a delicious mellow flavour, a tempting golden color. Eagle Brand is pure creamy milk, thoroughly blended with granulated sugar. It is not only more satisfactory in coffee than ordinary cream, or top-milk, and sugar, but more economical, as well. It keeps perfectly in the open tin until used. Your grocer can supply you.

An EAGLE BRAND Recipe

Cocoanut Macaroons

Melt 2 squares of chocolate and mix well with 1 can of Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk. Add slightly over ½ pound desiccated cocoanut, mix thoroughly and add 1 teaspoonful of vanilla. Drop on greased pan in teaspoonfuls at a time. Bake in a moderate oven until nicely browned. This makes 36 macaroons. Omit chocolate for plain macaroons.

Scores of dainty, appetizing dishes which call for milk and sugar can be made better if Eagle Brand is used.

Valuable Team Plunges Through Ice Of Bay---Beer Will Be Handled Without Any Profit

WILL BURN ICE TO DEMONSTRATE THERMIT POWER

SHOWING FILM

In order that the citizens of Belleville and all others who are interested may have the opportunity of seeing a demonstration of Yee Thermit, Dr. Howard T. Barnes will give a night show on Firemen's Park tonight starting at 7.45. At that time a thousand pound block of solid blue ice will be destroyed by burning with application of a few pounds of Thermit.

In addition a charge will be placed under the ice and a display will show the illumination of the ice from underneath as the Thermit is discharged in the water. Several other very instructive and interesting demonstrations will be given.

This special work is being put on in order that a realization may be developed of the intense power of Thermit, to combat the winter ice formation with their potential powers

Special Film Shown

In addition to the above work a special film will be shown after the demonstration at the Capitol Theatre following the regular performance which will show the ice breaking up along the St. Lawrence River and also a film showing the work on the Belleville Harbour and Moira River. On Saturday morning Dr. Barnes will give a display of pictures of six reels showing the St. Lawrence River ice investigation including aeroplane photos which of themselves constitute a treat. These are being shown especially for the school children of the High and several grades of the Public Schools. "Arctic Life and the Exhibmo" will also be included in the program.

This latest posed portrait shows the Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus and Crown Princess Louise, who have just returned home from a successful world tour, during which they visited the United States.

FIFTEEN PERISH FROM TWO FIRES

Five Children in One Family Fall Prey to the Flames

New York, N.Y., Mar. 11.—Fifteen lives were lost in two disastrous fires which occurred in the east today.

Nine persons, all members of the rame family, were burned to death when flames destroyed the home of Clarence Marsh at Tuxnehtown, Pa.

William Stevenson, 55, four of his children and one grandchild, were burned to death in a fire that destroyed their farmhouse at Sunset Lake, near Brown's Mills, N.J. His wife was also badly burned, and a daughter, Clara, mother of their one-month-old grandchild, is suffering from burns and a fractured hip, the result of a fall from the second storey.

Only One Saved

The dead at Tuxnehtown are Clarence Marsh, 45, his wife, 40, and their five children ranging in age from one to twelve years and Mrs. Harry Montgomery and her one-year-old child. Only one person, Harry Montgomery, husband of one of the victims, escaped. He leaped from the second storey window. The victims were believed to have been trapped in their sleep. Montgomery, his wife and child were visiting the Marsh's. How the fire originated was undetermined. Neighbors, attracted by flames in the isolated district where the house was located hurried to the scene, but the dwelling was destroyed before the occupants could be rescued.

FLOODS THREATENED IN SOUTHERN FRANCE

Paris, March 11.—Reaching the proportions of a disaster, floods in Southwestern France are spreading direct in other parts of country are rising rapidly and indications now are that, barring cessation of rain, of which there appears no likelihood, the tributaries of the Marne and the Seine will shortly overflow. Authorities do not anticipate serious floods in the Paris area, however.

Death Roll Placed at 2687 With Thousands Injured

Tokyo, March 11.—Central Japan, recovering slowly from the havoc wrought by Monday's earthquake, was swept today by a terrific gale which started last night. The storm brought new hardships in the Tanga district, blowing down many of the hastily erected shelters after troops had experienced considerable difficulty putting them up.

As relief by sea has been hindered by rough weather, it is feared the gale will further delay help for refugees in villages along the coast which suffered most in the quake.

Latest figures compiled by the home office, which are not looked upon as final, gave the number of dead through the quake as 2,687 with 6,442 injured. The home office estimates that ten thousand buildings were destroyed.

Relief measures went on steadily yesterday and last night, despite serious handicaps, authorities giving particular attention to those in need of medical care. Their next thought was for the thousands compelled to camp out in the cold and snow through the collapse of homes. Several more efforts were also being made to prevent an epidemic and to provide food and clothing.

WILL NOT HAVE TIME FOR VOTE

Impossible to Add to Ontario's Dry Area Before May

Toronto, March 11.—An interesting feature of the Liquor Control legislation given from its provision for securing an area which had adopted a local option by-law in 1919. Arrangement is made for a vote on municipal election day, where such is desired, but the question has arisen of the status of certain places which have failed to secure local option by a handful of votes. Members in the House were interested to know whether or not the municipalities would have to wait until municipal voting day in order that they may decide the issue or whether they can hold an immediate vote and thus possibly block even the initial establishment of a Government store in their locality.

Premier Ferguson when appealed to on the matter pointed out that the Board is given very wide powers in the granting of a vote. As a matter of practice, however, he did not believe that sufficient time existed between the present and the opening of the Government store in which to hold a vote.

SHIELDS FEARS BAPTISTS WILL NOT BE IMMERSED

New York, March 11.—Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, addressing the Baptist Bible Union of North America, of which he is President, last night urged Baptists to fight "the efforts of John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick" to abolish immersion as a requirement for Baptist Church membership. Dr. Fosdick, meanwhile, in a lecture in the town hall, was praising the Roman Catholic veneration of the Blessed Virgin's statue. "I cannot help but believe that my Roman Catholic brethren have the right idea," he said. Dr. Fosdick recently attracted wide attention by urging Protestant use of the Confessional instead of the office of some Psychoanalyst.

NO PROFITS TO BE MADE ON BEER UNDER G. C. PLAN

START MAY 15TH

Probable Date For Control Bill To Be In Force

Toronto, March 11.—Beer is to be available at cost, with only the necessary handling charge added, under the Government's control plan in Ontario. This fact was one of the interesting points of information which came to light yesterday in Legislative circles when the control bill continued to move along the stage of interest. Premier Ferguson made the announcement in discussing broad features of the bill with the press, and he added his estimate that it would probably be May 15th before the legislation should be in force operation.

Premier Ferguson stated that beer was to be regarded under the new plan as a workingman's drink and that no profit was to be derived from its sale. It would be sold at actual cost, with the addition only of such a charge as might be necessitated by the cost of handling.

With regard to liquors, the Prime Minister would prefer but little discussion in practice could the Act work itself out. He did not know whether or not it would be possible to lower prices under the new legislation.

The Government, it was learned during the day, has as yet purchased no liquors in contemplation of the approaching inauguration of the control plan.

LOST FINE TEAM THROUGH THE ICE

Mr. D. R. Davidson, of Massassaga had a fine team of horses valued at over $400 through the ice off Massassaga Park yesterday. Mr. Davidson was driving for Mr. George Wallbridge when the rotten ice gave way beneath the feet of the heavy horses plunging them into fifteen feet of water. After strenuous exertions the horses and sleighs were dragged out on the ice but the animals were dead.

Mr. Davidson got back to the dryer with the horses unhooked to sink and jumped to safety as the heavy waggon disappeared.

Mr. Davidson has been particularly unfortunate as he lost another splendid team about two weeks ago through sickness.

REGULAR POLICE TO ENFORCE ACT

Will Not Be Necessary To Keep Special Officers

Toronto, Mar. 11.—One vital difference between the control bill and the O. T. A. was remarked by Attorney-General Price, who pointed out that no police system would be created in connection with the control bill, as was done with the O. T. A. During the time of the Drury Government the O. T. A. enforcement officers constituted a sizeable police body and their methods in securing convictions led to much of the revulsion which developed toward the legislation.

No Police Necessary

In the case of the control bill no such condition is likely to arise. Attorney-General Price explained that the inspectors who are named in the bill are the officers who will be stationed in the breweries and in the commission offices, checking up on the technical observance of the law. They will be in no sense a police body. The policing of the new bill is to be done by the municipal and Provincial police. In other words, the Act is to be enforced in the same manner as any law on the statute books.

No notification has as yet been given by the Government to the old Board of License Commissioners to the effect that their duties are at an end. Resignations from Commissioners Hales and Dingman are said to be unnecessary, since the control bill repeals all former liquor legislation, and therefore the authority by which the License Board functions.

Services May Be Retained

None the less the machinery of the License Board is likely to be prominent in the administration of the bill. The Board and its system is being regarded by the Government as supplying the nucleus for the administration of the new policy. General Manager Hillard Dewart, indeed, in fact, has been in conference with the Government officials at sessions at which the machinery of the new law has been under discussion and it is understood that he will remain at his managerial post under the new law. Commissioner Dingman's wide and long experience as a member of the License Board is also likely to be retained for the administration of the new Act.

BLEW UP PAY TRUCK AND GET $100,000

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 11.—Blowing up an armoured truck with a bomb while it was enroute to the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company's Coverdale Mine this afternoon, nine armed bandits escaped in an automobile with the pay roll estimated to amount to $100,000.

The body of the truck and two guards were badly injured.

KEEPING TRAFFIC QUIET TO LET DUCHESS REST

Nelson, New Zealand, March 11.—The Duchess of York, suffering from insanities, passed a comfortable day says a bulletin issued this evening. The throat affection has not yet subsided, but physicians hope her condition will improve sufficiently by tomorrow to enable her to embark on the Empress Renown, on which the Duke and Duchess are voyaging to Australia. When it became known that the Duchess was ill in the hotel by one of the busiest streets in Nelson, the authorities ordered all traffic diverted. There was ready compliance with the request that traffic be quieted as much as possible on adjacent streets.

LONG EXPECTED CLASH OF NORTH AND SOUTH OCCURS IN HONAN

Manchurian War Lord Throws Troops Across Yellow River

SOVIETS PROTEST

Cantonese Accept Challenge and Face Invaders With 60000 Men

Fighting which may have a decisive effect on the outcome of the struggle between Northern and Southern China is going on behind the scene in Honan province. It appears that the long predicted clash has at last occurred between forces allied with Wu Pei Fu and those of the Manchurian war Lord, Chang Tso Lin, who is driving southward through Honan to attempt to halt the northward advance of the Cantonese.

Chang, known as a master tactician is said to be planning a flank attack in Honan, meanwhile rushing sixty thousand reinforcements southward to carry on his main advance toward Hankow. The Cantonese forces are entrenched on the southern Honan border to block the way to Hankow. Several guards were reported to be protecting the leading British military personages in Shanghai in face of the growing effrenzie agitation.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN HONAN PROVINCE

Peking, March 11. — Six hundred wounded soldiers have arrived at Pekin, indicating that fighting in Honan is developing on a large scale. Under cover of Marshal Chang Tso Lins artillery, the Northerners are continuing to cross the Yellow river, despite strong opposition from the forces of Gen Chu Yen Ao, civil governor of Honan and Gen Wang Kuai Ching.

RUSSIA SENDS A STRONG PROTEST

Shanghai, March 11.—A second jubilation of British Colsbroom guards was landed at Shanghai today. The soldiers route marched for five miles through the rain to billets in Jessfield park. Russia's second note in connection with the seizure by Northern Chinese forces of the Soviet steamer Pamiat Lenina is a strongly worded missive. It warns the Peking Government that any violation of the safety of couriers arrested when the boat was seized will compel the Soviet government to take exceptional measures.

TEACH CHILDREN MOCK AT CHRIST

Lobdon, March 11.—Charges that atrocious blasphemy, sedition and obscenity are taught to children at the Communist Sunday School of Great Britain were made in the House of Commons today by Captain Herbert Holt, Conservative, in moving the second reading of his bill to make such teachings punishable by fine and imprisonment.

Captain Holt stated that there are many such schools where children are taught sedition and mockery of Christ and religion. Moscow, he said, inspired the movement, which was being extended to state schools. Children were also being formed into groups to carry on propaganda.

GOODNIGHT—GOODNIGHT

Clarendon, Texas, March 11.—Colonel Charles Goodnight, "The Father of the Texas Panhandle," rounded out a long and eventful year Saturday by taking a 26-year-old bride. She was Miss Corrine Goodnight, not related to the colonel.

STEAMERS COLLIDE IN NEW YORK HARBOUR

New York, March 11.—Morgan Line freighter-El Sol, from Galveston, Texas, was sunk in New York harbor near the Statute of Liberty today after a head on collision with the American Diamond line freighter Sac City. The crash occurred in a heavy fog that obscured vessels from sight from shore. The El Sol's crew normally numbered about fifty. Early reports did not indicate whether there had been loss of life.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Thus destroys the groundless conceits of men; so confirms decisions founded on reality.

CICERO.

A BIG CANADIAN

Sir Robert Borden has sailed for England, where he will go into residence in Oxford for three months and deliver a series of seven lectures on constitutional questions under the Rhodes Foundation.

No other Canadian public man could be better fitted for this important task. Always a learned constitutional authority, Sir Robert has a clarity of mind and a gift for lucid exposition which will render his lectures of the highest value to the cultured academic audiences to whom they will be delivered.

As ex-premier journeying to Oxford under such circumstances cannot escape being accepted and judged as a representative Canadian. He will pass the test—high as the Oxford standards are. We shall have reason to be proud of him. His detached attitude toward public affairs out here in the present time makes this appointment especially opportune. He does not go as a stranger to Great Britain by a long way; and when he once more leaves the mother land he will undoubtedly bring with him an enchanced and broadened reputation.

A COAL STRIKE

Announcement of a pending coal strike in the United States finds Canada as usual quite unprepared for any eventualities that may follow.

It is of interest to recall a recommendation in the report of the Maritime Royal Commission, which says:

"There can be no doubt that the establishment of coking plants, under the assistance of the Dominion government for the coking of Canadian coal, would go far towards solving the coal problem in the Maritime Provinces."

While the recommendation refers only to Maritime coal, there is no doubt, according to many authorities, that similar treatment of Western coal would help to solve the full problem of other parts of Canada.

Tremendous steps are impending in other countries towards the elimination of waste in the use of coal. In Great Britain and Germany much research in recent years has been devoted to the production of oil from coal. What is called the low temperature carbonization process has passed the labatory stage, and the ultimate success of British enterprise in the treatment of coal is said to be within sight. A strong company has just been formed in Britain to produce from coal not only oil and rich gas, but smokeless fuel for open domestic grates, and powdered smokeless fuel for boiler furnaces—including marine boilers. It is claimed for the powdered fuel that it can be injected as smoothly as oil. It is being prepared to compete with oil as furnace fuel.

It is reasonable to believe that with the low temperature carbonization process, oil could be produced from Canadian coal at the pitheads in Alberta, or in Nova Scotia, for sale in the home market or for export, leaving a residue which would be a low-priced smokeless fuel suitable for both domestic and industrial purpose. How much longer must Canada suffer at the hands of the United States coal barons before the government can be induced to take definite action? How much longer can the Canadian coal industry afford to be behind modern progress?

REALLY CONSIDERATE

Was there ever a City Council more considerate of the finer susceptibilities of the people that that of Peterboro? A modest four-line despatch from that city states that the Council has passed a by-law forbidding firemen using profane language while fighting a fire. It is evident that the Council has in mind the spectators who at the fine sight of fire rapidly assemble and usually succeed in getting in the way of the firemen in the general scramble for grandstand seats. The City Council of Peterboro is determined that a perfectly good fire is not be spoiled for the onlookers by any profanity on the part of the firemen. Profane language is incompatible with the calling of a fireman, the Council decrees. In deed, odd behavior their duties should be conducted with dignity and decorum. When an overzealous spectator gets in the way or has his feet mixed up with the hose he should be pretty but firmly advonished by the Fire Chief, and a better position in which to view the spectacle found for him. Profane language this Council believes, should be reserved for the most exciting moments of electrics and locomotive fires which the firemen are wont to fill their leisure hours

WAR AND LOGIC

Norman Angell, the British economist who has written so much to prove the futility of war for any purpose of gain told an American audience a few days ago that the old idea that conquest by war meant addition of subjects and prosperity had been exploded. When nations annex new lands they simply take on new responsibilities.

Before the Great War Norman Angell had decided that all the arguments were against a great war. A great war, under modern conditions, he had shown would be so costly that no nation could stand it for long, and in the end even the victors would find themselves losers. He found, however, that the nations were not always governed by logic. In spite of his logic there was a Great War, and the nations did endure it for a considerable time, though at an enormous expense of money and manhood.

He is able to maintain, however, that none of the nations engaged in the war made anything out it, and that even the victors were losers. He is able to argue that the great war which broke out in spite of logic offered the strongest kind of argument against engaging in war in the hope to gain; but will the lessons which the nations have gained remain with them? The trouble is that the influences which make for war are no more likely to be governed by logic in the future than they were in the past.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Officer—(Examining recruit): "Have you any scars on you?"

Recruit—No, but I can give you a cigarette."

"When we are married I must have three servants."

"You shall have twenty, my dear, but not all at once."

"My boy, when you grow up I want you to be a gentleman."

"I don't want to be a gentleman, pop —I wanna be like you."

"Yes, my dear, I have lost Azor, my precious little dog."

"But you must put an advertisement in the papers!"

"The poor little pet can't read!"

30 YEARS AGO

From The Intelligencer Files

Lasier's dam broke yesterday and the water came down in torrents piling ice under the railroad bridge.

Ald. Lawsonde decided to have the ice at the upper bridge blasted with dynamite. He was served with an injunction from R. B. Cooper, Jas. McClaire, A. Henry and A. H. Crosby and other property owners on Front Street.

NIGHT AND MORNING

(Chicago Tribune)

The morning sits outside afraid
Until my mother drinks the shade.

Then it stands in like a ball,
Splashing sun all up the wall,

And the evening comes at night
Until she's tucked me in just right
And kissed me and turned out the light.

Oh, if my mother went away
Who would start the night and day?

There is one chicken that never runs across the road, and that is the one who rides beside the driver.—Sault Daily Star.

The W. C. T. U. is about to start a campaign to make drinking in society bad form. That is recognition in an unexpected quarter of the fact that drinking in society is now good form. Formerly it wasn't. The change is to be observed in all ranks of society and particularly among women. Many would as soon have served a rubber boot as a cocktail ten years ago, and if offered a drink at a friends house would have demanded to be taken home.—Chicago Tribune.

We like everything about a golden wedding except the remark that the principles never had a cross word. If we indulged in lying we would say something that sounded especially like applesauce. The only married couple who never passed a cross word were deaf mutes, we believe, and will you have they twisted their knuckles out of place many times making furious signs.—Listowel Banner.

RAISING RAILWAY FARE

The High school boys' enthusiasm and desire to make a street canvass for funds to send their basketball team to Toronto tomorrow, met by nine o'clock this morning had nearly $18. If they cannot raise $60 by tomorrow morning they will have to depend on their destination in automobiles, and it isn't easy to play a game of basketball following a hundred mile drive.

SPRING OPENING A HAPPY EVENT

Beautiful gowns cloaks and millinery selected from fashion most decorinsistent designs characters by Miss Ritchie Company's buyers were viewed with fascinated delight by hundreds who visited the big department store yesterday afternoon and evening. Throughout the day the spacious show rooms were thronged by a multitude of the devotees of fashion who spent a highly profitable few hours selecting Spring apparel and getting an idea of "what will be what" for 1927.

Music by the Bon Ton orchestra augmented the enjoyment of the many visitors who thronged the spacious display lovely stock in which every requisite of the well dressed woman was shown. Hats, probably the most important part of the Easter costume are lovlier this year than ever before and reminded one yesterday of a gay bed of tulips, with their lovely color effects. Many, however, depended upon their exquisite lines for their beauty and were constructed of beautiful materials of a subdued shade. The gowns in a bewildering array of styles and colors were lovelier than ever before and the coats and cloaks, the former featuring mainly tailored lines, were a revelation of dress making art.

REVIVAL DRAWS NIGHTLY CROWDS

Continuing the Revival Services in Holloway Church last evening, before a capacity congregation, Dr. Crouch preached an eloquent sermon using as his theme "Heaven and the Way There". This extremely popular song sermon was heard with keen interest by all present. Some of the terse extracts from the address were:

There is an instinct in the breast of mortal man that aspires to a better life in another world than this.

The next best thing to heaven is the way through earth that leads there.

The way to heaven is the King's Highway, and so is free for every loyal subject of the King. Moreover, we do not have to turn out for any person as all are going in the same direction.

Those who speak of hypocrites bent in their way most certainly be in the same way with them.

The way to heaven is a plain way. It is the way of surrender, trust and service. The ways of morality and formality are good as far as they go; but they do not go all the way to heaven.

DOWNEY M&M EXCELLIUM
MINING STOCKS

Noranda—The feature of the mining exchange this morning was again Noranda which advanced to around $22.50 a share. We understand this is New York buying.

Noranda is now completing recovery arrangements with blister copper purchasers. The negotiations indicate that the producing stage is drawing close. Noranda will ship blister containing about 97 per cent copper and the precious metals. Whether it will go to English or American buyers is a question to be settled.

Another big matter under advisement says the Northern Miner this week, concerns the building of a custom concentrator near the smelter. This project has several points of discussion, but Noranda officials are known to be quite favorably inclined.

Laval—Quebec has acquired Noranda's island claim in Pelletier Lake which will round out their holdings in this section of the Rouyn field, the Northern Miner states. The Company have traced a fairly wide break for nearly half a mile. They have a large plant of machinery getting down through boulder clay, but contractors are now setting up a diamond drill in addition to another drill purchased by Hollinger-Mackay recently. This gives them two drills ready to put on the break in a few days.

Capital Rouyn is up for listing on the unlisted section of the Standard Stock Exchange, Toronto. The Company has become quite interested lately by reason of a very showy copper find on one of its groups, near Consolidated Rouyn, Flavilan Lake section of Dupratt.

TODAY'S MARKETS

Chicago, Mar. 11.—Favorable weather conditions over most of domestic winter crop territory gave wheat an early downward trend today. Besides very liberal world shipments from Australia were reported and Argentina stocks have increased. Opening at 1-8 to 5-8 cent lower wheat underwent some further decline. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, early starting unchanged to 3-8 cent off and subsequently receding a little more.

HUSBANDS IN SULKS PRESENT PROBLEM

By ELSIE MARLOWE

What's to do when Hobby has the POUTS?

That's the question a distressed wife asked recently and we put it up to some of our readers to answer.—Here's a tip from one who faced the same problem and won. It seemed rather dubious solution and may suggest a better plan to the readers.

DEAR ELSIE:—I

How shall we cure a valley husband? Why not give him his own medicine? I did this to my friend husband after fifteen years of experience.

One morning when he left without a good-by I grouped, thinking to myself, "I'm in for it again, who knows for how long?" But revulsion overcame me and I clenched my fist, thinking and declaring over and over again, "I will not stand for it any more, come what may." Hubby came in, he found me very busy at the sink with my back to him paying the evening I endeavored to be kind good-by (as he used to do) and by evening I forgot my role and was as nice as usual.

A few days after, he asked me very concernedly what was the matter with me "the other day?" I wanted to know what he meant. "The day you didn't want to talk to me and acted so strange," he said.

"Oh," I laughed, "I was only giving you your own medicine. How did you like it? I stood for it for fifteen years and I will not stand it any longer. What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander!"

That was the end of his sulking. We have been married over thirty-four years now. M. J.

And here's a little lady who juggled fresh revenge and found it was a boomerang.

DEAR ELSIE:

I wonder if you can help me. I am in a terrible fix.

A short while ago I met a fellow with whom I fell in love and had every reason to believe that he was in love with me. Then someone warned me to look out for him. They told me he was noted for leading out a heavy line. But I did not heed this warning.

Then just as suddenly as he came into my life, he left. I was just another one who had fallen for his "line." Elsie, no one knows how I suffered. I have never loved anyone like I loved him. It made me so bitter to think that anyone could do a thing like that. I made up my mind right then that I would never bother about any fellow again. No fellow would ever be able to hurt me as he had done. And it he could hand out "a line" why couldn't I?

So I picked three nice respectable young men for my victims, and what a "line" I gave them! Eventually they fell, and fell hard. Now here is my problem. I have made those men care for me, and how did them I cared for them, but I do not.

I thought that as soon as they learned to care for me, I would drop them and see them suffer as I did. But they won't be dropped. They are putting up a terrible, especially one, and he has gotten so that I'm afraid of him. What shall I do?—

I can see how foolish I was to seek revenge. Do you think revenge help to heal wounds?

NINETEEN?

I'm afraid you'll have to fight it out yourself, little sister. Since I don't know your antecedents I can't possibly tell you how to manage them. But I can give you one tip that applies to all human dealings as well as love making: TELL THE TRUTH. You have tangled these men and you've up in a lie. Then it's up to you to untangle them by telling them the truth. It will be a hard and humiliating job, but I don't think their self-respect will be worth much until you tackle it.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my twenties and I am in love with a young man as I was six years my senior. He would do anything in the world for me and he has told me he loves me. But he goes out with other girls and always tells me about them.

He knows that I love him and that it make me jealous. We quarreled the other night and he hasn't been on the phone or shall I wait until he calls?

BROKEN - HEARTED HONEY.

BROKEN - HEARTED HONEY: By All means wait until he calls you, unless you feel that you are in the wrong. It you think that you are entirely to blame for the quarrel, you might send him a note asking an opportunity to explain.

to go out with other friends of the opposite sex. However, unless you are engaged it is really his right, as well as your own, to do so. Unless you are both constantly trampling on each other's rights you ought not ask him to spend all of his spare time with you. Of course, on the other hand, it is extremely unkind of him to tell you about other girls with the purpose of arousing your jealousy.

The best way to teach him a lesson and spoil a possible repetition of this unfortunate episode, is to make no overtures toward a reconciliation. If he really loves you, he will be certain to get in touch with you soon. He won't permit a silly quarrel to stand in the way of your mutual happiness.

And when you become friendly again, you must make a conscious effort not to let him see that you are jealous of the other girls he goes out with. Merely act upon your own right to see other young men. He may not like it, but you each have equal privileges.

CHAPTER XII.

UNMASKED

Sanford's limousine pulled for Christine. It bore her swiftly up the Avenue. The warmth and fragrance of it lulled her. She wore her one and only simple little evening gown, and she clutched the precious manuscript of her play.

Sanford's apartment was in the Fifties, not far from the Park. A gorgeous personage in broadcloth and gold cords led her from the car. A page conducted her to the top floor which Sanford occupied in its entirety. A correct butler admitted her, and she was immediately turned over to a maid who led her to a lofty room furnished in Empire style. There were mirrors everywhere. Christine saw herself as a slim little figure in a cheap black evening gown.

"If I had a high-necked dress and long sleeves and a frilled apron, I'd still be a little better dressed than the maid," she thought.

A modest string of artificial pearls and an artificial orchid, salvaged from the specialty shop for which she wrote advertising copy, alone redeemed the simplicity of her gown.

When she had laid aside her wrap, she was conducted by a mammoth footman to a where Sanford waited for her. She had a confused impression of a fireplace big enough for a man to stand in; of shining armor and gleaming copper shields; of soft carpets that hushed her footsteps; of a refectory table and carved chairs.

The butler brought cocktails. She barely tasted hers. Let's Sanford drink her for not drinking it.

"I'll sweeten it up," he said, and turned to the shaker on the silver tray.

She lifted the glass to her lips, and when his back was turned, tossed its contents over her shoulder into a fern.

"I hope it won't kill the poor thing," she thought.

When dinner was announced, she was conducted into another splendid room. There were candles on the long table and orchids in crystal holders. A butler and a footman served the meal. She had never tasted such food. With the fish course a golden wine that seeped through her veins and warmed her to her fingertips. Some instinct warned her to cover her glass when the butler would have refilled it.

"Such a little Puritan!" smiled Sanford. "You've not been so careful when we have dined in restaurants."

"This wine is different," she protested. "You are right," he asserted. "It's thirty years old. It's rather—potent."

"Remember, I have a play to read," she said haughtily.

"Oh, yes—the play," he replied, as if he brought his thoughts back to that with difficulty.

They returned to the magnificent living-room for coffee and a liqueur. Christine produced her manuscript. Sanford put her on a wide divan covered in purple velvet. There were scented cushions rich in brocade, at her back. He adjusted a shaded lamp at her elbow.

He stretched out at the foot of the divan — an indolent, insouciant figure with sleepy, heavy-lidded eyes. He omitted a cigarette in a long amber holder.

Christine read eagerly. Years afterwards, she could look back on that play as a puny, childish thing. It was crude in its construction; crude in its conception. She had put into it Nina, the black Hawaiian dancer in the cabaret, Miss Perkins, and some of the men she had met in Nina's studio. She was still young enough to be thoroughly bitter, lacking the knowledge of how to gild the wheat from the chaff, but she thought she was clever in some sense, she felt, unconsciously believed that she was as cynical by scintillating as Oscar Wilde.

Years later, she wept a little for the girl who could know so little and could believe that she knew so much.

When she had finished, she waited for Sanford's verdict. He took the manuscript out of her hand.

He said: "The play is rotten, but the woman—"

Suddenly he seized her in his arms. She felt his hot lips on hers.

"Christine, don't you know I want you? Let's drop this foolish farce. The play is a good excuse—but you understand—"

Somehow she eluded him. She found herself standing in the middle of the room, panting; her eyes blazing.

"How dare you!"

In an instant, he was master if himself. He was once more the casual, correct, always-good man of the world.

"My ear is downstairs, if you wish to leave."

With a Chesterfieldian bow, he presented her with her manuscript.

"If ever you change your mind—"

"Never!" she blazed. She snatched the manuscript from him and left, disdaining his limousine.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Paris reports that the jewel now is used to finish the narrow ribbon belt, and studded with pearls or some other jewel, it is often the only form of decoration.

Paris notes that black onyx mixed with dark silver is a favorite decorative accessory to the silk-white frock, and a white crepe or chiffon frock is caught with an old-silver buckle set with brilliants, while a large onyx ring is worn and onyx and diamond earrings and a linked chain complete a charming all-white scheme.

Bedfern new sports clothes are adorned with a new kind of embroidery with appliqus work in leather or cloth: lozenges, leaves, triangles, and crescents of different coloured leathers are applied to kasha, flannels, and face-cloth to form a most effective decoration.

GRAND JURY IS MUCH PLEASED

Have Absolutely No Fault to Find With Anything or Anybody

The Grand Jury have turned in the following report on their labors:

To the Honourable Mr. Justice Logie:

Your Lordship:

We, the Grand Jury for the Court of Over and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery, of the County of Hastings, beg leave to report as follows:

We desire to thank your Lordship for your very able, clear and explicit instructions in the law in reference to the consideration of the Criminal Case coming before us and also in reference to our other duties.

We desire to thank Sheriff Clare for his kindness and attention, also the Crown Prosecutor, Mr. Gerald Ham, and the Crown Attorney, Mr. Deroan, for their efficient and valuable assistance.

We visited the County Gaol and found fourteen men and one woman confined there as prisoners. The condition of every part of the premises reflects credit on Mr. Ketcheson, Gaoler, Mrs. Ketcheson, Matron, and Mr. Colling, Turnkey.

We would recommend that a certain portion of the County Buildings be redecorated each year and particular attention be given to the Judge's room. We suggest also that some chairs be purchased for the witness room.

The House of Refuge was visited and we desire to congratulate the County on this well-conducted home. Everything was in good condition and the inmates well contented and cared for. Mr. and Mrs. Leigh were very kind and considerate and showed us through every part of the institution and deserve great credit for the good conditions prevailing under their supervision. We found fifty men and thirty-six women there.

We visited the Hospital and were very pleased to find every department in excellent condition. Some very important alterations have been made to the X-ray room by way of equipment and extra space. Two new rooms have been added to the Hospital and new furniture provided which greatly increases the efficiency of the Institution and credit is due the Board of Governors and staff for the very satisfactory condition existing there.

We also visited the Children's Shelter and were very pleased to find every Department in excellent condition. The twenty-two children seemed very happy and contented, reflecting great credit on the matron, Miss Harris, who is in charge.

We visited Ontario School for the Deaf and were very much pleased with the condition of affairs existing there. This institution under the guidance of Dr. Costello reflects great credit on the Province. We found about 200 students in attendance there, too much credit cannot be given the teachers for their devotion to this arduous work.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. H. DAVY,
Foreman.

BEAUTIFUL DELHI AGAIN CAPITAL

Reconstructed Into One of World's Most Beautiful Seats of Government

Delhi, India, Mar. 11—(Canadian Press Despatch)—Beautiful and stately are the new government buildings, the "New Delhi," where the seat of Indian government has now been re-established. Sir Edward Lutyens with the assistance of other noted British architects, designed the buildings, which were just completed in time for the recent state opening of the Indian Assembly by Lord Irwin, Vice-Roy.

The magnificent Central Vista is the outstanding feature of the new capital. One end is closed by the grand ruinous pile of the old Fort built in the 16th century, and three miles west of the Fort rises the superb mass of the Secretariat, with a broad and stately colonnade, its twin towers and two mighty wings, to the Viceregal Lodge, which stands high on rising ground on the horizon.

On both sides of the Vista are the wide stretches of turf with three lines of trees and a series of long, shallow water-filled tanks. A few yards north of the Secretariat is the great Council House, or Parliament House, built on a pattern resembling that of the Coliseum. Massive columns encircle the building on the first floor and form a finely proportioned balcony due north from the road towards the Jama Masjid (Great Mosque), which crowns the view in that direction. Green lawns and palms around Parliament House add to the beauty of the noble circular building.

From the balcony the Viceroy will see the New Delhi spread beneath him, its mathematically straight roads diversified by the numerous roundels (which are characteristic of the place) running between brilliantly white bungalows in their spacious compounds, beside the gates of Parliament House three courts, with turf and flowers and fountains, stretch below the verandahs of the Chamber of Princes, the Council of State, and the Legislative Assembly. The Chamber or Council of Princes, one of the wonder rooms of India, is richly panelled, with slabs of beautifully coloured stone screens and the room is softly lit by sunlight, diffused and dimmed by the lacework of stone, which takes the place of windows in their Chambers. The Chamber of Princes seats 86 persons, the Council of State 62, and the Assembly Chamber 102.

LARGE CROWDS FOR EVANGELIST

The growing interest and attraction of the special services being held in Holloway Street Church was evidenced last night by the largest attendance of the week and the enthusiasm of the audiences in the singing gospel songs led by Mr. Leonard and the choir. Tonight should see the church filled when the Evangelist will give another song number, entitled "Heaven, and the way there."

Two beautiful solos were given by Mr. Leonard, "A Strange Sweet Song" by Gabriel, and "Jesus Loves," composed by Mr. J. H. Leonard.

Dr. Crossley's subject was, "The Greatest Revival in History", recorded in the Book of Joshua when he gathered all the tribes of Israel to Shechim, relates God's benefits and renews the covenant between God and them. Many lessons are to be learned for his story.

Great Revivals are always remarkable. The Speaker gave many illustrations affirming this.

Revivals are popular. This is no for the same people come night after night to hear the gospel message.

God can save a thousand as well as one and a nation as well as a city.

The surrender of the will is necessary for only through such surrender can there be consecration.

Everyone is serving some one, we are either 'for' or 'against' God, there can be no neutrality.

Everyone is free to make his own choice and each is responsible either for his salvation or his condemnation.

We should choose to serve the Lord whether others do or do not: This should lead us to an open confession of our Lord "He that honoreth Me I will honor."

The call is for everyone to choose this day whom he will serve. Dr. Crossley pleaded lovingly and earnestly for all to accept the Saviour now.

Rev. E. Farmer, North was present and led in the opening prayer.

Great enthusiasm was manifested last evening and this years league is practically already an assured success.

The following teams were represented:

Mens—C. N.R., "Scotty" Knott and S. Symons; Y's Men, V. Weir; Point Anne, Anne B. Redner; High Presbyterians, Jack Allen.

Ladies—Patricias, Gar. Anderson and J. Kerr; Foster Ward, J. McKenna; High School, Miss Merry and Deacon Hart, Joe Guyer.

Ken Colling occupied the chair and the other officers are:

Secretary—Sam Curry.

Treas.—F. Deacon.

Some discussion took place over the player question and, one player, particularly was in the limelight. One club had signed two of the best fingers in the city while another club were almost devoid of pitchers. It was decided that one of the players should cast his lot with the weaker club which he consented to do.

Ken Colling, Pres., introduced a schedule which was adopted.

Each team will play a double schedule with the girls games 7 innings starting at 9 o'clock and the boys 9 innings commencing at 9 o'clock.

Twelve inch balls will be used in the girls league and fourteen inch balls in the Men's League.

$30.00 will be taken out of the funds at the end of the season to buy a cup for a girls League.

Twig Wookey, umpire, consented to look after the purchasing of new balls.

The umpires will meet and draft a list of playing rules in regard to fair balls knocked in the gallery, etc.

Four players who took part in Hay of Quinte League games are all that can be signed by each ladies team.

The batting order must be handed to the official scorer 5 minutes before game time.

Another meeting has been called for next Thursday night when any odds and ends will be settled. The most of the teams paid their entrance fees last evening. Another week was given in which to sign the players up.

MURDERER TRIED IN 6 MINUTES

SportOgramS

By "The Observer"

The latest rumor to be going the rounds is to the effect that Napanee will be represented by a Junior O. H. A. team next season. This would no doubt be a step in the right direction and from the support given the town team there isn't much doubt but what an O.H.A. would go over big.

Of course players in Deseronto would also be available and the latter town possesses on the High School team 3 or 4 lads who are fast enough for O. H. A. They recently defeated Oshawa for the Intercholastic championship having won these homers two years in a row. Fans from both towns would attend and good gates would result. Napanee have a fine covered rink and excellent accommodations.

HOCKEY BANQUET TONIGHT

The City and Industrial leagues hold their first annual banquet and concleave tonight. Players are requested to be on deck sharply at 6.30. The City League cup will be presented.

The Belleville Intermediate basket ball team after having trounced Royal Military College soundly are now entering a stiff session of practices in preparation for their home-and-home series with the Toronto winners. The locals led by "Army" Armstrong and "Vern" Weir will provide stiff opposition for the Toronto cagers. The games are scheduled for the 19th and 26th of this month and the boys are settling down to iron out the rough spots.

"Army" Armstrong's Juvenile's Basketeers have championship hopes and their coach places great confidence in them. Faulkner, Davison and company are the smoothest working bunch to represent Belleville in the Juvenile ranks for many years. The Kingston team looked decidedly weak against their clever passing and dead on shooting game. Their opponents have not yet been chosen but whoever they are they will be given the battle of their lives.

Barchelt so far is still a dead issue in Belleville with no action having been taken as yet to determine the summer's possibilities. A meeting should be held before the 28th of March when the annual C.O.B.L. meeting takes place to reach a decision whether to enter the Senior or Intermediate O.B.A. ranks. Things are stirring down Kingston way and the fans are assured of good ball whether the C.O.B.L. functions or not.

News Of Movies

REGENT THEATRE

The old country has been used as the effective setting for Art Acord's current feature at the Regent Theatre in "Loco Luck."

This picture is an actional one that will cause the blood to tingle with excitement. It has a good supporting cast, thrills, romance, and cleverly built up suspense. It is a thoroughly enjoyable picture made from a good story and bettered by forceful direction.

The story opens in the midst of an oil boom which is in the stages of fading out. Several with inside knowledge to the contrary try to foster this idea when Art Acord arrives on the scene.

The action then becomes furious and does not let up for the picture to a shrivwind finish.

Acord is given ample opportunity to show his skill with his fists and his unparalleled horsemanship. Hard riding and a race feature the picture with the photoplay teeming with virile action.

CAPITOL THEATRE

A picture comparing favorably with the very best of the year, "The Lodge in the Wilderness," a Tiffany production, was seen for the first time at the Capitol Theatre yesterday. It is a gripping story of the great forests of the Northwest country, and the battle for the hand of a beautiful girl by two well-bred men.

A forest fire, among the best ever screened, is one of the dramatic highlights of this absorbing picture drama. The escape of the hero by airplane from a prison where he is wrongfully confined, to save the girl he loves from a terrible fate is another exciting incident of the story.

Anita Stewart as the girl is as sweet and charming as ever while Edmund Burns as the stalwart young engineer in charge of constructing forest for the logging camp, leaves his role without criticism. Others in the cast are Victor Potel, as the halfwit, Lawrence Steers, Duncan Thompson, Eddie Lyons and James Farley.

"The Lodge in the Wilderness" is suggested from a story of the same name by Sir Gilbert Parker and was directed by Jerry McCarty, who made a mighty fine picture.

The picture will be the feature attraction at the Capitol tonight and Saturday.

BELLE THEATRE

Another famous name is now added to the Blue Book of the Screen. It is none other than L. Frank Baum's famous fantastic story of "The Wizard of Oz" which with Larry Semon as the funny "Scarecrow" will be seen at the Belle Theatre today and Saturday.

This fantastic spectacle marks a new step forward in the silent art which now includes the realm of fantasy hitherto confined to the printed page. The screen version of this story, which for over a decade has been a favorite with both child and adult, has been produced as a superb comedy.

Thrills, laughs and "chases" so dear to the heart of the film fan, abound throughout the story which is crammed with fast action and a thrilling climax. Dorothy Dwan, a real Kansas cyclone in one spectacle alone which is worth going far to see, of Baum's familiar characters will be portrayed by a superlative cast. Larry Semon of course plays the "straw man" and he is ably supported by Bryant Washburn as "The Prince, Delightful Dorothy Dwan as Little Dorothy, Charlie Murray as Uncle Chaffy, Mary Carr as Dorothy's Mother, "Babe" Hardy as "The Tin Woodman", Virginia Pearson as the Empress and a host of other well known film favorites.

WIFE GIVEN ANNULMENT

Detroit, March 11.—Mrs. Greta Gordon Videan today was granted annulment of marriage to Herbert Videan after she testified that insisted of taking her to the movies on the night of June 5, 1933, Videan drove her 200 miles from Sarnia, Ont., to Orillia, Ont., and there forced her to marry him. She said they lived on adjoining farms near Sarnia, that Videan kept her a virtual prisoner for seven days after the forced marriage, then drove her to her father's farm and a month later tried to kidnap her.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"Of" said Rafe, with a smile. "You seem to know all about it."

"Why, of course!" she cried. "Is not writing in the air?"

"Is it?" said Rafe.

She laughed and tapped him with her fan. "Are you really so innocent as you seem?" she inquired.

"More," he assured her.

"Oh, you couldn't be," she retorted. "Do you think they will make a match of it?" she asked, after a slight pause.

"Who?" asked Rafe.

"Why, Lady Maude and Sambome," she said, with her eyes fixed on his face. Rafe was simple, but not quite so simple as to give himself away to even so short-seeming a young lady as Madeline Despard. It is true that he felt as if some one had clutched at his heart with a hand of ice, as if a dead weight had fallen on him and threaten ed to crush the life out of him, but he made no sign. Slowly he filled his glass and his own before he said:

"So you think they're going to marry each other?"

"Oh, well, everybody says so," she replied. "If they're not actually engaged, they must be very near it; it has been talked about for ever so long. You see, it would be such a suitable match, and everybody knows that Sambome is head over heels in love with her."

"I can quite believe it," said Rafe so coolly, and in so matter-of-fact a tone, that, with all her shrewdness and cunning, Madeline Despard began to think that she had been deceived by the expression of Rafe's face as Maude entered the supper room.

"If you've had enough, let's go back," he said, after a minute or two, for it was impossible for him any longer to sit still and look at those two people love together.

As they returned to the ballroom Madeline Despard chattering all the time, and Rafe listening to her with his head bent and the tolerant smile with which one receives the irresponsible prattle of a child, some of the women as they watched them exchanged significant glances, and one, more outspoken than the others, remarked, with a shrug of her shoulders, that Madeline had got no time." But she had no chance him presently, for a partner came up, but, as she tripped away, she looked over her shoulder at Rafe.

"I'll come back and talk to you again when this dance is over, if you like!"

"It's just what I'd like," he said gallantly, but in five minutes he had forgotten all about her. He moved about the ballroom with his hands clasped behind his back, his eyes occasionally wandering in search of the one woman in the room for him. It seemed to him that she was dancing every dance, that she was happy, happier than he could be. "And why not?" he asked himself, with pang of self-scorn. If she was thinking of one man, she was thinking of a second, of a duke, whom that little china girl said Maude was going to marry. Quite a number of persons talked to him, and Rafe's simplicity and in-genuousness, backed up by his handsome face and superb person, won golden opinion. But the strain was beginning to tell upon him, and presently Travers, who had been watching him all the evening, saw man throw himself back on a settee and clasp his hands behind his head with the palpable air of resignation.

Travers went up to him at once. "It is getting late," he said. "Have you had enough yet? If so, we will go."

"I'm with you all the time," said Rafe, jumping up. "I feel just as I felt when I was looking on at that game of cards at the club, and a lot worse," he added grimly.

A footman gave them their hats and

Mrs. J. B. Hiltz

Toronto, Ont.—"I found Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription very beneficial. During my third expectant period I was nauseated, my nerves went to pieces and I grew so weak and miserable that I could not do anything. I finally began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and from that on I got along fine. My nerves quieted down, I grew stronger and had a very healthy baby. She always has been exceedingly well. 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest help in motherhood of any medicine a woman can take."—Mrs. J. B. Hiltz, 163 Dyndas East St.

helped them into their coats, and they left the house. Rafe was grave, looked cynical beyond his years, and very quiet; but Travers was in a state of suppressed excitement; his face was flushed, and his black eye had a curious gleam in them. He was tasting the sweetness of his introduction to the society to which he told himself he of right belonged. His good looks and excellent manners had gained him a kind of welcome; he had caused a great deal with women of undoubted position, and, more than all else, he had danced with Lady Maude. For him, as for Rafe, she was the one woman in the room. To a man like Travers there is a precular fascination in the unattainable, and already Maude was holding the foremost place in his imagination. He, Travers, dared not lift his eyes to her; he was so far beneath her as the public knew him, but he dared to look at the man who, on the modelest, is beneath the star. But if he were the Earl of Strathyre—as he should be? At the thought, his heart beat violently, and he glanced, with the man beside him, and a shade of hatred shot thought his heart.

"I hope you enjoyed the dance?" he said, breaking a long silence. "You seemed to make a great many friends."

"Yes," said Rafe slowly. "There's one thing about you London people; you're not shy and hold off." He smiled as he thought of Madeline Despard. "I hope you had a good time?"

"Very!" said Travers. "I danced a great deal and had some good partners. What a number of beautiful women there were!"

"That's so," said Rafe, still absently. (To be Continued.)

INDICATE INCREASED FAVOR OF BICYCLE

Canada's bicycle industry developed an increased production of 19 per cent. in 1925. The motor car has failed to eliminate the former. The bicycle also survives. Its vogue, of course, has greatly diminished as compared with the days when bicycling was so popular that municipalities provided "bicycle paths" for the enthusiasts. But there is seen of late, a renewed demand for "wheels". It is suggested that the motor car has enabled many families to live at a distance from the city, and that their younger members are therefore finding bicycles a necessity. If that is true, the automobile is helping to operate the industry which it at one time threatened to wipe out.

The five Canadian firms manufacturing bicycles (all located in Ontario) reported a production of 1926,-905 in 1921, 1925,295 in 1922, 81,973,-298 in 1923, $1,211,010 in 1924 and $1,445,901 in 1925. While one or two of the firms manufacture tricycles, skates and exhibit vehicles in addition to bicycles, and while these are included in the total output, they do not account for the increases. In 1925, for instance, there were 27,402 bicycles manufactured, as against 21,078 in 1924. The number of employes was 516 in 1925, as compared with 382 in 1921.

There is complaint in Toronto that bicyclists disregard the traffic laws, "hang on" behind street cars, circle unnecessarily upon busy streets, and fail to carry lights at night. But this cannot be fairly charged against all wheelsmen. A common source of danger is the carrying of a passenger on a bicycle built to accommodate only the rider. There is a city by-law against it, and the police should put an end to the practice.

FINED FOR MAIMING DOG

Oshawa, March 11.—A unique and peculiar case was tried before Magistrate Floyd of Cobourg at Millbrook yesterday when John Lytle was charged with maiming, by cutting off its tail, a collie dog, which, it is alleged, he had stolen from a foreigner in the neighborhood. Lytle acknowledged that his son, aged 17, had maimed it. The Magistrate held that Lytle was responsible for his boy's action and a fine amounting to $20 together with $21.75 costs was imposed.

Tobacco To Bear Heavier Taxes---Smith Mystery Hangs Fire---Keene Inquest Postponed

TOBACCO TO GET HEAVIER IMPOST BRITISH BUDGET

Teas and Wines May Be Hit to Make up Deficit

INCOME TAX SAME

Not Likely to Raid Sinking Fund—Whisky Duty Remains

London, March 12.—Additional taxation on tobacco, teas and wines will, it is thought be adopted by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to meet the deficit of £28,000,000 expected in the latter's financial statement.

Nearly 76 per cent. of the present price of tobacco in this country is taxed, and for this reason prices are high. Notwithstanding this, however, the profits of tobacco companies have grown, a fact largely attributed to the great increase in smoking among women and to the effects of wide advertising. Wines, the consumption of which has grown remarkably in the last few years, are practically certain to be more highly taxed.

No increase in the income tax is expected, and it is not thought that Churchill will raid the sinking fund to make up the deficit, though he could sure this step, as last year's revenue was somewhat, due to the coal strike and the general strike.

Four Billion Budget

Now that the navy estimates have been produced, amounting to £58,000,000, it is possible to arrive with fair certainty at the amount which Rt. Hon. Winston Church, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will name in the budget to be brought down in the House of Commons next month. The amount will probably be slightly more than £806,000,000, which at first sight suggests a reduction of £14,000,000. Most of this, however, constitutes reductions in pensions through expiring services.

20 p.c. Income Tax

This year the income tax collector has been more pressing than ever and, with but three weeks in which to collect remaining taxes, it is certain that there will be a heavy deficiency in the exchequer. It appears unlikely that any further help can be obtained from the income tax, when the harassed middle class is already paying four shillings on the pound—20 per cent.

Nelson, New Zealand, March 12.—Duchess of York, acting on her doctor's advice, has abandoned the remainder of her tour of the South Island, it was officially announced today. FLOODS RECEDE SHOWING DAMAGE

Paris, March 12.—Although some of overflowing rivers had subsided today, the flood situation in southwestern France continued grave. The Garonne River was still rising slowly adding to the destruction, with inhabitants of villages along its banks being compelled to camp in the upper parts of their homes or abandon them altogether.

Along the river the population was greatly relieved when the waters began to recede. Only as the waters disappeared were they able to get an idea of the real damage. The ancient city of Cahors was in a pitiable condition. Many of the buildings in the lower quarter were undermined and collapsed. Several persons yesterday were drowned while on errands of mercy.

C. N. R. EARNINGS

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ended March 7, 1927, were $4,578,557.00 as compared with $4,546,629.56 for the same week of 1926, an increase of $431,736.42 or nine and one half per cent.

2517 ACCIDENTS DURING 1926 ON OUR RAILROADS

Ottawa, March 12.—A total of 2,517 accidents on Canadian railway property occurred last year, in which 429 persons were killed and 2,620 were injured, as compared with 2,713 accidents in the previous year, when 372 persons were killed and 2,955 were injured. Last year 74,579 passengers were killed and 329 were injured, 122 employees were killed and 1,727 injured, and 284 others were killed and 564 injured.

Automobile accidents at crossings numbered 225, horse and rig accidents 39, and pedestrian accidents 28. Last year there were 200 accidents at highway crossings reported to the board, covering 129 persons killed and 370 injured.

During 1926 railways subject to the board's jurisdiction were reported as having caused 926 fires on forested properties, which burned over a total of 92,329 acres, with forest and other property damage estimated at $94,678. Of these totals, 46 per cent. of the number, 83 per cent. of the area and 87 per cent. of the estimated money value destroyed were in British Columbia, where a prolonged dry spell resulted in heavy forest losses. Of the 45,329 acres burned over by the railway lines, only 6,197 acres were merchantable timber, 15,067 acres were young forest growth and 13,566 acres of slashing.

Chicago, Ill., March 12.—Three of the six desperate convicts under sentence to be hanged for murder were subdued in their cells at the county jail at Joliet early today after a battle of hours with officers, while their three companions in the sensational prison break escaped to Chicago, where one of them wounded two policemen and a taxi driver.

Two of the three, all of whom were Mexicans, were captured here early today, Gregorio Rito was probably fatally wounded in an exchange of shots with the police. The other man taken was Roberto Terris, whom police still were seeking the third member of the trio, Bernado Ros.

THERMIT DISPLAY WAS BRILLIANT DEMONSTRATION

Dr. Barnes Proves to Group of Citizens Power of Ice Chemical

First, a slow burning light, then a violent explosion and a million beautiful stars seemed to shoot an interminable distance up in the air, to slowly fall to earth again as the Thermit, embedded in the large cakes of ice off Victoria Park was set off by an electric spark last night.

At 7.45 yesterday evening, Dr. Howard T. Barnes, Professor of McGill University and the inventor of the power of Thermit, stood a show for any of the public that cared to come to see it. Four cakes of ice were drawn up into the clearing at the upper end of the Firemans' Park, and were joined by the Thermit, within a very few minutes of each other. Two pounds of Thermit was used in the first three cakes of ice and five pounds used for the last piece, and of the four, the last was the spectacular.

First all one could see would be a light like a Bollman torch, then would come the crash and the burning fragments of ice would be violently hurled into the air, scattering far and wide in their upward and downward flight. Following the burning of the four cakes of ice, some ice was set on fire in an upright brazier stuck into the ground. About one hundred and fifty people turned out to see the night's display.

SPECIAL FILM

The film depicted ice breaking up along the St. Lawrence River, and also showed the work being done on the Belleville Harbour and the Moira River.

This morning another special film was shown at the Capitol for school children.

INQUEST AGAIN POSTPONED WEEK

The inquest to determine into the death of Jerome Keen, aged recluse who was found murdered in a shack on Sidney Street, some weeks ago, which was to have been held on Monday has been postponed another week. This step was taken in order to allow the Crown an opportunity to collect further evidence.

Inspector William Stringer, of Toronto and Officer McCoy, of Madoc, are conducting a close investigation into the case and some startling details may be revealed within the course of a few days. Inspector Loudered of the Provincial Police stated this morning that there is no new angle at the present time.

GUTHRIE FIGHTS THE CANAL BILL

Moves Amendment Aimed to Kill the Charter. Measure

Ottawa, March 12.—By declaring himself to be unalterably opposed to the principle of the measure, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, leader of the Opposition, presented a fresh phase to the fight over the demand of the Georgian Bay Canal Company for a renewal of is charter, when he moved in the House last night an amendment to the motion of E.H.E. Chevrier (Ottawa) for second reading of the bill, the effect of the amendment being to nullify the bill.

It is set forth in Mr. Guthrie's amendment that "the character and object of this bill involving a matter of grave national and provincial importance and are such as to constitute it a measure of public policy which ought not to be dealt with in any private bill."

Provincial Rights

In a brief speech Mr. Guthrie emphasized the serious difficulties that would arise should this bill even get to the standing committee on railways, canals and telegraph lines. Grave questions of federal and provincial rights were involved and he was strongly opposed not only to the passage of the bill but also to its reference to the committee.

He was followed by T. L. Church (Toronto), who denounced the move of Sir Clifford Sifton to "throttle the plans of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission."

He called this "one of the most iniquitous charters ever asked from Parliament."

The motion for second reading was talked out by Mr. Church. Another effort will be made next Monday to get it passed.

GANG WAR OPENS AGAIN IN CHICAGO UNDERWORLD

Chicago, Ill., March 12.—Gangland's truce has ended. Two henchmen of Joe Saltis, who recently suffered a peace pact with members of the rival band of liquor gangsters were slain late last night when they were riddled with machine gun bullets, poured into their auto mobile on the west side.

The belief existed that Saltis himself, may have been the intended victim of the fusillade as the car in which his slain lieutenants were riding belonged to the South Side gang leader.

The recent arrest of four men who were exporting whiskey from a government warehouse holding a million dollars worth of pre-prohibition liquor was believed to have started gangland skirmishing. Rumors were prevalent that arrests were the result of a tip-off by liquor rivals.

Government Purpose is To Place Burden on Users of Highways

Toronto, March 12—Consideration is being given by the Ontario Government to changes in the license fee for automobiles and the tax on gasoline with the view of more equitably fixing the source of revenue for the maintenance of the highways of the province, Provincial Treasurer Smith stated on behalf of the Government on behalf of motorists in the rural districts and the northern parts of the province where, owing to climatic conditions automobiles are in use only about seven or eight months in the year, and it is understood that even with the recent reduction of $5 in the license fee motor let in the urban areas have an advantage because they are able to operate their cars almost the year round.

Speaking at Hamilton last night Premier Ferguson repeated the statement he has already made in the Legislature, to the effect that he is in favor of a further reduction in the license fee and an increase in the gasoline tax and while no decision has been reached by the Government on the matter, it is forecast that next year there will be another reduction of $5 in license fees and an increase in the gasoline impost from three to five cents a gallon.

Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways and Public Works, stated this morning that many changes have been considered were not based solely on revenue, but "it is matter of placing the burden where it belongs." It was only right, he said, that the motorist, who wanted the best roads possible all year round should pay more to maintain them.

He would also mean that the tourist would pay his share of the road maintenance given relief to those who were only able to use the roads six or seven months of the year.

MAPLE SYRUP IS ON THE MARKET

Largest Market Since Christmas—Eggs Drop Again in Price

"Sapo runnin'" and one can of maple syrup, thick and foamy, made its appearance this morning on the market but the price held up the same as $1.75 a gallon was considered rather high and by a quart 75 cents prohibitive. The farmers expect a reduction in the price of sap as the weather has been ideal for the sugar season. The price next week will probably be from $1 to $2.25 a gallon. Eggs of which hundreds of dozens were brought in dropped again selling at 30 cents a dozen, five cents down from last week. "We'd sell just as many at 35 cents the farmers stated but 30 was the price some one set so they will go at that. Butter kept its level of the past many weeks selling at 43 cents a pound and it is likely to remain at that price until the cattle get pasture to feed on.

Cream sold at 30 cents a pint and chickens at 30 cents, from everything from a dollar and seventy-five cents each. Ducks were not offered today.

While the inside market was crowded with a gathering as large as usually attends the Christmas and New Year market, owing to showing each other out of the way to price the produce, the outside market was very small and prices varied very little from last week. Apples sold at from $1 to $3 a bushel. Snows beautifully wrapped and perfumed sat 75 cents a peck. Potatoes brought $2 a bag and beets, carrots and parsnips 20 cents a peck, small turnips 25 cents a peck and onions 60 cents.

British Supremacy in Rubber Trade Passing To Holland

London, March 12.—British supremacy in the production of rubber, which has been coveted by Americans, is being slowly captured by the Dutch, according to figures announced here today.

Whereas, in 1921, the British produced 72 per cent. of the world's total rubber in 1926 this figure fell to 81 per cent.

Dutch production went up from 25.6 per cent. in 1921, to 34 per cent. in 1926 This year it is estimated that the Dutch will produce 37.2 per cent.

It is said that the Stevenson Act, which was passed in 1922 when rubber fell below 16 cents a pound to save the planters from ruin, is the cause of the decline of British prestige in the rubber industry and the increase of the Dutch.

It is declared that the act, which roused the wrath of Secretary Hoover, has not achieved the stabilization of rubber prices. While British planters have restricted their acreage under the terms of the act, the Dutch have increased theirs.

Although the price of rubber rose from the date of the passage of the act, it is now said that this is due more to the increased American demand than to the act.

THE OTTAWA SHOW

(From the "Ottawa Journal")

It is a great pity that all the people in Canada could not have been crowded into the galleries of the House of Commons between the hours of nine and eleven o'clock on Tuesday evening. If they could have been, an illuminating lesson would have been theirs on how Canada is governed.

* * *

Mr. Elliott, the Minister of Public Works, is putting through his estimates. The House is dozy; many seats are vacant; the Press Gallery deserted. Presently the chairman comes on, with Twelve Thousand dollars for a Post Office in Kensington. Kensington! Where and what is Kensington? Mr. Guthrie, sure, at least that it is not in North Wellington, wants to know. Mr. Elliott, the Minister, moves casually. Beside him the bulky, good-natured Mr. Sinclair (Minister without portfolio) whispers enlightenment. Ah yes, Mr. Elliott knows now. Kensington (Mr. Elliott's somewhat bleak Western Ontario voice takes on a purring suavity) is in Prince Edward Island. It is quite a place—it has 500 people.

Much talk follows. The Tories and the U.F.A. are for economy. In vain Mr. Elliott's heart simply bleeds for the good people at Kensington. Dr. King delivers a homily upon the desirability of fine public buildings for communities (a not quite subtle hit for the votes of Progressives); there is much cloak thumping; a division. Mr. King's chief whip, Mr. Peter Cashen, breaks a victory globe or two; the boys troop in to strike a blow for Kensington. The $12,000 is voted.

Mr. Gardiner, U.F.A. leader, is a Scotsman. He hates to see 12,00 good dollars go for a post office for a hamlet. He probably figures out that $12,000 expended on post offices for every 500 people in Canada would cost just $240,000,000. So he moves to reduce the vote to $6,000. But the Government is the Government; Kensington did nobly in the last election; it will not be deserted. Mr. Elliott renews his praise of Kensington; Mr. Dunning and Mr. Venier give him a hand; Mr. Gardiner is baffled.

Then a mirthful thing happens. In the supplementary estimates of last session were votes for various ridings. But some of those ridings, in voting in the last election, voted with perverse ability against the Government. So this year the items have been dropped. Mr. Ernest, who is a young Rhodes scholar ries to ask what has happened to a proposal to build a post office in Mahone Bay. Could it be that the Government had changed its mind about the postal requirements of Mahone Bay since Lunenburg, in which Mahone Bay is situated, has made up its mind about the full of Liberalism, Mr. William Duff?

* * *

Mr. Elliott is a bit fluttered. The matter, he says, is being considered But not. Ernest is insistent. Will the Government tell him that the supplementary estimates will contain provision for a post office at Mahone Bay? Mr. Elliott cannot say, definitely. But Mr. William Duff, who got into the House by the back door of Antigonish-Guysboro, can. From his place a little way down from Mr. Elliott he shouts a definite "no!"

Mr. Ernst, who, as we said, is a Rhodes scholar with certain conception of politics, is surprised. He rises to try to unravel the mystery. Does Mr. Mellen and Mr. Wright...

Duff speak for the Government? Mr. Duff is not modest. The people of Mahone Bay, he booms out, "stood more in awe than with the ear of the appointing power." Mr. Ernst's puzzlement grows. He cannot understand how Mr. Duff, who was rejected by Lunenburg, can speak for the constituency of Lunenburg. But Mr. Duff enlightens him: "I, he thunders once more, I control the patronage."

Mr. Gardiner, the U.F.A. leader, is shocked. He didn't

CHOOSING A HUSBAND BY SCHOOL RULES

By ELSIE MARLOWE

"I have had two years at college," says she, "and he has only had an eighth-grade education. . . . Will I be able to raise him to my level?"

What would YOU be willing to wager on the success of a marriage based on an attitude like that?

DEAR ELSIE:

I am very much in love and considering marriage but there is a grave obstacle.

I have had two years of college but at present lack of money keeps me from continuing my education. Nevertheless, I study at home because learning and literature specially, am part of my life and I always intend to keep interested. Now, this boy has no education above eighth grade and that from the University of Life. Since he has known me he reads good books and is willing to study, hard if I help him. But I have an idea that he will never quite reach my level. The question is this: Have I a chance at happiness with him? Will I be satisfied, as the years go on, with love and the finesse of character which he possesses, or will I lower myself to his interests, or will I be able to raise him to my level? People have told me that the man always determines the standards by which he and his wife live. Is this true?—

Perhaps I have not made myself clear—he is a fine young man with good habits and high ideals, is industrious and is liked by everyone. So the difficulty is merely in degree of education and, naturally, the interests that go with an eighth-grade education as compared with those of a college training. But this is a handicap to happiness everyone tells me and I can feel that it might be when I look into the future although it does seem that our love could make up for the difference. What do you think?

CONSTANCE.

Yes, my dear, there's a grave handicap to your happiness, but that handicap lies in you, not in the boy. It's YOUR ignorance, not his, which is apt to wreck your marriage.

"But I'm getting a college education," you cry.

No college can educate you, my dear. A college can set before you certain courses of study and can mark your rating in those courses of study. But it can't EDUCATE you. It can't make you wise or powerful or tender or subtle—it can't widen your interest or sweeten your disposition, or deepen your understanding. That you must do for yourself by dealing with life and people. And, if you have a sensitive heart and an eager mind you can get that REAL education just as well with an eighth-grade education as start as with a B. A. degree.

If your boy is living, fine, industrious, honorable, and willing to learn, he is already as well educated as you are. In fact, I suspect that he is already better educated than you are, has broader interests, for his interests are directed toward vital human problems and yours are, as yet, directed toward facts and theories, which have no earthly use save as they serve people.

So stop talking about "YOUR LEVEL" little sister, and begin to realize that there is only one level for all of us—the brotherhood level of common joy and common misery. Until you do realize that, life will be a sterile performance for you.—

Spring Recognizes Us Yearly—But How?

A "BOOKLAGE TOILETTE" for April is thus described in a fashion book of 1821: "The costume has a four-gored foundation skirt, shaped to give the back the closely clinging effect characteristic of modish gowns, overlaying by a diagonal chart of a fan of plaits at the back, and is planned at the bottom with a double fiance of lace edging. The shapely bodice is superbly adjusted by the usual number of darts and seams" and so on!

The costume of 1927 for street or sports resembles the earlier two-piece model in that they both have skirts. The jersey frock shown above features a slip-over blouse, which achieves the latest cardigan style with a button-trimmed band around the V neck and down the front.

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a married woman of twenty-four. I have been happily married for two years—except for one thing My husband is very jealous.

I do not give him cause for jealousy. We go around with a young married set. If I dance with anyone except him he is in a rage. Our good times together are always ruined by his jealousy. When we return home he is always sorry for apologizes.

I am not beautiful, but am of a jolly disposition and like a good time. He is fifteen years older than I. Do you think that might be the reason? I love him and would like to overcome this obstacle, as it is the only cloud in our otherwise perfect union.

G. H.

G. H.: Have a very frank talk with your husband. But do not choose a moment when his reasoning faculties are clouded by jealous emotions.

Some time when you are spending a quiet and happy evening at home bring up the matter quite casually. Tell him that you are happy with him, that it is somewhat unfortunate that there should be even the one cloud upon the horizon of your married life. Suggest that he rationalize and eliminate forever the little jealousies that have caused moments of unhappiness.

If he agrees to discuss the subject reasonably, point out that you want to be your friends to dance with them now and then, when a group of you are seeking amusement together. Tell him that he, too, must dance with the young women in your set. Explain that you cannot expect to be part of the group and make the electric uncomfortable by dancing only with each other.

Your husband must be made to realize that you can only find perfect happiness with each other when each has complete confidence in the other. If he does not doubt your love it is unreasonable and childish to indulge in jealousy because you dance occasionally with other partners.

Annie Laurie welcomes letters on problems of general or unusual interest from women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns Letters may be addressed to her in care of this newspaper.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER XIII.

THE BRUSH OF SABLE WINGS

The result of her encounter with Sanford left Christine both indignant and disillusioned.

She had actually believed that he was her friend, that he was sincerely interested in her play.

Now she realized that that interest was feigned. He had gauged her shrewdly and had decided that delicate measures were necessary in her case. One way, of course, to hamper her sheet her play, to make her believe that he would help her to get it produced.

She had the manuscript away with a bitter, twisted smile. Some day, perhaps, she would submit it directly to a producer, though she knew only too well how little consideration the first play of a young, unknown writer would receive; also, in the back of her mind lurked the memory of Sanford's words: "The play is rotten." Perhaps that was the truth.

She was too discouraged to try to write anything more, just then. Even Nina assigned the discomforts drops of her lips; the acrid cynicism that had crept into her tone.

"What's the matter, chicken?" she demanded. "Lost your boy friend? I haven't seen you around with him for quite a while."

Christine knew that Nina's name to mention her name to me again, please."

Nina shrugged and lifted eloquent brows, but pressed the story accurately, but all she said was:

"Oh well, play your game in your own way, but I'd hate to be as foolish as you are."

Christine declined Nina's Friday night invitations after that. She was afraid she might meet Sanford, and the mere thought made her boil with indignation.

She was at home every morning doing odd bits of advertising copy which brought in very welcome money, but mostly she played with her children, sitting on the well-worn hearth-rug like a little girl, building castles out of blocks marching toy soldiers, pretending to be a bear in a cave, or an Indian on the war-path.

In after years, she was thankful that she had had these evenings with her little son. Somehow, she could never remember Louise in the picture as she it was always Junior, laughing, prancing, flubbed of cheek and bright of eye, his bushy hair falling in the lamp-light. She came into the office one day from an interview that had taken her to a stage fan-wife's beautiful house on Long Island. In her typewriter was a note from the telephone operator:

"Your nurse-maid has telephoned several times. She says it's very important for you to come home at once."

White-faced, Christine went to her chief.

"Surely, go at once, Mrs. Blanton. I hope nothing is wrong at home."

Christine scarcely heard him; in fact, she was already down the stairs. She hailed a cab and said: "Hurry." The nurse-maid met her at the head of the stairs.

"It's Junior, Mrs. Blanton!" she gasped. "He fainted, and I can't bring him to. He was playing on the swing and fell. Then all of a sudden, the queerest look came over his face, and he just fell over."

Christine brushed by her.

"Have you called a doctor?"

"I tried three, but Mrs. Blanton," wailed the girl, "said they were all out. I don't know any others to call."

Christine flung herself beside the cot where her son lay. He was white and limp, but her frantic hand assured her that his pulse fluttered feebly still.

She didn't even notice little Louise, sitting quietly in a corner, distress written on her face and the tears flowing.

Christine never remembered very clearly afterward how she dashed out of the house and ran up Fifth Avenue searching for a physician's sign. People turned to stare at the desperate, white-faced woman who seemed not to see the traffic through which she dived recklessly.

A professional-looking man with a black bag was just stepping into his car in front of a house near Eighth Street. Christine clutched his arm.

"You're a doctor? Come quickly. My little son is very ill."

"But, Madame—" he protested.

"Come!" she begged, and, after a look at her, he motioned her into his car and stepped in after her. She gave the address and sat forward in the seat, her hands clenched in her lap during the brief drive to her apartment.

She scarcely dared breath while he made an examination of the limp little figure on the cot in the sunny alcove. Somehow the sunlight was all that registered in her brain at that moment. She had a queer resentment against it.

Her mother instinct sensed the doctor's verdict, even before he straightened up and began to speak.

"No! No!" she cried.

He said gently: "Your child will be better in a little while. I have given him a stimulant, but you must not hope for too much. I am afraid he will never be well again."

He went out, leaving Christine sobbing at the foot of the couch, her arms flung across her little son, as if to ward off the Angel of Death.

JOHN ST. CHOIR IN A BRILLIANT MUSICAL EVENT

Artistically Varied Program Delighted a Large Audience

Surpassing any previous record they have made, the Choir of John Street United Church added new laurels to their enviable reputation in the delightful concert given in the Church last evening under the supervision of Mr. Leo B. Riggs, organist and director. The large audience was a distinguished one, embracing the music lovers of the city who thoroughly appreciated the artistic value.

Opening with a chorus, "Hast Thou Not Known" by Pfeugar, the program continued with varied numbers, the most delightfully rendered. Mr. Leo B. Riggs who on every appearance in the city plays with increasing effectiveness, played the "Overture from William Tell" magnificently. This was followed by a solo, "The Best Things of Life are Free" by Mr. A. F. Stillman, sung with very fine effect. The Male Quartette, Messrs. Heffner, Stillman, Thomson and Moorman, sustained their well-established reputation for unchallenged excellence in "In Blackmantle's Lay." The musical programme was then delightfully varied by a selection, "How an Englishman Gave an Address on Robert Burns" by Miss Jessie Tutte, who with her gift for dramatizing words, was enabled to reject a filmmaking reality and every word and thought underlying was clearly intelligible.

Mr. Leo B. Riggs' piano solo, "Rustic Rhapsody" was rendered with dazzling dexterity and inherent grace. Dr. A. B. Haffner in a solo, "There is No Death" sang with commanding distinction.

The Ladies' Quartette, Mrs. G. H. Hobbs, Mrs. Leo Riggs, Mrs. Olen McKinnon and Mrs. Morley Duff, was exceptionally meritorious and their voices, each of range and power, blended in exquisite harmony. A duet, "Excelsior" by Mr. J. Arnold Thomson and Mr. J. D. Bankier, carried the audience with the splendid ardent "John Pelvery", finely sung by the Male Quartette followed, and another delightful solo by Mr. W. D. Hinds, an MacLaren's reading, "Through the Flood", by Miss Tutte was a splendidly subscribed selection.

Mr. B. H. Moorman and the other members of the Quartette sang "Old Black Joe" with convincing dramatic effect, the voices of the male being particularly well suited to the well-known number and this was followed by a solo "Land of Our Alit" by Mr. Bankier which was exceptionally fine, emphasizing the soloist's clear-cut articulation, every word being intelligible.

"Steal Away," a negro spiritual by the Male Quartette given before the intermission number, "Sweet Spirit Wave" by the Chorus, was one of the finest selections the Quartette has presented in Belleville and worthy of the appreciation with which it was received. The programme was characterized by individuality and masterly and imaginative insight thoroughly.

BRIDGE ST. CLUB HEAR SECRETARY OF MEN'S WORK

Jolly Time Spent Last Evening in Church Club Rooms

Last evening a supper meeting was held by the Men's Club of Bridge Street United Church in their Sunday School rooms. A supper was served starting at six-thirty after which Mr. McLean of Toronto, secretary of Men's Work for the Province of Ontario gave a brief address outlining the plans and objects of mens organizations.

Over fifty sat down to supper served by members of the club, during which community singing played a prominent part, led by Harold Holton and ably assisted at the piano by "Rus" Wotten. Russ is sure some "nicker of the ivories." Nobody knows where he learned the art but he certainly has reached the heights in that direction. Mr. Bonrowes led in the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers" Bridge Street certainly could have a wonderful choir.

After the toast to the King, Mr. Clare, president of the club spoke to the meeting, outlining the aims and objects of the club. "The club has just been organized and we need the cooperation of every member," he stated. Meetings are held every Sunday afternoon and at such times as other work pertaining to the church is brought up. "The objects of the club," said Mr. Clare, "are to study the Bible and to get the people of Bridge Street Church and vicinity acquainted. He then introduced the Speaker of the evening, Mr. MacLean.

"The present quality, I believe, in the world, today is salesmanship". This was the opening statement of Mr. Mac Lean. He went on to point out that the minister must sell the gospel to the people but he is not being paid for it. "Every person must put their services to have to deal with," said the speaker. "First, the man who is not doing anything is a definite way to benefit the work of the church; second, the father of a child or children; third, the young fellow." He pointed out that only ten per cent of the youth are lost from the church at the critical age when they should be being developed to carry on the work of the church. "We have to sell service to these classes," said Mr. MacLean.

Mr. MacLean then outlined the program as drawn up for men's organizations. "There should be a daily study period, preferably Sunday afternoons. Then the biggest task is to get the men in the church. Once you get him there, it is not so hard to interest him, but we will have to get him there and that is one of the greatest mens organizations of this kind." He then told of a case in Toronto where a man had a child fourteen years of age and was living near five churches. When asked if his son went to Sunday school replied yes and when asked where said," We will tell you the truth I don't really know. "This is what we have to over come," said the speaker. "Then there is the assistant to be looked after. This has been a serious work for years

MARKET SPOTLIGHT — MOWAT M&M MacGILLIVRAY — MINING STOCKS

Good results have been met with by Pioneer Mining Corporation on its claims in the Clearwater Lake section to the east of Woman Lake. An outcrop on the surface after systematic sampling showed average values of $10 in gold for a length of 28 feet and over a width of 36 feet: The conditions are stated to be most promising and further work will be done in order to obtain full information on the deposits.

Pioneer is also meeting good results on its Copse property, where a tunnel is being run into the hillside has tapped a vein showing lead and zinc ore. While no assays have as yet been received, the find is regarded as promising and of great importance.

It is understood that plans for the building of a mill at the Hislo property in Michipicoten are proceeding.

CONIAGRUM

Further discoveries of an important nature have been made within the past week on the property of the CONIAGRUM Mine east of the McIntyre. One of these occured when drifting on the 1,250-foot level, where a zone of very high-grade ore was encountered with extraordinary values across a width of three or four feet. This discovery is an entirely new one and is believed to be indicative of downward extension with increasing values and widths of No. 2 vein in which some good values were found at the 1000-foot level.

TROUBLE LOOMS WITHIN SHANGHAI

Attempt Made to Force an Entrance to British Concession

Shanghai, March 12.—Five hundred armed Chinese attempted to enter the International settlement in Shanghai today but were kept out by a detachment of Durham Light Infantry. It is understood this morning that one hundred Shantungese had received permission to pass through the Settlement, but on previous that they first be disarmed.

Later two English guards on the bridge leading to the Settlement saw a large body of troops approaching. The guards refused passage to the Chinese and in response to requests for reinforcements, two hundred men of the Durham Light Infantry, equipped ready for action.

The Shantungese apparently realising the futility of attempting to force a passage retired. Guards at the entrance to the settlement were doubled this afternoon.

Hong Kong, March 12.—Immediately police removed anti-British posters from the British piers, steamer "Pinchan" today, the Canton Government announced.

TWO OF ESCAPED

Chief Inspector, John Hamilton, was wounded.

Staff Investigation

The Mexican authorities have machine gun nest, Ring-lade wall discovered in an alley attempting to enter a garage, and when they refused police squad, Norris, found in a car with two Mexican children, attempted to flee when policemen started to question him, but subdued by capture after several shots had been fired at him.

An investigation of the jail break was started today by the State Attorney's office after one of the subdued convicts asserted in his cell that "took $1500 to put the job."

The prisoner declined to discuss in detail his escape and statements obtained from his two fellow conspirators were incoherent.

BELLE THEATRE

The plunge from thrills and comedy to sheer drama—the sort that makes one hold one's breath—is the cinematic combination which makes the screen of the most jaded or best ed screen audience tingle.

That is why there is a breathless thrill for film fans who are "likely business," Vera Reynold's latest starring vehicle which will be on view at the Belle Theatre Monday. The clever work of Beulah Marie Dix, who adapted the film story from Charles Brackett's Saturday Evening Post serial, "Pearls Before Cecily," and Alan Hale, who directed the film, created many thrills and much comedy throughout, but at the climax of the story there's a punch that's a masterpiece of the thriller-maker's art.

When pampered, luxury-living Cecily comes face to face with the realities of life in a house she's stumbled into as a "real home" in the darkness—when she battles shoulder to shoulder for the life of a child with her doctor-sweetheart and after she's broken her engagement with him—there's real drama!

MIX-UP IN PLAY FOR ALLAN CUP

Ottawa "Burghs" Awarded Game and Series as Result of Blunder

Toronto, Ont., March 12.—In the two games played in the Allan Cup elimination series last night, Varsity Grads, O.H.A. Champions, defeated St. Francois Xaviers here, 7 to 1, and, as the teams were tied in the first game played at Montreal, the Grads win the series, 2 to 1. In the game, Ottawa New Edinburghs blanked University of Toronto, Intercollegiate Champions, 6 to 0, and tied the series, U. of T. having won the first game played at Toronto, 3 to 1.

All is serene in the Grads camp, and they are marching time while the officials straighten out the tangle that developed when the Burghs tied the round with Varsity.

Burghs Fight Hard

The game which was played at Ottawa, saw the capital visitors skate back to the wall, display courageous hockey. The Burghs reduced Varsity's margin to one when Bitti scored in the opening session. The round was tied when H. O'Neil netted the rubber in the "I" cage in the middle session. The third period was scoreless and in the interim telegram was received at the rink bearing the news of Prendergast's rejection of the O.A.H.A. ordering a sudden death game to be played at Kingston. The Burghs stood pat with the rule book however, which cites that thirty minutes of extra play will be contested to break a tie and they skated out on the ice to set the rubber. Varsity, however, shed their hockey togs and departed, leaving the round tied at two all.

Latest information todfly advises that Ottawa have been awarded the round by President Basinveau. In case the Burghs will now meet Varsity Grads in the Eastern Canada final.

Byron which insisted on traveling the road to ruin, was subject for a mawot by the Rapidd staff of the Imperial airways.

Dorsey who tested Ed. F. Searles described him as a recluse and a pensious man in spite of his twenty millions. His secretary is John Smith.

He was attended by Dr. Cartwright of Pickering, who removed the boy to the hospital. Highway Officer Reid investigated the circumstances surrounding the accident and exonerated the driver from all blame.

HOCKEY LEAGUE WIND UP SEASON WITH BANQUET

Industrial and City League Teams Met With Y's Men Last Eve.

One of the most successful hockey seasons ever enjoyed in the City was brought to a fitting close with a big banquet at the "Y" when the players of the City and Industrial League were the guests of the Y's Men's Club with the City League honors. The supper was enjoyed with "pep" from the start and the Y's Men's Club carried on with regular program and lavish fare as the various members for instructions of the Club, from "Army" Armstrong, Hockey President and Chairman of the Y's Men's Club had charge and kept the evening in the best of humor with his witty and timely remarks.

Following the luncheon the assemblage listened to a number of short speeches by the local referees, officials and managers of Senes, League Pres. of the City League, who pointed out the necessity of getting down to business in the season and suggested that the organization and plans be completed in the early part of December so that the League might get away immediately with the advent of the ice.

Basil Dingeldey, Vice-Pres. of the League and Manager of the Bell Telephone team, spoke of the splendid sportsmanship and good team shown by all of the League games.

Sam Levy, Secretary of the League, spoke briefly, stating that the League which we have been a success but, for the co-operation given the League officers by the team managers. He stressed the point of making a perfect next season which would eliminate the penalties of teams throwing up the sponge after losing two or three games.

Everett Phillips Peet, of the Industrial League thanked the Y's Men's Club for the excellent supper and said he hoped the two Leagues would join in a strong group for next winter.

Jack Boyle, representing the Cities told of the success attained in the Industrial League this promising clean sport.

Claude Mitchell of the Dutchess expressed the belief that his team would top the League first spot, with the experience gained during the past season.

Address Lloyd of the O.N.B., and Ken Deshane of the Dunfees and the League had brought out the fact that there is plenty of material for the O.H.L. A teams in the City.

Mr. Smith of the City Battery said he regretted the fact that his team champions of the Industrial were forced to cancel the game with the Y's Men's owing to pending weather conditions.

Car. Anderson of the Atlantic said at least the east-siders had the satisfaction of winning from the League champions.

Vernon Welch of the Y's Men said he was elated that the club in their first hockey had won the honors. He said it was a great privilege for the Club to be able to entertain the hockey teams.

Clarence Bryant, secretary of the Industrial spoke of the difficulties encountered in forming a League but was sorry that next season Fairmount would be even better than the one just past.

"Sid" Anderson acted as master-of-ceremonies and some good talk followed in that line.

Following the banquet the Y's Men held a short business meeting in plan for a circus that will be staged in the "Y" building in April. The general public are invited to keep an eye open for future announcements of this event.

George Pauley secretary thanked the various committees and outlined the duties of each.

CHAMPIONSHIP OF HIGH WON BY UPPER SCHOOL

Fifth Form Defeats Third Form in Debate Last Night

Form V. B. with a team composed of Mr. Leslie Pearsall and Miss D. Robinson won the debating championship of the High School by a narrow margin from form III. B., the team from this form comprising Mr. Clarke Kinnear and Miss E. Stevens. The subject chosen was "Resolved that a Constitutional Monarchy is a better form of Gov't than a Republic".

The debate was closely contested throughout and it was a toss-up at the end who had won.

The winners of the championship will be presented with a shield, presented by Miss Young, at the next meeting in the Literary Club.

OTHER FEATURES

Other features of the evening were, an amusing little comedy presented by Form IV. A. popular pieces rendered by Gardiner Dale, a recitation by Miss Mildred Lloyd and music furnished by the High School orchestra.

The cast of characters in the play presented by Form I. F. include—

Donald Dunsen, Clive Ryan, Sewart Aimes, Thelma Lavender, Mary Boyle, Florence Kelly, Mary Grimer, O. Davies and Doris Empston.

THE DEBATE

Mr. Pearsall compared the constitutions of the various republics and constitutional monarchies. He spoke in detail with those of two countries, Great Britain and the United States. Miss Robinson in support of Mr. Pearsall upheld the theoretical point of view, which she handled most capably and in a very convincing and pleasing manner.

Mr. Clarke Kinnear, in opening, rejected some of his opponents points. In the course of his speech he outlined a brief history of the great countries of the world, in the last two or three centuries. He told how they (Germany, United States and France) have not adopted the government of a constitutional monarchy by that of a Republic. France broke from a monarchy after her revolution. The French people experimented with several different kinds of government and finally adopted that of a republic. "France" the speaker said is prospering under a Republic today, while under the others she was grovelling in despair."

The speaker pointed out that if these great countries have adopted the government of a republic it must be certainly the better form of government. "Does not Republicanism seem like the logical triumph of centuries of constant experiments—not in a material sense but in the vast toll of lives resulting from repeated civil wars?

The speaker admitted that the British Constitutional Monarchy was the only form of government practicable but in doing so told why the rule was the only exception to the rule his opponents were upholding.

In closing the speaker pointed out the class distinction in England, how one can gain any politically higher than an other. In the United States every man has equal rights and has a chance to become President while in England the Kingship is in the hands of one family.

Miss Stevens supported Mr. Kinnear admirably in this debate.

Jesus said, "If I go away I will come again." The disciples asked Him, "What shall be the sign of Thy presence and the end of the world." Jesus answered, "Nations shall rise against nation. Is not the evidence clear that we are living in the second presence of our Lord and King? With Christ's Kingdom soon be established on this world? These are questions of vital interest to all. A COGENT REASON

Asked how he liked the new Scotch minister the old bedder replied, "He's a guid, nane, but I prefer Mr. Mitchell." "Do you then think Mr. Mitchell was a better preacher?" "Naw, we've a good preacher now, but if ye mean ken the reason, Mr. Mitchell's old clothes fitted me best."

When candles burn low and the room's getting dim,
Brown on a girl dress,
In the silence of night as I sit here alone—
I sit alone, but we yet are a pair;
My Fanny I see in my cane-bottomed chair.

She comes from the past and revisits my room;
She looks as she then did, all beauty and bloom;
So smiling and tender, so fresh and so young;
And yonder she sits in my cane-bottomed chair.

Poems Old And New

"MY CANE-BOTTOMED CHAIR"

William Mackworth Thackeray is now usually counted among the poets, but he was so versatile that he could write a novel or a poem and illustrate his own books with clever drawings. The following is a good example of his serious verse.

Of all the old treasures that garnish my nest,
There's one that I love and I cherish the best;
For the finest of couches that's padded with hair
I never would change thee, my cane-bottomed chair.

'Tis a handy-legged, high-backlered, worm-eaten seat,
With a creaking old back and twisted old feet;
Since the late-morning when Fanny sat there,
I hope you and love thee, my cane-bottomed chair.

It was but a moment she sat in this place;
She'd a swell on her neck and a smile on her face;
A smile on her face, and a rose in her hair,
As she sat there and laboured in my cane-bottomed chair.

Brown on a girl dress,
In the silence of night as I sit here alone—
I sit alone, but we yet are a pair;
My Fanny I see in my cane-bottomed chair.

WE AND THEY

Father, Mother and Me
Sister and Auntie, say
All the people like us are We
And every one else is They.
And They live over the sea
While We live over the way,
But—would you believe it?—They look upon We
As only a sort of They!

We eat pork and beef
With cow-horn-handled knives.
They who gobble their rice off a leaf,
Are therefore quite out of Their lives;
And They who live up a tree,
And feast on grubs and clay,
(And it sometimes!) look upon We
As a simply disgusting They!

We shoot birds' with a gun,
They slink lions with spears.
Their full-dress is un—
We dress up in Our ears.
They like Their friends for tea.
We like Our friends to stay;
And, after all that, They look upon We
As an utterly ignorant They!

We eat kitchen food.
We have dooms that latch.
They drink milk or blood,
Under a open thatch.
We have Doctors to fee.
They have Wizards to pay,
And decadent brutherli They look upon We
As a quite impossible They!

All good people agree,
And all good people say,
All nice people like Us are We
And every one else is They;
But if you cross over the sea,
Instead of over the way,
You may end by (think of it!) looking on We
As only a sort of They!

2 Onions, cut fine
1 pt. sliced raw potatoes.
Pour pork and fat after frying in a sauce pan, add onions and liquor from clams, also 1-2 pts. boiling water. Boil 10 min., and then add potatoes, cook until potatoes are done. Add clams, pepper and salt to taste, two soda biscuits broken up small, and about 1 cup rich milk. Serve with soda biscuit. (Do not cook after clams are put in).

POPOVERS

Sift 1 cup flour with salt and 1 tsp. powdered sugar. Add gradually 2-3 cup milk while beating briskly, add 1-2 tsps. melted butter and 2 eggs, beaten until thick and lemon-colored. Beat one minute 5 minutes using a Dover egg-beater Batter must be smooth and full of bubbles. Fill heated well-greased iron gem pans 2-3 full and bake in hot oven. Serve at once with hard sauce, for liquid sauce if preferred.

When cooking a meal have a bowl of cold water quite handy, and as cups and basins, spoons, etc., are used and finished with, put them into the bowl of water, give them a rinse and leave them to drain, and by the time the meal is over they may be placed out of the way.

Scrubbing brushes should be rinsed thoroughly after use, slicked well up and rid of as much moisture as possible, and turned on their tops to dry. Bread and all sweeping brushes should be hung up when not in use. If left standing on the bristles they are bent, and will not do their work properly.

When frying onions always put a saucepan lid over the top of the frying pan to keep in the steam and flavor. While you unlace the onions cook more quickly.

Save the broken handles. They will come in handy for mending heavy furniture and trunks. Two handles set as rollers.

Use alcohol on the window-sill in stormy weather, when cleaning it.

Pack silverware in flour when packing it away for any length of time.

An iron sink won't rust if wiped dry once a day, no matter if water is poured on it the next minute.

If the windows are inclined to stick open them and rub laundry soap along where they work and see if that will not remedy the difficulty.

It is quite easy to measure syrup if the measure is dipped in boiling water or rubbed with flour.

JUST IN PASSING

VICTORY IN DEFEAT

Defeat may serve as well as victory,
To shake the soul and let the glory out.
When the great oak is straining in the wind,
The boughs drink in new beauty and the trunk
Sends down a deeper root to the windward side.
Only the soul that knows the mighty grief
Can know the mighty rapture. Sorrow comes
To stretch out spaces in the heart for joy.

—Edwin Markham.

PERILS OF ANGER

Both anger and grief have a mental basis and medical authorities assert that indulgence in both produce marked ill-effects on the body. Sir James Paget the late famous English surgeon considered that protracted grief and anxiety were the cause of cancer in certain cases of the body. Further investigation into this subject tend to prove the truth of their assumption. Anger, which, like grief, is a mental state is known to provoke indigestion, headaches and neuralgia. So that it ought to be shunned by all right thinking people.

FOUNDER OF STORY

Harry Lauder is telling a story about a man who was sitting in one of the cars at a recent funeral. The mourners couldn't place him and began to ask questions to find out who he was.

"Are you a cousin of Jock's?" one asked. The man shook his head. "You'll be a friend, then?" "No," replied the man, "it's my wife. I haven't been well, and my doctor told me to go for a motor run to get fresh air, so I thought this would be the cheapest way to do it."

A CHOICE SCOTS STORY

Harry Lauder, telling a story about a man who was sitting in one of the cars at a recent funeral. The mourners couldn't place him and began to ask questions to find out who he was.

"Are you a cousin of Jock's?" one asked. The man shook his head. "You'll be a friend, then?" "No," replied the man, "it's my wife. I haven't been well, and my doctor told me to go for a motor run to get fresh air, so I thought this would be the cheapest way to do it."

"No," she said, half fearfully, half defiantly. "No, I don't."

"Not" said Travers, with an incredulous smile. "Then it was to the gentleman who was with you?"

"I don't know what you mean," she said fiercely, her bosom heaving. "Stay, now, what right have you to stop me—to speak to me?"

A light flashed into Travers' eyes, and his lips drew together. The tone of the girl's voice, the little deuce, the form of speech, were like Strathyre's. With an instantaneous action of the mind that lightning like flash of insight Travers remembered Rafe's mention of a certain girl at Jumping Jane—a girl named Peggy Dane. Could it be possible that this girl should be she?

THE SCREEN KISS

"The leading men are in rigid training in Hollywood, and it is said that kissing has its place in the curriculum of the biggest movie schools out there," writes Miss Greta May, in the "Royal Magazine."

"Partners catch their leading men story."

The Irony of Love
By Charles Carvice

"I don't think any one of them was so beautiful as Lady Maude," said Travers casually.

"That's so," responded Rafe, waking up this time. "Do you know, Travers, I'll bet you are enjoying you when you were dancing with her. Say, now, do you think I could learn the pleasing thing; or do you think you have to be taken when you're young?"

"Oh, you can learn quickly enough," said Travers with a laugh. "But a girl at many men dont dance nowadays."

"Yes, I saw quite a crowd of fellows looking on at the balls," said Rafe, "but years to me that you enjoy yourself much better if you're taking a hand in the dance."

By this time they had reached the corner of Belgrave Square.

"You're coming in for a drink and a smoke?" said Rafe.

"No, thank you; it is late. I'll just be as far as the door with you," replied Travers. "It's pleasant walking after the heat of the ballroom."

"If it is," assented Rafe.

They were within a hundred yards of the house when Travers saw the figure of a girl walking slowly by the railings of the square, on the opposite side of the road. Her back was turned toward them, but the figure seemed somehow familiar to Travers, and he watched her thoughtfully. At the corner of the square she turned and he saw that her eyes were fixed on Clarendon House. Presently they wandered from the house to the two men. She stopped suddenly, and, turning, walked in the opposite direction.

Rafe went up the steps and rang the bell. He had not noticed the girl, and with a nod and a good night, he entered the house. Travers turned quickly and walked rapidly round the square and, as he had expected, he met the girl face to face.

At sight of him, she stopped again, hesitated for a moment, and then, with her head averted, walked on quickly. Travers swung round on his heel, caught her up and, raising his hat, smiled resignedly.

"You want to speak to me?"

She stopped, shrank a little, and then looked up at him, but her face flushed, her eyes fell again.

The light of a street lamp was full upon her, and Travers scanned the face keenly. There was a note of strangeness in it; it was not the face of a Londoner, certainly not that of an ordinary waif of the streets. It was the note of strangeness which puzzled him.

"You wanted to speak to me, I thought," he repeated pleasantly; and Travers' voice could be very soft and pleasant when he chose.

Through having missed the advantage of such tuition, by the way, some of the older men in the studios are so bashful that only hardened heroines can manage to extract even a two-foot kiss from them.

"Kissing is the hardest, the most nerve-racking job any film actor can be called upon to perform, and even the new get-rich-quick Latin lovers look blue when it accurately bristles with kissing. It is a fact. On the screen a kiss looks at least normally romantic if the players know what it is; but in the average wage-earner believe that a film actor's life must be a pretty soft one. Actually, however, in the studio, it's about as thrilling as an interview with an income-tax inspector.

AEROPLANES MUCH SAFER THAN THE SPEED KILLING MOTORCYCLE

Montreal, March 10.—(C.P.)—The pilots of aeroplanes in civil service duty are responsible for but a small percentage of the dramatically horrible crashes which are usually attributed to the aeroplane, declared Capt. Courtney Shore, in addressing the Canadian Club here today. Capt. Courtney is a veteran pilot of the Royal Air Force, and has been in charge of the Canadian Government Air Service since its inception.

"Motorcycle accidents are responsible for a far greater number of deaths than aeroplane accidents," he declared. "Motorcycle accidents are usually fatal, while aeroplane accidents are not. Many crashes are still worth anything. Many a minor crash has killed the pilot from concussion for want of strapping himself in his seat. Especially during the war very humorous crashes used to take place, particularly on the flying schools. One day a Russian cadet was seen to dive straight into the ground from about two hundred feet. We walked slowly up to the mass of wreckage, when a dark blue uniform emerged, fished a book from its pockets, took a photograph of the wreck, muttered something about "It was God's Will," and walked off to get a drink. In another crash on Salisbury Plain, the ambulance party came across a dejected young officer poking away in the wreckage to try to find his monocle.

"One of the funniest crashes I ever saw was a case in which a pupil accidentally stopped the engine on the ground a long way from the sheds," Capt. Courtney continued. "Being afraid of getting bawled out by the instructor for taxiing over the ground with the engine stopped, he attempted to start the engine by swinging the propeller himself. Unfortunately he left the throttle fully open. The engine, of course started at full power, and before the pupil could rush to the pilot's seat, the machine had started to run along the ground. In an attempt to stop it, he seized the tip of the wing, with the result that the machine level-turned it over sideways circling going faster with the poor man helpless helplessly on the wing-tip. The machine finally dissolved itself in a mass of wreckage, from the middle of which ear-splitting shrieks were issuing. We finally extracted a terribly frightened and perfectly unhurt pilot."

EMIGRATION TO CANADA

London, March 11.—Answering questions in the House of Commons today, Hon. W. G. Ormsby-Gore, Under-Secretary for the Dominions, stated that emigrants to Canada from Great Britain in 1926 totalled 38,151. Migrants from foreign countries other than the United States, he said, totalled 66,221. Migrants assisted under the Empire Settlement Act, on the lowest rate numbered 19,019, and on higher rates totalled 2,505.

REFINEMENTS ON STAR CARS

Essential Features Maintained With Pleasing 1927 Additions

A number of refinements are noted in the new models of the Star Cars although the principle features which account for Star Car popularity and an increase of some 30 per cent. in sal s during 1926 are retained.

These feature include the Red Seal Continental "L"-head motor, the Morse Silent Chain Drive, full floor feed lubrication, Thermostatic control of the cooling system—now, on four as well as nine—locomotive type brakes, solid riveted chassis frame and the universal accessibility of all parts which is of such importance in the cutting down of maintenance costs.

The New Star Six for 1927 have remote control door locks and it is noted that the ignition and spark controls are on top of the steering wheel instead of underneath as heretofore.

NEW STEERING WHEEL

The steering wheel itself is all metal of black walnut, doing away with the aluminum spider and adding a new "quality" touch that is very pleasing. The steering assembly embraces what is known as the "fore and aft" principle—(i.e.) the connecting between the axle and steering gear runs parallel to the frame instead of across.

However important these changes may be, a very charming refinement is found with respect to the instrument board. This is possibly the first item to be noticed on entering the New Star Six model. The completely oil gauge and ammeter are fasted in a cluster and are illuminated by indirect lighting.

WALNUT FINISH

The instrument board is all in walnut finish, in harmony with the general woodwork around all doors and windows. All this ensures a very pretty effect and gives further ground for the claim that the New Star Car is the "aristocrat" of the low-price field.

Although previous models bear the earmark of quality, it is evident that no pains have been spared to make the new models just a little more distinguished, as to quality, than were their predecessors.

A new type of horn, and a combination tail and stop light, are added refinements for 1927.

LONDON NOW HAS A SKYLINE, TOO

London, March 8.—London has been spreading outwardly for hundreds of years and now many sections are beginning to extend their growth upward—old landmarks are being destroyed here and there and what are referred to as skyscrapers are going up in their stead. Any new building here, whether for modern flats or offices, of from six to twelve stories, is called a skyscraper in the press, though the term is not used generally.

The fact that the old city is rapidly losing its individuality attracts more attention than any of the new structures. Strides in building are looked upon as hard-learned money making schemes which are steadily crowding out much of the ancient romance of the historic city and burying many of its oldest traditions. Some of the foundations of these traditions have remained undisturbed since the great fire of 1666, which left the city in ruins and stimulated the citizens to start all over again despite Queen Elizabeth's determination that no town was becoming too large for any earthly good.

The fire came 61 years after Elizabeth's death when the city had a population about the same as that today of Winnipeg, and it has been growing in leaps and bounds ever since. The population of Greater London now is Regent street, between Piccadilly Circus, has been worked over almost entirely, within the last few years, much to the regret of many old fashioned Londoners some of whom feel the change so keenly that they keep clear of the thoroughfare altogether. Oxford street, too, is also undergoing many improvements with "skyscrapers" going up at various points in the midst of the shopping district.

When March Winds Blow—

When uncertain, stormy weather makes the going difficult—then the man who drives a car can best realize the advantages of Firestone Gum-Dipped Balloons—their safety and comfort.

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, with the scientifically designed tread composed of many small crosses and squares, permitting the tread to yield to depressions and cling to the road, give great non-skid surface. This tough, pliable tread has the wear-resisting qualities that give thousands of extra miles of service.

The tread however, is not the only important feature of Firestone tires. The Gum-Dipping process—every fibre of every cord impregnated and saturated with rubber, reduces internal friction, makes the thin side walls stronger and more flexible, builds greater endurance in the cords and delivers more mileage with extra comfort and safety.

If you want the economy, comfort and safety of Gum-Dipped Tires—see the nearest Firestone Dealer. He will gladly explain the many features that make Firestone Tires better.

MEDICINE MAN HAS GONE TO HIS LAST REWARD

Chilcotin Reserve, B. C., May 11.—(B. C. P.)—"Old Mack," aged more than one hundred years old, and reputed to be one of the greatest of all Indian medicine men in British Columbia passed on to the "happy hunting grounds" here yesterday.

For more than twenty years "Old Mack" had been blind and members of his tribe hint that his blindness was caused by another Indian doctor who in anger struck him with a "bad spirit" between the eyes; but although the eye lost their power his mental vision was so well developed that he was not seriously inconvenienced.

All his life, even in the coldest winter months, "Old Mack" bathed daily in the glacial waters of the Harrison river or in any other river or lake where he happened to be. He was a prominent hunter in his youth and in his later years often served as a guide to big game expeditions.

DEFINITE STEP FORWARD IN THE WOMEN'S VOTE

Taschereau to Act as Interpreter For French Women

Montreal, Mar. 4.—A definite advance in the cause of securing the women of Quebec the vote in provincial elections is thought to have been made as a result of the last interview between representatives of women's organizations and Premier L. A. Taschereau, recently.

After the addresses to him Premier Taschereau speaking in French, said: "The subject on which you have addressed me is not new. Lot of ink has flowed and many speeches have been made over it. It is occurring all considered, women are granted it and some have refused. You have spoken for the women of Quebec, indicating the ways in which you would show your gratitude to the Liberal party. Ladies, I say that should be the last argument to be offered. The question should be above party. Frankly, to those who secure me Liberal support, I say it does not impress me. There should be better reasons than this for the women's vote."

Premier Taschereau went on to say that he was not one of those who believes women not sufficiently intelligent to exercise the franchise, or that they are not well informed upon questions of the day as men. But there are many opinions on the suffrage question, he said, declaring that there have been petitions received at Quebec against granting the vote, adding the question a difficult one to decide. Some believe that giving women the vote will not change election results, others affirm that it might result in disrupting the home. Another opinion declared that the women's vote in Montreal might make elections in this city unrepresentative of the wishes of the residents, as much of its female population was fluctuating. The premier concluded by promising to act as "interpreter" for the ladies when the suffrage bill came forward, pedis n

THE SONG OF THE HUSTLER.
(G. K.'s Weekly.)

The American's hustler he says so
And surely the Americans must know:
He will prove to you with figures why it pays so,
Beginning with his boyhood long ago.
When the slow-eating anecdote is ripest
He'll dictate it like a Board of Trade report;
And because he has no time to call a typist
He calls her a stenographer for short.

He is never known to loiter or malinger;
He rushes, for he knows he has "a date,"
He is always on the spot and full of ginger
Which is why he is invariably late.
When he guesses that it's getting even later
His vocabulary's vehement and swift,
And he yells for what he calls the Elevator.
A slang abbreviation for a lift.

Then nothing can be nattier or nicer
For those who like a light and rapid style,
Than to trifle with a book by Mr. Breuer
As it comes along in wagons by the mile
He has taught me what a swift active tive art meant
By description of his dinners and all that,
And his dwelling, which he says is an Apartment,
Because he cannot stop to say a flat.

We may whisper of his wild precipitation
That its speed is rather longer than a span,
But there really is a definite occasion
When he does not use the longest word he can.
When he substitutes, I freely make admission,
One shorter and much easier to spell,
If you ask him what he thinks of Prohibition
He may tell you quite succinctly it is Hell.

Remarkable Skating Feat

This stunt was not on at the Banff Springs Hotel Rink during the recent Winter Carnival, but their good enclosure must. It is pretty hard to say whether the spectators enjoyed the spectacle more than the actual performers of it, but certainly the former had the most fun out of it, since it was surely easy to look at. The Banff Carnival was a great success this year and is now a fixture for good. With the opening of the new wing of the Hotel and the inauguration of a winter season hardly less popular than the summer one, there can be no doubt but that Banff will be the Queen of the Western amusement resorts in the near future.

LADY BARBERS TO HAVE SAME RIGHTS AS MEN

Victoria, B. C. —By C. P.) — Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, British Columbia's lone woman member of the legislature, has introduced a bill giving privileges to lady barbers similar to those already enjoyed by male barbers, who since their own little law was passed last year style themselves professionally as "tonsorial artists."

The Hairdressers' Association of British Columbia—being females of the gentler gender—are demanding that they be elevated from the status of a trade to that of a profession. "To bob or not to bob; that is the question," insist the lady barbers.

Our bobbing rights are being attacked. Our professional attainments in cutting, trimming, singeing and coloring the hair of British Columbia women are in the balance. Why should we be denied the rights already enjoyed by the men? Why should men legislate our calling out of business by a stampede as an inferior?

Lobbyists for the lady barbers are full of strategists. They have looked over the legislature while in session and they have noted the thinning locks of the members, and they are making a direct bid for the support of those whose scalps are showing through their thatches. In their proposed bill the wily hairdressers have made a distinct bid for the votes and influence of baldheaded men, for included in the definition of what they may do under the terms of the legislation are these words: "The cutting of trimming of hair upon any male person for the purpose of fitting any wig or toupee."

All other males are to be rigorously excluded from the parlors of the profession. Only baldheaded men are to be admitted.

WOMEN MUST BE PRESERVERS OF CANADIAN HOMES

Toronto, Ont., March 5 (Canadian Press Despatch).—In talking over the matter of the preservation of those Canadian homes that carry the traditions of our country, with J. Herbert Hodgins, editor of Canadian Homes and Gardens, Mr. Hodgins said in the local press:

"It is the women of Canada who must be counted on for any concerted effort," he said, mentioning the Local Councils, the Women's Institutes, the Women's Canadian Clubs, and the I.O.D.E. "The women of the United States have done it, the women of Canada can do it if they will. It is not the business of Governments. It is far more vital that the personal thought and effort of national organizations—rather than of Federal or Provincial Governments—should enter into any plans for the acquisition of our historic places. Then we might be assured the permanent interest of individual communities which is never as fully possible when a work is sponsored by public funds."

He instanced many homes saved to posterity in the United States by Colonial Dames. There is the old Franciscan Mission at San Antonio, Texas. The Daughters of the Republic of Texas have this in their care. There is the House of Seven Gables immortalized by Hawthorne. It had been altered and defaced when Miss Caroline Emerton came to its rescue. She restored it to use as a social center for the town of Salem, Mass. The cost of the social work is defrayed by entrance fees. There is the Van Courtlandt House, built by an old patroon family in 1748. At one time the Duke of Clarence, afterwards William IV of England, was welcomed here as a guest. The Colonial Dames of the City of New York, who are its custodians, have furnished it in the style of the 18th century.

Conditions That Call For A Tonic

Symptoms That the Blood Is Thin Should Not be Neglected

Weak, lacking in stamina, every sad ambition, nervous, sleepless, poor appetite, digestion disturbed—these are the symptoms of a great majority of people who have been benefitted by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The great value of this medicine in cases of this kind is proved by the statement of Mrs. W. Hensher, Kingston, Ont., who says:—"Following a severe cold I was left in a run-down, nervous condition; I had pains in the back and limbs and could scarcely move about. I did not sleep well at night and was despondent and discouraged. I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and can truthfully say that after the use of six boxes, the change in my condition was nothing short of marvellous. The pains vanished, I slept well, had a good appetite, and in every way felt well and strong. I also have the pills to my daughter, who was in an anaemic condition and feeling quite miserable, and in her case, too, they restored health. I hope my experience may help some other weak person."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little book, "Building Up the Blood," which contains many useful health hints, will be sent free on request.

The Secret of Keeping a Perspiring Body Sweet

Do you know why thousands of people who never have to take a laxative, do eat a candy cascaret now and then?

They have found that cascara sweetens the whole system—brings an immaculacy of person that means everything. It prevents bodily chemistry from ever making one unconsciously offensive to others. And what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Salts affect the lining of the bowels. Mineral oil coats it, coating just the blood must carry off through the pores. How much better to exercise the system, and cause the bowels to expel everything by normal muscular contraction! To say nothing of the cleaner, sweeter condition that lasts for days—a wholesome condition that makes the use of deodorants quite unnecessary in January or July! Men and women whose years have brought on sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week's all the tonic they needed.

Cascara is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every druggist has for 10c and 25c.

TRYING TO MAKE FOLK DANCE A FASHION AGAIN

London, March 8.—Great efforts are to be made this year to increase the popularity of old English folk dances and songs throughout the country. It is felt that the possibilities of the work of the late Dr. Cecil Sharp, who devoted the last 15 years of his life to recovering almost forgotten dances of the countryside, have not yet been fully appreciated. From cottage homes and village greens Dr. Sharp collected some 5,000 old dances and songs and in 1911, founded the English Folk Dance Society in the hope of restoring them to general use.

Since then the movement has steadily grown. The Society now has branches in every country of England and the membership increases daily. Last year the number was about 8,000. This year they have increased to 11,000. In the Dominions enthusiasm is growing, and several folk dance clubs have been formed. In the United States too, the movement is making headway.

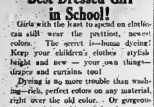

Unsettled in America

It is strange that many of them unknown in the country of their origin were recovered from America. During his long wanderings, Dr. Sharp travelled as far as the Appalachian Mountains where he succeeded in collecting hundreds of English folk-songs from descendants of English people who settled years ago along the creeks of those desolate hills and handed on the old songs from one generation to another.

This year it is hoped that it will be possible to found a national headquarters in London where the traditional dances and music may find a worthy and permanent home. The Cecil Sharp Memorial Fund which was opened with this object has already raised £11,600 towards the £25,000 needed.

DEFENSE SCHOOL WELL UNDER WAY

London, Mar. 11.—(Canadian Press Despatch)—The new College of Imperial Defence, in which Brig.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, deputy chief of the Canadian general staff, and Commander C. T. Daniel, R. C. N., are the Canadian "students," is now well into its first term. It was foreshadowed by the Earl of Balfour last summer when he dealt in the House of Lords with the government's policy for co-ordination of the fighting services.

The aim of the new institution is the study of the problem of the defence of the Empire, regarded not as a series of naval, military and air questions, but as a single method of controlling and employing all those forces which go to make up the strength of the Empire for war. Hitherto there has been Naval War College where the question of maritime operations have been studied; and Naval, Military, and Air Staff College with their specialised functions. Although excellent progress has been made of late years in bringing these seminaries into closer touch one with another, there has been an obvious need for a central institution where the correlation of the three Services throughout the whole Empire should be the chief, if not indeed the sole, study. The College of Imperial Defence now fills the gap.

The Commandant is Vice-Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond, whose appointment has been viewed by the three Services as an earnest of the success of the new venture. He is assisted by a staff of three distinguished officers drawn from the Navy, Army and Air force respectively.

The whole science of war being now in such a state of flux, it is probable that commandant, staff and students will at first be content to study the problems of it rather than to attempt to arm vet at solutions. The present course will last throughout the year, and is confined to a maximum of 30 students in quotas from the Navy, Army, Air Force, India, the Dominions, and the home Civil Service. Normally the quotas are five each for the younger branches, but as all are not taking up the full allotment this time the Navy and Army furnish six each. The first course will therefore be attended by 25 officers. Captain G. C. Dickens, C. M. G., R. N., Colonel J. G. Dill, C.M.G. D. S.O. from the 2nd Infantry Brigade, and Group Captain F. D. Joubert de la Ferte, C.M.G., D.S.O., are the instructors for their respective Services; but the appointment of a civil instructor is temporarily in abeyance. The permanent secretary, who will also be the librarian, is Major L. A. Clemens, M.C., transferred from the Secretariat of the Committee of Imperial Defence.

INTERNAT. YACHT RACES ARE ARRANGED

Rochester, N.Y., March 11.—Dates of three international yacht races for the championship of Lake Ontario have been announced by Volney Lacey, secretary of the Rochester Yacht Club.

The competition for the George Cup for Class R. boats will be held July 27, 28 and 29, the place to be selected. The Douglas Cup, for the 15-foot class will be raced in Toronto, Ont., on September 1 and 2. The Emerson Cup races, team championship series, will be held at Rochester July 16 and 17.

The National Yacht Club of Toronto now holds the Douglas Cup with the Rochester Club as challenger. It is considered here as probable the George Cup races will be held at Henderson Harbor, where the Crescent Yacht Club of Watertown as trustee, now holds the cup.

Other events of the yachting season on Lake Ontario are:

MYSTERIOUS RAY GUARDED CLOSE

London, Mar. 9.—The British government is jealously guarding its new war secret—as mysterious invisible, searchlight ray which makes it impossible for an enemy to conduct military operations at night unobserved.

It is one of the most formidable war weapons yet discovered, and it was discovered accidentally.

John L. Baird, inventor of the televisor, and the discoverer of the mysterious ray accidentally stumbled on the new ray while he was trying to perfect the television apparatus with which he now broadcasts pictures by radio as far as 150 miles.

It belongs in the infra-red section of the spectrum outside the range of the human eye. His process is to isolate and use the ray which the human eye cannot see but which is susceptible of being recorded on his secret apparatus.

"By proper adaption of these principles," he disclosed, "it will be possible to see an enemy in the dark when he believes himself to be unobserved.

"So far we are seeing over comparatively short distances, but it has now become simply a question of certain technical improvements and the application of greater power in order to be able to see a person or a scene which is thousands of miles still apart from the point where we are looking into the receiving screen."

His aeronautic Captain O. G. Hutchinson, goes even further. "Attacking aeroplanes approaching under the cover of the eye of the darkness will be disclosed to the defending headquarters by the electric television." They will be followed by searchlights emitting invisible rays and as these rays will be unseen by them, they will continue to approach until without warning they are brought down by the guns of the defense."

DICKENS' LAST SON

FINE FACILITIES 1928 OLYMPICS

Amsterdam, Mar. 11.—Canadian Press Despatch)—The following descriptions of the scenes and equipments for the 1928 Olympic games, to be held here is furnished by the Dutch Olympic committee.

The grounds, where the 1928 the Olympic Games will be held cover an area of 40 acres including grounds for training and motorcar parking 128 acres and is situated in the Southern part of central Amsterdam.

Besides the Main Stadium there will be a swimming-stadium, a Pavilion for fencing and one for other indoor sports, a cricket ground and somewhere in a quiet corner a lawn-tennis-stadium (in centre-and 10 other hard courts). The chief building, the grand stadium will accomodate 40,000 visitors. There are about 20,000 seats and half of them will be covered.

In the centre of the Stadium lies the football ground of international dimensions. Around it there will be a cinder racing track (436 yards in length and nearly 9 yards across) similar to that in Colombes. Round the race course the cycling track will be constructed which will be the same width but will be 343 yards long.

The competitors will be seated near the finish, and the Press will be excellently accommodated opposite the finish. 600 seats are reserved for press representatives.

The two covered stands are in the centre. One contains the Royal and other official boxes, and under the other stand lies the Marathon Gate. There will also be a Marathon Tower (150 feet high) bearing on the top a large plate, from which a permanent smoke column will mount to the skies during the Games.

ENGINEERS NAME SPECIFICATIONS FOR IDEAL CAR

Another Reo Flying Cloud Corresponds in Almost Every Detail

An ideal car having practically the same specifications as the new "Flying Cloud" has been awarded first prize by the society of Automotive Engineers, Metropolitan (New York) Section, in a contest to determine specifications for the best all-round family car.

The winning specifications were drawn up by Austin M. Wolf consulting engineer living in New York City who for years has been a close student of motor trends, and has been selected to prepare an article on engineering advances for the American Year Book. His ideal engine would have a bore of 3 1-4 inches and a 5 inch stroke. The wheel base would be 121 inches, with balloon tires and three-shoe brake equipment. Mr. Wolf further describes his conception of the ideal car as follows:

"FAVORITE SIX CYLINDER CAR

"The design of the car is based on those characteristics that would appeal to the average American family. For this reason it is a five passenger and is powered with an economical, medium-sized, high efficiency engine. It is geared for good acceleration and hill-climbing ability, equipped with brakes to cope with any emergency, and sprung and tired for maximum comfort. This comfort, coupled with easy steering, beauty of body lines and color, will appeal to the women of the family.

"A six-cylinder engine of 3 1-2 inches bore and 5 inches stroke, with three point support, was selected. Silicon-chromium steel for the exhaust valves guards against warping and pitting. Chrome-nickel drive assures silence at this point. Rapid pick-up is made possible by aluminum pistons. A ringed, counterbalanced crankshaft minimizes torsional vibration. Directly lubricated connecting rod big ends allow maximum heat dissipation from the bearings.

"PRESSURE OILING SYSTEM

"The pressure oiling system is guarded by a distributor and filter, whereby crankcase oil dilution is kept within safe limits and all grit and abraded particles are kept out of the system. An air cleaner on the carburetor prevents entry of road dust into the cylinders. Fuel feed is vacuum. A centrifugal pump circulates the cooling water through a honeycomb-type radiator. Thermostatic control maintains the water at an efficient high temperature and provides rapid warming up when starting the engine cold. A dry single-plate transmits power to a three-speed gearset in unit with the engine. Battery ignition is specified, the spark control being automatic but supplemented by hand control. The starter engages the flywheel through a Bendix drive.

SPIRAL BEVEL GEAR REAR AXLE

"An Isotrion-axle supplies the final drive. Hotchkiss drive is specified for the spiral bevel-gear type rear axle. No modern car would be complete without balloon tires and four wheel brakes. The latter are of the internal type, powered from road splash and dirt. A soft type of roof construction minimizes transmission equipment of the car includes shock absorbers, bumpers, windshield wiper, cowl ventilator and dash gasoline gauge."

One hundred and fifty members of the Metropolitan Section of the Society of Automotive Engineers participated in the contest, filling out questionnaires which indicated what specifications of chassis, engine, body and equipment would best meet the requirements of the average American family. In almost every detail the winner's "ideal car" is a replica of the "Flying Cloud" at the new Reo "Flying Cloud" at the showrooms of Auteliste and Son, local dealers, 40 Moira St. E. Phone 229

THIS CAR OWNER FOUND GOOD WAY TO SAVE WORRY

Unique Experience Related By One Exide Battery Owner

An interesting advertising campaign is being run in this paper as the property of the manufacturers of Exide Batteries, recalls to the writer an actual experience he had during the past year with an Exide Battery.

An eleven plate Exide Battery was purchased locally last April, from the Belleville Distributor, R. C. Smith of 301 Coleman Street, at a cost of about $16.50. The battery was placed in a Ford car the same month, and from April until December gave continuous satisfactory service, week in and week out for eight full months. Never once failing to operate perfectly the lights and the starter. And all this without having once to be re-charged during that time.

A satisfactory record to say the least, and one which the owner considered worth telling about, especially in view of the fact that several of his friends who had purchased so-called bargain batteries, of various kinds and at various low prices, were finding it necessary to have the batteries recharged every few weeks.

But that's not all. In spite of the fact that the battery was in the other car most of the time, and in fact during the whole week-end carelessness of some motorists was never more apparent than in this case for late in December, the car was put away and the battery allowed to remain sitting in it. Nor was the garage well built or heated one either, but rather one through which the cold could easily penetrate.

And the mercury dropped low in fact as low as fifteen below zero in January. It was after the worst of these cold spells that the owner in question suddenly started reading something that a battery not fully charged was quite liable to freeze, and he became himself in the garage to investigate the state of his battery.

Climbing into the car with a resigned air he stepped on the starter. Was the battery frozen up and ruined? Not a bit of it—for the same faithful Exide turned the engine over in the smartest manner of the owner.....And he hopes to use the battery again this year in spite of the treatment to which his carelessness subjected it.

So thats the experience of one man and his Exide. No much thing as luck needs be said for him. The name is your guarantee. All batteries look alike they're all made of lead, rubber wood, and a few other materials—but your best guide is the name and reputation of the manufacturer. The battery is largely the long life battery—and will satisfy you as it has so many others. See Russ Smith at the City Battery Service on Coleman St. and learn more about this remarkable battery.

Fleet of sealing vessels from St. John's, are in sight of heels, but must wait until March 14th before is able to sail.

INDOOR AERIALS FOR RADIOS ARE EASILY PUT UP

Construction of One of These is Explained By Expert

"There are many radio listeners who are not able to have an outdoor aerial," says H. A. Gates, Chief Radio Engineer of the King Radio, "and for those a simple but effective indoor, installation is recommended. This installation requires no special tools or equipment; the screen wire can be bought at any hardware store and the other material can be secured at the radio store, or in antenna can be installed complete by the radio dealer.

"The materials required are; 25 feet of galvanized (not painted or enamelled) fly screen, 25 or 3 feet wide insulators and leadin wire. The wire should be supported on the insulators at the highest point in the house, with the flat surface of the screen parallel to the ground. This antenna is intended for attic installation, but in some instances has given excellent results on lower floors, by being separated into two or three pieces and placed under the rugs. Of course, it is necessary to electrically connect the pieces together. When connecting the lead-in, solder it to the most convenient point on the screen and run directly to the set. Use only ordinary galvanized fly screen. This type of antenna will not work satisfactorily under a metal roof; for that matter, even the outdoor aerial should be kept away from metal roofs and other grounded objects."

Mr. Gates is the designer of the 1am tone 61 and 62 King Radios, so many of which are being installed by The Radio Shop, 229 Front St., with great satisfaction to their owners. Daily demonstrations are being held at this store and radio fans are invited to make this store their headquarters and call for the latest in radio information.

ONE DENTIFRICE MADE FOR PAST 6 GENERATIONS

Dropped into Doe Bleeker's Store the other day and was given a sample of Gibbs Dentifrice. The manufacturers of this famous Dentifrice, Dand W. Gibbs of London England, this week fired the first gun in a publicity campaign with the aim of familiarizing Belleville people with the qualities of Gibbs Dentifrice.

Newspaper advertising and attractive window displays have been arranged which would make almost everyone, even those with little article sense, take a second look. Together with the aid of active co-operation of all local dealers, the campaign is away to a good start, and the careful preparation made promises ample for the movement.

Not the least interesting item on the publicity end is the production of the booklet, in fairy story form "The Fortress of Ivory Castles," which in a most interesting manner aims to educate the children in the proper care of their teeth.

You can get one of these booklets at Doss for the asking—and the children will enjoy it, and benefit greatly therefrom.

Gibbs Dentifrice is by no means a new product, though perhaps not so well known to Canadians as many other dentifrices on the market. But generations of success stand behind this business which was established in 1712, the time of Queen Anne, when soaps were looked upon with doubts and suspicion, which seemed to greet every innovation. But the products of Alexander Gibbs triumphed over suspicion and prejudice, and established a standard of quality that is associated with the name to this day.

Next time you're passing Bleeker's get a box or a tube of Gibbs and try it, you'll like it.

ORIGIN OF THE CHOCOLATE IN CANDY YOU BUY

And How Its Rich Velvety Flavor is Achieved in Neilson's

You probably don't know the difference between a good and a poor chocolate, but strictly speaking, it isn't your business to know in what the difference lies. But how about the candy man—the dealer or the candy maker. There's a man whose business it is to know the difference and whose business it is to provide his patrons with what he knows to be the best chocolates, and containing the best ingredients.

Moores' Candy Shop locally sells and strongly recommends to its patrons Neilson's chocolates. Neilson's candies are recognized as about the best obtainable and according to Mr. Moores, there's a reason, and he can tell you why!

Cocoa beans from which Neilson's chocolate is made originate from the fruit moist warm climates as the West Indies of the Caribbean sea, Jamaica, Barbadoes, Japan, Ceylon, Java, Brazil, etc.

The young trees are planted under banana trees to protect them from the intense heat of the sun, and later are placed under the shade of coral trees, when they later attain a height of almost thirty feet, yielding an abundance of red flowers and pods and seeds, from which contain the cocoa beans.

When ripe the pods are gathered by hand and the beans taken out. There are about twenty four different kinds of Cocoa beans and it is by skilful blending of several of these that Neilson's rich flavored chocolate is secured.

Upon arrival at the factory the beans are carefully selected for about twenty-four hours. Then a roaster heats and cleans them to their outer husk. The cocoa "Nibs" or the beans are now ready for grinding machines, and the effect is remarkable. They are turned out as grinding process into a thick liquid called "chocolate liquor," and as this liquor runs from the mills it is caught in pails.

Sugar, butter and flavoring are added in mixing machines, and under intense pressure, the mass is made smooth in refining machines. Another mixing machine for 48 hours, gives the chocolate that rich velvety flavor for which Neilson's Chocolates famous. Get some at Moores' and try them. They're better.

KING STRONGLY DISSAPROVES OF BOBBED FASHION

London, March 11. (C. P.)—Many observers had been wondering, at a time when European royal ladies of so many countries, such as Spain and Rumania, have bobbed or shingled hair, that English princesses have failed to follow fashion. The reason according to the Leicester Guardian is the strong personal prejudice against bobbed hair for women. While the Queen merely thinks the fashion ugly and unbecoming, the practical advantage, the King's feelings are so strong on the matter that he refuses to sanction any of the fashions attached to the Court apparel and will shave locks.

The exceptions are made from the rule. The other day a certain notable was for appointment as lady-in-waiting to the Queen thought to smarten her self up for her royal duties by having her hair shingled. As soon as she appeared at Court, however, it was full enough to her that she must at once let her hair grow, and what that was happened to employ some art of the hairdresser to hide the fact of her unseemly shorn locks. Ladies of the Court have had to wear "switches" to provide the necessary length of hair.

Although, of course, there is no official ruling in the matter, it is noticeable that none of both Princess Mary's sisters-in-law, Princess Henry's friends, wear their hair long in deference to the King's wishes. In these days when dresses are so short, skirts, and sometimes so worn, girls all wear simple garments bring their interest to a insignificance of attire is one of the few distinctive signs of being at Court.

CANADIAN STARS BEING GRABBED BY U. S. SCOUTS

Calgary, Alta., March 11.—A number of players in the Prairie professional hockey loop are likely to be missing when the teams line up for renewal of hostilities next fall. Scouts from the various clubs of the National Hockey League and the Central American League have been looking over the material performing in these parts, and tempting offers are reported to have been made to several players.

Lloyd Turner, manager of the Minneapolis Millers, and formerly owner of the Calgary Tigers, is known to be after the services of Tiger Cameron of the Saskatoon "Sheiks" while he is also said to be angling for either Connor or Stevens of the same club.

Turner is a combo in the Prairies or the championship play-off series and will size up the teams in the hope of landing some reserve players to bolster up his American League entry.

High bids are also known to have been made for Gainor and Headley, Calgary defence players and inquiries have been made by Eastern interests for "Spunk" Sparrow, Tiger centre, who has been one of the outstanding stars of the league this season.

FAST TIME SET BY FUR TRAPPER

Winnipeg, Man., March 12.—A long distance "mushing record" has been set for Manitoba fats season by Karl Bayley, a fur trader of the North Country, who recently arrived in Winnipeg with a catch of furs.

Over a trail of six hundred, the trapper wended his way across the snow-covered country from Sturgeon river to the Hudson Bay railway. He finished the last leg of his trip to Winnipeg by train, leaving his dogs at The Pas, Man.

Nineteen days Mr. Bayley was on the trail, with his faithful dogs as sole companions. It was gruelling test and part of the drive was made in blinding blizzards and extreme cold. Before daybreak each day, he ran his five huskies were on the trail travelling till nightfall when he pitched camp. Trail rations, solid and easy to carry, were Mr. Bayley's food, while fish was caught for the dogs. The northern "musher" did not stay long in civilization. He disposed of his furs and after purchasing a few necessities for his distant ramp, departed for The Pas, and is now racing for his outpost, which is about 100 miles from the Hudson Bay and 60 miles east of the Shamattawa river.

TELLS CURIOUS VOTE EXPERIENCE

Toronto, Ont., March 12. (C.P.)—Dr. Augusta Stowe-Gullen brought a bit of homespun into a Board Council meeting when she told of first experience in voting "not a 1,000 years ago." Going into the polling booth to vote, the doctor was rather taken aback by the absence of anything that looked like a poll clerk or returning officer or any of the adjuncts of a fully furnished booth, but after looking about for a moment or so she heard a cheerful announcement from behind the screen, "The door's all her!" Going in, investigate she found a pleasant young man and two nice girls discussing the weather and the crops. All were quite willing that she should cast her vote, and when she asked just how she should fold her ballot the young man was very agreeable. He said, "Oh, it doesn't matter. I'll attend to it." And he opened the ballot, looked at it, refolded it and placed it in the ballot box!

City Council Deals With Proposed New School To-night--Mayor Wilmot Back for Meeting

FOUR PLANES TO CROSS ATLANTIC FOR BIG PRIZE

$75,000 Reward Brings Champion Air Riders in Competition

NON-STOP FLIGHT

New York to Paris Jump To Be Made in 42 Hours

New York, March 14.—Prospect of a four plane air race across the Atlantic for the Raymond Orteig twenty-five thousand dollar prize loomed today with the announcement of plans by Lieut. Commander Noel Davis for his proposed non-stop flight from New York to Paris. Commander Davis, noted pilot, announced yesterday that he planned to take off from Mitchel Field, L.I., in June in an American expedition and hoped to make the thirty-six hundred mile flight in less than 42 hours.

Plans for two other New York to Paris flights have already been announced for this summer. Commander Byrd, who flew around the North Pole last Spring, has announced that a Fokker plane is being built for him, while Captain Rene Fonck, French ace, is also having a plane built. A St. Louis-Paris flight, for the same race, is contemplated by Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, chief pilot of the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route. Captain Lindbergh says his plans are for a small plane and that he will be unaccompanied.

CLING TO WRECK FOR FOUR DAYS

Halifax, March 14.—Captain W. E. Rutledge and seven men, survivors from the four-masted Boston schooner Jessie G. Noyes, which foundered in a gale some 200 miles off Virginia, on the fringe of the Gulf Stream, over a week ago, arrived here this morning on the White Star liner Regina, four of them en route to their homes in the United States. The men were lost from the Noyes when the huge ship, loaded with creosoted railroad ties, turned on her beam ends and went to pieces, and the survivors spent four days and nights on a piece of wreckage before being taken off by the steamer Tropic and later transferred to the Regina.

MAYOR E. WILMOT IS BACK TODAY

Will Attend Special Meeting to Deal With School Question

Mayor Eardley Wilmot accompanied by his sister, Miss Gwen Wilmot will reach Belleville on the 5.38 C.P.R. train this afternoon. They landed at St. John yesterday morning from the steamer Montcalm.

The Mayor cut his holiday's short and rushed home to be in time for tonight's special council meeting called to deal with the resolution of the Board of Education asking that funds be provided for a new Collegiate and vocational school. This matter was left over from the regular meeting of last Monday in order that Mr. Wilmot might be in the chair when the final decision was made.

A great deal of interest exists in the City Council's action tonight. The Board of Education are practically unanimous (Col. W. N. Ponton being the only dissenter) in asking that the council vote the necessary money without referring it to the ratepayers. The attitude of the Council cannot be forecasted as most of them are very guarded in expressing an opinion.

Heavy Interest Charges

It was pointed out to the Intelligencer this morning that interest charges on the debentures which would have to be issued would bring the total for the new school up to over $620,000 and that it undoubtedly means an increase in the tax rate of more than three mills for the next thirty years. One Alderman contacted during the matter over to the ratepayers who will have to foot the bills, for their decision, but whether this is the opinion of the majority of the council will not be known until after to night's meeting.

NEW BOAT SERVICE

Boat Would Ply Daily Between Kingston and Oswego

Kingston, March 14.—There is a possibility that there will be a passenger steamboat service between Kingston and Oswego during the summer. At the meeting of the Board of Trade a letter was read from a New York citizen who is interested in placing a steamer on the Oswego and Alexandra Bay service this summer. The vessel would be an oil burner and would call here each afternoon at five o'clock and leave at nine next morning on the return to Oswego. It would also carry autos.

THREE BANKS COLLAPSED AND A FOURTH TOTTERS

West Palm Beach, Fla., Mar. 14.—Three Palm Beach County Banks failed to open their doors today while another local financial institution stayed off a severe run. Long lines of men and women braved a pelting, intermittent rain here this morning in a determined run on the Citizens Bank. Mild excitement prevailed while friends of the bank sought to talk with each person in the line in an attempt to influence the withdrawal of funds but the line remained intact.

HOUSE TO DEAL WITH IMPORTANT QUESTIONS NOW

Fight Will Be Renewed This Week on Ottawa Power

ANNOUNCE POLICY

Premier Will Give Maritime Rights Programe Tomorrow

Ottawa, Ont., March 14.—This week will see many important issues before Parliament and the decisions on them will considerably affect the duration of the session. In the Commons the fight will be renewed on the Ottawa River power, and there will also be a statement of Government policy on Maritime rights as set forth in the Duncan Commission report. No question is anticipated to the Canadian National branch line programs in the Commons, and this bill should reach the Senate this week, where favorable consideration is indicated. In the Second Chamber the Old Age Pensions' bill will have to face strong opposition, with little support from its sponsors.

Evading Issue

Although the Georgian Bay Canal charter is of national importance, the Government is evading responsibility by asking where behind a private bill for the charter renewal. The Government cannot continue to evade responsibility, as Hon. Hugh Guthrie's amendment calls for a statement of Government policy and the assumption of responsibility. To-day the Government will strive to assist the Sifton interests, but is fearful of the reaction in Ontario and Quebec. If the private bill can be forced into committee without a statement of Government policy, then another committee can be directed by the Government, without committing the Liberal party. British practice would not permit a private bill dealing with a question of such supreme national importance.

Statement on Tuesday

On Tuesday Premier King is to make his statement on Maritime rights. Ostensibly for the Maritime Provinces, there was a by-election in Nova Scotia and another pending in New Brunswick. To win the former four Government Ministers, as well as the Liberal candidate, promised the whole Duncan Commission report. The Government needs a caucus recently on this problem. It is understood Premier King will promise to implement the whole Duncan report but for the present only increased subsidies and a few minor recommendations will be adopted. Freight rates, coal rates and steel bounties will be deferred until a more opportune time.

The above map shows the position of the international, British and Japanese, and the separate French settlement at Shanghai. These districts which are distinct from the native quarter of the city are modern in every respect with fine buildings and paved streets and all the elements that go to constitute an up-to-date modern community.

302 PEOPLE HAD TO DO WITHOUT PHONE SERVICE

Ice and Rain Put Instruments Out of Business Sunday

Working steadily for eight hours a gang of men from the Bell Telephone Company under the direction of Mr. Basil Doolittle, rectified a condition which has put three hundred and two telephones on the East Hill temporarily out of commission all day Sunday.

The Phone Company was notified of trouble near Charles street and on investigation showed that water from the melting ice and rain had filled the man hole at the corner of Charles and Bridge streets, penetrating the telephone cable and crossing the lines. The distress crew was almost immediately on the job and after bailing the man hole out, unsoldered the damaged cable and boiled the water out with parrafin, a procedure which occupied most of the day. At 5.30 however, the service was given and all was in working order.

"It was most fortunate," Mr. Coleen, local manager of the Bell Telephone Company, stated, that the trouble occurred on a Sunday. The only persons who were inconvenienced were the doctors who were cut off from the Hospital temporarily.

SPLIT WIDENS BETWEEN LEADERS OF CANTON'S OPPOSING FACTIONS

Correspondents Say Britain Has Lost Prestige By Conciliation

London, Mar. 14.—Delayed censored despatches from Hankow reveal an under-surface Nationalist movement. The big struggle appears ently continues between the Extremists, backed by Russia influence and the Moderates rallying around General Chang Kai Shek, Chairman of the War Council of the Canton Government.

Chang made his move against his opponents Thursday. He ordered He Chien, Extremist Minister of Justice, to go abroad, while Teng Yen Ye, who is said to be regarded responsible for most of the anti-British agitation was transferred to Chang's headquarters, where he will be under the Commander's eye, other alleged communists were disposed.

Despite British

The British minister in Peking has decided to maintain in continuous residence in Hankow a senior member of the embassy staff, says another despatch from Hankow. This is considered in Hankow as an indication of another step by Great Britain in regard of further recognition of the Cantonese regime.

A despatch to the Daily Mail says the fact that the Northerners are supposedly friendly does not diminish the danger with which foreign interests are menaced because they have no share with the Cantonese the conviction that British prestige as revealed at the surrender of Hankow can all from which back bone. The correspondent declares Chinese soldiers of both factions now believe themselves equal to any foreign troops and certainly superior to British, who they say will invariably give way before a sufficient force. The declaration of Martial Law in the Chinese city is assumed to have been due to looting.

SPEEDY REVENUE BOATS AND HIGH POWERED CARS

Smuggling To Be Squelched By Special New Forces.

TO WATCH BORDER

Minister of Customs Asks Vote of One Million Dollars

Ottawa, March 14.—Parliament, it is stated, will be asked to vote a sum close to a million dollars in supplementary estimates to be tabled later in the session for the purpose of combatting smuggling conditions along the Canadian border.

Appoint New Head

Ottawa, March 14.—Hon. William D. Euler, Minister of Customs, has given notice that he will introduce tomorrow further amendments to the Customs Act to make provision for more adequate enforcement of the act and to prevent smuggling operations. It is understood that Francis W. Cowan, now of the Narcotics Division of the Department of Health will be assigned the job of bringing the special preventive service to a state of efficiency.

High-Powered Cars

The country is to be divided into districts, each with an officer in charge, who will be responsible to Ottawa. High-powered automobiles, capable of giving chase to any car suspected of carrying smuggled goods will be provided. For this branch of the service the sum of $350,000 will be voted by Parliament.

Any wrongdoing in offices and warehouses are to be dealt with by special officers appointed to investigate frauds against the revenue, and there is also to be a secret preventive service under the Department of Justice with an appropriation of $100,000 for the gathering of evidence and the prosecution of offenders.

392 POUND MONARCH COMES TO TENDER ROYAL RESPECTS

Christ Church, New Zealand, March 14.—The Duke of York met the world's "greatest" monarch today in the person of King Tanui Solomon of the Chatham Islands. The king weighs 392 pounds and made the five hundred mile voyage from his realm, east of New Zealand, solely to pay his respects to British Royalty. Solomon is a King without subjects, as his people, Morioris, have been all but wiped out by the Maoris. It was a trying journey for Solomon, but he felt amply repaid by the Duke's warm welcome and his obvious admiration of the king's girth.

SON EXPIRES IN FATHER'S OFFICE

Young Harry Ashley's Death Shock to Family and Friends

Ten minutes after a serious hemorrhage, Mr. Harry Kenneth Ashley died at the office of his father, Mr. Chancey Ashley, Front Street, on Saturday evening about six o'clock.

Young Ashley was in the office with his mother, his father having left a minute previously, when the hemorrhage occurred. His mother became frightened and her, outcries caused Mr. Frank Domenico and Mr. Simon Elliott to rush into the office and they did everything in their power to help the dying man. Mr. Chancey Ashley arrived before his son died, but Harry Ashley was not able to speak before he passed away. Dr. Proctor was called but could not save the young man.

Popular Here

Born in 1899, Mr. Ashley was a life-long resident of Belleville and was a popular young man, in social circles here. He attended the Public and High Schools in Belleville and was a good athlete. He had been connected with his father's extensive insurance business for some time.

Mr. Ashley had been in ill health for nearly a year and a half, but was thought to be on the fair road to recovery. This hemorrhage was the first one he had ever suffered. He is survived by his father, Mr. Chancey Ashley, his mother, and two sisters, Mrs. M. Campbell, residing on John Street, and Miss Kathleen, at home.

The late Harry Ashley was a member of the United Church.

NO DEVELOPMENTS

McCatherine was found guilty recently of an indecent assault upon an eight-year-old Chatham woman. The appeal was heard nearly two weeks ago, judgment being reserved.

RECOGNIZES THE PICTURES AS OF CAPT. J. SMITH

Photographs From Harrah of Dead Man Are Identified

SON SATISFIED

Face Shows Signs of Struggle During Past Ten Years

Captain John Smith whose mysterious disappearance from the sunken George E. Marsh, has after a ten years silence, been found. His identity was easily proved this morning when photographs of John Smith who died in Harrah, Oklahoma, arrived in the city this morning and were recognized as the same Captain by friends and relatives of the deceased.

The photographs which have been awaited with keen anticipation by Horace Smith, son of the missing Captain were sent to the home of Secretary Treasurer, Dulmage, of Moira Lodge No. 7, F. and A.M., who has assisted greatly in the work necessary to prove that John Smith, of Oklahoma was identical with the captain of the foundered schooner. Immediately upon the receipt of the photographs he communicated with Horace Smith who with an Intelligencer reporter went immediately to Mr. Dulmage home where they viewed the pictures.

Son Sees Picture

Horace Smith who was but a lad when his father was lost, on August 4, 1917, could not be positive that the photograph was that of his father. He correctly viewed the post mortem picture which was taken of the dead man after being prepared for burial. The picture showed a clean shaven man of straight features, high cheek bones, large nose and high forehead but rigor mortis had naturally left the face of the dead man expressionless. One reason the face had changed so much from Mr. Smith's recollection of his father was the absence of the large moustache which he had worn in life. This had evidently been shaved off in life to further assist in his remaining incognito in the States. Captain John Smith, had owned a progressive and flourishing feed business in Harrah with assets estimated at $3000 which he had evidently accumulated within the last ten years. Horace Smith and his sister Mrs. Margaret McClendon have been mentioned as heirs in the estate.

A Mystery

Why Captain Smith concealed his identity will probably remain a mystery. Evidently after the wreck in 1917 he made a safe passage to land and ultimately landed in Oklahoma. Why he chose this as his destination is also a mystery as he had neither friends or relatives in the States.

When he arrived in Harrah, Walter Wilson of that town stated, him in the business and his perservering industriousness soon made him one of Harrah's leading business men as is intimated by the obituary

EMPRESS OF CANADA IN BAD COLLISION

Shanghai, Mar. 14.—The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada had her bow badly damaged today in a collision with the Japanese Collier Jinsho Maru that she had to be beached in order to prevent her sinking. The collision occurred while the liner was making her way up the river.

No Casualties On Liner

Montreal, March 14.—Word reached the head office of the Canadian Pacific Steamships Company this morning that its liner the Empress of Canada had been in a collision with a Japanese Collier in the Shanghai river and had sustained heavy damage. The cable said the Empress had reached her landing stage and that there had been no casualties. Later reports, from Shanghai, however, said that two lives are lost aboard the Collier.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Self-respect is the greatest of virtues. — PLATO.

GOSSIP

The Michigan Legislature would make Monroe a punishable offence. Not to mention, in this laudable enterprise Tennessee goes one better in a bill introduced for the banning of gossip. But there is little chance of either becoming law. If idleness and gossip were placed on the list of indictable offences against society, police courts of the country would have some very fashionable and up-to-date criminals on the docket. Every grade of society would be well represented. Gossip is indigenous to the human race. It flourishes when one crouches behind in a cow-byre over the back fence and is equally effective when whispered over the teacup in a Louis Fourteenth drawing-room. It is considered by many as the one necessary evil in social intercourse without which all else is flat, stale and unprofitable.

AN IMPERIAL AIRWAY

Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for the British Air Ministry, has told the House of Commons that he foresees the day when developments that are taking place in the British air service will bring Canada within reach of Great Britain in two days, South Africa in six, India in seven and Australia in eleven days. The idea is irresistibly alluring. Recent events give justification for the Air Minister's optimism. Sir Samuel and Lady Maude Hoare have just returned to England after making a flight from London to India. On reaching Delhi the Minister delivered to the Viceroy a message he received from the hands of King George, only twelve days earlier. Never before had such a feat been attempted. The route was first surveyed and the trail blazed by Air Vice-Marshal Sir Sefton Brancker and Sir Alan Cobham. Sir Samuel Hoare, with his wife as fellow-passenger, showed his personal confidence in the organization responsible for the new service and proved to demonstration that the establishment of a practicable air route to India is an accomplished fact; and now the Minister announces that a number of co-operative flights are about to be undertaken across the whole of Africa with the assistance of the South African, Rhodesian and other colonial governments. Eventually similar flights will be made to Canada and those British possessions not yet touched by the Imperial system of civil aviation, thus completing the process of covering the face of the Empire with a network of British trunk air lines.

ECONOMIC CIRCLE

Investigations conducted in various cities disclose an increasing tendency among married women and mothers to enter into gainful occupations. They are actuated by the desire for financial independence and others by economic necessity. The bread winner in a family are often necessary to make both ends meet.

Here is a subject demanding serious consideration. If the time comes when the vast majority of women must enter the factories, stores and offices to help maintain homes and support children the inevitable outcome will be fewer homes and children. To permit such a condition would mean race suicide.

And, in the final analysis, the fair must not be lost sight of that economic laws work both ways. If large families are now forcing mothers into gainful occupations. With large numbers of women thus engaged the birth rate must fall. The receding birth rate and children, reaching the self-supporting age will release more mothers and wives from outside employment, with the result that the birth rate will again climb. From here the process will begin all over again.

MR. MASSEY'S WORRIES

Gladstone once said that if Goschen must resume sooner or later he should do it at once. That is how we feel about a few months ago, a correspondent wrote to ask us whether at Washington and Ste. Minister. Extraordinary would sit nearer the head of the table than the Minister from, say, Nicaragua. Now however, the ledger has to be crossed and the matter has been raised, with considerable intensity, in the columns of the Washington press.

In diplomatic and official circles, as it appears, everyone is jammed tightly into a certain place in the hierarchy of precedence. There is no free and hearty plumping for the drawing-room dog when you go in to dinner. If the Chief Justice's wife should fall asleep at an early party in a small Crown Colony the whole of the party might have to wait till midnight for her to awake; for if anyone else were to arise and say she feels ade and her husband must be going home the departure of the Chief Justice's lady the social order would be shaken and the return to savagery might be felt to have begun. Some years ago in England, a royal decree was published by which the Prime Minister was authorized to pass through the doors to form a large number of persons who previously passed through them before him. He was like an Indian prince whose suite was raised in a night from two guns to nine.

So that, it will be seen, the precise location of Mr. Massey's plate and various forks in the Mayfairs of Washington is a solemn matter. No doubt it will be the subject of grave state papers before the two Capitals and will also come before the Cabinet, when Mr. King will take counsel with Mr. Venizelos, Mr. Motherwell, and Mr. Peter Heenan. For it would be a pity if, at this time when Mr. Coolidge is calling for disarmament, and Mr. Dunning hoping for reciprocity, that because of such a thing the world once went to war over the position of a comma in a certain famous document as should have to call out the "Patriot."

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Belleville, Ontario,
March 14, 1927.

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Our city is face to face tonight with some thing in a crisis in the history of educational development as out council decides upon the requisition of the Board of Education for funds to build and equip a new collegiate institute.

It is not a new question by any means but it has been the subject of discussion each year for a long time past. We have arrived at a point of unanimity hitherto unknown and perhaps as much as possible within our present legislation and tax powers. Most of our school board have been elected by the ratepayers to deal especially with matters of learning. Are we now to liberalize their years of experience and judgment in sizing up the situation? If so, they would be justified in resigning as an elected body and let the city council bear the brunt of handling the problems we are up against. Let us not insult the intelligence of men who are willing to devote time and to sacrifice energy on behalf of the interests of the community.

At last nearly everybody admits the need of a new building for our collegiate students. The yearly reports of the provincial inspector must also be regarded. Are we still to go above his head and plead before the department for special consideration? Studying under fraught conditions for pupils and teachers, suffering from piercing cold and our temperatures is no inducement for the greatest accomplishments. How can even the required standard for the staff be retained in our midst? They will continue to go elsewhere, and that great disruption and really reasonable action effort. If the young people had been sent home sometimes for the whole week during a cro weather and the fathers required to inhabit the premises vested for that time, perhaps action would have resulted ere this.

Already a move has been made to remedy the condition of things because property has been purchased and large monies voted upon the responsibility of our law makers for the site deciding upon by all concerned. Architects have been hard at toil drawing at this date. It is simply a sound business proposition. Sentiment can play a great part in life. A few years ago it was aroused over the cutting down of old trees in the way of paving Murney hill. Surely the old heroes then will now say that the broad-

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Self-control is the greatest of victories. PLATO.

GOSSIP

The Michigan Legislature would make Missouri a pushcart district. Not to be outdone in that laudable enterprise Tennessee goes one better in a bill introduced for the banning of gossip. But there is little chance of either becoming law. If idleness and gossip were placed on the list of indictable offences against society the police courts of the country would have some very fashionable and upstage criminals on the docket. Every grade of society would be well represented. Gossip is indigenous to the human race. It flourishes when two cronies indulge in a gos-sew over the back fence and is equally affective when whispered over the teacup in a Louis Fourteenth drawing-room. It is considered by many as the easiest way to social intercourse without which all else is flat, stale and unprofitable.

AN IMPERIAL AIRWAY

Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for the British Air Ministry, has told the House of Commons that he foresees the day when developments that are taking place in the British air service will make Canada within reach of Great Britain in two days, South Africa in six, India in seven and Australia in eleven days. The idea is irresistibly alluring. Recent events give justification for the Air Minister's optimism. Sir Samuel and Lady Maude Hoare have just returned to England after making a flight from London to India. On reaching Delhi the Minister delivered to the Viceroy a message he received from the hands of King George only twelve days earlier. Never before had such a feat been attempted. The route was first surveyed and the trail blazed by Air Vice-Marshal Sir Sefton Brancker and Sir Alan Cobham. Sir Samuel Hoare, with his wife as fellow-passenger, showed his personal confidence in the organization responsible for the new service and proved to demonstration that the establishment of a practicable air route to India is an accomplished fact; and now the Minister announces that a number of co-operative flights are about to be undertaken across the whole of Africa with the assistance of the South African, Rhodesian and other colonial governments. Eventually similar flights will be made to Canada and these British pioneers not yet touched by the imperial system of civil aviation, thus completing the process of covering the face of the Empire with a network of British trunk air lines.

ECONOMIC CIRCLE

Investigations conducted in various cities disclose an increasing tendency among married women and mothers to enter into gainful occupations. Many are actuated by the desire for financial independence and others by economic necessity. Two bread winners in a family are often necessary to make both ends meet.

Here is a subject demanding serious consideration. If the time comes when the vast majority of women must enter the factories, stores and offices to help maintain homes and support children the inevitable outcome will be fewer homes and children. To permit such a condition would mean race suicide.

"And, in the final analysis, the fate must not be lost sight of that economic laws work both ways. Large families are now forcing mothers into gainful occupations. With large numbers of women thus engaged the birth rate must fall. The receding birth rate and children reaching the self-supporting age will release more mothers and wives from outside employment, with the result that the birth rate will again climb. From here the process will begin all over again.

MR. MASSEY'S WORRIES

Gladstone once said that if Gods must create scenery or have he preferred it to be blue. That is how we feel when, a few months ago, a correspondent wrote to ask us whether at Washington but Rev. Minister Plenipotentiary would sit nearer the head of the table than Mr. Massey from, say, Nicaragua. Now, however, the bridge has to be crossed the matter has been raised, with the customarily, in the columns of the Washington press.

In diplomatic and official circles, as it remains, everyone is jammed tightly in a certain place in the hierarchy of precedence. There is no free and hearty plunking for the drawing-room door when you go in to dinner. If the Chief Justice's wife should fall asleep at an early party in a small Crown Colony the whole of the party might have to wait till midnight for her to awake; for if anyone else were to arise and say she feels she and her husband must be going then the department of the Chief Justice's lady the social order would be shaken and the return to savagery might be felt to have begun. Some years ago in England, a royal decree was published by which the Prime Minister was authorized to pass through the doors before a large number of persons who previously passed through them before him. He was like an Indian prince whose salute was raised in a right from two guns to nine.

So that, it will be seen, the precise location of Mr. Massey's plate and various forks in the Mayfairs of Washington is a solemn matter. No doubt it will be the subject of grave state papers between the two Capitals, and will also come before the Cabinet, when Mr. King will take counsel with Mr. Venlot Mr. Motherwell, and Mr. Peter Heenan For it would be a pity if, at this time when Mr. Coolidge is calling for disarmament, and Mr. Dunning hoping for reciprocity, that because of such a thing (the world once went to war over the position of a comma in a certain famous document) we should have to call out the "Patriot."

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Rose:—"He said he would kiss me or die in the attempt."

Marie:—"Well!"

Rose:—"He has no life insurance and I pilied his poor mother."

Absent-minded Professor (to friend recovering from long immersion in frozen pond): "Oh, by the way, I hope somone rescued you from that pond the other day. I QUITE forgot your message about a ladder until this moment.'

Vension B: "You see, Judge, when the officer held up his hand I thought he was waving, so I waved back. I do not know he was following me. They when I turned into an alley there was no alley there. No, I had not been drinking."

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

A bill is before parliament to change the name of the department of customs But, like the rose, the department will smell the same unless at the same time more important changes are made.—Winnipeg Tribune.

A contemporary remarks that in order to be a reformer instead of a nuisance a person must possess a healthy sense of humor. The trouble is that so many reformers are so filled with zeal that there is little room for humor.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

THE MAY QUEEN
(After Tennyson)

(To be sung or recited sometime in May when the G. C. Hill comes in.)
You must wake and call me early, call me early mother dear.
And have the bathtub all filled up for to cool the heer.
With ice to cool the heer, mother, upon that gladsome day,
For I'm to be Queen of the May mother, I'm to be Queen of the May.

There'll be many a black, black eye, mother, for some we black as mine
There's Bill and Jim and Harry and the boys from down the line,
They're coming to the city, mother they're coming with a dray,
For I'm to be Queen of the May, mother, I'm to be Queen of the May.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Belleville, Ontario,
March 14, 1927.

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Our city is face to face tonight with an issue that is a crisis in the history of educational development as our elected deciders upon the regulation of the Board of Education for funds to build and equip a new collegiate institute.

It is not a new question by any means but it has been in the background of discussion each year for a long time past. We have arrived at a point of unanimity hitherto unknown and perhaps as much as possible within our present limitations and its papers. Most of our school board have been elected by the ratepayers to deal especially with matters of learning. Are we now to forsake their years of experience and judgment in sizing up the situation? If so, they would be justified in resigning as an elected body and let the city council bear the brunt of handling the problems we are up against. Let us not rob the intelligence of men who are willing to devote time and to sacrifice money on behalf of the interests of the community.

At last nearly everybody admits the need of a new building for our advanced studies. The yearly reports of the provincial inspector must also be considered. Are we still to go about the method plied before the department for special consideration? Studying under insufficient conditions for pupils and teachers, suffering from piercing winds and low temperatures is no inducement for the keenest accomplishment. How can even the required standard for the staff be retained in our midst? They will continue to go elsewhere, and that means discussion and yearly recruitation effort. If the young people had been sent home sometimes for the whole week during a rco weather and the fathers required to inhabit the premises vacated for that time, perhaps action would have resulted ere this.

Already a move has been made to remedy the condition of things because property has been purchased and limited monies voted upon the responsibility of our law makers for the site decided upon by all concerned. Architects' fees and plans and the calling for tenders as a result of investigation elsewhere can hardly be abandoned now. A step backward is foolishness at this date. It is simply a sound business proposition. Sentiment can play a part sometimes. A few years ago it was aroused over the cutting down of old trees in the way of paving Murney hill. Surely the object justifies then will now say that the broad expanse we have there is a big improvement. Living more in the present than ever before days is the necessity of progressive folk.

To see what other communities have in the way of up-to-date collegiate and vocational schools proves that to train our youth in domestic and manual art qualified to step out into producing good wages is better than the exploitation of apprenticeship. Life is too short and serious for one or more men to stand in the way of others' development and higher attainment.

The writer knows well the burden of taxation of who begrudges the additional cent per pound in the thorough farm or wants to go back to antiquated times of mud and mist! In years past Belleville was confronted with the task of providing sufficient and credit able public schools, yet there was the usual opposition then and when the undertaking was referred to a speedy vote of the people of the interests for records of defeating the measure. New buildings had to be supplied eventually and at a cost two or three times as much, to gratify the whims and objection of a special large property owner who had no children of his own and cared not for the welfare and health of the rising generation.

If anyone on public life desires to shine as one absent of the times and leave behind the gratitude for services performed instead of self glorification, there is an opportunity at present to influence right-thinking reforms and better conditions for study, and in reward the patience and devotion of those who have long enjoyed to the ultimate goal still to be achieved. Every student of our midst means an expenditure for food, clothing and equipment for those who come from the surrounding territory. If the proposed scheme for a year or two of university co-operation is make-shift as has been intimated, shall we not guide our privileges and remain stationary and let other centres receive the out-flow? This is not the occasion to turn backward, rather go forward. Possibly the rink and file of our population are not aware that our night school class to have enhanced the value of many particulars and the possibilities are unlimited. United we have the support of the provincial authorities. The price is now and delay indeed will be staggering some future time if Belleville continues on same into a real city. A case of public school building for high school pupils is humiliating.

Not long ago in our city's history we were put to the expenditure of several thousand dollars against the consent or approval of other leaders by reason of the Park Board having power to levy a rate for conflicts all for necessity, but for recreation purposes. It is had been some farsighted business interest had on the city, perhaps we would have witnessed the spectacle of antagonism against that procedure.

I trust that the scope of this letter will be overlooked and the need seen. No pauperization has been done. A prophet has no honor in his own country, consequently I am content to be an underling and to sign as

WEALTHY GIRL'S ROMANTIC STORY

Marchioness of Curzon Denies the Reports of Her Daughter's Flight

London, March 14.—The report published Saturday of a romantic tiptoe from her home by the young daughter of a peeress when the mother objected to her love affair and ordered her to stay in her room, is said today to refer to Miss Marcella Duggan, daughter of the Marchioness Curzon by her first marriage.

Asked about the matter the Marchioness, however, declared:

"It is absolutely beneath contempt, beneath notice."

What probably led to the rumor was the reported engagement of Miss Duggan to Edward Horne, the London lawyer, a few days ago, but which was subsequently denied. The Marchioness Curzon said today that her daughter was spending the week-end with the Duke and Duchess of Rutland at Belvoir Castle and would return to the parental home on Tuesday.

Despite the denial by the Marchioness, News of the World will repeat the story today in the following form:

"Miss Duggan, who is not only a lovely girl but is heiress to a great part of the fortune of her late father, Alfredo Duggan, was destined by her mother to make a brilliant marriage whose wealth and beauty should be mated with great position. She, herself, like the Princess in the fairy show, preferred a young man of her own choice, and defying her mother she refused to give him up. Rumor varies as to the exact details of the ensuing quarrel, but the fact remains that Miss Duggan has left her home and is now said to be staying with friends.

"Meanwhile, the hero of the story, Mr. Rice, who has chambers in The Temple, has not been seen there in London."

written on his death.

It was positive at the time of John Smiles death that he was the Captain Smith who disappeared from the sunken George E. Marsh. Captain Smith had confided to him all the secrets of his life secrets mentioned Mohra Lodge, Belleville, and also his daughter Margaret who was a clue to the establishment of the identity of the man.

Friends Recognize Features

On leaving Mr. George Dalmage's home with the post mortem photographs, it was deemed advisable to allow old friends and relatives of Captain Smith, residing in the locality of his former home, to see them. They were similar, copies taken at the same time and in them the face was slightly rounded out with mature years. Richard Cornell the first to view the pictures said "I think it is John." Taking a side view he was positive of the identity.

Mr. James Bird, a brother-in-law, doubted the identity at first, but later became reassured when the features alone were considered by him. Mr. Bird taking another photograph of the dead man taken twenty years ago with two of his children, compared the two and was not sure at the time, however, after thinking it over, he agreed with the many who were positive.

James Meehan who had known the deceased all his life, was assured on first sight that the features was none other than Captain Smith.

"It's nobody dies but him," said Mary Ann Cleary, who had known Captain Smith and was visibly affected by the sight.

Mrs. Samantha Cousins, an aunt of Captain Smith, stated definitely that the picture was that of her nephew mourned as dead for the past ten years.

William Smith, a brother, an employee of the Taylor Bakery, said, "It resembles him alright. He resembles him in some peculiarities."

The party composed of Horace Smith and Press Reporters visited the home of Mrs. Ellen Pogue who spent some time before reaching a conclusion. She covered features by also the pictures minutely and said, "I think it is he alright."

Mrs. Cousins showed the press representatives the graves of Captain Smith's grandfather, Captain Henry Smith and there was undoubtedly a strong family resemblance.

The Picture

The photographs mailed from Harrah on the fifth of March, came directly to Belleville by air mail to the surprise and speed of delivery. Horace Smith reassured that the photographs afford definite identification left for Toronto this afternoon where he will carry the news of the solution of the ten year mystery to his sister, Mrs. Nell McGennan, who married a survivor of the wreck of the George E. Marsh.

Buried March 9th

The remains of Mr. John Smith were laid to rest in the Harrah cemetery Wednesday evening, March 9th at 5.30 p.m.

The body had been cared for at the Haun Funeral Home in Oklahoma city since death, which occurred February 22. Mr. Smith came from relatives in Canada.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. J. W. Dodd and the Rev. C. E. Fox, of the Nalarene Church. We feel it our duty to quote the following passage as spoken by the Rev. Fox during the services.

"Mr. Smith was ever willing to lend a helping hand to the churches and worthy any other cause from which was for the betterment of the town and its people. While it is not known that he belonged to any religious organization his faith in God must have been great. We are not left to be the judge of his closing but left to hope that he succeeded to meet his Maker in the Judgment."

Before the casket was lowered in the earth, the bouquets of beautiful flowers with which it was covered were removed and the casket opened to allow the last fellowmen of friends to view the corpse for the last time.

Following is a copy of the letter received from the Master of the Harrah Masons.

Mr. Georges Dalmage.

VAMP IN NEW GUISE ENTERS THE SCENE

By ELSIE MARLOWE

Solomon has been dead a long, long time, but some men are still trying to steal his stuff.

HENRY SAYS ALL HE ASKS IS HIS HOME JUST AS IT HAS ALWAYS BEEN. HE STILL WANTS AND CRAVES MY LOVE AND UNDERSTANDING, BUT HE ALSO WANTS THE RIGHT TO VISIT THE GIRL AND HAVE HER HERE.

Nothing stingy about hubby's wants, is there?

Reed the letter while I light the fire of war.

DEAR ELSIE:

My husband has a friend whom he has known since childhood. As youngsters they were jog good, jolly friends with no sentiment between them. After marriage, each went his or her way happily, and each has known the joy of an understanding mate and lovely children.

Recently they met again. I loved the girl and we became fast friends. She is free to marry once more. We have had her in our home many times and have visited her, too. On our tenth wedding anniversary, which I had planned would be such a joyous day, my mate confessed to me that he loved this friend, that he always had loved her and always would. And that he had never loved me.

I was so stunned, I fainted. I couldn't breathe. I couldn't cry. I couldn't think. For my family I have walked like one in a dream. I have cried until my heart is dry. There has been no bitterness toward either, only the terrible, aching bruise. The home goes along separately the same, week in, week out. I kiss the children good night, a kiss for daddy three times a day, bedtime stories for my darling baby girl, no quarreling, no backbiting on my part; but no relief from the awful ache.

Hubby says that all he asks is his home as it has always been.

He still wants and craves my love and understanding, but he also wants the right to visit the girl and to have her here. He has never betrayed me, except to put his arm about this girl and tell her that he loves her, and to pay some of her bills for her. She is my friend too, so I have not minded this. We have talked it all over, and she has told me frankly that she has never cared for him, but as a friend, and that his attentions embarrass her.

She says that she loves me and asked that for her friend more than she loves or needs him. She has told my husband that he does love me, but hasn't realized what real love is.

What hurts so much is that since this girl has come into our lives my husband has never once told me that he loves me, as he did every day of his life before this. Shall I, or do, accepting the bread of a man who loves another girl for the sake of my kids or shall I leave?

HEARTACHE SUE.

Look here, Sister, before we stage this argument at all, you've got to make up of it and stop making a scene of yourself. What's all this fool talk about "leaving" and "accepting" his bread? You're not "accepting" his "bread," you're earning it, and it's time you began to act as if you respected yourself and your job.

Stop acting like the Pitiful Victim in a ten-twenty-thirty melodrama and begin to get your house in order. If this woman is telling the truth when she says that she doesn't love your husband but that she has that fact in no uncertain terms to him, in front of you. If she won't do so, or he continues to bleat around, put your foot down HARD. Tell him that your status as wife is to be respected and that if it isn't he'll end as autumn color.

lose the comforts of home so fast it will make his head swim. Then take the lady in hand and tell her that if she doesn't stop plowing around your preserves you'll report her to the police, as you would any other obnoxious loafer.

If there were any indications that this is true honorable love, I would not advise such measures. You would then be facing quite a different problem. But the problem you are facing now, is largely of your own making. A middle-aged man has suddenly hit the Silly Age and is proceeding to make a mule of himself. Instead of ignoring it, or laughing it off, or staging a good healthy explosion, you take it seriously and the whole affair is magnified into a serious tragedy.

Get up and fight for your home, throw a wallop of common sense and backbone into this ridiculous mess, and you'll save the situation. But crawl around as you are at present, and soon one is sure going to step on you.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

New York reports that the tailored suit, in navy blue, sweet beige, or Oxford stripes, is an integral part of the smart spring wardrobe.

One Fifth avenue shop has had quite a success with small natural color linen hats for the South and they are supplied with kid motifs the color of the coat, while there is a new linen like straw used in this shop; perhaps it suggested the use of the linen.

The tendency in the Paris openings is to emphasize soft flattering tones, a returning stylist remarks, giving particular attention to warm flesh pinks, the old-fashioned rose tone, and beige.

A white sport dress shown in a Fifth Avenue shop window has bands of canna orange and a narrow one of brown at the hem line, for Chanel is featuring this brown tint just now—although usually it is considered a fall and autumn color.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER LXIII.

For weeks Christine remained at the bedside of her little one. She refused to leave him or to allow anyone else to care for him. She lost all idea of time. It had no meaning for her.

Her chief sent for the interview which she had been scheduled to write on the day Junior had been taken ill. She paid no attention to the messenger, dismissing him without excuses. He exasperated, saying that the chief wanted her and the whole affair is magnified into a serious tragedy.

Get up and fight for your home, throw a wallop of common sense and backbone into this ridiculous mess, and you'll save the situation. But crawl around as you are at present, and soon one is sure going to step on you.

Get up and fight for your home, throw a wallop of common sense and backbone into this ridiculous mess, and you'll save the situation. But crawl around as you are at present, and soon one is sure going to step on you.

"You're being a fool, Chris," she blurted out. "Your staying here all the time can't help the little boy. A train ed nurse would be much better, and, if you're working, you can afford to pay for one."

"You think I could leave my child to the care of another, even for one instant?" flared Christine.

Nina shrugged.

"I know it sounds cruel—but New York doesn't wait on illness or—" she had been about to say: "death," but checked herself in time.

Looking down on the wan beauty of the little sufferer, she recognized that which Christine refused to admit. For a space, unconfortable feeling Nina hated to look upon the realities of life; she wanted only the fruits. She closed her eyes to all the things that reminded her of the existence of pain and unhappiness.

Turning away, her glance fell on little Louise, who smiled at her shyly. The child's hair was untidy; her little face had not been washed that day; and her pinafore was rumpled. She looked the picture of neglect.

Nina felt a sudden impulse.

"Christ, you are neglecting this child frightfully. I'm going to wash her face and comb her hair."

With awkward, unaccustomed fingers, she performed the task and Louise assisted her in a business-like way. The child herself brought a fresh frock from the closet, slipped it over her head, and turned around to have it buttoned. When she had been done, she came close to Nina, put her little arms around her neck and pressed her soft lips against Nina's rouged cheek.

"Fank you," she murmured shyly, and added confidentially, "you smell nice."

Nina was overcome. She rose hastily.

"If I don't get out of here, I'll turn positively mawkish. I guess there is something to children after all. I understand a little better now why you are acting so unsisely, but, then, are going to be plenty of bills to pay, and if I were you, I wouldn't lose contact with other places where you can earn a little money."

But Christine paid no heed. Junior was all that concerned her. She scarcely noticed how deplet-d her purse was becoming with each trip to the drug store. She did not think to count the number of visits the doctor was making, or to weigh them against her slender resources. She did insisted upon two consultations with famous specialists.

None of them gave her any hope, but she clung desperately to the belief that Junior could not be taken from her—not if she stood guard at his bedside. By the sheer force of motherlove she would save him.

During those weeks, she scarcely remembered to buy food for herself and little Louise. In haphazard fashion, she prepared their meals, but she scarcely touched food until a warning must rouse her strength.

On a lovely spring night, when all the world was awakening to new life, Junior died and slipped away so carefully, softly, without even the flutter of a sigh, Louise was gone!

Christine, watching him, could not believe that she had lost her little son—the child she had worshipped from the hour of his birth.

When everything was over, and Junior had been laid away, Christine returned to the apartment where she immediately redecked with weeping kept watch over little Louise. Christine stared and stood. She tried to pretend to herself that he was really there still, that the events of the past few days—culminating in that last terrible hour, had been only a nightmare from which she would awake.

Louise had been as good as gold, Mrs. Blanton," the girl told her. "I think she understands what happened."

Christine said no heed. She sank into a chair and stared straight before her.

"Shall I go out and buy some things for your supper?" the girl asked sympathetically.

Christine shook her head.

"No, I can't eat."

"But Louise ought to have something."

"Oh, yes, yes," assented Christine wearily. "Give her a cup of broth, or some bread and milk—anything. Only leave me alone."

When the girl had gone, Christine walked to the window and looked out. Dusk had fallen. A crescent moon was riding high in the sky; the branches of the tree in the backyard stirred in the soft spring breeze. Christine lifted her hands in a gesture of despair.

"Why, why, why," she moaned, "did I have to love everything that was worth while in my life? There is nothing left! What is the use of living? What is the use of—anything?"

In her bitterness and despair, she was quite unconscious of Louise, who had crept softly to her and was clinging to her skirts.

SINCLAIR'S

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of eighteen in love with a young man who at first seemed to care for me. He made several dates with me and never kept them.

Do you think that he really loves me or he says he does?

He asked me not to go with other boys and I have been true to him.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

BROKEN - HEARTED: His actions have have been anything but considerate. You must make it clear to him that you do not want to make appointments and have them broken? Also tell him that it is your right to go out with other young men if you care to. You are not engaged and he has no claim upon all of your every thing.

However, from his behavior, I doubt that it is worth the effort involved to keep his friendship. It is a rather one-sided relationship, scarcely worth continuing.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am deeply in love with a young man two years my senior. He has asked me to marry him several times, but I always refused. Since my last refusal he has not come to see me.

I now find I love him very much. How can I get him to come to see me again?

LONESOME.

LONESOME: It would seem to be a case of having refused once too often. He probably has become discouraged by your attitude. I would suggest that you call him or write him a note, asking him to come to see you.

By taking the initiative, he will probably realize that you have had a change of heart. Be as nice to him as you know how. Show by your manner that he means a great deal to you. If you feel that some way about you, it won't be long before he proposes again. I doubt that there is any need to caution you not to repeat your habit of saying "no."

When Madame goes walking in this costume she feels comfortable in mind and body. For she knows she looks very smart in her frock with bolero jacket and tunic skirt, carrying a snakeskin bag to match her slippers. And since a jacketed frock like this makes a complete costume for the street, she does not feel on warm days that style still requires a top-coat. Here we see satin crepe used with the shiny side for waist and for the trimming bands of the bolero jacket. Three shades of one color may also be used in the one piece style, the darkest for bolero and tunic, the medium for waist and shirt, and the lightest for trimming bands and underskirt.

EVANGELISTS AT HOLLOWAY ST. CH.

Dr. Crossley Preached on the Ideals of Paul and God's Greatest Man

Dr. H. T. Crossley who is conducting an Evangelistic campaign in Holloway St. United Church preached to large congregations both at the morning and evening services yesterday. He was assisted by Dr. Leonard who acted as song-leader and rendered several selections himself. Dr. Crossley also joined in and they sang several duets.

The choir were also especially fine in their rendition of the various numbers.

Yesterday morning Dr. Crossley chose as his topic "The ideals of the greatest man the great God ever made". That man was Paul. He gave a short description of Paul's life and dealt touching on his persecutions and also his second letter to Timothy.

"Paul took four views namely. Inward at his heart, backward at his life, forward at his death and upward at Heaven.

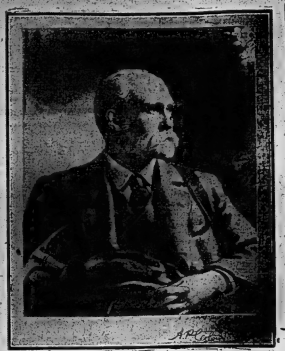

"If we can take these four views we will live happily," said Dr. Crossley. "When Paul was asked if he was ready to depart from this earth, his answer was yes." "Can we give a similar answer."

"If we accept God and have our sins forgiven we should have no fear of dying", he continued. "Lots of people have been asked are you a Christian and the reply oftentimes is, I think I am while others say, I know I am". Christ said Come Unto Me and I'll give Thee rest."

Referring to Paul's second view, looking backward at his life Dr. Crossley said, "Many people have no ideals and so, whatever way the current carries them."

"The love of pleasure, riches and honor are greater than that of a Christian life and the desire to lay up treasures for the life to come," he said. "We are given a course to follow and if we get out of that course we create discord and dissatisfaction." "Those who have no definite course are like a wandering star." "This will be the brightest day you ever knew if you give your heart to Christ." "Jesus looked forward at his death and he viewed himself as a priest to get the Crown unless we are enlisted in Christ's army." "How are we preparing to meet this new life", Dr. Crossley asked. "The real preparation is accepting Jesus as our Lord and King."

These Evangelistic services are drawing large crowds and will continue each evening throughout the coming week.

GRAY AT THROTTLE

When driving a locomotive the engineer and the fireman have many more thrills than the public knows of. Motor cars, pedestrians, broken rails and stalled trains provide so much excitement for those in charge of the engine that investigation shows most men of the throttle go gray between the ages of thirty and forty.

Frames will probably send a delegation to Canada for Dominion Day.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE CONDUCT SUNDAY SERVICE

Joseph Blackburn and Robert Orr Occupy Pulpit and Deliver Address

Joseph Blackburn and Robert Orr, two youthful orators of promise, preached remarkably fine sermons in the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church last evening when the service was taken over by the Baptist Young People's Union.

Young people of the congregation had the entire procedure of the service in their hands and proved their aptitude in filling in the places of their seniors. Members of the congregation were met at the door by four youthful ushers, Frank Cooke, Ernest Berry, Asa Lloyd and Clarence Blackburn who conducted them to the different pews.

The service opened under the direction of Miss Edna Blackburn, president of the B.Y.P.U., and Miss Mildred Lloyd led in prayer. The scriptural lessons were read by Miss Laura McKee and Miss Beatrice Weil, banks read the announcements.

The young people taking the principal part of the service sat in the chairs facing the pulpit behind a bank of ferns and lilies and the choir consisted of twenty-one members of the B.Y.P.U. and in the rear. During the service a solo by Miss Kathleen Goodmurphy was appreciated and a duet by Miss Eileen MacLaurin and Mr. Harold Hilson was a splendid contribution to the service.

The Sermon

The subject of the sermon, "A Holy Calling" was given to the boys by the pastor, Rev. Hilliard Jones, who, in introducing the youthful preachers, said that there are two callings, the external calling, heard through the preaching of the Gospel and the inner call of God's call to the immortal Soul.

In the first address, Mr. Joseph Blackburn dwelt upon the preparation made by the external call for, the inner call of God pointing out that no one can be God's disciple who does not renounce all to follow Him.

In the second address, Mr. Robert Orr dwelt upon the reasons for hearing the Holy Calling in carrying out God's command, "Be ye holy as I am."

Humility

Rev. Hilliard Jones at the close of the boys' address observed that the two addresses had filled him with a great sense of humility and said that all might learn a lesson from the fine manly addresses so thoughtfully prepared and presented. "The call," Mr. Jones reminded the congregation, "is God's secret working on the heart through the Holy Spirit. There rests upon us an obligation of holy living, thinking and reading. When we consider that God has seen fit to promise salvation for our vile bodies we should be filled with gratitude and feel an obligation of humility.

MAN DRESSES AS FEMALE, CAUGHT

Montreal, Que., March 12. (C.P.)—Masquerading as a woman, an unidentified man entered a number of houses in Outremont recently, and, on the pretext that he was a prospective tenant, was shown through them. One woman recognized the visitor as a man, despite his attempts at disguise, but before she could take any action he had left the house. The man evidently examined his activities in houses which bore a "to let" sign. Politely asking if "he might see the house," the visitor wandered about in the company of the occupant, putting a question now and then as a prospective tenant might. In one house "she" asked to use the telephone, and when permission was granted, glanced to someone, allegedly a sister, asking her to come over later in the day and look through the same house. While using the telephone, the visitor aroused the suspicions of the tenant, who warned neighbors.

ALWAYS WILL BE SQUAW

Fort Duchesne, Utah, March 14—Anausie, six-foot Ute Indian buck, for 38 years has worn the garb of a squaw and has been entirely ignored by fellow males of his tribe—became in 1887 he was a "conscientious objector," and refused to take part in a tribal raid. He now is more than 80, but he will remain a "squaw" for the rest of his life.

GREAT NEED IS DIVINE GUIDANCE

A good sized congregation turned out yesterday morning to hear a very interesting sermon by Rev. Hilliard Jones, of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

Mr. Jones took his theme from the 24th Chapter of Genesis, the 27th verse. The subject of the sermon was "Divine Guidance."

"Many people," began Mr. Jones, "worry about the guidance they are supposed to have. There is such a thing as Divine Guidance. What are the conditions upon which we may expect to be divinely guided? I have met many people who don't know what vocation to choose in life. Is there divine guidance for these people?

"One of the primary conditions for Divine Guidance is to be in God's way. God will not guide us if we go, guides people by a miracle," said the in the opposite way to our own conscience. Often the guidance that God gives is obstruction. Sometimes obstruction is guidance. We needn't be alarmed if our path seems sometimes to be obstructed."

The Rev. Mr. Jones explained if one is going to have Divine Guidance one will have to do diligently our daily task.

"If we are going to have divine guidance we must expect it. Let us ask God to guide us. Wait for that guidance and be patient. God seldom

AWARDED GOAL SPELLS DEFEAT FOR MONTREAL

Ottawa Win Over N.Y. Americans By Scoring Three In Period

Montreal, March 14.—In their own inimitable manner the Montreal Maroons absorbed another shutout defeat on home ice—their ninth of the current season—when they were beaten by the score, Toronto Maple Leafs, 1-0. A crowd of 8,000 fans turned out at the Forum Saturday night in the hope of witnessing the tickholder just about clinch third place in the Canadian section of the National Hockey League by putting the position practically out of the reach of the erstwhile New York Americans.

It was Referee Bobby Hewitson who supplied the big moment of the tidy, fairly little battle when, in the first period, he awarded a goal to the Leafs—a tally which proved the lone counter of the game, even if the puck did not go in the net. Maroons were playing four men against five at the time. Bailey, speedy Leaf centre and a Maroon castoff, broke through the weakened Montreal guard. A stick appeared loose on the ice. Bailey shot and Benedict batted. Butch Keeling attempted to poke in the rebound and again the Maroon goalie cleared the puck to safety.

Boston, March 14.—In one of the most brilliant exhibitions of hockey seen here this season the Chicago Black Hawks defeated the Boston Bruins in a National Hockey League game Saturday night 4 to 0. As the final Hawks Dye of Chicago slipped in another goal but it was not allowed on account of time.

The Bruins played a good game but the Hawks outplayed and outskated their opponents to score once in the first period, once in the second and twice in the third. The speed of the Chicago combination and their passing provided the fans with an unusual sight for a game comparatively free of rough playing.

Ottawa, Ont., March 14.—A second period rally that netted them a total of goals gave Ottawa a 4 to 3 victory over the New York Americans in a National Hockey League meeting that here Saturday night. The win increased to three full games the lead which the Senators hold in the International section of the league, and at the same time dimmed considerably the chances of the American squad catching a place in the similar play-offs for the championship.

PEGGERS HAVE NEW GOLF PRO.

Winnipeg, Man., March 12 (By C.P.) —Jack R. Reith, veteran Old Country golfer, has been retained as professional of the Pine Ridge Golf Club here for the coming year.

Mr. Reith is a new addition to Canadian Golf ranks, coming to this country after a record which gave him a prominent position in British golfing circles for nearly forty years.

He first entered the professional ranks with Alton Club in 1888. He was one of the four organizers of the British Professional Golf Associates and in 1923 was honored with the captaincy of that institution. Such famous golfers as Harry Vardon, James Braid, Ted Ray, Sandy Herd, Arnaud Massey, Willie Smith and the late Willie Park, have acted as pro-captains during Mr. Reith's regime.

OWEN SOUND GREYS SPRING SURPRISE

Toronto, March 14.—Owen Sound Greys, junior champions of the Ontario Hockey Association, sparking on all six cylinders, captured the all-Ontario championship at Arena Gardens Saturday night, by defeating Iroquois Falls, Northern Ontario Hockey Association champions, 4 to 0. The Eskimos won the first game of the series, 4 to 1, and were naturally favored to advance in the Memorial cup competition by retaining their lead in last night's game. However, they erred in the same manner which has swept so many good teams in the discard in former years. From the outset it could be easily seen that the northern champions were playing a style of hockey that savored of the defensive brand. Consequently when the Greys drew up on even terms with them on the round in the second period, the Eskimos, trying mightily to flash the brilliant offensive hockey which featured their play in the first contest of the series, found that their defensive tactics of the first period had thrown them off their stride. Never once in the game except for an occasional flash by "Mickey" McBride and Lever, could the Eskimos uncover their true offensive form.

WHITE SOX CAMP ONE OF SERENITY

But Ball Players Must Have Their Little Fun With Recruits

Shreveport, La., March 11.—The White Sox are nice boys and good ball players, and if some other ball team doesn't win the pennant in their league this year they will. But they remind you of safe, conservative six per cent. investment; a dance with your own sister; people you have known for twenty years, who have never been arrested or sued for breach of promise or personally acquainted with Senator Borah, or even with Will H. Hays.

The trouble with the White Sox is that they are well mannered, agreeable, efficient, and respectable, and after a week in their midst you realize the terrible truth that there isn't a sensational character among them unless you mean William Ananias Buckley, the reformed gangster who trains them and admits in addition to soft shell crabs, even for breakfast. Still that isn't an eccentricity to dwell on, because William Annie has states that he frequently goes six months without a soft shell crab.

A boy wandered into the dressing room of the ball club Saturday who looked as though he might be one of those quaint and amusing characters that populate the magazine fiction stories about the great national game but by the time he'd en route as the associations and the White Sox are still unanimously a ball team of young gentlemen who adhere to golf clubs at their own home towns and know how to undress in a seemly manner in the Pullmans.

The young man who wandered into the club house gave his name as J. H. Ridgeway of Sturgis, Mich., and said he had been invited by Mr. Charles A. Comiskey, the proprietor of the firm, to call it at the training site for a tryout as a pitcher, at his own expense. He had been having the winter away over in Florida and had done some training over there so his arm was in condition and he was ready to go out and throw his stuff, as he called it, at once.

He addressed Ray Schalk as Mr. Chalker, which was encouraging, and when William Ananias assembled a few gallons from the remains about the club house, asked for a pair of garters. This made Mr. Schalk suspect that the new boy was not quite ready for work in the major leagues.

When the new body asked for garters

William Ananias gave Mr. Schalk a look and Mr. Schalk gave Mr. Ridgeway a look, too. It was the same sort of look that a manager might have given a recruit who said "I'm a stranger on these grounds; could you tell me which way is left field?"

This Ridgeway boy may not have been a great ball player, but still in a manner of speaking, he looked promising. As a matter of fact he looked almost too good to be true.

But now he is gone and the White Sox are unanimously grateful, complacent, inconspicuous and personable. There isn't even a left fielder who can

WILL NOT AFFECT CANADA

Toronto, March 14.—Accordint to local coal dealers, the threatened shutdown in the Ohio coal fields on April 1 will not effect the anthracite coal supply of this city, or, as a matter of fact, any part of Canada. Ohio, they point out, is practically a bituminous coal state, and if the strike spreads to an union workers of that commodity it will cut down the Canadian supply about 35 per cent. Canadian dealers have a supply on hand for at least a month.

Montreal is threatened with a typhoid epidemic. Forty more cases were reported last week.

By "The Observer"

The mild weather of the past few days has set the bachelors talking and the season's prospects are being discussed pro and con. The one mib query in the air is in regard to the possibilities of the Central Ontario League functioning again. At the present time it appears as though the C.O.B.L. is an issue of the past. It is known that Peterboro contracted from last season's campaign with a deficit while the coffers of the Kingston team were not enhanced to any great extent. The Canadian National Club are just about even with the board, according to reports. A three-team loop was tried last summer and found to be almost a failure. It was not what the fans wanted and that is whom the clubs look to for support and they must be catered to.

Oshawa left the Central League last summer but there is a feeling in the Motor City that the Lake Shore group is not exactly what was wanted there either and there may be a chance that Oshawa might come back the C.O.B.L. if given the chance. This is the latest rumor to be going the rounds and the old four-team group may possibly be re-organized this summer. Pres. Kennedy has called the annual meeting on the 25th of March, when the matter will be discussed and it might not a bad idea to invite Oshawa to have a representative present.

Intermediate ball has been suggested but there is a feeling that Belleville fans are deserving of being treated to the senior calibre of ball. This city has in the past been regarded as one of the strongholds of the O. H. A. and why should this seeming lack of interest creep in?

The team as it is now is without a pitcher of high class calibre although Coyer is still here but he cannot be expected to bear all of the burden and another flinger and a couple of other players are needed to complete a first-squad. There is a growing feeling in some quarters to break away from the O.H.A.A. entirely and change the residence rule from the 1st of January to the 15th of May which would allow each team an opportunity to strengthen before the season gets under way. The Inter County League experienced a run-in with the parent organization on a similar question last Spring and the attitude was such that it is doubtful if it would take a great deal of persuasion to have them bookied up with the Central League and play off with the local winners each Fall in a championship series.

Undoubtedly when the O.H.A.A. changed the residence rule they made it more difficult for the small town teams to cope with the situation. It did not effect Toronto teams to any extent and players are allowed to jump from one club to another every a few weeks before the season gets under way.

Letters To The Sporting Ed.

SPORTING EDITOR,
THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.
Dear Sir:—

I see that Mr. Henry O'Byrne who is writing "Training a Champion Swimmer" for the Star, states that the crawl stroke was only discovered about 20 years ago. He has many years that word (about) covers I do not know. I want to tell Mr. O'Byrne, that he has another guess coming. The crawl stroke is a lot older than Mr. O'Byrne is old, I myself have used the crawl stroke since I was nine years old which was taught to me by my grandmother. My grandmother who was Mrs. Murphy used the crawl stroke and won the championship of Ireland. She, at that time was only 19 years old. Her maiden name was Katie Joyce. My grandmother was 87 year of age when she departed this life and has been dead about 28 years. Why is it called crawl? In answer to this 99 out of every 100 swimmers will answer by telling you on account of its crawling motion which is not true. The crawl stroke was not originated in Australia nor by any means. It came from Ireland, and the reason it is called crawl is the man who really invented the stroke was John Crawl of Sligo, hence, the stroke was called after him. Oh yes! I told you above that I have used the crawl stroke since I was 9 years old, and believe me I have voted a number of times since.

MORE MONEY WILL BE SPENT ON NATIONAL DEFENSE OF CANADA

Ottawa, Ont., March 14 (Canadian Press)—For the first time since the war the Parliament of Canada is asked to increase its expenditures for National Defence. The estimates for the fiscal year 1927-28 total $15,900,-000 which is an increase of more than $3,000,000 over last year.

The amount to be spent on Canada's permanent force remains unchanged but the militia services, the Cadet services, the Naval Service and the Royal Canadian Air Force will all receive more money this year if the estimates pass parliament. The Air Force, which has only come into existence since the war, has for several years been consolidating its location of active work with civil government departments. It has been utilized for extensive forest fire protection work, for surveying and photographing and for the detection of smuggling along the coasts. The Royal Canadian Air Force has also completed plan for the testing and licensing of civilian pilots and other matters relating to civilian flying. With the natural increase in flying activities the Air Force work has grown until this year it will require $3,800,000 to carry out the programme instead of $1,500,000 voted last year.

The 1928 programme of the Air Force calls for a native work in survey of potential municipal airdromes and the construction of two new flights of strictly military planes. In the past the idea had to exist that planes with a view to civilian work but the present plans are for one flight of army co-operation planes and one flight of fast single seater scout planes.

The Royal Canadian Navy since the war has been maintained only as a skeleton force. There have been two destroyers and some mine sweepers kept in active service and the remainder of the million and a half dollars devoted to this branch has been spent on the training of Naval Booklet free, Dominion School Rail- Interests in various Canadian cities. This year the navy gets $1,725,000 which is an increase of $230,000.

For the training of cadets in the schools of Canada an extra $100,000 is set aside in the 1927 28 estimates, making the total amount for this purpose $600,000. The cadet services are invariably the subject of sharp debate in the House of Commons where the Progressives, farmer group, never fail to express their opposition to military preparations as a whole and to the training of boys in particular. Miss Agnes MacPhail, the only woman member of the Commons, is usually one of the most outspoken in the Progressive attack on the Defence department estimates. Usually 110,000 to 115,000 cadets receive a few days training in Canada each year.

The non-permanent militia also receives an increase in the estimates for the coming fiscal year. Since the war about a million and a half dollars have been set aside annually for militia training but this year over $2,000,000 is to be voted for these peace time military units. The paper strength of the militia is about 125,000 units. The paper strength of the militia is about 125,000, though the number trained annually is far below that number. Many of the historic regiments are maintained partly through the private contribution of their officers.

Canada's permanent Force of barely 4,000 of all ranks will remain unchanged at a cost of $4,800,000, during 1927-28. This force includes 340 officers who are highly trained and capable of undertaking commands in several branches of military work.

WINDSOR WOMAN 108 YEARS OLD

Windsor Ont., March 12.—To have lived long past the allotted span has been the good fortune of Mrs. Margaret McRae, who has just celebrated her 108th birthday. Born in Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, of hard pioneer stock, she was brought by her parents to Three Rivers, Quebec, and finally to Victoria County where most of her life was spent. Her father combined the occupation of farmer and school teacher. She was the mother of 12 children, of whom two are now living. The stirring events of the days of the Rebellion of 1837, Confederation and subsequent political events are quite familiar to her.

The commission appointed to make a scientific survey of youthful crime conditions in Chicago's various loiting centres reports that almost half the youths who grow up in the environment of the downtown district are associated with the criminal "gangs." For hundred and forty- three out of every thousand land in the county. The survey only included youths between the ages of 11 and 17.

REGENT THEATRE

Richard Barthelmess encountered many experiences of make-up during the filming of "The White Black Sheep," which comes to the Regent Theatre today and Tuesday.

As a British soldier in Palestine who disguises as the beggar of Kefr Saba, Barthelmess was required to wear a full-fledged beard.

Dick had to wear the garb of an Arab beggar, for several weeks during which he was chased by Arab troops, beaten up by a Greek cafe owner, imprisoned in a dreary dungeon, and locked in and up to his neck as a target for spear-throwers in a hair-raising torture scene.

Aside from these physical tribulations undergone by Barthelmess, the story itself inflicted upon him such mental trial as discovering his fiance (Dorothy Gish) being ejected from home by his father, and being branded a deserter.

Of course, all are mistakes.

Advance reports claim for Barthelmess new histrionic achievements in "The White Black Sheep" which Sidney Olcott directed. The cast is of exceptional proportions with Patsy Ruth Miller playing the leading feminine role.

BELLE THEATRE

A star supporting a star! How true this adversiement and situation might have been foreseen. In "Risky Business," Vera Reynolds' latest Belle starring vehicle, coming to the Belle theatre today and Tuesday, Ethel Clayton, for years one of the screen's most brilliant luminaries heads the supporting cast.

Only an actress of Miss Clayton's personality and ability could portray the role open to the young and beautiful mother of Vera, in "Risky Business." The mother role is a sympathetic one, yet she is also the villainess of the story, inasmuch as she craftily supplies most of the dramatic conflict that bars the young lovers of the story from their happiness, until the "fadeout kiss."

Miss Clayton played in stock in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, for several years, and joined the motion picture industry in the days of the two-reeler. Among her outstanding pictures are "The Lion and the Mouse," "The Great Divide," "Dollars and the Woman," "Wings of Youth," and "Light Eternal." She was starred for several years.

With Miss Reynolds and Miss Clayton in "Risky Business" are Zasu Pitts, Kenneth Thomson, Ward Crane, Lewis Sathoyer, George Irving and Louise Calso. Alan Hale directed the picture.

Montreal, March 14.—Expressing displeasure in the heat of an argument yesterday, Mrs. Mary Jannese, colored, of 229 St. Antoine street kicked her foot through a front window and then ran out on the street where she collapsed from the effects of the exertion. Brock, East Whitby township farmer, was fined $20 and costs by Magistrate A. F. Hind last evening in police court. The car was brought to a quick stop and the wheels did not touch the girl, who collapsed when she attempted to get up.

ALASKA BIDS FOR PULP LEADERSHIP

Two New Flights of Military Plans and Increased Grants

Washington, March 14 (Canadian Press).—Canada's position as the largest exporters of newsprint is threatened by the move just launched to make Alaska a big producer of newsprint. "Mills on American soil, using American timber and supplying American paper users is the avowed object of the United States Government, which has offered for sale ten billion board feet of soft timber in Alaska. The establishment in the far northern state of paper mills of at least 300 tons capacity is a condition of the sale.

The Government tracts offered for sale consist of two reserves of 5,000,000,000 board feet each. One is near Juneau and the other near Ketchikan. They will be open for bids on April 25 and April 16 respectively. Companies tendering are invited to bid at the same time for permits to exploit water-power sites nearby. Tenderers must undertake to develop the water powers and erect mills of at least 200 tons capacity in each place. Capital expenditure of from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 is implied in this carrying out of each project.

In return the Government offers to sell enough timber to supply a 500-ton paper mill on each site, running 250 days a year for fifty years. Secretary of Agriculture Jardine estimates that there is room in Alaska for five or six plants in this capacity, and that there is timber and power resources enough to maintain perpetually an industry producing at least 1,000,000 tons of paper annually, more than a quarter of the annual consumption of newsprint in the United States.

The Government is planning for a permanent Alaska paper industry of this size," the Government's announcement says, adding that the Panhandle can furnish 78,000,000,000 feet of hemlock and spruce, with adequate water powers and sheltered channels of approach, open the year round.

The desire of the department, it is said, is to develop the resources of Alaska and to supply the users of newsprint in the Eastern United States where "scarcity of available timber close to cheaply developed water power has prevented the growth of paper makips in recent years and has led to the establishment of new mills in Canada and Newfoundland instead of in the United States."

It is understood that the department also has under consideration a new machine invented to make newsprint out of hardwoods and semi-hardwoods. It is claimed that this machine will make commercial wood-pulp out of the gum trees of the southern states and the ash and aspen plentiful in the states farther north.

EXPECTS SURPRISES IN NEAR FUTURE

London, March 12.—A new chemistry the Canstonese along a wide front with the object of capturing Shanghai is blocked for within a week by rebels, authorities in Shanghai, says a despatch to the Daily Mail from its special correspondent. Sir Austen Chamberlain asserts that the future in China is likely to be full of surprises but gives no hint as to that nature.

George Bernard Shaw, known as a strict vegetarian, fell from grace when he was seen eating caviare in a London restaurant.

Guelph, Ont.—"I caught a severe cold and could not seem to get rid of it. It just clung to me and finally settled in my bronchial tubes causing me a lot of trouble. The cough would be more severe at night than during the day, causing sleeplessness. I finally decided I would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and by the time I had taken one bottle I was entirely relieved of the bronchial tube-cough. Cough, distressing and I have had no trouble with a cough since. I do not think a person can take anything better for bronchial weakness or deep-seated coughs than 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"—Miss Mary Deguire, 170 Ontario St.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"I am very sorry if I seem to have been rude, intrusive," he said, still more coldly, "as you put outside the house this evening; you turned back suddenly, as if you did not want to be seen by your friend was with me, you will remember; and just now you appeared to be waiting for some one and turned back when you saw me, just as you did before. Naturally, I jumped to the conclusion that you wanted to speak had some business with one of us."

She stood staring at him in suspicously, defiantly, her hand clutching at her dress, as if to still the beating of her heart.

"You're very clever," she said, with an attempt at a scornful smile. "Oh, very clever! But if I did want to speak to any one, it wasn't to you. Say, I'll trouble you to mind your own business, I don't know you — you don't know me—"

"I apologize," said Traverz, raising his hat. His face was beating fast, but with a different emotion from that of the girl. "You say that I am clever. Do you think you sufficiently so to be able to guess your name?"

"My name!" she repeated, with the sudden passion of resentment and yet fearfully. "What's my name got to do with you? Let me pass."

Traverz had taken a wealthy step in front of her, and she raised her hand as to thrust him away. He caught the hand, and, still holding it, bent to her and said, in a low voice:

"Should I guess? Shall I say what is—Phenie?"

CHAPTER XII.

THE TEMPTER.

"It is—Phenie?"

She stood perfectly still, the flash of resentment faded from her face, leaving it deadly white, save where two scarlet spots four in the eyes which were upturned to his, and he saw her draw herself together as if shrinking from a blow. "How do you know? What did you?" she panted, almost inaudibly. "You're a stranger to me—"

"I am not quite a stranger to me, Miss Phenie," said Traverz, still coldly, but with a note of power in his voice as if he had got her there and she were powerless to escape. "By the way what is your other name?"

Phenie, as if the blow fanned the words mechanically, under the bell-like smile of his dark eyes she was like a creature hypnotized.

"Ah, Wilde!" he said, as if he had heard it before, but had forgotten it. "They are both pretty names. Phenie Wilde." He repeated them very softly still, but there was something in his tone which brought the blood to the white face; her eyes flashed up at him, and she caught her underlip as if she were thinking what to say.

"I don't see why you should be so interested," she said, in a low voice. "Unfortunately, the park is closed, but there is a quiet wood near here where we can have a little talk. Will you come? We have a little talk, aren't we, Miss Phenie—"

She walked beside him, her head erect, her brows drawn, her lips set; she looked like a wild animal, trapped and overmastered, yet ready to fight if the chance were given it.

Traverz lit a cigarette and smoked for a little while in silence. It seemed to him as if fate were playing into his hands, and his acute brain was already weaving a little plot, in which this girl might be made to play a part. The plot was vague, indefinite, absolutely in embryo at the present moment, but he felt assured that it would grow and become effective.

"Now," he said pleasantly, "tell me all about it."

"Tell you all about what?" she said fiercely. "Say mister, if you think you can hold me up and force me to tell you things that I don't want to, you make a big mistake. I'm not that sort; I'm not a child."

"And yet you are, you know, my dear Phenie," he retorted. "All women are children, when they're in your case. But I will tell you why you are going to open your heart, to me—"

$ ABOUT PRICES $

Of course, QUALITY comes before PRICE, and whether or not you are getting a bargain when you buy depends on many things besides the price at which the article is marked. A piece of beautiful linen may be a bargain even though it costs many dollars, and a dress at only $2.98 may be an expensive purchase. Value must be considered. But to nearly all of us the actual prices we pay for things are of immense importance.

Almost everyone in the vicinity of Belleville knows about "Ritchie" quality—that when you want something specially good, the distinction of which is unquestioned, you can buy here with confidence. Perhaps what is not so well known—we believe this because of comments made by visitors to the Store—is the fact that besides the more exclusive lines, we do carry a large stock of lower-priced goods. With increased buying power, we are able to give better values than ever and we guarantee that we sell at as low a price for the same goods as any other store in Canada. This statement is very carefully considered.

If for any reason you are dissatisfied with purchases made here, or are convinced that the same goods may be bought more cheaply elsewhere, we will gladly refund your money or make any adjustments necessary. The old-time quality is here, for we buy only from the most reliable manufacturers—careful comparison will prove to you that our prices, too, are the best.

WORLD'S WORST WARSHIPS MIGHT STAGE NOVEL NAVAL ENGAGEMENT

Chinese Squadron Deserts to the Enemy When Pay is Behind

ALL OBSOLETE

Commander Orders Loyal Ships to Give Battle to Renegades

Peking, March 15.—The defecting of the navy of Shanghai, in which the Yangtze squadron of seventeen vessels went over in its entirety to the Cantonese, has not affected the war situation up to present, except to add to the mounting toll of treachery another treacherous incident. The squadron, the best ships of which are two vessels of three thousand tons, thirty years old, which changed masters when ever the present master becomes tired of his paymaster for a flock of obsolete craft, declared its "independence" after a quarrel with the Shantungese over the latter's monthly subsidy. It is at present lying off Woosung, flying the Nationalist flag.

The Nationalists hope that the ships will be lured to out of the retreat of Shantung towns if they are forced to cross the Yangtze river. Shantungese are paying little attention to the incident, although it is reported that Chang Tung Chang, their commander, has ordered the still loyal squadron in the south to give battle. In the unlikely event that the two squadrons clash, the spectacle would be presented of an engagement between the world's most antiquated fleets. It is pointed out, however, that hitherto enemy and not gunshames invariably have decided Chinese naval issues.

SAW CAPT. SMITH AFTER THE WRECK

Mrs. Luscomb Recognized Him in Toronto But He Avoided Her

"It is the most ridiculous thing I ever heard and it is easy to understand that it came from someone not responsible," Mrs. Keegan, 29 Wharf Street, a cousin of the late Captain Smith, told you. The intelligence this morning in reference to the comment of a Kingston mariner who stated that he doubted if Captain Smith ever sailed on the George E. Marcy or Inkerman voyage. Mrs. Keegan, whose father, the late Captain George Coutts was one of those who lost their lives, related how William Smith, the 4th Captain's brother, waved to him as he was approaching about to sink at 5 o'clock on the morning of August 8th, 1917. He in all probability made shore and went to the States.

She recalled how Mrs. Luscombe, Dundas Street, saw Captain Smith some time after his reported death by drowning, in Toronto where he was sitting in a restaurant. When Mrs. Luscombe looked at him he dropped his head as if to avoid identification but she met him again coming out of an hotel and as she strove to speak to him he dodged amongst the crowd and got away.

Reverting again to the story of the Kingston mariner, Mrs. Keegan said, "What could be more far fetched than to think that a man would put his wife and family on the boat and desert them. As to the manning of the boat at the time there were two other Captains, my father, Captain George Cousins and Captain Watkins, both of whom knew the lake from many years' sailing and they could have taken the helm and never have let the late hinted at overtake it. Both the captains on board had solid cedar boats but sailed with Captain Smith for the love of the life on the water."

The little fellow who was being pushed along the road in a cart suffered some injuries when struck and thrown to the side of the road. According to the driver of the car another youth who was piloting the cart attempted to propell it across the road in front of the approaching car with the result that it was struck by the fender.

He was taken to his grandmother's home and had recovered sufficiently to be taken home this afternoon.

COL. W. N. PONTON OPPOSED PLANS

Thinks Adequate School Could be Built for Much Less Money

Another short but stormy special meeting of the Board of Education was held last night for the purpose of passing a resolution withdrawing last week's resolution and a new one presented in its place.

The new resolution contains specific figures required to build the Collegiate, Vocational School, etc., instead of asking for the money in a lump sum.

As before, everything was going smoothly, the resolution all framed and, ready to be passed when Colonel W. N. Ponton, the one jagged rift in a smooth sea, arose to speak.

"I wish to say to this Board," the Col. stated "that every step should be done absolutely right. I honestly believe that I am working for the Collegiate Institute."

"I say again, gentlemen, you will be well advised not to ask the City Council for $520,000," the speaker thundered. "I honestly believe as a member of the Council will accept the responsibility without putting it to the people."

Mr. Bailey rose to objection.

The Colonel maintained that last night's meeting was not a "special" meeting at all, as in the notice sent to the members, there was nothing stated as to what the meeting was called for.

Mr. Bailey repeated that if the Chairman of the Board called a meeting he reason for calling the aforesaid meeting was not needed.

Having to speak once more the Colonel said, "I again voice my opposition to the amount asked for and ask the Board to go to the necessity of reducing the sum in question to $520,000.

LEOPOLD'S PLEASANT PLAN TO POISON PRISON GUARDS

Chicago, March 15.—A plot to empty Joliet penitentiary of its twelve hundred inmates by the wholesale slaughter by poisoning of the guards has been revealed to prison authorities and Chicago police by paroled convicts. The plot, set for execution next Saturday, is the third of a series behind all of which now looms the youthful sinister figure of Nathan Leopold, Jr., plotter and executor of the murder of little Bobbie Franks in Chicago. Leopold is not implicated directly with the latest escape plot, as told to officers by Leo Delgada, paroled convict, but it was Leopold's original plotting, Delgada said, that inspired the scheme to evacuate the penitentiary next Saturday by killing all the guards with arsenic.

Belleville Faces Many Uncontrollable Items in Near Future

Before leaving for his recent short vacation in England and France, Mayor Wilmot put his views on the new Collegiate and vocational school in letter form to be read to the City Council in case the question came up before he returned home. This letter was never used because the Mayor cut short his trip in order to be present at the final disposition of this much discussed matter.

Much of the material of his letter is just as applicable as it was when it was written to-day. He has put in fact the Mayor quoted extracts and figures from it in his address to the council last night.

Not Opposing School

Mr. Wilmot makes his attitude clear as not opposing the erection of a school but he thinks that in view of the heavy uncontrollable expenditures facing the city in the immediate future the expenditure should be consulted as to whether they wished to invest something over half a million dollars in a new collegiate.

Mr. Wilmot pointed out that already one hundred and nineteen thousand dollars had been spent and was still to be raised in the city's debt. Belleville is also facing the spending of one hundred and ninety thousand dollars on East Plant improvements approximately one hundred and fifty thousand on a water filtration plant and seventy-five thousand for the Bay Bridge as well as smaller amounts for sewers and sidewalks.

The spending of this money is not optional with Belleville and the payers simply must find the money for these things and the total is four hundred and eighty-five thousand

Dominion Day to Open Season—Deer Shooting to be Earlier

Toronto, March 15.—The Fish and Game committee of the Legislature this morning decided to recommend to the Legislature that the deer season south of the Transcontinental be opened on October 10 instead of October 20 as in the regulation at the present time. The season will close on november 30 as before. None of the changes are in the nature of a result from the same as in previous years.

Some opposition to the change developed among some of the members who felt that the earlier season would make it difficult to keep the deer from spoiling. The committee also passed a recommendation which will result in the bass season opening on the first of July instead of on June 15 as formerly. H. H. McKay, Biologist of the Government department addressed the members briefly on the studies that had been made of the habits of the bass. The committee made no change in the regulations in connection with duck shooting, the bag limit and the hours of shooting and other regulations being left as the law now stands.

PEACHES REPORTED TO BE COMPLETELY OUT OF LUCK

New York, March 15.—The New York American today says that Edward W Brownlee has won his suit for separation against his youthful bride, Frances Peaches Heenan Browning and that she has lost her counter suit and all chances of alimony. The American says it has obtained authoritative advance information of the opinion of the Supreme Court Justice Seagar, who tried the case.

White Plains, N.Y., March 15.—Supreme Court Justice Seagar who presided in the recent Browning separation suit trial, today characterized as "a lie" the published report in the New York American that he had rendered a decision in the case.

COUNCIL PASSES BYLAW GRANTING MONEY TO BUILD NEW COLLEGIATE

Refuses to Let Matter Go to Rate Payers For Decision—Four Oppose the Motion—Mayor Wilmot and Aldermen Donahue, Cherry and Tice Favor Vote—Ald. A. B Collins Absent on Private Business—Many Citizens Address Aldermen.

A new Collegiate Institute and Vocational School will be erected in the city and building operations will commence this year. The first step was taken last evening when the City Council passed a by-law authorizing the sale of debentures to the amount of $550,294.84, for the purpose.

Our city's share of this amount is estimated at $320,000.-00, the remainder being borne by the Provincial Government and the adjoining counties. The city must issue debentures for the full amount and the shares of the other parties will be turned over to them in due course.

The by-law was passed by a unanimous vote of the Council A. B. Collins being the only alderman absent.

Col. Ponton Opposes Plan

Immediately on the opening of the session, several members of the Board of Education and citizens spoke to the Council in reference to the grant. Col. W. N. Ponton was the only member of the School Board opposing the grant. His contention was that a new school is badly needed but it might be erected at a smaller cost than the one proposed in the present plans and specifications.

There was a feeling in some quarters that the by-law should be submitted to a vote of the people; and four members of the Council were in favor of taking this step.

Favors Rate Payers'-Vote

Mayor Eardley Wilmot assumed the chair after a month's absence spent in Europe—he having arrived home late yesterday afternoon. Mayor Wilmot was one of those in favor of putting it to a vote of the taxpayers.

Following the speeches by the outsiders the Council with Alderman Wotton in the chair, introduced the original recommendation, as follows:

RECOMMENDED that the City Council should accede to the request of the Board of Education and pass the necessary by-law to raise by an issue of debentures the sum of $550,294.-84 and be submitted to the Council for passing.

Ald. Donahue's Amendment

Before a vote was taken, Ald. William Donahue introduced an amendment to the recommendation, that an election and a vote of the property owners be taken on the question of raising five hundred and fifty thousand two hundred and ninety-four dollars and eighty-four cents for the purpose of building a High and Vocational school.

The amendment was voted on first and the result was Yeas—Mayor Wilmot, Ald. Tice, Cherry and Donahue.

Nays—Ald. Craig, Proctor, Sinclair, Gorman, Walker, Hyde, (Ald. Wotten in the chair and Ald. Collins absent.)

Pass Board's Recommendation

Then the Recommendation to accede to the request of the School Board was voted upon and the result was the same with the exception of Mayor Wilmot and Ald. Tice, who cast their vote in favor of the measure. The by-law for the sale of debentures was then introduced and the Council were unanimous.

Following the passing of the by-law John Elliott, chairman of the Board, said: "This is the happiest moment of my life." He thanked the Council for the confidence they had shown and he extended an invitation to each one of them to attend his banquet at the Quinte next Monday night.

Mayor Wilmot. "No one has worked as consistently as you have to attain this end."

At the opening of the Council session the members of the Board of Education were invited to present their case to the Mayor and Aldermen. Mr. John Elliot, chairman of the Board, opened the proceedings.

"During the past number of years the Board of Education have been doing what they could to improve the Educational facilities in this city. When I came here none of the present buildings had been erected and since that time four have been erected and these are a credit to the city. The time has come when action must be taken to build a school. $550,000 will give us a school that would accommodate 1000 to one thousand people. The Board has decided to build a school on the present site and were unanimous with one exception in the request to ask the City for $520,000 to go ahead with the proposition."

Mr. Elliot quoted "If the school is built for $400,000 what have we got?" "We have no vocational school and that is what the Provincial Government will give us a grant for."

"It is a serious matter to ask for so much money although it has been talked of for some years and it is known far and wide that Belleville needs a new Collegiate Institute." "Are we going to say we need a new school but the financial condition of our city will not warrant it." "The present pupils are those who will have to pay a goodly portion of the sum needed."

Continuing Mr. Elliot said "We will be one of the lowest assessed cities in the Province even after the school is built." Belleville still kept to the front in Educational facilities. If fire were ever

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Thank God every morning that you have something to do that day which must be done whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and do your best will breed in you a manful vigour which the idle never know.—Charles Kingsley.

THE NEW SCHOOL

Last night the City Council accepted the responsibility of voting the money for a new Collegiate and Vocational School. Aldermen Donahoe moved an amendment to have the question submitted to the rate payers for decision and was supported in his stand by Mayor Wilmot and Aldermen Cherry and Tice. On the second vote on the main motion the Council voted nine to two to provide the money, Donahoe and Cherry voting against and Alderman Collins being absent. Ald. Weston was in the chair and did not vote.

Thus the question is settled. We are to have the new school, which is admittedly needed, but the people who have to provide the money are to have no say in the matter.

Mayor Wilmot took the only reasonable possible view of the situation. He expressed no opposition to the building of the Collegiate but pointed out that the Council the odd hard facts that already $185,000 had been spent but not funded in the city's debt and that Belleville faces an absolutely unconscionable expenditure of $485,000 more for the Gas Plant, a Filtration Plant, the New Bridge and for sidewalks and sewers. These moneys have to be spent and in consideration of this the Mayor took the ground that the ratepayers should be permitted as to the spending of an additional half million on a new school. Ald. Dr. Proctor stated that he was closest to handle the city's business and thought he had enough intelligence to do so. Perhaps he has, but when such large sums of other people's money are at stake it would have been wiser to consult them.

In fact the majority of the Council and the Board of Education ignored and evaded the real issue altogether. It seems that a new school is desirable—the point was, do the people who have to pay the bills feel able to afford it. It is quite true that many of the biggest tax payers in Belleville are quite enthusiastic over the proposition and apparently are going to get a lot of pleasure over paying the increased tax, but we are not particularly thinking about them. As Mr. John Elliot said, they are not going to miss the twenty or fifty or a hundred dollars a year they will be called on to contribute but there are many families to whom an extra ten dollars on their tax rolls is a matter of real concern. They ought to have had an opportunity of voting on the spending of their money.

A TIMBER FAMINE

"A review of the forestry situation throughout the world leads to the conclusion that available supplies of the principal timbers of commerce are rapidly approaching exhaustion," states the Imperial Forestry Institute in its recent annual report.

So far as the Empire supply of timber is concerned the situation is said to be just as serious. It might have been supposed that an Empire with a total forest area of nearly 2,000,000 square miles should have been able to supply its own needs from its own resources. But as matters stand, authorities state it cannot. A large part of this area has been depleted by wasteful methods of working, and the most careful management and organization will be required before the waste of the past can be made good.

Even in discussing Canadian supplies the report of the Imperial Forestry Institute is not encouraging. From Canada, it states, largely drained of its softwoods by the wood-pulp industry, little is to be expected. Each year fire, waste, and needs destroy more timber than across and only 37 per cent. of the original forest is left. East of Winnipeg much of the new-mill timber has already been consumed, and in British Columbia, it is estimated that the virgin softwood resources cannot last more than 25 years.

The need for practical co-operation between the various parts of the Empire is stressed in the report; and the establishment of an Imperial Forestry Bureau, to act as a clearing house for information is strongly urged upon the several governments. It remains therefore, for Canada, the leading timber country of the Empire, to take the next step.

NOT RECONCILABLE

At Arppear recently a former Accountant for a power and milling company was sentenced to a year at the Burwash prison farm for the admitted embezzlement of $10,000. The Brantford Expositor points out that in comparison with what many others have received for comparatively trivial offence the sentence was light and severely criticizes the recorder of the city. The Expositor goes on to remark that the discrepancies in the severity of sentences for similar offences are "very noticeable, and invariably raise questions in the minds of the people."

Canada has an enviable record for the administration of justice, but it must be admitted that there are often discrepancies in the sentences imposed which are difficult to reconcile with the idea of complete impartiality. Part of the explanation is to be found, no doubt, in the different views entertained by different judges and magistrates as to the enormity of an offence; but sometimes an unconfortable feeling is left with the people.

FRUIT AND FRUIT

At the fruit-growers' convention recently held in Hamilton the complaint was made that too much citrous fruit—oranges and grapefruit—and lemons are being used in Canada to the neglect of good Canadian apples and other fruit. The trade returns from Washington show that there is some ground for the complaint. Canada, it is reported, is the best customer for the citrous fruits of the United States, as the value of the exports of such fruit to the country increased last year by over a million dollars. The value in 1926 was $6,000,000. Unlike Canada, we are practically, Canada's source of supply.

The good Canadian apple deserves honorable mention as a wholesome food; upon the whole, it is more to be desired, as a health-giving food, that either the orange or grapefruit; but both species of fruit are required in the dietary of the Canadian people—plenty of both. If we ate fruit and vegetable in due ment we would be a healthier people.

But why should we get all our citrous fruit from the United States? West India oranges are more luscious than the best that are grown in California and Florida, and Jamaica is not much further distant than the American orange groves. Now that vessels are being specially constructed for the Canada Mediterranean Service, to be used in the winter in the Canada-West India trade, perhaps we shall soon be able to testify from experience how much superior is the Jamaican orange to the which comes from across the border.

SHREDDED WHEAT CO. BUSINESS IN CANADA GROWING

Increased Business of This Canadian Co. Permits Lower Prices

At the annual meeting of The Shredded Wheat Company held Tuesday, March 8th, the report submitted to the stockholders shows that the sales of Shredded Wheat in Canada last year were the greatest in the history of the Company, and together with the net profits, shows the regular increase that is always characteristic of The Shredded Wheat Company.

The Directors were re-elected as follows: William C. Breed, New York City; Paul A. Schoellkopf, Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Robert W. Pomeroy, Buffalo, N.Y.; George A. Mitchell, Buffalo, N.Y.; Lancey Rankine, Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Ogden L. Mills, New York City; Ogden M. Reid, New York City. The Canadian vacancy on the Board caused by the death of Sir Henderson, Vice-President of the Bank of Toronto, was filled by the election of Dr. Charles W. Colby of Montreal. The new director, Doctor Colby, may very properly be referred to as one of the most distinguished citizens of Canada; he is an historian of wide reputation; he is the honorary president of the Historical Society of McGill University; chairman of the Board of the Holnesses Typewriter Company; director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Wm. A. Rogers, Ltd., American Sales Book Company, F. M. Burt Company, Ltd. and Pacific Burt Company, Ltd.

Of interest to Canadians is the report of The Canadian Shredded Wheat Company. Since 1904 the parent Company has operated the Canadian Shredded Wheat Company as a subsidiary, but it is now a real Canadian industry, Shredded Wheat for Canadian consumers is made in Canada of Canadian wheat, by Canadian labor, All supplies and labor are purchased in Canada notwithstanding the fact that an additional expense was placed on the Company owing to the smaller volume of its purchases and the fact that the cost of supplies in Canada was greater than bringing them from the American plant. It has had never been possible, therefore, to have the same selling price in Canada as in the States. But commencing March 1 such will be the case. With the very satisfactory increase in sales in Canada the Directors decided to increase the Canada plant to meet the demand. Wheat elevators were completed early last year and a new power house has just been put into operation. The plans for a new, beautiful, sanitil factory have been approved by the Directors and construction will start in the near future.

Children will respect parental discipline if they are so taught in early life. That is obvious. That children are made good or bad in the home is not a debatable question. That there are a lot of bad parents, and parents only the corollary of the fact that there are a lot of bad parents. Bad parents bad children, broken laws, time in the penal institutions, that is the story of the majority of those who are today behind bars. Meantime, for the children who are capable of doing a bit of thinking on their own account, there is scant for thought in the sequence of ideas in the old commandment: "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."—Detroit News.

SLAYER STATES BUSH ROMANCE CAUSED MURDERS

Huntsville, Texas, March 15.—(A.P.)—George Hassell, confessed slayer of 13 persons, believed that a broken romance was responsible for the queer spirit in his make-up which led him to deeds of violence.

Convicted and sentenced to death in January for the murder of his wife and stepchildren, Hassell told the story of his life shortly afterward and developments which directly point to the bodies of a woman and two children whom he had killed and buried under a house in Whittier, Cal., several years ago. The bodies of the wife and nine stepchildren were found in a dugout on Hassell's farm near Farwell, Texas.

When he was 18 years old, Hassell said, he fell in love with a young woman in Buffalo Gap, Taylor county Texas. He married her in December, 1900 and moved to Abilene, Texas. Next he moved to Fort Worth where he was in night watchman, and then to a farm near Hobart, Okla. He sent his wife and their baby son to Winters, Texas, while he went on to Oklahoma.

"We promised to write every day when we parted," Hassell said. "I wrote her a week apart before I heard from my wife. Then I received a letter. It stated she was through with me. That ended my life."

"I joined the army and deserted to join the navy in California. But I loitered to see my wife and baby while in the navy, so I beat it back to Abilene. She still refused to have anything to do with me, so I went back to California and rejoined the army.

"Army politics are strange. One position and you're a hero. Next you're in the guard house. I simply can't explain it. I was in the army a few days, and he himself asked for a discharge. He said he was a 'Bolshevik.' He had been AWOL. His trial lasted only a few minutes. He got the death penalty.

"Then I was sent to Leavenworth prison. I was there seven years in the army prison, the old longing to see the wife and child came over me, and I planned to return to Oklahoma. But my wife wouldn't answer my letters."

Time after time, Hassell said, he returned to Texas in the hope of seeing his wife and child, and once he married another, women because she had a boy that resembled his. Finally, he said, he gave up, after his wife had driven him away from her home and one son had thrown rocks at him. He said he married five times after that, but loved only the first wife.

Wandering around the country, Hassell received word at New Orleans that his brother had died from the kick of a mule at Lawton, Okla. A sister requested him to go there to finish his brother's crop.

He went to Lawton, married his sister-in-law, and assume the care of his brother's nine children. After a short time, they moved to Farwell, where the tragedy occurred in December.

Hassell never gave any reason for the killings.

"I may be wrong up here," he said in answer to a question, tapping his forehead. "But I don't know why I killed them. I simply can't say."

ENTRIES SPEED UP FOR SEED FAIR

Both in quality and quantity the entry list at the Quinte Area Seed Fair are exceptional, more seed and a better grade than ever shown has been having been listed. The exhibit which opens on Thursday March 17th should tend to show the farmer what many advantages of sowing No. 1 seed.

The potato entry, Mr. McPherson states, is not large but in the list for this department does not close until the 16th it will fill up before the fair commences.

Outside of the great collection of grain clover and grain seeds, the Society has procured a Canadian exhibit which has just returned from the exhibition at Kansas City, the exhibit being put on by the Federal Department of Immigration. The course of this exhibit should not be passed over as they will exhibit a great art in color schemes from seeds produced in Canada.

Attendants will be there to answer the many questions which are bound to accrue from those on exhibit alone.

Moving pictures including the making of seed, binder twine, power farming, educational reels and reels advertising Canada will be run Thursday and Friday evening and in more (time).

Agriculturists should not fail to attend the auction sale at 2.15 Saturday when they will be able to obtain a change of seed of high quality at a fair price.

Of interest to Belleville Agriculturers and canning factory growers will be the lecture at 11.15 Saturday on the corn borer by H. G. Crawford of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

ICE BANKED UP

Danger of a flood here has practically passed and though the ice is jamming at the railroad bridge it is not causing any great consternation to the city authorities. The Moira is flowing pretty clear from Corbyville to Belleville. At Canifton the ice is banked up against the dam in considerable quantities but the water has not risen to any dangerous heights and no serious results are expected. It is believed that the present warm weather will aid in dislocating the jam.

MOOSE ARE FLOURISHING

Splendid progress in every line was reported at the regular meeting of Belleville Lodge No. 31, Junior Order of Moose, on Monday night and four new candidates were initiated into the Order. Previous to the splendid banquet at which the members sat down after the meeting, the officers elected for the ensuing year were: Dictator, J. D. Carmichael; Vice Dictator, W. J. Dougherty; Prelate, A. Hoggard; Secretary, Lewis Dutton; Treasurer, Bert Graham; Sergt.-at-Arms, Fred Fahey; Inside Guard, Jack Gotham; Trustees, Frank Bowyer, P. Smith.

5 NEW KIWANIS MEMBERS TODAY

Today was Irish Day of Kiwanis, and Irish songs, capably rendered by Kiwanian James Bankier together with appropriate decorations, and even Irish eyes, were a few of the features by which Kiwanian commemorated the day of St. Patrick, Patron Saint of Old Erin.

An interesting feature of today's programme was the formal initiation of five new members into the Club—Ernie Rose, Arthur MacConnell, Sam Austin, James Murray, and Dr. Walter Morgan. Each of the new members spoke briefly expressing his pleasure in being associated in the work Kiwanis was doing, and a desire to play a part in the charitable enterprises of this excellent organization.

WEDDING BELLS

BRADSHAW—TUCKER

A pretty wedding took place at the Sidney United Church parsonage at 1.30 p.m. on Saturday, March 12th when Miss Pearl Rose Tucker, daughter of Mr. John Tucker, of the 4th Concession of Sidney was united in marriage to Mr. William H. Bradshaw, of Holmes mith, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bradshaw, of the 3rd Concession of Sidney. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. E. Honey in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. The brides natural charms are enhanced by her pretty gown of satin forest green in shades of roses, trimmed with sand and silver, with hat to match, wearing also a rope of pearls, the gift of the groom, and for travelling a gray ensemble. The happy couple are spending honeymoon in Toronto and Ottawa, and will presently reside in the neighborhood of Harmonsmith.

WRESTING A VICTORY FROM LIFE'S DEFEAT

You won't understand the following letter if you're young and happy and care free. Even if you're old you won't understand it, if your life has been cast in smooth and pleasant places. But if you have seen your hope crumble to ashes and have tasted the bitter dregs of despair—then you will know. For such, I am publishing this beautiful story of another heart's travail and triumph. Perhaps it will help you too, if the night is dark and the morning far away.

DEAR ELSIE:

Some time ago you spoke of a suffering which has come to you and prayed that we all might be given strength to "bear our pain with dignity." And when I read that my heart reached out to you—for I felt that we had gone the same way to gether.

If, too, have suffered mental anguish that never left me day or night for two long terrible years. Not physical suffering—how easily that it is borne—no, my trouble was to stand helplessly by and see the dream and plans and work of twenty years of my life dissolve into nothingness. Not the physical death of my beloved child, but the death of character and ideals, of all that to me seemed good and true.

We can only suffer just so much, and one night I lost consciousness—I actually lost consciousness through mental suffering. How long I was out I do not know, but one thing I do know, my soul left my body—I saw nothing—I only felt a wealth of color and an ecstasy of peace and quietness and joy flooding my being. When I came back, I was changed. I had lost fear some place out there in the great "Beyond" and now, after a year has passed since that wonderous experience, I am still quiet and at peace.

Oh yes, the cause of my suffering still walks inside me, but I am sustained by an invisible presence that gives me courage daily to meet whatever may come, be it good or bad, with the serenity and the sure knowledge that in the final analysis all things work to a good end.

I have taken life's Thirty-Second Degree—in suffering—and I have met the test. My reward is a higher perception of life—a clearer understanding, a truer sense of values. I am more tolerant of the faults and failings of humanity. I am better in every way.

I feel as did Luther Burbank, when his thin quivering old voice, the love of all humanity, and I entered that estate through the gateway of suffering." Now, as do you, I say myself—only a tiny part of the great Cosmic Plan. I can feel only sympathy for a sister woman. I could go into the lowest slum in the world and do anything for any one that needed my help, and in His name.

I am just in mid-channel, of my life, so far as the years go, but I can see my future, only as a thing of wonderful, happiness. Either here or—beyond. It is so good now, just to live that I want to live forever. I want life Eternal and I have set up as my ideal, absolute perfection of body and soul I am trying to live up to that ideal, taking just one day at a time. I want to be a friend and an uplifting influence in my life that touches mine. Perhaps in the dawn of the real truth that has awakened in me is the law of love. The love of God first and my neighbor as myself.

YOUR SISTER WOMAN.

) "Life's a thirty-second degree of suffering." Remember that phrase, when the pain seems greater than you can bear, and hold yourself proudly through the test.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

A DANGEROUS GRIEF

Looking back upon those days, Christine was convinced that she must have been quite mad in those weeks after her little son died.

For days, she was dazed with grief. She went about like an automaton, performing her household tasks and caring for little Louise in a half-hearted fashion.

After a time, necessity reminded her that she must work, but, when she found that other eager, ready people had replaced her in this office and that, where she had been won to find an assignment for some story or other, she accepted the situation apathetically.

Day after day, she walked the streets aimlessly, seeing nothing, with little Louise tugging at her hand. She had been forced long since to dispense with the nurse-maid. Day after day, she visited the grave of her son, and often she knelt without God to lay flowers to lay on the little mound.

It seemed to her impossible that he was dead; that that bright, joyous, gay life could be snuffed out like a candle. One night, in an agony of worry, she stood by the window and stretched out her arms to the sky.

"He still lives! He must live! Show me a sign!"

Only the warm wind of summer in he branches of the solitary tree answered her.

After that, sheer necessity drove her to work. She went back to being a saleswoman in a fashionable little shop. On every side she saw luxury, extravagance. In the early autumn, she met Nina, resplendent in a new fur coat. She felt the girl's pitying glance at her shabby clothes.

"Come and have lunch with me," invited Nina, and she took Christine not to the cafeteria that she usually frequented, but to a place where the menu was elaborate and substantial. She ordered a large meal, saying she was very hungry, but Christine knew in the bitter depths of her soul that Nina thought she needed food.

"What an obstinate little thing you are!" Nina remarked, over her coffee. "You are young and pretty, though I'm sure you won't want me to admit it. There are many ways for you to get along in ease and comfort, if you'd only use your brain and compromise occasionally. I don't know what happened between you and Henry Stanford, but that's only one instance. I suppose you'd be the same with every man and turn down any chance you had for pulling the strings and landing something worth while. Do you honestly think that being so good pays?"

Christine's mind dashed back over the hideous weeks that had just passed.

"Yes!" she said bitterly.

"Then why on earth do you have to be so darn virtuous? Why do you have to adopt that touch-me-not trait? Why do you have to be so infernally holier-than-thou?"

Christine rose abruptly.

"Thank you for the luncheon, Nina. You were awfully kind."

Nina shrugged and wrapped her coat, shining for about her.

"Think over what I have said. Of course, I have just been talking to the wind—but then——!"

Nina's words remained with Christine throughout the day. They followed her to the cheap market where she bought her few meager supplies for supper. They pursued her up the stairs to her little apartment. They flung themselves in her face when she opened the door and saw Louise's empty cot.

There was no eager little boy to welcome her; no beautiful little creature to like the father she had loved in her youth. Only Louise was there, quiet, shy, almost a little stranger.

Christine dropped her bundles. "What's the use?" she cried. "What's the use of anything? I gave everything I had, made every sacrifice, and all that was worth while was taken from me."

At the sight of Louise's frightened eyes, she calmed herself and went about her task of preparing supper.

The sight of the familiar boiled beef, of the canned vegetables, and of the pudding sickened and disgusted her. She thought again of what Nina had said. She thought of the luxury she saw about her every day. She thought of the women who secured all that was beautiful in life—at a price.

And did they suffer as she had?

Something told her "no." She felt the futility of striving. She knew that she suddenly no more heroine. Her adored little son was dead, and, in her blind grief, little Louise was almost nothing to her.

She remembered Henry Sanford—remembered what he had said: "If ever you change your mind——"

On a swift impulse, stifling the protest in her heart, she went downstairs to the telephone and called his number.

SINCLAIR'S

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE

We are two modern girls in our teens, who want to have a good time. We like to go to dances and parties and flirt to a certain extent. But we feel that we must relinquish all these pleasures for we find that we are unable to restrain our escorts who wish to claim the customary "good night caress". We date with the most respected young men of our community, some of the best families. These men do not pretend to be "fast" or "kissi," and drink only occasionally, but we cannot keep them from falling in love with us.

We implore you to please help us with our problem. We are only a couple of happy, normal girls. We want to enjoy our youth, but unwanted love is going to ruin our fires. Our very happiness depends on your answer.

BABES IN THE WOOD.

BABES IN THE WOOD: To maintain the balance you suggest requires infinite tact. And you seem intelligent enough to acquire that indispensable characteristic.

First of all you must make it quite clear that liberties are quite out of the question. In the second place, make it equally understood that you have no idea of concerning yourselves with love and its problems for some time to come. Be gay and cheerful and refuse to be taken seriously. I am sure you will find that there are many happy young men who would appreciate your carefree friendship.

Puts An End To Bunion Pain

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflamed, swollen toe joints and get them down to normal and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Call at Doyle's Drug Store or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moones Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if the wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

The marmalade crockery jars make excellent containers for small left-over vegetables and meats as well as the extra mayonnaise or salad dressing. Being tall they do not spill their contents over the icebox as a shallow receptacle does.

Keep a small peanut butter glass for shaking up the French dressing. Through the transparent glass one can estimate the exact proportions of oil and vinegar desired. With the cover on tight, the dressing may be vigorously shaken and given the perfect blending required.

How Children Quickly Gain Robust Health

Go ahead Mother and make the sickly little one strong and well—make the puny one sturdy and full of pep—make the skinny one take on pounds of solid flesh—Get McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets.

They are rich in vitalizing vitamines —the kind of vitamines that creates strength, improve the appetite and build up the power to resist disease.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11 1-2 pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at druggists anywhere. Try them for 30 days and if you are not happily satisfied with the test get your money back. But demand McCoy's — it pays to get the genuine.

to look out in the present building I dread the consequence. We had no doubt but what we would see this need and enquiry when it was asked for. The Belleville Chamber of Commerce embracing 25 of Belleville's leading business men, the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs have all endorsed the new Collegiate Institute", stated Mr. Elliot.

At this point he spoke especially of the wonderful work that has been done by the Chamber of Commerce in advertising Belleville throughout the Province, Dominion and, Empire. "The Roman Catholics have a fine up-to-date new school and they too stand behind the proposition." "It means a cost of $220,000 to the city which includes a Collegiate Institute and, Vocational School and that is what Belleville requires". "Our boys and girls will be fitted to go out into the world with a practical training for carpentry and mechanics as well as clerical work."

Mr. Elliot referred to the Inspector's report which appears in the report of school board meeting held previous to that of the City Council."

At this juncture Alderman Wotten who was seated in the chair asked the members of the Council if they had any questions to ask.

Alderman Donoahue—"Mr. Elliot do you know of any town, the size of Belleville that has built a Collegiate Institute and Vocational School costing $500,000?"

Mr. Elliot—"I cannot but I can tell you that Belleville's school assessment will still be the lowest of any city in the Province of Ontario".

Alderman Bineline—"Is there any assurance that the building will not exceed that amount"?

Answer—We have a tender for that amount.

"Is the County required to pay any definite amount toward the school?"

"No."

"Why is the building facing John St instead of Church St.?"

"We are going to have a double front to the school."

Mayor Wilmot—That $7000 already granted would be included.

"Yes."

COL. PONTON

I wish I could agree with Mr. Elliot in his arguments. "The new school means an increased staff and increased facilities, etc." "I believe we are assuming a liability that we can never liquidate and I believe that Belleville is not large enough city to undertake a task of such an enormous size".

Colonel Ponton continuing said "I don't believe I am in the minority and if I thought it would be an asset instead of a liability I would not be here." "I ask that the plans be altered to suit the requirements and I had no conception of anything over $400,000."

The Minister of Education has said the Government will approve the the plans if the City of Belleville would undertake the payment". Colonel Ponton stated "We are all in favor of a new Collegiate Institute but surely that doesn't mean that we must spend $100,000 to get $50,000 back." "We certainly will not increase our population or manufacturers by raising the taxation." "If you think a lesser sum should be granted I hope you'll grant it and look to remember it", he said. "I believe the great body of the ratepayers are behind me in my stand and I hope you'll help us to build a new Collegiate and one that is ample to handle the situation." "The citizens have never had the chance to talk it over at a public meeting and I think it should be."

Mr. McClie—"The debenture debt in Sarnia was $400,000. ours would be $320,000"

The plans drawn up after a long consultation with the Inspector and others in their report really what was wanted. You can't put additions to a school and make it adequate. If we build a school for $400,000 then we do away with the Vocational School and the Provincial grant would be lost and Belleville's grant would remain the same. The present school was built in 1872 and is antiquated now," he argued.

Mr. H. W. Ackerman—I was one of the Committee who visited the Western Ontario School and most of these were expensive. The people there are perfectly satisfied.

F. C. McLaurin, Principal of B. H. S. said—With the additional five teachers to the present staff of 18 the increase will be slightly over $14,000.00 due to the portion taken care of by the Provincial Government." "We're all together in mortgaging the health of our pupils. Sarnia assumed $100,000.00 more than we are asking from the City of Belleville. We want a Collegiate now and the rest will be increasing annually. If we don't do it tonight we're going to go back 10 years."

E. J. Butler stressed the need of the new Vocational and Collegiate Institute for the city and said the Separate School Board were behind it.

G. A. C. Weir—"Formerly I thought it was a tremendous expenditure. I realize after a visit to the school that something must be done. I am strongly in favor of a Vocational training. Many pupils have no idea of taking profession and two years vocational training would fit them for other kinds of work."

Mrs. McFee—A member of the School Board said: "I have been working for 15 years on this proposition and I hope that it will be completed tonight."

Chas. D. Campbell—"As a citizen and Civic Official I am in favor of the proposed new Collegiate. It will cost approximately $1 per year for each person for the next 20 years.

Ald. Hunter—"I think it should be submitted to the people."

Ald. Donoahue—"We are mortgaging our property if the school is built." Belleville is not as wealthy as many would be led to believe. The proposed addition will cost in neighborhood of $150,000 with the added improvement."

Ald. Duff—Ald. Donoahue painted permissible picture of Belleville's financial condition. It is first class at present time. $2,765,000 is the debenture debt, the sinking fund is $220,000 and at the end of this year we expect to pay off half a million dollars we will retire the debentures rapidly within the next five years. The cost to each ratepayer will be 2 1-2 mills on the dollar for maintenance we can save this money which is now spent on lumber.

Ald. Cherry—"The price is more than the citizens of Belleville feel they can pay".

Ald. Tice—"We need the school but I didn't think that we had the right to go here and expend $220,000.00 without a vote of the people." The Council last year should have finished the question when they were first approached.

Mayor Wilmot—"The people should have a voice in the matter."

R. B. Burrows—"I believe the people of the city are behind the new Collegiate and Vocational School and I believe the Council will be endorsed in passing this recommendation.

COMM. MAXWELL VISITED CITADEL

A very warm welcome was extended on behalf of the local corps of the Salvation Army to Commissioner and Mrs. Maxwell, in charge of Canada East Territory, on their initial visit here last night. Commissioner Maxwell took over his new duties at the beginning of the year replacing Commissioner Sowton, who was transferred to South Australia.

The party which arrived in Belleville was accompanied by Col. Hargrove, former provincial officer for this part of the Dominion and Brigadier MacDonald.

The fame of the new commissioner had preceded him to Belleville and the members of the local corps were well acquainted with his achievements. He entered the Army in 1894 and has held many important posts in the British Isles since that time. He is particularly noted as a singer of salvation songs. The territory which he now directs extends from Port Arthur to Newfound land and includes Bermuda. The citadel was thronged at the meetings held over the week-end and it is estimated that about 1000 attended last night.

COL. W. N. PONTON

The speaker said, "Were if you were one those ten men who had to furnish the money required? What would you do? How many of you could pay the amount?"

At this point the hand of every member on the Board shot quickly up.

"I don't belong to the wrecking gang," said the Colonel. "An architect says to tear down the old school, the building of which could boasted for a gymnasium and machine shop."

"I plead for economy and I plead that the ratepayers be given the opportunity of at least a public meeting."

In reply, Mr. Arthur McGie pointed to "Colonel Ponton," he stated "said he was the only practical man on the Board" (judgment refutation by the Colonel) "If we go only to $400,000 we can't include the Vocational School. There is nothing extravagant in the design of this building. If we are going to build a school at all, let Belleville build a school that is up-to-date and one that she can be proud of."

Inspector's Report

Following the passing of the new requisition, Mr. John Elliott, Chairman of the Board, read to the members an extract from the Inspector of the High School. The extract follows:—

This school has a staff of competent and hard-working teachers and a body of courteous and well-behaved students. All are co-operating in their common work in a way that compels admiration.

Unfortunately, this is all that can be said in consideration of conditions here I have never seen worse accommodation in any part of the Province. The pupils are housed in three buildings, in which they are crowded together under the most deplorable conditions. The class rooms are wretchedly lighted, unequally heated, and provided with no ventilation except what can be secured by opening windows. As there is neither an Assembly Hall nor a Gymnasium, the pupils can never be gathered together for opening exercises or for special occasions, nor can the important work of Physical Culture be carried on regularly throughout the year. The main building is a fire-trap. There is but one door to each classroom, the halls and stairways are narrow, and the lower hall is obstructed with pillars that support the ceiling. The halls near the exit doors are used as cloak-rooms. Neither lose nor fire-extinguishers are provided as a protection against fire. In a word, the conditions in this school building are a menace to health and life, and should not be allowed to continue. Until steps are taken to provide the school with satisfactory accommodation I cannot recommend that it share in the legislative grant.

I was pleased to have an opportunity to discuss conditions here with the Chairman of the Board.

MAYOR OUTLINES

The Mayor's Letter

The Mayor's letter sets his position out quite clearly and is quoted below:

Belleville, Feb. 2, 1927

To Acting Mayor M. P. Duff and Members of Belleville City Council.

Gentlemen:—

Although Mr. John Elliott, Chairman of the Board of Education has on two different occasions informed me that the Board would not be in a position to ask the Council for the necessary amount in connection with the proposed New Collegiate until my return, I realize that it is possible that the Board may change their plans and therefore take this opportunity and the liberty of placing this, my opinion, before you.

The debenture debt of the City of Belleville is approximately $2,500,000.00 and with a population of only 12,800 people, the per capita debt is $190.00.

The expenditures already made, but not funded are as follows:

Figures submitted by City Auditor.

1925-26 Sewers	$ 42,000.00
1926 Sidewalks	6,000.00
Pavements	25,000.00
Pavements (Suburban Area	15,000.00
Bay Bridge Fill (City Share)	16,000.00
Gas Improvements	15,000.00
	$119,000.00

The proposed and probable expenditures which must be faced are as follows:

Bay bridge Fill (City Share)	$ 75,000.00
Filtration Plant	150,000.00
Gas Plant Improvement	100,000.00
Relief to Catharine St.
Sewer	25,000.00
1927 Sewers	25,000.00
1927 Sidewalks	5,000.00
1927 Pavements	15,000.00
	$485,000.00

Making a grand total of $604,000.00 which large expenditure must be met and debentures issued in the very near future.

In view of this amount which of course does not include the expenditures of the different spending committees of the council, you may read by see the seriousness of foster taining another expenditure of $315 000.00, this being the city's share of the proposed New College site. This would mean that the present debenture debt of the city would be increased by nearly one million dollars.

Assuming that the city's share is $315,000.00 and the sinking fund type debentures are issued over a period of 20 years, the annual payment including principal and interest would be $29,491.20 and this of course does not include teacher's salaries and maintenance, the figures for which are not now available. This amount being correct, the school rate would be increased by 2.1 mills.

Our General Rate is as high at present as allowed under Ontario Statute being 25 mills; the School Rate would then be 16.3 mills, making a grand total of 40.3 mills per annum imposed upon the tax payers of Belleville, and, as before stated, this does not include the extra maintenance of the new school.

It may also be argued that should there by refuse to build a New Collegiate the Government will cut off our present grant. This grant, I understand, amounts to approximately $1400.00 per year and is of nothing compared to the interest of the proposed expenditure.

The rate payers of Belleville have shown on innumerable occasions that they are quite equal to deal with questions of such vast importance as this New College site promises to be and it is therefore my firm opinion that, should this question comes up in my absence, it should be left to them (the rate payers) to approve or reject, as they may deem advisable.

In regard to the new and increased Hydro rates and in view of the huge surplus which has already accumulated to the credit of the City of Belleville on their books in Toronto, I would strongly recommend that a committee be formed to investigate the advisability of taking over the Hydro and placing it together with Gas and Water directly under the supervision of a Public Utilities Commission.

I remain,

Yours respectfully,

C. E. WILMOT,

Mayor.

DEMPSEY HOPES TO GET ANOTHER CRACK AT CHAMP.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 15.—Jack Dempsey is preparing for a comeback. The former champion of the world has delegated Gus Wilson, his trainer, to scour training quarters in this neighborhood in the neighborhood of Los Angeles. As soon as Wilson has established a place Wednesday, will go there immediately, spend two weeks in strenuous efforts to get back into perfect physical condition.

Dempsey today weighs 219 pounds. This is twenty pounds above his ring weight in Philadelphia, Most of the fat has gained in the last three years.

Doctors Get to Their Work

Dempsey has been in the care of specialists for almost a month, since he suffered from an infection of his left ear. After which the specialists made a thorough examination and discovered several ailments which they asserted had been responsible for his ailing condition of the last two years.

It may be recalled that Dempsey broke out with a rash and boils nearly a year ago when in Hendersonville, N.C. He had the same trouble immediately after his fight with Gene Tunney. Since getting back to Los Angeles, he had another mild attack, followed by the infection in his left ear.

"The doctors tell me," said Jack today, "that the whole trouble has been due to a certain peculiar acid in the stomach. They are correcting this now and assure me that hereafter I will have no further trouble in that way.

"It has been this stomach trouble which has made me undecided for six months about a comeback."

All Ready Now For Action

"Now that I am confident that everything is O.K. with me, and that I will have no further trouble with acids, I am going to jump into a training camp and spend three weeks or a month getting into shape. At the end of that time I figure I am going out and get on any shaughter that can step around as bright as in the other days. Tex Richard can pick out the man he wants me to fight to prove that I am still rather handy with the fists.

"I think that my record would indicate that I am good enough to go against Gene Tunney without any fight to prove myself. But I have decided that the very best plan for all concerned would be for me to have one or two fights under my belt before I again get into action.

"Gene Tunney is one of the greatest champions that we have ever had and I feel that if I am to realize my ambition to regain my lost crown it will be advisable for me to do a little wrestling before then on some of the slow or less young men who think they are more entitled to swing at Gene's chin than I am."

NOT LOST TO HOCKEY

The announcement by doctors in New York that Miss "Shorty" Green will never play hockey again will be received with regret through the sporting world as well as Ontario at large. No pair of players ever stepped in a hockey arena in the North and gain more popularity than "Shorty" and his brother "Red." They could always be depended upon to show the fans a good, honest performance. They played the game for the sake of the game and there were many times when fans in towns other than Sudbury gave them as much applause at the home players. "Shorty's" greatest season was probably his last season with the Hamilton pro. team. That year he and brother "Red" were the bulwarks in the Hamilton attack and their defensive backer played a big part in the Tigers winning the championship. In spite of the fact that "Shorty" is through as a player he would not be through with hockey. He is one of the brainiest players that ever stepped into the ice game. As a manager or coach he still has many years of valuable service ahead of him, and with the number of pro. teams that are now adopting the "Shorty" should not have a great deal of trouble securing a berth in this capacity.

K. Belleville fans are to be treated to plenty of soft-ball between now and the opening of the outdoor season if the plans of those at the head materialize. Ken Colling took the lead and formed the first loop embracing four men's teams and a similar number of girls clubs and these squad will do their stuff twice a week at the armouries on Monday and Wednesday evenings. A high class softball is promised in this league as the fastest players in the City has been signed by the different clubs. A set of rules have been drawn up by the umpires which will be submitted to the different team managers for their approval. The league will get under way on the 21st of March with a double-header on that night. The umpires are all first class men who have had plenty of experience and are capable of handling the games. The girls teams are equally as strong as the men's clubs as the four managers are out digging up the best talent in the city. All in all it looks like the best soft ball league to be organized in the city for some years.

Of course there were other team who wished to gain admittance but it was deemed advisable to have the eight teams consisting the league and provide fast ball for the fans as it is believed that is what the fans want. Four other girls clubs who could not gain admittance to the first group banded themselves together and formed a second organization. They have secured the armouries one night a week and it is believed that four more teams will incorporate themselves with Pres. Hanna's circuit and, another mixed league will be functioning shortly. With these two bodies playing the fans who follow soft ball should not want for amusement. A meeting of the first group has been called for Thursday evening when the final plans will be drawn up and the list of players to be used by each team will be submitted to the secretary. The other league had a meeting last evening and it is reported that everything is looking bright for a successful season. The Intelligencer desires to co-operate with both and any items of interest will be welcomed by the sporting editor. Call 1248 and the matter will be taken care of.

The Belleville intermediate basket ball team is practicing faithfully for the game with the Kinmbetta Tors to-day for championship next Saturday evening. The locals are playing some and home games with the Queen City champs and they have every hope of defeating the "Lizzies." Vern Welk and "Army" Annstrong are the main stays of Ralph Mendell's smart Quinette and an being counted upon to perform a bulk of the work. The juveniles were beaten by a wide margin by the Toronto Playground champions but the Intermediates are hoping to make up for this defeat by turning the tables.

The duties of the Belleville Golf Club on Thursday evening will undoubtedly open the local season. If the present warm weather continues then the brassies, niblicks, drivers etc. will be in order within a few weeks. It is reported that the "golf bug" has bitten a number of local enthusiasts and this year will see the links throng ed more than ever.

Kingston Intermediates won the championship of the Limestone City for 1927 by trouncing the cadets to the tune of 13-71 at the Jork Harty arena on Friday night last. R.M.C. were never in the hunt from the start and "Chick" Mundell's crew had it over them from bell to bell.

"Toots" Holway is again on a league leading team. This year "Toots" is with the Stratford Nationals who will play off with either the London or Hamilton teams for the Championship of the Junior pro. circuit and Stratford are favored to win. Manager Roy Brothers of the Nationals has a smart team under his wing according to the latest reports from up that way.

A Philadelphia paper is out with the announcement that a movement is on foot to eliminate the Canadian teams from the National Hockey League and to form a new league across the border, with four teams in Greater New York, two in each Boston and Providence, and two American Cities. There is no doubt that such a league would be financially successful, but it will hardly be favored while our Ottawa and the Montreal teams have proven great drawing cards in the American cities.

REGENT THEATRE

"The White Black Sheep," starring Richard Barthelmess at the Regent Tues. and Wed., features a glorious free for all fight which involves more than one hundred men in a desert town exit. In this mad scramble as it was enacted in the studio several men were injured and the art used previously established in an effort to get realism. The scene takes place in the city of San Salina, Northern Palestine, an error in instructor Robert Vignola ordered by Richard Barthelmess) is attacked by Greek dancing girl, (played by Mary Ruth Miller) which is the beginning of one of the most beautiful over-stories ever told on the screen.

"The White Black Sheep," is a high colored story commencing in an arabian love locale and ending in the midsummer desert atmosphere of the war East. It opened last night at the Regent.

BELLE THEATRE

Louise Fazenda again appears in comedy character role such as she has in great popularity of her early comedy days in Warner Bros.' production of "Finger Paint," showing at the Belle theatre, which runs to the Belle Theatre tomorrow.

Although similar to the part and Swedish servant girl of earlier days, this new character is different and decidedly more piquant. There is nothing either dull or exaggerated about it. Miss Fazenda achieving her ludicrous effect by wearing perfectly proper things not build to her.

For instance, she skins her hair back into a knot on the back of her head and dons a tiny triangular doily such as English servants wear on their heads. She wears small-checked gingham dress and scores of contrasting colors which make her shoulders and hips look large and rangy. Too tight sleeves and highlaced pointed black shoes contribute to the effect, the latter contrasting with the white cotton stockings.

Nothing unusual or freaky in this costume—and yet in it Miss Fazenda achieves the humorous heights of her career. John T. Murray plays a gum pathetic masculine lead as the hick sheriff and he too follows much the same rule in his type.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Every comedy wears a silk hat, as does Raymond Griffith in Paramount's "You'd Be Surprised," which opened last the Capitol Theatre last evening before a large audience.

But—never was there such a comedy hat. He is very much annoyed because of being asked to solve a murder mystery while on the stage in the theatre. Two expensive tickets are burning holes in his pocket and he has only twenty minutes before curtain time.

As a result of the complications blated at, "You'd Be Surprised" is Griffith's cleverest comedy-vehicle and the same time containing enough thrills to satisfy the most ardent lover of Conan Doyle situations. Your humor tickled at the picture's mystery. Then—at the next minute you'll be laughing—trying to solve it.

"You'd Be Surprised" is built in the case, is "in" it right up to her neck, as are Earle Williams and Edward Martindel. "You'd Be Surprised" is a real mystery right till the very end —at which time the amateur solution is finally unfolded. Don't fail to see this extraordinary film, one of Ray's very best.

Black and Raymore: is a comedy singing and talking act of exceptional merit took well with last night's audience. This feature act, late of Hammerstein's "Kitchy Koo Revue," is on away above the ordinary and the best vaudeville feature seen at the Capitol for some time.

GRADS TROUNCE NEW EDINBURGHS

Ottawa, March 15.—University of Toronto Grads maintained a slate unsullied record by trouncing Ottawa New Edinburgh, champions of the Capital and district, under a 16-0 score in the first match of their Allan Cup play-down tonight. A combination that worked like machinery and their ability to outskate and outcheck the local team gave the Blue and White crew the lead to take into the final game of the round in Toronto Wednesday night.

Hughie Flanton, lanky Grad centre stood out as the peerless team with the most total of hair of the club's grade Trottier added a pair, and Hudson, Potter and Frank Sullivan counted the others.

The Borph men figured in the picture only a short time. At the star they also had a combination machine or be but it went to pieces before the, line-knit, checking of the Grads, an especially in the last half of the game when they were played to a halt.

TROTTIER SCORES FIRST GOAL

The auditorium was jammed will over 4,200 fans when Referee Billy Bell sent the teams into action. Taylor propelled the initial rush, but shot far wide. Munro and H. O'Neil answered with a threat that ended at the Grad defence. The locals forced at the early pace, and all of the Borph forward rounded shots off Goal-keeper Sullivan's chest.

The first determined charge of the Blue and White went to Porter, who the big fellow lunged clear through to treat Devereaux with a light shot.

After a nervous first five minutes, the Blue front rank settled down and their combination rushes were remarkable. The forwards, however, were handled easily by the invisible Ottawa net tender. When Taylor went down for bumping, Munro and H. O'Neil rot inside the Grad defence, and both had bullet shots.

LONDON PRODGERS MEET STRATFORD NATS

London, Ont., March 15.—Stan. Jack son, elongated defenseman of the London Prodgers, put the locals in the play-down with the Stratford Nationals for the championship of the Canadian Professional League here tonight when he slapped the puck for a pair of goals to give his mates a 2 to 1 victory over the Hamilton Tigers in the second game of the semi-finals. By virtue of their 7-3 victory in Hamilton last Friday, London swept the series.

Two fast periods and three minutes and thirty seconds of the game was Hamiltons by reason of the goal they scored after two minutes of the first period, but with a little over three minutes of the closing game gone Jackson banged the tying counter on a pretty lone attack.

With the score tied and the Prodgers once again in the running, the game after a draggy close-checking second period took on all the fire and dash of the first, making hockey packed with thrills until the finish. London, brought out of a seemingly lost hope by Jackson's goal, and supported on the Hamilton goal. Tougher and the tired Hamilton 9 City defence were doing their best. Time was ticking away fast and the packed house was shot through with suspense.

PRO HOCKEYISTS GET BIGGEST MELON YET

New York, March 15.—Professional hockey players participating in the National League's Stanley Cup play-off series this season will get a bigger player or "melon" than ever before. Regardless of where the games are played, the 2 years' of "net" promises to greatly exceed if not double, any previous play-off poot.

This was assured today when the league's Board of Governors, meeting here to arrange the play-off dates, decided to lift the $25,000 limit which previously had prevailed for the players in the title series. Under the new arrangements, the players of the contending teams will get 45 per cent. of the net gate receipts for the first three games of the five game series, this to be divided on a basis of 60 per cent. to the winners and 40 per cent. to the losers.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"Thanks a party," he said coolly, and with a regretful shake of the head, "Dear, it's our prejudice, my dear Phoebe."

"Sir, don't you call me your dear Phoebe. You're too familiar, indeed, and I'm not taking any."

"My name is Travers," he said. "I'll tell you all about myself presently, but surely all, we'll exchange confidences, Phoebe, and you'll flash not only that you like me, but that I am really going to be a friend to you. Now, let us begin at the beginning. Why did you leave Jumping Jane and come to London?"

Phoebe stopped for a moment and looked up at him. "You know!" she said, then paused.

"I know who you say; I know where you came from, Phoebe?"

"He—he told you?" broke from her, in a low voice, unwillingly.

"If you mean Lord Graveye, he did," said Travers. "He has told me all about his past life, all about the people at Jumping Jane, and, of course he told me about you. Why, I take it that in his eyes, you were the principal person there. Naturally, he talked of you."

The color mounted to her face; her lips trembled. She was silent for a moment; then she said, almost inaudibly:

"He talked about me as if—as it he'd not forgotten, as if he wanted to remember me, to talk about me?"

"Yes," he said, with more color; the glow crept up at him, saw with a touch of appeal in her dark-gray eyes.

"Of course he did. You're not doing yourself justice, Phoebe—or him. Lord Staveley is a good sort, a particularly good sort, and he's not the man to forget old friends—especially such an old friend as you are."

"No," she said softly. "Rafe's not the sort to forget his old friends." Then suddenly she turned on him. "Look here, who are you, anyway? I want to know him and all about him. Who are you, a relation?"

The look she had cast on unconsciously struck home. It was now his turn to flush. He looked away from her, and his face became made no reply.

"I am a very close and intimate friend of Lord Staveyre," he said finally, "as God, I am his secretary."

"You're a servant," she snapped contemptuously.

"In a sense," he said blandly. "But I am a friend as well. If I were not, do you think he would have told me about dear little Phoebe?"

"He called me that," she said quickly. "You say he called me that?"

Travers knew he had been guilty of a false move. "Not in the exact words," he said, "but it's easy to read between the lines of a man's epistle of a new sort, and I drew my own conclusion. But we're wasting time! Now, tell me why you left Jumping Jane, and how you left it, London. I'm not asking that I may gratify an idle curiosity—though you naturally suppose such—I've a reason for wanting to know."

"There's no secret in it," he said, half sullenly. "I had a chance of a better place, paid. I took my money, and—and, I was tired of the camp, of the life, everything. I wanted to come to London and—and—Then all there is to it."

"And what do you think of England?" he said with casual politeness. "It's a nice place, isn't it, Phoebe?" he glanced down at her pure clothing and her cheek and took on the pretty face—that is, if you've plenty of money! Did you get much out of your share of the camp?"

"No," she admitted reluctantly. "Not much more than would bring me a—a little start. I—I sent all your money and that to ex England—and Lord Staveyre!"

The girl stopped short and made an other effort to repel him. "Why do you? I cannot owe it to you!" she said.

"I said not," he replied, smiling down at her. "You were watching him earlier in the evening. You were watching him when he came home just now. Were you going to speak to him

"No?" he finished at him. "I—I only wanted to see him. He was a good friend to me—I suppose it's a free-country, the of yours; a per-son can look at an old friend without being taken to task by the police or beleaguered by a man like you?"

"My dar Phoebe, this is a country in which a cat may look at a king. And so you came all the way from Jumping Jane just to go your self-appointed task call that very noble of you; very faithful; very devoted. You touch me more. Now, I suppose you are going back to that wild place of yours with the funny name? You are quite satisfied with your catching a glimpse of your old friend in the street?"

"Yes, I'm going back," she said defiantly. "But it's no business of yours what I do. Look here, I'm sick of it. I've had none of you thats good for my health. We've spent the part, time, and I hope I shan't break your heart, if I say, Mr. Travers, that I hope I shan't ever see you or you again."

"You would break my heart, if you said it, Phoebe," he responded pleasantly; "but you're not going to say it. I assure you that we are not going to part, excepting for a short time; and that you will get over me very readily, Phoebe. My dear Phoebe, I am rather disappointed in you. When I saw you for the first time plainly, I said to myself: 'Now, here is not only a very pretty girl, but a girl, with a character.' I meant with strength of character for I know, of course, that your general character is above reproach."

TOLD HARDSHIPS OF EARLY DAYS

Crenlman, Sask., March 15.—(By C.P.—Intercity)—Many of the hardships encountered by the early settlers of western districts a quarter of a century ago were related here recently when Mr. and Mrs. E. Wakefield were honored by the community at the celebration of their golden wedding.

Supplies then had to be brought over prairie trails a distance of fifty miles, and many times Mr. Wakefield was caught in blizzards. At one time he was snow-bound for three days, unable to venture outside the log-cabin-cold plains for his home. Food supplies were brought from Airdrie, Alberta, 50 miles, while fuel had to be obtained from Moose Mountains, seventy miles away. Finally four-year-old Danish daughter, Kirsten, as an understudy to the Professional University of Copenhagen, has invented a gear-less and brakeless automobile which, it is declared, may revolutionize the motor industry. He is being hailed as an automobile Edison.

It is asserted that a first class automobile can be constructed on frictionless principles for less than a "tin lizzie." His car works without gears and friction brakes, braking being effected by the engine.

It is said that an automobile manufacturing company in Europe built several Swedish automobiles some months ago, and soon will commence their production at low prices.

Rub It On All Pain Goes Right Away

For Deep Chest Colds

All colds should be treated with vapors, for vapors alone can carry the medication DIRECTLY to the air passages and lungs.

Vicks is a "vapor" treatment in salve form. For deep chest colds you first apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores, then massage briskly with Vicks for 5 minutes, spread on thickly and cover with a flannel cloth.

Vicks not only penetrates like a poultice or plaster, but the ingredients, vaporized by the body heat, are inhaled all night long.

This double action usually checks the most stubborn cold overnight.

BURIED THIRTEEN HOURS IN WELL; TAKEN OUT ALIVE

Rescuing Party Worked All Night By Motor Head Lights

FORTY FEET DOWN

Walls Caved in and Formed Roof Over His Head

Pagnay Springs, North Carolina, March 16.—Entombed for thirteen hours in a seventy-foot well, Jeff Ashworth was rescued early today. Ashworth had been pinned by the caved-in walls forty feet down in the well and was extricated after a group of rescue workers dug away the debris all night by the aid of automobile headlights, farm lanterns and candles.

When the rescuing party pulled Ashworth out he was exhausted but no outward physical injuries was indicated in the words of thankfulness he mumbled. Early yesterday, Ashworth descended into the well to clean it. He was being lowered in a loop and when he reached the forty foot level part of the well side above him caved in and stones formed a roof over his head, cutting off sunlight and air.

This lack of air circulation was considered the greatest possible adverse circumstance to his recovery. As soon as Ashworth's plight became known, a crowd of volunteers assembled and began removing the rock curbing of the well. In shifts of three, men each, rescuers were lowered into the hole and as fast as they could fill buckets the debris was drawn to the top. Four men operated the windlass.

When Madame Fahay held a gun which blew her youthful and famously wealthy Egyptian husband while they were stopping at one of London's most exclusive hotels, she started a long series of court actions which are still in progress. An English jury exonerated the former Parisian cabaret dancer of blame for the killing and she is now about to sue Paris for a share of the husband's fortune of her former husband.

CAMPAIGN OF MURDER TO COMPEL LABOR JOINING GENERAL STRIKE

Shanghai, Mar. 16.—One hundred and fifty specially picked and trained agitators who arrived here in batches from Hankow, apparently have completely won the good graces of the local labor unions. They are said to be conducting a campaign of intimidation and murder with the object of inserting a solid and prompt response for a general strike when the call is issued.

The nearest translation of the Chinese description of these agitators is "expert intimidators." Under their direction, labor unrest in Shanghai is increasing daily. Their chief object is so to work on their fellow countrymen's fear of personal injury and injury to their families as to create terrorism throughout the ranks of labor and force solidarity when the strike call is issued.

For many days there has been an average of one murder daily in Shanghai of a foreman or some other leader among the workers who opposed the last strike. None of the assisins have been apprehended.

Today as yesterday a determined effort was made to disorganize traffic on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway. The train control telephone system was tampered with and several signal arms were cut. Yesterday day intimidators forced thirty engineers and firemen and a whole locomotive staff of the Shanghai south station to desert. The strike at Wusung is continuing.

CAUGHT IN CLUTCH OF GASOLINE ENGINE

Kingston, Ont., March 16.—Nelson Jones, Portsmith, was stripped of his clothing when he was caught in the clutch of a gasoline engine while he was trying to shut off the power. He was whirled around several times but the fact that his clothing was quickly torn off saved his life. He escaped with a dislocated shoulder, as well as bruises and cuts.

RECOGNIZED THE VOICES OF HIS OWN PET FROGS

New Orleans, La., Mar. 16.—"Pigs is pigs, but there's a difference in frogs," Percy Vinces, jr., head of a biological concern here, maintains. The firm owns a number of frogs valued at $462. Yesterday the frogs were missing. Two men were caught with frogs in their possession. They said 3 was impossible that these had been stolen because they had just been caught in marshes around the city.

Mr. Vinces protested. He declared he recognized the voices of his missing frogs. Then he demonstrated to the court's satisfaction that the deep notes of the amphibious animals in question varied considerably from the songs of their cousins in the marshes. The men were convicted and the frogs were returned.

PRETTY TOYS

Children Play With 294 Tubes of Death on London Streets

London, March 16.—Squads of police worked feverishly all night trying to recover 294 tubes of powerful poison which fell off a hospital van in London's east side yesterday. The tubes were picked up by small children who used them for play things. All night police trailed the missing tubes from one child to another and by noon today had recovered two hundred. The tubes were packed in bright orange colored boxes, which made them very desirable toys in the eyes of the poor children of this section.

FLOOD DANGER NOW PAST AS THE MOIRA BREAKS UP

Ice Shoved Over Dam at Cannifton and is Carried Into Bay

Ice which has been jammed at the dam at Cannifton broke loose at noon today and was carried down the river to Belleville where it corraled against the ice at the mouth of the river Moira. All danger of a flood is now past and the water is running in a steady current through the channel which was opened by the dynamite used by Dr. Barnes.

While Charles D. Campbell, City Engineer; G. D. Lawrence, assistant to Dr. Barnes and a representative of the Intelligencer were standing on the railroad bridge a few minutes before noon it was noticed that several cakes of ice were rapidly sailing down stream from the regions of the Cooper Bone mill. The object was a seething mass of cakes of ice of small dimensions and the party stood in waiting for the impact with the solid mass of ice at the river mouth where the Thermit has been planted.

As the choppy mass continued its way down stream it was diverted to the west side of the river where it literally packed its way between the piers where it came in contact with the solid mass of ice in the mouth of the river. It was a spectacular sight to view white churning mass as it swirled around the end of the bay. The honeycombed surface was unable to resist the approach of the unceasing on and disintegrated as it flowed on South. The water made its way toward the channel in the centre of the stream.

The wreckage up was viewed with interest by a large body of people gathered on the banks of the river and the water rose to some extent with the result that the Thermit not reached are gave way.

In its career down the river the ice gathered many souvenirs in the way of bows, fir trees, refuse and the like which were churned together and thrown into the maelstrom.

The City Engineer and Dr. Barnes were interested in observing the progress of the disintegration for some days and were gratified at the result which they attribute mostly to the use of Thermit. The only damage done by this year's breakup was the removal of one of the wood piers from under the lower bridge. This is the earliest breakup of the Moira for some years according to some of the older residents and records.

MOTHER'S ALLOWANCE IS MATRIMONIAL AGENCY

Winnipeg, March 16.—An unusual charge was made in the Manitoba Legislature last night by labor members, William Ivens, discussing the Public Welfare Association's appropriations, charged that "visitors" appointed by the Government in connection with "Mother's Allowances" were behaving and acting as "matrimonial agents" by pressing widowed mothers to marry again. John Queen, another labor member, reiterated the statement, declaring the files of the Mothers Allowances department would reveal reports of progress made by certain of widows in their efforts to secure second husbands.

ROBINSON AGAIN IN CUSTODY AS A MAN DANGEROUS TO BE AT LARGE

Provincials Pick Up Acquitted Man on Instructions From Toronto

EXPECTS FREEDOM

Skilled Pschyatrists to Test Sanity of Prisoner Today

Quietly about noon yesterday the Provincial Police car slipped out of town and returned in the evening with Abraham Robinson the man so dramatically freed a few days ago of the charge of murdering Charles St. Charles. The arrest was effected by Inspector Lougheed, Sergeant M. R. Clarke and Constable Harry Thompson on instructions from the Provincial Headquarters. Robinson is in custody as a man dangerous to be at large and today will undergo searching mental tests of his sanity by skilled pschyatrists from Toronto. This action is probably in accordance with a recommendation of Mr. Justice Lazie in reporting the recent murder trial here.

The instructions to pick up Robinson came yesterday morning and the officers left for Eldorado, arriving at the Robinson farm about 3.30 o'clock where they found Eldorado attending to chores about the house.

Surprised at Visit

He seemed surprised at the purpose of his visitors but ultimately submitted to apprehension, leaving his grief-stricken sister and brother greatly disturbed. He was brought to Belleville by car and taken to safe quarters where he is now under close guard.

This morning he ate a hearty break-fast after a good sleep and was taken for a walk under guard throughout the city pending the arrival of the mental experts. He told a press representative that he found everything on his farm in fine condition after his five months' detention in the County Jail awaiting trial for murder. He wore the same clothes which he had on the day of the murder. He has step was smart and reasoned and he seemed quite confident of his final freedom. He chatted contentedly with the officer in charge but avoided the subject of the recent trial. He displayed intense interest in various buildings and persons passed by him on the street.

Robinson Talked Freely

Later in the morning seated in the office of the Provincial Police Mr. Robinson lapsed into a most loquacious mood and talked freely about the farm and about the murder and recent murder. Elizabeth. Both he said are failing quickly under the intense strain they have undergone in the recent trial. He expressed to name the value of his farm stating vaguely that "it is worth a few thousand."

He recounted the struggle his family had in wresting a living from the virgin soil. He told of the primitive manner under which his father bequeathed the farm to the boys; at his death many years ago. He told how he had come here since 1882 when it was but a thickly treed tract far from neighbours. Since that time the family have worked and progressed until their farm is now re-

SPRING FEVER

A strange thing about spring fever writes a close observer of humanity, is that it breaks out before Spring actually arrives. An unseasonably warm day in late February or early March causes a veritable epidemic of it. For weeks there may have been diagnosable weather; cold, grey days without character or color. Then out of the gloom comes, unexpectedly a day that might have got squeezed out of last year's May a day that demands its right to be enjoyed. The sun is warm the air is balmy and caressing and everything seems different.

Spring fever has too long been maligned as a disguised form of ordinary laziness. In reality it is a rebellion of primitival against the conditions of life to which we this become an unconscious slave. At ordinary times the average man has his nose so close to the grindstone that he cannot look about him. His mind is filled with the cares and worries that are of this earth. His daily job whether he works for himself or for someone else is the pivot round which he revolves. He forgets about his kinship to the immortal gods.

Then comes a good attack of Spring fever. For the first time perhaps in months he looks up with seeing eyes at the sky and tries to penetrate beyond the sunlit horizon. He notices the balmy around and ready when the time comes to burst forth in splendor from the grimy and rugged trees; he takes a friendly interest in the communal affairs of some deshagged sparrows celebriously splashing themselves in a mere spirt puddle.

These are signs that wisdom has descended upon him. He feels deep down that he is not, after all, a mere animated machine made for the sole purpose of earning. If he can a pay cheque every Saturday, but a true son of light, the equal of everybody, the inferior of nobody basking for a moment on this planet on his long flight through infinity.

He may forget it all when he reaches his office, but for a brief spell he realizes that he is alive, an immortal wander er from regions far away. Is Spring fever sheer laziness? Not a bit of it It is nature's remedy for those who had almost forgotten they possessed a soul.

CHURCHILL'S MEMOIRS

Mr. Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty in 1914 and 1915, is publishing his memoirs of the Great War, the first two books having already appeared, and the third volume being now reproduced, in part, by the London Times. It is, as might be expected, extremely interesting. Mr. Churchill is careful to make it known that the opinions expressed are his own, and not those of the government; but he has a most persuasive manner of writing, and makes out a very strong case for the strategy which he favored in the war. The impression that he had his chance and failed, that his daring conception of military and naval tactics were responsible for grievous losses and failures, is modified by his own account of what took place and of what might have been had he been accorded the support to which he considered himself entitled. Previous volumes have dealt with the Dardanelles adventure, and the attempt made in them to justify it, undertaking and to show that its failure really resulted from lack of vim and vigor on the part of those in supreme command. The arguments adduced might be classed, no doubt, a specialpleading. Whatever may be thoughts of the merits of Mr. Churchill abortive plan to break through the Dardanelles and open up communication with Russia—incidentally dealing a decisive blow to Turkey—the fact is undeniable that he was right in his forecast regarding the long-drawn-out operations on the west'rn front. The "war of attrition" was a terribly costly business, accompanied with endless disappointments and mistakes. Had his policy been successful—as he claims it might have been successful, if more intelligently carried out—the war would certainly have ended sooner than it did. What might have been, however, is a futile if interesting speculation.

One of the most interesting of the later episodes reviewed in these memoirs is the battle of Jutland. That controversial engagement is skillfully analyzed and the exploit courage and enterprise displayed receive their due need of praise. It would seem that both British and German commanders were thoroughly deceived about the actual situation. Jellicoe followed the rules, and Scheer's one thought was to escape from the trap into which he had been led. In this he succeeded, but his pretension that he deliberately invited a pitched battle with the British grand fleet is scouted as ridiculous. Other interesting chapters concern the revolt of French troops on the western front, about which little has been said, and the premature use of the "tanks." Had these armored cars been kept a secret till they could be used in great force, the results might have been much more satisfactory. There is, also, a shrewd appreciation of President Wilson's conduct before and after the entry of the United States into the war. Mr. Churchill is throughout charged with his usual frankness and literary skill.

INDISCRETION

One wonders if Sir Hugh Dobson, recently appointed Australian trade commissioner in the United States, has read the criticism directed from Ottawa at his principal. Premier Bruce, because of certain utterances of his during his brief visit to Canada. For it is to be feared that Sir Hugh has earned for himself a similar rebuke. He has been addressing the Canadian clubs of Toronto and Hamilton, and in one of his addresses he is reported to have said that the British dominions having risen to equal political status in the empire with the mother-country, should be ready to assume equal responsibilities with her—especially in the matter of empire defence.

That is just what Mr. Bruce said, and for saying it he drew upon himself sharp rebukes from Ottawa, being accused of impertinent interference in Canadian affairs. Sir Hugh, it is to be feared, has been interfering in Canadian affairs in presuming to remind Canadians that the British dominions have duties and responsibilities as well as privileges. The case is plain. Canada is one of the dominions. Any reference to the dominions must be a reference to Canada. To say that the dominions have duties and responsibilities is to say that Canada does not sufficiently recognize her duties and responsibilities as a member of the Britannic family—and is not that an affront to Canada—an interference in Canadian affairs?

Distinguished visitors to this country from other parts of the empire cannot be too circumspect in their public utterances for we are (in spots) abnormally sensitive to criticism and have a perfect genius for finding out and identifying any veiled or disguised hint that we are a people in any way or degree fall short of our full duty to the empire.

The Small Town Hotel Isn't What It Used To Be

Now that good roads are plentiful and once Forbes Robertson, I guess, no city folks, didn't have much of us in the old days, before the movies and popular.

"We" used to get all kinds of troupes, good troupes and poor troupes, cash troupes and issue troupes. We got "repertoire" companies what played heavy stuff like 'East Lynne" and "Held by the Enemy" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and comedies like "Peck's Bad Boy" and then'o' course, we drew plenty of no. 2 musical comedies out of the theatrical grab bag.

"It was the musical shows that made most of the excitement and the fun. They always brought chorus girls, sometimes as many as sixteen. And say, some of 'em was peaches and some of 'em was little apes. But when any o' the town boys came in after the troupe had registered and asked what the girls is like, I always said they was regular killers. Who see I helped the troupes all I could, even when I had to attach the office de see my room money.

"I tell you, it helps cheer things up in a hotel to have a bunch o' dames wearin' Paris gowns and pearlies laces standin' around and kickin' about the rooms bein' cold and the eats what it is. Sure, it helps business too. The days are all the time droppin' in to buy a segar and borrow a toothpick.

"I used to get a lot of stuff in the magazines and papers, tellin' about how chorus girls live on post toast and lobsters in Newburgh. Well that may fool a lot o' people who believe your story writers, but I know better. All the chorus girls I ever see lived on ham and ones first, last and all the time. Whenever a musical show drifts into our town I always tell the night department to get ready a flock of ham and eggs.

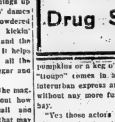

"Some rockers might say that the chorus dames circle the ham and eggs in small town hotels because they don't trust the rest of the bill of fare, but that isn't so. All the troupes I ever see not only trusted the bill of fare, but they wanted to 'trust' every

"I don't claim that I'm a great cook or nothin' like that, but I serve so as I could spot those troupe managers like a detective does a confidence man. Generally I'd land a troupe soon by his roll of bills. If he was plainly dressed and didn't make a lot of noise, and didn't flash any money on him, I set him down as a respectable chap and gave him all the accommodations what could be wanted.

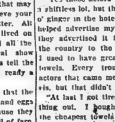

"But if he started the conversation by offering to buy me a nickel segar, and then pulled out a roll of bills as thick as a ball bat, and with a whole yellow wrapper carefully coatin' a bunch of ones, I pit him know mighty quick that I was waitin' for cash in advance.

"Yes, those were good old days that won't come again. The movies are ruinin' every night at the old "opry" house and the new Nickel Gem Theatre is turnin' 'em away with Charlie Chaplin and all the big town stories.

"That kind of troupe hasn't got no more use for a hotel than a crate of

1927 PROSPECTS MOST PROMISING

The Industrial prospects for Belleville District for 1927 seem to be a little above the average, and considerably better than for the corresponding period of 1926 according to an interview with Supt. L. F. Green of the Government Employment Office this morning. The demand for skilled labour will considerably exceed the available supply, as at the present time this office has vacancies for Tool and Diemakers, Sheet Metal Workers, Lathe Hand, Tool Designers, Experienced Woodworkers on Motor Bodies, Pieces Frame Sawyers and Joiners.

"The prospects for Building Construction work in and near the city, should continue in approximately the same proportion as for several years past. Machine Shops and Foundries will reflect improvement in the Automobile Industry. Wages for skilled mechanics will probably be forced higher which may bring about a slight increase in common labour rates, possibly resulting in a continuance of prosperity, an increase in saving accounts, and greater buying power.

Citizens willing to offer casual employment for men or women of one or more days duration should telephone their orders in as early as possible as there are a number of very deserving applicants willing to accept work to tide them over until the Spring Trade commences.

Sandwich man, accused of causing death of Mr. Kerr, of Windsor, by a hit and run, found not guilty.

Westminster Abbey Choir Boys with their conductor, Dr. Sydney H. Nicholson, on the steps of the Abbey

"Ave atque Vale" (Hail and Farewell) echoed through the austere precincts of the Canadian Pacific Railway offices Board Room at the Windsor street station, Montreal, when the Westminster Choir Boys, in token of their appreciation and thanks for the care and thought taken in their behalf during their six thousand mile tour of Canada, which they completed March 16, when they sailed on the C.P. liner Minnedosa from Saint John for London, sang a parting song in Latin for E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the company in whose care they had made their memorable journey.

The boys were ushered into the Board Room by Dr. A. V. Baillie, Dean of Windsor; Dr. C. H. Fellowes, choirmaster of the St. George's Chapel choir; and Dr. Sydney H. Nicholson, organist of Westminster Abbey. Mr. Beatty was quite unaware of their intention as they came in and the surprise was all the more agreeable. At the conclusion of the Latin anthem of parting the boys rendered a few songs and the old favorite "John Peel." Mr. Beatty then chatted informally with them and thanked them for this unusual and delightful form of thanksgiving. All the boys agreed that their visit to Canada had been a succession of pleasurable experiences and several of them expressed their intention of returning and settling in the Dominion when they had grown up.

BELLEVILLE LEADS

In response to the call from the Near East for help for the refugee populations, Belleville has been particularly generous and another $80 was recently received by them in charge of the "Save the Children Fund" from Belleville, forwarded through the Standard Bank. This contribution has enabled the authorities to forward another draft for $100 to London for the benedicent work.

REV. KENNY RETURNING

Rev. L. S. Wight, pastor of Holloway Street United Church has received word from Rev. H. B. He is in excellent health and assured Mr. Wright of his earnest prayers that the Crossley-Leonard Evangelistic services might prove a blessing to all Churches in Belleville.

EUCHRE IN ORANGE HALL

The Orangemen held another successful euchre last evening in their Hall on Front Street. There were 9 tables in play and the competition was keen for the fine favors offered. The prize-winners were: Ladies' 1st, Miss Edna Monsant; 2nd, Mrs. Asselstine; 3rd, Mrs. Markham; consolation, Mrs. Isaman. Gents' 1st, Arthur Demorest; 2nd, Mr. R. Ainsworth; consolation, Mr. L. H. Ivey. Following the card playing refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was concluded shortly after midnight.

PROTECT THE LAWNS

With absolutely no respect for his or her neighbours' property, hundreds of people, young and old, are willfully having to make short cuts from one street to another. In consideration of the fact the practice at this time of the year is absolutely death to the good appearance of a lawn and that hundreds of dollars expenditure yearly is necessary to keep the lawns in the desired beautiful condition, it is inconceivable why persons persist in the saving a step at the expense of both law and the beauty of the city. During the winter, lawn experts assert, the trampling of lawns is detrimental but in the soft, soggy conditions of the ground in Spring it is absolutely death to the young grass.

BANQUET TO TEACHERS

Invitations have been issued for a banquet to be given by Mr. John Elliott on Monday next. The banquet will be held in the Quinte Hotel as usual, beginning at 7.30 p.m. sharp.

ABE. ROBINSON

started a career of crime and most productive in the North country.

For a man of his years, Robinson's health is remarkable. Though he has passed his seventy-fifth birthday he has never had a day's sickness in his life, otherwise than shock suffered when shot while Chief McKinnon was affecting a raid at his home thirty years ago.

His operations was of necessity limited. He can hardly read or write but manages with the aid of glasses to decipher the daily papers. He claims that his brother Lemuel was regarded as an unusually bright scholar. The family received the best education in the country school house.

As to his financial prospects he expects to realize a good sum from his sugar bush this Spring on the present warm weather continues.

As he sat comfortably on his big cigar Robinson recounted the tale of his sugar bush this Spring if the through the water-sodden roads. He was thankful that during his incarceration in the County Jail Lemuel was enabled to secure the services of a farm hand who is still working for him. His present predicament in being held for mental tests does not apparently worry him whatsoever and he takes everything calmly.

DR. BLOTZ GIVES TALK ON CARING FOR THE CHILD

Women's Canadian Club Hears Interesting Address Last Night

Dr. A. W. Blotz, Assistant Professor of Psychology, University of Toronto, held the largest audience which has yet attended a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club entralled when he gave an intensely interesting address on "The Nursery School Project." In his lecture which resolved itself into an informal talk the lecturer related the new manner in which the mentally sick are treated, outlining the development of science which led psychologists to look for the reason for mental illness and attend to its prevention rather than concentrating on cure.

His speech had history connected with it as he said that when we entered the war the branch which was not very well organized was the mental health. Nicely percent of the mental cases appeared hopeless and incurring this, Dr. Blotz immediately made up his mind to investigate some of the factors which underlaid the mental cases. After a close study he came to the conclusion that all the mental cases would have become mental in time but the occurrence would have been delayed; the war had simply hastened the process.

In concentrating upon the child's mind of mental illness, Dr. Blotz found that at least ten out of every four or five hundred children in Belleville or any locality will ultimately end as mental cases. "Today appally" the speaker said, "the tendency is to prevention of the mental ailment rather than cure, rather than study the mentally sick. It was thought advisable to study normal children. The average physician very seldom comes into contact with normal conditions so has little chance to concentrate on such and previous to the recent development in the treatment of mental cases those studying the disease had not studied normal cases to find out what conditions indicate abnormality.

Nursery Project

In the Nursery School sixteen children of between 2 and 5 years of age are kept under close observation at play, sleeping and eating to find out every symptom of normal mental development. St. Augustine said to give him a child until he is six years of age and his training will be complete in the way he should go—he had the idea for between those ages are the most important mental development takes place and the personality is developed.

The routine at the school has been most carefully prepared. The little cues arriving in the morning are supplied with toys which teach them to concentrate, develop their ingenuity and provide a splendid field for those in charge to observe the children's actions. They are encouraged to have pets of every kind, cats, dogs, turtles, etc. that they may gather the fundamental truths of life in a natural way, rather than in the distasteful manner in which such knowledge is gathered on the street. Sleep is part of the routine and always under supervision. Most interesting facts are daily tabulated by those in charge regarding the normal development of a normal child.

Dr. Thomas Cumberland of the Ontario Hospital, Brockville, and Dr. Edward Ryan are expected to arrive today.

It will be recalled that Mr. Justice Logie, the trial Judge, in charging Robinson prior to his acquittal said: "The jury have found you not guilty on evidence upon which a verdict of guilty might easily have been returned. For myself, I think that you fired the shot that killed St. Charles, and I think some steps will have to be taken, I will make my report accordingly, for I think you are not a safe man to be at large."

Charles Payne

Mr. Charles Payne when seen by the Intelligencer today stated that he will likely take some action if the authorities attempt to place Robinson in an institution. At the present time regarding definite is being done as he awaiting the findings of the mental experts. Mr. Payne who returned to the city from Toronto this morning conferred with his client for some time.

Robinson appeared before Magistrate Mikel this morning under the Hospital Insane Act and on the request of the Crown, B. C. Penman, the case was enlarged until March 22nd. Meanwhile he will be held pending the examination.

MINING GOSSIP

MARKET SPOTLIGHT ON MINING STOCKS — HOWAT M&M McGILLIVRAY

AMULEY GOLD MINES: Diamond drilling being continued. The fourth hole is under way and has already attained a depth of over 200 feet. Some values in form of disseminated chalcopyrite have been encountered but same are of doubtful commercial value. There is some talk of drilling a long horizontal hole from the bottom of the Amulet shaft, but we are inclined to believe that any diamond drilling from this point will be in connection with the further exploring of known bodies in this section. Amulet Mines are by no means dependent upon indication as reported by the electrical survey near the Area Mines, Limited, boundary, having already between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 in ore, calculated by the diamond drilling of their main surface showing and by depth operations to 150 feet. It must be kept in mind that Amulet is a property with considerable proved ore while Area Mines, Limited, is still simply a raw prospect.

LAVAL QUEBEC: Continuing drilling of their second diamond drill hole which is being drilled from Pelletier Lake. Trouble was encountered at the bottom of the lake with boulders. A second and heavier drill was sent for and reached the property on February 23rd. It is not expected that further drilling trouble will be encountered. Laval-Quebec owns a number of well-located properties, is well financed and the management is sound. Should any of the mineralized zones as indicated by the Swedish Electrical Survey be proven by diamond drilling to be of commercial value, we look for a substantial advance in the price of this Company's shares.

SOME QUEER BOORS AMONG HUSBANDS

By RUSIE MARLOWE

Why does my husband always criticize me when company is present, although he's so nice when we're alone?"

There's a question that's going to hit the bull's-eye in many a home. How many a wife has bridled with amazement when her usually quiet good-natured spouse begins to "act up" before visitors? And now Alice W. is determined to find out what its all about.

DEAR ELSIE:

Im coming to you with a question which has puzzled me for a long time. Maybe you can shed some light on the subject.

Why does my husband always take the opportunity to rave me and find fault when we have company? He is the best husband in the world otherwise. He is never cross to me when we are alone; but, let there be company, and things are different.

We have been married seven years and have been very happy together as far as I know. I have pointed out to him how it humiliates me to have him flaunt my faults in front of other people, but afterward he can't even remember what he has said, and says I imagine things. It seems to be unconsciously done on his part.

Is it because he doesn't want people to think he is henpecked and wants to show his authority Or is it because he takes the opportunity when others are present so I can't defend myself and start a row?

If he weren't always sweet-tempered and good to me when we are alone, I would understand these nasty outbreaks when we have callers or go out anywhere. Could it be that he is unconsciously looking for sympathy Of course, our friends must all think we live a dog-and-cat existence.

I have wondered for a long time what prompts him to set mean toward me when others are looking on, and whether I should forgive him or raise Cain.

ALICE W.

Why does he do it? All the reasons you have given are possible, Alice, but think the trouble is probably due to a deeper cause than that, a cause which you may be able to cure if you use that sensible head of yours. Listen while I tell you a little story.

Remember when you were a little girl and Mother made you wear that made-over dress to school? Gosh, how you hated that old dress! Ugly green and red plaid that Cousin Jane had worn a whole year before she gave it to mother to cut down for you. You cried when Mother said that you had to wear it, but she said it was splendid material, and you ought to be grateful to have such a nice, warm dress. So you wore it, though you felt all "sicky" inside for fear the girls would laugh at you.

But did you set "sicky" outside? I'll say you didn't. You strutted into the playground with your nose into the air acting as if you had on the most beautiful dress in the world. In fact, you were so determined that you'd hide your feelings, that you were perfectly horrid to everyone. And nobody could understand what on earth made you act that way. Remember?

Scientists have a name for the way you felt that day, Alice. They call that "sickly" miserable inside feeling an "inferiority reaction," and whenever they see people being markedly rude and "smarty" outside, they suspect that they're feeling inferior inside.

And that's probably what has happened to your nice husband. For some reason he has an inferiority reaction which has hardened into a definite inferiority complex. Maybe something in his past life, long before you met him gave him that feeling of inferiority which he is in the presence of company Maybe you, yourself, have given it to him. It may be that you unconsciously manage him and try to dictate to him, never dreaming that he resents it. Or it may be that you're socially more popular than he is. For whatever the reason, his feeling of inferiority rankles in him, and he tries to hide it by "showing off," just as you tried to hide your sore little heart by being rude to the other girls.

Think it over. Doesn't that give you the clue to the trouble?

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of twenty. I was engaged to a young man for two months. A few days ago he broke the engagement and has refused to see me since.

Please advise me what to do.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

BROKEN-HEARTED: You have have not given any reason for his action. It is, therefore, very difficult to advise you.

If you do not already know the reason for his breaking the engagement, write to him and ask an explanation. If he has ceased to care for you, I am afraid there is nothing that you can do. There is no recipe by which love can be recaptured.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been in love with a young man for a long time. For a long time he seemed entirely unconscious of my existence. Then one day we met by chance and he took me home. He asked to call that night.

He has a reputation for being a "gay deceiver," Girls say he's "fast" and boys say he's a "real ever." I am sure you know the type.

But, regardless of that fact, I gave him permission to call. He came and asked to call again. His behaviour had been so perfect that I finally said I would marry him.

The evening passed as the first one had—nothing exciting. We had been out riding, and, about 11 o'clock I asked him to take me home. He stopped the car and told me that he wasn't going to take me home until I married him. It dawned upon me with amazing rapidity that the boy was intoxicated. I began to feel afraid of him, but he did nothing to betray my trust in him.

He drove on and on, at regular intervals renewing his pleas. It was not until 2.30 A.M. that I finally said I would marry him.

No sooner had I yielded than I was sorry. I loved him, but I knew that if I married him while he was intoxicated he would hate me for the rest of his life. He would say I had tricked him. So I decided that if I wedded him I'd have him sober I wouldn't have him drunk.

I did trick him, though—tricked him into taking me home for the ostensible purpose of getting some of my things. When we got there I purposely kicked over three chairs to awaken my parents. The outcome was all I expected, and, more. My father ordered him from the house and to stay away for good.

When he awoke the next day no doubt he remembered a great deal of what had happened. He came over immediately and apologized.

Since then, I imagine, he has convinced himself that he acted like a perfect fool. He avoids seeing me. I have not seen him for two weeks, and the effect has been devastating.

If I could get him to say those things to me again and mean them I would be happy. Tell me what I can do to win him.

MARY.

MARY: Of course, the young man may very well in love with you, but considerably surprised at the episode which you describe. Moreover, your father ordered him from the house, and he probably thinks—and rightly—that he would no longer be a welcome visitor at your home. And his reputation, as you yourself have pointed out, is against him.

If you can induce your father to give you his permission you might write the young man to call again. You can suggest very discreetly that the events of your previous meeting have been forgotten as well as forgiven. Probably he is afraid that he might have to repeat the proposal when he sees you again. You can make it quite clear that you merely wish to renew the friendship for its own sake. I must caution you to use tact.

Renewing the friendship in this way, the proposal that you wish may eventually be repeated, But you must not count on it too much. I rather doubt that the young man is worthy of the perturbation you are experiencing.

HEARTS' HAVEN
By Mildred Barbour

AN HOUR OF MADNESS

Strangely enough, Sanford was at home on that summer evening.

Even while she was waiting for his telephone to answer, Christine was hoping that his apartment would be closed—that he had left town for the week-end.

But his butler's voice answered her ring, and, a few minutes later, Sanford was on the wire.

He made her repeat her name three times. She flushed with the humiliation of it. He wanted to punish her, she thought!

She forced a light, coquettish note into her voice:

"Surely, you've not forgotten me so soon?"

"Not quite," he assured her blandly. "But you've neglected me frightfully of late."

"I rather think you owe to that your self," he reminded her.

She refused to comment on that statement. Vividly rebel in her memory was her last glimpse of him, leaving irritably as he banded her back the manuscript of her play, saying coldly: "If ever you change your mind—"

"Nobody's seen very much of me lately," she said, as if she deliberately misinterpreted his reference. "I've been very busy."

Not for worlds would she have brought herself to mention her little—oh—so—dull to Sanford. She felt that Junior's very name on her lips at this time would soil his memory. And yet she stuck obediently to the problem that had carried her to the telephone.

"Not writing another play, I hope," he said, with a suspicion of a laugh.

No. Recognizing the futility of it, yes," she replied untruthfully. Then she added: "Or rather, I'm studying it in preparation for correction. You see, I still have faith in it. You—you wouldn't reconsider it, if I did a better job the second time?"

There was a brief silence. Then Sanford said slowly:

"I might."

Christine was trembling. She leaned against the wall for support, and the telephone receiver almost fell from her hand.

"Would you—would you, perhaps, make some suggestions for me to follow in rewriting it?"

Again: "I might."

The study hallway of the lodging-house was dark and there was no one to see her, yet Christine felt a burning blush suffuse her whole body.

Shame! Shame! her conscience cried but she hardened her heart, refusing to heed.

"Well—I—" she stammered, at a loss for anything further to say.

He interrupted her with:

"Can you manage to have supper with me here at my apartment this evening? We might discuss your play and see what can be done."

She forced a "Yes." Her eyes closed momentarily. She could fairly see his curious smile—a smile of triumph it would be, now. He was undoubtedly saying to himself: "See! She thought better of it. She did change her mind after all."

"Fine," he insisted. "I can't see the big ear for you, because we're being gone over in preparation for a trip I'm making to Canada soon, but I'll have the chauffeur drive the roadster down for you."

"Don't trouble," she said lightly. "I'll take a taxi. I'm fond of them."

Somehow, she wanted to put off as long as possible the moment when she would see Sanford irretrievably, in this mad, reckless step.

She hung up the receiver and hurried out of the booth and down the hallway to the home of the girl who had been her nurse-maid.

"I'm going out tonight," she explained "Can you come in to look after Louise?"

The girl accompanied her home and sat by the window in the nursery, while Christine made a rapid toilet. It was the first time she had worn her little evening frock since Junior's death. She was glad it was black but the neat moment, as if in defiance of the tears in her heart, she wrapped herself recklessly in a gay fringed shawl that had fallen to her lot at the specialty shop, because it was badly damaged in one corner.

A last glance at herself in the mirror showed her flushed of cheek, glittering of eye, a gay, defiant, beautiful little figure. A woman dangerous to a man—more dangerous to herself!

Louise, who had watched the process of her mother's toilet from her little cot, came shyly to her and caught at the fringe of the black shawl. Her childish eyes showed their admiration.

For a moment, Christine's heart ached with pain. Then she took a child aside with hands that trembled. Going to the window-sill, she took from it the manuscript of her play.

"I've got to make Sanford take it," she told herself. "I've got to."

Out on the street, she hailed a taxi. "Please hurry. I have late for an appointment."

The chauffeur took her at her word and the cab barked off at top speed Christine scarcely noticed. She sat tense, holding her precious manuscript in her clenched hands.

Suddenly, from a side-street, a limousine shot across the Avenue and darted into the path of her taxi. There was a terrific impact and the crash of breaking glass! A woman's agonized shriek!

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any druggist here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in a water any time for indigestion, sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this sour, gassy waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Insist Upon "Phillips"

Corns
Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot-calluses, without soreness or irritation.

DRESSES SHOWN IN COURT ROOM

Judge Asked to Decide Whether They Are Properly Made

The court room in Trenton at the March sittings of the Court looked more like a Ladies' Ready To Wear store than a Court Room, when an action brought by a Toronto manufacturer of ladies' dresses against a Trenton merchant was tried. The Trenton merchant bought a number of silk dresses at Trenton from the traveller of the Toronto firm and after the dresses arrived and were inspected, the purchaser concluded that they were not made in proper workmanlike manner and rejected them.

The Toronto manufacturer returned the dresses and sued the Trenton merchant. Mr. Evans, the lawyer who came down from Toronto to represent the Toronto manufacturer, took the ground that the dresses were all right and at any rate were not rejected soon enough. W. C. Mikel, K.C., representing the Trenton merchant, exhibited the dresses to the Court and asked His Honor Judge Madden as a married man to say that these dresses were poorly made, pointing out that the person of the wearer would be actually exposed through the defective seams owing to the small amount of clothes now being worn by ladies. He also took the ground that the dresses were rejected in time.

PHOTOPHONE BIG SUCCESS IN N.Y.

New York, March 12—Sound and action, both photographed on the same reel of film, was successfully projected in synchronization on the screen of one of the city theatres recently.

Before a small audience of newspapermen and special guests electrical engineers introduced their contribution to the talking motion picture field, calling the process the "Photophone."

This process differs from the "Vitaphone" now being used in some theatres in that the sound is reproduced direct from a film, which the former utilizes sound which is recorded on and taken from a phonograph record.

One reel of a current motion picture drama was shown, while accompanying music played forty-eight hours earlier by an orchestra issued from a giant loud speaker on the stage in perfect synchronization with the action on the screen.

The "Photophone" process of recording and projecting sound and motion is highly intricate, but in substance this is haunt the manner in which it is accomplished.

Two cameras are set up side by side in a studio. One is a standard motion picture camera, the other a special camera designed to photograph sound waves. Both cameras operate simultaneously because they "grind" on photograph reels through the power furnished by one motor which serves both.

A quartette sings before the cameras, one or possibly two microphones are placed near them, but not out of the picture camera's range. At a given moment they commence to sing; the motion pictures in motion both cameras; our cameras photographs the action on a roll of film, one-fifth of which is "shielded" or left free. The microphone picks up the voices and feeds them into the other camera, through which a roll of film is passing and on which the sound is photographed through the agency of an "Oscillograph."

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Word was received from headquarters of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association yesterday, that the Y's Men's Inter mediate entry, in the O.A.B. A. will play the Elizabeth Playground team at Central Y.M.C.A. Toronto, Saturday the 19th instead of the 26th, as originally scheduled. Already two practices have been held in preparation for the hard game which the locals anticipate on the large floor at Central and the boys are planning to get in a couple more stiff workouts before the end of the week.

Still feeling the sting of their defeat at the hands of the Elizabeth Juveniles, the High School Basketball players are determined to change the order of events when those teams meet in the final and deciding game, at the Campbell St. gymnasium this coming Saturday night. The Elizabeth St. boys were a little too good for the High School representatives on the large floor space at Central but on their own court the local basketeers expect to show a complete reversal of form and among the members of the team there is a feeling they will be able to overcome the twenty-seven point lead the Toronto players gained in the game last week-end. Monday night the school team had a good workout against the intermediates and they are scheduled for another team practice next week.

For several weeks past the various classes composing the junior membership of the Association have spent considerable time in practicing the events of the Heathon, consisting of the shot and long potato race, standing broad jump, standing high jump, snap under the bar, force vault, and shot put. Last Saturday morning the Peter and Juniors held the finals in three of the tests and yesterday afternoon the Senior School group ran through the same events. In the 80 lb class George Dolman has made the best showing to date, getting 90 points in the shot potato race and 100 points in the long potato race and in the standing broad jump. In the 95 lb class Don Bailey is in the lead with scores of 100 and 91 in the two respective events. There is a close race in the 110 lb class between Harry Bailey and Clair Countryman, both have 100 points in the standing broad jump and the long potato race while in the shot put Harry Bailey has five points more than Countryman, the latter's score being 80. Bud Calway of the senior school group took three point marks in yesterday afternoon's tests when he scored 100 points in two of the three events and 92 in the third.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ross and children spent Sunday with Mr. Ross's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ross.

Gen. Sir Arthur Currie has been appointed honorary colonel of the 7th, M.G.B., of St. John.

RECORD BREAKER OIL SHIPMENT

The largest shipment of motor oil ever made in Canada, and one of the largest ever made in the world, left the Barnsdale plant of Imperial Oil Limited today for Western Canada.

It consisted of a solid train of twenty six car loads of Marvelube Motor Oils—eighteen Imperial tank cars carrying Marvelube in bulk and eight freight cars loaded with barrels, drums and cans of Marvelube.

The shipment, which is consigned to points throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, will proceed as one train—Canada's first "All-Motor oil" train—as far as Fort William, where it will be broken up for distribution to different cities and towns along the railroads.

It carries the early 1927 Spring orders of a portion of the dealers and service stations who sell Marvelube Motor Oils throughout the four Western Provinces and is the first of several consignments which will be required to meet this year's initial demands for Marvelube in both Western and Eastern Canada.

Marvelube Motor Oils are a compounded by blend of oil, introduced by Imperial Oil Limited for the first time in April of last year. Since then those oils have been in extensive demand throughout most parts of the Dominion.

HUGGINS STARTS SAME LINE-UP

All Well in Camp of Yankees With "Babe" Ruth in Best of Shape

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 16.—Babe Ruth is in the lineup and all's well with the Yankees. The slugging outfielder in practice promises to pick up his home-run hitting where he left off in the world series, and the other players believe New York will ride to another American league pennant on the big bat of the Babe.

Those who believe "as Ruth goes, so go the Yankees," find much to please them in the spring training program, as Ruth slams the ball to distant places. Only a few pounds above his normal weight, for an ordinary athlete that places him in the proverbial pink of condition, the home-run hitter seems certain to be right at the top of his game when the season opens.

In support of the Babe, Manager Miller Huggins will offer the same cast he used to win the pennant last season. He will have some added starters in the reserves, but will stand pat on the regulars.

With Gehrig, Lazzeri, Koenig and Dugan entered for the duration of the baseball war, the infield context is for assistant to Mike Gazella, who has again first utility call. Ray Morehart, who came from the White Sox, and Julian Wera, up from St. Paul, have shown so much in the spring camp that Spencer Adams may be pushed aside. There are several other young infielders scampering about the field, but Wera has shown an edge among those trying to break into the majors for the first time. Playing third or short equally well, he gets the ball very quickly and throws much better. Close observers would not be surprised to see him win a place.

A similar situation exists in the outfield. Ruth, Combs and Meusel are fixtures, with Paschal no less firmly entrenched as extra man. Dugan, obtained from the Browns in a trade by which Sam Jones went to St. Louis, is said to have been brought on because he is a left-handed hitter, Elias Funk whose release was purchased from Oklahoma City, has shown a great deal in practice and he, too, is a left-hand batsman.

Bengough and Collins, last year's catchers, have been joined by Grabowski, former White Sox, who won a place on the staff in short order.

Glowing accounts of the training camps of Florida has it that the Cards have turned their backs on their former friend and ally Rogers Hornsby and when the swat king of the National league passes his old mates he'll find the greeting rather frigid. That will please John McGraw, who is never so happy as when he has a field feud on with a rival club.

Hornsby's forecast about the National league race was relayed to the St. Louis camp at Avon and when the champions read where he picked them to finish fourth there was no little indignation among the title-holders. Hornsby's remarks severed the cord of friendship then and there and the players let it be known that they considered Hornsby 100 per cent for Hornsby and the rest for the other fellow.

Of course, the dirt comes out when some one is stung, and the Cards are alleged to have raked their records like a leader over the coals for his remarks. The players aim to prove that the Cards of 1926 were not a one-man team. Such players as O'Farrell, Alexander, Haines and Sothoron are said to have told Hornsby won the pennant and the world-series single-handed.

St. Louis players have been told that Hornsby has talked behind their backs. They believe a member is the true test, so look out for a clash when they meet. Some of the remarks credited to Hornsby which have made bitterness in the St. Louis camp are that Jim Bottomley was not in a slump last season, but was hitting at his real clip; that Les Bell only had a lucky batting streak that brought him status of Hornsby at the finish; that Grover Alexander is at the end of his string and would slide down to the minors before June 15. All of which will help to end the glad hand era with Rogers. It will be a real fight all along the line this year.

Dr. Warren Clark physical physician to Jack Dempsey yesterday said an operation intended to correct an infection at the base of the former heavyweight champion's spine was being considered following a recent consultation. Dempsey suffered an infection of a number of lower vertebrae as a result of a heavy fall during one of his fights about six years ago. This is believed to have been responsible for several outbreakings of blood poisoning during the last year. Recently he underwent operations to prevent the spread of poisoning in his left hand and arm.

Lee, who is totally blind, dribbled the ball out of the floor, up to the basket, shot the goal, recovered the ball dribbled to the basket at the other end of the floor and shot the goal again. He followed this by shooting three consecutive field goals near the basket.

Sir Harry, the chestnut colt which won the rich Coffeen stakes for the Seagrams at Tia Juana Sunday, was bred in England by C. H. Berryman and is by Wildair. He has started four times at Tia Juana, winning his first start at six furlongs and finishing fifth in his second start at the same distance. His was second to Justice F., another English bred horse, in the Tia Juana derby a week ago yesterday at a mile and an eighth and Sunday gained a place in the hall of turf fame by defeating the classiest field that has faced the barrier on this continent this year. Before his derby race he was second to Ted Sloan at a mile and 70 yards. He is eligible for the Kentucky derby and will pace the coast in about two weeks' time for the Blue Grass state to prepare for the next big feature.

THE GREAT "I AM"

I am more powerful than the combined armies of the world.

I have destroyed more men than all the wars of the nations.

I am more deadly than bullets, and I find my victims among the rich and poor alike, the young and old, the strong and the weak. Widows and orphans know me.

I loom up to such proportions that I cast my shadow over every field of labor, from the turning of the grindstone to the moving of every railroad train.

I massacre thousands upon thousands of wage-earners a year.

I lurk in unseen places, and do most of my work silently. You are warned against me, but you heed not.

I am relentless.

I am everywhere—in the house, on the streets, in the factory, at railroad crossings, and on the sea.

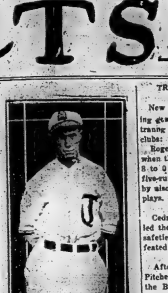

I bring sickness degradation and death, and yet few seek to avoid me.

I destroy, crush or unnie; I give nothing, but take all.

I am your worst enemy.

I am Carelessness.

TRAINING CAMP GOSSIP

New York, March 16.—The following gossip was gathered from the training camps of the major league clubs:

Rogers Hornsby's one hit Tuesday when the Giants defeated the Braves 8 to 6 figured conspicuously in a fifteen-run seventh inning rally. Horns by also had a hand in two double plays.

Cedric Durst and Ray Morehart led the Yankee hitters with four safeties apiece when New York defeated Baltimore 11 to 2.

After quitting camp Saturday Pitcher Bill Doak has returned to the Brooklin Dodgers to renew salary negotiations.

Charlie Barnabe, Southpaw, Joe Brown and Bert Cole, rookie pitchers, with the Chicago White Sox, are expected to be retained by the club. Pruning day is set for Thursday.

The Philadelphia Athletics gathered only six hits all singles and three of them infield scratches, off Alexander, Cardel and Ring yesterday and lost to the St. Louis Cardinals 6 to 5. T Cobb was credited with two hits. The two teams meet again today.

The Philadelphia Nationals and New York Giants are scheduled to clash today in Bradenton, Fla. and the St. Louis Browns and Brooklyn Dodgers open a series at Tarpon Springs.

Manager Moriarit of the Detroit Tigers regards the squad as 50 per cent. stronger than at this time last year. Ten per cent. he attributes to improved morals, ten per cent. to Marty McManus at second base and the remainder to the added efficiency of his pitching staff.

George Kelly and Charlie Dressen will be given a little rest and Wally Pipp will go to Fort Meg and Babe Pinelli to third in the return game the Cincinnati Reds play with Indianapolis today.

BELLE THEATRE

Louise Fazenda is now, in reality, what she has been in the hearts of moving picture audiences for many a long day—a star. Her role in "Finger Prints," which comes to the Belle Theatre today for a run of two days, is one after Gaidon's heart and has all the plays this part of small, sharp-nosed, spying Dora Traynor, servant in a house of mystery, which hides a gang of desperate robbers. What Dora does to toll them! What shivering, hair-raising terrors she encounters! What varying degrees of fright she simulates, from ear-pricking attention to wide-mouthed screaming frenzy! She role has given Fazenda her biggest opportunity and she has seized it with the zest of a true comedienne.

Playing opposite her is John T. Murray, the musical comedy recruit to pictures who scored a big hit in "Marjolaine the Magnificent." Helene Costello is also featured in the role of the bandit's sister, who carries around with her in a locket a paper that tells the hiding place of $5,000,000 in loot.

REGENT THEATRE

"The White Black Sheep", Richard Barthelmess' latest inspiration starring feature, now attracting large audiences at the Regent Theatre, is a story of a boy who, disgraced and wrongly accused, joins the British army in the Near East and there proves his true worth and incidentally wins a great love.

Richard Barthelmess enacts the role of Robert Kincaird, scion of a long line of British soldiers, and Patsy Ruth Miller portrays the part of Zelle, the Greek dancing girl, with whom he falls in love in a picturesque cafe in Palestine.

Constance Howard has the unsympathetic role of the girl who betrays him and thus sends him to a distant land.

The picture was made under the direction of Sidney Olcott and contains an exceptional cast. It will be

The Texas desert country, near the border of old Mexico is the locale of "The Border Whirlwind," an F.B.O. production starring Bob Custer which is coming to the Regent Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. There is no setting more typical of the spirit of the West. It is replete with stretches of sand, sage and mesquite and forms a colorful background for the activities of the popular Western star. The story, by James Ormont, abounds in adventure. It is centered about a youth, who, on his return from Eastern schools is immediately thrust into the throes of an intrigue to which he must give unsparingly of his courage and daunt-less valor.

FATTY TO TRY TO DO A COMEBACK

Los Angeles, March 15.—The Examiner says Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, whose career was cut short in 1921 when he was arraigned of responsibility for the death of Virginia Rappe, a picture actress, but later acquitted has signed a contract to produce a series of comedies for Abe Carlos, an independent producer, over a period of five years, which it was said he expected will net him two and a half million dollars. Arbuckle's wife, formerly Doris Deane, will appear in pictures.

GOOD OLD DAYS RECALLED IN 'PEG

Winnipeg, Man., March 1 —(By Canadian Press)—The good old days, when the ox-cart invaded the prairies, and the buffalo held away in its majestic glory, were recalled when members of the Manitoba Old-Timers' Association, Gold their annual meeting here. R. D. Waugh, is the leader of the pioneers for the coming year.

Many interesting personalities attended the meeting, and many were the story tellers of the days when Winnipeg was in its infancy and just "an" evergrown trading post."

The honorary vice-president of the Association is W. J. "Big Bear" McLean, who came to the West in 1868. Mr. McLean's get his nickname from "Big Bear," the Cree Indian chief, who was one of the most aggressive and daring leaders of the Riel rebellion. He was captured by "Big Bear" during the uprising, while he was acting as secretary in the service of the Hudson's Bay company at Fort Carlton." The Indian chief destroyed the fort, and held Mr. McLean as prisoner for some time as "secretary." During this time the Indian band was being hotly pursued by the military, and were often near starvation.

The Old-Timers' Association has many men included in the membership roll who came to the West with the Wolseley expedition in 1870.

The Irony of Love By-Charles Garvice

She did not understand him for a moment, then her face grew red and her eyes glared at him indignantly.

"You have disappointed me, Ferans, you are are not acting as I expected; in fact, you are behaving like—a little fool."

"I don't care what you think. I don't care anything about you," she flashed back at him. "You're nothing to me. I'm going to clear you out of my mind directly I leave you, and I'm going to do that at the end of this week."

They had reached a seat. Travers sank on it, and motioned to her to sit beside him; but she stood where she stood, her face turned away from him, her hand clenched at her side.

"Better sit down," he said. "The night is warm, and we may as well be comfortable while we have our little talk out. Well, as you please. For my self, I'm rather tired. I've been dancing, you see. Lord Stranlyre and I have been in a party—quite what you would call a swagger one—with any number of beautiful women, all friends of Lord Stranlyre's. What a handsome fellow he is by the way! He created quite a sensation tonight; he will become as popular here in London as, I gather, he was at Jamaica Jane. He has such a way with him, hasn't he, Phenie? I shouldn't be surprised if half a dozen of those same ladies went home to dream of him tonight. You know the kind of dreams, I dare say?"

Her face was still turned away, but he saw the blood mount to it, saw the flush, the gleam of jealousy in her down cast eyes, and noted how the little brown hand opened and shut.

"Lady Maude must be quite proud of him. She was great on stage as if we were commuting with friends. Ah, I forgot, you may not know Lady Maude, as you will when you are her—" he paused, "I've seen her," escaped from Phenie.

"Was—was she there tonight?"

"She was," he replied softly. "The most beautiful woman in the room."

"I've seen her," said Phenie sullenly. "I see no other one of the kind."

"And admired her of course." They say that it's impossible for one woman to admire another; but I'm sure they're wrong—Yes, Lord Stranlyre will have a very beautiful wife."

LAYS MONSTER EGG

Port Hope, March 16.—A goose cackled by Harold McCallister, who resides on the old Crowhurst farm about one mile from Port Hope recently laid a monster egg weighing seven ounces, and was five inches long and nine inches in circumference. Mr. McCallister has not yet broken the curiosity but anticipates that it is of the double yoked variety. As a comparison it is pointed out that the average hen's egg weighs two ounces.

NARROW ESCAPE

Oshawa, March 16.—When a bicycle on which Alex Hood, aged 16 years, was riding, collided with a big truck at King and Simcoe streets last night at 9.30 o'clock Hood came close to having the life crushed out of his body. The huge rear wheels stopped within inches of the boy's body, which had been thrown from the bicycle to the pavement underneath the truck. The truck was proceeding carefully, and four wheel brakes did the rest, it is claimed. As it was young Hood was badly shaken up and had an injured right injured. He was taken to Desmond's tobacco shop and later to Dr. F. J. Rundle's office, where he was treated. No further trouble in his condition was anticipated, the doctor told The Reformer today.

BROUGHT OLD COIN

Kingston, March 16.—George Sander-cock, Johnson street, has an old English silver coin dated 1709, which has been in his family a great many years and was originally brought out from England when they found a new home in Canada.

ROTARY AT OSHAWA

Oshawa, March 16.—Thirty-five national flags,—the Union Jack and the ensigns of the Dominions, of the United States of America (where as a matter of fact the ensign is largest) and of the lands beyond the seas, of every clime and tongue, ranged in one long rank across the stage of the Collegiate Institute here last night testified in visible fashion to the great Rotary ideal of International Peace and Concord and the outcome of the memorable meeting was that with the formal transfer of this landmark as of flags from Toronto to Oshawa another link in the chain which will take thus expand the world, bearing in its message of understanding and goodwill was forged.

HELD A CONFERENCE

On Monday afternoon a committee of the local Tourists Association and a number of the Fish and Game Association held a conference and discussed matters of interest, particularly to the Fish and Game Association, and the Tourists' Association will be asked to support a number of resolutions put forth by the Fish and Game Association.

"Phenie hoisted; it might almost be said that she swayed, and, as if overcome by a sudden weakness, she sank on the seat and leaned forward, her lips set tightly, her hands clasped, and her eyes staring in front of her.

"Is he going to marry her?" she asked at if she had forgotten her defiance and her hatred of the man sitting beside her.

"I think so," he replied coolly; "that is, unless—"

"Unless what?" she demanded her eyes half turning on him, then averted as if, in the stress of her emotion, she could not bear to meet the mocking smile which she knew was on his face.

"Unless there are other ties; unless there was some—let us say, old fooling-jumping June whom he could not be well enough to keep him faithful. Is there, Phenie?"

She moistened her lips, and shot a glance at him.

"You mean me; you soft-spoken, smiling tempter!" she said, through her teeth.

"You're wrong. There's then's nothing between us—there never was. We were just friends. Let us go!"

He laid his hand upon her arm and, without resistance, but forcibly, drew her back to the seat.

"Presently, Phenie," he said. "I think you are doing yourself an injustice. You're too modest, too humble. I'm not so sure that he regards you as an old friend only."

She looked round at him her lips trembling. She was remembering the parting at Jumping Jane, how he had taken her in his arms, the touch of his lips as he kissed her. That was the first from him, had been her answer to his first parting; and she had lived on it as a starving man in the desert lives on the handful of bread, the one draft of water which could keep him and himself. Could it be possible that Rafe cared for her, that if he had not foolishly believed that she had betrayed Lord Stranlyre on at the ranch, he would have learned to love her? She sighed despairingly, for the fact that whatever chance of winning his love she might have had if he had remained by her side, there was no chance now. Lord and even and apparently Lady Maude's beauty, that indefinable charm of legs had affected this man, and that the while as acutely as if Phenie had been possessed of the critical faculty of a woman of the world. She knew that she would never have a chance against such a girl as Lady Maude.

"There's nothing in your talk," she said, putting back her hair from her forehead with a gesture impatient and weary. "Rafe wasn't cared on me—was there at Jumping Jane, not even a that way—"

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder," my dear Phenie," said Travers gravely. "Rafe as you call him, is the kind of man—"

"Don't you trouble to tell me what kind of man Rafe is," she broke in, with fierce scorn. "I know him better than you do; I know him forward, and through every thought and every feeling—"

BUCKINGHAM PALACE PARTY

SOVIET FARMERS TO BRING CAMEL TRAIN OUT HERE

Winnipeg, Man., March 1—(By Canadian Press)—Thousands of years ago, honored draft, horse and novel scenes of eat, when the greater part of its was a desert. Years later an attempt was made to have them supplant the Prairie schooner during the gold rush to California in 1849, as now another attempt is underway to introduce them in the western Canada, as a substitute for the time honored draft horse, and novel scenes soon may be witnessed on farms in the vicinity of Southern Sask.

Believing camels superior to the best draft horses in the dominion, a group of Southern farmers, natives of northern Russia, have evolved a plan to bring 50 to 100 camels to Western Canada to be used in agricultural work. This group of Russians left the cooperative of the Soviet government to purchase the ancient beasts of burden in the Saratoff district in the Volga region.

In the cold rush of the early days the camels proved unsuccessful in competition against the speedier sledges. They were turned loose in the Arizona desert and it is reported that descendants of the camels still wander around over the paths of the desert. The Russian farmers, however, do not look for the failure of their venture.

In Russia, camels are used by agricultural in both northern and southern communities, but the Saskatchewan farmers want only those of the northern variety. Animals from the colder districts, it is claimed, will be acclimatized to conditions similar to those in Saskatchewan, and would likely suffer very little from the change.

If the Soviet government, which recently imported horses from Western Canada, view the plan favorably, the Russian farmers will send a representative to Russia to arrange for the selection and purchase of the animals.

Camels are said to be much cheaper to maintain than horses. They can work longer hours, require less food, are free of sickness and live in their prime when 20 years of age. Another saving would be in harness. Only a very light hack-amak would be needed. The harness consists of a sheepskin around the camel's neck, attached to a large rope, and to which the traces are fixed, work camels from Northern Russia weigh between 1000 and 1200 pounds and can pull along 1,000 pounds without great effort.

The group organized for the purchase of the camels, consists of about two Russian farmers, and if their plan proves successful, many other farmers in Saskatchewan may purchase the animals to aid in working their lands.

Commenting on the plan, the Winnipeg Free Press says in an editorial, Sat: "If the Russian camels are brought into Saskatchewan, they will be coming into home again. True, they have been a long time absent, perhaps a thousand years.

WOMEN HAVE A BRIGHT EFFECT

Montreal, Que., March 16.—(Canadian Press)—The Gazette says editorially: "Wherever women penetrate they invariably have a brightening and vivifying effect. The representative delegation of women who waited on Premier Taschereau in Montreal and asked that the municipal franchise might be extended to all women in Quebec who are qualified to vote, afterwards declared that they were received very kind inside a delightful entrance for some people. A like feeling was experienced a year ago, after the Premier and other Cabinet Ministers had been waited on by a Women's Delegation at Quebec on the Mr. and Mrs. M'Broad were guests at operation. Obviously, therefore, the feminine franchise movement is making progress in the province. Its adherents may well be proud of having now added the promise of one so eminent as the Prime Minister to act as their "interpreter" at Quebec, where, as he clearly showed, there are in fact the political parties varying opinions regarding the merits of the problems, and not a little opposition. The question of the vote should be above party. All fair opinion, whether it be for or against the enfranchisement of women, will assist Mr. Taschereau's views on this particular point. The movement gains much strength through abolishing from political partisanship.

KIPLING MAY VISIT TORONTO

Toronto, March 16.—It is stated here today that Rudyard Kipling, famous British poet and author, has accepted professionally an invitation to participate in the centenary celebration at the University of Toronto next October.

THE NEW FABRICS FOR SPRING

are here in a beautiful variety of colors and a host of clever designs.

SILK—COTTON—WOOL—RAYON

From gay-flowered georgettes, at $2.95 a yard, to smart wool tweed coat or suit lengths, at $9.00 each, there is much that is interesting to see just now in the Dress Goods Department—and now is the best time to choose. Lovely flat silk crepes, with the new small designs, appear in dainty Spring shades. There are new plain colors, too, in flat crepes, crepe Romaine, taffeta and canton crepe.

Among the popular light-weight wool dress goods this season is wool crepe, at $5.25 a dress length, wool voile with contrasting silk checks, at $1.50 a yard, and wool ottomans, in dozens of different colors, at 1.39 a yard.

CITY GETS NO ASSURANCE FROM THE HYDRO ELECTRIC

Gold Discovery Draws Thousands To West---Whole World Honors Ireland's Patron Saint

DEPUTATION GOT NO SATISFACTION OFF HYDRO COM.

Officials Claim That "Intangible" Assets Are Not Water

FRANK DISCUSSION

Municipalities Advised to Purchase Their Local Distributing Plants

No hope or assurance of a reconsideration of the recent advance in rates was held out yesterday by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario at the executive of the Central Ontario Power Association in the course of a conference which began at ten o'clock in the morning and ended at one o'clock in the afternoon. The members of the Commission stoutly maintained that the increase, drastic though it was in some instances, was dictated by necessity and even the higher rates were about fifty per cent. lower than those that prevailed before 1916 when the Seymour Power interests were in control.

Mr. A. Eaby, chief engineer of the Commission, and Mr. Gilfoyle, expert accountant from the firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, answering the barrage of questions from the various delegates and endeavouring to make it plain that $17,243,000 entered on the books of the Commission as "intangibles" when the Central Ontario system was acquired by the Provincial Government from the Electric Power Company in 1916 for $1,350,000 did not represent "water" as most people supposed, but actual values in the form of riparian rights, power leases and similar privileges.

Question of Losses

The deputation was given to understand that unprofitable non-hydro enterprises, such as the Peterboro radial railway and the Campbellford

HOPES TO TAKE OVER BUSINESS

Young Horace Smith Planning to Go to Harrnh, Okla.

Horace Smith, son of the late Captain Smith, plans to move presently to take over the Flour and Feed business of which his father was engaged previous to his death a few weeks ago.

Yesterday a close friend of the late Captain Smith, to dispel all doubts that the post mortem photograph of John Smith, of Oklahoma being identical with Captain Smith, secured the copy of the photo and drawing a moustache and hair, eyebrows on the face and the like new to the photo of the Captain appearing in today's Intelligencer left not the slightest room for doubt.

The fact that Horace Smith and Margaret Smith, now Mrs. Neil McClintock, were not on the schooner George E. Marsh when she founded was the merest coincidence. The girl who had got bees will had been entrusted to the care of Mrs. Keegan. Wharf Street as her illness was thought to be too severe to face the rugged life on the lake. Horace Smith had begged off from taking the voyage and had been allowed to remain with his aunt, Mrs. Bird, Church street. It was by merest chance that Gerta Smith who died from exposure, went on the ill-fated ship.

The ears of the ship are still to be seen where she sank as it was never raised from her watery grave. A diver who went down to investigate the wreck with view to salvaging her, reported that the life boat is still on the davits of the boat just as when she sank. Some of the little bodies of the children who perished in the wreck are thought to be in the cabin as the little ones dashed for the shelter there when the schooner listed.

THE "GEORGE E. MARSH" SUNK IN 1917

An old picture of the schooner George E. Marsh which has come into widespread prominence in the location of Captain John Smith, who disappeared on the night she foundered and sank, August 8th, 1917, off Pidgeon Island. Aboard, reading from left to right, are, Mrs. Smith, the Captain John Smith, Neil McLennan, Fred Arnett, William Smith, Bill Dingman, William Watkins, the cook of the boat, and Jack Hunter. The picture, taken off the Belleville dock was secured several years before the schooner made her last fatal trip. Below to the right is the last known picture of Captain John Smith and to the left, Horace Smith, who has assisted materially in unravelling the ten-year-old mystery.

CANADA SHOULD BE ASHAMED FOR TREATMENT OF RETURNED MEN

Mayor of Winnipeg Uges Veterans to Unite to Compel Justice

Calgary, Alta., March 17.—"Canada should bow her head in shame over the treatment of thousand former Canadian soldiers who have been forced to go to the United States in order to get a living. It is about time that something was done to assure a square deal for the thousands of returned soldiers and widows and dependents of men who laid down their lives during the war. There is still sway, and if 125,000 former soldiers, their wives and relatives use their vote, they can compel the Government to toe the mark on the returned soldiers' question," said Colonel Ralph Webb, D.S.O. M.C., Mayor of Winnipeg, when he addressed more than two hundred former soldiers who attended the annual smoker concert of the 31st Battalion Association here last night.

SHAMROCK FLAUNTED TO HONOR IRISH SAINT

With practically every Front Street store window adorn with green the colors of the Patron Saint of Ireland, St. Patrick, whose birthday is celebrated throughout the world today, it is interesting to review the history of the Saint and why the Shamrock is synonomous with St. Patrick.

St. Patrick first saw Ireland as a slave boy tending flocks along the shore of Antrim Bay. He was captured and made his escape with some strange unknown sailors through the storms of unknown seas. Though his escape was made fifteen centuries ago, his mirical fame towers above all the heroes of the Gael; his missionary conquests for the Celtic imagination as does no character in the varied story of a race whose leaders at all times have faith to the four corners of the earth.

In his preaching St. Patrick used the three leafed shamrock which grows abundantly on Ireland shore to illustrate his most renowned sermon. The Irish legend was used to signify the Godhead, the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. Later the same plant was used as an emblem of Ireland the three leaves signifying Valor, Truth and Love. Today the plant is freely sold throughout Canada by florists, around St. Patricks day, and each purchaser originated in Ireland as Mr. Greens told The Intelligencer's today, that the Shamrock is not indigenous to America. The seed is imported, started in the local greenhouses and when it has developed into a fair sized plant is then divided, hence every plant in this country came originally from the scene of the Patron Saints preachings. In Ireland by law it comes unobstructed under clean in the land and is very easy to cultivate.

COST 44 CENTS

Abbe Fined Eleven Francs for Tearing Up Magazines as Immoral

Paris, March 17.—His personality conducted Purity Campaign against smappy magazines on the boulevard news stands has cost Abbe Bethleem, militant priest, just eleven francs, or fourty-four cents. The Abbe was fined that amount, the maximum penalty, in police court on complaint of news vendors. They asserted that the priest for more than two months had utilized every opportunity to tear up magazines, the covers of which he considered immoral.

GOLD FEVER HAS THOUSAND MILES SPREAD IN GRIP

Sour Dough Finds Precious Metal Washed Into His Hut

Tonopah, Nevada, March 17.—The new west was thronged with a army of the gold madness along the thousand mile stretch of old frontier from Phoenix, Arizona, to northern California, with Nevada, as the centre, as wild-est reports of rich strikes began to spread. So abrupt and extravagant were reports of new discoveries that seasoned gold miners waited for more evidence before proclaiming their belief in them. They took notice, however, of the fact that reported discoveries run in almost a straight line from Phoenix northwest to Trinity county, California, hugging the Nevada, California boundary through Goldfield, Tonopah, Wyoah, Calaveras county, California, and on to point not far from Oregon line, almost as straight as the crow flies.

GETTING BIG SHOW

Weepah, meanwhile remained the centre of the gilded frenzie as one of the best chums changed hands for a sum reported to be fifty thousand dollars. The little city took on the typical shade of gold camp atmosphere when a New York vaudeville manager promised a big revue and a "Follies Theatre." A new town hall at Weepah will accommodate the display. Frank Horton, Jr., bookkeeper of the field, received a proposal of marriage from a unnamed Massachusetts girl, who felt that he needed the love and companionship of a woman in the hectic hunt for gold.

GOLD IN HIS HUT

From Phoenix come reports that prospectors, capitalists and treasure seekers today are pouring into the Dripping Springs district, sixty miles east of Phoenix, Arizona, where a rich gold strike was reported yesterday. Recent heavy rains are credited for the greater gold discovery, miners say. Water washed away dirt from a dyke of rock, in which gold ore is located and the prospectors carried bits of gold into the hut of Joe Lee, veteran sour dough, who panned enough gold from the bits left on the floor to cause him to hastily start a search for the mother lode. Other prospectors, seeing his success, quickly investigated. The rush followed.

CANADA MEETS CUBA

Washington, March 17.—Canada will again meet Cuba in the first round of play in the American zone for the Davis Cup, emblematic of the world's tennis supremacy. ROBINSON STILL HAS ONE OTHER TEST TO FACE

Results Will Be Announced Later By Provincial Attorney General

HELD BY POLICE

Prisoner Seems Cheerful and in No Doubt of Release

Abe Robinson was not in the least backward about undergoing a mental examination yesterday, Dr. Ryan, alienist of Rockwood Hospital, Kingston, told the Intelligencer over long distance telephone today. Dr. Ryan who is an expert pschyatrist spent two hours in examining Robinson and filed his report with the Attorney General immediately after the mental test had been completed. Dr. Ryan was not privileged to divulge the summing up in the report but this will be made public by the Attorney General.

ANOTHER EXAMINATION

AGED MAN DROPS DEAD IN STREET

Benjamin Serviss, Caretaker of Tabernacle Church Dies of Heart Attack

Benjamin Serviss, aged caretaker of the Tabernacle Methodist Church succumbed to a heart attack while on his way home on Pine Street shortly after 12 o'clock today. Mr. Serviss fell to the sidewalk at the corner of Albion Street and pedestrians carried him into a nearby residence on the Hill and lawyers were called and pronounced him dead.

Mr. Serviss who had been in ill-health all winter departed from his home this morning in apparently good health.

Mr. Serviss was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Serviss and was born in Prince Edward County 81 years ago, but had resided for the greater portion of his life in Belleville. He was one of the few remaining veterans of the Fenian Raid. He took an active part in militia circles in his younger days.

He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife two daughters, Dora and Grace, both at home and two sons, Hunter of, Belleville; and Raymond, of Montreal, also two brothers, Jesse, on the parish of the Belleville Burial Co. where they were prepared for interment.

Now Each Soldier Has His Own Umbrella And Some Dog Biscuit

London, March 17.—A despatch to army. The Daily Mail from Shanghai says unrest demands by General Chang's forces has had a disastrous effect on the European owned dogs. These have been compelled to go on short rations in consequence of the Shantung Commissariat buying all the available supplies of dog biscuit in Shanghai to feed the his troops.

The only ray of comfort in the scene what depressing situation, the correspondent adds, is that, despite the low of Baughchow, which is the centre of the umbrella industry, Chang's quartermaster-general succeeded in placing an order for forty thousand umbrellas for

TODAY'S THOUGHT

There are occasions when it is undoubtedly better to incur loss to make gain.—Plautus.

THE NEW LAW

The framing of Ontario's new Liquor Law was the responsibility of the Attorney General's Department. It took nearly three months to whip it into shape. Mr. Hilliard Birmingham, the secretary of the present Liquor License Board, was sent to investigate the situation in the four western provinces and in the Province of Quebec, where there are Government Control measures. He spent six weeks on this work and got a very great deal of valuable information. He did his work as quickly and carefully that there was no comment on it until after he returned to Toronto. This meant that he got the information without bias. Mr. Birmingham has been in charge of the dispensaries for ten years and not a breath of suspicion has passed his way. This is a remark able record considering the fact he has had to deal with those wanting to sell liquor and others wanting to buy liquor. The Ferguson Government is very fortunate in being able to transfer him to the new commission

When one undertakes to draw up an Act of this kind, which is more or less revolutionary, keeping in mind at the same time the promises made during the election, the difficulties are immense. Notwithstanding what anyone will say about this Act, or the administration of it, or how it should be done the Government knows where responsibility will definitely lie. In public matters a Government can never transfer responsibility, the best that can be done is to place the administration of certain laws in the hands of honest and conscientious men who are prepared to give them the best thought. If mistakes are made the Government will be responsible.

It is understood that Attorney General Price plans to reorganize the whole police service for the province as well as several other things in his office so that this new Act will come into force with a clean sheet. It will take some time to get things running properly but we are quite satisfied that it can be done.

CITIZENSHIP

Very small is the percentage of Canadians who are deliberately dishonest, but how large is the percentage of those who place the welfare of their fellow men above the love of riches?

Badly do we need in this country a spiritual revival commensurate with our progress in material things. Daily demands in every direction for Royal Commissions to inquire into the conduct of civic and provincial affairs, and such investigations as that going on in the Customs House have public confidence has been undermined by actions contrary to the ideals of real citizenship on the part of those in places of public trust.

An outstanding example of good citizenship in Canada is that of Dr. Banting, of Toronto, who burned the midnight oil in his laboratory to help humanity, not himself. If he had sold his formula for Insulin it would have been available to sufferers from diabetes, but at a cost so prohibitive that many would have been unable to take the treatment. Dr. Banting well probably never be in anything more than comfort in circumstances, but his name will be remembered long after the names of those who have consecrated their lives to the chase of golden doubloons have been forgotten.

His example is brought to mind by that of another worthy citizen, this time an American. Professor Henry Steenbock, of the University of Wisconsin, recently invented a method of adding to the calcium-producing qualities of food. It is something that has long been awaited by medical science. There was a fortune in it for the man who developed the process, it was said. The Wisconsin professor was but one of many who applied their talents to the problem. And when Professor Henry Steenbock made the definite announcement that he had achieved his goal, that he had actually evolved a process of impregnating food with calcium-producing qualities, a cereal manufacturing company offered him $3,000,000 for his formula. For any one to say that Professor Steenbock did not seriously consider the offer would be ridiculous. It offered him a chance to escape from the pinched gentility of the campus and the problems offered by the tradespeople who catered to the wants of his domestic menage. But Professor Steenbock rejected the opportunity to have his name inscribed on the list of the nations millionaires and, instead, transferred his rights, gratis to the University of Wisconsin.

Plans are now being formulated for making the fruits of his discovery available as widely as possible for the benefit of all mankind. "I had my moment of temptation," he said, in explanation of his decision. "With that money I could build my own laboratory and be free from all financial worry. Men's ambitions are either to make money or to do something for humanity. Mine is to do something for humanity. I want to be the best food chemist in the world and I have only begun. If I took that money my life purpose would be perverted."

It is splendid thing that the teachers of our youth can still point to examples like the above to inspire our young manhood to regard their gifts and opportunities as endowments from Providence to be used as a sacred trust for the benefit of their fellow men.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

More people get crooked trying to avoid hard work than become bent from too much or it.—Montreal Herald.

The man of ordinary means will have to be content with a seat in the school board or in the township council if it is going to cost $35,000 to get elected to the House of Commons. It costs too much, and it isn't worth it. One can get a seat in the best church for a nickle a Sunday.—Toronto's Advocate.

A man was standing at a muddy crossing in Toronto waiting for the automobile traffic to allow him to cross the street, when a driver stopped his car long enough to allow the pedestrian to pass "without hurry and without being splashed." The automobilist's act is regarded as sufficiently extraordinary and exceptional to form a topic for newspaper correspondence. Toronto does not know his name, but it is giving him the fame of a modern Sir Walter Raleigh. What a reproach to the other people in the city!—Montreal Gazette.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

"Will you love me forever?" pleaded the young suitor.

"I can't tell you that," reply replied the sweet young flapper as she gazed at the beautiful necklace he had given her, "but I love you for the present."

She had decided to buy a new hat, and had tried on about twenty. At last she spotted one she liked.

"Yes, that will do nicely. Will you send it home?"

"I will, if you like, madam," replied the assistant, "but it's the one you took off when you came in."

About a year ago a rook informed her mistress that she was not to leave at any time as she was required to be married.

Time passed, however, without word of the leaving, though the happy mistress was a frequent caller in the kitchen.

The other day the mistress was moved by curiosity to ask:

"When are you to be married, Nora?"

"Indade, and it's never at all, I'll be thinking, mum," was the reply.

"Really! What is the trouble?"

"Tis this, mum, I won't marry Mike when's he's drunk, and when he's sober he won't marry me."

RAILWAYS GIVEN FREE HAND BY A NEW AGREEMENT

May Bring in Settlers But Must Guarantee Them Employment

Ottawa, March 17.— A three-year agreement which is expected to stimulate immigration into Canada has been entered into by the Federal Department of Immigration and the railway companies.

The agreement, in brief, gives to the railways a comparatively free hand in bringing agricultural immigrants into the Dominion from southern European countries. The Immigration Act and order-in-council supplementing it provide that all immigrants from these non preferred countries must be certified agriculturists. The difficulties in the past have been that the department and the railway companies could not always agree as to which were agriculturists and which were not.

Under the agreement, which will remain in force for three years, but which may be terminated by either party on one year's notice, the federal department agrees to accept certificates of personal representatives of the colonization departments of the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways stationed at Continental ports. The department, however, reserves the right to deny admission to any immigrant even if certified by the railways, on grounds of health or morals.

On their part, the railway companies agree in return for the right to issue these certificates, to ensure employment to the immigrants brought in.

SUPPLANTS OLD AGREEMENT

The new agreement supplants a two-year agreement which expired December 31 last, and is more generous from the railways' viewpoint.

As for immigrants from Britain, the agreement gives to the representatives of the railways the rights to nominate immigrants for settlement in Canada. This places the transportation companies on an even basis with the department officials in Britain, who also may nominate immigrants.

It was announced by officials of the department this morning that 14,000 nominated passages will be taken out this year.

The total is divided between the railways and the department in basis of 5,000 to the former and 9,000 to the latter. In this case, also, the railways have undertaken to look after all immigrants nominated by them.

In bringing out immigrants from Scandinavia, Germany and France, the transportation companies are given special privileges, but in all cases the department reserves the right to refuse admission to all who are physically or morally unfit.

Hon. Robert Forke has booked passage for Great Britain on May 11, it was announced this morning. Mr. Forke is going to inspect the work of the Immigration Department in Britain and Europe, and will be absent until the first week of August. Mrs. Forke will accompany him.

DID NOT APPROVE ADVERTISEMENTS

London, March 17.—Advertisements appearing in newspapers in Scotland stating that the Canadian Government guaranteed employment to emigrants throughout the year, were inserted without the approval of the Canadian authorities. This was the statement of Hon. L.C.M.S. Amery, Dominions secretary, in the House of Commons this afternoon. He added that steps were being taken to amend the situation.

The question was recently brought up in the Canadian Parliament, when Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, said that employment was guaranteed to emigrants going to Canada under the Empire settlement agreement, but that there was no guarantee that such immigrants would remain if that employment. Emigrants not coming under the settlement scheme came on their own responsibility, the minister said.

GOLD DRAWS ITS WORSHIPPERS TO NEW DISCOVERY

Struggle Through the Night In Wild Gale to Stake Claims

Tonopah, Nevada, March 17.—The land of gold at Wyenah held an ever increasing number in its spell today as novices and sheen rats alike heard the news of the latest discovery at Barre springs, five miles to the south. Two hundred men and women struggled through the whining mountain storm from Goldfield to Barre springs and staked out claims in the few acres yesterday. The rainbow chasers plunged out through the night while a gale arose to such strength that it blew storm doors and plate glass windows out of the Goldfield hotel.

This latest discovery is reached from the head of Precipitous Canyon, where geologist found ore assaying $70 to the ton at a depth of twenty feet in an old shaft. The samples assayed $160.00 a ton according to the Phoenix assay office.

Central Japan is being swept by terrific wind storms adding to sufferings of earthquake refugees.

THE SNAKE'S FAREWELL

With saintly mien
And large and generous heart
—St. Patrick spake—
I mean no harm
But snakes make your depart
The Ocean's large
And ye been taught to swim
So trace your way
Now make it snappy
Quick and short with vim.

The biggest and ugliest serpent of them all
Said, "St. Patrick you're a wonder"
And I guess we'll start to crawl
For he wasn't down in breaking—
And the journey will by long
With fond adieus we'll leave you
So now Leader start a song.

So the Serpents (types of Satan)
Got started on their way
And the biggest band from Dublin
Was hired them to play.

The children from Kilkenny
And all the adjacent land
Came out with silken banners
To swell the noisy band.

There were millions of those Serpents
Onward pushing for the Sea
The sight was grand, empowering
More—I never hope to see.

St. Patrick's eyes were misty
And he brushed it fast away
Says he I'm deeply puzzled—
Will they ever reach the Bay.

Perhaps they were good neighbors
Alas, I cannot tell
All Irish blood is noble
Though it sometimes raises Hell.

I've half a mind to bless them
Though they're related to Old Nick
Shure compared to half my sinners
You could not make a pick.

I'll take one chance and bless them
So Serpents fond farewell,
I'm simply filling orders—
So get you back to Hell.

—L.C.L., Belleville.

The stop to busy fools; care's check and curb;
The day of Spirits; my soul's calm retreat
Which none disturb;

TREASURE STORY MIGHT EXPLAIN

Don Smith, of Oshawa, may have thrown a new light on the mystery of Captain John Smith's disappearance and subsequent apparent identification in the person of John Smith of Harrah, Oklahoma. Don, who is a son of the late Henry Smith, Captain of the "City of Dresden", states that he was with Capta'n John Wesley Smith on the night the George E. Marsh foundered and that his father warned Captain Smith not to venture out into the storm which was blowing up as his schooner was propelled by sails while the Dresden had steam.

"About noon the day the big storm broke I was lying on the deck of the Dresden and Captain Smith was there too. He seemed greatly worried about something and when my father came up they commenced to converse in low tones and I heard mention of a large sum of money and $50,000 lying in Lake Ontario, near Oswego.

"My father and the Captain after a lot of wrangling agreed to split fifty-fifty and I was selected to dive for the box containing the treasure upon our return from the trip that day. The George E. Marsh sank that day and I soon left the ship captained by my father and forgot all about the affair until the tragedy was recalled."

Don Smith believes that money was the cause of the disappearance of Captain Smith. How it came into his possession, if it did, Don Smith does not know and his father who was supposed to split even died two years ago.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY BUSY SESSION AT POLICE COURT

Magistrate Mikel Disposes of Several Cases in Brief Order

St. Patrick's Day in the Morning was celebrated in real old-fashioned style at police court today when Magistrate Mikel was faced with several cases. "Wearers of the green" were prominent among the attorneys, policemen and spectators, while the Cadi himself, referred to the spirit attached with this beautiful St. Patrick's Day.

"Unfortunately too many young men ride bicycles on the sidewalks, especially at night," said His Honor, "when a young man was charged under this section. The minimum fine of $5.00 and costs was levied and the Magistrate sounded a warning to others who may be brought into the court for this offence, "If they persist in doing so the maximum fine of $50.00 will be exacted," he declared.

A woman who appeared, charged with a breach of the O.T.A. was fined fifty and costs. A sprig of Shamrock was presented to her by court officials as she stepped from the stand, and the spirit of the day permeated the court.

A young man who pleaded guilty to stealing a sum of money and who has already spent ten days on the hill was given his freedom. By an order of the court he will be turned over to the Medical Officer of Health. The costs of $11.00 will be paid by him.

Ill-Treating a Horse

A storekeeper pleaded guilty to ill-treating a horse by neglecting to feed and care for the animal and was fined $5.00 and costs of $16.00.

"This is a very serious offence," declared His Honor. "These animals cannot make their wants known and those in charge and the owners must look after them." The Crown asked for a light penalty and Magistrate Mikel gave a warning to similar offenders.

A man was charged with having liquor and upon his plea of guilty was assessed the usual fine of $50 and costs. Upon the Crown's query as to where he procured the liquor, the offender told a story of having got a "scrip" from a doctor and cashed it at a local drug store, "It was O. and W. brand," he said.

"I feel that I should give you a chance to change your story," said Mr. Donnan, and the accused altered it somewhat, but the fish was tacked on.

Percy McDonald, charged with unlawfully stealing a letter and exhorting money was discharged when the story of the complainant, Alfred Reid was heard, and the latter was ordered to pay the costs which amounted to $12.90.

Reid, who was an insurance agent left the employ of the company in January and said he left a letter and a post-card in desk.

McDonald said when Reid left the company a deficiency was discovered and he was ordered to pay it. Immediately with the alternative of informing the Bond Company and allowing them to take action.

Reid said McDonald came to him and ordered payment and failing in this he would be arrested. He paid it "to save trouble," he stated. As to the theft of the letters, Sidney Brogden, a fellow employee, said the letters were left in the desk which they were found by a police officer this morning. "McDonald took the letters out of the desk after Reid left the room, but after reading them, returned them."

Percy McDonald denied having threatened the arrest of Reid if the indictiency was not paid.

Mr Donnan: "I cannot ask for a conviction in this case."

"It's proper to discourage laying charges of this kind," was Mr. Mikel's comment.

Misappropriating Funds

A dentistry practising in a village in the County was charged with the misappropriation of a client's funds. He pleaded guilty. The accused who has previously mixed up in a similar case was a broken-down, pathetic man as he entered the stand. It appears that he had undertaken to sell some property for a man and having received the money he made the error of putting it to his own use. He had some property of his own and expected to upon the sale of this to turn the money back to his client. Some months ago he returned to his native town but experienced another fate from gran.

"We can't allow him to continue this victimizing business," said the Crown. He was given a month on the hill.

Two local girls, each charged with a serious offence were remanded a week for sentence.

HARVIE MINING EXPLORATION

(Archean)—A visit to this property shows extremely interesting work going on. On claim No. 2509 the No. 1 showing has been traced for a length of 240 feet and shows an average width of 14 feet. Channel samples on the original showing gave 12% copper. Under ground work is being carried out at a depth of 30 feet. A drift which was run to tap the main break encountered ore 26 feet from the shaft. Several other ore zones have been cut. The outlook for this property is considered to be decidedly good.

NIPISSING—At present large quantities of supplies and a complete mining plant is being moved into the Company's Montbray property. Last week another diamond drill was brought in and same will be used to follow the Lundberg Electrical Survey. The camps which were erected last fall are now being enlarged and new ones will be built to accommodate the large crew of men the Company intend to employ during the next year. Results to date have shown that a potential mine is likely to be developed and we are very optimistic over the outlook for the Nipissing shares.

YOUTHFUL MARRIAGES AND THEIR TRIALS

"You're all wrong," says A Happy Wife. "Very young people CAN make a success of married life. To prove it, listen to my story."

DEAR ELSIE:

I was married at sixteen. My husband was nineteen. We loved each other dearly. He was making $25 a week. I was ill when we were married. I was run down and nervous. Oh, the suffering and the hardships that I went through! Many times we were hungry and cold.

My baby was born without a doctor not because we didn't engage one, but because the roads were poor and the weather bad. He came but arrived two hours late. But our love never wavered despite the hardship.

One year later our second baby was born. We were poor after that no money and my husband out of work. We had been living with his mother all this time and had no furniture of our own. Sometimes she was hard to get along with, but because I loved my husband so much I said nothing. I knew he would never say anything against my mother so I said nothing against his.

Now he has a good job. We have a nice flat of our own. We are buying our furniture bit by bit. We still love each other and celebrated our third anniversary last week. We have two lovely babies. In the even ing we sit in our living room and romp with our babies. He is a wonderful daddy. The children love him dearly. He thinks the world of them.

He is not the least bit jealous and lets me go as modern as I choose. We go to parties and dance, play and have a good time. But we never indulge in kissing or petting and always after we get home he says: "You are the only girl for me," and I say, "Dear, I never met another man like you."

I am now nineteen and he is twenty-two. Occasionally he goes in prizefights or football games with the boys. I still have my girl friends. We have never been sorry we aren't single. We wouldn't be for the world. We're crazy about our home and our babies, our friends and, of course, about each other. Now, Elsie, if there is or was a flaw in this marriage, please point it out to me.

A HAPPY WIFE

Your marriage has been a beautiful success and I'm glad of it. But yours is the happy exception that proves the rule. Most youthful marriages go on the rocks. Statistics prove this, and the reason is not hard to find.

Girls of sixteen and boys of nineteen are still unfinished humans and usually are in the vexatious and confusions of their own development. They are not yet fit to act as partners in the difficult job of matrimony. They don't know how to get along with themselves much less with a husband or wife. Your and your husband happened to develop along the same lines, but many a young couple who are ardently in love when married become total strangers to each other within a year.

"Twenty-one" is in love with a man who is "only a friend" to her.

She thrills at his every invitation to dance. She cries herself to sleep after an evening of his fool friendliness. In other words she is IN LOVE.

Does she proceed to try to make this love mutual and gayly ardent on his part? Does she strive to make a success of her trouble

No, instead she is going to run away. She is going to shift her interests to new friends. She is going to drop all her old acquaintances and try to forget him.

DEAR ELSIE:

I am a working girl and twenty-one years old. For the last two years I have been enjoying myself so much. Life was so sweet, just one dance and party after another and now, I'm so unhappy.

The reason is I'm terribly in love with a young man five years my senior I have known him for two years, but not until lately have I felt like this. We belong to the same Social Club and I see him every week. We go out together occasionally, and he is everything a FRIEND could be. But, Elsie, I want him to be more than a friend. I love him so.

When he asks me to dance, I'm so thrilled I'm afraid I will not be able to control my emotions. That would be terrible as he suspects nothing, only considers me as every other girl in the crowd—a good sport, one of his friends.

Please tell me, shall I drop out of the club, find other friends, not see him at all? It would be terribly hard. In fact, I don't care to make other friends and only go out with other fellows to hide my pain from them.

Perhaps it would be better to continue seeing him, but every time I do, I go home and cry for hours. I really think if he hated me and told me so I could bear it better than his cold friendship. Please tell me soon.

TWENTY-ONE.

Why give up the game before it is begun? There is only one way to succeed in any enterprise, that is by TRYING. Be it tennis or Channel-swimming, husband-hunting or bookselling, there is but one way to make a "go" of it—TRY.

Don't let the man in question or your girl friends see that you can be cheated from the field. Be your normal self. Get ready for love, and love will get ready for you.

Twins alike in every detail, even to fingerprints and fingerprints Mr. G. Ellis and Mr. L. Ellis were born in India twenty-six years ago. They are both students of patient law.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold. Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for only 75 cents all ready for use.

Bog called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy an lustrous.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

THE HAND OF PROVIDENCE

Christine found herself sitting on the floor of her taxi, which sloped at a crazy angle. Evidently a wheel gone, she told herself, with the curious and solemn lucidity that sometimes prevails in moments of great stress or excitement. She was placed in a corner, underneath one of the collapsible seats, which had fallen and jammed, and there was broken glass scattered about her.

Outside the taxi everything was confusion. A great crowd had gathered; people shouting each other aloud and shouting orders. She heard two voices, evidently those of the chauffeurs, raised in heated dispute. About all, she was the soloist of a woman's voice frenziedly and hysterically weeping.

From up the Avenue came the clang of an ambulance gong. Christine shuddered. She began to feel herself all over gingerly. Surely she must be hurt, she thought.

But, though she could not extricate herself, she could move her limbs. Nothing was broken apparently, nor did she feel the sting of a cut from the broken glass.

At that moment, the door of the taxi was flung violently open and a man's head was thrust in. The light had flashed on automatically, and, blinkingly, he saw Christine in her queer position on the floor.

"There's a woman in here," he gasped.

"I'm all right, I think," said Christine, "but I can't seem to get out from under this seat without help."

"You're sure a cool one," remarked the man, as he and several others who had pressed forward, forced up the seat and lifted Christine to her feet. "You are the other car is raising the deuce."

"Was anyone hurt?" asked Christine, as the stranger steadied her with his arm about her waist.

"Two. But not very badly, I think. I'm the other car's unasked guest, though, and this one's pretty well damaged."

"If you'll be kind enough to get me through this crowd and call another cab, I'll be awfully grateful," said Christine. "I'm pretty well shaken up, and I'd rather like to get home."

"Frald you'll have to wait a few minutes until the officer gets your name and address. Nerve pretty much of you to be a suit for damages as the outcome of this. If you'll lean on me, I'll get you through to the drug store on the corner and you can sit there—maybe have a shot of spirits of ammonia."

Christine obeyed him. She was beginning to feel a little faint and the reeking of the other woman, who was almost but horrified frightened, made her feel an incipient hysteria herself.

A policeman came to her, while she sat in the drug store and sipped aromatic spirits of ammonia in water, dismantling her name and address. Give them, she added.

"I really saw nothing. It all happened so suddenly."

"Guess you'll be called on to appear as a witness, just the same," he told her.

She made a little grimace of distaste. She had never been in court, and the idea was distinctly unpleasant. Also, she knew that such actions took time, and she now had need of all the hours of a working-day.

Sanford and her play had been wiped from her mind in that moment when the two cars had collided.

Now she remembered, and, in a blinding flash, she saw that she has been saved from unspeakable folly. Except for the collision, she would now be entering the door of Sanford's apartment. She might have left it with his promise to produce her play. But she would have paid a price!

She was climbing into another taxi, summoned by the sympathetic drug clerk, when the stranger who had extricated her from the wreck, came running after her.

"Madam, you left something in the cab." In his hand out to her the manuscript of her play.

She stared at it for a moment; then shook her head.

"It is worthless. Please throw it away for me."

When she arrived home, the phone in the hallway was ringing. It was Sanford calling her.

"What on earth has happened to detain you? I've been waiting supper half an hour."

Quite calmly she told him about the accident.

"I'm going straight to bed. I'm rather shaken and nervous."

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Quilted effects exist, white most often, with white fox collars, will be smart.

Palm Beach reports a vogue for black and white, and brown and white calf-skin trimmed white coats.

New York notes that the opposite snake skin coat is regarded favorably in a number of representative fur and sport-wear collections, in jacket and three-quarter length versions.

An English feminine novelist in her latest book says: "A woman who can not talk and is a joy to look at, appears to possess the two essential qualifications for the perfection of domestic bliss."

Palm Beach is a study in rose color, soft apricots and peach shades, as well as the rather large number of very deep and definite pinks, being favored and there are pinks with blue, and, more unusual still, pinks with honey and even certain shades of yellow. While several women have learned the effective trick of wearing a yellow flower with a pink gown, and some have gone further and harmonized a pink frock with a natural Leghorn hat, stockings of the same tone and a flower a bit more yellow.

SULPHUR WILL CLEAR SKIN OVER NIGHT

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruption such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist.

PILES GO QUICK

WITHOUT SALVES OR CUTTING

Thousands who have piles don't know that quick and permanent relief can be accomplished with internal medicine. Cutting or any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will not remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. D. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in many, many cases with a marvelous record of success, such a wonderful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from J. S. McKeown today. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you.

WINTER RETURNS IN THE FAR WEST

Blizzards and Deep Snow Fall in Two Western Provinces

Winnipeg, Mar. 17.—Winter inclusive in Alberta and Saskatchewan today by routing the early spring lamb before a general snowstorm and Arctic winds.

Manitoba alone continues to bask in the spring temperatures which have prevailed throughout the west for the past two weeks.

The mercury dropped sharply in Alberta during the night and the near blizzard which enveloped sections of the province have blocked roads in the country and interrupted street car service in the larger cities.

In Manitoba the snow is rapidly disappearing and small rivers and streams already have broken up. The Red and Assiniboine rivers are free of ice at many points marking the earliest sign of a break-up in a decade.

SIGN OF EARLY BREAK-UP

Ottawa, Mar. 17.—Although the Ottawa River ice has not yet begun to disintegrate, the ice is becoming rotten and a considerable quantity of water has formed over it, which is a good sign of an early breakup. Old-time river men think that should the present mild weather continue, the break-up will likely occur toward the middle of next week. This would be a month earlier than last spring, when the ice did not begin to move until April 19.

ICE LEAVES GRAND RIVER

YEARLY SPRING FRESHET

Galt, Ont., March 17.—Galt people to-day experienced the yearly spring freshet on the Grand River and little damage was done. After a heavy rain last night, the ice broke up here and passed down. With the swelling of the river, cellars were flooded as usual, but the mild weather of the past week had warned householders to prepare, and little discomfort was experienced by the extinguishing of furnace fires.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

To restore some of the salt from chipped beef, pour hot water over it and let stand ten minutes. Then drain and add to white sauce.

Few articles are so important to the housewife as a convenient kitchen pad or diary, on which to jot down grocery lists and memoranda.

As a relief from pastries, serve cheese and fruit, either fresh or cooked, for dessert.

Always salt the water in which cereals are to be cooked, before the water boils.

If cake tins are given to burning grease them with unsalted fat or some rind, and sift lightly with flour before pouring in batter.

Never serve pork or any other rich or fat meat without some pickles or sweet relish.

It was stated yesterday that Chang had defeated with heavy losses Honan troops and forced them to retreat to Chang Chow and that it was his purpose to attack Chengchow.

DEPUTATION

The question of purchase of the local distribution plants by the various municipalities the same as has already been done by Peterboro and some others, came up for discussion. The representatives of the twenty municipalities for now owning their local plants were by no means satisfied that purchase by them would represent any savings whatever. In fact it appeared evident that costs would be higher under local management as a town or city would have to pay higher bond interest than is the case now with the Province as the owner and bond issuer.

The most important statement was made by Hon. C. A. Magrath, chairman of the Commission, that hopeful negotiations were under way to secure 50,000 additional electrical horse power to supply the industrial needs of Eastern Ontario for the next few years. This power, he hoped to have the privilege of making available in small units as required, and not charge the rental for the whole amount up at once to the municipalities in this division of the province.

Frank Discussions

The various discussions that took place while frank and earnest, were never acrimonious. The delegates were generally pleased with their reception by the Commission and the efficient dealer of the Commission members to make a clear explanation for the necessity for the recently announced changes and increases. Hon. C. A. Magrath is himself a native of Eastern Ontario and has the interests of this part of the Province and its industrial future strongly at heart. To this aim, he is strongly supported by Hon. Robert Cooke. They are confronted with an extremely difficult situation, especially in securing more power and patience should be exercised in waiting for results.

It is probable that another meeting of the members of the Eastern Ontario Power Association will be held in the immediate future to discuss several important phases of the situation brought out at yesterday's conference.

There is a great amount of information in the hands of the Power Association believes to be essential and that was of such a nature, as could not be given off hand at yesterday's conference.

A questionnaire and several requests by the Association were answered and were duly presented by Mr. F. L. Mason, the President.

Power Associations Stand

The questions requesting the Central Ontario Power Association respectfully request answers to the following questions and explanations of the matters referred to.

1. An explanation of the difference between the value (actual and replacement) of assets in the Central Ontario Power System as appraised by the engineers of the Hydro Electric Power Commission and the amount paid therefore by the Government, as appears thus:—

Purchase Price (1916) $6,350,000
App. replacem't value (1916) 5,046,588
App. actual value (1916) 2,387,319
(see page 11, Gregory Report.
(see also Clarkson's Report, page 127 of Sutherland Commission Report).

2. The appraised actual and replacement values and the amounts paid for each unit in the System purchased by the Government at the time of purchase, and the proper distributing of all capital additions to the various units of the whole System, taking into account the necessary items for depreciation on the various units of the System since the date of purchase.

3. The allocation of any surplus and sinking funds to the various units comprising the System.

4. The annual profits and losses on each unit in the Central Ontario System showing receipts and expenditures and including fixed charges on capital. Also the disposition of the profits and allocation of losses.

5. A statement of the rates charged annually throughout the System since its purchase, including the rates charged on all contracts.

6. A tabulation of 1926 rates and the increased rates of 1927 throughout the System, showing the percentage of increase to all consumers, wholesale and retail.

7. If a sinking fund is set up, who will own the System when the cost has been liquidated?

8. How will the sinking fund be applied to contract consumers, municipal and otherwise?

9. Contracts assumed by the Hydro Electric Commission, contracts entered into by the Commission, the present status and the rates on all such contracts.

The Central Ontario Power Association by its deputation submits to the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario the following requests:—

(a) That the previous rates prevail until the information requested above is supplied and an opportunity given to the various municipalities and consumers to examine rates proposed increases and other essential features.

(b) That a scheme be devised for writing off the difference between the amount paid by the Government and the appraised value of the system and also the losses on non-Hydro Electric units.

(c) The equitable distribution of rates throughout the Central Ontario System.

The delegations which numbered thirty, was as follows:—

Eardley Wilmot, Mayor, Belleville; R. J. E. Graham, City Solicitor, Belleville; H. B. Short, City Auditor, Belleville; J. O. Herity, Manager Chamber of Commerce, Belleville; R. D. JUDGMENT PART OF GOOD HITTING SAYS HORNSBY

Sarasota, Fla., March 17.—Hitting, according to Rogers Hornsby, "is largely a matter of judgment.

"Talk about the stroke, the stance and the stride in hitting is the bunk," he said. A hitter must have a perfect stroke, stand at the plate right and step into the ball perfectly; but if he doesn't use judgment he won't hit much. A smart pitcher will cross him and make him look foolish.

"You don't advocate trying to outguess the pitcher, do you?"

"No, a fellow that does that is nothing but a 'guess' hitter and I never saw a guess hitter that was any good. But a hitter doesn't have to guess with the pitcher. Just let him make the pitcher keep the ball in the zone and don't swing at it unless he does."

"The zone?"

"Sure, the strike zone. No pitcher wants to give a hitter a good ball to hit. The idea is to make him do it or at least make him get it where you can get a good smack at it. I never hit unless the ball is right in front of the plate. That's the reason why most of my hits travel straight. A hitter that pulls the ball down one line or the other hits either too soon or too late."

"How much of your hitting skill is natural and how much was acquired?"

"That's hard to say, but certainly some of it was acquired. A fellow must have the ability to start with, but he can be developed just as I was. I was a good hitter as a kid but when I came up with the Cardinals Miller Huggins taught me a lot. Judgment, mostly. He taught me to make the pitchers come to me and that was when I began to develop as a hitter. Huggins also put me on a milk diet to increase my weight. I was only 135 pounds when I joined the Cardinals in 1915. I was twenty pounds heavier at the start of the next season, and now I weigh around 156 in my best condition."

The most striking feature of Hornsby's personal appearance is his eyes, clear, searching and unblinking. They are the eyes of a hitter or a sharpshooter.

"You guard your eyesight carefully, don't you?"

"Sure, I'd be a sucker if I didn't." He was looking at a local newspaper with large type heads sprayed over the front page.

"I read the headlines in a paper like this," he said. "But that's about all. I don't read books and I don't go to the movies. There will be light enough for that when I quit playing ball."

Mention of the newspapers opened up a new line.

"I don't believe ball players should read the sporting pages, anyway," he said. "And the newspapermen should be nice for the fans and not for the ball players."

He was assured that most of them do.

"I know," he said, "but also I know that sometimes it is necessary to boost one player and pan another, or maybe boost a player one day and for over 700 years.

In addition to earthquakes Japan has experienced this winter in certain sections an unprecedented snowfall. According to advices received in Canada, snow has been so heavy in the district of Fukui in Northern Japan, that railway traffic, other transportation facilities and power transmission have been completely interrupted. Heavy snowfalls which began in January, have continued, and as far as the eye can reach, every object is snow-bound. Fukui is a silk weaving centre and serious interruption has occurred in the mills due to frequent interruptions of electric current. The accompanying pictures from Fukui are in striking contrasts to the pictures of the cherry blossoms or of earthquakes which are more frequently used to describe the Japanese landscape.

pan him the next. In any case the player shouldn't read it, particularly if he's a young player. If he is boosted he may get a swelled head and if he is panned may get sore and discouraged, and one is as bad as the other. When I was managing the Cardinals I did all I could to keep them from reading the papers. I never read stories about myself."

Owing to the warmth derived from a mine which has been on fire for many months, vegetables grown on Allotments at Redhill, near Dudley, England, have been reaching record sizes.

One of the bells still in use in Hailsham Parish Church, Sussex, dates back to 1196. The curfew has been rung at this church every night

The Irony of Love
By Charles Garvice

"Then you know that Lord Strasdyn is not the man to change," said Travers "unless—well, unless there was a very strong inducement, an irresistable allurement. Now, my dear Phenie, I admit that you have a very powerful rival that don't lose heart. Remember that I am your friend, and that I am on your side."

"What do you mean?" she demanded, raising round on him, her brows knit with doubt and suspicion and a wistful eagerness. "Why should you be on my side? You never saw me until tonight. There's no call for you to be my friend, as you call it; there's no reason for your being taken with me, are I—well. I hate the sight of you. I don't know why, but I do. Perhaps it's that cold smile of yours, that taunting look in them black eyes that seem to pierce like gimlets, even when they're smiling. Mr. Travers, if you want to play an open game, play it now, and tell me why you stopped me tonight—why you threw me half mad with the prospect of yours about Rafe and—and me?"

Travers leaned back and looked straight before him. There was reason thing about this girl that exterted an unwilling respect and admiration the worst, the meanest of men are compelled to yield to reluctant meed of respect to the victim who turns a courageous front to them and defies them. At that moment, as he sat silent and meditative, he was tempted to tell her the whole truth, to tell her that he was Strasdyn's natural brother. But he checked the impulse. That was a secret which must be locked within his own breast, must never be revealed. However, he could tell her part of the truth and he decided to do so.

"That's a very fair question, Phenie. You, I can play an open game, and I'm going to do so. I'm going to lay all my cards on the table, and when you see them you will understand why I felt modest myself on you tonight, and why—I trust not ungently—I have forced you to lay your cards on the table. Phenie, strange as it may sound, I want Strasdyne to marry his old friend and playmate—you."

CHAPTER XIV.
THE BAIT

"Marry me! Why?"

"Because, if he marries you he can't marry that beautiful girl you saw, Lady Maude."

"You want her for yourself?" Phenie flashed out at him.

"Exactly, you have guessed right the very first time," he said quietly.

"You!" she cried, with amazement, scorn. "Why should she marry you?" She was silent, still looking at him; then, slowly she said: "I suppose some girl would think you good looking enough and might take a fancy to you outwardly as it seems to me. You're handsome

Sick Man Refused $25 For Medicine

"Adlerika is the only medicine to gas on the stomach. I never had so much relief from any medicine I ever took and I would not take $25 for the relief one bottle of Adlerika gave me." M. L. Hicks.

Adlerika gives the system a REAL cleansing and brings out old poison which may have caused trouble for long time. Unlike most medicines, it acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel just one spoonful relieves GAS and starts away that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never thought was in you system and which caused sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness headache. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. J. S. McKeown, Druggist.

—I don't say you're not, and you've got a swell way of talking, but you say you're Rafe's second, so I suppose you're nobody in particular. And she's a great lady, isn't she? I've seen it in fine store clothes and smothered in diamonds—oh, yes, she's a great lady, one of the soft that Rafe belongs to now. Why should she want to marry you?" She laughed. "Tell me why!"

"Very clearly put, my dear Phenie," said Travers, "and rather difficult to answer at this late hour of the night. But, my dear child, you forget that she is so great a lady that she can stoop without losing anything. Anyway, I have told you my reason for desiring to have a conversation with you. I'm in love with Lady Maude, and I mean to marry her, therefore I want Lord Strasdyn out of the way. And that is where you come in my useful."

"You mean me to come in between him and her?" she said reflectively and in a low voice. "Supposing I refuse; supposing I—are enough for him to stand aside—and don't take no hand in the deal?"

"My dear Phenie, it is impossible for one to imagine anything so absurd. No woman who is so infatuated as you are with your old lover, Rafe, would consent to stand aside. I know women." "You don't know me," she retorted sharply. "I'd cut off my head"—she stretched out her arm and clenched her hand, staring at him—"if, by doing it I'd make Rafe happy."

"Upon my word, I think you would," he said, with a smile, "but such an all round performance would not make Rafe happy any more than your standing aside and surrendering Lady Maude would do so. My dear child, forgive me, but you don't know very much of the world or very much of the men with which it is therein. You may take it from me that, if Lady Maude were foolish enough to marry Strasdyne, both he and he would be extremely miserable."

"How do you mean?" she asked quickly, with a crisis at her breath.

"Oh, don't you see?" he responded "I will make bold to say that no two persons were more unsuited to each other than Lady Maude—well, you have seen her my dear Phenie, she is the very last word in hyper-civilization. I beg your pardon. But it isn't necessary to do so, for you're so quick that I am sure you understand the long word. Let us put it this way; that she is—well exactly the reverse of what you are—"You keep a civil tongue in your head she broke in resentfully.

"I did not mean to be offensive," he said, quite easily. "She is unlike you in every way; whereas, you and Rafe—let us give him the name that fit him so well—are alike in manner and feeling. There are certain things about—our—dear Rafe which would par upon such a polished, ultra refined woman a Lady Maude before the honeymoon was out. No doubt she has been taken with that good-looking face of his, that devil may-care manner which knocks so many women over; but, behind the handsome face and splendid form of his lurks the rough miner, the rowdy of Jumping Jane."

Phenie swung round to him again, her eyes flashed. "If he was here, you wouldn't talk like this," she said, with infinite scorn. "He'd 'rowdy you!"

FOUR MEN DEAD FROM EXPLOSION

Amarillo, Texas, March 17.— Four men were burned to death today in an explosion of gas at the gasoline shorptop plant one mile west of Skinnock. The dead were all of Skinnock.

The plant, being erected by the Cochinhian Gasoline corporation, suddenly burst into flames without warning, trapping the workmen, two of whom were inside the large absorption units, and two on ladders on the outside. Those of the outside were hurled fifty feet to the ground, their clothing in flames. The bodies of the others were removed from the bottom of the gas chambers.

Euler, Minister of Customs and Excise, announces that the present period of 30 days of free entry into Canada of United States motor tourists on a permit will be extended to 90 days, in conform with the privilege now granted by the United States authorities, who admit Canadian cars carrying motor tourists free into that country for 90 days. The only difference will be that the Canadian permit will not initially be for 90 days, but for a first and second 30-day extension, if and when the tourists can show bona-fides and recommendation from reputable associations of automobilists in the United States. A larger tourist movement to Canada is expected to result from the change.

BELLE THEATRE

Although his screen career is shot through with exciting moments Buck Jones encountered one of the most gripping experiences of his life in making "The Flying Horseman" his latest Fox Films Western, which opens a two day run at the Belle Theatre tomorrow. In this fast-moving story, based upon Max Brand's novel, Buck is surrounded by an excellent cast. Gladys McConnell has the leading feminine role.

Buck, cast as Mark Winston, returns to the sleepy hills town of Los Santos, when he encounters Bert Ridley shooting one of eight Loya, the sons of Happy Joe. Happy Joe is a jolly old derelict who has a shack on the ranch of Colonel Savory. Ridley in love with Jane, Colonel Savory's daughter, takes a beating at the hands of Buck. He leaves swearing revenge. Against Ridley's machinations Buck slowly accuses him of murder, and tries to prevent Silver Buck winning the Comanche Valley Days Polo Association for one of the most absorbing screen stories seen in recent months.

REGENT THEATRE

The story of a man who vows to catch the mysterious figure who has been responsible for death and destruction to the entire countryside is told in "The Border Whirlwind," an F.B.O. production starring Bob Custer which is now playing at the Regent Theatre. The killer is known as "The Boot-pion," and so far all who have tried to trail him have met with the same fate—death. However, Tom Blake, the part played by Custer, is young, dauntless and full of determination. In addition to this he is known in the desert country as its best, rider and all look to him to rid the country of its menace. He is spurred to desperate action when his father is killed by the unknown enemy, and finally through his sweetheart, whom some have dared before, and an escape from his captors which is remarkable for its harrowing, that the hitherto Tom is able to fulfill his vow.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Dear Patron:

From abroad—comes a picture so startlingly beautiful in its pictorial treatment—entirely different in its fascinating theme—so utterly unlike anything you have ever seen before—that it is with a great deal of pleasure we announce is showing at the Capitol Theatre beginning March 23rd.

Based on Goethe's epic drama which was used by Gounod for his opera, "Faust" will startle and amaze you. It is a human, sympathetic and, sometimes, spectacular portrayal of the conflict between the forces of good and evil—wherein Faust relinquishes honor, duty and fame, renounces God and sells his immortal soul to the devil for a season of wealth and all its pleasures and dissipations.

"Faust" preaches no lesson, suggests no moral—it presents modern picture entertainment of the most enjoyable kind. The theme of religion is simply a means to an end and in no way detracts from its marvelous qualities of a fine story and great characterizations.

Emil Jannings plays the role of "Mephisto," and demonstrates to you why he is called he greatest screen star in America and Europe. Most picture patrons still remember him in "Variety" and "The Last Laugh," in "Faust" in a picture which will be talked about long after most pictures are forgotten. Be sure to see it.

Very truly yours,

Manager, Capitol Theatre.

CONVERSION IS A UNIVERSAL NECESSITY

The evangelistic services last night in Holloway Street Church was full of interest. The solo, duet and community singing were much enjoyed. The What, Why, When, and Who of conversion was the theme of Dr. Chase's address, which was very illuminating.

"Conversion" he said "is not getting ready to die, but getting ready to live here and in the great beyond." The whole word concerned in our version of the Bible is translated 'turned' in the new version it means 'turned to Christ in thought, desire, will, trust, love and life.'

When a person thus turns repentance, pardon and regeneration are secured. The conviction and change that accompany conversion are sincere, more distinct and radical in some than in others, according to the habits character life and age of the individuals so evidenced in the conversion of the Philippian jailer and Lydia. Conversion is a necessity and possibility for everyone.

A goodly number confessed decision and surrender in the after meeting. Tonight the theme of the song service will be from Guilt to Glory.

TILLIE THE TOILER— IT'S ALL OVER BUT THE SHOUTING. RUSS WESTOVER

INDIAN RULER TO SACRIFICE MONEY

Baroda, India, — One of the strangest romances in a land of myriad Arabian Nights has befallen the Gaekwar of Baroda, rich and powerful Indian prince.

His unprecedented intention of making his state self-governing compares with the suddenness with which he was catapulted from his flocks as a shepherd onto one of the great thrones of the East.

With a fabulous income and the power of life and death over millions of subjects, he proposes to surrender most of his power to the common people he has ruled so long. The plan he contemplates embraces the establishes of a parliament similar to that in England, with a constitution to fit the scheme. This is not his first innovation, however, for his principality long has been known as the model state of the Indian Empire, and he has for many years had a legislative council to assist in the government.

At the age of thirteen the present Gaekwar was known as Sayaji Rao, a simple shepherd of the hills. He was adopted, with permission of the British government, after the fall of the Maharaja Milhar Rao, who was deposed in 1875 for misrule.

Written history is somewhat vague about his childhood, but in time there came to the place at Baroda an inconspicuous figure—a plebeian youth who was the "son of a thousand princes."

The young Gaekwar was given a thorough education, both Oriental and Western, and was schooled in statecraft. With this equipment he began his heroic ones and the North American continent to the public coffers for the uplift of his people. He became known as an intellectual man, who abhorred intemperance and vice in any form.

Long ago he made refreshing compul-

What promises to be one of the most interesting developments in the Porcupine area during the coming summer will be that on the Benland-Hurst properties in Carscallen township, about twenty miles south-west of Timmins. A Montreal syndicate with Gen. Smart as one of the principals has optioned the claims for a syndicate known as the Winchillet. The option calls for a certain amount of diamond drilling to be done within a specified time. It is expected the work will start almost immediately providing the equipment can be taken in. Contractors have been looking over the ground and route to the property preparatory to submitting their cost mates on the work.

BOWLING

RECREATION BOWLING

One of the most important games to be played at the Recreation Alleys for some time, took place between the Carthage and the C.N.R. Shops in the Senior League last night when it affected four teams that were in the running for first, second, and third places. This game had just about one hundred "its" in it. For instance, if the Shops had won three points they were tie with the Ponies for first place, and if they had won four they would have cinched first place, and again if they only had won one point they would have had second place; on the other hand by the Carthage winning all four points, it gave the leadership of the Senior League to the Ponies and it also tied the Carthage for second place with the Shops, these two wins will now have to be played off for second money while the Ponies grab first place and the right to play the Rovers for the Drumswick trophy. The game itself last night was a hard fight all the way through with the Carthage having a little the best in every game, as they won the first point by 35 pins and the second by 82 pins, and in the final game both teams rolled over 1000, the Carthage winning this game by 24 pins, or winning the total by 91 pins. Merrell for the winners was high man with 696 and Randall for the losers was next in line with 694.

Senior League

C. N. Shops—Austin 549; Baldree 496; Collyer 538; Gerow 661; Randall 694. Total 2873.

Three games were played in the C.N.R. Shops League at the Recreation Alleys last night with the following results:

Teams No. 1 and No. 2 broke even with two wins each, the former team winning the first and second game, while the latter team won the third game and total. High bowlers were Wilkinson and Elliott who were tied with 625 each for No. 2, and Jordan was high for No. 1.

Teams No. 3 and No. 4 also broke even with two wins, the former team winning the first point by only 1 pin; in the second No. 4 go a nice lead of 67 pins which was enough to give them an extra point on the total score as they lost the third game by a few pins. High bowlers were Shorts and John Doe.

Team No. 3 were in good form against Team No, 7 when they won all four points. High bowlers were Robinson and McKinnon.

SPORTOGRAMS

Managers of the various softball teams in the City league are requested to be on hand for the meeting tonight. Ken Colling is anxious that every club have a representative present in order that no disputes shall arise after the league is under way. The Bet o' Much has been set as the opening date and with the eight strong teams the fans are in for a great season.

Senior ball in Belleville is practically a dim dream this summer which will be regretted by a lot of fans. If this is the case, then Intermediate ball is the next step and judging from the comments heard about the streets the fans certainly want baseball of one class or another. The warm weather has them talking anyway but the morals should not go to the Central League meeting on March 28th with no definite views on the subject. Might not a public meeting help some to get the ball rolling here?

Detroit fans have not forgotten Ty Cobb, but they no longer hold him in high esteem. When the Georgia Peach, in the garb of the Athletics, makes his first appearance at Navin field he will get a hot reception. His old worshippers promise no less him.

A similar greeting is in store for Tris Speaker, now with the Senators. When he goes to the bat at Dunn field in Cleveland, Forest City fans intend to make his ears tingle.

The fans at Sportsman's park in St. Louis promise to boot Rogers Hornsby when he looks up there with the Giants. They still are grumbling over his willingness to desert the world champion Cardinals.

Cobby, Speaker and Hornsby should worry! They are getting the money!

George Hainsworth, the midget, and Clint Benedict, the long and lanky are tied in the matter of shutting out opposing clubs in the N. H. L. each with an even dozen. The Maroons' goalie took a lead in the race for this honor in the Rangers' scoreless draw last Saturday night, which tie game, incidentally was the sixteenth of the season in which two contending teams have struggled for 60 minutes on even terms, and the fourth in which neither team has scored. The schedule record of the different teams in the matter of shutting out opponents (including also the games scored) shows the Canadiens and Maroons leading in the whitewashing job.

* * *

While the Hamilton C. H. L. team is out in the cold now, they are not finished for the season yet. Efforts will be made to have the Boston team of the Canadian-American league play an exhibition game here, and Kingston is desirous of having the Hamilton and Niagara Falls teams play an exhibition game there. It looks to us that if Tandler the Hamilton pro star, goalie and of late started in the first of the home and home games against London recently that the story would have been different. In the two games played 9 goals were scored against Hamilton. Stewart starting in the first game allowed 4 counters to slip by him in two periods, while Tandler played the last and two were scored on him. In London he played the entire game and only two were scored thus it looks as if Charlie Stewart has slipped back a terrible lot in the past few years, as at one time he was ranked as one of the best in the game.

GEORGE V. DOES NOT BELIEVE IN SHEETED SPOOKS

Windsor, March 17.—King George does not believe in spooks. But a great many of the villagers living within the shadow of Windsor Castle are devout believers in ghosts, and His Majesty would like to change their views.

Eerie sounds emanating from an ancient wing of the Castle were responsible for the latest thrill afforded the villagers. Members of the military guard who occupy the wing reported strange shadows and noises night after night. Reports of what the soldiers had seen and heard finally reached the King himself.

About the same time the London newspapers published stories to the effect that the villagers had heard the ghostly pack of "Herne the Hunter," a forest ranger who hanged himself because he had fallen under the displeasure of Queen Elizabeth. There are no hounds in this immediate vicinity, but several families told investigators that frequently, after midnight, they had heard the baying of the hounds in full cry.

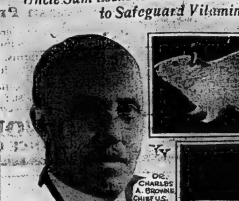

The King's theory regarding Herne's pack, mentioned by Shakespeare in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," was that the "baying" was caused by a pet, bolterouse grose which in flocks prowled about the countryside in the early hours.

When the guard reported weird midnight sounds as coming from the tower of Henry III., the King called in his building experts to ascertain whether the building was settling. They reported they would find no trace of spooks or any cracks in the building of any consequence. Windsor Castle, as a whole, the inspectors reported, was found to be in a fine state of preservation "in good yet for three or four centuries."

Ghost stories have been one of the favorite topics of Windsor for hundreds of years, but with the latest report of modern building inspectors the King hopes these will now vanish.

Tinsel pictures, once so popular, are returning to favor. Only one man in London knows the process, and his greatest difficulty is in procuring the necessary tinsel.

Uncle Sam Looks to Lowly Rat for Help in Fight to Safeguard Vitamins in Nation's Food Supply

THIS SCRAWNY RAT GOT NONE.

Uncle Sam has taken the despised rat into partnership in the business of safeguarding the nation's food.

In peculiar conception, the rat is regarded as one of the greatest enemies both to our food and our health. He has long been classed as a dangerous and destructive pest. He destroys annually vast quantities of grain and foodstuffs. He carries disease and contagion. Man spends millions of dollars in the attempt to eradicate him and offset his ravages. And yet—

Scientists agree that the health and well-being of the human race during the next generation may be more greatly advanced, by reason of the rat than by any other factor now foreseen; for it is to the despised rat that science looks chiefly for further knowledge concerning the vitamins and proteins so essential to human growth and health. As the quarters of the scientist, the rat may yet repay mankind for all his depredations.

To assist research work now being carried on in the government's food investigation laboratory, a "stable" of several hundred rats is maintained. Exact records are kept of the food elements provided different individuals and groups, and close studies made to determine the effects on growth, health, reproductive ability and all phases of development. From these tests the action of various food ingredients on the vitamins and proteins, which determine the nutritive value and wholesomeness of individual foodstuffs, can be determined.

"Most that we know about vitamins," says Dr. D. Breese Jones senior chemist of this government laboratory, "has been learned from the effects they produce upon animals. Vitamins play a very different role in nutrition from other food constituents. They contribute neither energy nor tissue-building material. Their function has been likened to that of a spark plug in a gas engine. In some way, not yet understood, they regulate and control certain vital processes. The relative vitamin content of any food can be ascertained only by feeding experiments with small animals such as rats, in which the digestive processes are closely identical to those of man.

While the vitamin content of most primary foods already has been determined in comparative degree, such as "abundant", "rich", "poor", "deficient", etc., study has been made to date of the effects on the vitamines of the various adulterants, mineral elements, preservatives and other extraneous ingredients contained in many modern-day foods. This is recognized as the big future field for dietetic research.

Vitamin B, for instance which is necessary to the continuance of life and health at all ages, is easily affected by alkalies. The custom of adding soda when cooking vegetables, Dr. Jones states, is found to injure the vitamin content. Also, there is reason to believe that the presence of mineral salts, such as salts of copper and aluminum, is destructive to the vitamins.

The form of alum usually in some baking powders is thought likely to be harmful to the vitamins, probably through the action of its mineral content. The facility with which such compounds enter into combination with natural food elements make them potentially detrimental in rendering nutritious foods which otherwise are valuable and wholesome.

Dr. Charles A. Browne, chief of the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry, charged with pure food enforcement, declares that the nation's food supply is to be properly safeguarded, the whole field of nutrition and dietetics must be extended in the light of present-day knowledge of vitamins and proteins. This is particularly true, he holds, because of the increasing consumption of processed foods.

In these studies, Drs. Browne and Jones agree, the rat will work hand in hand with the scientists. If the American public is to remain strong and vigorous on a diet of ground, pasteurized and predigested foods, it will be due to the adaptation of a host of rats, sacrificed in the study of how to prevent rickets and neuritis in foods without killing off their vitamins!

ROBBERY IN THE COAL CITY TO BE CLEARED UP SOON

Pittsburgh March 17.—A complete solution of the $104,000 Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company payroll robbery appeared near today. Obtaining confession, it was said, from one of the three suspects they had arrested yesterday, police recovered thirty thousand dollars of loot stolen last Friday when the bandit gang blew up an armored car carrying the payroll. Meanwhile arrest of still another suspect was reported from Detroit, where authorities here believed most of the gang fled.

COAL DEALERS GET NABBED IN STATES

Buffalo, March 17.—What seemed to be an easy way to get carload shipments of coal for fuelless may turn out disastrously for several local men. Police have arrested four after finding that during the last six months they diverted between ten and twenty thousand dollars worth of coal intended for Canadian use to dealers' siding here.

Canadian Farmer Tells His Experience

"Lez" Booth, widely known Ontario farmer, and a sick man for 20 years, suffered daily, only half alive. Now strong, robust, vigorous, credits new found health to Tanlac

Though popularly known as "Lez," Mr. Booth's correct first name is George. His home is at 237 Perth St., Brockville. In the last three years he has enjoyed vigorous health but what he endured before then is best told in his own words. "For twenty years my arms, shoulders, back and loins, ached with rheumatism," said Mr. Booth. "Often I had to quit work entirely and I remember one bad spell that kept me in bed for six months.

"My case got to be so chronic that the help was on the farm. I was practically helpless. Even my wrists and hands would swell up so that I couldn't write my name. I developed bedtime, for I got no rest, but lay there in agony, waiting for morning. Nervous upsets would seize me and I would breathe all over like a leaf. I couldn't eat any benefit from my food and had to force myself to eat. My weight was far below normal.

"Three years ago I decided to give Tanlac a good trial, for nothing else had helped me. I could scarcely believe such results were possible as those Tanlac soon showed. The aching stopped, my appetite came back and I could sit heartily. My nights became more restful, too, and I slept soundly. I gained 10 pounds which I still retain, and I now work hard outdoors from 6 to 10 hours a day. I never have an ache. It's hardly believable I have so much health. If folks want to know what Tanlac can do, tell them to write to Lez Booth, or to come and see me. I'll tell 'em."

If your health is broken from overwork or neglect, profit from Mr. Booth's experience. Try Tanlac. Nature's own body builder, made from roots, herbs and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 52 million bottles sold.

CODE WORDS ARE ACCEPTABLE NOW

Montreal, March 17.—In accordance with an agreement reached at a general conference of Canadian and United States Telegraph Companies, The Canadian Telegraphs announce that effective at once and at all their offices code words will be accepted in day and night letters. The announcement comes over the signature of J. McMillan, General Manager of Canadian Pacific Telegraphs and is effective both in connection with Canadian and international business. The decision of the telegraph companies will be met with widespread approval by business men in all parts of the country as this concession gives them an opportunity of using the new rate services for longer communications. This step has been under careful consideration by the various companies for some time and under the terms of agreement an equal concession will be made by each organization concerned. The companies concerned are the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs, The Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, The Canadian National Telegraphs and The Western Union Telegraph Company. The new line of action will be effective simultaneously over each system.

REVIVALIST WILL STAY ALL WEEK

Many an sword the call s'eed by Dr Crossley and Rev. Mr. Lonnard at the Revival meeting in Holloway Street United Church last evening and the large attendance heard the Evangelists messages with rapt attention.

Rev. Dr. Crossley preached a splendid sermon entitled "the Most Momentous Night in a Sinner's Life" basing his address on Exodus Passover, Exodus 12 and 13. The speaker gave an account of the events leading up to the Passover dwelling upon the sprinkling of blood on the lintel posts and stressed the point that today we, who stand behind Christ's promises are protected.

The closing thought of the sermon was that as the blood which was sprinkled on the posts protected one and interest on the blood of Christ was absolutely pure. The blood was vicarious one that was innocent suffering for another, and the blood of life. At this juncture in the sermon Mr. Lonnard sang "Hold Back Thine Hand, O Whisper."

It was saving blood; so also all are saved through the atonement of Jesus and everything depending on our own works. How Mr. Lonnard sang "There is a Green Hill Far Away."

Many pockets are very behind the blood would deserve to be slain so one who does not accept the atonement of Christ forfeits his own atonement.

After an earnest appeal to accept Christ the closing hymn in the evening service "Rock of Ages" by Dr. Crossley then was sung by Evangelist Lonnard.

Nujol treatment now recognized method of relieving constipation say medical men

WE recently asked representative doctors all over the country under what conditions they recommended the use of the Nujol type of treatment. The list of special cases was astounding. Almost uniformly they recommended it for both occasional and chronic constipation, as well as an aid to regularity. Nujol, as one doctor put it, "Acts with nature, instead of against it." Another said, "A lubricant is better than a laxative in both chronic and temporary cases."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Eight doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons:

1. Nujol is not habit-forming.
2. A more natural method.
3. A lubricant is better than a laxative.
4. Does not gripe.
5. Is not irritating.
6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is penile in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it! Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation, whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

PRIVATE REMAINS ARMY BACKBONE

Ottawa, Ont., Mar. 17.—Among all the intricacies of warfare which have been invented during and since the Great War, there is nothing to take the place of the infantryman and his rifle, was the keynote of the report of the committee appointed at the annual meeting of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association today.

The feature of the Council's report was the recommendation of the committee that careful consideration be given the suggestion that the size of the team representing Canada at Bisley be reduced from two officers and eighteen shooting members to two officers and fifteen shooting members. The suggestion was made in view of the increased cost of modern transportation.

ANOTHER BRIDGE ACROSS NIAGARA

Ottawa, March 17.—An act to incorporate the Niagara Falls Memorial Bridge Company met with a somewhat stormy reception in the private bills committee of the House of Commons this morning. After some discussion the committee adjourned to permit those interested to the construction of the bridge to confer with Queen Victoria Park commissioners, as well as commissioners on the U. S. side of the river and select a suitable site. The proposed in the bill is at or near the foot of Ferry street in Niagara Falls, Ontario, to a point in or near the New York State reservation.

The bill was opposed by Georee Henderson, K.C., appearing for the Government of Ontario and the commissions of Niagara Falls, Ontario. J. B. D. Chaplin, Conservative member for Lincoln and also one of the park commissioners also opposed the park posed. W. M. German, K.C., appearing in support of the bill asserted that another bridge was urgently required to handle traffic. Some times motor cars had to wait for hours to cross the present bridge. Mr. German said he would accept the suggestion that the site of the bridge would be subject to approval by the park commissioners.

Says Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced At Home

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood Veins Flows That Way

If you or any relative or friends are worried because of varicose veins or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller—and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Piles are quickly absorbed. Doyle's Drug Store sells lots of it.

ANOTHER ORE FIND

Phoenix, Arizona, Mar. 17.—A gold strike equal to that at Weepah, Nevada, was claimed today by James B. Girand, veteran hard rock miner and engineer who displayed samples of the find in the dripping springs country, about 120 miles east of Phoenix. The discovery was made by Dan McGraw, veteran Nevada prospector. The samples assayed $100,000 the ton, according to the Phoenix assay office.

THEY NEEDED PRACTICE

Kansas City, March 17.—Robbers broke into a machine works here and were confronted by a sign on the safe reading: "This safe contains no valuables, so here is the combination if you want it." Below were printed the numbers of the combination, but the bandits who either could not read or needed practice, went right ahead and battered off the door. A year ago the safe was robbed in the same manner.

ALAN SWAYNE IS HIGHLY HONORED

Given Gold Watch For the Rescue of a Drowning Girl

In recognition of his brave act in saving Miss Annie Pretty from the icy waters of the Missisipi River on Feb. 7th last when Miss Pretty had plunged into the river to escape being struck by the Ottawa-Penbroke train which had overtaken her on the railroad bridge, citizens of Carleton Place, last evening gathered in the town hall and presented Alan Swayne, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Swayne, formerly of Belleville, here before he moved to Bath, with a handsome gold watch engraved with the following inscription:

"Presented to John Alan Hope Swayne by the Citizens of Carleton Place, Ont., for his heroism in saving a life from drowning February 7th, 1927."

Mr. Swayne acknowledged his appreciation in a few well-chosen words.

Mayor McDiarmid, the chairman, told Mr. Swayne that the Royal Canadian Humane Society had been approached with a view of procuring the Humane Society's medal for him.

Alan, formerly a member of the staff of the Union Bank at Belleville, is a well known hockeyist. He formerly played with Belleville Intermediate O.H.A. team. His father was rector of Christ Church here before he moved to Bath.

UNKIND CUT TO THE WOMEN

Montreal, Que., March 17 (C.P.)—The Gazette in an editorial on "Women and Tobacco" considers that the recent report of the Department at Ottawa on the consumption of tobacco in Canada, holds an unkind reference, an unkind reference, an increase being set down as "due, probably, to women smokers." It was reported from Winnipeg the other day that a number of local women had come out in defence of their sex; they ridiculed charges made by a clergyman that women through smoking, were contributing to the moral delinquency of the hours, and asserted: "Our grandmothers and great-grandmothers smoked, and they did not upset the well-known good old times." There is, however, a difference between those times and today as regards the smoking habits of women. If the story-books are to be relied on, women years ago smoked pipes, and their use was more or less concealed from the public gaze. Today, women smoke cigarettes openly, in the home and publicly almost everywhere, and boldness who feel, as it were, to scatter cigarettes from top to bottom of their homes, feel themselves, or profess to feel themselves, guilty of a social error. The Winnipeg women referred to above, declare that the average woman is not an addict to tobacco; they insist that she smokes merely to be sociable or keep her husband company, and maintain that smoking is only a passing phase of "social life." "It is hardly a passing phase. Cigarettes have come to stay, and as regards the effect they are having it is to be noted that while some pessimists profess they are harmful, the physicians, in their discreet of opinion, make the question one of "glorious uncertainty." Therein, perhaps, lies the cigarette's irresistible attraction. Thus concludes the article.

ESKIMO WAS A GUEST OF CITY

Winnipeg, Man., March 4.—(By C.P.)—One of Santa Claus' hired men from the immediate boundaries of the North Pole, was a visitor in Winnipeg recently. His name is Jerry Kolocha and he is an Eskimo. Jerry is a short little man, brown skinned, black hair and glistening black eyes. He speaks English well, although his accent is slightly French. His job in life is to herd 2,000 odd reindeer in the distant Northland.

Last September Jerry and eleven comrades, were hired to take a herd of 100 reindeer to cities in the United States. They expect to be back in their native haunts sometime in June.

Jerry is a reticent individual, but in response to persuasion he unfolded a strange tale.

For five years he said he had been herding reindeer in Alaska, away up in the bleak country near Teller, with three other comrades. Jerry is responsible for 10,000 deer. That wasn't the largest herd by any means, for at one time they had 75,000 head under their care.

The twelve natives left Alaska late in September by boat and then by train from Seattle to Chicago, where they parted. Jerry took four deer to Buffalo, N. Y., where he set to work to break them into harness.

Now that his mission is ended, the twelve Eskimos are on their way home. Jerry was the only one who journeyed through Canada.

Although it was Jerry's first trip into civilization, he was not particularly thrilled with the wonders of city life. Railway trains were only "pretty good" and the noise of the city traffic was too much for him. He enjoyed the trip alright, he said, but he confessed that he would not care to live in the populated land of the white man. Civilization was too lonely for an Eskimo. He preferred to be among his own people.

Reindeer raising according to Jerry is a profitable business in Alaska. The firms he works for handles hundreds of thousand head and ship out great quantities of meat from cold storage. Of the 143 deer shipped to the States, only four died. The others were sold at an average of $1,000 a piece. In the North they are valued at $25 a head.

The Largest Single Shipment of Motor Oil ever made in Canada

THIS week, the largest single shipment of motor oil ever made in Canada—a solid train-load of twenty-six cars of Marvelube Motor Oils — pulled out of our Sarnia Refinery for delivery to Imperial service stations and dealers in Western Canada.

This train was made up of eighteen carloads of Marvelube in bulk and eight carloads of Marvelube in barrels, drums and cans, ordered for Spring delivery to supply this year's initial demands of the motorists of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

One year ago Marvelube was unknown to the motorists of Canada! Today the demand for this "finest of all motor oils" is such that a record-breaking oil shipment is necessary to fill the orders of dealers serving the needs of only one section of the Dominion.

This huge demand for Marvelube has been created by the satisfactory lubricating results given by the oil in practical use during 1926.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific across Canada, 200,000 motorists are now using Marvelube regularly and exclusively.

No other oil ever won, by sheer merit, such a huge number of satisfied users in so short a time. No other oil could, because Marvelube, used regularly in the proper grade, always proves itself superior on every basis of comparison, to any other motor oil sold in Canada.

This year, start your car off on the correct grade of Marvelube Motor Oil. You will get improved operation with more power and smoother, cooler running, and as the months pass you will realize the operating economies which Marvelube so unmistakably brings by the better lubricating results it gives.

NANKING ALMOST IN THE GRIP OF CANTONESE ARMY

Southern Forces Relentlessly Pressing Back Chang'a Troops

AN EASY PREY

Shanghai Seems Easy Prize For Triumphant Attacking Armies

Shanghai, Mar. 18.—Both Nanking and Shanghai are seriously threatened by Cantonese armies which are engaged in a large scale offensive against the Northerners to the northwest of the city. The violence and scope of the Southerners's thrust together with reflections from northern ranks, indicate early the fall of Nanking and the possible isolation of Chang Tsung, Chang's northern forces in Shanghai, in which event this great international port would become an easy prize for the Southerners.

The strategic pressure is being exerted in the direction of Chenz Chow, Wuah and Soochow, all of who are on the railway between Shanghai and Nanking. The latest successes of the Southerners include the capture of Wuking, a short distance south of Soochow, and L'shui south of Nanking.

LIPTON TO MAKE A FIFTH EFFORT

New York, March 18.—The New York American says Sir Thomas Lipton will file a formal challenge with the New York Yacht Club in July for a series of races to be sailed in American waters for the America's Cup. The race will be sailed next year.

It will be Sir Thomas' fifth attempt to lift the cup, which was won for the United States in August, 1851, by the schooner America. Sir Thomas' last effort to capture the cup was made in 1920 with Shamrock IV.

With Lipton's challenge will come a request that the Sandy Hook course—a wiggle most of the cup contests have been sailed—be abandoned for some other, probably one to be laid off Newport.

In 1920 New York Harbor traffic and a heavy film of oil on the surface of the sea made the Sandy Hook course unsatisfactory.

FRANCE IS NOT EVEN INTERESTED

Paris, March 18.—France is not likely to send even an observer to the three power naval disarmament conference proposed by President Coolidge, it was stated today, since Washington's disagreement with the League of Nation's disarmament commission was apparent in the notes made public yesterday at Geneva.

GENERAL STRIKE ORDER IS ISSUED CALLING OUT SHANGHAI WORKERS

Coolie Mob Clashes With Unarmed British Marines at Chungking

Shanghai, March 18.—The General labor union today issued a communique calling a general strike to begin tomorrow at noon and continue until the Nationalists (Cantonese) occupy Shanghai.

The communique calls on all workers to maintain order and avoid becoming involved in any mob action, and notifies the public that the strike is purely of a political nature and intended to show sympathy with the nationalist cause in their fight against the northerners. Detachments of Northern troops have been ordered along the Shanghai-Nanking railway, in attempts to prevent workers from leaving.

Riots at Chungking

A report from Peking today says coolies belonging to the "Avenging society," clashed with British Marines at Chungking yesterday and seized naval stores being conveyed from a British gunboat to the British Canteen ashore. The marines who offer immediate resistance were accompanied by British Consul Piatt. They gave chase when the coolies seized the stores, and the latter dropped them. When the marines picked up the goods again, however, the mob attacked them with sticks and stones and the British were forced to abandon supplies. The British suffered no serious injuries.

COLD WAVE IN WEST

Sharp Drop in Temperature Felt; Iowa Severe Blizzard

Winnipeg, March 18.—A sharp drop in temperature has followed in the wake of the severe blizzard which swept Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the cold wave that was enveloping Manitoba.

It was sweeping again this morning at many points of the Prairies, but the wind has abated, permitting drifts, heaped, sottimes as high as 20 feet, to be cleared, blocked roads and to recan range stock, caught in the storm.

Snowstorms were in general use in country districts and it will be several days before normal communications can be reestablished.

While the high pressure wave has moved over the Great Lakes, prospects in the west are for continued cold and unsettled weather.

BREAD WAR NOW ON; PRICES DROP

Bakers Try to Put Price Cutter Out of Business

When a new baker in town undertook to start a war by cutting the price of bread to sixteen cents a loaf in an attempt to grab the city's business, the other bakers promptly cut prices to twelve cents and the battle is on. It opened this morning in earnest and housekeepers all over the city are rejoicing over the new developments and hop the war will continue.

The invading bakery came out with the announcement yesterday that their bread would be sold at sixteen cents a loaf. The other bakers in the city immediately got together and challenged the originator of the bread price-cutting conflict and informed their customers that bread would be sold at twelve cents a loaf where it had formerly sold at twenty cents a loaf. Gilberts, Hallsand Oliphants, and Harris took prompt action to meet the competition. Taylor's bakery has remained neutral and their bread will remain at the old price pending further developments. One of the bakers joining the new agreement stated today that it would be impossible to determine the length of the war but it will continue until one side or the other find themselves unable to make bread at the low price.

CONFIDENT THAT HE WILL FINALLY GET ACQUITTAL

Abe Robinson Undergoes Second Mental Examination Yesterday

NOT WORRYING

Report of Alienists Expected For Court Appearance Next Tuesday

Abraham Robinson was examined yesterday by Dr. Cumberland of the Ontario Hospital, Brockville, for his sanity. Dr. Cumberland spent some time with Abe and returned to Brockville. He will submit a report to the Department of the Attorney-General, W. H. Price, and the result of the test may be announced next week.

There may be further examinations made by the alienists since next week is only one trial tests were conducted this week. Abe is still living at the Queen's Hotel and is being guarded by a special constable. He is eating his three squares a day and according to reports is losing no sleep over the fact that he may possibly be incarcerated in an institution if found insane.

Insane He is Sane

The acquittal man maintains that he is sound in mind and body and believes himself capable of handling his own affairs. "Abe" is fond of cigars and spends his time talking about at the expense of the Ontario Government. Everything is being taken as a matter of course and he is confident that he will return shortly to his farm in Eldorado where he will resume the tasks of tilling the soil and sowing the grain.

He will, however, remain under the supervision of the Provincial Police until next Tuesday, the 22nd, the date set by the court to appear for sentence "unless someone is to be large" which was said.

The report of the alienists may be announced at that time.

Saw Angels

Abe Robinson has confided to many persons that Gideon and his whiteclothed angels have appeared to him many times on the farm and while in his cell more angels dressed in long white robes visited him. They seemed to come through the wall and told him not to worry and be cast down as he is going to be acquitted. While he never mentioned the angelic visitors to The Intelligencer he did confide that "young girls were praying for me and my mother was praying for me, too, and I know—that's all."

THERE WERE NO IDENTIFICATION MARKS ON SMITH

Relatives and Friends Discount Stories of Search For Treasure

Since the arrival of the post mortem photograph of John Smith of Harrah, no personal belongings or other marks of identification have been received by relatives or friends to whom the effects have been received here. Mrs. Margaret McCleanan left orders that any mail from Hennessy, Oklahoma, should be immediately sent on to her at her Toronto address.

Mrs. Jane Reid said today that she had no recollection of Captain Smith having any outstanding bodily identification marks such as scars, tattoo marks, moles or peculiar features. His mustache seemed to be the outstanding feature and this had been shaved off.

Discount Story

One and all of the sailors and their women folk who knew Captain Smith discount the story told by Don Smith, of Oshawa, regarding the sunken treasure near Isaac Island in Ontario.

The story may have originated in the fact that a small schooner operated by an American gentleman with whom her sons near Owego some ten or twelve years ago with all aboard lost. Croft Smith, a brother of Don Smith, is residing in this city said today that he often heard his father the late Henry Smith, a mate on board the City of Dresden speak of this cargo which he hoped some day to salvage providing he could purchase the rights from the Company to whom the lumber belonged. This is probably the foundation of Don Smith's story.

Sunken Treasure Ship

Another sidelight was thrown on the subject today by Captain Earl McQueen, who sailed around the City of Dresden. Mr. McQueen said that about one hundred years ago on the shores of Lake Ontario and this is another story vessel carrying about two hundred and fifty thousand dollars went down in Lake Ontario and this is another story supposed as to the hidden treasure.

It's a park of lies said Neil McLennan of Toronto, when he read Don Smith's alleged letter about the treasure that Henry Smith was never Captain of the City of Dresden and that he sat with him when he died and that no mention was made of the rock and bull story as told by the Oshawa man. Henry Smith makes a similar denial of the story.

MONEY FOR ROADS

Other features of the bill include provision for roads in the northern and central Manitoba mine fields and the completion of the Flin Flon and Sturgeon Landing road, work.

NAVAL OFFICERS HELD FOR TRIAL

Possessed Secret Plans of British Submarine—Fine War Record

London, March 18.—Great Britain was showing much interest today in the arrest and detention without privilege of giving bail, of a brilliant former officer, Lieut.-Commander Colin Mayers. He is charged by the Admiralty with illegally possessing official documents, among them plans of Great Britain's largest submarine. So important is the case regarded that the Director of Public Prosecutions will conduct the case for the Admiralty when Mayers, a war hero, arrives in arraigned.

Meantime, the Naval Intelligence department will go through a quantity of technical correspondence which has a bearing on charges against Mayers, who voluntarily retired from the Navy last January and since has been employed by the submarine department of Vickers, Limited, builders of war craft and ordinance.

Secrecy Maintained

There is complete secrecy respecting details of the charge against Mayers, which prosecutors yesterday declined as a case of considerable gravity. The magistrate is declining responsibility of granting bail said that his refusal was due to the very serious nature of the case. He added that the prisoner might make application for release to a higher court if he so desired.

Brilliant War Record

It is believed that the Admiralty fear ful lest the disclosure of the secret regarding it's latest submarine X-1, led to the arrest of Mayers.

He was charged with having possession of plans of X-1 and O-1. The X-1 was launched in June, 1925, and when completed will have cost five million dollars. She is 350 feet long and has four large guns in armored turrets. The cabins of these guns and number of torpedo tubes and other details of the craft have been kept a close secret by the Admiralty. Mayers, who was born in British Guiana 38 years old. He entered the Navy in 1907 and served on various ships. Since 1922 he commanded successively three submarines. He had a brilliant war career in the submersible division of the Navy.

SEIZED $41,650 OF GOOD LIQUOR DURING THE YEAR

Provincial Police Force Chief Makes His Annual Report

72 MOTOR CARS

Several Automobiles Taken Were Later Released By Court Order

Toronto, March 18.—Great difficulty is still experienced in enforcing the Ontario Temperance act, Major General Victor A. S. Williams, Commissioner of Provincial police, stated in his report on the operations of his department for 1926 which he presented to the Ontario legislature today. He voiced the opinion that in view of the crowded condition of the highways of the province the minimum penalty of seven days imprisonment for persons convicted of driving automobiles while under the influence of liquor was not adequate.

The department seized and had confiscated by the courts during the year 835 631 worth of liquor while 72 automobiles were also confiscated but a number were afterwards released to their owners by order of the Supreme Court. Dealing with the illicit traffic General Williams stated that in the Western sections of the province there were large stretches of river and lake shore which had to be patrolled and guarded in an effort to prevent short circuiting of liquor from the export docks. Three planes had been added at frequent intervals, but with varying success as only a small quantity of liquor was kept on the premises.

Burned His Boat

In the eastern section of the province the report said that motor boat patrols were being operated on the St. Lawrence river with good success, until the activities were terminated by the burning of the boat and boathouse by bootleggers. So far sufficient evidence had not been obtained to successfully prosecute any one on the act.

General Williams expressed the view that in order to circumvent those engaged in the illicit traffic in liquor on the St. Lawrence river it would require a force of men altogether out of proportion to the present staff under his command. New posts were opened during the year at Kapuskasing, Red Lake, Hudson, Pine Ridge, Cochrane and Ansonville. The conduct and discipline of the force with few exceptions had been excellent.

TULIP RESTORES LONG LOST RING

First Sprout of the Spring Brings Keepsake With It

A tulip popping up through the ground at Mr. Alfred Lasier's home, 18 Coleman Street, brought with it a buried treasure in the form of a gold ring, set with a topaz, lost ten years ago by Miss Gertrude Lasier.

When her father, a short time ago, went into the back yard to spade in the bed where tulip bulbs were growing on, he saw two or three shoots showing out of the ground.

Miss Lasier was dumbfounded to find the little tulip sprouts growing through the ring.

Mother's Ring

"It was my mother's engagement ring," Miss Lasier told the Intelligencer today "and I had given it up for much."

The curious part of the story is that I thought I had lost it at school. The ring was a tight fit and I guess I was probably slipped off without me noticing it." The ring, of course, was badly tarnished.

Miss Lasier said that she intended to wear the ring again, and that she would take better care of it this time.

Mr. Lasier is a devoted horticulturist, and is proud of his fine tulip beds. The second has been planted over and over again, and it is a wonder that the ring ever turned up, especially after being lost for ten years.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

TODAYS THOUGHT

They who delight to be flattered, pay for their folly by a late repentance.

PHAEDRUS.

THOUGHTLESS

The Spring of the year always adds a few grey hairs to the head of the man who lives in a vortex house. Particularly so if he prides himself in his home surroundings. With the frost coming out of the ground it does not take many pairs of feet to make a pathway that might remain in sprawl during the whole summer. Corner dutters can perform a kindly act every day by just walking a few steps further. Let's show our neighborliness and good citizenship this year by sticking to the side walks. We've got to pay for them anyway.

AGNES AGAIN

"Canada's only woman member of Parliament" has a fine, broad way of settling the most complex problems. The reason, she says, should dispose of the Chinese question by getting out of China "as quickly and as gracefully as they can." It is nothing to Miss MacPhail that this would involve the sacrifice of property worth billions of dollars—the investment of Britain in Shanghai alone was estimated recently at $1,000,000,000. She quotes with high approval a statement by one Earl Lautenslager, the "boy premier of Ontario," that he hoped in the event of another war Canada boys would be "brave enough to be cowards." This, says Miss MacPhail, is a statement which should "ring through the years," and presumably the note would ring a little more clearly if the British and all other foreigners should permit themselves to be run out of China by the War Lords.

Miss MacPhail's plan is so beautifully simple that it might be adapted to many of the difficulties which vex statements. If there is a customs scandal, get rid of it by abolishing the customs as that no more men will be tempted! Should an officer be murdered by an Eskimo, meet the situation by withdrawing all Mounted Police from the North! Let the British navy be sunk and the British army disarmed and disbanded that other nations shall not be led astray! If Chicago wants the water of the Great Lakes, and Washington wants our woodpulp supply, and somebody else wants our waterpower—we should keep out of a great deal of trouble if, in the phrase Miss MacPhail finds so admirable, we were only "brave enough to be cowards."

A "CON" GAME

It is reported that the Montreal, Ottawa & Georgian Bay Canal company intends to demand compensation for its outlay in the event of parliament refusing to renew its charter, and thus the amount of compensation it will demand is $2,000,000.

A bill of expenses from the company would be an interesting document. It would not reveal any expenditure on the the projected canal, for no man can point to any visible obstruction work that has been done. There may have been some expenditure on the writing of memorials, correspondence and other office work. More, much more, has probably been spent on lobbying. But it is doubtful if the company has spent two million dollars. However, it may be that a valuation has been placed upon the disappointment which will be experienced if parliament fails to be kind.

Even the existence of disappointment might well be doubted. It is a question if the promoters of this scheme have had the least expectation that parliament would be so foolish, short-sighted and unpatriotic as to hand over to them the right to control the water powers of two great rivers and utilize them for their own profit. Possibly it was with a view to laying foundations for the demand for large compensation that the application was made for the fourteenth renewal of the old charter.

MISTAKES

Fear of making mistakes has made failures of as many men as mistakes have made successes. Failures are awed into retrogression by the same possibilities of mistakes challenged by the successes among men.

A popular adage is "The man who never made a mistake never made a dollar," but a truer statement of fact might be "The man who never made a mistake has not yet lived."

Conceding that all men make mistakes, it is manifest that only the same mistake repeated is unpardonable and the habit, not the individual mistake, is costly. Somebody pays everytime somebody blunders and the only way to correct the habit of blundering is to form the habit of doing things right. Form the habit of being careful and take pains today that you may spare yourself incalculable pain tomorrow. Many are blundering on to success by making the most of their blunders.

The haunting regret in every mistake is the thought that it could have been averted by a little thought. The industrial find actions easier than thought and much of humanity is indolent.

Thinking can be made a habit just as most bodily movements are from force of habit. Cultivate the habit of thinking before acting and that bugaboo, the mistake-habit, will deserve for itself substitute forgone.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

Every man has moments of depression when he feels that even his mother-in-law's impression of himself is justified.—Ottawa Journal.

"An approaching social event which has excited much interest is the return of Mr. John Gilmour to Toronto after an absence of some years. There are many enquiries as to the exact date."—Toronto Star.

"Six hundred Norsemen are coming to Canada this month to settle here. Two hundred and fifty Danes will come in a little later. The early exhaustion of the United States' quota for both countries has diverted these immigrants to Canada. America's loss is our gain. There are no Europeans who make better citizens in a foreign land than the hardy folk of the Scandinavian peninsula and the Danes are fully as adaptable. All these people, it should be borne in mind, will settle on the land. They are farmers by instinct. They are more suited to the Canadian climate than immigrants from Southern Europe.—Montreal Star.

"Have you taken the medicine exactly as I instructed?" the doctor inquired.

"Weel, Doctor," replied the patient, "I may be a wee bit behind wi' the pills but I'm six weeks ahead wi' the whiskey.

ST. PATRICK WAS ROYALLY FETED

Irish Saint's Day the Occasion For Many Pleasant Even's

St. Patricks Day's bright smiling sun brought the world and his wife out yesterday to attend the various entertainments given in commemoration of the Patron Saint of Irelands birthday and Belleville excelled in the splendidly planned and presented affairs beginning in the afternoon with tea the entertainments were kept up until the late hours when midnight signalled the first of the lapse from Lenten fasting.

St. Andrews Church honored the good Saint royally in a supper which like everything else the Ladies Aid of the Church undertake, was a real success. The ladies had worked tirelessly in preparing the banquet hall, finishing the walls and windows in emblems of Ireland, arranging the tables with bowls of shamrock and spring flowers and the rooms presented a really love'y appearance. Each table was tended by several of the members of the Ladies Aid all clothed in smart white costumes with bouquets of shamrock. Somewhere about five hundred persons, one of the largest gatherings yet, thoroughly enjoyed the cold meats, hot potatoes salads pies and coffee provided and all were warm in their congratulations to the convenors of the supper, Mrs. Gilkin and Mrs. Gowen Reid. During the evening Mr. Wheatley gave a most enjoyable organ recital which added great ly to the evenings success.

The Comrade Club

Mrs. Stanley Fisher, one of the city' charming young hostesses threw her home open to the Comrade Club for a St. Patrick's tea and the affair was a complete social and financial success. Mrs. Fisher was assisted in receiving by Mrs. George Gulliver and Mrs. Melville Clarke took the guests to the tea room where Mrs. H. Moonen presided at the prettily finished tea table.

The assistants in the tea room were Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. E. Jones, Mr. Saunders, Miss Marjorie Gulliver and Miss Henriette Fenn. During the afternoon color by Miss Beverley Mc-Gee were heartily appreciated. Mrs. Cec. Lent took charge of the afternoons finance.

High School

Fifth Form of the High School celebrated at the home of Mr. Tom Mac-Donald, North Park Street. Music by Jazz Dr Dumark was heartily appreciated by all present and a happy evening spent by all the young people.

Utopia Dance

Two busloads of young people left Belleville last night to attend the Utopia Club dance held in the Trent Theatre Trenton. A huge crowd attended the affair and the ball was most appropriately strung with decorations suitable to the patron Saint of Ireland's day.

The Bon Ton orchestra furnishes peppy music for the merrymakers, playing until the small hours of the morning.

Prize Winners

Those lucky ones who capture prizes at the "hop" include Misses Eunice Edgecombe, Irene Hickey, Lilian Rushworth and Mr. Eddie Rickman.

The committee that was responsible for the success of the affair was composed of Mr. Jack Cain, President; Mr. J. McDonald, Vice President; Mr. Pratt, Secretary and Mr. March, treasurer.

SNOWBOUND OUT IN WEST PROV.

Winnipeg, March 18.—Central Alberta and Saskatchewan were completely snow-bound today, following one of the worst March blizzards experienced within twenty-five years in these two provinces. Roads everywhere are blocked by huge drifts from three to ten feet high, and many farms and small towns are isolated.

The storm, which swept down upon the prairies from the Arctic on Monday, brought snowfall which reached eighteen inches at many points, and it was still snowing heavily throughout the storm zone this morning.

Reports that Marelin and Roy Bridgeton, 13-year-old twins, of the Calgary district, had been lost during the height of the blizzard could not be confirmed today. The farmhouse from where the boys are said to have wandered is many miles from any settlement, and roads in this particular district are impassable.

One woman was seriously injured in Saskatoon last night, when a window, blown from the front of a store, crashed upon her as she walked by. The wind at times reached a velocity of fifty miles an hour.

Street car traffic in most of the larger cities was at a standstill today while railway and telephone service was interrupted. It is feared that the storm may have taken a heavy toll of range herds, which were caught in the blizzard.

Manitoba so far has escaped the blasts of the March lion and, although the temperature dropped appreciably during the night, the skies remain clear with immediate prospects brighter for a dust storm than a blizzard. Reports of heavy rainfalls have been received from a number of provincial points.

30 YEARS AGO
From The Intelligencer Files

The St. Patrick's night concert held in the Power Opera House last evening attracted an audience which filled the house to the doors. The entertainment which was in aid of St. Michael's Church was one of the most successful of the season.

Skipping ropes and marbles are in order for the youngsters at present.

The J. W. A. Guild met in St. Thomas' Church Hall last night and appointed new officers for the ensuing year. The sales of goods for the Indians of the Northwest are to be shipped this week.

DEATH WILL FIND ME

Oh! Death will find me, long before I live
Of watching you; and swing me and steely
Into the shade and loneliness and ruin
Of the last land! There waiting patiently.
One day, I think, I'll feel a cool wind blowing,
See a slow light across the Stygian tide,
And hear the Dead about me stir, unknowing.
And trouble. And I shall know that you have died.
And watch you, a bent-kneed and smiling dream,
Push light as ever through the lisping last leaf,
Quietly ponder, start, and sway, and gleam—
Most individual and bewildering ghost!—
And turn, and toss your brown delight to feed
Amorally, among the ancient Dead.

IN MEMORIUM

CROSS—In memory of James Cross who died March 18, 1926.

One precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is still.
The place made vacant in our home
Can never more be filled.
Our Father in his wisdom called
The boon His love had given;
And though on earth the body lies
The soul is safe in Heaven.

Can it be he's gone forever
Or is it but a misty dream
'Tis too true he's crossed the river
Would that we could cross the stream.
Talk to me of earthly pleasures
Talk to me of gold or lives
We have lost our earthly treasures
Till we meet with him above.
Sadly missed by sister and brothers.

BELLEVILLE GOLF CLUB HOSTS AT BRILLIANT BALL

St. Patrick's Day Dance Proves One of Season's Enjoyable Affairs

The St. Patrick's Dance held at Johnston's Academy, under auspices of the Belleville Golf Club, last evening will go down in history as one of the most successful events ever undertaken by that organization. It numbered among the brilliant affairs of this present social season and from the time the opening strains of Clarke Dickens' orchestra reverberated throughout the tastefully decorated hall the affair held not a dull moment. Members of the Belleville Golf Club certainly excelled themselves in their entertainers of the 200 guests. The presence of Belleville's society lead ers and members of the younger set combined to make it a most delightful crowd.

The beautiful gowns of the ladies added wonderfully with the dancing, lighting effect supplied by the multi-colored lanterns in the balcony. Directly over the platform occupied by the orchestra was a large sign "The Belleville Golf Club Welcomes You" and immediately every guest felt at home and at once joined heartily in the merriment. Large green streamers hung from the centre of the spacious room and on these were hung spaces on which various game records to golfers were pointed.

The guest of honor was Mr. Patrick Ireland-Patron Saint, who presided at the whole affair and his decorations and color effect lent the added touch to a perfect party celebrating the anniversary of this famous Irishman. Novelties in the form of miniature dolls, balloons and other favors were passed among the crowd by the committee in charge and these created the usual jollity that takes place at an event of this kind.

Clarke Dickens and his eight piece orchestra furnished delightful music and Mr. Johnstone assisted in every possible way to bring the dance to a happy ending. At midnight a dainty luncheon was served and the sandwiches piled high on the trays were garnished with sprigs of Shamrock synonymous of the 17th of March.

SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

Cobourg, March 18.—Miss Mary Flanigan, an elderly Hamilton Township lady, died here as the result of a fall on the ice a fortnight ago, whereby she fractured her hip.

ACONDA MINES, LIMITED—This Company recently set aside the sum of $35,000 in connection with having an electrical survey made of their entire 3,000 acres in Bobcaygeon Township. A contract has been signed with the Swedish Electrical Prospecting Corporation and already crews of Professor Lundberg's men are on the ground. Camps have been erected and will be enlarged shortly to accommodate a large force of men to be used in the development of the Armstrong Group which was recently acquired by the Co. and which adjoins the original group. Aconda was well over $100,000 cash on hand and is managed by the well known engineering firm of Rideroon & MacKay and Mr. G. R. MacLaren who was formerly superintendent of Arrowhead Cons.

TOWAGANAC EXP. CO.—The present all underground work has been discontinued to allow for the quick installation of machinery, erection of new camps, and an effectively driven plant. As soon as this work has been completed, a larger crew of men will be put on and shaft sinking, along with general development work, carried out. We believe that Towaganac is one of the best speculations in the Quebec district.

MINING GOSSIP

An unprecedented situation exists in the North today. Spring is at least six weeks ahead of time and transportation is almost at a stand-still. How long the railroad into Hoyya will hold out is doubtful, while the snow roads leading from it to properties all through the district are in atrocious condition. The same thing applies to transportation on the Ontario side, and even as far west as Red Lake, where the lakes are breaking up and a lot of material is held up.

Expectations of the Tough Oakes-Burnside Mines to be able to treat 200 tons of ore daily have been interfered with by the sinking of the new main shaft from 1,250 to 1,600 feet. When this work is done a raise will also come up to 1,000 feet. This sub-shaft has been planned for a depth of 2,250 feet. Five necessitates taking ore from many sources in the mine, and recovery is running around $20,000 per month. As in the past, the future of the property depends almost entirely on results obtained west of the Alshaw dyke, and the sooner an agreement can open this area up, the quicker the possibilities of Tough Oakes-Burnside will be known.

WHEAT PRICES OFF

Chicago, March 18.—Fresh downturns carried wheat today to the lowest prices this season. Selling was due largely to continued favorable crop advices especially messages from the southwest telling of prospects nearly perfect with about ten percent increase of acreage. Opening exchanges 1 to 2c off, wheat underwent material decline all around. Corn, oats and provisions were also weaker, corn starting unchanged to 2.8 cent off and subsequently showing a decided general drop.

SOLD JAIL FOR $35 ALL COMPLETE

Londonderry, N.S., March 18.—Some months ago the Municipal Council decided that the local jail, which had not housed a prisoner for many years, was an expensive luxury. It was decided to sell it to the highest bidder. Victor J. Holland, local cobbler, offered $35, and yesterday found himself in possession of the building competition being negligible. The jail was built in 1862, and is complete with iron bars and straw mattresses.

REVIVALS STILL ON AT HOLLOWAY

The Crossley & Leonard Evangelistic service last night was the most pronounced the best yet. The theme of the song sermon was, "From Guilt to Glory". Four beautiful duets were sung by the evangelists in the address. Dr. Crossley said there are two classes of persons in Belleville, those headed towards glory and others towards doom. A person starts for glory by being saved from the guilt, power and love of sin. Sin may be there but it is kept away by the prayer life. Everybody ought to pray as God is our loving father. This world might soon be evangelized if Christ if every Christian would seek to win another each succeeding year.

On the way to heaven the Christian should rejoice in a "sure and steadfast hope" more confidently than most of us do. Many speak of death as the "dark valley", or "Jordan's waves and death's cold flood". There is no such thing spoken of in the Bible as a dark Christian dying. Christians die well, and a royal welcome awaits them on the other shore. It is a wonder that every person is not a Christian.

The meetings are now on the home stretch as they will close on March 28th with Dr. Crossley's much talked of lecture on "Nature's Secret of Health and Long Life."

"Mind Your Own Business" is Dr. Crossley's subject to-night.

RECORD HARBOR OPENING

Owen Sound, Ont., March 18.—A new record for the early opening of navigation in Owen Sound harbor will be established tomorrow, if the south wind now blowing continues. The ice in Owen Sound Bay is rapidly blowing out into Georgian Bay and the local harbor should be ready for business on Friday, if any is offered. This means that navigation here will open fully a month ahead of last year.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

"Yes, you should be," he answered. "Too dad, though, I've ordered a specially nice supper. However—tomorrow night, eh?"

"No. I shall rest for several days."

"The night after, then? I'm leaving Saturday, so it's the last opportunity I'll have to see you until I return in the autumn."

"No, not the night after, either," she told him, a trifle wearily. "Not ever. Can't you understand?"

There was a silence. Then: "And how about your play?"

"You were right. The play was no good—and I was a fool—almost."

Without waiting for his reply, she hung up the receiver.

THE FATEFUL MEETING

On the very day before the accident case was to be tried, Christine was needed in landing a job with a publishing house.

It was particularly distressing to be forced to ask for a day off immediately, even though it was for such a legitimate and unavoidable reason. Christine was fully aware of the bad impression it created upon her chief—a wrinkled, dour man, who was said to be a fiend for efficiency and discipline.

She felt somehow that he was regarding her speculatively, and thinking that the accident was the outcome of a joy-ride, so she explained the details at some length.

But she went away in court with the uncanny feeling that her job had been seriously jeopardized, and that it would behoove her to be very discreet and very efficient in the future to eradicate the first doubtful impression.

In court, Christine was told that actions for damages had been brought by the injured persons, visitors to New York from the Middle West. One was the husband, of the woman who had screamed so loudly. They had been riding in a rented limousine, while Christine's car was owned and operated by a reputable company. It was possible that several damage suits might arise from the accident.

Christine was horribly nervous. The court scene was a new and bewildering one to her. Nobody seemed able to tell her what to do, or where to go. She received endless false directions, waited an interminable time, became wearier and wearier.

Finally the figures in the drama sifted themselves out, and she was able to identify her own taxi chauffeur. Later, someone pointed out the two men and the woman who were occupants of the other car. The woman was well-dressed and loaded with jewelry. She looked disagreeable, but lately, when she struck up a conversation with Christine, she proved very friendly and talkative.

Christine could feel her pitying glance at her own cheap little frock, but such things had ceased to hurt her. She had steeled herself to expect and accept them. With outward meekness and an inner gratitude—while she fought down the bitterness in her heart—she accepted the other woman's friendly overtures. She even ate one or two of the expensive bonbons that were forced upon her by her new acquaintance.

But try as she would, Christine found her attention wandering. It was with something of a contrite start that she heard her saying:

"Have you met Mr. Vane? He's the lawyer for the limousine company, and I may have reason later to dislike him intensely. If we sue them and lose, but, just at present, I think he's the most stunning young man I've ever laid eyes on. If I were ten years younger and not married to the rarest old soul in the world, I'd fall violently in love with Mr. Vane."

Christine followed the direction of the woman's gaze and suddenly found herself looking squarely into the eyes of a young man who sat at a table halfway across the courtroom.

His eyes were gray and very steady, very earnest, with little lines of humor and kindliness at their corners. The brows were straight and dark, and dark, heavy hair topped a splendid forehead.

"Don't you think he's handsome?" demanded her neighbor.

Christine was slow in answering. For some unaccountable reason, her own gaze had fallen before the young man's and yet there was no affront in his look; rather, a sincere admiration, a glance that beckoned an arresting discovery—like that of one who sees suddenly, in a crowded street, in some strange country, a familiar, beloved face.

"I think he's more than handsome," said Christine. "He looks—nice."

She liked his pleasant, humorous mouth and his square chin. A little later, when she lifted her eyes again and saw him standing, she noticed that he was tall and straight and bore himself with poise and surety.

Then her turn came to give her version of the accident, she was conscious of his gaze upon her. He appeared to leave her, as if by magic. She was quite calm, a poised little figure, frail and girlish, in her neat black suit and tailored hat, the floor, almost swallowed up in the depths of the big chair.

She had told the truth—the accident had happened so quickly, and she really had seen nothing but the big car bearing down on her cab. But she told her brief story well and with full effect, even under the fire of questions which were intended to bewilder her. All through it, she felt the kindly, humorous eyes of Vane upon her. They seemed to lend her a measure of sympathy in her ordeal ordeal.

For some reason, she felt no surprise when, as she was leaving the court in company with the woman who had been in the other car, she found herself confronting Vane in the corridor. Somehow, she knew he would be there, not because this was a cheap, vulgar flirtation, but because there was some curious bond drawing them together; something that stirred her strangely.

He bowed to her companion, said a pleasant word or two, and the woman presented him to Christine.

That was the beginning.

HUSBANDS WHO FLIRT AND IGNORE WIVES

By ELSIE MARLOWE

Remember that old song—"You Gotta Stop Kicking My Dog Around"?

Here's one who can sympathize with that dog:

DEAR ELSIE:

What would you do if you were in my place? First of all, let me tell you that my unhappiness is not caused by jealously on my part.

Here are the facts. My husband is forty-three. I am thirty-six. I work all day and contribute my share to the cost of living. At Christmas time he didn't even give me a card. Said he had no time to get anything and that money was scarce. I noticed though, that he sent cards and candy to his friends. But this isn't the things that hurts most.

Of course, Elsie, I'm not handsome, but I am considered good-looking. I am neat in my dress and have a nice personality. But this is what happens when I go out with my husband. When he meets a friend, he doesn't let it be known that he is a married man. He poses as a bachelor. If we are in a restaurant, he flirts with the waitresses or with some other woman diner. He makes me feel like thirty cents. I feel so embarrassed!

You would think that a man of forty-three would be more sedate. Believe me. When a waitress comes to take our order, instead of giving me his attention, he and the waitress bend their heads over the menu and discuss our dinner together. I can what the waitress looks. Some day I'm going to get up and walk out. Really, by the time the dinner comes after I've gone through all this, I do not eat, for I have lost my appetite. I would sooner eat alone and be in peace.

Please don't say it's jealously. Please don't tell me to stay home and cook. We have so many expenses to meet as it is, we can't afford this. I know that I have the right to be enjoying a good husband, but I do not think staying at home would make him any different.

I suppose the real trouble is that I am too gold. I don't smoke or drink, but I like to see everybody happy. This embarrassment makes me feel so little and unhappy. The one whom he flirts with gives me a sneer if I happen to look at them. Once in a while some girl will give me an understanding look, as much as to say, "I know." It makes me feel cheap. Don't you think a man—no matter whom he is with—should show a little courtesy to a woman, even if that woman is only his wife?

EMBARRASSED.

So he treats you like thirty cents? Do you want to know who's to blame? YOU, YOURELF, ARE TO BLAME, MY DEAR. Yes, I know how it hurts, and I do sympathize. And I'm not trying to excuse him or make light of his behavior. But I say that TO YOURSELF ARE TO BLAME IF YOU ALLOW YOURSELF TO BE CONTINUALLY INSULTED.

"But what can I do?" you cry. "I've nodded and smiled my eyes out and threatened to walk out of the restaurant and it doesn't do a bit of good."

Of course it doesn't. What that fellow needs is ACTION. Dry your eyes and proceed pronto to execute a few of those treats. WALK OUT OF THE RESTAURANT. Leave him standing on the street. When he comes after you and rage—"What's the matter with this man?" tell him quietly that you're going to continue to act that way until he learns to act like a gentleman. Inform him that if he cant respect you, you can at least, respect yourself. You are already supporting yourself and also giving him all the comforts of home.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Gull gray skirts and pale diadem lavender sweaters are being shown in a smart New York shop that specializes in sport goods, for this combination of gray and violet is very chic, as fashionable women on the Riviera and at St. Moritz are combining gray with wood violet, a soft purple shade.

A black velvet cutaway worn with a skirt of leaf-green kasuir serge and a white crepe de Chine tunic embroidered with silver thread effectively demonstrates the new tri-color vogue, and a hat of supple green felt and a white fox fur complete the pleasing ensemble.

Queen Mary is responsible to a very great extent for the revived interest in buttons, which is causing considerable satisfaction at the moment to some jewellers, for besides possessing some good specimens of rubies, the Queen has a keen admiration for the rich red lights of the stone.

Paris reports that flowers have regained their former popularity and are certain to be an important part of the spring and summer costumes, for, though flowers had been somewhat overdone in past seasons, the new ones are sure to restore their popularity, and Paris designers are placing them at the shoulder and at the hip and also using them for the corsage and as boutonnieres on evening wraps and the materials used are mainly chiffon and lace in combination with other materials.

SINCLAIR'S

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl of eighteen. I have been going with a young man of twenty-four for about six months.

He is the nicest fellow to be possibly can and I care a great deal for him. But I am worried because he drinks too much.

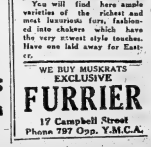

JUST T.

JUST T.: Your apprehensions are well founded. Any relationship with a young man such as you describe must necessarily be fraught with pain. I would advise you to forget him. The reformation of any man is a thankless job.

THE CHEAPEST DRINK IN THE WORLD

With the exception of water, tea is the cheapest and most widely consumed drink in the world. As a drink it is good when made from good tea, but a terrible disappointment if cheap tea is used.

have discarded old hygienic methods for this new way—true protection—discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND.

WHEN the world staged one of its most amazing fads, the bobbed-hair "sanitary pad" had to go.

Doctors urge a new way. Millions employ it. You wear sheerest frocks without a second thought, any time, anywhere. You meet every day unhandicapped.

"It is called "KOTEX" . . . two times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad!

Thoroughly deodorizes . . . then ending all fear of offending. Discards as easily as tissue. No laundry, no embarrassment.

You ask for it without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX," at any drug or department store. Proves old ways an unnecessary yoke. Be sure to get the genuine. Only Kotex is "like" Kotex.

WONDERFUL PLAY BY ST. MICHAEL'S YOUNG PEOPLE

Talented Amateurs Give Light Breezy Evening's Entertainment

LOCAL HITS

To Be Repeated Next Monday Evening By Popular Request

Two capacity houses answered the invitation to "Let's Go," the charming musical revue given yesterday afternoon and evening in St. Michael's Academy and the production given under the auspices of the Children of Mary, was one, which will long be remembered as a play presented in so nearly perfect a manner as is possible for talented amateurs to accomplish.

The girls were bright, breezy, full of pep, the boys caught the spirit of the revue and the lines were catchy and full of life, added to which, Mr. Desire J. Bourque had brought with him some most effective and clever scenery.

The play opened with the prologue, "Smile All the While" by Mr. Bourque and he didn't have to deliver the admonition twice for, from the time the curtain rolled up on the first scene, "While the Years Go Drifting By," the audience didn't get a chance to stop smiling. Between each of the clever delightful scenes, Huck and Erastus (George Mathew and J. Mullin, Jr.) kept up a continual flow of clever jokes, repartee and "wise cracks." They made one of the big hits of the evening and, had they yielded to the applause after each appearance, the play would probably still be in action.

The Play

In the first scene, "While the Years Go Drifting By," Mr. P. E. O'Donnell brought the new house in his solo part and Mr. James Lafferty and Margaret Cummins rounded out the solo as a charming bride and groom. Erastus and Huckleberry Finn then took the stage and kept the audience in roars when they appeared in "Some Farm," in "Indian Love Songs" the audience saw one of the prettiest and most delightfully presented scenes ever shown locally and Miss Dorothy Grant as "Indian Love Call," Miss Gladys Oster as "Similkish" and Desire Bourque as "Pale Moon" each delighted the audience with their lovely voices and splendid acting. School Days, which followed, was in the vernacular of school boys, "a knockout." John O'Gorman as the teacher, Huck Finn, Erastus Jack Belair as Willie, Margaret Cummins as Mary, Margaret Fitzgerald as and followed her, Anna Lafferty and Jackie and Max Mathew as a visitor, George Mahew presented "A Sons vividly and thoroughly humorously Boarder" splendidly and Miss Gladys Bryce won the hearts of everyone in her splendid Irish songs.

Desire J. Bourque, James Lafferty and Marjorie Calnan closed the program with a peppy scene, "A Stubborn, Bachelor and did some splendid acting. The finale by the entire cast brought to a close one of the brightest productions presented in the city in years. Much of the success of the affair is attributed to Mrs. Charles Meagher, the pianist, whose clever support was thoroughly appreciated.

The Choruses

The pretty girls and clever boys in the choruses were:

THE GREAT HEALER

SMART KILKENNY KHORISTERS GAVE IRISH EVENING

Among the many fine entertainments provided in the city last night in honour of St. Patrick's Day, that presented by the Kilkenny Khoristers' choir was really delightful. The Sunday school and adjoining class rooms on Bridge street were packed to the doors and evidenced the pride taken in supporting the musical endeavours so creditable to his church augmented for the occasion.

Mr. W. B. Deacon sang a pretty vest in keeping with an Irish Squire acted as chairman and in a happy strain made various remarks and comments throughout the program.

The ladies on the platform were costumed in green while the men supplemented themselves conspicuously by large bow o'Hay (Harold Howard).

DEATHS NOW THREE

Buffalo, March 18—The death toll of the explosion on Wednesday at the plant of the Automatic Trass portation Company, today increased to three. One of the employes who was seriously burned, died during the night. Another died early Wednesday night, a few hours after the explosion. Three other men, who were seriously burned, are not expected to live. Six men were working in directing the division of the blacksmith shop when flames burst from accumulation of dust near the air compressors. Their clothing caught fire at once and they ran screaming from the building, while other workmen tried to extinguish the flames.

for attention that of Kenneth Munnings as boy soprano reveals a promising field for the future. Miss Greta Madden in an encore responded with a suitable rendering of a romantic nature.

LOCAL BASKET BALL TEAM MEET ELIZABETHS SAT.

Toronto Champions Reputed to be An Exceptionally Fast Quintette

The Bellevue intermediate Basketball team will leave for Toronto early tomorrow morning where they will meet Elizabeths in the first of home and home games. The tilt will take place at Central "Y" Court.

The locals under the direction of Ralph Mordon have been greeting faithfully during the past week following their victories over R. M. C.

The black and white cagers are looking "Army" Armstrong who plays the point position. "Army" has been identified with local court teams for some years and is being counted upon to do much of the scoring.

"Vern" Weir his running mate is also one of the main cogs in the "Y" attack. Weir is a hard worker and goes the full sixty minutes. He should cause plenty of worry in the Lizzie's camp.

Johnny Kerr who obtained his experience in the Church League, has developed into a smart basket ball man. The boy completes the attacking division and is especially effective directly under the basket.

"Ed" Buchahan and "Jimmy" Alexander compose the defence and this pair complete the regular quintette.

"Bob" Miles substitutes on the defence, Sam Curry at centre and "Mac" Morrison at the forward position. These boys are all capable of replacing the Elizabeths right at home. They were eliminated by West End last year but are out to turn the tables on the Queen City Champs this year.

Farley Faulkner and his Juvenile team will stack up against the Elizabeth boys from Toronto in a return game on the local "Y" court tomorrow night. Belleville were beaten 32-7 last week but maintain that they were unused to the small basket ball area. The boys are capable of playing a fine brilliant game.

Toronto, Mar. 18.—Elizabeth intermediates will meet Belleville at Central Y.M.C.A. on Saturday night in the first of their O.A.B.A. play-off games. The "Lizzies" are playground and city intermediate champions and are representing the T. & D.A.B.A. in the Ontario basketball play-offs. The Belleville quintette are champions of the eastern section of the province. There should be a big crowd out as it is sure to be an exciting and interesting contest.

Elizabeths have yet to lose a game this year and they are determined, naturally, to keep their record perfect. The team is composed for the most part of players from the T.H.A.A. intermediates who put up such stirring battle against Central "Y" last year. Their performance this year has been very impressive. They romped through the Playground League with ease and then disposed of the strong Simpson Avenue and Broadview "Y" fives to win the city championship.

HARDEST OPPOSITION

They met their hardest opposition in Simpson Avenue, who represented the Toronto Church Basketball Association.

In the first game the church boys apparently had them well beaten at the end of the first period, but the "Lizzies" came back strong in the last part of the contest and won by a small margin In the second set-to they lost their lead for a time but again came through with enough punch to win the game and the round. The third series with Broadview was won much more easily.

The "Lizzies" are coached by Bob

SportOgramS By "The Observer"

The Canadian Professional league was looked upon as more or less of an experiment when it was organized last year, but the success of the first season's operations shows that it has passed the experimental stage.

The magnates made mistakes during the season which will be rectified before they swing into action again, the experience gained in the first season of operation giving the magnates, the majority of whom know little of professional hockey the needed experience.

The league will no doubt expand before next winter and will likely be an eight-club organization if Stratford and Niagara Falls decide to remain as members. Detroit will apply for a franchise, and there is a chance of Buffalo having an application before another season sports.

But no matter how large the circuit may be, an effort should be made to round up a staff of competent referees for some of the officials failed to give satisfaction this season and sent the fans home dissatisfied, a very unhealthy state of affairs.

The league will not likely again countenance the shifting of players from N. H. L. clubs to the Canadian league, who has established an enviable reputation by winning, already, three city basketball championships. They have on their line-up a fine collection of Toronto's most versatile athletes. Sammy Gold is, perhaps, the best known. He is considered by many to be one of the best basketballers in town, and is also a star at second base in baseball.

TEAM'S STARS

Freemand Sniderman also star on the diamond. The latter is a brother of the famous "Soup" Sniderman, who performs for Varsity Intercollegiates. Billy West is another well known athlete. He is a baseball and hockey player in spare time. Gold, Collins, Williams and Benjamin make up the rest of this well-balanced and colorful aggregation.

Little is known of the Belleville team but they always send up a strong intermediate outfit, and this year's edition will uphold the reputation of the eastern town. Their most notable performance was in downing the senior Royal Military College team from Kingston.

The game will start sharp at 8 o'clock and will be preceded by a good preliminary fixture.

THE GREYS WIN EASTERN TITLE

Owen Sounders Put Montreal Out of Running By 5 to 1

Toronto, March 18.—Owen Sound Juniors earned the right to enter the national junior championship hockey finals by defeating the M. A.A.A. team of Montreal, champions of Quebec, in a sudden-death game at the Arena Gardens last night by 5 to 1.

An unfortunate injury to Lorne Whyte, the M.A.A.A. goalkeeper, handicapped the Montreal team to some extent. Whyte was struck in the face by a terrific drive from Lauder's stick in the first period, and his nose was broken. Play was delayed fifteen minutes while he was carried to the dressing room, and Ewing, the M.A.A.A. left winger donned the pads to take his place.

Plucky Comeback

In the third period Whyte came back on the ice and gave a remarkable exhibition of gameness and goal-keeping ability. Although he was groggy and in a half-fainting condition, he insisted on playing, and the crowd applauded him time and time again for his fine work in handling difficult shots from the Owen Sound sharpshooters. When the final gong sounded he collapsed and had to be carried off. Of the two goals scored against him in this period, one was a fluke and the other was impossible to stop.

LEAFS SIGNED B. RAMSAY

Toronto, March 18.—Another member of the Canadian Olympic team of 1924, which won the world's amateur hockey championship at Chamonix, France, today signed a contract to play with the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club in the National Hockey League. Beattie Ramsay, coach of hockey at Princeton University for the past two years, is the latest addition to the Maple Leaf roster.

Ramsay was one of the finest amateur defence players to be developed in this city and was much sought after by professional clubs on his return from the 1924 Olympiad.

MONTREAL GETS INTO PLAY-OFFS

Montreal, March 18.—Montreal clinched third place and a playoff berth in the international section of the National Hockey League when they beat a crippled New York American team here last night by 5 to 1. The defeat ended any chance the Americans had of qualifying. It was a rugged game in which the second-string players were the only ones to show real hockey.

Can Reasonably Be Expected
—says Saturday Night

IN its Gold & Dross columns, Saturday Night gives investment advice which is manifestly unbiased and conservative. Every opinion expressed is made on the basis of cold analytical study, and is therefore authoritative.

What Saturday Night says with reference to the attractiveness of the 7% First and Refunding Income Gold Bonds of Canadian Department Stores Limited, should therefore be helpful to all investors. The following statement appeared in a long article published in the issue of March 12:

"It is reasonable to suppose that centralized buying of merchandise from large manufacturers and consolidated operation will increase the net earnings. This will depend mainly on the experience and ability of Mr. G. H. Rennie, President and General Manager, who had with the Robert Simpson Company Ltd., a remarkably rapid rise to the position of Assistant General Manager. He is off to an excellent start in his new task in view of the fact that many of these stores are the leaders in their particular communities, and have all been established for a period averaging more than 44 years."

TRAINING CAMP GOSSIP

New York, March 18.—The following gossip was gathered at the training camps of the major league clubs:

Observers at Fano Robles, California that the Pittsburgh Pirates, world's champions in 1925, are ready for a comeback. After a season of disappointments and bitter difficulties, the Pirates seem to have regained the dash and zip which marked their 1925 efforts.

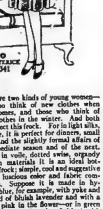

Elwood English, the Chicago Cubs' expensive new shortstop, will get his first chance to show his goods away from training camp when the major leaguers meet Los Angeles today.

George Redfern, short-top with Detroit, and regarded by Manager Moriarity as one of the best infielders turned out by the minors in years, may play with the Cleveland Leafs in the International League this season. Moriarity has another shortstop, Tavener, who, the manager claims, is the class of the American League.

George Gerken, formerly of the Three I League, may be assigned to Tris Speaker's old centrefield berth with Cleveland.

If the Cincinnati Reds decide to let go of Adolphe Lagoe, Cuban twirler, they will receive bids from both the Giants and the Braves.

Connie Mack's athletics today started a short tour of other major

Being Girlish Is Not Being Simple

There are two kinds of young women—those who think of new clothes when spring comes, and those who think of spring clothes in the winter. And both might select this frock. For in light silk, or in lace, it is perfect for dinners, small dances, and the slightly formal affairs of this immediate season and of the next. Whereas in voile, dotted swiss, organdy and such materials it is an ideal bodice-and-skirt ensemble, and one suggestive of many luscious color and fabric combinations. Suppose it is made of the orangey blue, for example, with yoke and tie-belt band of shrimp lavender and with a touch of pink in the flower—or in green and yellow, or white dotted swiss finished with bands of the same light green.

BELLE THEATRE

Buck Jones, who is starred by Fox Films in "The Flying Horseman," screen version of Max Brand's thrilling novel of the West, now at the Belle, never asks a member of his company to do a stunt that he would hesitate about tackling himself.

In making the picture Director Ormitz Dull wanted two members of the organization to leap a chasm while riding at high speed.

Buck, while confident that the horsemen could make the jump, insisted upon riding Silver Buck into the scene and measuring the distance with the greatest accuracy.

"And that," said Director Dull, "is why the men and women like to work for Buck Jones.

"Like a good military leader, he will not lead his forces where there is danger that he would be afraid to face. That is the true test."

Gladys McConnell plays the leading feminine role in "The Flying Horseman." Other members of the cast include the well known players, Hank Mann, Bruce Covington and of course Silver Buck.

REGENT THEATRE

Unlike the productions of many Western stars, each of Bob Custer's pictures appear even better than the preceding one, and his latest release, "The Border Whirlwind," which opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre, is no exception. A notable outdoor moving story, coupled with excellent comedy scenes and a well-chosen cast, afford the Custer cowboy player plenty of opportunity to display both ing with life on the Texas-Mexican The story is a thriller from start league training camps, which will be featured by a three-game series with the Giants.

The Phillies scored their first training season victory yesterday, downing the Buffalo Internationals 7 to 6. Manager Reinhart Reinis used many second-string men.

Manager Carrigan has ordered a let-up in the camp of the Boston Red Sox, for a few days. The Hub Athletes look to be in fine condition, his athletic and dramatic possibilities to great advantage.

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

ATTACKED POLICE

Port Hope, March 18.—Armed thugs bound and gagged a policeman—entered Polonsky's clothing store and stole considerable money and goods and made good their escape here early yesterday morning.

At about three o'clock this morning Night Constable William Harvey was making his rounds at the rear of the stores on the north side of Walton street along Brophin's Lane when he was rudely confronted by two desperadoes who threw a air of wicked looking revolvers into his stomach demanding that he put up his hands.

OSHAWA BOOM

Oshawa, March 18.—Fine weather and not a great deal of frost in the ground except in certain spots, depending on how the snow lay, has brought about a situation here in Oshawa when it may fairly be said that the building season has "opened". There is every evidence of air around the city moving contractors while the woodworking factory is are going night and day.

TO ERECT MEMORIAL

Neptune, March 18.—That a memorial be erected at Adolphustown during this year, the diamond jubilee of Confederation to mark that historic United Empire Loyalist settlement, was the unanimous decision of Dr. J. S. Johnson of Adolphustown at a banquet of the Neptune Chamber of Commerce held at the Parker House on Tuesday evening. Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, was the speaker of the evening and dealt mainly with agricultural subjects in his address.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"Probably I shouldn't, but you and I are alone and, don't forget, Phenie, we are playing with our cards on the table. Your fascinating Rafe is, after all, nothing but a miner, a cowboy who has been lift at pitch-forked by the irony of fate into a position to which he is absolutely unsuited. Before the honeymoon were half over Lady Maude would see only he fired to death of him, be shocked, repelled, disillusioned. Come, you know what I mean! You know that he would be as unhappy as she would be, he would be looking backward, would be as sick of Lady Maude as she would be of him, and would be ironing for the little girl he had left at the camp of Jumping Jake."

As the soft voice had proceeded Phenie, had dropped back on her seat, her hands were now gripping each other tightly; her eyes were downcast and her dark her lips trembled. It was necessary the voice was so soft, so cool, so self-assured, that she was so impressed. If it were true—and it sounded like truth—then it would be wrong, wicked of her to stand aside. A fierce jealousy of Lady Maude was gnawing at Phenie's heart. When Travers had spoken of the honeymoon, she could see Rafe and this beautiful woman together, husband and wife! A shudder had swept over Phenie, something in her had risen in revolt, something like anger. "You love him as well, better than she does. You loved him first; you have a right to him, if—if the marriage with her would make him unhappy."

"You see that I am right" said Travers, after a pause; "you see that I should make a far better husband—"

"You! God help her, or any woman, who married you! she burst forth in a low voice.

"That's unkind and unjust," he said with a laugh. "Your dislike prejudices you against me. But we'll agree to put me out of the question. I don't count—at present. So, Phenie, have we decided that Stranlyre would be far happier married to you than to Lady Maude, we have to consid r how your's marriage can be brought about. It certainly cannot be achieved by your presenting yourself to him at this particular junction of affairs—"

"I don't want to," she said, in a low voice, the color rising to her face. "I didn't mean to speak to him, let him know that I was here, in England. I only wanted to see him, to see that he was well—and happy."

"And you saw that he was anything but happy," said Travers. "My dear Phenie, there is only one thing that who could make him so, and that is yourself. You can take that from me as a simple truth. Now, let me see as I have been as candid with you as we understand each other so perfectly—"

The inclined to think that you will consider me as a friend, and will take my advice as to your future conduct. And my advice is, that for the present, you will let him, that you will not present yourself to Stranlyre, and that certainly you will not boast Be-fore Stranlyre attempt to follow him. He very nearly saw you tonight; indeed, he would have done so if I had not stepped in front of him. Of course, he would have been delighted to see you."

"Yes," she murmured. "Rafe is not the one to go back on an old friend, but I didn't want—"

"Quite so," he said shrewdly. He would have been delighted to see you would have welcomed you as an old friend, would have—what? Would have insisted upon introducing you to all his new, grand friends."

As he spoke, he glanced significantly at her poor and shabby clothes, and then he smiled at her. Her face grew crimson, she bit her lips.

"Exactly," he said, as if she had spoken. "You are a very proud girl Phenie. Do you know, I am glad of the fact moment? You would not like to stand as you are, beside that beautiful young lady, Lady Maude—"

Phenie sprang to her feet. "You ain't a man, you're a devil!" she said in one, and shaking as she did so, with pain. You know I'd rather drop in my tracks than push in and make him feel ashamed of me. I'd rather die where I stand, and never set eyes on him again."

TORNADOES TORE TOWNS TO PIECES IN SOUTH STATES

Twenty Are Known Dead and Many Scores Are Missing

DAMAGE HIGH

Rescuers Work By Lanterns Light to Dig Out the Injured

Joplin, Mo., March 19.—More than a score of persons were killed and least fifty injured, many severely, by tornadoes and high winds which swept southwestern Missouri and northwestern Arkansas last night. Sixteen were known dead, twelve were reported missing and thirty were injured in Green Forrest, Ark., by a tornado, which wrecked the business district and devastated nearby homes. Nine were reported killed at Denver, Ark., near Green Forrest. Two persons were injured and buildings were damaged by tornado at Marshfield, Mo.

The storm apparently centred near Gen o Forrest, where upwards of seven hundred houses and streets were destroyed or badly damaged. The streets were filled with debris, which hampered rescue crews. Reports indicated that forces would run heavy throughout the district. Special trains were rushed to the area today, carrying doctors, nurses and supplies. Two churches were converted into drawing stations and one later was dominated as a morgue. As the storm severed power lines as well as telephone and telegraph wires, rescuers stumbled about with lanterns, tracing the cries of the injured or moaning spots where people were believed pinned or buried by stone and timbers.

Women, some scantily clad, crying children clinging to them, roamed the streets. Men were doing their bit toward restoring bodies. Lanterns, flashed here and there through streets and under cars and ambulances, bearing injured and dead, moved to the two churches.

Widespread Damage

Nashville, Tenn., March 19.—Rainstorm and tornados accompanied by one hundred houses in Hoffzwald, Tenn., lightning killed a child in Mount Pleasant and a heavy hailstorm fell in Columbia and Wartrace and swept middle Tennessee yesterday afternoon and last night.

Little Rock, Ark., March 19.—Citizens' committee was in charge of relief work for the homeless at Beebe, thirty miles from here today as a result of the tornado which swept that section Thursday night, killing ten persons and injuring twelve.

BOARD MEETING QUITE PEACEFUL

Trustees Arrange Preliminaries For Erection of New High School

Last night's meeting of the School Board was calm and peaceful as contrasted with the hectic meetings preceding the decision of the City Council to grant the money for the New Collegiate.

Several letters of application were read from teachers who would like to have jobs here, and Mr. P. C. McLaurin wants a new incubator.

The building committee was authorized to ask for tenders for the removal of two houses on the High School property to make way for the erection of a new structure. The Boozt cottage will be moved to the southwest corner of the school property and put in shape for use as a caretakers residence. The Taylor house will be sold and demolished.

Needs More Teachers

The High School Inspector, Mr. T. M. Irving, reported that the staff of teachers was not large enough and was being overworked. No action was taken as the condition will be remedied when the new school is erected. Reports showed that there are 337 students enrolled in the High School at the present time, but that the organization was good and classes not overcrowded.

In view of the enormous amount of work which will afall on the secretary of the School Board in connection with the building of the new school it was decided to provide Mr. Desmond with an assistant. The position will be advertised and the applications received immediately.

THIS GOLD FISH SWIMS NO MORE

Sharp-eyed pedestrians along Front Street why have noticed that the gold fish that used to swim so gaily in the breeze and hung down from the sign in front of Mr. Charles Solmon's store, is missing.

On Thursday night some enterprising citizen took this unique emblem down and spirited it away to something place leaving nothing but the string attached to it swaying in the breeze.

Winning the Hat

It isn't long, then, until the first sign of smoke appearing out in the lake marks the arrival of some captain in with the harbor masters silk hat and the honor of making the first trip. Quite often the owner of the shining spy proudly has been blacking the boat fields.

Since the hard fall weather of last year, many of the fishermen declared that they would not sail again.

However, it is the fashion to make similar resolutions each year at the close of navigation and forget all about it again when the robin makes his appearance and the snow disappears. The great lakes have a lure akin to that of the Sea.

Reports today from all points indicate that the ice is rapidly breaking up and drifting out to the wide reaches of the inland seas. Painters, chippers, repairmen, engineers and all the other skilled tradesmen whose task it is to prepare the boats for the coming season are on the job and they all are agreed on one thing, "it won't be long now."

GRAVEL ROAD IN POOR CONDITION

Owing to unusual weather conditions this Spring and the rapidity with which the frost has been leaving the ground all gravel roads have been badly broken up and motorists are advised not to endanger any trip which will take them off the paved highways. This condition of the gravel roads is only temporary, but is likely to last for at least another two weeks. If we have warm and dry weather, conditions, of course, will right themselves much more quickly than if we have a spell of wet weather. The Department is placing teams at most of the entrances and hopes to get the materials through, but even with the help of teams, some places will be found impassable.

IT WON'T BE LONG—SAILOR MEN READY FOR NAVIGATION'S OPENING

Reports From All Points Show Ice Rapidly Breaking Up

Toronto, March 19.— "It won't be long now" is the greeting of sailors along the various waterfront points on the great lakes and their connecting links. Every day the remaining thickness of ice decreases as the sun beats steadily down, and navigation is expected to open unusually early this season. Outfitting of the lake liners has been going on steadily for some time now and that sure sign of spring, painting, is rapidly being completed.

"Spring fever" bane of school boys the world over, is even more prevalent among the lakes men each year. After a winter of idleness in many cases, the mariners are fit and anxious to get aboard their vessels. Each year, the abandoned mind is exerted among ports. A group of sailors parade solemnly down to the wet to edge, disgustedly look at the masses of ice which are slowly floating downstream and start their navigation as to when navigation will open.

If ice is the robin makes his appearance and the snow disappears. The great lakes have a lure akin to that of the Sea.

Reports today from all points indicate that the ice is rapidly breaking up and drifting out to the wide reaches of the inland seas. Painters, chippers, repairmen, engineers and all the other skilled tradesmen whose task it is to prepare the boats for the coming season are on the job and they all are agreed on one thing, "it won't be long now."

NURSE'S REPORT IS SATISFACTORY

School Children's Health is Uniformly Good—Some Malnutrition

During February the pupils of all the public schools in the city were weighed and measured by the school nurse. A report presented at last night's Board of Education meeting there are 221 cases classified as being malnourished. This is not regarded as excessive. Reports on every pupil have been sent to the parents.

The school dental clinic treated 60 pupils and four had their tonsils removed. Four others were fitted with glasses.

The nurse reports two cases of smallpox and two of chicken pox during February.

SLIPPERY STREETS CAUSE BAD TUMBLE

Slipping on the sidewalk outside of Boyle's Grocery Store this morning, Mrs. I. Sills, wife of Isaac Sills, a grocer on Bridge Street, fell flat on her face, badly hurting her knee, her ankle, and scraping her chin.

No serious injury resulted, however, and she was helped into Boyle's by Mr. Alan Hicklin, employed in the Standard Bank.

VETERAN'S HAVE SPLENDID PARTY

Nearly two hundred young people attended the splendid euchre and dance given last evening in the G.W.V.A. hall and all present had a most delightful few hours. Cards were enjoyed until a late hour and every one entered keenly into the contests resulting in most interesting evening. The winners were: Ladies first, a set of silver spoons, sugar spoon and butter knife, Miss Elsie Mosman; second, gravy plate in silver stand, Mrs. J. Cook; third, bon bon dish, Mrs. Mosman. The winners of the gentlemen's prizes were Mr. Brown first, silver fruit basket; second, Mr. P. G. McTaggart, silver flower vase and third, Mr. A. W. Jordan, silver bon bon dish.

Mr. Harry Senark won the door prize a case of silver.

After a dainty supper the Rhythm Kings supplied peppy music for the dance which followed the euchre and the young people reluctantly departed at an early hour this morning.

The committees in charge were:

Ladies—Mesdames Hilton, Gill, Baldwin, Brown, Misses Baldwin and Gill.

Gentlemen—J. Varley, G. Irving, G. Lancaster, T. Gill, B. Dawes, A. E. Baldwin.

Mr. James Varley made the announcements and His Worship Mag. Mikel presented the prizes.

CORN BORER A SERIOUS MENACE

Eight Counties in Ontario Already Have a Hard Fight

An interesting and illuminating address was given by Mr. H. G. Crawford at the Seed Fair today, his theme as his subject one of the most vital and important problems of the day, "The Corn Borer."

Mr. Crawford is chief of the Division of Field Crop and garden insects department at Ottawa and knows his subject thoroughly.

The address was illustrated with moving pictures of the Corn Borer, prepared by the Provincial department of agriculture. Before showing the pictures the speaker deplored the absence of Prof. Caesar, Provincial entomologist, who was unable to be present in Belleville today.

According to Mr. Crawford's statement the corn borer should be looked upon as the most important agricultural problem on the continent today. The importance to Ontario cannot be over estimated inasmuch as corn is the third crop of estimate value in Ontario and the fifth in the Dominion.

So important is it considered that the effort to control it is being made in the eight counties of Essex, Kent, Brampton, Middlesex, Elgin, Norfolk, Oxford and Prince Edward

Life History

The life history of the pest was outlined and special emphasis was laid on the fact that it winters in corn stalks. The eggs are laid on the corn leaves, the worms burn in the stalks where they remain until June of the next year when they change to puppae in late June—come out as moths in July.

As a female can lay 1200 eggs no surprise need be felt at the rapid increase if they are not controlled.

Investigations have shown that the best time to attack the insect is in its worm stage in the refuse left in the stubble and recommendation can be briefly summarized.

Control Method

One would destroy the crop refuse of one year before the first of June of the next year either by feeding, plowing it under or burning it. This is necessary to get the stalk that worms spend one season to the other in the corn stalks.

The stubble should be cut as low as possible and as many as possible put in the silo and burned.

The refuse from the mangers still present should be removed.

With the crop that is disposed of the stubbs should be as short as possible so that it can be ploughed under clean.

The plowing can be done Spring or Fall and the stubble should be broken off with a roller.

Every care should be taken not to bring to the surface the stubble of later cultivations. If these general practices are carried out little fear need be felt about any serious damage from the corn borer. Universal adoption of these precautions is needed.

RECIPROCITY

Premier Talks of Making Trade Arrangements With U. S.

Ottawa, March 19.—With the declaration that existing Maritime economic ills may be traced to the defeat of the 1911 Reciprocity Treaty with the United States, Premier King in the Commons yesterday announced the Government's acceptance of most of the recommendations contained in the Duncan report.

One of the report recommendations was that the Dominion should seek a mutual trade treaty with the United States for forestry products and fish. The Prime Minister referred to the attempt of "a great Nova Scotian" (Mr. Fielding) to institute reciprocity and added the statement: "Our policy remains one of seeking to advance an opportunity affords, mutual trade agreements to natural products."

Legislation to Follow

Arising in the Commons before the orders were called, Premier King, reading from a prepared statement, detailed the precise recommendations of the Commission which will immediately implement by legislation.

Some of the proposals will be left for later consideration—notably the question of the acquisition of the St. John Valley Railway, and final settlement of the vexed question of adequate Federal subsidy payments to the three Provinces will be left to the forthcoming Interprovincial-Federal Conference.

MAPLE SYRUP IS NOT PLENTIFUL

Maple syrup locally has been a distinct failure as the four reminis out of the ground too soon stopped the run of sap to a great extent and in consequence it was very high in price in Toronto this morning. The bright amber fluid sold slowly at 75 cents a quart or $2.75 a gallon and most of the syrup went out slowly down their usual order of a couple of gal lon to as many quarts. Maple sugar in attractive looking cakes sold at 5 cents each about two bites to the nickel.

Eggs of which scores of baskets were brought in during the 30 minutes I spent in the morning but towards noon some of the vendors brought the price down to 30 cents a dozen. Butter was dull and farm labour keeps the price of butter up and this morning 42 cents a pound was the prevailing figure named while 45 was the ruling price.

Chickens are becoming weekly more scarce and the price rises in keeping with the scarcity. Small rather athletic looking birds sold at $1 each but the majority ranged from $1.25 to $2.

The outside market, while it enjoyed plenty of patronage was smaller than usual and big hardy looking cabbages which sold at from 5 to 15 cents bulked the produce. Carrots, beet and parsnips sold at 30 cents and both swelling horseradish sold at 10 cents a bunch. Potatoes varied widely selling variously at $2 and $3 with a lowering in price in prospect. Apples which have been on the market for the past eight months also ranged from a bushel. Some extra fine orthern Spies sold at $3 a bushel.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

"Loneliness is a terrible thing. It blunts the finer sensibilities of man, lowers the ebb of his morals, and by reason of its paralyzing influence, tends to make of him an unsociable animal, neither understanding others nor understanding himself."

PAUL P. HARRIS,

BANNED BOOKS

The Boston authorities which have the say in such matters put the ban on nine books recently, including some best sellers and some by women writers on the charge that they contain obscene, impure and indecent language, such as would tend to corrupt the morals of the young.

The placing of the bad means that these books can no longer be sold in Boston, but that does not mean that the books will not be sold. It would not be surprising to learn that they were even better sellers than the "best sellers" they have already before they were banned. The names of the banned books have been broadcast far and wide, and the books have received for nothing the benefit of the most effective kind of publicity.

BAD BARGAINS

In practically every case where we have made a trade treaty with a foreign country in recent years, the result was decreased sales by Canada and increased sales to Canada. There undoubtedly is something wrong with our trade arrangements. The wrong, we suspect, is that instead of merely giving concessions for goods that we have to buy from other countries, in return for concessions on goods that we produce, and which other countries have got to buy from us, we have been reducing our whole tariff, giving concessions all along the line. Such a policy is bound to subject Canadian industry to unfair competition, and to prove harmful to our whole industrial life.

LUKEWARM

As was expected, the old-age pensions bill is being subjected to searching criticism in the senate. What was not expected was the character of the support given to the measure by Senator Dandurand, government leader in the senate. The greater part of Mr. Dandurand's speech delivered yesterday was devoted to showing the reasonableness and justness of the contributory principle as applied to old-age pensions. This is the more noteworthy because the contributory principle is not a feature of the government measure. Why should the government leader have chosen to devote length on the beauties of the contributory principle if he were sincerely in favor of the bill as it stands?

True, Mr. Dandurand said that the bill might be accepted as a beginning to be expanded and improved later. But would it not be better to wait a little until a bill more comprehensive, workable and acceptable can be introduced? The need for the imperfect measure is not pressing. It seems to us that the attitude of the government leader in the upper house indicates that the government would not be very sorry if the senate were to reject the bill again.

ILLINOIS JUSTICE

Several months ago, seven inmates of Joliet penitentiary, several of whom were serving terms for murder, asked for an audience with the deputy warden to complain about prison conditions, callously backed him to death with improvised weapons and escaped. One was killed in a battle with the police and the others were quickly rounded up and placed on trial for the murder of the deputy warden. They were convicted and sentenced to be hanged on February 11. The case against these desperadoes was a cold-blooded one, without the mitigating circumstance to excite the sorry of the courts, but their resourceful lawyers succeeded at the eleventh hour in securing a stay of execution until March 4. Counsel claimed inability to prepare material for their appeal in the short time intervening and the stay of sentence was continued until March 11. On the eve of the revised date, set for the execution, a writ of supersedeas granting for a review of the case by the supreme court, was secured. And the only purpose served by the bickering with justice was that it enabled these murderers to complete plans for another escape. Within a few hours of their final reprieve, they quitted the prison and murdered a Chicago police officer who attempted to apprehend them. The law, as it is administered in the state of Illinois, was responsible for the death of the police sergeant. Had the sentence of the trial court been carried out either on February 11, March 4 or March 11, the police officer would have been alive to-day. Instead, a useful member of society is in the morgue and these vicious thugs are still of the land of the living. Rounded up and returned to prison again, they will be given a trial for their latest murder. And while it is improbable, it is not impossible that the same farcical rigmarole will be gone through again, while friends on the outside and money on the inside pave the way for another jail delivery. Seven guards, paid by the state to keep prisoners within the walls of Joliet penitentiary, are charged with aiding these six to escape. The rottenness of the state of Denmark, as set forth upon, is as attar of roses in comparison with the rottenness of the state of Illinois.

EMMELINE PANKHURST

Heckler of statesmen, firebrand, violent revolutionist in the stormy suffragette years 1913 and 1914, devotee of the hunger strike and a convict under British law, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst is now the Conservative candidate for member of parliament in the Whitechapel and St. George's division of Stepney. When Mrs. Pankhurst came to the United States in 1913, an order of deportation was issued against her as a "criminal." Later it was withdrawn and she was permitted to make her tour.

Yet this is the woman of whom Lady Astor lately said: "I would settle from the house of commons myself, if I could give my seat to her." And there is no doubt that Mrs. Pankhurst is sincerely a Conservative-to-day, she has had the success that makes a revolution out of a mere rebellion. And she redeemed herself when the war with Germany came on. Perhaps no one person did so much to organize and urge forward women in British industry as she did. Lloyd George fully appreciated her efforts. A really adverse psychology toward the sentiator disappeared quickly. She may or may not be elected to parliament—the division is classed as Liberal or Laborite—but her campaign is worth watching on both sides of the Atlantic.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

After the service, the preacher who was of an old-fashioned type, favored the old lady with his view on eternal punishment. There was a great deal of fire and brimstone in it.

"I don't believe it," the kind old lady said impulsively, "no human condition could stand it."

The young man was in a bad temper. "I don't stand any non-sense from girls," he told a friend. "I waited two hours for Doris this evening, and she didn't turn up; so I damn well broke the appointment."

Mick Hennessy (over garden wall): "If I were a young bride like her I couldn't allow him to order me about but, you see, I'm a Pre-Prayer Book Protem bride."

The foreman of a gang of railwaymen had more than his share of Irish wit.

One day he was walking along his section of the line when he found one of his laborers fast asleep in the shade of a tree.

Eyeing the man with a smile, he said: "Slape on, ye little apaheen, slape on. So long as ye slape ye've got a job, but the minute ye wake up ye're out of work!"

WOMENS INSTITUTE AT REDNERSVILLE GAVE ST. PATRICK'S CONCERT

Redneraville Women's Institute put on a St. Patrick's Social and concert in aid of Library Fund, Thursday evening with the church lavishly decorated with shamrocks and green, and the hall in attendance, the affair was more successful.

Rev. Mr. Dixon acted as chairman and solos given by Miss Audra Brickman and Mrs. Ralph Stafford were well received.

The Playlet "Advertising for a Maid" with Mrs. Breaugh as leading lady was very true to life while another amusing feature of the program was a Playlet entitled "A Marriage under difficulties", put on by Mr. Douglas Redner, Donald Spencer and Miss Helen Redner.

A much appreciated treat was given by Dr. Hafferty one of the Radio Four Quartette, of Belleville, who in his usual pleasing and effective style gave several Irish selections and other popular ballads.

Dr. Hafferty kindly responded to the applause which followed every number with an equally well rendered encore.

A vote of thanks was extended to those assisting in programme, to Dr. Hafferty for so kindly consenting to assist, and to the committee in charge of the programme and in serving a delicious lunch at the close.

ROSE AND COLD

From my low window behold
No skies but just a golden mould,
A spread of golden grass, and cold
Sheep in the golden solitude.

Somewhere the sunset turns to rose.
And all the world is faintly pink.
Litt'enough with golden fire and thaw
Bare pools where rosy cattle drink.

Deepens the rose, a fairy hill
They call the Lamb's Back, saith curlew
Is now a rosy limb and still
Grows rosier in a rosy world.

Awhile my window holds the gold,
The rose-before the sky fall to grey
Ashes of rose, still and cold
On wood and hill and waterway.

Almost Helpless With Rheumatism
Among the many severe cases of Rheumatism in St. Mary's, Ont., is Mrs. William Sitzer, who tells for the benefit of other sufferers how she found relief from a severe attack of rheumatism. Mrs. Sitzer states:—"In the early fall of 1926, I contracted a cold which developed into a severe attack of muscular rheumatism. In fact, I almost totally disabled me, and I suffered great agony most of the time. After trying in vain to get something to relieve me, I decided to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which I had heard highly recommended by many of my friends, and I am now feeling better than I have been for some years past. The pills not only banished the rheumatism, but helped me in many other ways."

INTELLIGENCER WINS FROM CHERRY PICKERS

The Intelligencer bowlers won the right to meet the Star Motors for second place in the Junior League at the Recreation Alleys last evening by virtue of their win over the Cherry Pickers. It was one of the most exciting matches played in the Junior League this season and the newspaper Boys only emerged from the last game with a majority of 11 pins. It required four games before the issue was finally decided.

In the first game the Intells came out ahead with a substantial margin but the Cherry Pickers came back strong in the second game and gained a lead on the total; however, the Intell boys squeezed out ahead by 14 pins in the third set-to. This left the teams with two points each as the Cherry Pickers had the largest total. It was decided to bowl a fourth game and the printers scored an 11 point win.

Keenan nearly upset the apple-cart in the final game for the Intells when he rolled 289. The same man bowled 838 for the four strings. Kemp was high single with 238 for the Intells, and Jack Yerex with 821 led in the four strings.

TIRED STOMACHS COME TO LIFE
And Digest Heavy Meals Just Like a Boy
Diapepsin is probably the most powerful aid there is when the stomach seems worn out. It enables you to eat away with foods that so often cause the most misery. Pie, cheese, onions, cabbage, seasoned stews and foods that frighten a dyspeptic even to think of, are as modified milk to a cooing infant when followed by Diapepsin.
A host of people are denying themselves half the pleasure of life hunting for potent, prepared foods that don't meet their needs. For after all it is the state of the stomach secretions and actually works on the starches, meats, fats, cream, etc., and that is where a tired, feeble stomach needs.
Get a 60 cent package of Pape's Diapepsin at any drug store.

CAR STOLEN

A blue McLaughlin Buick Sedan, license number 313-731 was stolen from the city last night. The police are working on the case.

NEW SWEATERS HERE

The new sweaters which will be worn by the Canada Cement Co. in the Indoor Soft Ball League have arrived and are on display in Ed Thomas' window. The jerseys are blue bodies trimmed with white. Three white bands surround the waist while the cuffs and collars are of the same color. A crest on the front completes the name of the firm. The beautiful silver trophy for the Men's League is also on exhibition.

SAW CUT OFF TOES

While removing sawdust from between the saw he was using, James Dickson of Stirlerville suffered severe injuries when his foot became caught under the machine. Two toes were amputated by the saw and his great toe badly lacerated. Dr. Duffett who is called dressed the wounds and holds out hopes for saving the remaining injured toes.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB

At last night's meeting of the Y's Men's Club, the program had an Irish flavor. The tables were daintily decorated with the shamrock, and the speaker, J. K. O'Connor, gave an account of some of the customs of the land of his birth.

The Ys Men are sponsoring a big parade for boys and girls on decorated bicycles as a publicity stunt for a Hippodrome being put on in the "Y" in April. A new 'Quinte Special' Bicycle donated by Stephen Licence, is being put up as first prize, with an imposing list of lesser prizes arranged by the Club.

This is already causing a furore among the younger element, who are filling in entry forms in large numbers at the Y.M.C.A. There is no fee for entry. The age limit is 17.

The 'Hippodrome' is to be a three night affair along original lines with a snappy circus, a variety show, a museum, midway, fortune telling booths, etc. in the various rooms of the capacious Y.M.C.A. building. Proceeds of the entertainment are to be devoted to the various sorting activities undertaken each year by the Club.

This afternoon will see the winding up of one of the best incentives farmers in the district have ever had in specializing and discriminating in seeds, in the closing of the Quinte Seed Fair at the Armouries. Make Care Of Babies Easier

Stomach disturbances and constipation are responsible for much of the peevishness of babies and young children. When the baby is cross or irritable the mother should not resort to so-called soothing mixtures to correct the trouble, for in the majority of cases these mixtures simply drug the child into an unnatural sleep. What is needed is a gentle laxative that will sweeten the stomach and regulate the bowels. Such a remedy is found in Baby Own Tablets. They are easy to take and guaranteed to be entirely free from opiates and narcotics. Concerning them, Mrs. Jos. Tousignant, Ste. Sophie, Que., writes:—"I would like all mothers to know that I feel there is no remedy like Baby Own Tablets. I always keep a box in the house and their prompt use never fails to restore my little ones to health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

News and Views for the Average Woman and the Occasional Man

WHERE WIFE FIGURES IN SAVING PLANS

BY ELSIE MARLOWE

I wonder what our great-grandma and grandpa would have made of what had received such a letter way back in 1827?

DEAR ELSIE:

Can you help us with our problem? We have been married five years, living both happily and scrappily, Evelyn, my wife, is twenty-eight and I am the same age. We are saving money at the rate of $1,000 a year. In less than two years we have paid up some debts and put $8,00 in the bank. With that nine Evelyn wants to buy a home and raise a family, contending that my income is now sufficient to cover all our needs and that she can quit work.

I wonder what our great-grandma would have her exit from the business world. In view of the amount which we are saving in a year's time I think it would be more advantageous, from her standpoint, to continue to work for a year or two more than to stop short of our goal. That you might know of the amount of help she renders, we now live on her salary and save mine.

If you can help settle our controversy we would be ever so much mine.

ETHEL AND JIM.

I don't think you have a leg to stand on, Jimmy. And I'm not saying that because I have feminist leanings. I appreciate the commercial soundness of your argument, but there's something much deeper than a commercial argument, but theres something much deeper than a commercial argument behind your wife's protest. You want to build your future on dollars and cents. But she is going to give a much truer content built to that future than dollars and cents. She is going to give the strength of her own body, the fruit of her own flesh. You'll pay in money for those children and that home, but she will pay in tears and agony. And since she is putting so much, much more than you into the venture, she has the right to decide when that venture shall start.

Those two years of waiting will mean more money to you, but they will mean LESS STRENGTH to her — less strength to face the dangerous ordeal of motherhood. A job costs a woman far more in physical strain that it costs a man.

If she does not dare give two years more of her health and youth, you surely have no right to ask her.

That's my opinion. Who disagrees? Come on, let's hear what you think about this typical Twentieth Century problem, friends.

And lest you think they're all that way, read this. Here's a beautiful story

DEAR ELSIE:

You want to know if a man could keep a family of five on $5 a day. Yes he can. I will tell you our experience. We have been married seventeen years and have four children. The two oldest girls go to high and the other two go to the grade school. We have to clothe the children and have our gas bills and water bills to meet and we're paying on our home.

My husband gets $3.15 a day. I know you will wonder how we do all of that, but, Elsie, I have often wondered myself. And my husband hasn't even got a steady job. But our seventeen years of married life have certainly been very happy. Life sometimes has been hard for us, of course, but we always live in hopes that some day good luck will come to us and bring us something better. You see, we can all do with less if we really try. We are blessed with good health and are never sick and that is something to thankful for. A HAPPY WIFE.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am twenty and I love a girl four years my junior. She likes to have a good time and she goes out with any fellow as long as she has a good time. But I believe she likes my company best. If I could only get her to stick to me a little more I think we would both be happy.

ANXIOUS JACK.

ANXIOUS JACK: Did it ever occur to you that the girl you love is very young And it is to that youth that you must attribute the irresponsibility of which you complain. Of course, she wants to go out and have a jolly time. Give her time. She is too young to know her own mind.

DEAR ANNE LAURIE

I am a young girl in my teens and have many girl friends, who are very popular. I dress well, am considered good-looking and have lots of money to spend, but I am always a wall-flower.

Can you please advise me how to become popular?

HOPEFUL SALLY ANN.

HOPEFUL SALLY ANN: You probably are self-conscious and communicate your lack of ease to others. Don't try too hard to be popular. Be natural and gay and cheerful. Stop thinking about what impression you are making. If you are unaffected and real, people will flock to you for the privilege of being real themselves.

SINCLAIR'S

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

THE NEW IMPULSE

It happened quite naturally—or perhaps Clifford Vane saw to it that it appeared quite natural—that he and Christine left the building at the same time. The woman who had introduced them entered another hired limousine and they were left alone.

"Perhaps you will permit me to drive you home, Mrs. Blanton?" suggested Vane.

Christine accepted gratefully. She was very weary, and the thought of hanging to a subway strap was sickening. He assisted her into his car—a smart, gray affair. She sank back luxuriously in the seat beside him. It was a long time since she had ridden in a private car.

The thought recalled Henry Sanford, and she thrust the memory from her savagely. In the presence of Vane—this strange young man with whom she had scarcely exchanged a dozen words—the mere thought of Sanford made her ashamed. She wondered why, puzzling over her curious reaction half in bitterness, half in amazement.

In the end, she dismissed the subject with a cynical shrug. He noticed the movement, slight as it was, and turned his gaze momentarily from the maze of traffic.

"Are you cold? Put this rug about you."

She protested that she wasn't cold, although the warm day had turned chilly, and her frock was absurdly thin.

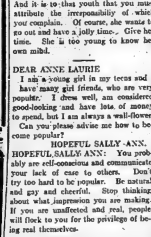

He drove in silence for a while. The traffic was dense, and driving required all his attention. But as they turned into Washington Square, he said suddenly,

"Would you think it very impertinent of me, if I asked you to have tea with me? I know an attractive little place hereabouts, and I think we both need refreshing after that tiresome affair at noon."

Christine hesitated. The new Christine—the Christine whom New York had made cynical and bitter and careless of consequences—urged her to accept, for ten meant the saving of the price of dinner. The old Christine who had been, for a time, the beloved and protected wife, revolted at the idea of accepting tea on such a basis from a stranger.

But, curiously, there was also another Christine—a Christine who wanted this man to think well of her. For the first time in many, many months, she cared what some one thought of her. And what better way to cheapen herself than to accept a casual invitation too easily and too quickly?

(To be Continued.)

Calomel To-night

Acts on Stomach, Liver, Kidney And Bowels

I never have a headache, no more indigestion or gas on stomach; gone are the catarrhal affections, nervousness, constipation, rheumatism, poor appetite, kidney pains. What a glorious feeling after having taken Tanol Calomel—the only medicine that acts upon the liver cleans the stomach, kidney, liver and bowels of all the previous day's waste, poisons, and toxins before more food is taken in. You then eat better, sleep better, work better, digest better. It makes no difference how many different medicines you have taken or how long standing or how hopeless your case may be. Get a few Tanol Calome tablets from McKeown's Drug Store, Belleville, and you will be surprised how effective they are.

Cook's Regulating Compound

"Will Morning Never Come?"

"IF I could only sleep I believe my nerves would soon be all right, but night after night I lie awake and think about everything under the sun.

"What chance is there of getting better so long as this goes on?"

"None. Nerve force is being exhausted nearly twenty-four hours of every day, and there is no rest and sleep in which to replenish the waste."

"One thing sure I cannot stand it much longer, for I know that every week—yes, every day—finds me more restless and nervous, and less able to stand the strain of the day's work."

"I suppose the doctor could give me something to make me sleep, but I don't want that. I am weak enough now. I want something to build up strength rather than to tear down the tissues of the body."

"I believe I will try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I have often heard of it, but never thought I would need to use it. I was always so strong and healthy."

"The nervous trouble is a specific ailment. No one would believe what I suffer from sleepiness and nervousness. I do not look like an invalid, but I certainly am one."

"One thing sure I shall not spend another sleepless night before I begin using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I expect it will take a little time to get my nerves right, but I shall get half a dozen boxes and give it a fair, good, thorough course to tell me that I shall not be disappointed."

BELLE THEATRE

Jetta Goudal, the petite, dark-eyed, exotic film star who has been called the "emotional-cocktail of the screen drama," will be seen in another of her striking characterizations at the Belle Theatre, Monday and Tuesday. Victor Varconi and Henry B. Walthall are featured.

The picture is "Fighting Love," described as a romantic drama of love and intrigue ranging from the castles of nobility of Italy to the African desert, with Miss Goudal in the role of a young girl of the Italian aristocracy who, in order to escape marriage with the disreputable scion of a great family, Niccolini, whom she despises, accepts the hand of an aged soldier, General Navarro.

Hardly has her marriage been consummated than her husband is summoned to Tripoli. Victoria answers later, only to find that the General has gone into the desert at the head of his troops to quell an uprising of the Arabs. When Victoria arrives at this is only a ruse to get rid of her husband so that Niccolini may be alone with her. Victoria leaves Tripoli accompanied by the handsome young adjutant of the General.

During the ensuing days Victoria returns the burning sands to Ghalut, the girl and the adjutant discover they are deeply in love. Victoria remains true to her husband, and when she reaches Ghalut resolves to make General Navarro, for whom she has a profound respect, take her for his wife.

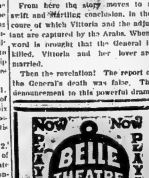

From here the story moves to a fortress in the Mediterranean, in the power of which Victoria and the adjutant are captured by the Arabs. When word is brought that the General is killed, Victoria and her lover are married.

Then the revelation! The report of the General's death was false. The denouncement to this powerful drama is one of the most gripping climaxes ever achieved on the screen.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Toronto Mail & Empire.—The picture presentation "Faust" is not only the most outstanding feature at Loew's Yonge Street Theatre for this week, but is one of the best pictures that has played this house. Marvellous scenery and photographic effects are brought close to perfection and much that has been thought impossible is displayed time after time in this striking photoplay. The story is based on argument between Mephisto and an angel. Mephisto declares that he is the ruler of the world as he controls pestilence, famine and war which hold sway at the time. The angel puts up Faust as the man whom the devil cannot control and the wager is on. From the beginning of Mephisto's power over Faust, the years roll back and a life of happiness, misery and sorrow follow in rapid succession for the man to whom the angel pins his faith. One could not ask for a better display of talent than that of Camilla Horn as Marguerite; Gösta Ekman as Faust, and Emil Jannings as the wily devil.

"Faust" is the feature presentation at the Capitol Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

CITY SOFT BALL LEAGUE OPENS MON. EVE. WITH DOUBLE HEADER

Eight Teams Compose Circuit This Year—Fast Ball Promised

The local Senior Indoor League gets away Monday night at 8 p.m. in the Armouries when the Patricias take on the much strengthened Foster Ward team, the Foster Wardes have a real nifty outfit. Besides the team that they had last year they have signed Lem O'Neil late of the Bowers, and Mary Adams the High School's star 3rd sacker, also Jennie Adams of the High School Champs and A. Gadin who starred of first base for the much-famed Deercrote team last year; these along with the Knoot sisters as battery will make up a strong aggregation. The Pats headed by Capt. Ev. Whales are considered the strong scrum of the league so this should be a real argument.

The second game at 9 p.m. should be a thriller when Pt. Anne (last years champs.) come to town to take on the C.N.R. who have last years team along with Dan O'Donahue and Jack Williams. With this added strength the railroad boys should give the Council boys a run for their money, if not a little more. Manager Bob Redner has had "Sonny" Cofen working out for the past week and has added Alex Weir to the Pointers' team, so everything is set for a big night, opening night. Come early and get front row seats as every body must be in the gallery so as to keep the playing floor for the players. This rule will be strictly adhered to this year.

BIG NIGHT MONDAY

The final arrangements were made at a meeting of the officers and club managers.

The league promises to out do any others that have been organized here in past years and fans should get behind the officers in their efforts to put it across. Some large crowds attended the games last year and with the brand of ball that will be played this season there should increase. It was decided advisable to have three who are not playing pay the admission price which means that those on duty after four teams not engaged in the double-header each evening must secure an admission ticket. This step was taken in view of the fact that finances must be forthcoming in order to put the league across. Everything is all set for opening night on Monday.

The following are of those rules has been drawn up:

1. A three base hit be allowed when the ball is hit directly into or under any obstruction at the east end of the Armouries.

2. Two bases shall be allowed when the ball is hit into the gallery West of the third door from the east end of the Armouries in the gallery, and 2 bases be allowed from this said point to the east end of the Armouries in gallery.

3. A ball hitting over the heads of the crowd in the gallery and bouncing directly back to the floor goes for what it is.

4. A ball hitting into the rafters and falling or bouncing foul is a foul, except when touched by a fielder in fair territory.

5. All managers must acquaint their players with the playing rules.

6. Players benches to be occupied by players, manager and 1 coach only.

7. One base be allowed on all overthrow over 1st, 2nd and home, but baserunner must note home plate.

8. Managers must have their batting order in the umpire-in-chiefs hand at least 5 minutes before game time.

9. The umpire's ruling as to Floor Rules, etc., must be accepted as final.

10. Girls only may coach on the bowling line during a girl's game.

Who says any other car can step or climb like a Chandler?

THERE'S nothing like performance to reveal the true worth of an automobile.

Put any car you please on a chalk line, nose and nose with a new Chandler. Signal "Go." See which car outsteps the other in the getaway.

From a standstill, start any other car up a long steep hill side by side with a new Chandler. See which car takes the lead and is the first over the top.

Try riding over a rough stretch of road in any other car. Then come back and ride over the same piece of road in the Chandler. Judge which car glides more smoothly and comfortably over the ruts and the bumps.

Match the new Chandler Royal Eight against any other eight, and the new Chandler Sixes against other sixes—and let results, the real showdown, determine your final choice.

As to body style, interior decoration, richness of upholstery—the new Chandler Eights and Sixes are simply magnificent. Twenty-five different models. The Sixes at $945 to $1895, the Royal Eights at $2195 to $2295, f. o. b. Factory.

Just see these cars. Drive one. Anybody can make claims—but it's performance that tells the real story!

When Elizabeth intermediates meet Belleville in the O.A.B.A. play-off at Central Y.M.C.A. on Saturday night the fans will get a chance to see one of the strongest and most colorful intermediate quintettes that has represented Toronto for many years. Intermediate teams in the city are often composed of players who are just a little too slow for the higher series, but the "Lizzies" have several men who could be redeemed on any senior five in the city. They have high hopes of winning the Ontario championship, but their first step in that direction will be to eliminate the strong Belleville squad. This will not be an easy task, as they are training hard.

Next Saturday will seal the fate of the Central Ontario Baseball League when the annual meeting will be held here. It is not known at the present time whether intermediate or Senior ball will hold forth but at any rate it is hoped that some sort of league will be organized.

SPORTOGRAMS

The Elizabeth Intermediate basket ball team of Toronto, who will be at home to the Belleville Quintette on the Central "Y" floor tonight evidently hold a great deal of respect for the local rooters judging from comments appearing in the Toronto papers this week. The local delegation left in full force this morning and each and every one of them are confident of victory.

The following compose the teams —Armstrong, Weir, Buchanan, Alexander, Kerr, Curry, Miles and Morrison.

The Toronto Telegram says:—

SINICAL SADIE SEES

Sinical Sadie wonders how many men who signed Mr. Ackerman's papers will apply for a permit.

Lord Ashfield says London is the slow-est place on earth.

Sinical Sadie says he can't ever have been in Brockville.

There was a device at Wembley by means of which you could see your own skeleton. This reminds Sinical Sadie of the Irishman just returned from the trenches.

"Well, Pat, I see you're back from the front."

"Begorra" said Pat, "I knew I was pretty thin, but I didn't know I was that bad!"

There once was a fisher named Fisher,
Who fished from the edge of a fissure.
A fish with a grin
Pulled the fisherman in.
Now they're fishing the fissure for Fisher.

What took the ice away?

"I" said Barnes "with thermit.
The City gave me a permit,
I took the ice away."

"I" said the Sun.
"It was hot as I am.
I helped the ice away."

"I" said the Ashes too,
"Why everyone knew
I helped the ice away."

Now the thermit takes the credit,
The Dr. and Engineer said it—
That's the way the money goes
Pop goes the weasel!

THE RIGHT MAN FOR THE JOB.
The chaplain of a Scotch prison said to the occupant of one of the cells which he entered on his first round of inspection, "Well, my man, do you know who I am?" "No, nor I dinna care!" was the reply. "Well, I'm your new chaplain." "Oh, ye are? Then I hae heard o' ye before!" "And what did you hear?" asked the chaplain. "Well, I heard that the last two kirks ye were in ye pursuaded them baith empty; and I wish ye could find it quite easy to do the same here!"

LET ME TELL YOU!

Every sandwich maker has struggled with the problem of getting an even spreading butter quickly. The butter taken from the icebox is much too hard and melted butter sinks too deeply in to the texture of the bread to be good. Rinse a bowl in hot water, dry, and lay in the butter, covering while the bowl is being sliced and material gathered. The butter will then be ready for spreading on even the thinnest bread.

When stuffing figs, allow a tea spoonful of catsup to each egg yolk and bread with a little olive oil to make a smooth paste. Catsup is a welcome addition to eggs in many forms and may be used sparingly on the meat or over the egg to be baked, in which case little other seasoning is necessary.

FRENCH HOUSEKEEPING

"The essence of French housekeeping is of course, the buying for one day only," writes Mme. Norman Hindmer in "The Woman's Magazine."

"Nothing must be left in the house when the evening meal is finished and the table washed out. Every day one visits the market and buys what is necessary, and at the corner and kinds of shops, or rather stalls, adjoin one another, it is fairly simple work to do the day's shopping.

"One thing which amused me immensely was the buying of fowls, their feathers, head, feet, and etc., all weighed and rolled up in a newspaper for you to tuck under your arm. Never shall I forget the sight of my husband's face when on my way home with the above, said fowl under my arm, I encountered him in the town. His look of horror drew my attention to my burden, and then I realized that the head of the bird was out of the paper, hanging loose, and swaying backwards and forwards as I walked.

"After another encounter some days later, when my newspaper-bundle contained a skinned rabbit with its leg, out either end, he fearful sight of my path until such time as I had deposited my fare in the house.

"It seems strange to English folk to realize that the grocer provides you with your milk, and wherever you buy your rice, tea, beans and herbs polish, you are expected to buy your milk."

"BREAKFAST" in
Baker's Breakfast Cocoa
Means Something

The United States Food Standards define "Breakfast" cocoa as cocoa containing not less than 22 per cent of cocoa butter. Many cheap cocoas (which cannot be labelled "Breakfast" Cocoa) contain not more than 14 per cent or 15 per cent of butter.
Baker's Breakfast Cocoa contains not less than 26 per cent of cocoa butter, almost one-fifth more than Government requirement. The pleasing Baker's Breakfast Cocoa flavour, delicious cocoa of high quality and possessing a considerable amount of nourishment.

Something Worth Talking About

When you wake up in the morning your first thought should be I AM A CANADIAN.

As you walk to your work —at lunch time—yes, right through the entire day — your mind should re-echo I AM A CANADIAN.

And, when you retire to rest at night, you should sink to our knees and humbly say I AM A CANADIAN —AND THANK GOD FOR IT.

Not that being a Canadian gives you any better right to walk the earth than has any other man, be he black, white or yellow, so long as he is honest — but because you are a Canadian you are a citizen of the greatest and most beautiful country in the world.

For Canada—your Canada—is endowed with gifts that are the envy of every nation.

With only one-sixth of her arable land under crop, she is the world's greatest gold-producing country in the world and holds no less than sixteen percent of the world's coal reserve. She has the second largest fisheries in the world, the greatest forest resources in the British Empire, with less than a twelfth of the population of the United States, does approximately one-fourth of her trade.

To men of determination and courage she offers greater opportunities than any country in the world today.

It's a wonderful thing to be able to say

I AM A CANADIAN.

Poems Old And New

FLEETING

So strange one hat at time could be so sweet!
That glad-some year!
All around us sure, yet was so fleet—
With darkness near.

A little touch of happiness—almost a tear!
And yet perhaps it was but hasheer—
Left me so drear!

—M. L.

THE TRYST

(Louise Heald, in New York Times.)
I have one love who keeps his tryst with me,
Forgets no promise, fails no rendezvous;
Spring pours each year new bowls of fervency,
Brings buds to birth, and when he comes to woo
Casts doubt, dilemma, everything aside
And like a monarch claims me for his bride.

Spring never did and never will forget
To bring me daffodil and violet,
Though all my other lovers are remiss,
Spring will not fail to wake me with a kiss.

THE MINISTRY OF PAIN

(Dr. W. MacKenna)

"The cry of man's anguish went up unto God—
Lend, take away pain—
The shadow that darkens the angel
Thou hast made,
The glow casting chain that entangles the heart,
The burden that writhe on the wings that would soar—
Lend, take away pain from the world
Thou hast made
That it love Thee the more!"

Then answered the Lord to the cry of the world—
"Shall I take away pain,
And with it the power of the soul to endure,
Made strong by the strain?
Shall take away pity that knits heart to heart,
And sacrifice high?
Will ye lose all your heroes that lift from the fire
While bronze to the sky?
Shall I take away love that redeems with a price,
And smiles at its loss?
Can ye spare from your lives that would climb into Mine
The Christ on His Cross?"

The Irony of Love
By Charles Garvice

"Quite so," he said soothingly. "Now view the matter exactly as I have you would. Therefore, my dear Phenie, we must wait for a better opportunity, until you are in a more favorable position to meet your old friend. You're not looking your best just now; you're a bit tired and off color; your clothes—I well, don't think me offensive, but I'm just picturing to myself how infinitely more pretty you would look if you were nicely dressed. Now, Phenie, cash on the table, you know—how are you off for money?"

"If you think I'd take a cent from you—" Why, I'd rather drop in my teacup; I'd rather die of starvation," she panted.

"Not a cent," she broke in indignantly.

"Very well," he said, with a shrug of the shoulders. "At any rate, you will think over my proposal. We must meet again. Tell me where you are living, Phenie?"

She shook her head with a laugh of scorn.

"I quite understand your reluctance," he said pleasantly. "At any rate, you will meet me somewhere; not here; this is no place for you."

"I don't want ever to meet you again," she said, with loathing in her eyes, her tone.

"No doubt you feel like that to-night," he said. "But tomorrow morning you will, I severe you, feel quite different. You won't sleep to-night, Phenie; you'll think and think, and brood and brood. In your mind's eye you will see the man you love the husband of another woman—" Her face grew white; she knew that he had described exactly what she was before her, had prophesied truthfully the misery she would have to endure. "And you will wish that you had accepted my offer of friendship and assistance."

He rose suddenly and his hand fell on her shoulder and pressed it tightly. His whole manner changed; he looked down at her, his dark eyes flashing into her face, his voice no longer smooth, but hard, compelling.

"You little fool!" he said slowly, almost savagely. "Do you think you have the power to resist? Don't you understand that I care nothing for your welfare, that I am only thinking of my own? Do you imagine that I am going to lose the advantage which my meeting with you to-night has given me? In short, do you suppose that I am not going to use you for all you're worth? You little fool: I mean that you shall marry the cowboy lover of yours who stands between me and the woman I love. Now decide! No, I'll decide for you. You will meet me to-morrow night at nine o'clock at the end of the road there, by that big house. You see it? Well, take your choice—for your own sake and the sake of the man you love!"

With a still tighter grip of her shoulder, he hustled down at her white, upturned face and, with a nod of mastership, he turned and left her.

Phenie stood where Travers had left her, as if the grip of his hand had turned her to stone; then, with a long breath, and a shrugging jerk of her shoulder, a gesture indicative of loathing as well as pain, she sank on the seat, and covering her face with her hands, tried to think.

Her simple explanation of the way in which she had left Jumping Jane had been as truthful as it was brief. Many of the miners had, from time to time, presented her with shares in their claims, and strangely enough, on the very day Rafe had left, one of these claims had produced quite a large nugget. It seemed to poor Phenie as if Fate had stretched out a hand to guide and help her. As she had told Travers, the claim and all in it had become almost intolerable to her when the man she loved had gone; everything about the place would, she knew, remind her of Rafe; she would be tortured by the memories evoked of the places in which they had met; the very cabin, which was to be her home as soon as she could babble of him and keep the wound in her heart open.

She felt that he would never come back to Jumping Jane, that he had left the old life forever. He was now a rural man, a herd, with plenty of money; why should he come back? She should never see him again, and to Phenie the thought brought a despair which only a woman who has loved as passionately as she loved could understand and appreciate.

It seemed to her that life would not be worth living, that indeed it would be unendurable, if she never saw him again—like aching heartsored for an little; just to see him, even from a distance.

And now here had come a chance of doing so. She had enough money to carry her to England, to keep her until she could find work; she could sell her few little any shelter, love, ever poor, would suffice her. She knew that Rafe had gone to London; she only, with the exception of Parchment Joe, knew Rafe's real name and his title. It would be easy to find him; she would look upon him from a distance, would see him at Ascot, Lords. She had no intention of speaking to him; it would be enough just to see him, to know that he was well; it would be solace to her to watch history.

JUST IN PASSING

Life were not worth living
If no one were better
For having met thee on the way,
And known the sunshine of thy stay.

The father of all newspapers is the venerable Public Gazette, which is over one thousand years old. It is a small two-page paper with a yellow cover, issues' notes, by advertisements, no news, no or death notices, no editorials, no subscribers. It simply contains official notices of the Government.

LIFE-SAVERS

That flesh colored lotion are a boon to motorists and a genuine life-saver is the contention of the president of the Danish Automobile Club. In a recent speech in Copenhagen, he averred that even at night short skirts and light hose gave such visibility as to prove a life-saver. He said that if a hundred "skid-skinned women in their frocks and hose skirts" did get run over, it would be barely their own fault!

LORD WILLINGDON PAYS TRIBUTE TO WOMEN.

"The influence of women in public life is extraordinarily good, and they are a great help to men in the administration of public affairs," said the Governor-General in an address to the Ottawa Canadian Club. He said he himself owed a great deal to the counsel and advice of the most wonderful of mothers and to Lady Willingdon, who has been the encouragement and inspiration of the whole of his public life.

In referring to the rapid advance of women in English public life, His Excellency said, "In my country there is no doubt that the advent of women into public life has led to many reforms, particularly in municipal affairs, and has been a very great help to men in all matters of administration." He said he had found great organization both French and British Canadian women doing splendid work to help health and happiness into the lives of their fellow citizens, and expressed the hope that the one lonely lady in the Canadian House of Commons who is so gallantly and free-fully ploughing her lonely furrow may, in the near future have one or two colleagues to help her.

Women have brought the quality of sympathy into public life, he said. "In this country and in the world at large if we all work together for the common purpose and good we shall raise the spirit and soul of Canada and shall contribute more for the ideal or brotherhood and sisterhood of all nations of the world."

"Having mentioned laughing, I must particularly warn you against it; and I could heartily wish that you may often be seen to smile, but never heard to laugh, while you live. Frequent and loud laughter is the characteristic of folly and illmannerss. In my mind there is nothing so ill-bred as audible laughter."

OPTOMETRY OF TODAY REPLACES OLDER METHODS

Optical Science, as related to the eye is a distinct calling, recognized by law, and known as Optometry. This profession uses no drugs in examining the eye and it has developed to such a point where the knowledge and skill of optometrists is fast displacing the uncertain, disagreeable and even dangerous eye glasses fitting of the past.

The Optometrist is a practitioner of Optometry and is literally, an eye measurer. But he is also killed in mechanical Optics, which enables him to supervise the construction of right glasses when required.

In his examination of defective or strained eyes, the optometrist first takes note of any unhealthy condition, in order that he may recommend treatment outside of his own specialty, should the case demand it. Then, and then only, does the optometrist proceed to relieve the defective vision by such attention.

He then satisfies himself as to the seeing qualities of the person's eyes, using modern methods and instruments. The optometrist next proves his findings with test lenses and charts and finally, measures the strength of the muscles that rotate the eyeballs.

Because of the thorough examination methods, the Optometrist is the real eye-strain specialist, and the public should be careful to take advantage of the careful service he provides.

If isn't hard to decide whether you require the service of an optometrist. Have you ever had cause to doubt that you enjoy perfect vision? Do your eyes feel sore after a spell of close work, reading, sewing, or feeling as if sand or grit were lodged behind the walls.

Or do you find that reading or sewing by gas, coal oil lamp or two candles lend relief—or that you find it necessary to hold your book or newspaper further away from the eyes than formerly—or do you need a stronger light.

If you have noticed any of these peculiarities with your eyes you should consult a competent optometrist and have them examined. Edwards Eyesight Specialists, at 290 Front Street, are in a position to give you competent advice and service. . . .

VALUE OF GOOD LUBRICATION IS STRESSED AGAIN

Did you ever drive along a country road when the clouds of dust filled your throat till you cough and choke at every breath? And then you blow your nose and the old head feels clean again.

The motor of your car breathes the same old dust day in and day out unless after each run you blow your engine clean below the hood. Read dust constantly gets into the carburetor and breather pipe fill the cast iron lungs of the automobile and differential filled with Enarco Gear Compound. Enarco Gear Compound is of proper consistency to permit motor parts to cut through without effort without wasting power; it does not "channel" or "rake" and it does not thin out and go to pieces.

Your motor, it should be removed every 500 miles by draining the old oil from the crankcase, flushing it with a light oil and refilling the motor with the correct weight of pure clean motor oil. If this is done regularly it will hold miles and miles by the life of your engine, and make for smooth uninterrupted running.

But don't have just any oil put in, use an oil recognized with a recognized reputation for quality. Enarco Motor Oil is just that kind and its quality is unsurpassed. You can secure Enarco transmission service at the White Rose Service Station at 149 Front Street, E. Bowyer, Prop. And when you're there you may also have your transmission and differential filled with Enarco Gear Compound. Enarco Gear Compound is of proper consistency to permit meshing parts to cut through without effort without wasting power; it does not "channel" or "rake" and it does not thin out and go to pieces.

EXPERT GARAGE MEN TODAY FILL MOTORISTS NEED

Motor Mechanics of Present Day Skilled in Their Work

It is only within the past few years that any organized effort has been put forward toward the education and training of the automobile repair man.

The majority of the earlier repair men were recruited from the ranks of Chauffeurs and helpers. These men, without technical knowledge and with very little mechanical experience, boldly tackled the business of mending cars. They did nobly and well. Picking up experience as they went along, they perfected themselves and finally became the backbone of the maintenance division of the industry.

The conditions under which the entire repair man had to work, were by no means ideal. There were no set methods, very little equipment and each man was forced to engineer his own problems, with the result that there was an enormous amount of experimentation going on in the repair shops for which the customer paid. But these conditions have changed.

Automobile manufacturers are insisting upon certain standards of workmanship routine in the carrying out of the various repair shop operations. Tools have been developed to many accurately perform precision work and lighten the burden of labor, and most important of all, educational programs have been started whereby improved factory methods are taught and practiced among the dealer service organizations.

In other cases, as in rounds to the distributor, dealer or service station there is every opportunity makes it his business to iron out all of the problems that may have piled up since his last visit. He stays in the shop with the men and has work done under personal supervision. He is out to assist in every direction that can possibly be brought under the heading of service, and does all that he can to advance the knowledge of the workshop staff and where possible improve conditions that they will operate to the further advantage of the customer, the dealer and to the mechanic.

In the absence of a system of apprenticeship, the young repair man must supply himself to the long grind of the training and digesting a good working knowledge of business systems. He will then be in a position to fit to his advantage in the ever changing service division of the industry.

You can get expert garage and repair service of all kinds at Riggs' Garage on Pinnacle St. Trained mechanics will look after your car needs properly and in a dependable manner.

REINDEER TOO MANY BY FAR IN ALASKA NOW

New York, Mar. 19. — Florenz Ziegfeld, who "glorified the American girl" and created a new type of musical show when he launched his first "Follies" twenty years ago says box office madness and out-of-town visitors are to blame for the present "corrupt" condition of the theatre.

"I'm ashamed to be in the revue business with all it's going on," he said recently, "so I'm going to get out."

When the "Follies" opens next year it will be more the old-fashioned musical comedy, with a plot and NO longer a revue.

"The movers revue," said the producer, "is far worse than the old burlesque show. In fact the revues have driven the burlesque shows out of business. The stage in New York has been corrupted to the point where it is risky to take one's mother, wife or children to the theatre. NOT because there is a large public that wants filth, but because the theatrical people have gone box office crazy.

Ziegfeld entered the lists against stage immorality when police recently started a clean-up campaign and raided three leg t'mate shows. He telegraphed city officials a suggestion that they extend their operations to revues, which he said were such that they would NOT be tolerated in other cities.

"The revues have gone too far," he said, "and I cannot go with them Pornographic stories such as are heard in smoking cars are being acted out, nudity has become the order of the day and the beauty of the draped figure has been forgotten. I don't want it even said of me that I'm producing a revue."

The New York stage, he said, needs censorship and needs it badly.

CHURCH UNIONS ENCOURAGED BY ROMAN CATHOLIC

Montreal March 19.—Catholic Unions are not only recommended by the Church but are considered the safest and the best means for the worker to employ, to attain justice, fairplay and reasonable treatment, Rev. Father L. A. Lafortune, assistant chaplain of the Central Council of Catholics and National Syndicates stated during an address on the occasion of the seventh anniversary of the formation of the syndicate here.

Quoting the words of Scripture: "He has given each one care of his neighbor" (Ecclus. XVII. 12.)—and the Papal encyclical of Pope Leo XIII. "Rerum Novarum," dealing with relations between capital and labor, the speaker gave a long discourse on the logical and moral reasons which led the workers to get together, not only for their own but for the protection of society in general.

In National Catholic Unions, he said, were found the elements of true co-operation, combined with moral and social advantages which appealed to the workmen throughout the country but particularly in Montreal, where 85 per cent. of workers were eligible to membership. These unions fulfilled every object of social union in providing means for corporal, spiritual, material and moral advancement.

Benefits in procuring better wages better hygenic conditions, better working hours, observance of the Sabbath and holy days, would all accrue from membership in these societies, which did not oppose in any way the legitimate enterprises of capital or labor, Father Lafortune declared. In addition to the latter, remedies against Bolshevism, communism, sabbotage and boycotting would be found in adherences to the principles which animated the National Catholic Syndicates.

There was not the least intention on the part of Catholic unions to disband labor or to disorganize unions, but on the other hand they encouraged co-operation with all other reasonable organizations of labor and preached, not opposition, but collaboration with allied societies, Father Lafortune concluded.

The Discovery That Brought Peace of Mind!

Corrects the Chemistry that Make One's Pores Offend

Do you know why thousands of people who never have to take a laxative, do eat a candy cascaret now and then?

They have found that cascara sweetens the whole system—brings an immaculacy of person that means everything. It prevents bodily chemistry from ever making one unconsciously offensive to others. And what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Salts affect the lining of the bowels. Mineral oils leave a coating that the blood must carry off through the pores. How much better to cascarize the cavities, and cause the bowels to expel everything by normal muscular contraction! To say nothing of the cleaner, sweeter condition that lasts for days—a wholesome condition that makes the use of deodorants quite unnecessary in January or July! Men and women whose years have brought on sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week is all the tonic they needed.

Cascara is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every druggists has for 10c and 25c.

"IT WAS YEARS before I knew the one best way to correct sluggishness. Now, I can do so with the comfortable feeling that I'm removing all taint to perspiration, too. That's the big virtue I see in the candy laxative—

OWEN SOUND BAY WILL OPEN MONTH AHEAD THIS YEAR

Owen Sound, March 19—A new record for early opening of navigation in Owen Sound Harbor will be now blowing continues established if the south wind now blowing continues. The ice in Owen Sound Bay is rapidly blowing out into Georgian Bay and the local harbor should be ready for business soon if soy is offered. Owen Sound harbor has been clear of ice until about a month ago, when quite a large amount of drifting ice from the north shore lodged in the bay. This means that navigation here will open fully a month ahead of last year. Although the removal of the ice will allow navigation to begin, very few of the boats in Owen Sound harbor are yet ready to begin the season.

MANY DISEASES CONTRACTED BY SCHOOL CONTACT

Toronto, Ont., March 2—Canadian Press—A letter to the local press dated from Simcoe, Ont., bears a point of interest for women: We Medical Officers of Health find the greatest difficulty in getting the nurse maid and (but it is no joke) to see the point in our efforts to improve the standards of health, cleanliness and morals, by starting at the logical beginning, viz.—our schools. I have lectured for two years to the Women's Institutes of this part of Simcoe County, and I have proved to the mothers that 75 per cent. of the infectious and contagious diseases which form the great bulk of sickness in the average house is directly traceable to contact at school. I have been successful in having nearly every child in my territory attending school vaccinated.

I am now having chemical closets installed in every school, also drinking fountains and wash basins, on which all water is to be treated. I have set as a mark the "making of our schools the safest place for our children," and am succeeding in spite of opposition from School Boards and Councils, and the reason for my success is "The Ladies, God Bless them."

SINGING IN COMMONS

Felix Quinn Led in Rendering Several Irish Airs

Ottawa, March 19—St. Patrick had right of way in the Canadian Parliament yesterday afternoon. Felix Quinn, one of the Halifax members, was deferred to by the usual chorus of singers, who regale the House while the party whips are rounding up any sheep who have strayed from the fold preparatory to taking a poll of the House.

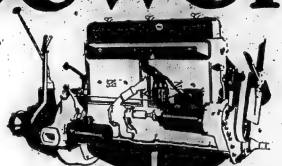

Mr. Quinn, as a soloist, sang several well-known Irish songs, after which Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, was called upon, and he responded by rising and displaying a clay pipe he had concealed on his person for the occasion.

Members from all parts of the House joined in the choruses, which Mr. Quinn carried the verse in solo. "The Wearin' of the Green" was one of the most popular of the songs which the members sang. Others were "Mother Machree," "My Wild Irish Rose," and "A Little Bit of Heaven."

Mrs. Mary Vanites, Ford City nurse, was sentenced to four years in Kingston for performing an illegal operation.

New War Threatens in the Balkans---United States Has Nothing to Say About Reciprocity

WASHINGTON IS MUM IN REGARD TO RECIPROCITY

Officials Only Know What They Have Seen in Newspapers

CANADA OFFERS

Motherwell Says Next Move is up to the United States

Washington, Mar. 21.—The cloak of official silence, which is wrapped about anything official Washington is unprepared to discuss, was thrown today over the shoulders of Premier Mackenzie King's suggestions for a reciprocity arrangement with the United States.

Canada is ready to arrange a reciprocal trade treaty to cover tariffs, ducts and fish, the Premier told the dulties charged on natural cost products Canadian Parliament and is also willing to meet President Coolidge half way in reducing certain duties or those awaiting Congressional sanction.

But official Washington, the scene of a historic battle over reciprocity during the Taft regime, to day knew only what it had seen in the newspapers about the Canad an Premier's latest announcement.

Officialdom Silent

There were a few closely associated with tariff matters who said that under the law Mr. Coolidge could not change the tariff merely for reciprocal purposes; that he had the power only to use the flexible provisions of the Tariff Act to meet competitive trade problems, in the main, however, official comment was held to the brief statements that the Government had not been approached on the subject.

The United States ratification of the 1911 reciprocity agreement is still on the statute books, but Premier Mackenzie King's suggestions are for a much more limited agreement. Canadian Minister Massey has not yet broached the subject here, but it he should do so, departmental interested are prepared to furnish the State Department with necessary data for information.

Up to United States

Ottawa, Mar. 21.—Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, announced today that the next step for reciprocity "is entirely with the United States by the Washington. "We made our offer," said Mr. Motherwell, "that offer stands. It is for them to take the next step."

ICE BREAKERS AT WORK ON THE ST. LAWRENCE

Last week the Canadian government icebreakers plunged their powerful steel prows into the ice fields of the St. Lawrence. The Mikula, greatest icebreaker in the world, possesses, is down to Anticosti Island, down in the gulf, taking in supplies and lettering out mail. The Mikula is a war veteran and was sent by Canada to Russia to keep the port of Archangel clear for allied ships to go in and out. She is now back in civvies and will soon send the van from Quebec to Montreal in the upper reaches of the river where the ice is thickest. WAR CLOUDS LOOM UP IN BALKANS; JUGO-SLAVIA ARMS AGAINST ITALY

British Press is Uneasy Over Situation in Europe's "Cockpit"

London, March 21.—Balkan war clouds and chaos in China competed for space today in the British press, both situations being bewildering to their compilations. The Adriatic unrest is at Europe's doorstep, therefore it is more menacing and alarms are being sounded from every continental capital.

"The situation in the contested region near the mouth of the Adriatic," warns the Times, "needs careful handling."

The Daily Telegraph says: "Almost without warning, danger to the peace of Europe has risen in that familiar seat of trouble, the Balkan peninsula.

Uneasy at Geneva

Geneva, March 21.—As the League of Nation's Preparatory Commission assembled today to discuss preliminary plans for an international disarmament conference, the atmosphere was charged with stories of tension in the Balkans.

Advices from Rome the last few days have told of the mobilization of Jugo Slav troops along the Albanian Border, and while Italian newspapers have gone into details alleging warlike intentions on the part of Jugo-Slavia, neither official has been announced by the Rome Government.

Albania Prepares

Vienna, Austria, March 21.—Unconfirmed reports continue to arrive from Tirana, the Albanian capital, alleging that Jugo-Slavia is inciting the irresponsible elements in Albania to revolt.

To cope with possible aggression, Albanian military authorities are preparing a defense for the Northern Frontier, bringing up Howitzer Batteries and concentrating troops at strategetic points.

BERNARD SHAW WON CASE ON "CHOCOLATE SOLDIER"

London, Mar. 21.—Justice Eve in Chancery Division today dismissed the action brought against George Bernard Shaw by Jesse Arnold Levinson of Los Angeles in connection with the film rights of the operetta "Chocolate Soldier."

Mr. Levenson had asked for an injunction to restrain the famous Irish dramatist from telling the film producers of others that any motion picture entitled "Chocolate Soldier" or based on that operetta would infringe his copyright. As the plot was taken from Shaw's "Arms and the Man."

PLANS PREPARED FOR SYNAGOGUE

Jewish People Celebrate "The Feast of Esther" Last Evening

"The Feast of Esther" was celebrated in the city yesterday by the Jewish people of Belleville, Picton, Trenton and Madoc who had gathered for the annual celebration at Jackson's Hall.

The feature of the evening was a concert cleverly arranged by Mr. L. Koch assisted by Rabbi Gersiel. A playlet, "The Children of America," composed by Mr. L. Kruch was a very fine artistic success and the solos by Berder, and while Italian newspapers have gone into details alleging warlike intentions on the part of Jugo-Slavia, neither official has been announced by the Rome Government.

Albania Prepares

Vienna, Austria, March 21.—Unconfirmed reports continue to arrive from Tirana, the Albanian capital, alleging that Jugo-Slavia is inciting the irresponsible elements in Albania to revolt.

To cope with possible aggression, Albanian military authorities are preparing a defense for the Northern Frontier, bringing up Howitzer Batteries and concentrating troops at stratetcic points.

WAS ARRESTED IN CHILE

Los Andes, Chile, March 21.—William Parkay, a Canadian, said to be wanted by British police for numerous activities, was captured here today while attempting to pass through this country to Argentina.

AVOID TROUBLE

France Wants Jugo-Slavia to be Cautious Regarding Italy

Paris, March 21—Foreign Minister Briand of France has urgently cautioned the Jugo-Slavian Government to avoid any action in the Italo-Jugo-Slav difficulty which might be construed as provocative. He delivered his cautionary word both through the French Minister in Belgrade and the Jugo Slavian minister here.

KEENE INQUEST OPENS

With the hint of new and sensational evidence to come out this afternoon, the inquest on the late Jerome Keene, found dead in his shack at Marmora on February 16th by his neighbor Gordanier has aroused widespread interest and disregarding terrible road conditions a good percentage of the residents of the surrounding countryside are assembled in the town hall at Marmora. The Provincial Police from Belleville went out early this morning to attend.

CRITICISE BREADNER'S NEW APPOINTMENT

Ottawa, March 21.—Criticism of its leaders by the rank and file of the Liberal party is heard in the capital in connection with the appointment of R. W. Breadner as Commissioner of Customs. Mr. Breadner was a Conservative and to appoint a Tory to one of the highest appointments in the public service is anathema to certain sections of the party.

As to the rumours that Mr. Breadner is a Conservative, it is pointed out that Price Walkers who is being boosted from Hamilton to succeed Mr. Breadner as because tax commissioner, is a Liberal, also that Mr. Breadner has been in the service a good many years so that it is a long time since he took any part in political controversy.

OLD MAN WINTER RETURNS TO JOB

The robin, apparently, was wrong.

He flew into Belleville a few days ago and chirped that spring was here. He can't be located today hiding in the friendly shade of barns and lonely trees looking dejected and disappointed.

Yesterday Old Man Winter looked southward and blew a chilly breath in the general direction of Belleville. It was a breath that carried the sting of the coming ground was covered with ice and the mercury was down to 26 above zero. Yesterday at noon it was 32 above.

The sun was putting up a valiant fight this morning to send warm rays through yellow-looking clouds, but wasn't having much success, although at times his beams took bites at the snow blanket. At noon the temperature was 31 above.

It will remain quite cold here today the forecast today says.

RIGHT TO RANCH

Prince of Wales Will Not Tour Canada on This Trip

St. John, N. B., March 21.—That the Prince of Wales would not make a general tour of the country on his next visit to Canada but proceed direct to Ottawa and thence to his ranch in Alberta was the statement made today by Professor W. Carlyle, manager of the Prince's ranch, who arrived here on the Steamship Montclaire. While nothing definitely had been decided, the Prince, accompanied by Premier Stanley Baldwin, would probably arrive in Canada next August.

PLANE SERVICES OPEN TO POINTS ON HUDSON BAY

Contract to Carry Passengers and Dynamite to Fort Churchill

Hudson, Ont., Mar. 21.— Two giant Fokker monoplanes, "City of Toronto" and "City of Winnipeg" took off from their base here yesterday for Fort Churchill, on Hudson's Bay. The distance of the flight is 850 miles and the aviators are expected to reach the objective today. Although no definite word has been received on the progress of the flight, it is assumed that the fliers will keep to their original schedule which provided for an overnight stop at Norway House in Northern Manitoba, leaving for Cache Lake this morning. The contract entered into by the owners of the planes provides for transportation during the coming months of fifteen Dominion Government engineers and five tons of equipment, including a large shipment of dynamite.

POLICE RECOVER ABANDONED CAR

Abandoned, just outside Grafton, when it ran out of gas, the Buick Sedan owned by Mr. W. O. Middleton which was stolen on Friday evening, was recovered by the Chief constable of Cobourg early yesterday evening and the McLaughlin garage men from Belleville went to Cobourg on Sunday and brought the car back.

The automobile was slightly damaged and had a dry gas tank, and besides its enforced absence has been notified to be on the watch for the culprits who stole it.

On Friday evening Mr. Middleton left his car for a few minutes to transact some business, when upon returning he found the car gone.

Halifax, N. S., March 21.—The National Trust Company was today granted leave to apply for a winding up order in the British Empire Corporation, and the Dominion Steel Corpo. by Mr. Justice Chisholm of Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

HEAVY SNOW BLANKET

Denver, Colo., March 21.—Colorado and Wyoming lay under one of the heaviest snow blankets of the winter today following a storm last night that approached blizzard proportions in many points.

SHANGHAI FALLS TO NATIONALIST FORCES; GENERAL STRIKE FOLLOWS

City Completely Tied Up as Labor Quits Post to Celebrate

LAND EXTRA TROOPS

No Attempt Made Yet to Molest Foreign Concessions

Shanghai, March 21.—Chaos reigned in Shanghai tonight after the fall of the city to the Cantonese this morning. Rioters ran loose in the native quarter all day and tonight a band of Chinese troops, presumably attached to the retreating Northern army, broke through the barrier to the north of the international settlement and began looting.

A British armoured car rushed up in response o the police call for aid. The car was attacked by continuous machine gun fire, Lieut. Newman, Corporal Ainsles and two soldiers were wounded. Another armoured car which accompanied the one in which four men were wounded towed it away under heavy fire, which the British returned. The four men were not seriously hurt.

Looting Break Out

Savage guerilla fighting was going on in native district of Chapei tonight between Shangtungese (Northerners), including white Russians and plainclothesmen of Kuomintang (Cantonese). Several of the latter were reported killed. Fighting as accompanied by the outbreak of serious fires at three points in the native city.

British Soldiers Killed

Shanghai, March 21.—Up to 11 p.m. the forces defending the foreign settlement against Cantonese had suffered twelve casualties, including two killed and ten wounded. Two Punjabi soldiers of the British force were killed by snipers. The wounded comprised five Punjabis, a Russian policeman and four British soldiers.

Cantonese Enter City

Shanghai, March 21.—Shanghai was virtually in control of Chinese Nationalist forces today, the Southerners having entered the native city this morning. When disorders developed near the docks of the International settlement, soon after the Nationalists arrived, fifteen hundred United States Marines were landed, while the Japanese landed nine hundred Marines. Three Punjabis were shot during the disturbances and five of them died later.

Immediately a general strike was ordered to celebrate the coming of the Nationalists. When it went into effect at noon, there was every indication there would be a widespread response by all classes of workers. Trams in the international settlement were the first to cease operations, then effectives in the telephone exchanges left their work. The strike is entirely political as a show of sympathy with the Nationalist victory and to prove the solidarity of labor.

Street Riots Feared

General Pie Shu Chen, commander of the Northern Forces in Shanghai, is reported to have taken refuge in the French concession. The Cantonese have cut the Shanghai-Nanking railway.

Great crowds gathered after the Nationalists arrived and numerous police charges were necessary to clear some of the streets. Volunteer guards were immediately mobilized.

The Nationalist troops which entered the Chinese section of the city this morning were the plain clothed force known as the "Nationalist Army being composed of civilians." The main bomber force was still a few miles from city.

The Nationalist flag is flying over the seat of government and nearly all Chinese depot.

SOME IMPORTANT EVIDENCE GIVEN

Some sensational evidence has developed in the Jerome Keene inquest in Marmora this afternoon and the crowded room has had plenty of thrills as the different witnesses were called. Presided over by Dr. W. S. Harper, the Coroner for the district, the first witness called was W. T. Nugen who was assisted in the search for evidence. He told of finding a bank book showing a balance of $66.20 in the Keene shack.

Charles Cordanier who found the murdered man on February 11th gave his evidence in a quiet manner. He said that he last saw Jerome Keene on November 15th and at that time Keene told him of the bottle he had found in his shack which he thought to be moonshine. He said that Keene was not afraid of anybody. Gordanier admitted that he had a key to the shack. Regarding a shot gun the witness said that he had borrowed one at New Year's to go for hunting and had kept it one week.

Was Suspicious

Asked if the old man was suspicious of anyone, Gordanier said he had been suspicious of John Dell, his neighbour, to whom he had lent money.

George Gordanier, the next witness said that he had gone to the shack of Keene on the afternoon on which the body of Keene was found. He recounted the story of the bottle and endorsed the evidence given by Charles. He said that Keene had told him that his wife had gone to Belleville to consult a Roman Catholic priest who she said had told her that she would never go to Heaven if she lived with a Protestant.

QUICKER THAN DIVORCE BUT POLICE DISAPPROVE

New York, N.Y., March 21.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder today asserted in a statement to the police that Henry Gray, now under arrest in Syracuse, had murdered her husband. Albert Snyder, art editor of a magazine, by order that he might be free to marry her. Gray, according to the woman's confession, beat Snyder to death and then wound picture wire around his throat. After the murder Gray bound Mrs. Snyder in order to throw the aspect of burglary over the crime. Police said Mrs. Snyder had told them she had known Gray for two and a half years and that she wanted her husband out of the way in order that she might marry him.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Never ending, still beginning,
Fighting still, and still destroying,
If the world be worth thy winning,
Think, O think it worth enjoying!

JUST TALK

There are three things for which Canadian orators should be punished by either fine or imprisonment. One of them is to make a reference to "the three thousand border without a soldier or a cannon." The second is that terrible bore of all perorations about "our boundless natural resources." And the third—and rapidly becoming the worst—Mr. Massey, our Minister at Washington, is becoming a daily offender in that persistent protestation about our "loyalty to the Empire and the Throne."

Why on earth should it be necessary to keep eternally protesting about our loyalty? Englishmen don't do it. They sensibly regard their loyalty as something to be taken for granted, as it should be taken for granted. But let a Canadian get on his feet, whether he be an alderman or a Prime Minister, and immediately he begins to protest that he be isn't a GUY FAWKED.

The practice has got to be an infernal nuisance. It's about as appropriate as if men constantly getting up to protest the virtue of their wives.

THE WIDOW'S MIGHT

No fewer than 90,000 British war widows have remarried and so relieved the taxpayers of the land of the sum of their pensions. There remain a total of 240,000 war widows in the United Kingdom, but the proportion of re-marriages is said by government officials to be surprisingly high.

The explanation given is that the war widow was young and usually attractive. In any case she seems to have proven a serious rival of the British spinster, which perhaps is not so very remarkable. The widow's wiles have not waned nor her charms withered, apparently, since the days of Sterne. Uncle Toby's entanglement in the net deftly spread by the Widow Wadman seems to have been repeated a few thousand times in Britain if one may judge from the statistics.

Against the young widow, especially the war widow, the average single young lady has very little chance in the ancient game of snaring a personable and solvent husband. For the widow is not only armed with that inherent consciousness which all women possess in what are known as love affairs, in comparison with the mere male, but she has already served an apprenticeship in the art and mystery of amour, and knows the psychological moment when to extract the proposal and pull the one about it being so sudden. Nevertheless a pension means three meals a day, which a husband may not.

TRANSIENT TRADERS

An amendment introduced in the legislature by Mr. F. T. Sayre, M.L.A. for West Hamilton, increasing the license fee to which transient traders are liable seems to meet with the approval of everybody except the transients, as it must be accepted as good legislation. Transient traders are and have always been the bane of established tax-paying merchants. To permit fly-by-nighters to unload stocks at cut prices in any municipality in competition with dependable merchants who pay property and business taxes is manifestly unfair; to impose a license fee upon these transients that but slightly embarrasses them is ridiculous. Under the act any merchant is classed as a transient trader until such time as his name appears upon the assessment roll. In some cases this may have worked unjustly, many who have secured long-term leases on buildings, with every intention of carrying on indefinitely, having been looked on for payment of the merchant trading fee. In such cases, however, the amount of the tax for which he was liable when his name appeared upon the assessment roll. Established merchants undoubtedly have had cause for complaint in the past. There is one class of transient trader—the personal solicitor and house-to-house canvasser, who taking orders for goods manufactured out of the city and who has no local office—that is anathema to established trade. The amendment to the act, it is interesting to note, is designed to embrace these men whose only overhead is underfoot, i.e., the shoe leather they walk upon.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

The Winnipeg branch of the Journeymen Barbers' Union of America needs strengthening, reports the international secretary. Why not try a little tonic?—Winnipeg Tribune.

—There is no harm is being respected in this world, as I have found out; and if you don't keep a little for yourself, depend on it there is no person of your acquaintance who will tell the world of your merits, and take the trouble off your hands.—Thackeray.

Religion, recently remarked Bishop Woodcock, of Kentucky, is the cheapest modern commodity. . . But to a woman reading of the $1,000,000 plus contributed to Aimee Semple McPherson's religious enterprises and of the $6,000,000 a year income of Zion City's William Glenn Voliva, it seems as if salvation were not in the free class.—New York World.

The secretary of the Canadian Legion branch in Toronto found an ex-soldiers family starving to death, and failing to get the authorities to act, sent in a call to the Humane Society that "five animals" were starving. He soon got action, showing once more that animals often get more attention than human beings.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Chester: I've worked under the same boss for twenty years.

Lester: I can beat that. Next week is my silver wedding anniversary.

Dad (with bitter memories): "Yes."

Two colored men down in Southern Indiana were bewailing the hard times being felt in the agricultural district there. "Times is tighter than I ever seen 'em since I was born," said one. "I can't even get hold of a nickel! If something don't turn up I'm going to start preaching. I done that once and I ain't too good to do it again."

A modern woman's clothing resembles barbed wire; it protects the property without obstructing the view.

A young man was stopped at the door of a Cloverdale residence by the servant with the enquiry "Are you related to the bride or groom?" "No," was the answer.

"Then," said the person, "you will pardon me for asking what interest you have in a ceremony that is to be of the quietest nature?"

"I am the defeated candidate," the young man announced sadly.

RACE RIOTS IN A KANSAS TOWN

Attempt to Take Two Negroes From Hands of Police

Coffeyville, Kas., Mar. 21.—A race riot in which two persons were injured, six a mob of more than a thousand men and women stormed the city jail in an effort to remove three negroes for attacking two white girls, was averted early today when national guard troops patrolling the streets to enforce martial rule.

Infuriated by reports of an attack on the two girls yesterday, groups of men followed the officers about the city in their search for the negroes. Blood hounds soon took up a trail that led to a frame house. A large crowd soon surrounded the building when word announced was present. In an effort to disperse the mob. The riot failed and after reinforcements arrived, one of the fifteen escorted three negroes from the house. By moving slowly through the crowd they made their prisoners to the city jail without incident. The men then stormed the jail and fighting between whites and negroes broke out.

Two men were injured before National guards, wearing steel helmets and war equipment, broke up the riot.

ROADWAYS

One road leads to London,
One road leads to Wales
My road leads me seaward-
To white dipping sails.

One road leads to the river,
As it goes singing slow;
My road leads to shipping,
Where the broomed sailors go.

Leads me, lures me, calls me,
To salt green-tossing sea;
A road without earth's road-dust
Is the right road for me.

A wet road heaving, shining,
And wild with sails' cries,
A mad salt sea-wind blowing,
And salt spray on my eyes.

My road calls me, lures me
West, east, south and north;
Most people lead men housewards,
My road leads me forth.

To add more miles to the tally,
O! gray miles left behind.
In quest of that one beauty,
God put me here to find.

—John Masefield.

PLANS TO MARK DIAMOND JUBILEE MOVE RAPIDLY

Ottawa, Ont., March 21. (C.P.)—Plans for the nation-wide celebration of the Dominion of Canada's 60th birthday are maturing rapidly. This month a committee of 60 representative citizens appointed by Parliament meets in Ottawa to give final approval to the programme now under consideration. Friday, July 1, the day itself, should be the most spectacular Dominion Day in the history of Confederation. By day there will be historical pageants, field days, picnics and military reviews. By night there will be fire works, torchlight processions and 10,000 beacon fires stretching from Cape Breton Island to Vancouver Island. At noon on Dominion Day a salute of guns will be fired from Parliament Hill. Ottawa that will bring across the country in salutes fired by the greater cities of the Dominion.

The government of Great Britain and the other British Dominions will be represented in Canada and invitations have been sent to the United States and to the republics of South America to have similar celebrations of their own on the same day. There will be a Canadian-American feature of the day in the opening of the new Peace Bridge between Buffalo, N.Y., and Fort Erie, Ont. The Canadian end of this span across the Niagara river will be opened to the last rivet—emblem between British and United States peace. The Diamond Jubilee celebration this summer is the first great national event in a title kind since the Tercentenary of 1911. It was held at Quebec City in commemoration of the founding of that city 300 years before. Canada's 20th birthday, which, in times of peace would have been a significant event, was passed with scarcely more than newspaper mention during the most critical days of the War. Now, nearly 10 years after the war Canada is endeavoring to make the 60th birthday of the dawning together of the old colonies and provinces of British North America.

Premier Mackenzie King has persons by charged the initiative in creating the national organization of the Dominion Day festivities. While in London attending the Imperial Conference he requested invitations to His Majesty King George and to the Prince of Wales. Both have however passed both the Empire and the Prince will be in Canada this year but not until August. Premier King outlined the plan to inaugurate the National Committee through the House of Commons recently and at the suggestion of former members extended the committee membership to several labor and agricultural organizations. The bill which has however passed both the House of Commons and the Senate incorporates the committee and provided for $250,000 to meet its expenses. The Canadian Clubs, a national body of patriotic character, has been active in promoting interest in the celebration for several months past. Through the Canadian Clubs 30,000 school houses in Canada are being presented with copies of the famous painting of the Fathers of Confederation.

GIANT INDUSTRY'S POWER PLANT DEPENDENT ON FOUR CYLINDER MOTOR

A hundred feet above street level on the topmost floor of a huge power plant which generates energy to drive five thousand electric motors and operate heat and light for sixty-seven hundred employees, stands a four-cylinder "I" motor. Without this little automobile engine the great power house and the enormous industry it energizes would be powerless to resume operations.

The power house is the most modern in the Dominion, one of the most efficient and up-to-date plants in the world, and though it can develop energy sufficient to convert raw materials into automobiles at the rate of hundreds per day and provide light and warmth and power many thousands of men who tend the wonderful machines employed in the manufacturing processes, it becomes, if not dingy, a dreary place of bare rocks. To meet the situation which would arise in case of a breakdown over being necessary, an absolutely reliable source of power was necessary, so that was provided in the form of a Model "I" motor.

The power house burns pulverized coal and with its three great furnaces develops a total energy of 15,095 kilowatts. The coal, brought to boat in the docks at Ford, Ont., on the Canadian side of the Detroit river, is scooped up in dredges quantities by a huge gantry crane and transferred to crushers from which it is fed through a tunnel beneath a main highway, to the power house. It is carried to the power house on an endless belt and is measured as it is carried, in the power house it is sent to the pulverizers and there converted into a dust as fine as talcum which, mixed with the right quantity of air, is blown into the huge furnaces and burned very much as a jet of vaporized oil or gasoline would burn. This system of coal consumption is so complete that though the furnaces be going full blast, only faint gray wisps of smoke rise from the tops of the great stacks three hundred feet above the ground, and the residue of ash in the ash pits is almost inconsiderably small.

But though the power house is competent to extract practically the last atom of energy from the four hundred tons of coal which is its daily consumption, it is powerless, once shut down, to start itself operating again, for power is required to blow the pulverized coal into the furnaces and there is no outside source of power upon which it relies.

It was not sentiment which prompted the Ford Motor Company of Canada to install the Model "I" motor as the initial power source for its great industry at Ford, Ont. It was the need for a compact, reliable and efficient power plant, and as the motor was set up and connected by a clutch to the primary air blower which carries the pulverized coal into the furnaces. Were the power plant shut down at any time the process of starting it up would be simple. The motor would be cranked, the clutch between it and the primary air blower would be thrown in and pulverized coal mixed with the proper proportion of air would be fed into one of the three great furnaces. Steam would be generated swiftly and in a little while the great dynamos would be whirring, the other furnaces functioning and in the huge machine they and immense body plant. Few thousand motors would be driving the machines, great and small, which daily turn out hundreds of Ford cars and trucks from Canadian raw materials.

ELIZABETHS WON SCORE OF 26 - 13

At the local Y St. the Elizabeths juveniles, Toronto and District basketball champions, scored an easy victory over Belleville High School, Eastern Ontario winners 26—13, winning the round by 49 points, 56—18. The "Lizzies" had no trouble with the locals, and led from the start. The 27-point margin gained in the Toronto game permitted them to take matters easy. The Belleville lads, although outclassed, worked hard and deserve a good deal of credit for the manner in which they fought against such odds. The "Lizzies" at half-time were leading 10-3. In the latter phase of the game the Belleville team began to find the ring and scored 10 points. Elson, Stark, Callander and Starr were winners best and all worked with clock-like precision.

MARKET SPOTLIGHT MOWATT M&M MacGILLIVRAY MINING STOCKS

It is worthy of note that the last week's close in the Mining Market despite the unsettled condition of the more speculative stocks showed that those stocks will definite ly trinate values behind them maintained a firm front and did not give way under the strain. The rise in Nurcuda, Nipissing, Wrighthargreaves, etc., was under the circumstances a very impressive demonstration of underlying strength, which is decidedly reassuring. It is our opinion that the activity of the market for some time to come will be confined to those issues of more or less proven worth.

TWO GIRL CHARMERS PUT HIM IN DOUBT

By ELSE MARLOWE

"How happy could I be with either, Were t'other dear charmer away!"

So went the old song, and it's still going strong in this year of our Lord. Ask Harry. He knows.

DEAR ELSIE:

I am a gentleman of twenty-eight years. I have been keeping company with a young lady for two years; She is eighteen years old now and expects to graduate from a business college some time in March.

I have asked this girl to marry me. However, she says she has a mission in life to fulfill and will not think of marriage for at least two years. She is fully confident that I will wait for her. She comes to me very often for advice. I give her the best I can. I think the world of this girl and know perfectly that she is true to me.

Some months ago I met a young lady twenty-three years old. She is a widow with a child. She has given the child out for adoption, due to her circumstances. I feel sorry for her and have helped her out. I have taken her several places and she has proved a good companion, but I have not got the confidence in her that I have in the other young woman. But, due to the fact of me being so good to this woman she has learned to love me and tells me she could not get along without me.

I haven't the heart to tell either I like the other best, so I hate to witness the outcome of a broken friendship. Both are neat and are good cooks and good housekeepers. The older one is keeping house for an elderly man just now, and doing very well.

Both young women would do anything in their power to please me. I love both in different ways, and both please me very much in many ways.

Now, if you were in my place, what would you do? Just how would you go about doing it?

HARRY.

What'll you do? Don't do anything. If your love for the younger woman isn't strong enough to drive all other loves out of your life, then it certainly isn't strong enough to survive the hazards of marriage. If your desire to be her keeper isn't great enough to offset any fear of disappointing the other, then you'll surely not make good as a husband. And, above all, if you can't make up your mind on this subject, then you'd better retire from the matrimony entirely until you grow some nice hard gristle above the old ears.

For remember, brother, marriage isn't merely a question of falling in love; IT'S A QUESTION OF STAYING PUT AFTER YOU LAND. Any idiot can stall around and flop into a mild romance every few weeks. But it takes a real man to pick out a proposition and stick to it.

How about the woman who thinks that she is being courted by an honorable bachelor and wakes to shattered dreams through the arrival of an angry spouse on the scene. There is the story and "The Other Woman" tells it today.

DEAR ELSIE:

Six months ago I met a man and learned to love him deeply. I was so happy when I was with him. I felt as if I was living in a dream. Yet he never proposed and it began to worry me.

Then one day last week, when I got home from work a woman was waiting for me in the hall. She asked me if I was Miss ——. I said "yes." Then she screamed at me that I had stolen her husband, and swore at me and called me names. Of course, Don was the first thing I thought of, so when he called that night, I told him all about it. I asked him if it was true that he was married. He swore up and down that it was not, so, So I began to think that maybe the woman likes him and is jealous of me, and is trying to hurt us. What do you think?

"THE OTHER WOMAN."

I think you'd better do a little more investigating sister. Your Don doesn't sound so good to me. A few quiet inquiries, which he will never suspect, will put your mind at rest.

Incidentally, I believe this letter will make some other trusting women ask a few questions. How about that tall, fascinating fellow that's been calling on you, Rose? Queer how he's never given you his address, isn't it? And that Wonderful Blonde Papa who took you to dinner last week, Ethel? He gave you his address, didn't he? But when you called the phone number, no one ever heard of him. Yes, it's certainly odd. Better watch your step, sisters. Some night YOU'LL be coming home from work to find a Mad Mama sitting on your doorstep.

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am twenty-one and am considered a very pretty girl—but my near by is pretty as I was three years ago. Worry sure—one and makes men eyes look dull—reflecting unhappiness.

I have been married three years. I love my husband, but he does not make me happy. He is a commercial traveler, home for a few months, then he gets restless and so dissatisfied that he makes both of us lives miserable. At such times he always wants to wander.

He left me one time and I took him back. I love him more now than I did then and I cannot bear the thought of losing him again. Next Spring he had another spell of wandering. I managed to bring him out of it. But this time I am afraid I may fail.

I have not failed him in any way. I have only loved him too much. His attitude is that he has always had the wanderlust. I don't know what to do. Should I let him go and try to forget him?

I love him better than my own life and I don't believe could ever be happy with anyone else. But I can't keep taking him back again and again.

I work and make more money than he does. I have lots of ambition and want to have something and be somebody. I love him, though, and I would be willing to wait patiently the rest of my life if it were worth while.

He says he loves me but he just isn't ready to settle down and give up his boy friends. He is such a kid, just twenty-two. Would you advise me to give him more time?

A. M.

A. M.: You are in a situation that is indeed difficult. But apparently you love your husband sufficiently to be patient. I know you have been already. But remember, he is very young. It is possible that in time he will develop a sense of responsibility that he now lacks.

However, you can do much toward that end. Don't nag. And don't bore your keeper and show any jealousy of his friends. Do everything in your power to make your home the most attractive and entertaining place in the world. Invite the very friends whom you think are responsible for his erratic behaviour, to come and see you both. In short, do everything in your power to make your husband realize that he can have a better time at home than elsewhere. If he finds his home positively entertaining, he will not be so ready to wander.

Perhaps the strongest weapon is the negative one of making no demands upon your husband. I imagine it is hour of responsibility that irks him most. He feels that you are trying to curtail his liberty. Make it clear to him that you understand his wish to have the companionship of men and that he is free to seek his friends on certain specified evenings during the week.

"The next time that he is gripped with the wanderlust, you might point out that he may find you there one or more times, but that sometime when he tires of wandering and comes home, he won't find you waiting patiently as on other occasions. But be careful not to make the statement seem too much like a threat. Simply explain to him very reasonably, that he cannot expect you to continue patiently at home waiting for the day that he chooses to return, but before you suggest to him the possibility of losing you and his home, you must make sure that that home with you as its mistress is sufficiently attractive to have gripped his imagination.

Here and There

Of the 226,000,000 acres of land known to produce the 1926-27 wheat crop of the world, Canada sowed about 10 per cent.

Alberta, formerly 100 per cent. straight wheat farming country, has changed radically in this respect in the last fifteen years. The wheat yield of 1926 represented only 45 per cent. of the value of the agricultural products, which totaled $284,000,000 for the year, the greatest in the history of the province.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER LIX.
THE HUNGRY HEART

There evenings here, Christine was leaving the publishing house where she now worked, and was turning over in her mind the eternal question of what to have for supper, when a long gray car drew up beside her at the curb. Her heart did a funny little somersault as she saw Clifford Vane's smiling eyes and heard his greeting. She climbed happily in beside him, in obedience to words that were more of a command than an invitation.

"What a coincidence to run into you again!" she said-ish. "I know so few people in New York that I rarely have the pleasure of seeing a familiar face. It's not a coincidence at all," he answered simply. "I've driven past your office every evening around five o'clock hoping to meet you."

She felt a wild sense of exultation. The color rose in her cheeks, but she asked quite primly:

"How did you know where I worked?"

He smiled down at her.

"Very simple. As a witness, you told all about yourself."

She thought his over for a while in silence.

So! He had been interested enough even then to remember her replies as a witness.

Finally she said, with a dejicate smile:

"What else do you know about me?"

"I know that you were born Christine Farr; that your age is —— well, something too ridiculous to believe, for a child like you; that you are a widow."

"Oh!" Christine uttered the little exclamation thoughtfully.

She wasn't a widow! She had had no right—until the court, that! Yet, how could she have explained about her marriage to Lewis Harvey? Her marriage that was no marriage—when she neither knew his name nor lived in the same city with him?

If he had been so much simpler to tell herself Christine likened to everybody, to remain the widow of Harvey. None of her acquaintances, except Nina, knew of her marriage to Lewis.

She turned her head to Vane's elegant profile. Should she tell him the truth? What was there about him that made her want to be honest with him?

Confession was on the tip of her tongue. How simple it would be to say "You are wondering why I am riding after my husband's death, but my second and I live apart!"

Her conscience told her to play the game—if, by any chance, there was to be a game—straight and clean. Even Nina, with her twisted code, had chided her for her silence!

"But the Christine of the hair remonstrated: "No. It's your own affair. No need to tell."

So she only said:

"I hope, you know, too, that I have a little daughter?"

His gaze swept her face.

"Is she like you?"

"No." She shook her head slowly. "I don't let her be like me. Life looks simple to me too much—for cruelty—for tragedy we hurt ourselves."

Annie he looked at her keenly, but she felt the kindliness behind that gray eyed glance.

"Tell me," he asked, "was it because of your little daughter that you refused to take tea with me the first day we met? You see," he smiled at her humorously, "a man likes to have his vanity salved by a legitimate excuse for a refusal."

Christine was momentarily tempted to use Louise for an excuse. Motherhood is always a charming pose. But again that power impelled to honesty took possession of her. This time she didn't try to fight it down.

She answered truthfully: "No, that wasn't the reason."

"I see," he said gravely.

After a moment of silence, he turned the car into a less congested street.

"Will you answer a question frankly, Mrs. Blaine?"

"Of course," she nodded mordringly. (To be continued)

The Dominion-wide celebration of Canada's sixtieth year of Confederation which is being planned for July of this year, will be the most remarkable and extensive ever held. The last links of a united Canada were placed in position forty years ago with the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is in furthering the bond between the peoples of the east and the west that this country will be engaged to a large extent during the celebration.

One of the most spectacular of plans for bringing the people of all parts of Canada together under pleasant auspices and at the same time affording them an opportunity of gaining greater first hand knowledge of their country through personal contact has been arranged by the New Outlook, official organ of the United Church of Canada.

On June 25th, a "million dollar" special train will leave Toronto with a limited number of passengers from the eastern provinces aboard, and follow the confederation route. This "nation-wide special," as it will be called, will be operated on the all-expense plan which will enable practically all who have the time to travel to do so. It will touch all the principal cities and resorts in the east and operate for twenty-one days. The hospitality of the westerners is well known, so it is not surprising to learn that when the first announcement of the trip was made, organizations and individuals in every city included in the itinerary offered to entertain the party for eight seeing and enjoyment. The latest invitation is from the Prince of Wales Branch of Hull River to which the members of the Canadian train party will motor from Calgary on July 1st.

U.S. RADIO CO. IS ABSOLUTELY CAN. PIONEERS

Combined Resources Promises Great Stimulus To Industry

Toronto, March 21.—A surprise awaited the radio industry today when it became known that Major J. E. Hahn, D.S.O., M.C., pioneer radio manufacturer, and his brilliant group of associates had taken over the Amrad Corporation of Medford Hillside, Boston, Mass.

Few romances hold the intense interest of Major Hahn's extraordinary radio career. Heading the De Forest Radio Corporation of Canada in 1923 in less than four years he has brought to this company from comparative obscurity to the leading position it holds today in the industry.

The De Forest Radio Corporation is said to be the largest manufacturer of radio sets in the British Empire. With the acquisition of the Amrad Corporation, Major Hahn now becomes an international figure holding the presidency of both Amrad and the Canadian De Forest Radio Corporation.

In view of the tremendous engineering and research resources commanded by the Amrad Corporation, as well as valuable patent rights, a great stimulus will undoubtedly be given to the Canadian radio industry within the coming year.

Millionaires Have Taken to Writing Songs For Amusement

Tin Pan Alley Accepts One Hit From John Golden, Producer

New York City—The newest sport for American millionaires is song writing. One item in Tin Pan Alley has recently received buyers from three different millionaires. Only one of the three sets was accepted. The other two were submitted under assumed names and not until after they had been refused were their authors known.

The lucky millionaire whose song was accepted is John Golden, famous theatrical producer. His song is "Your Heart Looked Into Mine," it is Mr. Golden's second attempt at lyric writing. The first was "Poor Butterfly," produced as a chorus in Tin Pan Alley.

Mr. Golden and Ray Hubbell, composer, who collaborated with him on "Your Heart Looked Into Mine," believe that the song resulted from what was almost an accident. The two were at the beach at Miami, members of a gay swimming party.

"I've read an idea for a melody," said Hubbell, explaining to Golden the theatrical producer. Hubbell then and there hummed a tune. It was nothing out of the ordinary, but Golden thought he might make some words for it. He went to his bathing suit and wrote a poem.

"I'll be running, I guess," Hubbell told me when he got back, "and he found a woman with her head under a beach parasol. He explained that his friend had suddenly become inspired to write a song. Would she lend him paper and pencil?

The woman, all aflutter for fear the words might be lost if there should be a delay, hurried to Golden with the necessary tools. The lyric was written then and there, mailed to New York and accepted at once by a music publisher.

Incidentally, the millionaire producer is as proud of it as he is of any of his list of theatrical successes which includes "Turn to the Right," "Lightnin'," "Three Wise Fools," "The First Year," "Dear Me," "Thank-U," "Pigs," and "Seventh Heaven." In a sense, Golden's latest venture is a throwback to the past. He started his career as a newspaper rhymster,

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

To heat dinner plates safely, hold them under the hot water faucet for a few minutes, then dry at once. The old method of heating in the oven will eventually bring cracks and discoloration.

Waxed paper should be kept in a roll in a kitchen drawer for wrapping lunch, cakes, cheese and every other kind of food whose moisture should be preserved.

Knitted wool sweaters are very likely to sag at the shoulders and in this way spoil their appearance. A bit of ribbon the length of the shoulder of the person from neck to armhole, attached securely at each end to the sweater will prevent the shoulders from sagging.

EVANGELISTS HAVE SPLENDID MEETINGS

The Evangelistic Services in Holloway Street Church yesterday were very largely attended and were of unusual interest. Mr. Leonard's solos and the choruses by the choir and congregation were of a high order.

Dr. Crossley's address in the morning was rightly named, "Clearing Away the Mists," as it certainly dispelled the mists from many minds regarding the Victorious Life.

"The Unpardonable Sin," was the subject of the night discourse, from the text, Mark 3:29. We give but a few of the sentences in this important address. The preacher said, "The blasphemy against the Holy Ghost is ascribing works evidently done by the power of the Lord as having been done by Satan. It, however, is only one of the evidences of the unpardonable sin having been committed. The unpardonable sin is not any act or expression, but is a state of mind that a person may reach by aiding sin to sin, or living in the darkness of unbelief, until his spiritual perceptions are destroyed, and he reaches that state that is variously described in the Bible as "heart waxed great", "subverted", "reprobate mind" and many feeling. The Lord will receive and forgive everyone that comes to Him, but when a person reaches this state he will have no thought or desire to come; he has destroyed himself.

"If a person has any thought or fear of having committed this sin, or has any desire to be a Christian he has not committed this sin, and such a one may trustingly yield to the Lord and rest in Him.

"Men and women past twenty, thirty, forty, or many years of age and are not now Christians, are in great danger of reaching this irreparable state by the very force of habit, as also by not using their spiritual faculties they cease to function. Careful records show that out of one hundred persons who become Christians only two of them are past 40, only five between 30 and 40, only thirteen between 20 and 30, while eighty out of the 100 who become confirmed Christians, do so before they are 20 years of age. In our former campaigns in Belleville we saw a number enlist that were between 40 and 85. The Lord will gladly welcome, forgive, save and keep everyone who entrusts himself or herself to Him. Now is the day of Salvation."

SENIOR INDOOR BASEBALL LOOP OPENS TONIGHT

Big Crowd Expected at Armouries For Double-header This Evening

The local Senior Indoor League opens with a bang at 8 p.m. tonight when Jim McKenna's pets, the Foster Ward outfit clash with the strong Patricias who are out to win the battle without a loss they say. The Pats have J. Fairburn heaving for them with Capt. Ev. Whalen on the receiving end. That pair backed up by players like Miles, Curry, Lynch, May, Wesse, the Rainbird sisters and a host of other stars will be a hard nut to crack, but McKenna says that his gang are ready to go and take a fall out of the Pats. With the Knott sisters as battery and Crull and Smith as relief pitchers along with Gaskin who starred at first with Desero, the two Adams girls, Mary and Jessie, Pegg and some more dark horses the Wardens expect to take the Pats into camp no drop around and see the battle.

At 9 p.m. the C.N.R. entertain the league champs, Point Anne. The champs headed by "Sonny" Green are all primed to go and it looks like a real battle as the C.N.R. have O'Donahue and Hurley all primed to do the heaving with "Scotty" Knott doing the receiving and others like Young, Gibson, Amo, Williams, Symons, Hagerman and a few more, that will round out a real team so that the fans will sure see a real battle.

Every thing is ready for the "umps" to holler "play ball" so get there early and see the fun start at 8 p.m. All spectators are to be in the gallery so the early fan gets the best seat.

SENATORS WIN OVER TORONTO

Canadiens Blank Maroons 5-0—Pirates Lose To Hawks

Toronto, Mar. 21. — Weakening under the pressure of a terrific assault staged by their opponents in the closing minutes of the game, Toronto Maple Leafs were forced to accept a 2 to 0 defeat at the hands of the League-leading Ottawa Senators at Arena Gardens Saturday night in a scheduled National Hockey League fixture. The game marked the fifth meeting of the two teams th's season. The first game ended in a tie, but in the other three the Senators scored consecutive triumphs. However, for sixteen minutes and six seconds of Saturday night's struggle, the some 4,000 fans who witnessed the performance were given reason to hope that the dominion of the "Blueshirts" over the Maple Leafs was due to end for the locals besides battling with their opposition on even footing for that length of time, were already victims of bad breaks.

Windsor, Mar. 21.—Herberts was the star of a 3 to 1 victory for Boston over Detroit in a National Hockey League game here Saturday night, making two of the Bruins goals. The game was rough, flaring into a fist fight in the third period, which resulted in major penalties.

Montreal, Mar. 21—The exultant Canadiens concluded their quota of home games in the National Hockey League campaign by scoring their consecutive triumph in its games over the Montreal Maroons, when they blanked the present titleholders, 5-0 at the Forum Saturday night.

With second string players thrown into the breach to replace injured and ailing regulars, the Maroons were no match for the dashing Canucks, who breezed through the contest, continuing their scoring ability while the Maroons were scratching dirt in a futile effort to score at least one goal. The defeat was equal to the worst even inflicted on the titleholders in their three years of pro hockey and the shutout marked the tenth scored by Canadiens in the N. H. L. this season.

Chicago, Mar. 21.—Chicago Black Hawks defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Hockey League Saturday night, 3 to 2, in an overtime hockey game.

QUEEN CITY MAY BUY OLD POND

Toronto, Ont., March 21 (C.P.)—The City of Toronto is considering the purchase of Grenadier Pond, in High Park, which gets its name from the story that a whole company of the Royal Grenadiers in 1812 were drowned in the pond while they fell through the ice. It is related that the company was on the march to Burlington from Toronto, and their way took them across the pond, which was covered by the trail. They never arrived at Burlington and were never heard of again. The assumption that all were drowned in the pond was supported later on, when as the ice melted, several caps and other pieces of equipment were found. There was never a sign of the body. The placid waters are the resort of many romantically-inclined comrades in summer, and of cheery skating and snow-shoe parties in winter, and has superb natural beauty.

By "The Observer"

The Stratford Beacon-Herald carried a full page act of pictures with a small sketch of each player on Thursday. The Stratford team have reached the finals with London for the championship of the "Canpro" League. The following is a brief survey of "Toots" Holway's hockey career.—

"TOOTS" HOLWAY — Defence—Holway is the tallest player on the Nationals, roster and is "built to last." He is one of the steadiest defence players in the Canpro loop. If the Nationals win the championship, he will be no new experience for Holway, for last year he was a member of the world's championship Montreal Maroons. He is a native of Belleville, where he learned to play hockey. He played for Belleville junior and intermediate teams and then migrated to Brockville. His work there attracted the attention of the Toronto St. Patricks. He played two seasons with the Saints and then was acquired by the Montreal Maroons. He joined the Nationals early in the season. He is the property of the Stratford club.

Holway has placed a place for himself in the hearts of Stratford hockey fans through his fine work.

Stratford Beacon-Herald —Harold Hicks, "Toots" Holway, "Happy" Emms and Marty Burke are following in the footsteps of Bill Touhey.

Some weeks ago, Touhey was initiated into the mysteries of golf in the golf school conducted by Jim Cook in the Beacon-Herald building, and he immediately became a hopeless fan.

Yesterday Touhey left his mates out to the Stratford Country Club where they staged a match. They quit after losing the dawn hills they brought with them. No confirmation of the report that "Hopper" Emms had had eleven of them could be obtained.

President rumors of a surprise general election induced Ramsay MacDonald to warn Labor to be ready for quick organization.

Y'S MEN LOSE TO ELIZABETHS 35-12

Toronto Champions Show Too Much Class For Local Basketeers

Saturday afternoon the members of the Y's Men basketball team journeyed to Toronto to play a scheduled fixture with the Elizabeths of that city, intermediate champions of the T. & D. On the large playing court at Central, the Toronto representatives proved a bit too strong for the local basketeers. For the first five minutes of play with neither team able to register a score, it looked as if the game would be close but half way through the initial period the Lizzies commenced dropping them in where the Belleville forwards were experiencing difficulties in locating the "hoops". At half time the score board showed 16-6 for the playground quintette and Sammy Gold the Ruby-Elizabeth forward was responsible for the most of his team's score. The key man of the winners, Gold was all over the big Central court and entered into almost every play the team mustered, with the result the Y's Men's defence found it very difficult task to keep tag on him.

Defensively the Y's Men showed to much advantage than on the offensive. Although considerably outscored, by checking back on the advance of their opponents the locals broke up attack after attack on their goal, which threatened to give the winners even a greater margin on the score column. When it came to penetrating the opposing defence the Armstrong-Weir-Kerr combination found the opposition of the home will order and when they were able to penetrate for a shot, very often they were fooled in the set.

The Lizzies play the return game here on the 26th and the locals are strongly of the opinion there will be a different story to tell after Saturday night's game.

The teams.

BELLE THEATRE

The excitement of having several flower pots shattered over their heads and spears thrown to within a foot of their bodies, crowds itself into the mother pleasure experience of only a few seconds playing.

"Fighting Love" Jetta Goudal and Victor Varconi were obliged to go through that thrilling and dangerous experience three times before director Nils Olaf Chrisander called quits.

The pair were playing together in a sequence that called for their escape from the fury of an Arab army, and they were crouching under an archway when a flower pot, shattered by a bullet fired by an expert rifleman hired for the purpose, emptied its contents of earth and geranium stems all over Jetta's head. Hardly had she recovered from the shock when another broke above her.

A long spear was buried from behind the cameras recording the scenes and the long weapon hit the laundry into a wooden beam, poised indecisively for a moment and then slid out, to handle striking Victor Varconi on the head.

The scene was one of the most exciting and dangerous they had ever taken part in, the players agreed, and Chrisander added that it was the most ticklish situation he had directed in a long time.

In addition to Jetta Goudal, the star, and Victor Varconi, "Fighting Love," which comes to the Belle Theatre today features Henry B. Walthall.

REGENT THEATRE

Corinne Griffith proves herself the champion of the romantic working girl in "Syncopating Sue," her latest comedy vehicle, which comes to the Strand next Monday.

Having won an enviable reputation in previous pictures for the manner in which she portrayed stately, dramatic and emotional roles, Miss Griffith recently turned to another type of picture and showed a talent for portraying the typical New York working girl.

BEVY OF BEAUTIES ON C.P.R. TRIP

Here they are all piled up on the gangway after their 29-day voyage to the West Indies and the northern countries of South America on the C.P.S.S. Montreal which has just docked in New York. On their voyage they touched at thirteen countries and fourteen ports and the weather was perfect during the whole trip. They left New York in the height of the northern winter and within twenty-four hours were within the summer zone of the Bermudas and they enjoyed the amenities of summer for four full weeks until they got back to a climate which was then beginning to show some signs of spring. Those that accompanied them must have had a good time, irrespective of climate, judging by this photograph.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

Oshawa, March 21.—Mr. and Mrs. James Wesson, 111 Louise street, Oshawa on Saturday celebrated their golden anniversary.

DOG SHOT NEAR PORT HOPE

Port Hope, March 21.—Mystery surrounds a valuable German police dog and the theft of a female of the same breed from the Port Hope poultry farm near there, early Saturday morning. A. B. Curtis, owner of the farm, visited his kennels at six o'clock Saturday morning and found one of the dogs covered by blood and in great pain. Investigation disclosed that the beast had been shot.

QUEEN'S WON

Kingston, March 21.—A team representing Queen's University won the decision over a Toronto team on Friday afternoon in Convocation Hall, when it supported the negative side of the subject, "Resolved that Western Civilization is Tending Toward Decay."

FROM AUSTRIA

Kingston, March 21.—On Saturday morning Mr. A. W. Stroud, local representative of the Employment Service of Canada received a letter from Drucksache, Austria, from a man who was anxious to get work in the Kingston district. The letter was addressed, Manager of Employment at Kingston, Canada, Ontario.

REV. A. H. CREEGAN

Kingston, March 21.—Rev. A. H. Creegan, local Dean of Hastings County, has been made a canon in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, because of his long and faithful service among the Indians on the Tyendinaga reserve. The announcement was made this morning by His Lordship Bishop Seager and at the same time the appointment of Rural Dean Creegan to be rector of Christ's Church, Gananoque, was made public. He will assume his new duties on May 1st.

For twenty-four years Rev. Mr. Creegan has been in charge of Tyendinaga near Deseronto, where he endeared himself to the people of that community. They will learn with regret that he is to be moved to a new field of labor.

RINK FOR OSHAWA

Oshawa, March 21.—Three apartment buildings are being contemplated for this city. One of them will be located, it is understood, on Simcoe street south, near Quebec street.

Plans are also being considered for the erection of a new skating rink. It was learned today that the building would cost in the neighborhood of $25,000. Several permits have been issued this week for the erection of dwellings.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Pric fessler are favoring a new headdress of bitter weak effect of pearl a la Juliet cap.

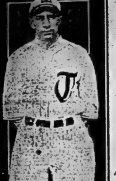

Jewelled ornaments and pins are going to have a tremendous popularity and Paris milliners are so raiding for old-fashioned bits of paste and jewellery for they give a unique "racket" to the simple hat of felt or georgette.

A new musical experiment was recently tried at the Queen's Hall by Dame Ethel Smyth, when her concerto for horn, violin, and orchestra—a combination which has never before been used was conducted by Sir Henry Wood.

Lady Eleanor Smith declaring that Spanish women seem to be even fonder of their national sport than are the men is mistaken.

I know of a man who received a lovely bouquet-in debutante to one of the big Seville fetes. Just as he was feeling quite physically sick his companion clasped her hands and exclaimed with sparkling eyes: "Oh, doesn't the blood look beautiful in the sunshine!"

Lady Astor plays a hard game of tennis and is one of the increasing number of women who have adopted what was once the exclusively masculine recreation of squash rackets, and Lord Astor built a squash court at his Cliveden residence; there is another at the house he gave as a present to his wife at Sandwich, and now Lady Astor is having a court built at the top of their house in St. James Square.

Ciril Schmehl, Toronto Maple Leafs' all-round utility infielder, who recently suffered an operation and may not report until late in the training campaign.

Sandals with high French heels for daytime wear of Castilian red kid, shell grey and rose blush leather are somethup new, and they combine the badora Duncan-Greek look with the feminine daintiness of Paris—avoiding that flat down on the earth feeling of the ancient sandal, while the evening ones are in silver and gold brocade.

Models from Paris have arm-holes extending from the shoulder to the waist line, and these dolman sleeves —so far they are being used chiefly for afternoon frocks—are of some soft, graceful silk material, but there are rumors from the Rue de la Paix that many of the smarties, summer frocks of voile and muslin will also have these wide-lapped sleeves.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

The strength of character which had enabled Picnic to hold her own, to protect herself in camp, among the tough wild men there, came to her aid now. She let no fine now; but explaining that she was going on a short spree, she started on the following morning after Rafe's departure. To the latter there seemed nothing unreasonable or singular in her actions; to take a place lodging and spend some money upon you get it, was the usual mode of procedure at Jumping Jane, and many a man had gone off with his pockets full of gold, to return, after a brief period, penniless. If not penitent.

Picnic was fortunate enough to enlist one of the fast liners, and she enjoyed second class. At the end of the voyage she found herself in London, absolutely alone and friendless. No need to speak of the effect the great city had upon the inexperienced girl, who had been brought up in a mining camp, hidden in a remote valley shadowed by hills, which seemed to shut it off from the rest of the world. And what a world was this which she had plunged into! She was confused and bewildered by the close sense of houses, the crowds, the noise, the toil and rush, the unceasing movement.

At the terminus itself, her heart failed her, and she had thought of turning back, but a friendly porter, seeing that she was alone, and guessing at her despair, came to her aid and directed her to the home of a friend of his—where she could get a room.

It was a mean house, in one of the shabby streets—Caroline Street, off the Euston Road—and as she looked at it and then round her, she drew a long breath, as if she were stilling for want of air. The house was a respectable one, and the landlady, a comfortable, good-natured body, at once took on interest in the friendless girl. She led Picnic up to a room, which, though no smaller than the hut in which she had lived so contentedly at Jumping Jane, was an attic, looking out upon an endless vista of roofs and chimneys, from which issued volumes of smoke, that darkened the sky and seemed to choke her.

Picnic felt very near tears—but she drove them back and plunged to work. She was in London. Rafe must be somewhere near her; she would see him. So with that new resolution ensuring for all her trouble on the long journey, this prison of streets and houses! That first night she lay awake, listening to the dull roar of the street, the striking of the clock; but in the morning, after a short, dream-haunted slumber, she rose, strengthened by her determination, by the assurance that she should ever more and immediately look for Rafe, that he must be in search of him. But before long she was too intelligent not to realize that Rafe, in his changed circumstances, would not be found in this crowded and squalid part of London. Returning to the house, she set out on excursion with the landlady, and, without mentioning Rafe's new name, she described, in a roundabout way, that the wealthy people lived in quite a different part of the town, in a mysterious region referred to by the landlady as "the West Head."

That same afternoon, excitedly directed by the good woman, Picnic made her way westward. She had expected to find a number of grand houses, standing in parks and meadows. The houses certainly were very smooth, amazingly so, but they were all in rows, interminable streets of them, and Picnic felt that it would be impossible to find Rafe there as it had been in the crowded, shabby region which she had left.

She found herself toward evening standing at the corner of a street, looking about her hopelessly and despondently. Several of the passers-by had looked at her curiously, and presently a policeman, who had been walking up from the other side of the road, crossed over to her.

"Well, my girl," he said, "who are you looking for? He's late, isn't he?"

Picnic crimsoned, but there was a smile in the young policeman's eye and about his lips which reassured her.

"Yes, I'm not waiting for anybody," she replied desperately. "I'm doing no harm." She paused as he regarded her uncertainly, and then she blurted out: "Have you ever heard of a — a person called Strandyce?"

She pronounced the name slowly, dwelling on the syllables, and the policeman, after rubbing his chin and considering her thoughtfully, said, with a smile.

"Well, yes, should think so! Why the papers is full of him! But what do you want to know for?" he asked suspiciously, as he experienced eye except over her poor attire.

"I only want to know where he lives."

The tone of settlers into western Canada for 1927 commenced in earnest recently when two special Canadian Pacific trains brought more than 400 persons into Winnipeg. About 200 of the new arrivals were destined for Manitoba; 100 to Saskatchewan, while Alberta and British Columbia absorbed the rest about equally.

The value of building and construction contracts awarded in Canada in 1926 was $372,047,000, compared with $297,503,000 in 1925, an increase of 25 per cent. Last year's total was the highest for several years. Development in the mining, power and paper industries in Canada was an important factor contributing to the activity in building during the past year.

When the Canadian Pacific steamship Montreal docked recently at New York, after completing her first cruise to the West Indies of the year, she established a floating mart of sorts, for there were assembled on board over 200 love birds, parrots and monkeys. These pets were bought by passengers on the cruise. During the month's cruise the vessel touched at fourteen ocean ports and visited thirteen countries.

Sweeping reduction in the rates of electricity to all sorts of consumers has been announced by a leading electrical company in New Brunswick. The new rates are being filed with the New Brunswick Board of Public Utilities. Under the new schedule of rates the householder will be able to secure electricity for as low as 3 cents a kilowatt hour, the same rates applying to stores and offices.

Good seed corn, under the joint direction of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture, the Dominion Seed Branch and the Manitoba Agricultural College, in conjunction with the Canadian Pacific Railway, are touring the province. The train consists of a lecture car, a baggage car with types of all modern farming mills and other machines; a horticultural car which is the first to be operated in Canada, lectures and demonstrations are given at each stop.

PUZZLE OF JEROME KEENE'S DEATH DEFIES SOLUTION

1926 Big Year For Canadian Railways --- Murder And Looting In Captured City Of Shanghai

MURDERED BY PARTY UNKNOWN SAYS JURY IN KEENE MYSTERY

In Month's Investigation Police Have Unearthed No Definite Clue

STILL PROBING

Crown Attorney Donnan Scores Witness For Apparent Reluctance

(By a Staff Reporter)

At 6.15 yesterday afternoon the Jury in the Jerome Keene murder case brought in an open verdict after being out but a few minutes.

At the conclusion of the inquiry the authorities had gained no further headway and Jerome Keene's assassin at large. The police will continue to probe deeper into the mystery but every possible clue has been followed up closely and although several suspects are known, there has been nothing of a definite nature presented itself which might eventually lead to the apprehension of the murderer.

Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, in addressing the Jury told them that an open verdict appeared as the only alternative means of reaching a conclusion in the inquest. There were plenty of points developed which might point at an accusing finger at several parties, but no one individual on the strength of the evidence, could be held.

Mr. Donnan pointed out the chief features of the evidence submitted in the hearing. He said he believed the man who left the poison liquid in the shack was guilty of the shooting.

Inspector Stringer, of the Provincial Police Headquarters, Toronto, has been assisting Constable McCoy in the investigation.

The Verdict

The following is the verdict as rendered:—

We, the Jury, empanelled to determine where, how and by what means Jerome Keene came to his death, find that he met death while asleep on Lot 16, Concession 4 of the Township of Marmora, on some date after Dec. 20th, 1926, and before Feb. 10th, 1927, as a result of being shot in the head by two charges from a shot-gun at the hands of a person or persons unknown.

Marmora-Town Hall was transformed from a drab, dismal room to one of considerable activity yesterday afternoon, when the inquest to determine into Keene's death was opened.

Jerome Keene was a recluse who was found on Feb. 17th in a lonely shack near the village of Marmora, with two large gun-shot wounds in his head.

The inquest has been twice postponed on the request of the Crown, but Coroner W. S. Harper ordered that the inquiry be proceeded with yesterday afternoon.

At two o'clock the hall was jammed to fullest capacity, even the balcony and platform being occupied. The tragedy has stirred the village of Marmora to its very depths as Keene was well known in that locality.

Late in Starting

Owing to the non-arrival of officials of the court the inquiry was late in starting.

The Jury was composed of the following:—Frank Combe, Foreman; H. Gillen, W. Smith, S. Moffatt, A. T. Neal, T. Warren, W. R. Linn, F. Johnston, W. Forrester.

James Gordanier acted as Coroner's Constable and called the Jury and R. C. Donnan, of Belleville, appeared for the Crown.

PROGRESS MADE BY CAN. ASSOC. OF RAILROADERS

H. P. Flagler, Chairman; T. H. Norton, Sec.-Treas.; H. A. Hogan, Director, the Belleville deputation who attended the three-day session of the Canadian Association of Railroad Engineers, returned to the city on Saturday bringing an optimistic report of work accomplished by the newer founded organization. So far seven hundred men of the Ontario Division of the old Grand Trunk have joined and organizers are now covering the Stratford Allandale and Palmerston districts. The organization will report the steps so far taken to correct the agreement of May, 1926, to officials of the C.N.R. in the immediate future.

REMANDED

Abraham Robinson's Case Held Over For One More Week

Abraham Robinson appeared before Justice of the Peace Newton this morning and was remanded for another week as the reports of the two alienists who examined him have but arrived here yet.

He wants to get back to his farm and said so this morning, but he will have to remain in Belleville until he is either proved a sane and responsible man, or else is confined in some institution for the mentally defective.

Mr. Charles Payne, Abe's counsel, stated this morning that if the decision of the alienists was adverse to his client, he would fight the decision to the bitter end.

KAISER LIKELY TO REMAIN EXILED

Berlin, March 22.—Opposition to any possible return of former Emperor William to Germany was re-expressed in Reichstag yesterday in statements by Centrist, Democratic and Social Democratic. Statements were made during discussion on proclamation of law calling the former Kaiser, which expires on July 1. "He is a prisoner outside, there is no room for him in Germany," was brief expression of Social Democrats.

TEN MINUTES

Members of Parliament to Limit Their Oratory

London, March 22.—A movement is on foot among the members of the House of Commons to limit action in the length of speeches by minor members. Instead of the forty minute time limit suggested in the Canadian Parliament, the proposal here is that back benchers submit at a self-denying ordinance of ten minutes for each speech.

DOCTOR IS HELD IN GIRL'S DEATH

Faces Charge of Manslaughter and Bail is Fixed at $20,000

Toronto, Mar. 22.—Dr. Oswald C. Withrow appeared in police court today on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Ruth Dembner, who died at Gravenhurst on February 19. He was remanded for eight days, bail being set at $20,000, which up till noon had not been obtained.

Coroner's Inquest Resumes

Dr. Withrow's arrest was made at the city Morgue immediately after the jury had returned a verdict to Chief Coroner M. M. Crawford, which was based on a mass of evidence taken in four sessions, the main features of which were presented yesterday and included the testimony of Dr. W. J. Deadman, pathologist, of Hamilton, who said there was no doubt in his mind that Miss Dembner had died from acute peritonitis, due to an illegal operation.

Bertlett J. Brooks was mentioned in the verdict as he is an accessory before and after the operation.

Besides left the Morgue with his counsel, R. S. Robertson, K.C., he had spent two and one-half hours on the witness stand during which he was warned by Coroner M. Crawford that he must tell the truth and was recalled twice during the session.

BARN BURNED IN OWNERS ABSENCE

Brockville, Ont., March 22.—A large frame barn on the property W. J. McCoy, about four miles west of Brockville was totally destroyed by fire early today. A barking dog aroused a young man named Slack who was in charge of the premises and he succeeded in saving the cattle and swine. The building was totally destroyed with its contents, the fire originating in the cow-byre. Owners where they are important witnesses for the crown in the trial of Albert DeBruyn charged with murder. He was at their home DeBruyn and his son George, arrived and remained on Saturday P. M., when DeBruyn left for Brockville and his common-law wife Jane Lamoreux lost her life.

20 LIVES BELIEVED LOST IN STORM

Odessa, Mar. 22.—Twenty-seven persons are believed to have drowned today when the Greek steamer Odysseus was wrecked by a hurricane in the Black Sea. The Odysseus, which carried five thousand tons of grain, was near Constantinople when struck by the storm.

CARRIED TO THE BOTTOM OF SEA HE STILL LIVES

Digby, N.S., March 22.—To be dragged down through forty fathoms of water to the bottom of the sea, protected in a cylinder of steel scallop drags, was the shocking experience of Roland Haines, seventeen, a member of the crew of a local scallop boat yesterday. Haines is resting comfortably with a fair chance for recovery.

When the agonies with which seallop fishermen scoop up shellfish from the bottom of the bay was being trimmed for lowering over board, young Haines became entangled in the gear and went over with it. His companions immediately cut the lifting machinery in operation and he was hauled to the surface within three or four minutes, according to him the heavy pressure of water at the depth to which he was drawn.

RAILWAYS ENJOY RECORD YEAR IN 1926 EARNINGS

Carried More Freight Than in Any Previous 12 Months

EXPENSES UP

Gross Revenues Were Exceeded Only by Those of 1920

Ottawa, March 22.—Canadian Railways earned more freight last year than in any other year and their revenues from freight service also were the largest earned according to a statement just issued by the Dominion bureau of Statistics. The figures are for the calendar year.

Passenger traffic was heavier than in 1925 and passenger revenues were larger by $2,633,010, or 3.4 percent, but they were below those of 1923. Gross revenues from service closed 1926 by $17,642,282 and were exceeded only by those of 1920.

Net operating revenues were by far the largest yet earned by the railways, exceeding those of 1925, by $20,263,129. Operating expenses increased during the year by $17,630,242 nearly three quarters of this increase being in maintenance expenses.

WAR OF BAKERS WAGES MERRILY

While the bread war rages with very little change in the situation a factor the public seems to take little into consideration is quality. If a loaf sells for two, three or ten cents less from one baker the majority of the consumers have a tendency to rush to that baker and buy his produce without any thought of the food value.

The quality of flour, the sugar and milk are of course what counts. One may pay ten cents for a small loaf and one much bread and get four times the food value of a 5-cent loaf bought from another baker, an expert told The Intelligencer this afternoon.

Referring to the war, one of the prominent bakers said "that it may wage for hours, days or weeks but no man can stand the strain of selling at less than the ingredients themselves cost indefinitely. The incentive to the loaf of bread alone, not counting the cost of manufacture, labor, upkeep and delivery is more than 100 cents a loaf if the best of flour, milk, yeast and sugar is used.

Today saw no new developments, the prices remaining like a plaga from 9½, 12, 14, 16, and 20 cents a large loaf, different bakers adopting different prices.

BANK CLERKS—STRIKE

All Chinese employees of foreign banks went on strike today. The bank are immediately picketed by strikers who threatened to cut off the food supplies of the remaining members of the staffs to compel them to leave their posts.

ONLY GOT SPEED 100 MILES HOUR

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 22.—Major Segrave, British racing driver who hopes to pilot his twin-motor cylinder "Mystery S" at a two hundred miles an hour in his first test spin yesterday, but his hopes are high.

Tiny ridges in the beach caused by waves broken by the westerly wind, proved troublesome in the first test. "I am free to do the job, however long it takes" Major Segrave said. "While I am at it I shall set new records also for two and five miles distances, and for one, two and five kilometres". The car Major Segrave is driving is a thoroughbred sunbeam.

C. M. M. ADOPTS MOTOR DRIVEN SHIPS

The early adoption of motor vessels for the Canadian Government Merchant Marine for West Indies trade, belongs this class of modern seagoing craft to particular attention in Canada at this time. Above is shown the Atlantic, giant motor ship of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, of 23,500 tons displacement, she has proved a big success.

Prince Takes Another Bad Tumble But Comes Up With Usual Smile

Holdenby, England, March 22.—The Prince of Wales was thrown from his horse today at the first jump in the army point-to-point steeplechase, but escaped injury. The Prince was competing for the cup which he himself donated for this event. He was riding the famous "Dark Cortier" on which he won Lord Mann's Cup on March 16. He was leading in today's event when the horse tripped on a hedge branch and threw the Prince about fifteen yards. The Prince arose smiling and tried to catch his horse to remount, but the animal got away and the Prince was unable to resume his part in the race.

KIWANIANS SEE EXCELLENT FILM

Kiwanians welcomed back to their midst today their fellow member Ed O'Flynn, who for some time past has been seriously ill, and whom all were glad to see able to be back in his accustomed place at the Club.

Something a little out of the ordinary in the way of entertainment was offered the Club at today's luncheon at the Queen's when Mr. Walter C. O'Connor of the General Passenger Department of the C.N.R., Toronto, exhibited in movie form the attractions of a boat trip from Cobourg to Rochester, N.Y. aboard the C.N.R. car ferries.—luxurious boats which provide the passenger with every comfort on this delightful trip across the lake. The film was especially interesting to local Kiwanians who are planning a Rochester trip early in the summer season.

SWORDFISH CAUGHT IN WELLAND CANAL

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 21.—The first fish story of the season in this vicinity comes from Port Weller. A swordfish is reported to have been taken from Lock 1 of the Welland Canal there. This is the first time a swordfish has been found in fresh water near here. Three electric pumps drained the lock Saturday, and a ton of fish was taken from it.

EDITOR GETS THE BLAME AS IS USUALLY THE CASE

Detroit, Mich., March 22.—Testifying right," became the formula for Mr. in Aaron Sapiro's million dollar libel suit Henry Ford, W. J. Cameron, Ford's editor of the Dearborn Independent, assumed full responsibility for everything published in the Weekly and denied it devolved upon the motor car manufacturer.

Sapiro, a Chicago attorney, who became widely known for organizing farmers Co-operative Associes alleged that he was slandered by anti-Jewish articles printed in the Independent.

SNIPERS CAUSE TROUBLE ALONG FOREIGN BARRIER

Japanese Reply to Shots But British Hold Their Fire

Shanghai, Mar. 22.—Firing their rifles in the air and yelling wildly a mob of two thousand Chinese troops from the rabble of the defeated Northern Army, rushed the thin British cordon guarding the northern area of the international settlement here at 4.30 this morning but few score succeeded in breaking through in weakly held alleyways, but they were quickly rounded up, disarmed and turned back into Chinese territory. The main body of invaders was stopped by British troops without firing. No British casualties were reported.

This attempt to invade the settlement followed a day of intermittent firing between Northerners and Cantonese guerillas in the native Chapei district. Later the British admitted 300 Shangtungese who gave up their arms upon entering the settlement.

Continuous Sniping

There was continuous sniping, mostly by Nationalist riflemen on the northeastern border of the retilement, and many shots penetrated the foreign quarter. Japanese marines who are holding the easterly area of this position are replying to the snipers, shot for shot. They are posted on several high roofs, from wh ch they watch for snipers.

A small detachment of the Durham Regiment holding the barrier near the northern railway station, was fired on by a Shantungese soldier lying on the ground.

Dead and Dirty

After the third shot the commanding officer ordered his men to fire once. They did so, and there were no more shots from that sniper. Then a number of other National'st marksmen opened up and bullets whizzed past the barrier. The defenders who had a narrow escape, did not reply for fear of hitting unoffending civilians. This incident is typical of constant happenings along the northern and eastern boundry of the settlement.

HORROR RANGES BULLET SWEPT STREETS OF CITY

Women Run Screaming From Their Houses Pursued By Brigands

MURDER SUPREME

Indescribable Scenes as Blood-lust Gains Headway in Shanghai

Shanghai, March 22.—It is officially announced that Gen Pi Shu Chun, commander of the Northern defense forces at Shanghai has agreed to surrender. His capitulation was arranged yesterday in negotiations with Chang Kai Shek, Nationalist generalissimo. The National ist flag has been hoisted over Gen Pi Shu Chen's headquarters, but many thousands of Shantungese soldiers in certain section this evening were still unaware of the surrender.

Looting and Murder

Sniping, fires and looting continue in the "Chapei" quarter just outside the International settlement where mobs comprised partly of Shantungese soldiers, partly of ordinary criminals and partly of Nationalist gunmen, held sway. The streets are strewn with dead. In numerous cases, robbers have cut off women's fingers in order to obtain their rings. Every place hidden enough for loot has been cleaned out, but the problem of criminals is how to get away with their booty. As they leave the city they are met by swarms of entering ghouls and bloody-lights ocean. Numerous innocent people are reported to have been killed in these affairs.

Scenes in the Chapei are indescribable. Blocked by thoroughfares prevent the escape of victims from the robbers. Nothing is to be heard but shots and screams of women and children, running hysterically to and fro. Many women, afraid to remain in their houses, are attempting to escape and are having been stripped of their clothing by soldiers in their wild hunt for loot. Sometimes loot-laden soldiers are protected by comrades with machine guns, who think nothing of clearing a way down crowded streets by spraying fire and killing scores of people. A prominent missionary authority says tens of thousands of civilians in the provinces of Shensi, Yunnan, Kweichow, Honan and other parts of country have been murdered in the last year.

NATIONALISTS DRIVE NORTHERNERS HARD

Shanghai, March 22. — Nationalist troops are advancing along the railway around Shanghai in the direction of the Shanghai north station, the centre of the Northern resistance. The two forces are expected to collide to night or tomorrow. Unless the Northerners to enter the international settlement are due to the approach of Nationalist troops who are massed and moved along the railway on foot this morning.

Dead and Dirty

The Cantonese troops are very unprepossessing. Large numbers of them are boys in their teens. They are dressed dirty, and but all wear the red and blue "guomintang" necktie. A group of officers seen by the correspondent were exceptionally dapper, in the Russian military style.

The correspondent witnessed the passage of a column numbering a thousand or more of these troops this afternoon through the Jessfield Station, where there the British pickets on both sides of the railway. There were no signs of hostility, the Tommies and the Cantonese officers each other curiously as a range of a few feet and commenting jocosely.

Pirates Are Busy

Hong Kong, March 22.—The Indo-China Steam Navigation Company vessel Hopewah bound from Shanghai for Hong Kong has been attacked by pirates near Bias Bay, about forty miles from Hong Kong. No details have been learned. An European passenger was wounded. The vessel was freed when the pirates completed their looting and now is on the way to Hong Kong.

THANKS

During the past twenty years Belleville has had many occasions for gratitude to Mr. John Elliott. Last night's banquet to the School teachers was just another debt credited to the account of a forward-looking public-spirited citizen. Mr. Elliott has a seeming boundless capacity for public service and in whatever station he serves he gives his whole heart.

As Chairman of the School Board he fills a position which seems to have been designed for him and has brought out and somehow held a phase of city-building which is too often neglected. The school teachers, into whose hands our young children are placed at their most impressionable age, are not brought prominently enough into the scheme of our civic and national life.

Mr. Elliott's annual dinner, therefore, is doubly a service. By it he pays a well-deserved tribute to our earnest hard working group of people of high ideals who are performing a task of unequalled importance and he brings before the citizens generally a reminder of the virtues of school training.

Belleville also thanks Mr. Elliott for bringing here so outstanding a speaker as Canon Cody, undoubtedly one of a very small group at the top of our National Life. Rarely do we get such a mental stimulus as was given.

Inherently Canon Cody belongs to no creed or party or class—he belongs to Canada and the Empire. It would be a fitting thing if the Government could commandeer his genius and send him up and down the country to preach his doctrine of strong sane Patriotism. Our people would listen to him and be better citizens—they would imbibe something of his spirit and Canada would be a better country and a better member of the Empire.

Then he kneels before a holy

WATCH THE CHILD

With the approach of spring and the renewal of outdoor life, a traffic authority issues a timely reminder to the motorist to study the ways of the child on the street.

Children are supposed not to learn the sidewalks unless accompanied by their elders. Many children try to obey this instruction. But their little minds very often forget the dangers of the street in their concentration on the great problem of play. When the ball, the ruth, in chase of a reluctant puppy, or a lost ball, they see only and think only of that precious puppy or that necessary ball. The problem of the motor driver never enters their heads.

Whatever the traffic laws may say, the motorist should assume responsibility in his own mind for the safety of all children. No matter what the children may be doing on the sidewalk the possessing motorist would play safe by slowing up and keeping as close to the middle of the street as possible. The blowing of his horn, should not be relied upon solely, particularly where children are concerned, as it often confuses them.

Very soon now the children will again be on the streets in droves. Their minds will be on their play, on the enthusiasm of the moment. The mind of the passing driver should be on them and their safety.

CLEAN-UP TIME

Springtime is the time of new things when the old and decadent give way to Nature's new birth of foliage and plant life, and all the world puts on a new raiment.

Spring also is the clean-up season, when man's habitation should be made to harmonize with nature.

Where there is filth there is nearly always disease. Disorder is accompanied by waste, danger and decay. Dirt and disorder are the greatest enemies to public decency, health and safety.

A few clean and orderly homes in a select residence district can never safeguard the entire community. A single filthy home, dirty backyard, or a stagnant pool can easily become the source of an epidemic of fatal disease that will sweep a city. A trash pile may start a general conflagration.

Every thrifty housewife knows the need and the joy of home hold cleanliness. She has a general housecleaning twice a year, when she changes her furnishings) but she keeps her home immaculate all the time. No semi-annual rest "around back" for her home!

Every individual should be as proud of his city as his habitation and its environments as the most immaculate housekeeper is proud of her home.

THE "OPIUM" WAR

Agnes Macphail, M.P. has been sending China to the list of subjects for platform discussion by her. And of course, like the good radical that she is, she blames Britain for much if not most of China's troubles. Naturally she has had something to say about Britain's alleged attempt to compel China to accept opium at the point of the bayonet. The so-called "opium war" of 1840 is a favorite theme of anti-British writers and speakers. It has so often been asserted that Britain declared war on China because the Chinese tried to suppress the opium traffic, that many people believe it who ought to know better.

It is true that there was a large trade in opium between India and China, and that the Chinese emperor disapproved of it and had put the traffic under the ban; that notwithstanding this the traffic continued in illicit form, and that many British subjects were engaged in it. But Chinese officials also engaged in it, even many of them who had been specially appointed to aid in its suppression. The Chinese government was of course justified in using every legitimate means of suppressing the opium traffic; but the British government did not for a moment deny. But unfortunately the emperor entrusted the work of suppression to a commissioner who knew of no other method but force, and that commissioner waged his authority. He assumed that British subjects were responsible for all the illicit traffic that was being carried in; therefore he made it his business to persecute the British; even those who disapproved of the opium traffic as strongly as he did himself, and to drive them out o. China. British property was seized and destroyed; British subjects in Canton were imprisoned upon suspicion—cheyenne others were flung into the sea. A crowd of British subjects, women and children as well as men, were driven by force out of Macao, and some of them almost perished from hunger and exhaustion before they reached such a place of safety. The queen's representative was deliberately and grossly insulted. In a street row a Chinaman was killed—how or by whom was not known. The Chinese authorities commissioner assumed that the deed was committed by a British subject, and demanded that some British subjects be handed over to the Chinese authorities to suffer death. When the British government refused to comply with this demand, British subjects were dared and flung into prison. The British government exercised patience for a long time and tried to secure redress by means of negotiation; failing in that, it reluctantly declared war.

In spite of the facts of recorded history, however, this slander that Britain made war on China for the express purpose of forcing opium upon her, has been in constant service by enemies of Britain for three quarters of a century; and no doubt it will continue to be repeated by the Agnes Macphails and similar ego-biased radicals of all shades of red, from blood-crimson to pale pink for another generation or two at least.

I SAW A SHIP

Out where sea and sky curve into one—
Calm yellow sky, gold crested loops.
In seas—
I saw a great ship riding to the sun.
A smoke wraith following her wist fully.
Her funnels and her even clean keel—
Fancy chimneys and wave-wings slender frame—
Too motionless, too perfect, too unreal
A dream ship limned in momentary flame.
I wondered at the easing which she bore
Cedar, package or fruit or ancient gold.
The fancy that I visioned from the shore
Despair—and hopes stowed in the slim long hold.
Yet this I knew, she faded in a blur
And carried all my heart away with her.

PROBLEM IN WILL

Inventor of Stokes Gun Divides Estate in Novel Way

London, March 22—Frederick Stokes, inventor of the Stokes gun. In his will filed today, disposes of the residue of his estate in a novel manner. He leaves it to the children of my brothers and sisters, roughly in inverse proportion to their yearly incomes, so that those requiring most assistance shall receive more than those who are better off; and to the children of my wife's brothers and sisters, so that in the aggregate the relations shall receive twice as much as my wife's relations and so that the sum of the two distributions will form about three-thousandths of the sums available for distribution."

Another clause states that the trustees shall have absolute power to interpret the will.

AFRICA, INDIA BETTER FRIENDS AT PRESENT TIME

Capetown, South Africa, March 22.—(Canadian Press)—Both in the Union of South Africa and in India there is general satisfaction at the solution of the Indian-in-South-Africa problem which has caused disquiet between the two great members of the empire for years. The scheme arrived at after a "round-table conference" will make for lasting friendship and goodwill between India and South Africa. For many years India had been irritated at the position of Indian natives in the Union, while South Africa asserted her right to manage her domestic affairs.

The main points of the agreement are (1)—Both Governments reaffirm recognition of the right of the Union of South Africa to use all just and legitimate means for the maintenance of Western standards of life. (2)—The Union Government recognizes that Indians domiciled in the Union who are prepared to conform to Western standards of life should be enabled to do so. (3)—The Union Government will organize a scheme of assisted emigration to India or other countries where Western standards are not required. Union domiciles will be limited after three years' continuous absence, this provision applying generally and not only to Indians. Indians desiring to return to the Union within three years must refund the cost of the assistance granted them under the emigration scheme. (4)—The Government of India recognizes the obligation to look after the Indians on their arrival in India. (5)—The admission to the Union of the wives and children who are minors of Indians will be regulated by Paragraph 3 of Resolution 21 of the Imperial Conference of 1918. (6)—The Union Government agrees not to proceed further with the Areas Reservation Bill. (7)—Both Governments agree to watch the working of the agreement in the light of views from time to time as experience may suggest. (8)—In order to secure continuous co-operation between the two Governments the Indian Government is to appoint an agent in the Union.

The agreement is regarded not as a victory for either side, but rather as the fruit of a common purpose carried out in a spirit of friendly conciliation. On the one hand, the Union has not surrendered freedom to deal with Indian problems by legislation whenever and in whatever way they may deem necessary, and just, while on the other hand, the government of India have not bound themselves either permanently or for a limited period to co-operate with the Union in the practical solution of South Africa's problems as agreed upon. The agreement that is more in the nature of an honorable and friendly understanding than that of a rigid binding treaty. These points were made by Hon. F. B. Mahan, minister of the Interior, in outlining the agreement in the Union Assembly.

Never Let a Cold Get a Start
Vapors Check a Cold Overnight
There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.
Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.
Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like a "vapor lamp in salve form."
When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.
This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

Frank Westbrook, the new Provincial Constable, arrived in the city yesterday and assumed his duties under Inspector Lougheed today. The new officer is of the fine, robust type and his previous experience with police circles make him a most qualified for the local staff. Officer Weatherall was until last autumn attached to the forces at Orangeville, Ont., but injuries sustained in an accident forced him to obtain a leave of absence and by now months he has been recuperating in Toronto General Hospital. The accident left Constable Weatherall slightly lame in one foot but his qualities for getting about are not hampered. He was stationed at Cornwall for some years. He is a married man. Officer Weatherall brings back the most encouraging reports of the progress of Officer William Franks who was formerly of the City Force here and who was recently accepted into the Provincials. The latter is attached to the forces at Kapuskasing.

MEMENTO RECEIVED

Tim Sullivan, Great Street tonsorial artist, has received a booklet containing photos and sketches of the Calgary-Edmonton Saskatoon fistic-ists who are battling it out for the championship of the Prairie Professional Hockey League. The memento was sent by George Stewart who owns the Calgary Tigers, one of the strongest teams in the West. George Stewart, who left Belleville some sixteen years ago and while here he worked as an official of the Corby Distillery Co. Although never actively engaged in sports himself, Mr. Stewart was a close follower of the local hockey club and will be remembered by many of Belleville's old hockey fans. Mr. Stewart's picture appears among others in the calendogue.

NO TYPHOID HERE

Dr. Crusk told The Intelligencer today that there was no typhoid fever cases in Belleville at present. "This is exceptionally good for this time of year," said the Doctor. "Outside of one mild case of Scarlet Fever there are no epidemic diseases in the city now."

BISHOP CONDONES PRIVATE BETTING

Wellington, N.Z., March, 22—The Bishop of London doesn't mind an old woman betting five shillings on the Derby every year. That would be no sin, he said, addressing a meeting on the three national sins of drunkenness, softness and gambling.

There is no evil in the racing of horses either, but it is when betting and gambling becomes an industry that it is the most corrupting of all vices, the bishop said.

He wanted overseas Dominions to take the virtues of the Old Country, not its vices.

In addition to being a director, Mr. Hudson is also a member of the listing committee.

Schumacher, March 19 (Special).—One of the outstanding developments of late at the Schumacher-Hollinger Mines, where extensive development plans have been taking the attention of the management in connection with the new large shaft working near completion, is that in Plenaurum ground. Here one of the veins has been opened up for a length of 450 feet showing a width of eight feet of twelve dollar ore. Many difficulties had to be overcome before this development could be carried out, not the least of which was the taking care of an underground water course, which stood for some years in the way of development in this section of the property. More importants strides to the development in this section of the mine than in the older work areas as entirely new ground is being found productive.

SYNDICATE WILL DEVELOP QUEBEC

British Financiers to Spend Five Hundred Million in 5 Years

London, March 22.—A syndicate said to be one of the strongest ever formed in England, has been organized here to develop the railways pulp paper and mineral po-ssibilities of Quebec in rivalry with American capital.

The syndicate, of which one nu mber is the president of the British Federation of Industries and which has already raised £1,000,000, and has declared to Quebec's agent-general here its readiness to spend $500 000,000 in the next five years.

A beginning will be made at Lake St. John, where an American aluminum company already has undertaken immense developments.

A railway will be built around the lake to extend northward to Lake Chibougamau and perhaps further. Refineries for magnetic iron ores, smelters and pulp mills will be constructed.

It is said that the syndicate represents over $1,000,000,000 capital.

Canada particularly Quebec province has been appealing to British capital to prevent the United States industrialists from obtaining a monopoly of Canadian power and pulp.

Resolutions in the London money market over Canada's treatment of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway investure hitherto has nullified such appeals.

The present scheme as an earnest of which four British capitalists are coming to Quebec in May, is the first regard to the settlement of the affairs of that railway recently accomplished by the Canadian Government.

UGLY DUCKLING GIRLS NEED NOT WORRY

By ELSIE MARLOWE

Remember those ugly days when you were a youngster and couldn't get along with anyone?

Remember how you were simply gazing with happiness one minute and ready to burst with gloom the next? How you snapped out at the least little thing and then cried your eyes out over it afterwards? And you'd get the giggles at the most solemn times?

Awful, wasn't it? And how the folks did jump on you because of it!

Well, here's little Lou. Aged seventeen. Edgy, too. And full of grief over her "foul disposition."

DEAR ELSIE:

I am a seventeen-year-old high school girl. I do not mean to be nasty or sarcastic, but I do and say things first get me into trouble. After I say or do them I'm sorry, but this doesn't help any. I laugh when there is nothing to laugh at and when I shouldn't inside. May you please tell me how I can change my disposition? I am sure over half of my friends think I'm crazy or some thing.

I don't think you're crazy, little Lou. Nor do I think that you have a bad disposition. I think you're a perfectly normal, sensitive, loveable kid, who's growing up and throwing the usual flip-flops while she does it.

Have you ever noticed a bean seed sprouting? Yes? You know how twisted and funny and shrunken it seems as it breaks its way through the earth. Then gradually as it grows stronger and more used to living topside, it straightens out and soon is leaping up into a beautiful vine, rocking out where it wishes to go.

All growth is like that, dear, whether it is the growth of a bean seed or a human being. First there is the time of birth and weakness. In human life we call it infancy. Then comes the harder time, perhaps the hardest time in all life, when the young thing begins to feel its way into the Big Adventure of Living. We call this stage adolescence, in human life. It begins at about thirteen or fourteen, and lasts until fifteen, early twenties. And just as the little bean plant is all twisted and askew during its adolescence, so boys and girls are twisted and askew during theirs.

They are really askew—unbalanced. They have grown-up streaks, and baby streaks will come uppermost.

That's why you're cross when you want to be kind, and giddy when you want to be grave.

For a little while longer this twisty, growing period will last with you, and you'll have very beautiful days and very uncomfortable ones. But don't worry, everything will come out finer. Just keep Beauty before you. Think of Beautiful things. Study Beautiful things. Not things that money can buy, but the flower in the spirit. And on the bad days, remember that I love you and HOLD TIGHT. For I was seventeen once myself little girl, and I certainly was ALL HAY WIRE.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens, and very fond of a boy with a young man two years my senior. All my girl friends have gone out with him at one time or another. They have told me that he goes out with a girl until he is sure she cares for him and then leaves her. They have urged me to leave him first.

I told them that I didn't think he would act that way with me. But now I'm not so sure, and lately I've been thinking that my turn has come. But I don't like to break with him as I enjoy his company very much. On the other hand, it would be very embarrassing to have known to me, what has happened to all the rest of the girls he has gone with. What shall I do?

DOUBTFUL.

DOUBTFUL: Forewarned is surely forearmed. If you have no reason to doubt the statements of your friends you are unquestionably laying yourself open to the same treatment that was accorded them.

But it occurred to you that if the young man has earned his reputation, he is all sorts of a cad, and not worth worrying about? My advice to you is to forget him and save yourself much pain.

JAMES COULTER DEAD AT 80

Toronto, Mar. 22.—An old and familiar figure will be missed from Canadian race tracks, especially the Ontario circuits, this season, by the death of James Coulter, who died at his home here yesterday at the age of 80 years.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

"Do my importunities annoy or offend you? I wouldn't cause you distress for worlds, but—seeing you there in court the other day was like seeing a friend, a very dear friend whom one has missed really. It was not at all like seeing a stranger. It—it's very difficult to explain, but I felt that either I had known you before, or that I must know you. Please don't think I'm trying to be fresh, or that I'm—as the vernacular has it—handing you a line, but—"

He ended with a shrug, and his gray eyes smiled into hers.

She held a hand on his arm in a gesture of understanding. . . .

"I know. I felt it, too."

The car was at a standstill at the curb. The traffic flowed past them unheeded. For a full minute they lolled into each other's eyes, oblivious of time and place, and something in Christine's heart that had shriveled and faded began to bloom again, like a flower unfolding its petals.

ST. MARTIN'S SUMMER

It seemed to Christine, after that second meeting with Clifford Vane, that a miracle had happened. One day, she had been alone, almost friendless, hardened, bitter, drinking the very dregs of discouragement, close to the brink of ruin. And the next, she was happy, breathless with new hope.

Something new and beautiful had entered her life with the coming of Vane. And though, at first, the old Christine attempted to scoff and repulsed her of how often before she had found only disillusionment in promised happiness, she learned to shut her ears and drink in the new joy that had come to her.

She told herself that she was only storing up the present happiness against the future, the days when she would see him no more. For, of course, she reasoned, it couldn't last—this beautiful friendship that was like nothing she had ever experienced before in her life.

She saw Vane nearly every day. He lived at a club near Gramercy Park. On his way up or down-town, he often passed her apartment and asked her to go for a drive. His offices were not far from here, so quite frequently, he stopped by to drive her home. She discovered that he was very prominent in his profession, that he was the head of a prosperous law firm. She knew he was wealthy, but he was modest; his tastes were simple. He made none of the display, the obvious flaunting of his riches that Sanford did. Always fastidiously but quietly dressed, kindly, courteous and dependable—that was the Clifford Vane she knew. As the time passed, she was to find more and more admirable qualities that drew her to him, wary and cynical though she had become.

On first time he asked her to dine with him, she had to refuse. There was no one to stay with Louise.

"But why not take the little girl with us?" Van had asked, when she explained the reason for her refusal. "We'll dine early."

Christine stared at him, thinking of Sanford.

"You wouldn't mind? Children don't bore you?"

A queer expression flashed momentarily across his face. It was almost like a wince.

"I love all children," he said simply.

Louise reacted to his friendly overtures with much the same swiftness as Christine herself. Soon she was talking to him in her shy, charming way, and he listened gravely and attentively.

During the drive back to her apartment, she snuggled against him, she snuggled against him, as she sat between him and Christine, and went happily to sleep in the curve of his arm.

"Are you quite sure she's not bothering you?" Christine asked, "it must be difficult to drive so."

He glanced down at Louise. His gray eyes were very tender, but his mouth twitched as if with sudden pain.

"No. It is very sweet to hold a sleeping, trustful child. Don't you think so?"

Christine turned her head away. She felt a swift remorse, a poignant shame. With Junior's death, her motherhood had meant so little to her. Caring for Louise had become mechanical, rather than a ministration of love.

Was it possible that she actually resented the fact that her little daughter was the one who lived, while her beautiful boy had been taken from her?

"What is it?" Vane asked. He had an uncanny way of sensing her mood. "Are you sad?"

"Very," she answered, and told him for the first time about her son.

She didn't spare herself as she explained her attitude toward Louise, but he seemed to understand, and he didn't censure her.

"You will come gradually to a more normal attitude," he reassured her. "The shock of your boy's death was great, and you were too much alone. As for this little girl," he looked down at the sleeping child against his shoulder, "well, we must make it up to her for her loneliness."

Christine thrilled to that "we." She told herself it meant nothing, but she was trembling absurdly, like a young girl.

After that evening, Louise often accompanied them to early dinners at quiet places. On Saturday afternoons, when Christine was free, they three drove into the country. Sometimes they took luncheons with them in a big hamper.Cul-dicious luncheons that Vane had had prepared by the chef at his club. Sometimes they stopped at quiet inns and had their meal served under the trees.

BRILLIANT ORATOR HELD AUDIENCE ENTHRALLED AT ELLIOTT'S DINNER

School Teachers and Trustees Guests at Second Annual Banquet

CODY SPEAKER

Former Minister of Education Talks on Schools and Patriotism

One of the most brilliant speakers in Canada addressing an audience of trained intelligence before perhaps the most perfect host in Ontario was the setting last night for the second annual dinner which Mr. John Elliott as chairman of the School Board gave to the school teachers, Board of Education, the City Council and representative citizens from Belleville and Hastings County.

The background was perfect. The spacious dining room of the Quinte Hotel has probably never held a finer or more representative gathering and the chief speaker of the evening, the world-famous Canon Cody, rose to the occasion, delivering what many of his admirers claim was one of the best speeches of his career. As an educationalist he was warmly interested in the proposed new Collegiate and Vocational School and enthusiastically congratulated those who had worked for the consummation of this ideal on the attainment of their purpose.

Originated By Canon Cody.

The Vocational School is a pet child of Canon Cody's brain, he having inaugurated this system of training for the province during his regime as Minister of Education. In his remarks he stressed the value of suiting education to the life purpose of the citizen instead of attempting to force every child through the one mold. The Vocational School, he claimed, permitted the necessary elasticity which permitted developing the natural bent of the child to its full capacity and fitted them to enter profitably on whatever line of work was later chosen.

Dr. Cody had no set speech. After dealing with the educational question he turned to the League of Nations and vividly portrayed Canada's part in world politics. He is a strong imperialist. "Canada," he said, "had taken her place as a nation within the Empire group of Nations and sooner or later must accept the responsibility as well as the privileges of her new position."

A Link in the Empire

Contrasting our position with that of America, he pointed out that there were certain integral differences in the duties which we should be called upon to perform. We were already, he pointed out, maintaining several thousand miles of railway which constituted a vital link in the communications of the Empire. This is part of Canada's service to the Empire, but we must and will in time assume even larger obligations.

Canon Cody spoke for about an hour and twenty minutes and as there were several other addresses it was well after twelve o'clock before the gathering broke up. Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, in moving the toast to which the Canon replied, gave a stirring talk urging that every child be inoculated with patriotism so that he might always have a fitting pride in his country.

An Ideal Host

In welcoming his guests, Mr. John Elliott displayed the most charming side of his versatile personality. He said he was happy to see so large a gathering present as his guests and he spoke the simple truth. Mr. Elliott is the ideal host. His address was as long as he wished to give all the time possible to the eminent speaker who was to follow but he radiated a spirit of optimism as to the future of Belleville, and expressed the pleasure which he felt at the accomplishment of a long cherished dream of an adequate High School for this city.

Mr. W. H. Nugent spoke for the County of Hastings in the absence of Warden Henry Harrett who was unavoidably prevented from attending. Mr. Nugent said while the County had no option under the statutes as to the amount of their contribution to the new school, still they would gladly pay their share and take a pride in the new institution.

Inspector H. J. Clarke was also in a happy mood over the new school and congratulated everybody concerned.

The Mayor's Address

His Worship Mayor Wilmot spoke very briefly but said that while he thought the public should have been asked to vote on the question of the new Collegiate, still no one in Belleville would take a greater pride in it than himself.

In rising, Mr. Wilmot said, "First may I be permitted to thank our popular host for this very pleasant evening. Mr. Elliott is famous for many things, among them being—

A successful Banker.

A Booster of Belleville and County products.

A giver of many excellent banquets.

And, as Chairman of the Board of Education during 1927.

"Unfortunately I did not serve with all members of the Board of Education and City Council that the new school should be passed without incurring the Ratepayers. However, it has passed, the Collegiate is a reality and I am going to feel just as proud of it when it is up as anyone in this room.

"I see no reason why Belleville, in the very near future, should not be a Going City in every sense of the word.

"(1) Our Banks are branches of the leading Banks of Canada—Our local Managers good business men and good fellows who will go out of their way to assist our citizens and their city.

"(2) Our Industries are growing in a healthy way and increasing in numbers from year to year.

"(3) We are situated at the richest agricultural district of all Canada.

"(4) Educationally in comparison to our population we will be unexcelled.

"(5) Industrious and public feeling lead us to believe that Canada is on the verge of a mighty boom. I hope we may steer clear of the pitfalls of over-confidence as that, in my estimation, is as disastrous as too much pessimism—rather may we steer the middle course of sound judgment and common sense."

Other Toasts

Col. W. N. Ponton in a character, lucid speech moved the toast to the guests and Mr. Jamieson Boue spoke to that of the ladies.

Colonel Roscoe Vandenwater spoke for the guests, adding felicitations from Sidney Township on the completion of the school.

Coming so late in the evening, the reply of Miss Madeline Young was delightfully unexpected. Miss Young thought that perhaps the best response to the toast would be a song but the only one she could think of was "Wild, Wild Women" which hardly seemed appropriate coming from school teachers. She gave it little original version which provoked much laughter and applause.

From the Ladies

Here's to the men who toast us tonight,
They are certainly gallant—we think they're alright;
Perhaps we may think they don't mean all they say
But we're pleased and quite grateful for them anyway.

Here's to all men and the nice things they do,
The places they take us—their gifts not a few,
So the ladies all join in this song of thank you
And hope for a response this chorus will do.

Mr. James Bankier, Mr. Al Stillman, Mr. J. Arnold Thomson and others added pleasantly to the evening's enjoyment with their singing. At the piano, Mr. Leo Riggs was the ideal accompanist, and Miss Helen Hunt gave two splendid numbers on the violin.

Mr. R. J. Butler, chairman of the Separate School Board, made a most acceptable chairman.

Canon Cody's Speech

Canon Cody in opening his address said how pleased he was to come to Belleville once more, to see the marked progress in education in every branch. Particularly did he speak on the proposed new Collegiate and its necessity.

He outlined the course of education in Ontario and its improvement. The speaker told of the passing of the Adolescent Act.

He told how the first step taken was to raise the school age.

"I would infinitely rather see Latin and languages introduced into our primary schools and the abolition of advanced arithmetical problems," said Canon Cody. "You all perhaps remember those terrible problems we used to get such as two train passing one another and problems concerning the hands of the clock—problems requiring advanced logic, impossible in the minds of the young."

Vocational Training

The speaker told of the benefits of the vocational school in addition to the high school.

"I have had the pleasure of opening or laying the corner stone of many vocational schools in Ontario. We do not wish to divorce the walls in these vocational schools from the liberal studies in the high school."

"I am perfectly sure that many of the boys and girls entering your new school will not wish to go into a profession. We may now 'Are you going to be educated for business or a profession?'"

"If our boys and girls are to be properly fitted for their work in life, they should be afforded the best possible and widest range of studies."

The speaker said that all children were not lovers of books, but they should be given the opportunity of doing things practically and they would realize the necessity of them." "There are two ideals of education," went on Dr. Cody. "If your ideal is purely utilitarian you will speedily dry up. But the other ideal is an academic one."

"The ideal is to combine the utilitarian and this academic ideal. "We can combine there two ideals. The age demands that knowledge for the sublime and knowledge for its own sake."

Elements of Education

"There are certain elements which must enter into every school enterprise. You must have as good a building as you can get. A well appointed building lets the daily work be carried on with less friction and more smoothness and a good building is really an element in the success of your school life."

"In the second place you want diligent pupils."

After the diligent pupils may I not put a good Board of Trustees.

I would like to say this, that I don't know any man in the Province who deserves more thanks than the members of our Board of Education. Another element is interested, Public Opinion. An educational campaign always hangs forth a rich fruitage.

All this would avail little if vital civic inspiring teachers were wanting. I have been in Belleville long enough to gain a body of teachers. The teacher makes the school. Teachers if you ever think your calling is not appreciated—in every part of the world there are men and women who look back in gratitude upon you.

Fitting Monument

I am glad within your new building you intend to have a community hall.

When this beautiful new building is completed it will be a monument to Mr. John Elliott, and also to the men who so strivers early and late to make this scheme successful. It will be a monument to those who had faith, hope and worked.

"We are taught to think locally, to think provincially. I am glad to say to those who belittle patriotism. But not only must we think in terms of all Canada, we must think in terms of the Empire."

The speaker compared the analogous positions of Australia and Canada.

"I cannot but think," said Dr. Cody, "we will have to help bear the burden of the Empire. Canada, by the Peace of Versailles, was launched into World Life. We cannot withdraw now. We are not the whole of the world and therefore Canada must have an eye looking upon the problems of the world.

The speaker also thought that Canada had come to have an interest, whether we liked it or not in international politics.

"The covenant of the League of Nations did two things—it bases the cause of war and to have gradual disarmament. Every nation who signed made 2 delegates and 3 sub. delegates.

"The covenant will be successful if Public Opinion is behind it and if it can command at present.

Canon Cody told of the catering of

REINDEER TOO PLENTIFUL IN ALASKA TODAY

Nome, Alaska, March 22.—Reindeer, originally introduced into Northern Alaska to ward off starvation of the Eskimo, today presents a problem which is commanding serious attention of government officials and private citizens alike.

The herd of 1,200 imported into the territory in the 10-years prior to 1902 has multiplied so rapidly that it is estimated that more than half a million are roaming the northern tundra. On the present basis of increase, within 10 years it is expected the number will approximate 5,000,000, the maximum that can be grazed successfully, say government experts.

The problem of what to do with the fast multiplying herds is one for which no satisfactory solution has yet been found. Marketing the meat in the United States has been undertaken, but difficulty has been encountered in popularizing it as a food. Not that it is less palatable than beef or other meats, but interested assert, but the housewives are slow to try a hitherto unknown commodity.

Germany into the League of Nations, "Canada has got a great opening in business." "And so all we should say to ourselves "Wake up," and don't let our trade be captured by other countries."

Next year Canada will be candidate for a seat on the Legislative Council. One of the overseas dominions will run as a candidate, and I think if Canada has the support and influence of Sir Herbert Ames will be influential in Canada's election to the Council.

"We owe it to Canada have to play a part in world affairs."

Welcome To Guests

Once more I have the pleasure, on behalf of my colleagues, Mrs. Reeves, and myself, of welcoming you, our guests, and of thanking you for your presence here tonight.

I trust you have enjoyed the dinner provided by our esteemed citizen Mr. J. C. Elliott and my colleagues and I may now look forward to the intellectual treat which the address to be delivered by the speaker this evening will afford us. Rev. Canon Cody, will provide. In fact, I feel confident the whole program of the evening will prove enjoyable and instructive.

To those who are assisting me in catering and organizing, I am sincerely grateful, and can only add this is one more instance of the splendid co-operation I have received from the citizens of Belleville in carrying to a successful issue anything I undertake for the welfare of our community.

May I specially thank the Mayor and members of the City Council for their courtesy in postponing their regular Council meeting so that they might be my guests tonight. Their action in this instance, I shall long remember.

I am particularly pleased to have as my guests the City officials, many of whom I have met in connection with the new Collegiate. Their presence here tonight, He address was so inspiring to us, and our teachers so worthy, that I decided to have a night of their own. I refused to help secure some prominent Canadian to address us. My first choice was that of a man who has done so much to help us and I wrote inviting the Hon. Dr. Cody, who is no stranger to a Belleville audience. We are more than pleased to welcome Dr. Cody tonight, and sincere-

HOLLOWAY CHURCH IS STILL CROWDED FOR EVANGELISTS

Another remarkable, well "attended revival meeting was held in Holloway Street United Church last night by Dr. J. Crawley, and the singing evangelist, Mr. Leonard.

Dr. Crawley chose as his topic the Second Revival, the secret of which is prayer. Text Jas 5. 16. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. Dr. Crawley said prayer was not only talking to God but talking with God, and the messages from God are as readily understood as the messages coming over the radio from New York or Chicago.

We pray to God as "Our Father" and like as a father bowels and pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. If a child asks for bread and clothing the father will gladly give them. So Jesus says "If ye then being evil know how to give good gifts unto your children how much more shall your Father give to them that ask Him."

To have effectual prayer one must be righteous and fervent, this is manifested in (a) Desire of Faith; (b) Agony of Faith; (c) Assurance of Faith.

The Ideal Revival was declared to be when the 120 fervently prayed for ever at days, the Holy Spirit descended upon them and Peter voicing the sentiments of all preached an appealing sermon with the result that 3000 were added unto the Lord. As usual the singing of Mr. Leonard and the choir added interest and inspiration to the meet. To-night the popular song service, entitled "Heaven will be Given."

SPORTS

POINT ANNE AND PATRICIAS WIN SOFT BALL TILTS

League Gets away to Fine Start Before Large Crowds

The City Indoor Baseball league got away to a flying start last night at the Armouries when a large crowd turned out for the initial double-header. The fans are certainly strongly behind this game. Judging from the enthusiasm manifested last night and the Armouries belong fairly rocked as the supporters of one team or another cheered their favorites to victory.

The officials were more than pleased with the turn-out last evening especially with the prevailing weather conditions.

Double-headers will be staged every Monday and Wednesday night until the early part of May.

Despite the fact that last evening was the first time some of the players had handled a ball this season, the game was lightning fast and many brilliant plays were made.

The calibre of ball dished up last evening was such that warranted large attendances throughout the season.

In the girl's game the Patricias, a new entrant in local soft-ball circles, under the leadership of Johnny Kerr and Gar Anderson, disposed of Jim McKenna's Foster Ward crew to the tune of 20 to 12.

Point Anne appeared on deck with practically the same team that captured the laurels last season. This year the cement-mixers are under the guidance of "Bob" Redner and the latter should make an astute pilot. The suburbanites appeared in bright new sweaters which made a hit.

The Canadian National team was forced to bow to the Pointers in the night-cap affair by a 7-3 score.

"Ken" Colling, "Twig" Woodley and Walter Gerow umpired both games and alternated behind the plate. This trio are among the best officials in the city and not a dissenting word was heard on their decisions.

Patricias 20; Foster Ward 12

With the exception of the 6th inning when the winners hung up 7 tallies the girls game was close and exciting. The Pats really deserved to win on the nights play, but the Ward girls will be heard from before the league is completed.

Miss Alma Caulin, late of the Deseronto Ponies, covered first base in grand style for the losers, and is a splendid acquisition to the club.

M. Kelleher, Mary Adams and Jennie Adams who pastimed with the High School last season, were on the Foster Ward line-up, and all turned in fine games.

The Pats are a smart club and should make a great bid for the honors. The team is composed of members of last year's Alemite and Beaver teams. Jean Fairbairn went the full route and was accorded fair support. Ev. Whalen, behind the bat, is one of the smartest receivers in the league and is a big help.

Misses Cowjil and Knott shared the pitching burden for the ward teams but neither were able to halt the onward march of the victorious Pats.

Line ups:

Pats—J. Miles 1b; E. Bainbird s s; Curry 3b; T. Wathan s f; M. Cook 2b; E. Wrese 1 f; E. Whalen c; J. Fairbairn p; F. Skelcher r f.

Foster Ward—F. Knott, p. Cruejil p; D. Knott 1 f; E. Bird s s; A. Caulin, 1b; M. Kelleher 2b; M. Adams, 3b; J. Adams c f; N. Knott, r f.

POINT ANNE 7, C.N.R. 3

The Canadian Nationals opened up promisingly but slowly and surely the Point Anne team overcame them and walked home with the bacon. The latter really deserved to win and from their performance last night they will take some beating.

"Sonny" Green made his official bow to the fans this season and certainly he has lost none of his effectiveness. Green was burning them over in great style and the railroaders found his delivery somewhat puzzling and the losers were breaking their backs trying to connect with some of his shots.

"Skipper" Hurley, used to the mound for the Nationals and twirled fairly effective ball and was replaced by O'Donohue in the 7th inning.

The losers scored their only three runs in the second frame when Green was hit hard. In this inning Harry Hurley came through with the longest hit of the game a long three bagger to deep right. Some sparkling plays were made by both teams.

"Sonny" Knott is still the game "peppy" catcher and held the pitchers up well.

Jack Williams made some sparkling plays at 2nd base.

The Point Anne outfield were pulling them down out of the air in fine style.

C. N. R.—Knutt; Young 1b; Williams 3b; Gibson 1 f; Symons s s; Anno 2b; Storey c f; Hurley, p; Carmichael, r f; O'Donahue, p.

Point Anne—Green p; Mascle, 1 f;

KINGSTON WANTS SENIOR BASEBALL

Annual Meeting of C. O. B. I. on Sat. Decides Fate of League

Kingston, March 22.—On Saturday the annual meeting of the C.O.B.I. will be held in Belleville, but as yet Kingston doesn't know where it stands in regard to senior baseball this summer. Unless some action is taken, and taken in a hurry, it looks as though Kingston will not have senior ball this season.

Despite the fact that even with the secession of Brockville and Belleville there are plenty of good players in town who would be willing to form a fast club in the C.O.B.I.

Obviously something should be done immediately in the direction of getting reorganized for the season. The old officers seem rather reluctant about getting into action, and the suggestion has been made that Mayor Price call a meeting of citizens for the purpose of getting the senior team again started. But there are officers of the local club still holding office, and apparently it is up to them to get the ball rolling towards reorganization. The meeting held a couple of weeks ago resulted in a number of the members of the executive being present, but nothing whatever was done, and while it was suggested that the mayor call a public meeting, it looks as though no one has even approached the city's chief magistrate.

Kingston certainly can support senior baseball, provided that the other teams in the league will not continue to send down scrub teams which would be next even for some of the junior teams about here. If Oshawa comes back into the circuit, and there are reasons to believe that the Motor City is ready to do a "brodigal," then Kingston should get in line, and once again the big Grounds.

But at the moment some swift action is needed so that a proper organization will be handling the team, just as it has in the past few years, and Kingston will at least be represented at the annual meeting by officers who are ready to work hard to return a winner.

Of the juniors of last year's City League, several are over age, and should be ready to step into faster company. Such players as Howard, "Vanny" Johnston, Tommy Boyd and others are probably as good as most seniors, and all they need is a chance to get into the game. The chances are also that if there is senior ball here Harry Batstone and Chick Britton will both play here, so that Kingston would be just as strong as last year when the team won the C. O. B. I. title.

TRAINING CAMP GOSSIP

New York, March 22.—The following gossip was gathered from the Major League Club training camps.

The St. Louis Browns, who play Brooklyn today, have won five of the seven games thus far.

While Connie Mack, John McGraw and other managers have loaded up this year with veterans, Manager George Moriarity, of Detroit, will be in the field with squad whose average age is 26, an inventory discloses.

Earl Webb had a perfect day at bat when the Chicago Cubs defeated Los Angeles 14 to 1. He hit two doubles and a single and drew two passes.

Manager "Bucky" Harris, of the Washington Senators, is inclined to pad out his pitching staff with youngsters rather than hold the veterans whose dependability has become an uncertain quantity. He has tentatively slated Curly Ogden for the mound.

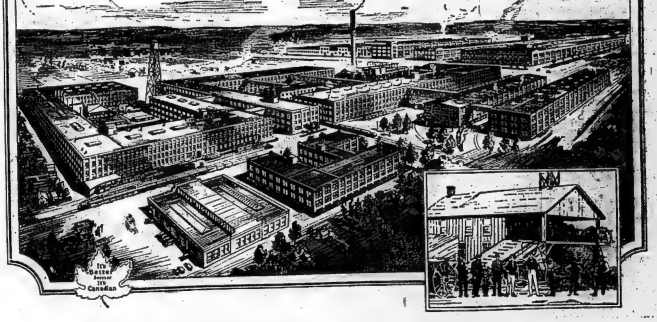

Manager Jack McAllister of the Cleveland Indians, is polishing his pitching staff around Ulrich Shaute and Levsen. It is expected they will work about every fourth day. Walter Miller and Sherry Smith are expected to work every fifth day, and if Garland Buckeye starts the season in good shape he is expected to get regular assignments. Benny Karr will probably hold a relief assignment.

The Cincinnati Reds will make no further efforts to deal with Hughey Critz, holdout second baseman. George Kelly will play second and Wally Pipp first base.

In the Brooklyn infield, only Babe Herman at first and Johnny Butler at shortstop are certain to stay around.

The Boston Red Sox were smarting today from their defeat of the training season, a 3 to 2 setback at the hands of the New Orleans pelicans.

Helping to make an even Greater Canada for Canadians

FOR sixty years General Motors of Canada, Limited, and its founders, have been important factors in Canadian prosperity. Particularly during the last three years they have contributed outstandingly to Canada's progress. Over this span of years, to meet an always-increasing demand founded upon the sheer merit of its cars, General Motors has continued to develop its facilities. Its factories have grown from the original shop pictured above and valued at five hundred dollars, to the present mammoth plant upon which, in 1926 alone, $800,000 was expended for additions.

And this progress has brought with it constantly expanding benefits for Canada and Canadians—

Great increase in exports, helping to build up a more favorable balance of trade!

Greater volume purchases from Canadian producers, assisting the greater development of Canada's resources and Canada's diversified industries!

Greater employment of Canadian craftsmen, greater sums distributed in wages, greater prosperity and happiness among Canadian workers.

Beneficial alike to producer, consumer and the Dominion whose progress they mutually desire, this growth bears witness to the merit of General Motors cars. It rewards a sincere desire and firm determination to give the Canadian public the finest automobile values in the world.

BELLE THEATRE

Glenn Hunter is said to have done some of the best work of his career in "The Little Giant," a picture made for Universal in New York, under the directorial eye of William Nigh. The new comedy drama which comes tomorrow to the Belle Theatre, was adapted from the Saturday Evening Post story, "Once a Peddler," by Hugh McNair Kahler.

"Following the screen is just like following the circus with me," declared Hunter, in a recent interview, as he balanced himself precariously on the arm of a chair, thereby proving himself as acrobat as well as an actor. "I love the motion picture studio, and although I do not want to give up the stage entirely, I do want to make at least two or three pictures a year in addition to my work on the legitimate stage. The screen and stage complement each other, and the actor who can follow both is fortunate.

"The screen shows you what you are doing—enables you to correct your faults and do away with bad mannerisms, while the stage gives you that vital contact with the audience which is an inspiration to any player.

Hunter is well qualified to speak, for he has been able to combine stage and screen work perhaps more successfully than any other actor.

KEENE INQUEST

tigation into the tragedy, was the first witness called. He said he first went to the Keene shack on the 17th of February in company with Charles Gordanier and Coroner Dr. Harper. He stated that at that time the door was unlocked by Gordanier.

The witness was shown photographs of both the interior and exterior of the shack. The former showed Keene's body lying on the bed denoting the cavities of the head and blotches of blood on the wall.

Mr. Nugent said the wounds were the result of gun-shots. On the head of the bed he said were little marks on the wood where part of the shell had deflected.

"How many shots were fired?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"Two."

"Any doubt about that?"

"No."

Mr. Nugent said that only one pot of footprints lead to the shack, and these were evidently those of Mr. Gordanier, who had made the gruesome discovery a short while previous.

Several articles found in the shack by the police were produced and the witness identified these.

Bank Book Found

A pass book issued by the Dominion Bank, Marmora, was found. It showed a balance of $66.20.

"Were you able to say from what kind of gun the bullets were fired?" asked Mr. Donnan.

The Constable gave a description of the position of the body.

"There was no indication of a struggle or disturbance about the inside of the shack," he had observed.

Mr. Nugent told of having received a bottle of liquid from Charles Gordanier which he sent to Toronto for examination. This bottle was found to contain 2 grains of strychnine to a fluid ounce.

Charles Gordanier, a nephew of the victim and an employee of the Dolsen Spelling Co., was called. He said he had saw his uncle on the 15th of November. The latter at that time told of having found a bottle in his shack and upon drinking some of the contents became ill. The witness said the old man thought it was a bottle of moonshine somone had left for him.

"Did he mention any family trouble?"

"No, only he mentioned the fact that he wasn't afraid of anyone."

"Why should he say that," asked the Coroner?

"I don't know."

Gordanier said he took his uncle home in a car about 9 o'clock on the night of the 15th.

Mr. Donnan—"About the liquor, how did he come to say he wasn't afraid of anyone?"

"He had told me he had violent spells during the previous night."

"Had you noticed his absence before the 17th of February?"

"Yes, we thought he was away."

SIMILAR KEY

Gordanier said he had a similar key at home which he used to enter the shack on the 17th of February where the body was found by he and his brother.

"Have you another gun?" asked the Coron.

"Yes."

"Have you had a shot gun in your possession in the last six months?"

"Yes, I borrowed one to go for hunting at New Year's time?"

"How long were you for hunting?"

"One day."

"How long did you keep the gun?"

"About a week."

"Where did you keep the gun during that time?"

"At my house."

The witness said he returned the gun to Percy Gray from whom it was borrowed.

"Did you ever have strychnine in your possession?"

"No."

"Ever use it for any purpose at all?"

"No."

CITIZENS STONED

Deseronto, March 22.—Many complaints are being received by the chief of police, Alex Wilkins, from people who have been stoned while walking home the march Entropy, last week. In some of the young men of the west end of the town.

"Did the old man ask for it as suspicion of anyone."

"Yes."

He said he was suspicious of John Bell on account of the way in which the latter was acting.

"Why should he say that."

"John Bell had brought a bottle of liquor to his residence on a previous occasion.

Gordanier was slow in answering Mr. Donnan's questions at times.

Gordanier said his Uncle had loaned $25.00 from the shack earlier in the summer time." "My uncle had lent John Bell some money but this was not promptly paid."

"Have you told everything?"

"Yes."

Geo. Gordanier who accompanied Charles to the shack was next called.

"Why did you go there?" was the first question.

"Because we missed him and there were various stories about his whereabouts living around."

The witness related of seeing his uncle in November when he told him of the episode about the bottle of liquor that was left at his shack which apparently caused his sickness.

"Did he say he placed any suspicion on anyone?"

"Yes, he said he believed John Bell had left it there."

Mr. Gordanier told of the story his uncle had previously referred to, about loaning the $25 from the shack and he believed John Bell was the guilty party.

"Did he ever mention anyone else's name to you," asked the Crown.

"Yes, he told me his wife had gone to Petersboro and a Catholic Priest had informed her that she would not go to heaven if she lived the rest of her days with a Protestant.

"Did Keene look his shack at night?"

He had a bolt of some sort without locking it.

Dr. Thompson of Marmora said he had attended Keene at various times and found the latter to be in exceptionally good health. He said some six shot pellets were found in Keene's brain and head.

Dr. Hamilton Crawford, associated with Dr. Thompson in the examination, corroborated the evidence of the latter.

Mrs. Charles Gordanier, wife of the nephew, who found Keene dead, told of the man having related in their home of the loss of his money and about the bottle of liquid.

"Did you see who you think your husband borrowed?"

"Yes."

"Did your husband ever go out at night?"

"Not unless it was in the early morning to a train."

Mrs. Nancy Gordanier, mother of he two previous witnesses, attempted to give as evidence what a former visitor had told her brother when he went after his money was stolen. It was ruled out by the Crown. "Keene had promised her that he would tell her something later on," she said.

John Neal told of seeing Jerome Keene in November.

William Burns said he saw smoke coming from the chimney of Keene's home near New Year's time.

Fred Ferguson in his evidence told of Jerome Keene having told him of his sickness that followed after drinking the liquid. He said he lived among the Shividans, relatives of Mrs. Jerome Keene.

Daniel Campbell, a resident of the village, said he saw Keene three days before Christmas on the village. He was carrying a parcel at that time which looked like bread.

Tracks in Snow.

John Reid, another witness, said he went to Keene's shack on the 11th of February on the advice of Mrs. Gordanier. He stated that there were tracks in the snow leading to a gate back of John Bell's house.

"In 1924 I borrowed $200.00 from my uncle, I paid the interest and when I told him I would give him the money he said he didn't need it.

"Did you ever have any trouble over the money?"

"No."

Dan Neal said that November 21st was the latest date he saw Jerome Keene alive.

"Did you see Joe Lynch, a relative of Jerome Keene's before the tragedy?"

"Yes, I saw him in the yard."

"Have you seen him since?"

"No."

Mrs. Ben Dumas, a sister of Mrs. Jerome Keene, said there was no religious differences between her sister and Keene.

Ben Dumas told of law seeing Jerome Keene about the 15th day of November but had no conversation with him.

Mrs. Annie Moffatt said that their family had borrowed money from John Bell in 1924 which has not been paid yet; Keene took over a $200.00 note from them.

J. P. Martin identified a bottle shown him which he said Jerome Keene had brought into his store. "The liquid," he said, "smelled like alcohol."

His Wife's Evidence

Mrs. Jerome Keene said it was five years and a half since she and her husband separated.

"The difference of religion had nothing to do with our separation," she said.

"My husband after dissolving of the property to Mr. Bell, built the shack on the lot nearby," she said.

"Do you know of any one having a grudge against your husband?"

"No."

Miss Acme Keene stated that she went to Lonsdale early in November but came back to Marmora at Christmas where she remained for two weeks. She has also lived with her parents for some f me.

The Daughter's Letter

A letter was produced in court which Miss Agnes Keene wrote to her father while she was in Peterboro. The epistle was of the most sarcastic and stinging nature and although Miss Keene pleaded lack of education, the communication was exceptionally well-phrased denoting that a person with a fair education had contrived it. In concluding the letter commented upon it and spoke of the excellent manner it which th ere constructed.

In the letter Miss Keene blamed her father's house for her poor state of health and declared that she had taken more abuse from him than she wished. She said her life had been one of misery and she was tired of living as a hermit.

"Perhaps you can find someth ng in this letter to prosecute me," she said, "but I am prepared to meet anyth ng."

"Did you hate your father?" Mr. Donnan asked the witness.

"No."

"Your father could not read or write?"

"No."

Miss Keene said he must have got someone else to write to her in the f rst place.

"Did your father ever assault you?"

"Yes."

An extract from the Peterboro Examiner was read by Mr. Donnan. It was a letter written to the newspaper by Mrs. Agnes Keene deny ng the report that her father and mother had separated because of religion.

Witness said the last time that she met her father was over two years ago.

W. Billings stated that Jerome

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"Want to see one of the servants, I suppose?" he suggested. "Well, look here, I'll show you the house." He turned beside her to the square, pointed out Clarendon House, and retired round the corner, from which he watched her; and his eyes did not mind was disgusted by the fact that Phenie, after a good look at the mansion, turned and walked quickly away. Then she came back into the dusk of the evening, and she was rewarded. With her hand pressed to her heart, she saw Rafe come down the steps of the great house and the dusk of him see her trembling. "Oh, Rafe, Rafe!" she murmured, and she turned and walked away with bent head and eyes dim with unshed tears.

The evening shade had made her way to the square, and waited for a sight of him, and always it was: "Oh, R fe, Rafe!"

And now she had been discovered by this man Travers, this servant and friend of Rafe's, who had wrested her secret from her, and had twisted her in his hands as she had seen the miners twist a piece of lead. As she sat there she went over every word that Travers had spoken. Was it true that Rafe cared for her? He had not forgotten her, at any rate, for he had spoken of her to this self-seized man with the hard eyes and the mocking smile. He had told her that Rafe would marry the beautiful woman she had seen this Lady Maude. unless—unless—

She rose from the seat, resolved that she would escape from this man's clutches and go back to Jumping Jane. Or should she go to Rafe and tell him that this servant, this so-called friend of his was a false friend and playing it low-down on him? Slowly and dazed she went home and stole up to her room, and throwing herself on the bed wept, bitterly, as a woman who's every woman can understand.

If she were only sure that Rafe cared for her! After all background to her mere claim to this fine lady. She had loved him when he was poor, a nobody, she could love him today if he were than one other woman would. The man had said that Rafe would be unhappy if he married Lady Maude. Oh was that true? If only—

The battle went on all night, and left her in the morning white and worn, but with her love for Rafe burning still more fiercely in her heart. She wandered about all day, torn by conflicting emotions. But love was too strong for her, and at the appointed time she dragged herself to the place of meeting.

Nine o'clock struck, but Travers did not appear; he knew that a little waiting would make her easier to deal with, and it was not by the quarter when she saw him sauntering toward her. She had an impulse to turn and flee from him, but she controlled it.

"So you're here, Phenie," he said, raising his hat in a mocking ready, insolent manner. "I'm afraid I'm late, but I've been dancing attendance on Lord Semyhurst."

She pulled a rob and signed to her to enter. The girl hesitated and then took, but he prevented her with a touch and a firm grip on her shoulder.

"Get in, my dear girl. You've used up your mind, I see—and you are quite right."

They drove to a quiet restaurant in Soho, and Phenie, no hesitating any longer, but with a set face and haggard eyes, followed him to a secluded room.

Keene could see her read nor write and that he took care of his correspondence for him.

Dr. John Bell, a nephew of Jerome Keenes took the stand.

The 16th of February was the last date on which she saw Keene. She said they had borrowed $200 from Keene in 1924.

John Bell, a tax collector for the Townships of Marmora and Lake, was the next witness.

"I paid Keene $200 when I purchased the property. One-third of the money was given to Mrs. Wife. Mr. Bell denied ever having given Keene a drink of liquor.

"Did you know Jerome Keene had lost some money?" the witness was asked.

"Yes, we discussed it."

Bell said he owed $200 to Keene and the interest had not been paid.

"Keene told me to keep it but I told him several other parts might owe in so I didn't want to be paying interest on it."

Mr. Bell said the Moffats eventually paid it on 1927.

(The witness created a great deal of amusement in the court-room due to the manner in which he gave Mr. Donnan's questions, and order was called several time.)

"Did you have any objection to Keene's presence on your farm?"

"No, we were always the best of friends."

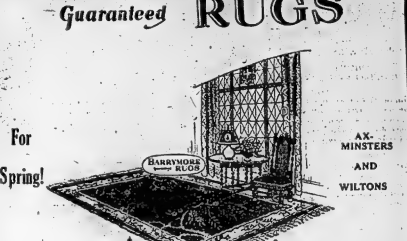

John R chardson said the last time he saw Jerome Keene alive was on Dec. 16th.

William R. Stringer, inspector of the criminal investigation for the Province, was called. He identified several documents touching on Jerome Keene's financial activities.

BILL IN COMMITTEE

Gov't Accepts Amendment Respecting Sale of Chery Wine

Toronto, March 23.— The Ontario Government is prepared to offer D. H. Hanna, "strong man" of its Liquor Commission, a salary of $20,000 per year, and it is prepared to pay Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion and R. McGregor Gray, his co-commissioners, approximately half this amount. Announcement to this effect was made in the legislature last night by Premier Ferguson, when the Government Control Bill came before the committee of the whole House and consequently it received a boost by the cabinet consideration.

What is a Residence

The House did not reach the control bill until close to two o'clock, but before it had adjourned at night it had dealt with some eleven sections and had engaged in considerable discussion of interpretation. The term "resid ace" was particularly examined in the deliberations, the Opposition arguing that it left the way open for abuses of the legislation, and the Government defending it on the ground that it represented an effort for liquor as a reservice.

The point in which the residence or "domicile" law would be interpreted, Hon. Mr. Ferguson said, was that of the place in which an individual was momentarily residing and the only requirement of the law would be reasonable evidence of bona fide use of the place occupied for residence purposes. The Premier scoffed at Hon. Mr. Raney's suggestion that a person might erect a small bell tent for taking a drink, since a tent could qualify as a residence under the Act.

4.6 a Soft Drink

One feature of the bill which both Opposition and Government members were insistent upon having justified was the provision for perpetuating the 4.4 beer which ex-Attorney-General Nickle presented to the Province last year. The Premier explained that the reason for continuing the license was because it was in order that it might be controlled and not because the means of shielding traffic in stronger beverages. The Government was considering, he said, a readjustment of the tax upon it, which would treat it in this regard more as a soft drink.

Cherries For Wine

From all the discussion which the measure received, the Government accepted only one amendment, which came from Gosfield Hillmer of Halton on the Government side of the chamber. Mr. Hillmer succeeded in having cherries legalized as a fruit from which native wine can be made. Hitherto the definition of native wine has required it to be made from Ontario grapes.

PRINCIPALS IN COLD BLOODED MURDER

What Gotham police call the "coldest premeditated crime" in the history of the force, is said to have been solved with the confession of Harold Judd Gray, convict salesman, that he and the victim's wife plotted the murder of Albert Snyder, art editor of Motor Boating Magazine. One little detail, the Five public schools were visited today by H. L. Hudson of the Ontario Safety League accompanied by Chief Alexander Kidd, and the pupils told of the simple precautions necessary to safety in street traffic. Mr. Hudson's lecture "Public Safety on the Streets" was heard with great interest by the pupils and who learned that in 1925 there were forty-eight more fatalities on the streets than the year previous, and that in the following year there were twenty-three fewer fatalities than in the year preceding. The inference being that the talks saved at least twenty-three children's lives. This year he will extend his trip to sixty towns and cities. Pathé Beat Friends

The speaker urged the children to realize that the safety are their best friends and that they are made by them for protection. He recounted lots of actual accidents which have occurred in Ontario and urged upon the person attention and dwelt upon the fact that the accident does not end with the loss of life, but that it results in many many homes in the sorrow and grief caused to the families both of the victim and the person responsible.

After telling how most of the accident which daily occur, he pointed out that they could have been averted had Safety First measures been observed and asked the pupils to each help in making the town safe by co-operation, especially with the police. He cautioned each to in case of a motor accident, note the time of day the place and the number of the car which was responsible and to report all to the police, the teacher or some responsible person.

Motion pictures which were shown by the speaker showed the dangers of traffic, accidents and how they could have been averted.

BEATRICE LILLIE AND HUSBAND RUNNING DANCE HALL NOW

London, March 23.—Sir Robert Peel and his wife, the former Beatrice Lillie of New York musical comedy fame, and the dancer Gilda Gray of Toronto, have opened a tiny dance hall in the suburbs of Birmingham. The manager says the hall promises to be more dances and making announcements. The place is near Drayton Hall, Sir Robert's former ancestral home, which is now demantled.

The baronet is said to have taken up the dance hall management because he wanted work. Between employing labor and organizing amusements, which he considers the two ways he had of making himself useful, he chose the latter. He hopes to enlarge the hall shortly.

SHANGHAI TO BE CENTRE FOR NEW WORLD REVOLUTION SAYS GENERAL

Urges Nationalists Not to Attack Foreigners But Imperialism

Shanghai, March 22.—Situation in Shanghai appears much easier in all political districts today, with the victorious Cantonese army gradually taking matters in hand. Small body of Northerners were still holding out in the Chapei district and there was some firing, but Chinese close quarter cordon constituted a good barometer of prevailing conditions, were responsive.

A World Revolution

Shanghai is to become the "base for a world revolution", says a manifesto issued by One-eyed Pai Tsung Hsi, Cantonese commander, to the Chinese people today, but foreigners must not be attacked or insulted or their property destroyed.

"For eighty years," the manifesto reads, "the Imperialists, under the protection of unequal treaties, have reduced China to a state of vassalage. "After the revolution of 1911 the foreign Imperialists continually supplied Chinese militarists with rifles and guns, with which they have created war for the last fifteen years. On the one hand, the foreign Imperialists have checked the development of Chinese education and industries, and on the other have secured for themselves special privileges."

Must Not Attack Foreigners

"But the Chinese now have awakened and Shanghai, the great commercial centre in the far East, will become not only a strong base for Chinese Nationalism, but for a world revolution. The people must discipline, however, between attacking Imperialism and foreigners. They must not insult the foreigners and destroy their property."

Gural Pai urges arbitration in order to avoid strikes and deprecates the exorbitant demands which would result in closing the factories along the.

STUDENTS RIOT

London, March 23.—French police in Shanghai, says a despatch to the Daily Express, prevented a riot yesterday when four hundred students of Aurora University, conducted by Jesuit Fathers, rebelled, demanding that the hands of the school be hanged forthwith to Sun Yat Sen University. A notorious Communist agitator was appointed by the students as President of the University.

NANKING'S FALL EXPECTED SOON

Cantonese Are Closing in on Important City Refugees Flee

Shanghai, March 23.—A night of conservative quiet, after two days and one night of chaos and disorder, was followed this morning by a resumption of firing in the northern part of Shanghai, not far from the border of the international settlement, where a small remnant of Northern troops was still holding out. Many houses were set on fire.

Nevertheless, the general situation in and around the city was more peaceful than at any time since the vanguard of the Southern Armies marched into Shanghai last Monday. Their coming marked the beginning of disorders of all descriptions—fighting, killing, looting and destruction. It was only after the arrival of more than five thousand Cantonese regular troops in the native city late yesterday that any semblance of quiet was restored.

Nanking Next

A fate similar to that of Shanghai seems to be hanging over the important city of Nanking, as Southern Armies continue to close in around that place. Artillery and rifle firing southward of the city is audible in Nanking. Women and children are being taken aboard merchant vessels or fast as accommodations are available, others are being held on British and United States warcraft until space is available elsewhere.

FREED OF CHARGE OF HAVING LABELS

Toronto, Ont., March 23.—A sequel to the seizure of a large quantity of whiskey and the arrest of Norman Tanner and Frank Edward on the Kingston Road occurred last night when the seizure jury after deliberating for seven and one half hours acquitted the accused charged with having in their possession and using counterfeit inland revenue stamps.

The men had twice faced trial before His Honor Judge Denton and on the same charges, the jury disagreeing last December. Tanner had denied knowledge of the liquor and Edward had said the cargo was being taken to Trenton for a Toronto man.

WAR CLOUDS ARE CLEARING AWAY

Italy and Jugo-Slavia Have Settled Difficulties, Over Albania

London, Mar. 23.—Br'tish official has believed that the latest Balkan crisis has about blown over. This view is based on a conference between Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, and Marquis Della Torretta, at the Foreign Office yesterday, in which the Italian Ambassador gave Sir Austen reasons for Italy's alarm over the Albanian situation.

The Marquis also expressed the view that it was largely due to the prompt action of the Italian government in informing the powers of its suspicion of Jugo-Slavia's intentions towards Albania that dangerous developments were averted. Downing Street considers the incident closed.

Incident Seems Closed

London, Mar. 23. — Sir Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, informed the House of Commons today that according to his information it would not be necessary to refer the d spute between Italy and Jugo-Slavia to the League of Nations.

The reduction in operating ratio from 86.32 to 82.5 shows a further improvement in operating efficiency. For the first time net earnings for the year are more than sufficient to pay all fixed charges due the public.

REFUSE RENEWAL O'KEEFE LICENSE

Toronto, March 23.—The Royal Customs Commission is considering a recommendation that the renewal of the license of the O'Keefe Brewery Company, Limited, of Toronto, be refused. The license of this company expires at the end of the present month.

"We have a great deal of anxiety that the books of this company were taken away by the Customs and Inland Revenue from inspection by Government auditors," said Chief Commission Brown this morning. "We believe that no serious effort had been made by the company to locate the books and that they could be found. Unless they are found, commission would consider recommending that the renewal of the company's license be refused until the books are produced.

CUT DOWN LIST IN LIBEL ACTION

Detroit, March 23.—Efforts of approximately one-third of the 141 specific allegations of libel in Aaron Sapiro's $1,000,000 dollar suit against Henry Ford was determined upon overnight. The will be cut out in compliance with Judge Hayes-worth's suggestion that Sapiro's declaration in the suit was insufficient in many respects and too involved to be comprehended readily by the average juror.

Mr. Gallagher said. They could not get the arduous task completed in time to file an amended declaration today, but said they would file it before the end of this week.

BREAD STILL SELLS FOR LESS THAN MAKING COST

The last baker to capitulate in the bread war, brought his price down today to 16 cents retail and 14 cents wholesale. The fight is going on with no sign of truce or surrender on either the part of the man who started it or the bakers who since joined in concerts against the first to let down the price.

Bread still runs from 9 1-2 to 16 cents for a double loaf.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Education cannot be purchased with money like a house or a bag of bleedin.—Mr. J. Rich-Oxley.

HARD TO SATISFY

It used to be the cry of the prohibitionists that what had to be done was the suppression of "the open bar." Drinking in the open was the evil to be fought. Let the accursed traffic be driven out of sight. They got their way.

Now Mr. Raney and other prohibitionists in the legislature are thundering against the government-control bill because it puts the ban on open drinking as rigorously as the O.T.A. has done. "Why compel drinkers to indulge their vice in secret places?" it is asked. "If there is nothing wrong with it, why not let them drink in the open in public places?"

Which is almost enough to point to the conclusion that it is useless for Mr. Ferguson to make any attempt to satisfy his prohibitionist critics.

"MORE BLASPHEMY

If all blasphemous utterances such as those which caused for the Toronto publisher a jail sentence and an order of deportation were to be treated as severely as his, our courts of law would be much busier than they are. Perhaps the most offensive thing that was printed in Sterry's paper had reference to the Jehovah of the old testament, whom the writer of the offensive matter regarded as a "tribal deity," and alluded to as "an irate old party." But, you recently published books which are widely circulated in this country contain matter not less offensive than that which sent Sterry to jail and may send him out of the country as an undesirable citizen. One of these books is Lewis Sinclair's latest novel "Elmer Gantry," in which Jehovah is called "the old bearded Jewish God." The other book is H. G. Wells novel "William Clissold," in which God is designated throughout as "Mr. G."

These books are on sale everywhere throughout Canada. If Sterry was guilty of blasphemous libel because of what he published in an obscure weekly paper read by very few, what about these widely circulated books by celebrated authors? Are they to be immune? Is a literary reputation sufficient to protect a writer who pens and his publisher who puts forth blasphemous libels?

MARITIME RELIEF

"It is the wheel that creaks the loudest that gets the grease." That is why the federal government is going to make several important concessions to the Maritime provinces at the expense of the rest of the Dominion. Long and loud was the wail from the Maritimes that their interests had been sacrificed by the confederation pact; insistent was their demand for redress, and rather truculent was their threat that if redress was not forthcoming they would secede. The Duncan commission was appointed to investigate their grievances, and its report recommended several substantial concessions. In his announcement in parliament yesterday premier Mackenzie made it known that the government has resolved to make almost all the concessions recommended. The Maritimes are going to get pretty much all they have asked for.

Most important of the concessions is a 20 per cent. reduction in all railway freight rates in the Maritime division of the C.N.R., including export and import traffic by sea to and from that territory. This will not only be of benefit to local shippers and consumers, but will help to divert Canadian railway traffic to Canadian Atlantic ports.

The general question of increased provincial subsidies for the Maritimes is to be referred to the coming provincial conference; but an immediate subsidy (or solatium) is to be granted to the Atlantic provinces—a total sum of $1,400,000, Nova Scotia to get $375,000, New Brunswick $000,000, and Prince Edward Island $135,000.

Harbor commissions are to be established for Halifax and St. John, which will be expected to supply continuous pressure upon the federal authorities for the expenditure of more and more money in harbor developments and the diversion of traffic to those ports.

Something is to be done to encourage the establishment of coking plants which would use Nova Scotia coal.

Money is to be spent to provide a system of technical education for Prince Edward Island, mainly with a view to technical instruction in agriculture.

Readjustment of the duties on coal and coke and steel with a view to assisting Maritime industries will be referred to the tariff advisory board. The Dominion government's recommendation that the St. John Valley railway in New Brunswick be taken over by the federal government will be deferred for further consideration. As for the special trade concessions asked for, the premier promises that efforts will be made to secure at Washington reciprocal concessions in the exchange of fish and agricultural products, and he hopes that the presence at Washington of a permanent Canadian minister will facilitate negotiations to that end.

The people of the Atlantic provinces should be well satisfied with what they have gained as the fruits of their agitation. Canadians in other parts of the country, whose expense the concessions are to be made will not begrudge them if they stimulate the Maritime folks in to doing more to help themselves.

You cannot blame that fickle dame—

She smiles on you, and life is fun.

ACIDS CAUSE BAD KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

Too much rich food forces acids which cause sad wreck in the body in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, for moving acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's poisonous waste drink plenty of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then not fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidneys and bladder disorders. By all means, drink lots of good water every day.

DEATH KNELL OF JAZZ IS SOUNDED

Rome, March 23.—The deathknell of the jazz era has sounded, Vatican officials believe. They put this interpretation on reports from ecclesiastical observers throughout the world to the effect that the tide has turned decisively against the wave of immorality which followed in the wake of the World War.

No part of the globe has failed to feel the effect of this reaction from the post-war period, according to the Vatican's informants. They point out that not only is Christendom affected, but that Turkey has taken a step against immoral dance and Japan against immoral life.

In response over the changed conditions, which are attributed partly to what is characterized as the Pope's "financial crusade against all forms of immorality," Vatican officials do not go so far as to predict in a strong way even in the sense of believing that the morals of the individuals have improved.

But there is no doubt, a spokesman for the Holy See points out, that "all governments, confronted with a spectacle of collapse of standards and honesty and decency of ideas are scrapping theirs and move and move with the task of checking immorality and seeking to discover at first hand its causes."

The Comte Della Torre, who usually speaks for the Pope, remarks that "the world was terrifying when the people of Europe had gradually returned to normal decency the moral pit into which the world fell during the war."

MODERN IDEAS IN RETREAT

In some quarters, the so-called modern ideas are in retreat all along the line. Hungary, Italy, Germany, Belgium and Czechoslovakia have taken official steps against immorality going to art.

The United States, England and Canada are showing signs of awakening to the danger of immorality on the stage while Italy, Spain and other Mediterranean countries are co-operating with the Church in defence of the traditional lines of sanctity of the family.

Advocates of birth control and easy divorce, for temporary successes, now are rapidly losing ground. Dress fashions and dance vogues, having reached the stage of shamelessness, now are turning back toward sanity and decorum.

The reasoned Belgravian editorials in the larger capitals, such as Paris, Berlin and London, which mush-roomed into rank florescence immediately after the War, now are in a state of decrepitude.

After drawing this picture, the Vatican officials declare that its most important phase is the voluntary abandonment by young men and women, of the war-time psychology of self-indulgence in favor of sober, serious productive activity.

B.C. HUBBY MUST BE ATTRACTIVE

London, March 22 (C.P.) — The Mayor of Lancaster is still receiving letters from ladies anxious to be placed in correspondence with Mayor Lees' new Worthy Master, B.C., who asked his Worship to assist in finding him a wife.

A widow writes: "I neither dance nor drink, and I have not children."

Letters have reached the Mayor from as far north as Aberdeen and as far south as Dover. One offer is from two young women, who make it clear they will remain the best of friends whether B.C. does or does not marry. He declares that she "does not want to be married in a hurry. Marry in haste, repent at leisure" is the motto of another girl in British Columbia and let's the prospective husband decide after a reasonable time.

One who has already been in Canada offers to return. A Yorkshire girl, who confesses to having been shingled, says she is domesticated and wants a good man so that they can help each other to lead straight lives. "I will do my best to make him happy," she adds.

HOLLAND SENDS FINE TYPE MEN

New Citizens Here to Learn the Optical Business Like Canada

With only a short seven weeks' course in England to equip them for the battle of life in this country, Johannes and Bernard Richel, two Dutch brothers, came to Belleville six weeks ago from The Hague, Holland, to learn the optical business in the American Optical plant here. Fired with ambition they communicated with the American Optical Company and were immediately placed and appropriately making good here.

Johannes was connected with a lab. oratory in Holland where he got a good grounding for fine work. Bernard Richel was employed in a store in his native land. Both boys are enthusiastic sportsmen, being well-built in body, and stated this morning that football was their favorite game, as well as being the most popular sport in Holland.

Leave Family

The boys left a mother, father and four sisters when they came to this country. The sisters' names are Betsey, Maria, Lena and Martha, although they would not be pronounced or spelled, the same way in the Dutch tongue.

"We like this country awfully well," the boys chorused this morning when interviewed by The Intelligencer, "but the winter is much more severe in Belleville than around The Hague. We never had such so much snow as we have seen here."

When asked whether Prohibition was in force in Holland the boys shook their heads and stated, "There is too much drinking in our country," they stated, "in some parts men squander most of their wages on a Saturday afternoon."

Make Home Here

The young Dutchmen intend to make their home in Belleville and become members of St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening, as it is similar to the Church of Holland.

"People are so nice and polite in this country," said Johannes Richel "We like Belleville very much" and the young man said that they had trouble in understanding our language at first but were getting more used to it every day. They enjoy the "movies" and said that American films were popular in Holland, the titles being translated into the Dutch language.

Bowling Circle was top-game total of 1041 and followed this with totals of 903 and 858 in the doubles and singles respectively. The grand total 2801, an average of 277 8-9 per game, will take some beating for the all events prize.

Assay returns on the property claim the net sampling of a section 55 feet in width to show 13.31 per cent. copper and 40 cents in gold. Another section of sulphide and quartz mixed with chalcopyrite it is claimed gives values of 2.900 per cent. copper and a trace of gold.

LIFE TERM FOR SWISS LANDRU

Youth of 18 Engaged to 23 Women at Same Time

Geneva, March 23.—The Swiss Landru Max Kaufmann, 18, was found guilty yesterday of the premeditated murders of two fiancees, Maria Caroline and Frieda Gassmann, and was sentenced to life imprisonment with hard labor—the death sentence having been abolished in the canton of Zurich many years ago.

The murderer heard the judge's verdict evidently, bowing and smiling at the court.

The police prosecutor proved that Kaufmann, who arrested, was engaged at the same time to twenty-three women, through matrimonial advertisements.

"Fortunately, Haufmann was arrested in time, otherwise he would have committed his ridiculous, murderous career," said the prosecutor.

Although only the two above-mentioned charges were proved, it is strongly believed that he committed other murders, as many women have disappeared mysteriously from the district of Zurich in recent years.

It was proved at the trial, which lasted six days, that Kaufmann's only motive was robbery as he never worked and always had plenty of money.

He also left two wives in the back during promenades in a forest.

OUTBURSTS OF RAGE AND LONG REGRETS

I could hardly read it so weak and tangled were the letters, as if the hand that wrote them shook with intolerable pain—as though the heart that controlled that hand grew weary of its task.

Then, as I slowly deciphered the words I saw the truth. The old hands were indeed in pain—the heart was broken with its long remorse. A short letter, painfully written, but in it there is a terrible sermon which should be shouted to all the world..

"TEMPER! TEMPER! TEMPER!"

DEAR ELSIE:

Temper, temper, temper, print it in black letters. What grief it can cause. It parted my wife and me. Now that it is too late I have learned to control it. We had one boy and two girls, and every time things did not go right with me. I took it out on them, especially on the boy.

One day something went wrong and I cursed my boy. My wife told me I was wrong and I got so crazy that I knocked her down. She left me a month after that, took ill and died. Then I woke up. This was fifteen years ago. Today I am living with the boy I was so cruel to. He is fine to his old dad, better than I deserve by far.

My hands bother me. I can't write nor work very much. I read your part of the paper and knowing how I suffered from my fits of temper, and how much I have gained from your solemn words I thought a talk from you might help me and a few other hot-heads, too. I found out that temper is cultivated and not inherited and can be handled if a fellow has enough will-power. I hope you can read this. I have no control over my hands now. I used to write a good hand.

HENRY.

Have you a Black Temper in your life?

Have you been excusing it by saying—that you were "nervous" or "high strung" or that temper "runs through our family." Stop it! There's only one type of human that has an honest excuse for a violent temper and that's an INSANE PERSON. Are you insane? If so, go right along and chew the furniture. If not—SWITCH INTO LOW AND OBSERVE THE TRAFFIC LAWS!

And if you don't? Then you'll pay for it—be sure of that. Hate may be to you a passing thing but it's much, much more than that to the world in which you live. The hate you shoot out into the world is as deadly as any bullet. It has VICIOUS VIBRATION and it mutilates bodies. If you send out that vicious vibration make sure that it will come back to you. It's a boomerang. If you sow hate you will reap it—and it will write its story in "black letters" on every page of your life.

And while we're on the subject of mean dispositions how about Pouty Husband? What remedy would you suggest for a masculine case of pouts?

I've suggested everything from heaving the gas range at him to calling the cops. But the t'ings still multiplies and the want suggestions. Suppose the Beefing Bimbo in the following letter was yours and you wanted to keep him for life? What would you do if he got one of his pouty spells? "I know what I could do. Perhaps you can think of something cooling and soothing that will put William on his feet again. DEAR ELSIE:

I would like to have your opinion of a husband who sulks at the least thing. He will also, stop talking to me and will not say good-by or give me any greeting. He has been silent now for eight weeks. The cause of his anger is so petty that it isn't worth mentioning. He tells me sulking is a habit and that I can never change it.

He is so selfish. He claims he loves me and yet he knows it kills me to have him going around with a grouch. I've had one nervous breakdown and feel I'll have another he's made me feel so lonely and melancholy. If he cared for me he wouldn't act as he does when he knows it hurts me so. Will you write your opinion on this He is a constant reader of your column.

Showing How Fashion Illustrates Her Point

BETTMANN 1319

A smart frock often reminds one of a clever woman, seeming at first to be a mysterious creation, and disclosing upon closer acquaintance a still more charming simplicity. The flock above appears to be cut in an intricate pattern of panels, yet the effect is produced by the most unassuming trimming bands, made of the same material as the frock, but in a lighter or darker shade of the color. One band zigzags around the hips and over the upper plaits in front, while a second band falls from the underarm seams in a deep U drops front and back to form the central panels of the skirt. Pointed trimmings on the cuffs and a V-neck develop the theme further.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

When using a can opener grasp the can near the bottom with the other hand so if the can opener slips your hand will not be there to receive an ugly cut.

Spices left open will quickly lose all flavor. Keep a set of labeled jars or tins for coffee, tea and condiments.

Always keep two brooms, one for the porch and kitchen and one for the fine rugs.

Rubber hot water bottles may be mended with court plaster to cover the hole and set in place with a warm iron.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

The weather favored their jaunt; autumn was never so flamingly gorgeous, so softly, languorously hazy; or so it seemed to Christine. A season of magic seemed by a bequest cast by days radiant with a harvest moon by night! A mellow season with the scent of ripened fruit and grain filling the air. A season marked by the glowing beauty of maturity!

To Christine, it was symbolical. It had been spring when, as a laughing girl, she had loved Harvey Blanton.

Now she found herself grown in maturity, had learned the meaning of real love—the love that is friendship and trust and protection.

She was not ashamed—she was proud —when she admitted to herself that she had fallen deeply in love with Clifford Vane.

THE MIRACLE OF LOVE

Christine's discovery that she was in love with Clifford Vane had a curious effect upon her. Instead of seeming unhappy—since his attitude toward her betokened no more than the sincerest friendship and admiration—she was radiantly happy over the mere fact that she loved him.

It seemed to her very wonderful that this new and beautiful emotion should have come to her after her years of disillusionment and discouragement. She had believed her heart to be quite dead to the call of romance. From Harvey Blanton she had learned that love can be shamed and betrayed. Lewis Hayes unwittingly had taught her that love can terrify. Sanford had sickened her.

It remained for Clifford Vane to teach her, all unknowingly, that love is radiant and beautiful—all the more so when it comes as a quiet haven after the storm. For the first time, she learned the meaning of loving without hope of return. She found her life the more divine of her heart to a man who did not guess what precious gift was in his keeping. For the first time since that horrible day when she had recoiled from Lewis Hayes' arms, she understood and gilded him. He had loved her, as she loved Vane.

She found a new joy in living, with the thought of Vane jealously guarded in her heart. There was a reason for spinning out of bed in the morning; for singing over the preparation of breakfast; for humming away to her work—for would she not see him sometime that day?

There was a new urge in her work. She wanted to do something like write something splendid, that she might hear his praise.

One afternoon when work was slack and there was an idle hour, she thrust a sheet of paper into her typewriter machine, and began to write.

She had been doing a series of short sketches entitled "The Memoirs of a Wife," for the first mansion for which she had ever written. She had dipped her pen into the bitterness of her heart and had written out of the fulness of her experience.

But that afternoon, when she whirled away a quiet hour, the story that she wrote was a sweet little romance of youth and love—a thing of moonlight and jasmine—the sort of thing the very thought of Clifford Vane aroused in her heart.

She chuckled happily to herself as she wrote, and she made an impish face at the old, cynical Christine who laughed mockingly at some of her tender passages.

Suddenly a shadow fell athwart her page. She glanced up to meet the grim, unsmiling glance of her chief. "What is this you are doing, Mrs. Blanton?"

Instinct had prompted her gesture which hit the written words, and the same instinct prompted her to lie—and lie quickly.

"I was just doing something in her made her say truthfully:

"It is a short story that just occurred to me. My own work is finished."

"Your work here is never finished, Mrs. Blanton," was the curt reply. "None of us can ever finish all there is to do. You should have come to me for instructions, if you had an idle hour. I suppose it's not the first time you have made use of working-hours for your own advantage."

She thought of "The Memoirs of a Wife," and she nodded.

"But only once or twice," she faltered, "and then only when my desk was cleared."

"That is something we cannot overlook," he said. "If you work did not occupy all your time, you should have told me so. It is wholly unfair to having cheated the office as to time it is impossible for you to remain here any longer."

"You — you mean I'm — fired? gasped Christine.

He bowed and turned away, after mentioning something about her salary.

Christine could hardly believe her ears. She had tried so hard. This job had been her one hope. Now it must be the old weary, disheartening round again, with perhaps failure at the end—failure and destitution for herself and Louise.

Tears blinded her as she put on hat, found her gloves and her flat little purse. But she remembered to gather up the sheets of the story she had been writing—the story that was the cause of her dismissal. And she carefully and proudly folded it when she passed through the outer office.

Once safely at home, she gave way to unrestrained weeping.In the midst of her passion of tears Vane rang her up.

"Are you ill, Christine? What brought you home so early? I drove round to get you, and the elevator boy said you'd left at four o'clock."

"I'm fired," she told him huskily. "Are you crying?" he demanded sharply, his quick ear noting the cadence of her voice.

"Oh, no, I'm laughing," she declared, with a note of hysteria in her irony. "It's hilarious."

He shall call for you in fifteen minutes. Be ready for a drive in the country. On the way, I shall pick up an old woman I know to be thoroughly reliable. She will stay with Louise until you return."

Christine made no protest. She felt almost happy at the prospect of seeing him so soon; comforted by the masterful way he had taken charge of the situation.

They drove along the Hudson. The warmth of Indian summer had not faded with the twilight. The wind was there was pungent with the scent of burning leaves. The moon was shining above the Jersey Palisades.

Clifford Vane, after one keen glance at Christ'ne's face, did not speak as they drove. Twilight enveloped them and the silence of the country roads.

Tears rolled down Christine's cheeks. A sob escaped her. He stopped the car and, with a single gesture, turned to her and gathered her into his arms.

Relieving Women's Hygiene

Of the worries — Of the tissues

By HELEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

BECAUSE old hygienic ways are in the wane, women active in business and society have few hygienic worries these days. Hazardous old ways are being supplanted by a new way called Kotex.

You discard Kotex just like a sheet of tissue. No laundry, no embarrassment.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads, one now wears discreet frocks and gowns without the slightest fear of embarrassment.

Also deodorize thoroughly, thus ending all danger of offending.

Doctors and nurses widely urge Kotex. Women everywhere employ it.

You can obtain it at any store simply by saying "KOTEX." Box of 12 costs only a few cents. Be sure you get the genuine, for only Kotex stands for "like" Kotex.

QUIET SESSION MARKED SITTING OF CITY COUNCIL

City Fathers Dispose of Routine Business—Reports Presented

The application of Mr. E. Sprague to build and construct new cleaning machinery and apparatus in a building on Dufferin Avenue, north of Bridge was granted by the Council last evening. Mr. Sprague must submit plans to the City Engineer. A committee composed of Aldermen Corman, Cherry, Tice and City Engineer were appointed to act in the matter.

The tender of Mr. S. Lorne for market and city property was accepted by the Council last evening. He must furnish approved sureties to the satisfaction of the Chairman of Market and City Property, the City Treasurer and City Clerk. Mr. Large's account for 1926-1927 must be settled to the approval of the City Auditor.

O. E. S. Convention

The Council recommended that the Order of the Eastern Star be permitted to hang banners on Front Street during their convention here in June. The chairs from the City Hall will be loaned for the Convention. From twelve to fifteen hundred delegates are expected here for the Convention.

The O.E.S. asked for a grant of $400.00 in connection with the affair. This was left over for the estimates. The Chapter is doing considerable benevolent work at the present time. In connection with the Convention the Eastern Star will publish a booklet devoting several pages to Belleville and surrounding district.

Chas. Campbell, City Engineer, advised the Council of the completion of the assessment of sanitary sewers and private drain connection which were delivered to the City Clerk February 22nd, 1927. Sewers not finished last autumn will be completed in the Spring.

The special committee composed of Alderman Collins, City Solicitor and the City Engineer, met a deputation from Prince Edward County and interviewed the Hon. G. S. Henry with regard to the assessment for the reconstruction of a connecting dyke and bridge between the city and Prince Edward County.

A statement showing the assessment and mileage of Provincial highways adjacent to the various cities in the Province was obtained and a chart prepared which was laid before the minister prior to the general meeting. Later the committee attended another meeting in Toronto when the Minister of Highways promised the matter would be taken up with the Premier. Relief was also asked from the inequitable assessment on the city which was greatly exercised.

1867 - DIAMOND JUBILEE SERIES - 1927

The text in the book reproduced above is from "The Life and Work of Sir William Van Horne," by Walter Vaughan, in the "Makers of Canada," Vol. X., Published by the Oxford University Press, Toronto.

INCREDIBLE as it would have seemed to contemporaries, the Fenian Raids and the Riel Rebellion actually promoted rather than retarded the development of the Dominion towards its great destiny.

Sir William Van Horne often declared that Canada ought to erect monuments to the leaders of these two movements. And why? Because the Fenian Raids galvanized public opinion into realizing the imperative need for a transcontinental railroad, and the Riel Rebellion justified the road in the mind of the Government.

The Fenians struck at various points in Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. This emphasized the need of railway communication, if only as a means of defence. Followed the Riel Rebellion.

News of it reached Van Horne who immediately offered the resources of the Canadian Pacific Railway to carry troops. Knowledge that the construction had progressed so far came as a surprise to the Government, and the offer was accepted gladly.

Although there were still several gaps in the line north of Lake Superior, these were bridged by sleighs. Troops, guns, and stores were rushed west over the Canadian Pacific route to help deal with the Rebellion. This practical demonstration removed the indifference which had prevented adequate financing, and funds were forthcoming to complete the line.

The Canadian Pacific Railway had demonstrated its strength and its value to Canada.

ed by the work of the Bay Bridge. The City Engineer deemed it advisable to get the assurance that such relief should be given before the present sinking fund. It was recommended that the Mayor, Aldermen Collins and Wotten and Engineer Campbell interview the local members in the matter.

Sign Boards

The matter of forbidding the placing of billboards throughout the city on corners and other places was referred back to committee for consideration. A by-law was previously passed touching on this matter, but on the advice of the City Solicitor the matter will be handled more fully and the erection of signs on buildings and covered.

Wynne Roberts, Son and McLean who have been investigating the local gas situation have informed the Council that the body may be in a position to invite the 1928 convention here. If the works are completed in time the visitors will be given a fine opportunity for discussion.

Aldermen Tice and Wotten are committee appointed to consult with the Parks Board in an effort to have the city present a pageant at the time of the Diamond Jubilee this summer. Practically every large city in the Dominion is planning one of these exhibitions.

Year's Estimates

The City Clerk has written the Council requesting the various chairmen for their estimates for the year. The assessor was not ready to go on with his work until the income assessment was settled by the Government. The chairman has been advised to keep the estimates as low as possible.

The teachers and students of Belleville High School have expressed their thanks to the Council for the grant to the Board of Education for the new Collegiate.

A letter was received by the Council from the Hon. Hugh Guthrie in regard to the resolution passed in regard to the renewal of the Charter to the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal Co. Mr. Guthrie said he was in hearty accord with the resolution.

Dr. Wallbridge wrote the Council in regard to having tourist traffic directed by way of Bridge Street to the city limits instead of Dundas Street. No action was taken.

Harry Greenleaf communicated with the Council in regard to speeding on Station Street. The writer requested that the section between Church and Station Street corners be declared as a danger zone and that signs be put up warning the public of the speed limit which in Mr. Greenleaf's opinion should be fifteen miles per hour.

Sealed tenders in answer to advertisement for the purchase of the property on the corner of Bridge and Victoria Streets, known as the Bridge Street Public School property, will be received by the undersigned up to noon on Saturday, April 2nd, 1927. Terms of sale, cash. Highest or any tender not necessarily accepted. Possession to be given on May 1st, 1927. Apply to the undersigned for further particulars.

DAVID ROBERTSON,
Secretary-Treasurer,
Board of Education.

A letter was received from W. E. Thomson M.P., acknowledging the receipt of a resolution passed by the Council dealing with the charter of the Canada and Georgian Bay Canal Co. Mr. Thomson promised his best efforts in carrying out the Council's wish.

Gas Expenses

Owing to the continued and inefficient management of the affairs of the Children's Aid Society the expenses of the institution have been gradually increasing and the charge per day to the City of Belleville have been reduced from five to six per day. The change to other municipalities will remain the same.

A letter from the Victorian Order Nurses Association was received requesting a grant of $200.00 to carry on the work during the present year. The request was laid over until the estimates have been struck. There is recorded in the Bank against the V.O.N. at the present time.

The Wynne-Roberts Co. recommended that the platform for the men operating the Tully plant at the gas works be extended 7 or 8 feet at a cost of $200.00. The change would make the track much higher and for the men as they would not be so much exposed to the two large fuel vessels. The matter was referred to Committee.

Thanks Extended

It was moved by Ald. Wotten and seconded by Ald. Proctor that the Aldermen of the city extend to Mr. John Elder their sincere thanks for his fine banquet Monday evening and for the privilege of hearing a fine address from Dr. Cody.

By a notion of Ald. Collins, seconded by Ald. Cherry the Council expressed their most profound and heartfelt sympathy to city auditor H. B. Stock in the irreparable loss sustained in the death of his mother.

He made good and as a result he is now being starred. In this picture, he fully justifies the faith placed in him by Universal officials and a great future is predicted for him. In his support are seen Louise Lorraine, William Norton Bailey, Ralph McCullough, Nita Cavalier, Ed ward Cecil, Howard Truesdell, Rober Dunbar, Slim Whittaker and Jack Kirk

OUTSTANDING

"Faust", that marvellous German production is showing at the Capitol this week and is run of the best picture that has ever been in Belleville.

Full of the thrills that never die, telling the eternal story of love, "Faust" was presented to a good house last night. One of the features of the picture is the extraordinary light-ist effects, producing a weird atmosphere throughout the entire production.

The picture prologue transports the audience into the realm of the imaginative mysticism, opening as it does with a hall of fire that burns and discloses Mephisto and an array of the devil hosts in a wager that the soul of Faust can be bought.

The action of the opera is carried out in a most tremendous and magnificent scale, that could not be produced on the stage.

In ending—but you should see the picture yourself.

BELLE THEATRE

It is Lillian Gish to whom the screen is indebted for Glenn Hunter, star in the Belle feature, "The Little Giant," the Universal-Jewel production from the Saturday Evening Post story, "Once on a Peddler," by Hugh McNair Kahler, and directed by William Nigh.

ANOTHER DOUBLE HEADER IN SOFT BALL TONIGHT

Indoor League Drawing Big Crowds This Season—First Game at 8

The second game of the local Senior Indoor League gets away tonight. At 8 p.m. the High School girls take on the much strengthened Deacon's. The students have a fine battery in M. Fairborn and A. Wilkins, so if they are given any kind of support by players like Peg Hickey, O. Adams, Canning, Redfern, Donnelly and a few more prospects that should round out a good city league team, they will give the Deacons a real argument. The Deacons have some classy players in pitcher G. Bentley with Wilkins, Jarrett and Kelleher of the Champion High School team, with the Mason sisters, I. Hickey, Murray and a few more that go to make up a real outfit. This should prove a real good game as both teams are nearly on a par.

The second game between the High Pressures and Y's Men should be as good a game as will be played this season. The former team with players like Kerr, Smith and Davis for pitchers and Latchford and Darrah on the receiving end along with Harper from Toronto, Post, Rigby, Stub Pallin, Stark, Belnap and Flagler should round out a real team, but the Y's Men have not been asleep. They have signed Knott and Naphin to the heaving along with Potts and Logan, a real classy soft-baller from Toronto to do the catching. also they have Jerry Hurley, Scott of Kingston and Brown of Hamilton in the outfield while in the infield there are players like Symons, Weir, Armstrong, Moxam and Grob and some more real good prospects so this should turn out t be a real good game which starts at 8 p.m.

The doors will be kept locked until 7.30 p.m. so as to keep the gallery seats for the cash customers as all children will be turned away unless accompanied by an adult. So follow the crowd to the Armouries, first game 8 p.m., second game 9 p.m.

Jack Allen, High Pressure's Manager requests that his players be on deck at 8.20 for a short business meeting previous to going into the game. Those who saw Monday night's games are sure to be back again tonight, and as the doors will open at 7.30 patrons are advised to be on hand at an early hour.

ANNUAL MEETING BAY OF QUINTE I.C. THURS.

On Thursday evening at Simcoe the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Ladies Softball League will be held when representatives of the four towns—Deseronto, Picton, Napanee, Belleville Bravers and Belleville Ontarios will be on hand to fix up affairs for the 1927 season. Last year was a very successful season and the teams look forward to a bigger and better league for the coming summer.

Those who will attend from Belleville are Mr. A. G. Meagher, President; Miss N. E. Merry, Secty-Treasurer and Mr. M.P. Duff, Advisor to League, a representative of the Ontarios and a representative of the Bravers.

HORNSBY SLATED FOR MANAGER OF N.Y. GIANTS

New York, March 22.—After watching the way in which Rogers Hornsby took hold of his new job with the New York Giants and the enthusiasm with which he carried out his job as captain, there are many who think that John McGraw wants him to manage the club when he retires.

It is one of the surest indications of spring to hear that McGraw is starting his last season with the Giants, but it's bound to come because some season must be his last and there are reasons to believe that he is getting ready to get out of active participation in field duties of the club.

McGraw is starting his twenty-fifth season as manager of the Giants and there were indications last year that he was tiring of the strain of handling a pennant contender or that he was cracking under the strain.

From sources close to the club it was known that McGraw had Frank Frisch in mind as a possible successor, but when Frisch missed a couple of signals last year and blew some games, McGraw is said to have marked him off as a possibility. He not only removed him from the list of candidates, but he traded him away to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hornsby is said to be drawing a salary of $40,000 this while that certainly is not a sum to be sneezed at he signed with such alacrity that there were reasons to believe that he had been given other inducements to come to terms with his new employers.

Before McGraw reported to the Sarasota training camp, Hornsby assumed his duties as captain, with so much authority that he actually was in charge of the camp and the other players played right along with him.

Some of the critics have said that

OSHAWA TO HAVE ARTIFICIAL RINK

Toronto Interests Have Obtained Option on West End Site

Oshawa, March 22.—Oshawa bids fair to have what many interested in that sort of thing have dreamed about—an artificial ice hockey rink.

In fact the proposition is now practically past the negotiation stage.

The plan is this:

Toronto interests have obtained an option on the West End skating rink, he former curling rink.

These same interests have given Hambly Bros. a contract to supply the ice.

The present wooden structure on the south side of King street will still be torn down and an Arena to accommodate a crowd of 5,000 will be erected there.

For years with Oshawa's splendid hockey teams there has been not only lack of ice at both ends of the season but a lack of accommodation for the crowds, as everyone knows. This situation existing year by year has meant at last three Toronto business men, whose names are not disclosed for the present, have taken hold and are preparing to meet the need here by up-to-date and comfortable hockey premises and equipment.

Hambly Bros., William and Arthur, with their efficient ice-making plant in steady operation and fortunately situated just across the street from the new rink will merely pipe under the roadway and convey the brine from their plant to the pipes in the rink. They will continue to make ice in summer for domestic purposes as they are doing now—fifteen tons a day—and to winter supply the rink as their contract calls for.

BOWLING

Y.M.C.A. BOWLING

Two games were played at the "Y" Alleys last evening, the first in the Ladies League when the Crescents and the Go-Getters battled and finished up with two points each. In the first game the Go-Getters were up 105 pins but lost the second by 50 pins. In the third game the Crescents were up 22 pins but were down on the total by 24 pins. Mrs. Beal led the high single of the evening with 208 and Mrs. Rutherford the third string with 418. The second game in the Men's League was a battle all the way when the Ponies and the Bowlers met, the Bowlers taking the first game by 164 pins but the Ponies came strong in the second and won this by 31 pins and they looked as if they might win the

TRAINING CAMP GOSSIP

New York, March 22—The following gossip was gathered from the training camps of the Major League baseball clubs:

The Athletics trounced the Boston Braves 9 to 3 yesterday and proved to Manager Mack that they had found their batting eyes. Boley led a 12 hit offensive with a home run and two singles.

Philadelphia's other Major League squad, the Phillies, also show signs of improved hitting. The second string squad yesterday made eleven safeties in a seven inning game against Columbus of the American Association.

Tommy Thevenow, Cardinal shortstop who had been a holdout, reported yesterday and without having had any preliminary training, went the full nine innings in a game against Washington.

Fred Schulte, centrefielder obtained by the Browns from Milwaukee for a last also, but fell off badly in the hot frames, and only won this game by 13 pins having down on the total by 26 pins. A. Whalen of the Ponies had the high single and three string of the evening with 271 and 670 while for the Bowlers Yerex was high with 622.

Tigers has released Jack Bonnan, recruit pitcher, to the Toronto Leafs.

According to Manager Jack McAllister, the Cleveland Indians are today going through an intra-club game which will last as long as the Hitchels hold out. The game is to be a work-inducer. The Indians have not done so well in their exhibition games.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"Now, my dear Flecie for the plan of campaign. From tonight you and I are partners, we are going to work together for our mutual benefit. Cards still on the table, eh? I am going to help you to marry your old flame. You mustn't ask me how I'm going to do it, but you can rest assured that I shall succeed. There is no need for you to hesitate, to feel any qualms of conscience; you and I say dear old, are working for his good—as well as your own. Now you will give me your address? Oh, you need not be afraid: I shall not trouble you with any visits, but I may have to write to you, will certainly have to send some things to you."

"No, don't refuse," he said. "Nothing can be done without money, and you will want what I am giving—lend big you, if you like. Plenty—and more. With this money you will buy yourself some clothes. It's just likely that you will not know exactly what to do, so you shall have me to this shop"—he wrote on a card and put it in front of her. "Tell them you are going to take a stunning companion to a ball. They will know what to give you; something plain, but good—they will know."

She looked from the money to him, her face rising; but the vision of Rafe rose before her, the passion for him with-it up in her heart, and suddenly, with a gesture eloquent enough of her feeling, her head closed on the roll.

"That's right," he said, with a nod. "Now, I'm going to order some tea for you—you've eaten no dinner—while we have our little talk out. Brother and sister, eh, Flecie?"

CHAPTER XV.

THE GROWTH OF LOVE

It is a little late in the day to remark that wealth and rank do not bring happiness. Notwithstanding that fact, and not only make an extremely favorable impression on the fashionable and glittering crowd which thronged Lady Quantock's brilliant saloon and filled most of the persons there had been filled with envy of the young man on whom Fortune had bestowed not only a handsome and a goodly presence but vast possessions and a historic title, Rafe was scarcely a subject for envy as he paced up and down his room, sombre furiously and recalling the incidents of the evening. His heart was heavy within him, the heart that was full of a young man's first love. Day by day, hour by hour, his love for Maude had grown; a tiny seed at first, it had now developed into a passion which absorbed and consumed him.

From the first he had loved without hope; the sentiment that possessed him partook more of adoration than desire, and his sense of her superiority, of her aloofness, kept pace with the growth of his love. It had never occurred to him that it would be possible for him even to tell her of his love for her; he would be content, so he had assured himself, just to worship her, to be satisfied with seeing near her, to wait upon her and serve her in little ways—and in great ways also, if Heaven sent him the luck to be able to do so. She seemed to him so far above every other woman that no man would d re to raise his eyes to her; and when Madeline Despard had told him that Lord Sunborne would probably marry Maude, the shock Rafe had suffered was not only that of jealously but that which one endures when brought face to face with an act of sacrilege. It amazed him that this young man with the vacuous smile, the receding forehead and chin, should aspire in spite with such a glorious girl as Maude.

But already he had seen enough of the world to understand and appreciate the advantages Lord Sunborne had over himself. Lord Sunborne was one of this great and strange world, that impenetrable circle to which Rafe ought to have belonged, to which, indeed, his rank entitled him to belong, but in which he had met with disorder and outsider. New clothes were all very well, but in his own eyes he was still a rough miner, uncouth, untrammelled, and totally different from the cultivated, polished people into whose midst he had been thrown by the accident of fate. Why, even Travers was more of a "gentleman" than himself, thought Rafe, as he recalled the easy with which Travers had borne himself; he had been able to dance with Maude, to talk with her, and the others as an equal. Yes, Travers would have made a far better Earl of Stranfyre than he, Rafe, was.

And the worst of it was, Rafe suspected that he would never be able to acquire the fine manners, the little tricks of speech, the half-sleepy, half-indolent way of moving and speaking which distinguished these men with whom he had to mix. He told himself that he would never get up the stairs of the old life at Jumping Jane. But against this reflection his sense of justice rose and protested; the life there had been hard and rough, but it had been an honest one, there was nothing in to be ashamed of; his father, though a saloon keeper, had been a "gentleman"; most of the boys were "white," true, and loyal friends. No, there was no stain in the old life, there was nothing wanton or unclean in the memories of Jumping Jane, they and he belonged to a different order from that in which he now found himself.

AWARDED $120 IN DAMAGE SUIT

Driver of Dairy Truck Admits He Was Exceeding Speed Limit

An interesting action was tried yesterday before His Honor Judge E. McLean between Francis R. Clarke of the concession, Township of Sidney, against Wellington Dairy Limited, for damages resulting from a collision, which took place last September, on the Frankford Stirling road, at the intersection with the sixth concession line. The Plaintiff claimed $120.00 damages to his car and alleged that the accident was due to the negligence of the driver of the Defendant's car. The Defendants claimed from the Plaintiff $20.00 damages to their truck and alleged that the accident was due to the negligence of the Plaintiff. After all the evidence had been submitted, the Judge found that the driver of the truck, on his own admission, was proceeding past the letter - ection at twenty-two (22) miles an hour, and failed to give proper warning, the Law requiring a person passing an intersection in the country, at a speed not greater than twelve and a half (12 1-2) miles per hour. There was no evidence to show negligence on the part of the Plaintiff, and Judgement was given for the Plaintiff for $120.00 and costs, including a Counsel fee, against the defendant, and the defendants' Counsel from whom was dismissed with costs.

Major R. . Ponton, appeared as Counsel for the Plaintiff, and Mr. E. J. Butler for the Defendants.

DAUGHTER AND MAIDS OF ENGLAND AT HOME

Lodge Pride of Belleville No. 87 Daughters and Maids of England held a very enjoyable time last evening in their Lodge room, True Blue Hall, Front Street.

Members of Lodge Empire, Toronto, were present in goodly numbers and hundreds and pounds of members were also invited and the lodge room was well filled. Progressive euchre was played at twelve tables while four others were interested in Whist. Prizes for euchre were: 1st Ladies, Mrs. Beale, Trenton; 1st Gents, Mr. West Rothwell; Ladies' Consolation was won by Mrs. Hooper of Miss H. Hammersley, while Mr. W. Edmundson added another to his list of Gents Consolation. Miss Winnie Staples was the successful winner for a 2 1-2 lb. box of chocolate donated by Mr. Hicks. Refreshments were served after the game and partaken of in the hearty "English style." Supper Committee was in charge of Jackson Hall where dancing was indulged in till after midnight when the crowd dispersed all well satisfied that the evening had been very enjoyable spent.

Mrs. C. McMahon, formerly Miss Helen Bryant, of Kingston, kindly donated her services in presidium to music for the dancing.

GRAND JURY REMAIN OUT IN MURDER CASE

Ottawa, Mar. 22.—The Grand Jury of the Spring Assizes further pondered evidence, this morning in the case of Albert DeBruce of Elizabeth Town charged with the murder in connection with the death of Jane Lamerson, but at noon an adjournment bill had not been returned against the accused. Additional testimony will be heard this afternoon and if a true bill is brought in, the trial will likely commence tomorrow morning.

OYSTER CATCHES RATS

Richmond, Va., March 22.—A good, strong oyster can put a rat to shame when it comes to catching rats, says Raymond Gutknight, deputy revenue commissioner. When he went to his cellar to get some oysters he saw a rat, he found a large one held in the jaws of one of the bivalves.

The wounded animal seeks rollstade, hence St. Ives saw very little of Rafe for the next two or three days. On the morning after the ball he rose at his usual hour, groomed and saddled the mare, and rode out for into the country. London is surrounded by beautiful, rural places, and Rafe made his way to one of the Surrey heaths, put up the mare, saw her watered and fed, ate his own lunch of bread and cheese and ale in the parlor of a little inn, and then went for a long ramble.

SEVEN YEARS AGO TO-DAY

Seven years ago today the Store of Wottens Limited opened its doors as a Specialty Shop to serve the needs of the Ladies of Belleville and vicinity.

At that time it was predicted by a few that six months would by the life of this institution. A few others, by stretching a point, thought a year—but in spite of all these gloomy forecasts, seven years have elapsed—and each year has seen a story of steady progress and increased business.

The happy situation, we believe, can be attributed to three policies laid down by the management when this Store was first opened seven years ago—namely:

1.—To make this the most pleasant place in Belleville in which to come in and look around the shop—and buy if you see fit—we never use high-pressure salesmanship in order to make anyone buy.

2.—To keep closely in touch with the style centres at all times—in order that something new and up-to-the-minute may always be found at Wottens.

3.—To be satisfied with small profits—and quick sales—and in this way not allow any accumulation of old and undesirable stock.

We believe the ladies of Belleville and our hundreds of out-of-town customers, appreciate the fact that we have fully lived up to these three Business Slogans of Wottens Limited, and we appreciate the increased patronage they are extending us.

With the Opening up of our New Spring Season, we would be delighted to have the opportunity of showing what really outstanding values are awaiting you here in Coats and Dresses and all the Accessories that My Lady may require.

NEW RADIO TUBE REVOLUTIONIZES GREAT INDUSTRY

Works Without Batteries Announcement Not Yet Confirmed

New York, March 24.—The New York Times says today that a new radio tube, produced by the Radio Corporation of America, which will dispense with batteries and current supply devices, is expected to revolutionize the radio industry.

Officials of the corporation would not confirm or deny the announcement at this time. Reports have been current in well-informed quarters for a month, says the paper, that the corporation was preparing to introduce a new alternating current tube and a new line of receivers equipped to operate in direct connection with light sockets.

The new tube is described as consisting of the usual tube elements arranged in conventional manner, with the exception of the filament or emitter of the electrons, which is said to be a replaceable heater element, operated either in series or parallel to the other tubes in the set. An arrangement provides that the vacuum of the tube will not be disturbed, resulting in a reliable vacuum tube.

A HERO IMMORTALIZED AT VERDUN

This is the pigeon whose courage and devotion to duty saved Fort Vaux and the whole trio of fortifications on which depended the fate of Verdun—and perhaps of all France—during the great war. The message which it carried through the pall of gas and high explosive smoke, and which brought relief to Major Raynal, the commander at Fort Vaux, in 1916, is reproduced above. It reads: "Nous tenons toujours mais sommes au dernier cartouche. Ne lui faites lancer nos pigeons que lorsque vous serez sûr qu'ils arriveront. Major Raynal."

PRIEST HERO RESCUES 500 FROM SHELL WRECKED BURNING CONVENT

Giant Red Bearded Jesuit Fought His Way Through Alone

USED HIS FISTS

Marshalled Nuns and Children and Led Process-sion to Safety

Shanghai, March 24.—One of the heroes of the day in Shanghai is the French Jesuit, Father B. Jacquinot, a big-bearded, one-armed giant. With Viscount Guy, chief of the staff of the British Defence Force, and Consul-General Barton, he rescued five hundred refugees from the shell-wrecked French institution of the Holy Family, a convent orphanage and convent in the Chapei district of the Chinese native city. Among them were forty-one nuns and three hundred young children—British, American and French. Unable to emerge because of snipers, the inmates spent forty-eight hours in the basement, praying for help, watching the ever approaching flames and fighting off desperadoes, who forced their way into the convent. Shells had wrecked the roof and walls.

Fought Way Alone

Meanwhile, the jesuit father fought his way alone and unarmed through the bullet-swept alleys. He was assaulted repeatedly by gunmen, whom he felled with his powerful fists, but was wounded twice before he reached the convent. Nevertheless, he managed to organize a procession to the boundary of the international settlement. Six men, ill and unable to walk, and several women who collapsed, had to be carried. Finally Viscount Gort and Consul Barton came on the scene and assisted in getting the party to the international settlement. The priest was taken to the hospital immediately. He will recover.

MONTREAL FIGHTING TO STEM TYPHOID EPIDEMIC

Montreal, March 24.—City authorities, through Dr. Boucher, director of the Health Department, began today to distribute serum against typhoid in the city hospitals and to private physicians free, in an effort to stem the epidemic which is prevalent here. Dr. Boucher said that while a number of new cases continued to be reported each day he thought that the source of infection—a milk dealer—had been discovered and eliminated.

One large insurance firm has opened a clinic and has instructed its medical officers to inoculate citizens against typhoid free of charge. Statements by Dr. Boucher and other prominent physicians that inoculation is a very effective thing against fever are being published in the local papers.

REFUSED TO AID DEPOSITORS IN FARMERS BANK

House Voted Down Dr. Edwards' Resolution By 105 to 56

Ottawa, March 24.—By a vote of 105 to 56 the Commons last night defeated a resolution introduced by Hon. Dr. John W. Edwards (Conservative, Frontenac-Addington) calling for relief to depositors in the ill-fated Farmers Bank to the same extent that relief was granted to Home Bank depositors.

Although the division followed party lines pretty well, there were a few breaks in the ranks of the U.F.A. and Government members. The Conservatives voted solidly with Dr. Edwards for the resolution. Two U.F.A. and three Labor-Progressive members voted with them: John Evans, Rosetown; Milton N. Campbell, Mackenzie; H. H. Copley, Oxford South; Hugh Allan, Oxford North, and Mitchell F. Hepburn, Elgin West.

Robb is Opposed

Strong objection was taken to the measure by Hon. James A. Robb, spelled its defeat. Besides defending Right Hon. William S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, from the blame that Dr. Edwards was inclined to place upon Mr. Fielding, Mr. Robb declared that, even when the Conservatives were in a majority in the Commons, they had not given relief in the case of the Home Bank depositors now asked. Twice Parliament had decided the same now presented, he said, and he was inclined to oppose its reintroduction at this late stage.

"Today we have the utmost confidence in Mr. Robb," was only of the Farmers Bank but of all banks to the beginning of Confederation which have been unfortunate and that it should in this resolution practically of helping the depositors of all such banks. Adoption of such a principle would mean a reduction of taxation, such as was represented this afternoon, but an increase of taxation."

Six little girls belonging to the Mission Band sang a sweet Easter message and Miss Grace Madden, representing the Mission Circle, gave an Easter recitation entitled "The Overflowing Envelope." The audience united in a beautiful responsive service, "The Lord Bless and Keep Us."

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. J. G. Sills of Foxboro and her subject was "Women of Canada." In a vivid and inspiring way, Mrs. Sills portrayed the work of the W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada in Western Canada.

Mrs. Dickens and Mrs. Spanner were made life members of the Society by their husbands. The thank-offering amounted to $267.55. This with $20.00 for the "Young Cut" and $20.00 for the "Young Stitches Cut" brought the receipts of the evening to $327.55. After the singing of the Doxology, Mrs. McCauley closed with prayer.

UNIQUE DENTISTS OUTFIT TRAVELS OVER THE WEST

Dr. Caldwell's Son Brings Office With Him to Belleville

Dr. T. W. Caldwell, "The Travelling Dentist of Saskatchewan" with his complete dental office on wheels arrived in the city this week, called north from Oshawa by the illness of his father Dr. Joseph Caldwell.

The jovial Doctor this morning showed the press through his novel outfit, a big passenger Ford with a four-seat body built on the lines of a bungalow. He demonstrated how everything may serve not one but eight or ten purposes, for instance his refrigerator contains a storage battery which keeps the food cold and runs the radio which the Doctor has fitted up in the front of the dash board and also houses the gas engine which heats the water. In one compartment of the same article is adrawer containing all the necessary dishes for a complete meal.

Heated Too

The fireplace which heats the house folds into the wall under a cupboard which contains dental instruments. Every wall is lined with cupboards each filled with up-to-date dental equipment and first class appliances. A folding bed is heated to the back of the car and blankets and linen neatly stored below.

One of the treasures Dr. Caldwell proudly exhibits is "Ted" a thoroughbred airdale with a pedigree which would make any decendant of one of the Plymouth fathers envious. He traces his ancestors back twenty generations but is just as democratic as any of the little wolf dogs which bark at him from the outside.

Works Six Months

Dr. Caldwell works just six months out of the year, starting in on May 1st he makes a tour of Saskatchewan to attend to his clients in the different towns, and during the business on November 1st he is again in Saskatchewan. "It's a new game" he said "but there are few dentists who will be six months a year off to enjoy themselves."

When he was in New Orleans he got the idea of the trip, starting in on May 1st north immediately making the 1933 miles in eight days. "Dandy trip, dandy roads everything fine" he told the British press. He leaves in a few days for the West.

WARSHIPS SHELL CANTONESE WHO FIRE ON FOREIGNERS IN NANKING

Dr. Smith, British, Killed and British Consul Was Wounded

SHIPS STAND BY

Swept Surrounding Territory With Gun Fire to Protect Europeans

Shanghai, March 24.— British and United States warships replied this after noon to shelling by Southerners on foreigners concentrated in Nanking. One Britisher was killed and the British Consul and another Britisher wounded.

The foreigners were concentrated for the evacuation on a hill in the northern part of the city, where the Standard Oil Company plant is located. Shelling by Southern irregulars began shortly before four p.m. A few minutes later the United States destroyers Noa and Preston and the British cruiser Emerald shelled the area surrounding the hill, with the object of opening a way for immediate evacuation of foreigners and combined British and United States forces were landed.

There were no casualties among the 135 American men, women and children, who were on the concentration point.

British Consulate Looted

A wireless despatch from Nanking blames the attack on the 5th and 6th Nationalist Cantonese troops". Reports reached the war ships early this afternoon that looting had begun in the city and that foreigners were being killed. Their report was not verified. Later it was reported that the British consulate had been looted and the Consul wounded.

United States Consul, John Davis, and his staff, accompanied by a marine guard which had previously landed from the Noa, left Nanking and took refuge on Socony Hill, where the Preston guns were stationed.

Ships Standing By

When the warships learned that the hill was being attacked, they opened fire with their main batteries on the area surrounding the hill for the purpose of clearing out the attackers. United States destroyers are standing by at Shanghai, awaiting possible hurry call's to Nanking. Three destroyers have been ordered immediately from Manila to Shanghai. The British steamer Poyang arrived today in Shanghai with the first of the refugees from Nanking since the official evacuation began.

Shelled British Ship

Poyang, which left Nanking Tuesday night, was fired upon during her voyage to Shanghai and was hit several times, but there were no casualties aboard. She brought seventy British and thirty Americans, although her accommodations are for only twenty-four. Smith. The British Consul, who was wounded, was Bertram Miles.

GETTING A DIVORCE

Mrs. William Marconi, wife of the wireless inventor who figures in the Rota trial, a tribunal of the Roman Catholic church. Proceedings for nullification of the marriage of William Marconi, the inventor, and the Hon. Beatrice O'Brien, daughter of the fourteenth Baron Inchiquin, have entered the real judicial stage.

MAN IS INJURED IN LUMBER MILL

James Sehan, 35 years of age, was brought to the city this morning suffering from injuries to his spine and chest as a result of an accident in the lumber mill operated by the Auto Creek Company's plant at Actinolite in North Hastings. Sehan who is employed as a laborer on a machine known as the edger was cutting lumber when in some manner two planks were hurled out, one of them striking him in the chest and hurling him to the floor while the other hit him on the thighs. Both were thrown with considerable force and co-workers assisted Sehan to the boarding place. Dr. Thompson, of Eldorado, was called and rendered medical attention. He ordered that an X-ray examination be made.

Sehan was brought to the city this morning on the train and the city ambulance was called and transferred him to the general hospital.

The examination revealed a broken hip and he will be confined to Belleville Hospital for some time.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

A day, in such serene enjoyment spent
Is worth an age of splendid discontent.

MONTGOMERY.

POOR FATHER

Father is to have his day—on June 19 this year—and a candid trade journal tells us that "preparations are now under way for the furtherance of Father's Day propaganda." An American committee is at work on the production of banners and slogans to cover the continent, and sons, daughters, and wives will be urged to buy something for Dad, to show Dad that he means more than a pay envelope. Being incurably sentimental, and suspicious to such appeals, we are likely to agree that something ought to be done about Father, and the propaganda will have achieved a huge success.

We are told that in the United States there is a movement on foot to amalgamate Mother's Day, which already is a splendid commercial success, with Father's Day. Probably the result would be known as "Parents' Day." Personally we are not in favor of it. Dutiful sons and daughters would be likely to express their dutiful sentiments by the purchase of "something for the house." Speaking for the Great Canadian Father may we say in all confidence he would prefer a box of cigars (brand named by himself)—to contribute that much to the paternal propaganda.

The idea is capable of indefinite expansion. We feel we may look forward with perfect confidence to special days for recognition of sons, daughters, cousins, aunts, uncles, grandparents and mothers-in-law, with touching appeals to our pocket and our clannish sentiments. Then Rover and the family cat should have their turn.

PARLIAMENTARY

Hansard is not all dullness. Sometimes, amid the columns of weary platitudes and clichés, there can be found a passage or two of wit and wisdom that are as welcome as a beacon in the night. An example of this is the following extract from a recent speech by Mr. S. W. Jacobs dealing with immigration:

"I am going to say something which will probably surprise my friend the Minister of Immigration, and that is that, under the rules of the immigration department, the founder of Christianity would be debarred from coming into this country. He could not come in, and none of his apostles could enter this country. None of the founders of the early Christian Church could enter Canada under the present regulations of the department. There are, in the case of Jesus of Nazareth—I am saying it with all respect—four orders-in-council which would prohibit Him from coming in here. There would be first the order relating to the non-agriculturist class. Carpenters are not permitted to enter this country, coming from that district. And then he would not have a proper passport; he would not be travelling by a continuous journey and he would have no relatives in this country ..... Michael Angelo, although he built St. Peter's at Rome, could not enter this country because we do not want architects or carpenters from the Latin countries. If he came from Scotland and could build ice-houses we could use him. If Mr. Mussolini wished to come over and make a bid for the leadership of the Tory party, he would be debarred by the Minister of Immigration from coming in. We heard it stated in the last election: Canada wants a Mussolini. But my friend the Minister of Immigration stands like an angel with a flaming sword at the gate."

Mr. Jacobs is of the race that gave a Disraeli to British politics and which just now is giving a Phillip Guedalla to the writing of British history. Whether one agrees with him or not, one thing is certain. It is that if any immigration law had kept Mr. Jacobs' ancestors out of Canada, Parliament would have been robbed of a wit and an intelligence that vastly relieves it of dullness.

MOTOR CARS

Canada stands second among the nations in the matter of automobile ownership. The United States in 1926 boasted of a car for every 5.4 persons; Canada had one for every eleven persons. Great Britain's record was one for every 46.9 persons. The whole world showed a total production of 4,800,000 in motor car production, the number of vehicles registered having increased to 27,507,967. These statistics are taken from an interesting survey of the automobile industry, written for a special motor section of the Toronto Globe by Mr. T. A. Russell, president of the Willys-Overland company. The figures suggest that the market on this continent is well developed and supplied, but there are great possibilities for "still further expansion in export trade." In this respect, it seems that the year 1926 showed scarcely any change from the previous year, the number of cars exported in each period being approximately 74,000, with a value of about $33,000,000. The number of cars sold in the United States last year is given as 3,388,000, 2,143,000 being withdrawn from service or scrapped. That is to say, 62 per cent. of the total sales represent ed the replacement of existing cars. "This is the first time that replacement sales in the United States have exceeded the sales to new buyers," says Mr. Russell, "and marks an interesting development in the industry."

Production in Canada increased by about 25 per cent. in number and slightly less in value. It is anticipated that the output will show a still further increase this year, for it is hoped that the expansion in business which has set in will continue and lead to a greater demand for vehicles from Canadian manufacturers and dealers. Discussing values the writer points out that the modern car, with its luxurious features and up-to-date equipment, is no dearer than its forerunner, which lacked all these advantages. The steady increase in value from year to year is held accountable for the ever-increasing demand, but demand also makes it possible for the makers to offer these improvements. It is quant ity production which enables the purchaser to get the closed car, with its four-wheel brakes, balloon tires and other modern accessories, for the same price as was paid for the old-fashioned open car a decade ago. The business in Canada, it is found, goes to the firms which carry on big advertising campaigns. That there is still plenty of opportunity for increasing the domestic sales of Canadian-made cars is seen in the fact that automobile imports into the Dominion last year were twice as large as in the preceding twelve months. Much of the increase however, occurred during the unsettled period from April 15, to the end of June, when the tariff situation was so uncertain. "Great interest will attach to the volume of imports this year," remarks Mr. Russell, "to see whether this condition will continue or whether it will be checked."

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

"Ho, Ha!" he cried, with a gleam of satisfaction in his eye. "So I've caught you at last, have I? It's you that's turning the street around be it?"

THE ELEPHANT

There once was a King, to the minstrels sang,
Who a herd of elephants had;
And a peasant poor, who I've'd next door,
He wanted an elephant bad.
Now this generous King did a foolish thing
In giving the peasant one,
For skyline ruin at once began brew'n
For that luckless son-of-a-gun.
For that elephant ate all night and
All that elephant ate all day,
Do what he could to furnish him food
The very most money
That he tore his hair in wild despair
And piped his lachrymal glands,
And cursed the whim that had saddled him with an elephant on his hands.

So great that beast's demands,
That his lachrymal glands
He piped like mad because he had
An elephanteon his hands.

They Forgot The Telephone

FOUR times during their two hour stay "gentlemen yeggs" exploded charges of "soup" in an effort to break open the safe at the Neal Baking Powder Company in Windsor. Securely trussed to a chair in a cupboard the watchman heard the disappointed robbers leave the building. Wriggling to a nearby telephone, with his mouth he lifted the receiver off the hook and yelled, "Help! Police!" The over watchful Bell operator picked up his cry and relayed it to Police Headquarters, with the result that in five minutes the police flyer carrying a squad of uniformed men was on the scene and taking up the trail of the bandits. An enterprising photographer rushed the scene as recounted by the watchman. The incident is one of scores of recent events in which the telephone has proved to be the most helpful ally of the police, the fireman or the physician.

The service was conducted by the Lord Bishop of Ontario, Rt. Rev. C. A. Seager, assisted by the Dean of Ontario. NON-SUPPORT

A young man charged with non-support appeared before Magistrate Mikel this morning and was remanded a week. It appears that the accused brought a friend to his home, both in an intoxicated condition. His better half resented the situation and as a result a police court case followed. Mother wants to proceed too harshly against son, said His Honor "and I will consider you to jail for a week but to me it looks like a conviction.

The young man asserted the epithonated air toward the bench and the Crown when the charge was read.

FINE PROGRAM GIVEN

Last night Street W. M. S., Auxiliary held its Easter Thank-offering meeting last evening in the lecture room of the church. There was a large attendance of members and friends who listened with pleasure to the fine programme presented. An added feature was a very fine address by Mrs. R. C. Gay of Toronto, Provincial Recording Secretary. Her address was most timely and helpful, full of suggestions for the making of a strong yet sane social Auxiliary. A very hearty vote of thanks expressed the appreciation of the audience. An interesting demonstration of C. G. I. T. work along missionary lines was given by a number of girls, plainly showing the wise and careful training of their leaders. The treasurer reports a very generous Easter offering.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE FOR KEEPING RESORT

William Styles, Wharf Street, was found guilty this morning in police court of keeping a disorderly house and was given a suspended sentence by Magistrate Mikel.

The accused who has a fine war record claims that he has worked consistently ever since coming back but the evidence showed that he has been allowing couples to come to his home on several occasions during the winter.

The case started when two young girls were arrested last week and charged with vagrancy to which they pleaded guilty. In their statement to the police they admitted having accompanied male companions to the house in question and on one occasion remained there over night besides having made several other visits.

Through Counsel the accused pleaded not guilty. He told of the young people coming to his house but denied having knowledge of anything out of the ordinary between them. The visits he said were made on Sunday nights and the evening was spent in chatting and playing cards.

Mr. Donnan objected when Counsel for the accused referred his war record and the fact that he owned property, etc. The crown maintained that it had nothing to do with the case.

The two girls were both given suspended sentences. One of them has spent the past week in jail and the other in the children's shelter. The trial occupied nearly two hours to complete.

Th young men mixed up in the case "flew the coop" and could not be located this week.

IN MEMORIUM

Dearest mother, since you left us
How our sad hearts yearn
For a smile and loving look
Those know you can't return.

In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweet and tender, fond and true
There is not a day, dear mother,
We do not think of you.

Often, oft, my thoughts do wander
To a grave not far away
Where we laid our darling mother
Just one year ago today.

Heaven reclaimed now our treasure,
Earth the lonely casket keeps
And the sunbeams keep to linger
Where our sainted mother sleeps.

NORANDA—The rumor that Noranda is considering the taking over of the Waite-Montgomery and Aldermac-Mackay properties, and to consolidate them, still lacks official confirmation. It is understood that the interest of Noranda securing additional properties to assure a big supply of ore for their smelter has come up for consideration, but no decision regarding it has been definitely made, and details of any such move are not yet known to the directors themselves. It will probably be a week or ten days before an announcement, if any, can be made.

NIPISSING—Quotations range to $8.25 a share early this morning compared with a close last night of $7.90. This is a reversal of the directors' declaration of the regular quarterly 3 per cent. dividend at yesterday's meeting in New York. It was expected that the dividend might be cut and it is understood that some of the directors favored such action previous to the meeting, but saw light when they got in conference. The street takes the maintenance of the regular dividend rate on Nipissing as indicative that the company's Montreal prospects are looking encouraging. Yesterday a despatch from the north said that they had cut through a new 30 foot orebody of fine grade copper and nickel.

Two Snappy Double Headers Witnessed By Enthusiastic Crowd

Another large crowd turned out for the Doubleheader at the Armoryon last evening and every cash customer was surely given his penny's worth. These double headers are attracting larger bigger lookings Monday and Wednesday night.

B.H.S. 14—DEACON'S 7

In the initial tilt Vern Weir's High School lassies took the measure of Joe Goyer's Deacon Shirs girlies but it was not until the lower had given them the best kind of fight and the game was really closer than the 14-3 score would indicate. Only seven innings were played but the fans enjoyed every minute of it. The Deacon team were strengthened by the addition of several of last year's High School team.

Gertie Boulter was the full roun for the losers and was fairly effective with the exception of the fifth inning when the girls from the little red house on Jeanings bloomed forth with a bunch of hits and combined with a basketful of errors they bagged five runs. Margaret Fairbairn who assumed the box for Mr. Weir's squad kept the shirtmakers hits pretty well scattered throughout the piece and stiffened a second innings ten them down without a counter. Although several new players donned a High School uniform, she was accorded the best of support. Grace Donnely was the only girl to hit for the circuit and in the fifth she found to her liking and "Rushed" it to the far end road.

Myrtle Holway supplied the fielding feature when she picked Miss Fairbairn's high drive out of the air with one hand.

In the fifth inning the shirt manufacturers made a valiant effort to stage a rally but the auditors shut them off with only a run.

Alice Wilkins and Margaret Fairbairn were the chief bambinos of Miss Merry's sweet crew while Audrey Wilcox and Hazel Dunberry did some nice clouting for the up-owners. Audrey Kelleher turned in a sparkling game at the keystone bag for the green shirts and on one occasion retired the whole side.

Score by innings:

Deacons	2 1 0 0 0 0 0—3
B. H. S.	2 0 0 3 5 1 x—11

Line-up:

Deacons—M. Holway 1; Ebbier ss; A. Wilkins 3b; N. Kelleher 2b; Tuttle lb; Thrasher c; Boulter p; Donnelly, Mason.

Y'S MEN 19—HIGH PRESSURES 7

The Y's Men's Club surprised Jack Allen's High Pressures by administering a drubbing to them by a 19-7 score. The game was fast and bitterly fought but the Campbell Si nine played the better ball and deserved the verdict. There was not a weak link on either side and the gallery of fans were treated to a fine class of ball.

Both managers introduced several new players to the spectators and most of these measured up to expectations.

Vern Weir presented Scott late of Joe Daley's Kingston Ponies, Logan, Toronto; Elaine and Lionel Brown of Hamilton and Moxam who has been absent from local ball circles for some years. This quartette all scored a player for themselves by their fine display. Scott was especially active with the willow and managed to get on base every time up.

Jack Allen imported Shih," Palmer, of Delson, and Lionel Brown who joined in Hampden Park League, Toronto. The former played a long-up game at third base and his fielding was a treat. Hooper who is residing in Trenton bears all the out-marks of being a good first-sacker. He will be a valuable heritage to connect with any of Knott's offerings with any results.

"Bill" Knott hurled nice ball from the opening and his support was air-tight. He was held up well by both Peets and Logan. The latter is a hard-worker and is well "seroped" up.

Johnny Kerr was slammed hard and timely in the second inning but soon settled down and the service club was kept pretty well in tow. Johnny has an able battery-mate in Hugh "Spec" Litchfield.

Besides playing a nice game here he connected for a quartette of safeties and all of them were hard clouts.

In the seventh inning the High Pressures populated the paths with two down and "Cap" Smith was on first but for Pop but the best the veteran ball player could do was to pop up to Knott.

"Biddy" Armstrong furnished the brilliant fielding feature when he snared Stark's screeching drive to complete a lightning double-play.

Darragh drew a hand when he managed to haul down Moxam's long drive to the counter. Hurley, Symons and Rigby all contributed with snappy field ing efforts.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Use a tablespoon ammonia to a quart of tep d water is an excellent solution with which to sponge a shiny skirt.

Serve soup first if the salad is one of fruit. Serve fruit cup first if the salad is oneof vegetables.

Clothes will last longer and keep as a better color if they are always laundered before badly soiled.

A bundle of straws, such as are used at soda fountains, are convenient and sanitary to feed liquids to the sick child. They can be burned after using and there is no danger of breakage, as with glass tubes. Children will oftimes take nourishment through a fascinating straw when otherwise it would mean a difficult task.

HARRIS CLAIMS PITCHING STAFF STRONG AS EVER

Tampa, Florida, March 24. — "I note that most of the other American League clubs don't think Washington will get enough good pitching to win this year," says Manager Harris, when you asked him about his club, pitching in particular. "I think so well of our chances that good, not great pitching, is all that we need to be up there.

"The experts have always rated our infield as up to snuff. Now that we have Tris Speaker in centre our outfield is easily the best in the majors.

"Honestly! Can you imagine anything more pleasant than be'ng a pitcher on a ball club with an outfield composed of "Goose" Goslin, Tris Speaker and Sam Rice?

"I want to go on record right Now as saying that any balls that drop safe in the Washington outfield th's summer will be legitimate batting hits.

"Buddy Myer, who has been slow in arriving because of illness and injuries after entering the majors has passed the experimental stage. He proved late last fall he was capable of holding down the shortstop berth, causing us to let Pack go to Chicago.

"Myer is a great hitter. He should come close to the .350 mark this year, and, if he does it will mean much to the offense of our club.

"I fully realize that my pitching is the biggest problem for me to solve, but I have hopes that it will be equal to the occasion. As I have said before, in my opinion, we need only good, not great pitching, to win the American League pennant.

"I don't think any one will question the fact we loom a strong contender."

WHAT'S NEW

Beige coats in strictly tailored models and silver fox scarfs seem to be the favorite furs to wear with them, says New York.

Very modish are shell accessories —and favor is equally divided between tortoise and amber, while the fashionable woman wears twelve or more shell bracelets at one time and the amber and torto se alternating produce a pretty, effect.

Trials Of Indigestion

Some Errors About This Trouble Into Which People Fall.

Many people so far misunderstand the digestive system as to think it is like a machine; neglect it until it works sluggishly; then irritating it into work again by the use of purgatives. The stomach needs help at all times, but a study of the process of digestion will show that purgatives as commonly taken, are seldom necessary and often harmful.

To safeguard your digestion the diet must be controlled. Overeating is always harmful, but one must take enough food to supply the needs of the blood. Remember, the blood is to carry nourishment to all parts of the body and find fuel for its energy. Hence when the blood becomes weak and fails to do these things indigestion arises. Therefore the cure remedy for indigestion is to build up the blood. If you suffer from any form of indigestion choose your diet carefully and take wholesome nourishment. Above all start to build up your blood by taking a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Then under the influence of the new blood supply your digestive system will respond naturally, your appet te improve and your food will do you good. So begin to improve your digestion by starting to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now.

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 60 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A useful little book, "What to Eat and How to Eat," will be sent free to any address.

ROYAL KNIGHTS AT OLD CASTLE

London, March 24.—The King and Queen will spend the Easter vacation this year again at Windsor Castle. They are due to arrive there during the first week in April for a stay that is expected to extend over a month—rather longer than usual.

While their Majesties are at the Castle there will be a very impressive ceremony in St. George's Chapel, the magnificent home of the Knights of the Garter, where the restoration work that has been going forward for the past six years or so is now rapidly approaching completion. It is proposed to hold a special service for the Knights of the Order, if possible, on Easter Sunday, to commemorate the reopening.

The gathering is expected to comprise almost every one of the 26 British Knights of the Order while it is hoped that some of the foreign sovereigns who also wear the premier decoration may find it convenient to be present. Among these are the Kings of Spain, the Belgians Sweden and Norway.

It is expected that the Prince of Wales will postpone his proposed Easter visit to Biarritz until after this ceremony has taken place.

BASEBALL NOTES

Two more Washington Senators, Trio Speaker and Sam Rice, have been added to the injured list since Manager Bucky Harris and Walter Johnson. Speaker twisted his right ankle and Rice strained his right hip. They will be laid up for several days. Harris will be out for ten days with an injured index finger, while Johnson will be inside combat for another month with a broken bone in his foot.

If the early promise of Bert Cole, formerly of Mission, and Charles Bombshel, formerly of Shreveport, holds through the Chicago White Sox pitching staff will be great bolstered by these two hurlers.

Ray Schalk, manager and first string catcher, of the Chicago White Sox, is temporarily out of action with an injured finger. A foul tip in yesterday's game with Wichita Falls, of the Texas League did the damage.

Always last year, the Chicago Cubs have begun to show potential hitting strength. Their second invasion of the California mainland found the Cubs batting much better than during the first series.

Manager Bucky Harris of the Senators is on the injured list with a possibly broken finger. If the injury turns out to be only a bruise, Harris will be back at second base within a week.

Babe Ruth limped and hobbled with a crippled leg through a game that the Yankees took from the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 1. The battered Yankee contributed a single and Bob Meusel made a home run.

Lt.-Col. John McAuley, Saskatoon barrister, shot himself just before appearing in court to answer a charge of misappropriation of trust funds.

Youth Victorious in Quebec Dog Derby

1—Emile St. Goddard, winner of Eastern International Dog Derby. 2—St. Goddard's team on the home stretch. 3—Paddy Nolan, second; Jean Paquet, third; Alexis Pelletier, fourth; Joseph Pelletier, fifth; Alexis Gagnon, sixth. 4—Alexis a weary, Leonidas Segapelo, runner-up to race.

Youth made a successful bid for supremacy in the dog racing realm when Emile St. Goddard, 15-year old dog musher from The Pas, Manitoba, won the Eastern International Dog Derby held at Quebec February 21, 22 and 23. His team of seven highly-trained greyhound huskies dashed over the finish line of the three-day race, covering the 120 gruelling miles in 11 hours and 37½ minutes, beating all previous records by 64 minutes and 32 seconds. He secured for the second time, the first in 1925, the handsome cup donated by the Quebec International Dog Sled Derby Club.

Leonhard Segapelo, hero of the epic race with terrors in the shrieking Alaskan city of Nome, was a strong contender in the Quebec classic and finished just 20 minutes behind St. Goddard. Segapelo, experienced driver as he is, was forced to give way to a man 30 years younger, driving a team of better trained huskies than his own. Segalia bettered St. Goddard's time by several minutes in the last day of the race, as the winner was forced to stay on the sled a greater portion of the time where the going was heavy.

Paddy Nolan, the 21-year old contestant made one of the most remarkable showings in dog racing annals when he finished fourth out of fourteen entries. He added glory to the reputation made last year, when, although his dogs were disqualified for fighting, he stuck to the trail and finished ninth in a field of 20, the whole of the distance being run in a blinding blizzard. A gloom however has been cast over the Nolan household recently for the day after Paddy's great race his mother, who had been lying ill in the hospital, died. After each day of the race Paddy would leave his dogs in charge of friends and go to his mother's bedside at the hospital. The courage of this lad is a general topic of discussion, and all are unanimous members are concerned over his performances.

Young St. Goddard hails from the north country, where the use of dogs is a commercial necessity. Here it was that dog racing in Canada first took place. A group of devotees, wishing to perpetuate the All-Alaskan Sweepstakes, which died out in 1915, gathered in the Snake Room of the Quesnel Hotel and arranged to hold an annual race which they have carried out. St. Goddard has been the winner at this lone race at The Pas several years, including the race in January.

Out of 100 dogs in the recent race at Quebec, there were but three registered "real" dogs. They were "Tobby" St. Goddard's "Tenderfoot," Segapelo's lead dog and "Rover" trained by the youthful Nolan. Frank Dupuis, winner of the race last year, finished 5th with but three dogs in harness. It is the driver who can successfully train the leader of the pack who is going to plan his team to victory. Dogs in a team are not unlike any other racing animals' owners must be trained. Segapelo's famous Alaskan malamutes entered the Canadian race this year for second victory. They battled heroically but lost to a better-trained team.

"AUSTRALIA" IS LAUNCHED TODAY

Built Up to Limit Allowed By Washington Treaty; Replace Another

London, Mar. 24—H.M.A.S. Australia, first of Australia's two modern cruisers embodying the latest designs of post-war cruiser construction, took the water recently from the John Brown Works on the Clyde. Her sister ship, the Canberra, will be launched from the same docks later.

The Australia and Canberra are the most efficient and powerful of their class under the Washington Treaty which limits auxiliary surface combatant craft to 10,000 tons displacement and armament of 8-inch guns. They are distinct improvements on the Kent or County Class, of which five cruisers are now being completed for the Royal Navy.

Their displacement, without fuel, is 10,000 tons. Advantage has been taken of the fact that the Washington Treaty does not stipulate that the 10,000 tons displacement shall include fuel, as provided by the treaty 8-inch gun ships in England is about 11,000,000.

They are their heaviest armament, but there are of a new model, claimed to be no hard hitting, as many of the heavier battleship ordance of pre-war days. The Australia will carry eight of them, twin-mounted in four barbettes, on the ship's centre line, two turrets forward and two aft. In addition she will carry a number of 4-inch anti-aircraft guns. The designers, while limited to an extent of 8-inch guns in size, are free to adopt as many weapons as they like, providing of course that the displacement limit is not passed.

The Australia will have a speed of 31 knots an hour, and her invisible fuel will be nearly twice the intensity of the pre-war County Class, with their more numerous 6-inch guns.

Experts in the navies why the Australian and Canberra are being constructed on the Clyde instead of at Australia's own dockyard at Cockatoo Island, where cruisers and destroyers have been built and where the Commonwealth's 6,000 ton seaplane carrier is now being constructed. To have built the cruisers in Australia would have involved heavy capital expenditure and much delay, because Australia could provide only 15 per cent. of the material. Australia does not manufacture armor-plate gun fittings. It must be ordered from abroad. The saving by exercising the option to build in England is about $1,000,000.

The cost of hull and machinery for each of the Australian cruisers will be more than $5,000,000. Armament and armor will cost $1,750,000 for each ship and armor contracts cost more than $350,000 each, and this is no little complete cost. The reasons adduced by Prime Minister Stanley M. Bruce for construction of the vessels in Britain are interesting. He said, "After carefully examining whether the placing of the order in Australia would constitute a step towards establishing a new Australian industry, and stimulate existing industries, the Government concluded that these objects would not be achieved. The future of the industry must depend upon a steady demand and, apart from international obligations, Australia could not afford to embark upon a naval program which would keep the yards continuously employed. The principal objection, however, lay in the fact that the Government is the only source from which the yards could expect orders, and the attitude of Labor towards defence in general and naval defence in particular made it extremely unlikely that the necessary would receive even that measure of support which circumstances permitted and safety demanded."

The only direction in which it would appear that Australian industry might be stimulated was in the rolling of steel plates. Which today are not produced, but the plates for a cruiser taking three years to build could be rolled in six weeks, and an expensive plant would be lost idle for a long period. It is unsound to suppose that naval construction would stimulate commercial shipbuilding because the work is entirely different.

"The Government has also considered very seriously the question whether it was essential to plugg the order locally to afford skilled artisans an experience that would enable them in the future to repair, but examination showed that since the work would be more of assembling than of construction, the experience gained on the cruisers would be little more than that to be gained on the 6-inch cruiser which is to be constructed in Australia."

The Australian and Canberra will be brought down from the Clyde to London early next year and here will be

TY. COBB HOPES TO TOP BAMBINOS' BATTING MARK

Competition between Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb for the spotlight honors next season promises to be keenly spectacular. Word from Philadelphia has it that Cobb has set himself out to wind up his baseball career by batting in more runs than the Bambino himself. That is no easy task by a man who is in middle life, and who is entering his 22nd year of major league baseball.

Ruth during the season of 1926 was responsible for 155 runs batted in played in exactly 155 battles, which means he was responsible for at least one run every day he played. Next to the Bambino was George Burns of the Indians, whose big and lugs were responsible for 114 tallies, third was Al Simmons, with 109, fourth were Goose Goslin and Bib Falk with 108, and Harry Heilmann ranked fifth with 103. Way down the line was the intrepid Georgian with a mark of 62 counters, which he was responsible for in the 79 games in which he appeared.

Willing the managerial cares pressing on his mind the venerable Georgian ought to be up with the sluggers again. Some say he will be unable to play in the 154 games, but Cobb thinks otherwise. None will dispute that Cobb still has his batting eye.

Ty appeared in the first game of the season last year as a pinch hitter after being out of the hospital for only a few weeks. He left his blue goggles on the bench and walked to home plate, swinging his two bats. A pathetic sight he appeared to the fans as he waved his bat but several feet away from the pitcher.

"He's through," thousands of fans thought as they saw his futile effort. None would believe him when he said he'd hit as well as ever when he recovered from the effects of the operation. He proved he knew himself better than the fan army by wading up the season well above the .370 mark, which is remarkable for an elderly ball player who started off the season almost blind.

So when Cobb says he'd like to lead the league in 1927 he knows himself. Such a keen student of batting as George Burns, of the Indians, who was fanning in Philadelphia during Cobb's recent visit there, gave it as his humble opinion that Cobb would rack them up on the .350 line this year, and in that event he will pass Ruth in runs driven in. ...

Cobb will be perched in No. 2 position for the Athletics, with Mickey Cochrane, the fastest catcher in the country, batting off and Eddie Collins, just behind him.

Back of Cobb will be Al Simmons, labeled the comling star of the league.

GOVERNOR OF THE BANK OF ENGLAND

Picture to yourself Sir Walter Raleigh, or some other courtier of the time of Queen Elizabeth, attired in modern dress and there you have Montagu Collet Norman, Governor of the Bank of England. The chances are you never saw his picture, which is not surprising for although he is one of England's great Englishmen, few of his countrymen even know him by sight.

Men in high position are often very retiring, and to this rule the governor of the Bank of England is not an exception; indeed if it were not for the necessity to those who have business with the bank, he might be described as a recluse. He is shy of newspaper interviews. However, on his occasional visits to the United States he has met and conversed with certain financial writers, which is a source of jealousy to the First Street fraternity who have long since struck him off their visiting list. Public dinners and other functions know him not. Occasionally, perhaps, he finds time in London to attend a little dinner party with King George, or Stanley Baldwin. On these occasions he will take part in Bridge parties on gardening, bee-keeping and foreign stamps—the latter in particular being waged over the royal table.

Showing how highly Norman's ability is regarded, directors of the Bank of England recently elected him governor for the eighth consecutive year. Formerly no governor ever served for more than two years.

He is the second of his family to hold the office of governor. Almost forty years ago Sir Mark Collet, his grandfather, occupied that position.

After graduating from Cambridge University, Mr. Norman entered Brown, Shipley and Company, the American banking firm in London whose affiliate in New York is Brown Bros. and Company. At thirty he was made a partner, remaining in that position until elected governor of the Bank of England in 1920. He conducts no private business, giving all his time and efforts to the work of the bank.

Montagu Norman has only two titles which give him the privilege of D.S.O. and P.C. after his name. Few people would imagine Mr. Norman as a military man, but he served as a captain in the South African war and got several decorations, including the D.S.O. He was a court martial judge in Africa. In 1925 he accepted a privy councillorship and his name is prefaced with the words "Right Honorable."

His chief hobby is the collection of rare books. He is also very fond of literature and is a confirmed reader in bed. Out at his beautiful house on Campden Hill, on the outskirts of London, he has a wonderful four-poster bed which is half a bed and half a library. Once he is down on this curtains pull, books and light switches on, books surround him on all sides. He reads every kind of literature and has ploughed his way through most of the ancient and modern authors. The study of Orientalism and eastern literature has, in fact, tinctured his outlook on life and has no doubt contributed to his rather remarkable personality. There is the suggestion of mysticism and of the occult in his eye.

"It is difficult to estimate the part of Montagu Norman is playing in post-war reconstruction Europe," says Ivy Lee. "Certain it is that he has participated in every important financial and economic programme undertaken in Europe since the armistice. He has done it quietly and unsensationally, but the fact that he was there in the background, prepared to give advice and to cooperate in action, has been one of the most important foundation stones upon which post-war financial reconstruction has been based."

The Worst Phone Gossips - Men Or Women?

By ELSIE MARLOWE

Women aren't the worst telephone fiends," says she — "men are the chief offenders."

DEAR ELSIE:

I read your article about the young husband who refused to have a phone installed in the house because he said his wife would waste time and money gossiping over it and marketing over it when she could get better prices by shopping around.

Personally, the telephone is my pet bete noir. I walk miles to do an errand that could be just as well done over the phone. I do have to use one, of course, but it's never a pleasure. And although I have known one or two women who use the phones for visiting and gossiping, as a rule it's the men who are the offenders.

Even the grocer wants to chat about the weather while you order cornstarch and beans. And it seems to be the custom for unattached males to call up a lady just as she's getting in or out of the bathtub, so that she has to stand shivering in a bath-towel while he babbles sweet nothings into her damp ears.

One of the fellows even proposed to me over the phone—long distance, at that! Telephones seem to be a necessary evil for business purposes, but THERE OUGHT TO BE A LAW against using 'em for anything else.

HELEN.

Do you agree with that? I've been making a survey of all my dear aunt's women friends and the great majority of them spend from one to two hours every day visiting over the phone. As a business woman, I can testify that there's mighty little time in the average office for phone visiting. What's your opinion.

And here's a little suggestion from a wise mother which may help other troubled mothers. I like this letter. It shows an intelligent effort to make the punishment fit the crime and to give CONSTRUCTIVE instead of DESTRUCTIVE discipline

The boy had committed an act for which he would have been beaten in most homes—he had stolen a watch from a neighbor. This wise woman realized that whipping would simply bruise the boy's body, but would work no reformation in his outlaw attitude. She accordingly chose a method of discipline which made the boy realize that, in stealing the watch, he had definitely offended against the rights of others and must make all possible amends. In other words, she didn't merely punish—she made the boy PAY in a way which he would remember—SHE MADE HIM PAY WITH HIS PRIDE. And be appealing to that boy's pride, she made a man of him. I honor that mother.

DEAR ELSIE:

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

JOY—AND FEAR

"Christine, Christine, you must not cry so!"

She sobbed on, though her heart was joyful. The feel of his arms about her brought a mingled ecstasy of exultation and peace.

It seemed as if all her troubles had rolled away. There was infinite protection in the circle of his arms.

Then he said the words that dried her tears as if by magic and set her heart to singing a paean of wild happiness.

"Christine, Christine, you must know that I love you."

Her eyes were as starry as violets bathed in dew, when she lifted them to his. Her lips were soft and tremulous when he met them with his own.

It was a kiss that seemed to gather and blend two hearts and souls forever into one.

The rest of the evening was blurred with rapture. There was dinner somewhere at a secluded table on a veranda overlooking the Hudson. It was an enchanted night, silvery with moonlight.

Vane told her that he had loved her from the first—what lover does not? She knew that they were meant to love from the moment their eyes met across the dingy courtroom.

It was late when he took her home. The moon was riding high in a sky of shimmering velvet studded with silver stars. A tiny breeze had sprung up, rustling the leaves that dappled and scudded across their path.

Vane wrapped Christine snugly in his coat. Her heart leaped at the tenderness of his touch. She felt again, for the first time in years, the joy of complete security. It seemed to her that there would never be anything to fear again, as long as she loved—or, as long as he loved her. Comforted, secure, she leaned against his shoulder as he drove.

"You are to go straight to bed and to sleep," he told her, when he set her down at her own front door. "Not one moment of worrying over a lost job, remember!"

With a little smack, Christine discovered that she had forgotten all about losing her job. It seemed incredible that she had been weeping her eyes out over the dreary prospect of the future, only a few hours before. She laughed happily, brushed his lips with her soft fingertips, and ran into the house.

It wasn't until the following morning, as she prepared breakfast in luxurious ease—being jobless—that she remembered.

She—the woman who loved Clifford Vane and whom he loved—was the wife of another man! She was suddenly sick, as if she had received a blow.

She hadn't played the game squarely, after all! She had accepted and returned Vane's love, without telling him that she was married to Lewis Hayes—a wife in name only—but still a wife.

How could she tell Vane now? she asked herself desperately. What would he think of her? Her image would crash like a fallen idol in his heart, when he learned the truth.

Or did he suspect—perhaps even know?

She sprang up and began to pace the floor while Louise watched her wide-eyed from across the table.

Was that why Vane had not asked her to marry him, even when he had told her of his love? For surely, surely he meant to do so, his heart told her.

Then a little, terrifying fear began to creep over her, to take possession of her senses.

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and am in love with a young man who was here a short time. He has been away three weeks now but I have not heard from him. Please advise me what to do.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

BROKEN - HEARTED: I'm afraid there isn't anything you can do except determine to forget the young man, my dear. If he were really interested in you he would want to write you to learn how you are and whether you still want his friendship. However, he may still write. But if he doesn't, make no effort to get in touch with him and try to put him out of your mind.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am going with a young man who is an ideal sweetheart for any girl. He says that he loves me dearly, but I do not love him. He has asked me to marry him.

Do you think that I can learn to love him?

BROWN EYES.

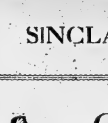

BROWN EYES: If you have not learned to love the young man now, you can't expect marriage to perform the miracle for you, Brown Eyes. If you marry this man and find that you do not care for him—what then You will be very miserable—and so will he. The thing to do is to wait until you are head over heels in love, before you accept anyone's marriage proposal.

cent article about the boy who stole his grandmother's dime bank. Some ten years ago, I had a problem just like that to settle. This is what I did—I took the boy to the home from where he had stolen the watch and made him return it in person and apologize for having taken it. It was much more humiliating to him than a whipping and proved a fine lesson. He never forgot it and he never again took anything belonging to another.

I am writing this believing that it might help some mother solve a similar problem. I believe that all children steal trifles and must be taught better if they are to make good citizens.

Nujol method is modern treatment for Constipation ... said physicians

THE daily use of laxatives for constipation is over. Eight doctors out of ten now recognize that the Nujol type of treatment is better from every point of view than laxatives and cathartics.

Recently we asked leading physicians throughout the country how they treated constipation. 81.3% answered that they advise the Nujol type of treatment. Seven out of ten stated that the continuous use of laxatives is dangerous. On every hand we got answers like this—"Laxatives bring on the laxative habit and do not remove the cause."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Eight doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons:

1. Nujol is not habit-forming.
2. A mere natural method.
3. A lubricant is better than a laxative.
4. Does not gripe.
5. Is not irritating.
6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it!

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation, whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

BELLE THEATRE

"The Country Beyond," Fox Films adaptation of James Oliver Curwood's widely-read novel, is announced as the feature attraction at the Belle Theatre, beginning tomorrow.

Olive Borden, noted Virginia beauty and Fox Films star, heads the specially selected cast which was directed by Irving Cummings, with remarkable artistry.

The personnel includes J. Farrell MacDonald, who is pleasantly remembered as Casey in "The Iron Horse"; Evelyn Selbie, noted character actress who was the original "Broncho Billy girl" of the films; Lawford Davidson, star of the continental stage and screen, and others.

The exteriors for "The Country Beyond" were made in Jasper National Park, Alberta, mostly on the shores of Lake Maligne and Mount Edith Cavell, in addition to those the scenes at the first named location is also necessary for the company to travel two full days on horse-back over the hazardous trails of the Canadian Rockies. And to Fox Films goes the unique honor of having filmed the first motion picture scenes in that wond'rfully picturesque region.

In fact, according to advance reports on the picture, it would seem that it is amply suited to quality as a "scenic" of inspiring beauty. A typed, color cinematographic process has won rare laurels for his at. ready generous wreath of successful and positively brilliant photography, as evidenced in numerous Fox Film productions in the past. Don't miss it.

Stomach Trouble Gone, Bakes 40 Pies

"I was a nervous wreck with stomach trouble. Had dizzy spells and could scarcely walk. I began taking Adlerika, and now I run a restaurant and bake 40 pies a day. When my friends ask how I do it, I tell them about Adlerika."—Mrs. L. Arndt.

Adlerika differs from most medicine—because it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. It gets rid of GAS, REAL cleansing, and clears out old poisons which usually cause sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. Just ONE spoonful stops GAS, and relieves that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never guessed was in your system and which may have been caused trouble. No matter what you have tried for stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. J. S. McKeown, Druggist and other druggists.

WHEN YOU DON'T WANT TO EAT

Or What You Eat Hurts or Makes You Sick

Try a little diagnosis. It's possible in the stomach—contains real digestion that food is hard to do the work of. Many and healthy stomach would do naturally. It digests such foods as fresh bread, juicy red rich cakes. It enables you to get happy with sausage, baked beans or mince pie.

But no matter what you eat, even if you can't digest milk or meat makes you bilious, or your stomach gets gassy, with heartburn or sour stomach, dyspepsia almost instantly makes your stomach sweet, absorbs the gas, makes you feel comfortable and enables you to digest and empty the stomach on time and ready for the next meal.

Get a 50-cent package of Pape's Diapepsin at any drug store. It will surely bring you stomach comfort.

TRAINING CAMP GOSSIP

New York, March 24.—The following gossip was gathered from the training camps of the major baseball league clubs:

Grover Cleveland Alexander, St. Louis Cardinal pitching ace of the Detroit's world series, has not been scored on in fourteen exhibition innings pitched so far in the south.

After ten years' campaigning in the big leagues Jimmy Walkup, southpaw pitcher, will probably be retained by Detroit, which has held an option on the player since he was graduated from college a decade ago. He won 22 and lost 11 games with Fort Worth last season.

Cy Lind made a unassisted triple play in the cleveland Indian-Yanagan game yesterday, when playing for the Yanagans.

The Pittsburgh Pirates struck a stumbling block in the form of Bill Ludolph, once tried out by Detroit as a pitcher, who yesterday worked for the San Francisco Missions, defeating the Pirates 3 to 1.

It is rumored that negotiations are on to swap one Brooklyn pitcher for Wally Pipp, Cincinnati first baseman, or Hunker Cuyler, shortstop of the Cincinnati infield.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Wherever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for only 75 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well known druggists say everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning your hair has disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

ELIZABETHS PLAY RETURN FIXTURE HERE SATURDAY

High School and Napanee to Round Out Choice Program at "Y"

Word was received today from Mr. James Murray, coach and manager of the Napanee Collegiate basketball team, that his team would be able to come to Belleville on Saturday for the opening game of the home and home series between the local High School and the Napanee Collegiate basketeers. This series will determine the winner of the Bay of Quinte interscholastic Championship, it having been agreed by the league executive that the teams which finished in first and second place should play off. With the championship will go the temporary possession of a fine trophy donated by interested parties residing in the Eastern Town and this being the case, the Napanee boys are not going to allow this prize to leave the home town without putting up a real fight to retain possession of it. As for the local High School representatives, they are not boasting as to what they will do in their game here Saturday night. They realize from their experience in the juvenile series, that they have still something to learn and under the careful tuition of coach Armstrong they are going about the task with a will. The west end game should see a team very much improved over that which lost to the Elizabeth juveniles in the series just finished.

The Big Game

Whether the Y's Men, the local intermediate entry in the O.A.A. A. win or lose their game from the Elizabeth Playground here on Saturday night, basketball fans in these parts may rest assured that it will be a fixture well worth seeing. In fact we have no hesitation in saying that this single game will be more than worth the price of admission. In last Saturday's game at Central Y, the Toronto Lizzies administered a real beating to the local basketeers, and to be quite candid the boys haven't got the edge of that game out of their system yet. The Lizzies are a right smart aggregation of ball heavers and have perfected their team play to operate like clockwork but hen the Y's Men take them on for the return game at the Campbell Street Court there is a feeling current that the results will be decidedly different than that shown by the score sheets at the game in Toronto. On Tuesday night the team had a stiff workout and again tonight the boys will be in action for a full hour and Saturday night will find them rested up and ready to travel at a fast clip. Mr. James Murray of Napanee will handle the game his appointment having already been approved of by the secretary of the O.A.B.A.

BOWLING

RECREATION BOWLING

One of the best senior league play-off games took place at the Recreation Alleys last night between the Shops and the Carthage, those two teams being at a deadlock for second place last week when the Carthage won the four points from them and also being deadlocked at the end of the regulation 3 game series last night. The Carthage winning the first and second game and being an even 200 pins up going into the final game, the Shops came storming this back in the final game which gave them two points and which met playing off another game to be held at that related, with Shops winning the fourth game by 37 pins, and second place in the Senior league. It was a great comeback for the Shops as they had to overcome 200 pins in the third game which they did and having a 37 pin lead to figure. Collyer came to bat day for the Shops when he rolled 309 in this game. J. Yeoey had the best score of the night with 373 for the Shops share, while for the Shops Austin was high with 352.

Only two games were played in the C.N.R. Shops league at the Recreation Alleys last night. In one game Team No. 6 won all four points from No. 3 and tied the leaders No. 4 for first place as the latter team lost one point, in their game against No. 5. In the game being No. 3 and No. 6 the latter team got a lead of over 200 pins in the first game, but in the second and third although they won No. 3 gave them a good run for their money. High bowlers were Collyer and Wilkinson.

In the other game Team No. 4 won the first game and No. 5 won the second. High bowlers were Collyer and Wilkinson.

In the other game Team No. 4 won the first game and No. 5 won the second, in the final game No. 4 were up 135 pins which gave them an extra points on the total score. Grow and Knott rolling the higher scores.

LONDON WINNERS TO PLAY IN N.Y.

London, March 24.—President King of the Canadian Hockey League will be out in response to a telephone conversation with the president of the Canadian-American League, now in the midst of a play-off series similar to the one which declared London the winner of the Canadian League last night. President King notified Jack Anderson of the London Club that he was in touch with the officials in charge of the Quebec, Springfield and New Haven play-off, and that it was their intention to play best-out-of-three games series with London.

London will rest up until Friday and then go to New York to play an exhibition game against the Americans in Madison Square Garden on Sunday night.

Following that Manager Prodger will be notified by President King about the arrangements made for the inter-league series. It is not likely that any of the games will be played in London, owing to the caravans entailed to bring both sexiets to London. However, should the finalists each win one game, the third game might be staged at the London arena.

The London players will receive about $100 each and expenses for their game in Madison Square Garden on Sunday, as Tommy Gorman offered $2500 for the exhibition. In addition to that, the definite amount that the players on the Canadian play-off series will get is not available, but it is figured that each London player will receive at least $1000. Kilpatrick, the players, $100, and Stratford, about $150.

PRO. LEAGUE FINISH SATURDAY NIGHT

Next Saturday will see the finish of the race in the Calder pro hockey circuit. Canadiens play in Toronto that night. Twelve games in all are scheduled between now and Saturday night. In the eastern section, Ottawa, Canadiens and Montreal are altogether likely to finish out as at present. New York Rangers, Boston and Chicago lead the western group.

Now comes the elimination for the clubs in the play-offs, and there are just six in the grazy series. The Stanley Cup, emblem of the pro championship, will be decided after a long and very "comprehensive" set of games, and the season runs away into the middle of April. The schedule comes to a close next Saturday, but there is a nice distinction between the "schedule" and the "season."

LEAFS BUY ALEXANDER

Toronto, March 24.—Urgent messages received here by the Maple Leaf Baseball Club of Toronto, entrants in the International Baseball League, form Manager Lee Fohl, at the Leafs' training camp in the South concerning the ability of Dale Alexander, of Charlotte, N.C., resulted in the owners of the local baseball club exercising their option on this player's services by purchasing him for $5,000 today. It is expected that Alexander, on account of his hitting prowess will replace "Mickey" Heath at first base. The latter will be retained for reserve duty.

Jack Scott, new pitcher of the Philadelphia Nationals, is still a holdout and is causing Manager McInnis no little concern. He is in camp, but refuses to sign the contract offered by the Phillies.

Wilson on the Talc Deposits of Canada. Detailed descriptions are given of the most important known Canadian deposits. "I want to help" says Allen Boudria

Tells facts from own experience to help others. Almost wild with pain, weak and rundown, he won new health and strength through Tanlac

Allen Boudria, engineer, of 422 St. Patrick St., is one of Ottawa's best known citizens. "My purpose in telling the facts of my experience," he said, "is to help others who suffer as I did.

"For five years I was in misery. My whole system seemed out of gear; but my stomach troubled most. Even a drink of cold water would cause my stomach to bloat and swell abnormally. Gas would pressure me from sleeping at night so that I had to get up and walk the floor for hours. Violent stomach pains nearly drove me wild. I've seen times when I was doubled over, unable to straighten up.

"My friend M. Lapointe told me how Tanlac had helped him out of similar trouble, so I got some and used it bottles in all. It just made me over. I feel 30 years younger than I am, and weigh 214 lbs. My appetite and sleep are both fine. I eat what I like and sleep like a top. Tanlac and nothing else, made this great change. I'm for Tanlac."

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

He resolved that he would not think of Maude, of this Lord Sunborne, and he drove his mind back to Jumping Jane. It was only natural that he should think of Phenie. He had scarcely given a thought to her since he had arrived in London; indeed, the occasion on which he had spoken of her to Travers was the first on which his memory had been troubled by her; but he thought of her now and remembered their parting. Perhaps, if he had stayed at Jumping Jane, he might have grown fond of the girl whose arms had clung to him so lovingly, whose tears had fallen on his waistcoat, as he had said good-by to her. Perhaps it would have been better if he had remained plain Rafe, the digger, and had married Phenie. But he shook his head at the thought; there was only one woman he would ever marry—and she was not for him, but for Lord Sunborne.

As he rode the mare back slowly, he found some comfort in the fact that she was now perfectly broken and would make a beautiful horse for Maude, though he had spent the day without seeing Maude and was thinking for a sight of her, he decided that he would not dine at home, so he went to the Savoy, to which Travers had already introduced him. The waiter conducted him to a small table, and Rafe had scarcely begun his dinner when a party came to a table near him, some one spoke his name, and, looking round, Rafe recognized Mr. Ponsonby Jones, the pound man whom he had met at the club. One of the ladies of the party was Madeline Deopard, who exclaimed joyously, at sight of him:

"Oh, Lord Sunsfyre! How jolly! Are you dining alone? Do come and join us."

Rafe colored with pleasure, for he had felt very lonely and dull in the midst of the gay and chattering throng, and he rose at once and joined the party. Of course, they made him welcome; he was seated next Madeline Deopard, and, with an affectation of childish abandon, she greeted and treated him as if he were quite an old friend. It was a very merry party; they were all young and bent on pleasure, even Mr. Ponsonby Jones displayed some evidences of vitality, and Madeline Deopard's laugh punctuated the light-hearted talk. The waiter paid due attention to Rafe's glass, and, contrary to his usual practice, Rafe did not check him. He began to talk as freely as the others, and they encouraged him, exchanging glances of amusement at his drawl and accent and at some of his uncouth sayings. He was a novelty to them, and their jaded senses appreciated his freshness, his unconventionality.

It appeared that they were going on to a late theater, and they took it as a matter of course that he should accompany them. The play was a musical comedy, and at another time Rafe would have thought it rather foolish and childish, but he had drunk a quantity of champagne, and the songs and the dances, the fooling of the low comedians, amused and exhilarated him. Madeline was still seated next to him, and seemed to require his incessant attention; she dropped an opera glass, she needed his help in removing the dainty silk shawl from her white shoulders, then wanted it replaced; now and again she leaned against him to look over the program or to whisper some story about the actors and actresses. The faint perfume of her hair, fine and light as floss, rose to Rafe's head as the fumes of the champagne were doing. Once she laid her hand upon his to call his attention to something or someone, and Rafe, not knowing what he was doing, pressed the little hand, and as he did so, she looked at him, through half-lowered lids, with a bewitching inviting smile.

There was supper after the theatre, and more champagne, but Rafe was strong of head as well as of body, and he showed no signs of any effect the wine was having upon him, excepting by a heightened color and an unusual glitter in the keen eyes. As they were putting Madeline Deopard into motor, she leaned forward and laid her hand on Rafe's arm, her face close to his, her eyes dwelling on him with a look which had worked much mischief in many men.

"Haven't we had a jolly evening?" she said. "We must have another, many more, soon. You promise??"

ULTIMATUM DELIVERED TO THE CANTONESE LEADERS

Many Foreigners Known To Have Been Killed At Nanking --- No Resolution On Conference

KING WILL AVOID DISCUSSION ON THE CONFERENCE

Report to be Submitted to Commons on Tuesday Next

GUTHRIE SURPRISED

Prime Minister Says Any Member May Introduce Resolution

Ottawa, March 25.—Hugh Guthrie, Conservative party Leader, indicated astonishment in the Canadian Commons yesterday when Premier King announced that there would be no resolution introduced by the Government for approval or ratification of the proposals contained in the report of the Imperial Conference of last year.

"I think we have all understood," Mr. Guthrie said, "that some form of ratification was necessary by this Parliament. How will the imperial authorities know whether we approve or disapprove?"

It was the general impression that a resolution approving the terms of the Conference report, or at least a recommendation that the report be adopted by the Canadian Parliament, would be proposed by the Prime Minister, particularly in view of the fact that when Mr. King spoke in the House on December 13 last he made it clear that nothing the Conference did could bind a single part of the Empire without the approval of the Parliaments of the different portions of the Empire.

December Address Recalled

Speaking in the debate on the address Premier King pointed out that the Imperial Conference was a conference of representatives of the several Governments of the Empire, and that its views and conclusions were necessarily subject to the action of the Governments and Parliaments of the various portions of the Empire. He further said that the Government intends to put the report of the conference before the House just as it appears, and to recommend its adoption.

The Prime Minister appears to have taken a somewhat different stand today. In reply to a question by Mr. Cahan of Montreal, he stated that the Government does not propose to bring in any formal resolution with regard to the Imperial Conference proceedings when the matter is discussed on Tuesday.

The matter was allowed to drop but it seems as if there may still be food for discussion in the conference proceedings when the debate is staged next Tuesday.

SENATE PASSES PENSIONS BILL

Vote on Second Reading Was Sixty-one to Fourteen

Ottawa, March 25.—With the assistance of more than a score of Conservatives, the Government carried the second reading of the Old Age Pensions Bill in the Senate yesterday afternoon by 61 to 14.

Party lines were broken on both sides Sir Allan Aylesworth, Hon. John G. Turrill and Hon. J. M. Wilson, who sat to the right of the Speaker, voting against the Government, and some twenty-four or twenty-five Conservatives voting with the Government.

The bill was referred to the Committee of the Whole, the Senate rejecting que that it should be sent to the Banking and Commerce Committee in order that the Prime Minister might present their views and experts be examined with respect to the probable cost of establishing an old-age pensions scheme in Canada.

Under the Government measure it is proposed to pay a pension of $240 a year to persons attaining the age of 70, the Dominion Government and the Provinces to share the cost equally.

BRIDGE STREET CHURCH HOLDING ITS 109TH ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Rev. Dr. Bruce Taylor of Queens Will Preach on Sunday

John Street Church Will Join in on Sunday Evening

Bridge Street United Church on Sunday will have completed a century and nine years of devotion to the spiritual welfare of Belleville. One hundred and nine years of faithful service to the Lord and his flock is indeed a wonderful record for any church to have, and Bridge street Church will celebrate that length of time this Sunday. The preacher will be Bruce Taylor, LL.D., Principal of Queen's University will conduct the services Sunday, and Sunday evening the John Street congregation has offered to withdraw their evening service to unite with Bridge Street. The choirs of both churches will join together in the evening.

The Church's History

The congregation was organized in 1815 for the first time with thirteen members. The minister was the Rev. Isaac Brock Smith, close leader was Mr. John Reynolds. The congregation consisted of Mrs. J. S. Reynolds, Mr. S. J. Reid, Mr. Abel Gilbert, Mr. Conrad Mitts, Mr. William Ross, Mr. J. Farley, Mrs. Seth Hudson, Mrs. S. Reid, Mrs. Abel Gilbert, Mrs. Conrad Mitts, Mrs. William Ross and Miss Phoebe Zwick.

In 1818 they built the first church, which was situated on Pinnacle street and was replaced by a large structure which still stands and is used as a work house, in 1821. In 1851 the present building was erected and the corner stone was laid by the Honorable Billa Flint, who had donated the lot for the building. In 1866 the church was greatly improved under the pastorate of Rev. Henry Wallace, William Sharpe, Frank Smith, George W. C. Walter Francis and Dr. Fraser.

The floral offerings were so large they not only filled the house but a car load followed.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT ANXIOUS OVER EVENTS

London, March 25.—The British Government is anxiously seeking the full story of events at Nanking, where the gravity of the situation was increased today by the collapse of negotiations for the rescue of Britishers and Americans remaining ashore. British Government holds Cantonese authorities fully responsible for events at Nanking. In consequence of which new difficulties have been put in the way of carrying out the British policy of conciliation in China.

Notable Events

105 years ago the first and only Sunday School in Belleville was organized in Bridge Street Church.

In 1863 the General Conference of Methodists met in Bridge Street Church and decided upon the great Union of the various branches of the Methodist Church.

The last Bay of Quinte Conference of the Methodist Church before Union was held in Bridge Street Church in 1926.

REEVE BLUE WAS BURIED TODAY

One of the Largest Funerals Ever Held in Crookston

CARS OF FLOWERS

Hundreds of persons representing the entire countryside attended the funeral this afternoon of the late Reeve John D. Blue of Crookston, this morning and the cortege was one of the largest which has ever been known in the vicinity.

At the home Rev. Mr. Simpson, minister of the Presbyterian Church, conducted the service and in his address sketched the deceased telling of the splendid character of the late Mr. Blue and of the great loss the community has sustained in his untimely death.

The funeral under Masonic auspices left the house at ten o'clock and proceeded to Moira where the remains were laid at rest in the Moira Cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. Henry Wallace, William Sharpe, Frank Smith, George W. C. Walter Francis and Dr. Fraser.

The floral offerings were so large they not only filled the house but a car load followed.

ON FOOT AND BY CAR, DETERMINED VICTIM PURSUES

Exasperated Motorist Follows Intoxicated Driver Over the City

REMANDED

Sequel Will Be Heard in Police Court Next Week

In the Police Court this morning Clare Brennan, about thirty years of age and a Lonsdale Cheesemaker, faced charges of driving a car while intoxicated and of leaving the scene of an accident without reporting. Brennan was remanded for one week and freed on bail. And thereby hangs a tale. About 9.30 last evening, a prominent local businessman was driving his car south on Pinnacle Street in a leisurely manner. At the Campbell Street intersection, the latter traffic light a good clip, endeavoured to pass him, but in so doing sideswiped the other car, tearing his bumper off, and causing other minor injuries. The couple swung around, hitting a tree, but the driver of the other car sped away and headed south on Pinnacle Street at a furious rate, with our wrathy business man in hot pursuit.

Down along the wharf the two cars sped, and the coupe driver, apparently unfamiliar with the lay of the land, chose the Government dock as an inviting looking speedway to effect his getaway. His pursuer quickly realized the entrance, and his prey corrected, as it were, phoned the police. But the driver of the coupe was not to be foiled thus easily, for finding escape on the dock impossible without swimming, back he came faster than ever, and right into the car trailing.

Long Stern Chase

The determined pursuer stood in the roadway, frantically motioning a "stop Signal", but it was a poor imitation, for he had to jump for his life. Unscathed our friend dashed madly in pursuit, but on foot, until he run out of breath. Then in the game of hide and seek began over, for he spied his quarry on Wharf Street and saw the Coupe turn into a driveway between two houses. He waited, and a young man emerged, but our friend was fairly exasperated by now as may be imagined, but he secured the attorney politely and suggested they walk along the street together. The young man agreed and the search and other friends were drafted until the police ear hove in sight and gave Brennan fan it toward out to bid a fit to the station.

MOIRA LODGE AT PICTON MEETING

Two of Oldest Lodges in Quinte District Fraternize

At the March meeting of Prince Edward Lodge of Free Masons at the Town of Picton, the officers of Moira Lodge No. 11 of Belleville took charge of the work and put on the Third Degree.

W. Master W. H. F. Ketcheson all the officers of Moira Lodge and brethren numbering about thirty, motored to Picton for the event.

Prince Edward and Prince Edward Lodge are two of the oldest Lodges in the Bay of Quinte District, Moira Lodge started its career 136 years ago, and the Picton Lodge over 99 years ago.

At the meeting a copy of the agreement was produced in the Lodge for the erection of a building at Picton (then Hallowell Village) dated April 5th, 1828, to be used as a school and also a Masonic Lodge, and ever since to erection the building has been occupied downstairs as a school and upstairs as a Masonic Lodge with banquet hall and two ante rooms. The cost of the building was then two hundred and twelve pounds, ten shillings, half of which was produced by the School Board and half by the Masons.

The Committee for the Masons consisted of John S. Hiermans, Benjamin Hubbs and Isaac Austin, and the committee' which acted for the public was Simeon Washburn, Norman Ballard and Jesse Henderson. The land was given by Abraham Barker to John S. Hiermans, Benjamin Hubbs and Isaac Austin, Free Masons in trust for the purposes above mentioned. Daniel Gilbert was the contractor.

These were all U. E. Loyalists and the building they erected 99 years ago was done on substantially the same plan as it still used as a school and Masonic Lodge.

THREATEN TO SHELL NANKING IF FOREIGNERS ARE NOT PROTECTED

Warships Are Rushing to Danger Zone to Guard Lives

BRITISH KILLED

Situation Grows Tenser — One Nationalist Report Says 2000 Dead

Washington, D. C., March 25.—Preparations for bombardment by British and United States ships at Nanking have been postponed until tomorrow because of a partial evacuation of the city by foreigners which has been effected, it is understood. Bombardment was to have begun late this afternoon.

Unless unfavorable arrangements are made for the safety of foreign lives in Nanking, military power in the city will be shelled by British and United States warships. Fiat notice to this effect has been served on Cantonese leaders by direction of Admiral Williams, who is commanding the United States forces in Asiatic waters.

H. M. S. Dunedine, British cruiser, is leaving tonight for Nanking. Unit of States destroyers Edsall, Parrott and Pillsbury sailed today for China. He will sail going to Swatow, the Parrott to Foochow and the Bulmer to Amoy. They were ordered by United States Consul to these three cities in the event it becomes necessary to protect or evacuate American citizens.

Will Shell Nanking

Nanking, nominally listed as an undefended city, could not be bombarded under ordinary circumstances, but after the killing yesterday of foreigners, British and United States Commanders informed the Chinese officials that unless the situation was remedied, Nanking would be considered a military area." Such proclamation would open it to whatever military operations were necessary to protect foreign lives.

The United States Commander in Chief reported that he had received an "insolent" reply in response to the demands made yesterday by British and United States Naval authorities at Nanking. The reply was followed by word that that military points would be fired on late this afternoon (Chinese time) unless the demands were complied with. Whether he has found it necessary to carry out this threat has not been reported to the naval Department.

Anxiously Awaiting News

Shanghai, March 25.—Foreign authorities here were anxiously awaiting word this morning as to the situation at Nanking, following upon disorders yesterday when a number of foreigners were killed. Deaths were caused through Chinese shell fire—but whether directed by Nationalists, Communists, Northern or Cantonese is not yet definitely known.

One thing is certain, however, that the British cruiser Emerald, and American destroyers Noa and Preston lost no time in returning the fire after the first Chinese shells fell on the Standard Oil plant on the hill in the northern part of the city.

Report Was Chinese Killed

How many foreigners were killed or injured in shelling of Nanking by Chinese was not known this morning. Reports that many members of the naval landing party were killed were unconfirmed, although it is known that one sailor of the Emerald was killed by a shot from the shore, the ships being constantly fired upon.

Nothing was noted in wireless messages to bear out local Nationalist reports that there were two thousand Chinese casualties. As a matter of fact, it was pointed out that the fire was directed mainly behind the hill, which area was uninhabited.

Chinese Are Insolent

Shanghai, March 25.—British and United States warships are mobilizing military points in Nanking, including the Cantonese headquarters unless immediate dispositions are made for delivery—unharmed—of all foreigners remaining ashore there. This ultimatum was delivered to Cantonese today by Rear Admiral H. H. Hough, U.S.N., and the British Naval Commander after the Cantonese leader had returned an insolent and insolent reply to their demands. The Anglo-American commanders consider that only drastic action can save foreigners who survived yesterday's riotous and fighting at Socony (Standard Oil) hill.

Grave Situation

Washington, D.C., March 25.—The situation at Chinkiang, recently captured by Nationalists, is described in official despatched as serious. British refugees have concentrated at Asiatic Petroleum Station and American women and children have taken refuge at the Standard Oil Company's installation. Looting and firing are reported in progress throughout the concession area. Americans are preparing to leave on the steamer Wenchow for Shanghai.

Shanghai, March 25.—Bertram Giles, British Consul General at Nanking, who was wounded in yesterday's fighting, has been rescued and is aboard H.M.S. Emerald.

MANY FOREIGNERS STILL IN NANKING

Shanghai, March 25.—Negotiations for the evacuation of the remaining foreigners in Nanking have broken down, says an authoritative despatch tonight and British and United States Commanders have decided that "drastic action is necessary."

Fifteen Britishers and ninety-nine Americans, including forty-four women and 33 children, it was learned here at 9 o'clock this afternoon, still remained to be evacuated from Nanking.

Dr. Williams Killed

Dr. J. E. Williams, vice-president of Nanking University, is known to be among the dead from yesterday's shelling. Dr. Williams' wife is also listed among the missionaries at Nanking.

(3 p.m.)—All Britishers and Americans in Chinkiang, which was captured by Nationalists several days ago, have been evacuated on steamers are now congregated under the protection of destroyers. Widespread looting is going on in Chinkiang.

The situation has been bearing refugees from Nanking and escorted by the United States destroyer Preston, was fired on this morning off Chinkiang. The Preston returned the fire.

SCENE OF THE WEEK'S EVENTS IN CHINA

Nanking was captured by the Cantonese troops this week from General Chang Tso-lin's forces. The above map shows the position of Nanking at the head of the estuary of the Yangtze River, and its geographical relation to Shanghai. Combined British and American naval cleavers are protecting foreigners from attack by Cantonese "irregulars" by means of a barrage about a Standard Oil Company hill on which they have sought refuge.

CONQUERED PLAGUES

Observations of interest to medical men and their patients were made by a German archaeologist while he was making autopsies on more than 20,000 Egyptian mummies. Through these mummies he learned what the Egyptians were physically, from as early as 2000 B.C., to the last dynasties.

Some of his conclusions are that imperfect teeth were unknown to the slave and other poor classes, that leprosy in its present form did not exist, and cancer, gout, tuberculosis and blood diseases were virtually unknown. Physical deformities were not uncommon and smallpox was prevalent.

These observations serve to demonstrate how dependent the physical man is upon his mode of living. Ancient man needed good teeth to eat the food given him and the fare of his day was such as to develop sturdy teeth. Teeth decay followed the departure from natural foods.

Modern man can envy the Egyptians for their freedom from toothache, cancer and tuberculosis, without wishing to change places with them in the health scales. Many diseases of today were unknown to the Egyptians, but so were there in ancient Egypt malignant diseases unknown to this modern era.

Terrible and devastating as they are, cancer and tuberculosis have never been as deadly virulent as the plagues that wiped out whole cities in ancient times and swept back and forth across whole continents. Plagues are virtually unknown today, and in this country even dangerous epidemics are rare.

Though spared the torture of toothache the Egyptians died young.

EMPIRE TRADE

Announcement is made that within the next few weeks effect will be given to the provisions of the trade pact between this country and the British West Indies under the treaty of 1925. Considerable concessions will thereafter be allowed by Canada to the tropical products of the islands, and similar favorable treatment will be accorded by the island government to a selected list of Canadian products, including products of the farm, orchard and dairy, footwear, fish, canned goods, confectionery and cordage. The preference to be granted by Canada on West Indian fruit and other products will be 50 per cent. of the general duties—a concession which ought to stimulate the importation of the p classes of goods. In the case of bananas the concession is greater, for bananas from the island colonies are to be admitted free of duty while on the foreign fruit the duty will continue to be 1½ cents per stem. A regular and adequate steamship service between Halifax and W. I. ports is in prospect; when it is in operation we should be getting a large proportion of our oranges, lemons and grape fruit as well as bananas from Jamaica and the other British Caribbean colonies.

Sentiment, no doubt, had much to do with the promotion of this trade; but it is probable that the result in substantial benefit to the people of all the countries concerned

NO RECIPROCITY

The best press opinion in the States appears to favor the view that the Canadian government's overture to Washington for a limited reciprocity arrangement is not likely to have any practical result. The New York Times; a low-tariff paper, warns Mr. King not to be optimistic on the subject. It surmises that perhaps he remembers "the many solemn declarations of the Republican party in favor of mitigating the severity of a high tariff by reciprocity treaties," and so ventures to hope that his present proposals will be received in a friendly spirit. "But," adds the New York paper, "that is a story which we have bravely got over." To the present administration at Washington, it says, "the protective tariff has become a sacred thing, a magical wonder-worker, which must not be touched by a sacrilegious finger."

Another reason why it is unlikely that there will be a favorable response from Washington is that the Canadian tariff has already been scaled down so low that it is hardly worth while for the U.S. government to make important concessions in the country in order to obtain specially favored tariff treatment for American products. That also is the reason why there have been so few branch plants of American industries established in Canada in recent years; it has been found that the Canadian demand for the American goods can be supplied from the American plants so easily, with so small a tariff handicap to be overcome, that it not worth while establishing branch plants in Canada.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

Disarmament is something like the Golden Rule. One fellow hesitates about trying it for fear the other won't.—Publisher's Syndicate Chicago.

A man can be thankful he is born these days for with the decreasing birth rate the chances are that if he wasn't he wouldn't be.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

Two facts seem to indicate that in Michigan the life of a murderer is valued more highly than the life of a respectable citizen. One fact is that the Michigan legislature has refused to sanction punishment for murderers, and the other is that the average duration of "life" imprisonment in Michigan is twelve years.—Hamilton Herald.

Forty Swiss citizens found themselves in possession each of one penny inheritance from a relative, and the same evening were arrested for being drunk and disorderly. It is painful to contemplate what reckless extravagances they might have indulged in if they had been cut off with the proverbial chilling.—Montreal Gazette.

"Surely, Miranda, you're not going to marry again when the Lord just took John."

It is war time. Seeing a khaki-clad figure passing, the private called out:

"Hey, Buddie, gimme a light."

The other obligingly held out burning match.

The doughboy, looking up to thank his "buddie," discovered to his amusement the star of a brigadier.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he said; "I didn't mean any disrespect. I didn't notice you was a general."

"That's all right, Buddie," said the General—who apparently was a regular "guy" — but you should thank God I wasn't a second lieutenant."

CUPID THE CASUIST

Cupid is a casuist, a dour and darling casuist;
So, when maid, dissembling,
Shuts her eyes to lover's wile—
Never heeding Eros' smile,
Lawyer Cupid, full of guile,
Sets her heart a-trembling.
Whispers in her ear—the sprite—
Tells her all of love's delight,
Wild and sweet, 'neath pale moonlight—
She forgets her vows to list
To Cupid, darling casuist.

Cupid is a casuist, a sweet and subtle casuist;
When a young man, haughty,
Says he'll live the single life—
Never will he woo a wife,
Nor be vexed by wedded strife—
Enters Dan, the naughty;
Visits him in dreaming hour,
And, with juice of purple flower,
Lays his eyes and wakes love's power—
Conquered, then, our pessimist
By Cupid, subtle casuist.

PONTIACS MAKE BRILLIANT SHOW

Belleville motorists are privileged this week and to inspect for the first time locally the complete line of Geners Motors new six and four Pontiac models. In the attractive show rooms of the McLaughlin Motor Car Company Limited, Bridge Street, Special Pontiac dealer may be seen the Pontiac family in entirety, and the display is a revelation.

It is a revelation in several things: In the extraordinary value obtainable today, dollar for dollar greater than has ever been the case in the previous Pontiac Models; the prospective purchaser sees a deluxe 8 cylinder car, powered by a motor which is a revelation in strength flexibility quietness and speed, and in the absence of vibration. It all speeds in its wide range; he sees a car beautifully finished in combination Duco Duotone effects, and with refinements and conveniences heretofore to be found only in cars of a much greater price.

Axel Lindelouma, proud possessor of 38 knife wounds, added to his battle scars when he was grabbed six times by Arvid Harjo at Wolf Siding, near Port Arthur.

Sure, he has an undeniably completely equipped 8 cylinder car with every refinement and comfort he could wish for, built into it, and all of this at a price and available on terms, which even the man with a modest income can afford. It is value made possible through the tremendous organization of General Motors, and value which only General Motors can offer.

When you consider that in the Pontiac you secure a six, the ideal type of motor, for hundreds of dollars more than was being asked for some makes of four cylinder cars a very short time ago, and moreover, a type of six that is not a "gas eater" but is as economical as any four, it will be realized just what an advance in automobile value has been achieved by General Motors, in the production of the Pontiac; and there you have another reason too for the tremendous popularity of this remarkable light Six introduced just about a year ago.

The six Pontiac Models displayed at the showroom show are: The Coach finished in an attractive dark blue and delivered at $1100; the Coupe, green with black fenders, and delivered at $1095; the Landau Sedan, in a dark blue and delivered, at $1245; The De Luxe Landau Sedan $1325 complete; the 4 Pass. Sport Coupe, $1165 complete; the 5 model finished in a light grey with blue fenders and wheels and rumble seat; finally the Sport Roadster Complete at $1080, in a light blue finish and with grey leather upholstering; this model also is equipped with rumble seat. These last two models are now available to the Pontiac family and complete as attractive array as has been seen under one name in the history of the industry.

The McLaughlin Motor Company cordially invite inspection of these Pontiac models in its showroom, preferably tomorrow, or this evening, while the line is complete, and when the feature of the car will gladly be explained to everyone interested.

Society system of espionage has been discovered in Switzerland and many arrests and expulsions are expected.

GOVERNMENT SPRAY SERVICE

Local Orchardmen will be glad to know that the Government Spray Service is to be suspended in Hastings County this spring. The service will consist of personal inspection of the orchards and expert advice on methods of spraying, time to spray, spray materials to use and all important essentials necessary in the production of sound, first-grade apples. This service is free to all applegrowers in Hastings County. Application for this assistance should be made early to Department of Agriculture, Stirling.

SIX MONTHS MORE

A couple who graced the police docket a month ago again appeared this morning against each other. When a charge of non-support was laid a month ago the husband promised to do better. This morning his better half declared he hadn't been twenty-cents to her and that he acted abominably when he arrived home last evening. The husband stated that he had only received one pay since his former appearance and the most of that was given to his wife. Six months' grace was given to come to a more amicable understanding. "Go home, be good to each other and bring up no aggravating circumstances," were His Honor's parting words.

REMANDED A WEEK

Henry Gould, shoemaker, appeared this morning in police court and was charged with numerous offenses against young girls under the age of 16 years. He pleaded not guilty and his counsel asked for an enlargement of one week. Gould is at present spending a month on the hill after having been found guilty of a similar offense against a young girl in police court two weeks ago. This offense oftentimes leads to a penitentiary sentence with lashes.

A LITTLE ACTION

Merchants on Front Street are complaining of the dusty condition of the pavement and several of them have expressed the opinion that the street-sweepers should be put to work. They maintain that the dust off the streets when it blows in the shop doors creates a great deal of unnecessary nuisance which might easily be avoided. The corner on Front Street is really in a deplorable condition and a little action on the part of the Council might help a great deal in eradicating the annoyance.

Social and Personals

Mrs. Power of Trenton was in the city yesterday.

Mrs. P. J. Kelly and son, Joseph of Campbellford, are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald.

Rev. A. H. McTear, Trenton, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Williamson, Brock street.—Kingston.

Dr. J. J. Robertson, Mr. Selby Nelson and Mr. James Cook attended the funeral of the late John Blue at Crookston this morning.

Mr. F. Davey Diamond was called to Toronto today where his wife underwent an operation in the General Hospital.

Mrs. E. Morgant, R.N., and Miss E. Hull, R.N., of Belleville spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rutan, Picton.

Mr. Thomas and Mr. Nation, of the High School staff, are ill at their homes. Mr. Howard returned today having recovered from his recent illness and Miss Saunders returned some days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vincent of Belleville spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Finley Vincent, Union Vale.

Miss Persis Mulloy of Lindsay who was taken suddenly ill while visiting Mr. and Mrs. Everett Bell is progressing as favorably as can be expected.

Past Pres. W. B. Deacon represented the Belleville Rotary at Deseronto where the presentation of the Oshawa Rotary Club's Cup, put up for competition many years ago among Collegiates of Central Ontario, was presented to the Deseronto club.

Miss Edith Brewer, worthy matron of Napanee Chapter No. 161, Order of the Eastern Star, was in Belleville last night attending a meeting of the general committee which is arranging for the annual session of the order which are to be held in Belleville in June.

ALLAN MEAGHER AGAIN PRESIDES

Quinte Ladies Softball League was held at Napanee last evening when officers of the four teams were present. The following officers were elected:—

Pres.—A. G. Meagher, Belleville.
1st Vice Pres.—Jas. Whitton, Deseronto.
2nd Vice Pres.—Grant Paul, Napanee.
Secy.-Treas.—Mrs. Walter Gerow, Belleville.
Auditor to League—Ald. M. P. Duff, Belleville.
Representatives to annual meeting W. O. I. A. at Toronto—Mrs. A. G. Meagher, Mrs. Walter Gerow.

The following were the representative Belleville H. S.—M. Fairbairn.
Belleville Beavers—L. Warham.
Deseronto—Miss Wager.
Napanee—Miss Grass.

Since the organization is one of the youngest in this district it was deemed advisable to have gentlemen as well as ladies handle it's affairs but eventually the latter will likely have full charge. The same constitution as last year will be in effect with any amendments added at the next meeting.

The treasury showed a substantial balance from last year.

LITTLE ADOPTED BABY GIRL WILL TRAVEL TO CHINA

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Have Secured the Child They Wanted

In a cafe on Bay street, Toronto, six smiling Chinamen were handing over a tiny girl whose almond eyes were almost closed as she laughed at their excitement. They were friends of Mr. Joseph Tom who recently left Belleville to spend a year in China and the baby was Beryl, a two-year-old Chinese girl, whose mother died recently in Toronto. Not only are Mr. and Mrs. Tom giving Beryl a home, but they are taking her with them to China on their year's journey.

Why Mr. Tom was in Toronto on a business trip some time ago, he heard of the baby as the Chinese Y.M.C.A. Later he returned to the city and after much difficulty traced Beryl to the Children's Aid Society. Since then he has been carrying on the process of getting out the adoption papers and Mr. and Mrs. Tom with their son have come to Toronto to take Beryl to Vancouver with them.

WELCOME THE BABY

As soon as the baby had formally and legally joined the Tom family then the foster father brought her down to several of her fellow-countrymen and the whole staff in the restaurant stopped work just at noon hour to welcome Beryl. She was going to the land of her parents, the little Toronto baby, and with one of the most prominent of their countrymen in Canada.

In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Tom were on an extensive shopping tour to buy Beryl's traveling clothes. Mrs. Tom ordered lovely, dainty things for the baby, and almost apologized for not completing the baby with many outfits by saying:

"When we get to Hong Kong, lots of silk things for Beryl."

"We don't know what we will call her," Mrs. Tom told the Intelligencer "but there are plenty of names."

THREAT TO SEND THEM ALL BACK

New York, March 23.—Facing the threat of deportation to their war torn native country, Chinese rioters were ordered for a peace conference today in an effort to end the renewal of the Tong warfare that has already taken eight lives in five cities.

"Back to China by the shipload if necessary," was the ultimatum issued by District Attorney Banton as he called the metropolitan leaders of the rival Hip, Sing and On Leong Tong tongs here.

The Chinese Consul-General has also been invited to attend.

Barking guns that marked the end of the two year truce between the Tongs yesterday brought death to three Chinese in Chicago, two in Brooklyn, one in Newark, one in Pittsburgh and one in Manchester, Conn. Two others were critically wounded. Characteristic oriental silence maintained by police in their hunt for killers, although forty-five were arrested in connection with the shootings. Reports say that Chinese gunmen get two thousand dollars per shooting from rival Tongs.

WOMEN WHO PURSUE ELUSIVE IDEALS

"Life never lets me rest." sighs poor Mrs. Edwards.

"It isn't just that upsetting things happen to me, but somehow I seem all restless inside, even if they are not happening. All my life I have been turned and tossed about — pulled this way and that. I am forty-three years old now and have had to go through enough tragedy for three women. I have lost two husbands and have three children—have been rich and poor—have failed in business—have had my home burn down—there's no end to the unhappy story. But somehow all these unfortunate happenings have not been the hardest thing to stand There! s something in my own nature that is even harder.

"Do you remember a book called 'The Gadfly'? Sometimes it seems as if there is a gadfly in my own heart that is always stinging me and keeping me from peace and contentment. I want so much to be good, and yet I never can feel that I amount to much. I long so much to do beautiful things and though I try my hardest. I am discouraged and disappointed with everything I do. I am like a person who is chasing a star and never catching it.

"Oh I envy the people who are eastly satisfied. Some people seem born that way and some people are born like me. Doesn't it seem strange? How wonderful it would be to be perfectly contented for just one day?

"Yes, my dear, I've read the story of "The Gadfly" and lived it, too. I also onged for content and could never attain it. Chasing stars — stumbling and breaking one's heart in the chase. I know how it is. And yet, I'm not sure that if I could live my life and shape my own destiny, that I would have it any different.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

What if he didn't mean to—? What if he proved to be another Sanford! What if he meant—?

"Oh, no, no, no!" she cried in agony. "I won't believe it! I can't believe it! A few months ago—yes! But not now! Not now!"

Louise climbed down from her chair and came hurrying to her, her little face half-frightened, and Christine gathered her in her arms and buried her face in the child's soft hair. She calmed herself by a mighty effort.

"I mustn't let myself go," she thought. "I mustn't think horrible things. If it's true, I must bear it somehow. After all, I have no right to judge Clifford until I've cleared myself of blame."

That night she told him about her marriage ceremony with Lewis Hayes—and all the while her tortured heart was asking:

"Am I losing him by telling him this?"

CONFESSION

It seemed to Christine that she never had faced a more difficult ordeal than the one which she initiated upon herself when she made up her mind to wipe her slate clean—to tell Clifford Vane of her marriage which "Twenty-one" has "to meet. What would your answer have been? Some girls would have "kid ded h m along." Some would have returned the kiss—with interest. Some would have slapped him face. And some would have phoned his wife. "Twenty-one" did none of these things. Read her solution of th s all-too-common office problem.

with Lewis Hayes.

Even if she had been sure that Vane meant to ask her to marry him, it would not have been easy to tell him about Lewis. But how much more toriering to relate her story to a man who, if he had no intention of marrying her, could only take her confession as an invitation to a proposal?

She felt that, if this were the case, she couldn't endure the humiliation of it. And yet she told her story with dignity, holding her head proudly, for all the flush that stained her cheeks as she felt the gaze of Vane's steady gray eyes.

When she had finished, he was silent. His expression baffled her. Was it relief? Dismay? Anger? Censure?

Finally he said: "It was brave of you to tell me, Christine. No, I hadn't known before."

His voice was as quiet, his poise as perfect. She longed to cry out: "Doi doesn't it make any difference to you?"

Aloud she said: "I've been very cowardly. I should have told you long ago. Perhaps then you—you wouldn't care—loved me."

His gray eyes smiled momentarily. "Nothing on earth could have prevented my loving you. Nothing can prevent my continuing to love you with all my heart and soul."

Happiness flooded her whole being. She had not lost him by telling him the truth! But—

She waited, playing with the tiny spoon of her demi-tasse. They were dining at his favorite restaurant—a French place, quiet, discreet, with soft, shaded lights and excellent food. Cushioned settles were used instead of chairs, and the tables seemed remote from each other.

Oh, she thought, how hard he makes it for me! Her glance fell on his long, lean hand beside hers on the table. How strong it looked; how capable of grappling with Life and bending it to his will.

"What do you think I ought to do?" she faltered at last. "Is it fair to my—my husband to go on like this? I

THE CANADIAN SHREDDED WHEAT COMPANY LIMITED

DEAR ELSIE:

Will you help me solve a difficult problem?

Until three weeks ago I was employed in a downtown office. I worked for this firm for three years Two months ago the manager was transferred and he was replaced by another. This latter, was very fine in the beginning, until three weeks ago. Each time I went into h's office to take dictation he got more and more familiar—first, he sat on the arm of my chair while he dictated, the next t me he put his arms around me. then I stood right up and told him that I was never bother ed by the other manager and didn't want to be bothered by him.

Well, the next day he didn't annoy me. The day after he kissed me the first thing in the morning. He's a married man and was do ng wrong. I told him that if he didn't leave me alone, I would give my notice. To this he onl y laughed and told me not to be so sanctified. So I put on my hat and coat and walked out.

He was very much surprised at my hasty decis on. About an hour after I reached home, he called me on the phone and asked me to go back and I shut him off.

This was three weeks ago. Since then I have been staying home earning for my mother who underwent an operation ,at our home is convalescing. In the meantime my employer hired another stenographer, but the off ce he tells me that the records are being mixed up.

Yesterday my employer called me and asked me to go back to work with a raise in wages of $4.00, making $30.00 per week. I inquired as to his behavior in the future, to wh ch he did not reply, and told me that he needed me to adjust the records. Should I go back? ?

"PERPLEXED."

There's always some risk in a situation of this kind. Yet, you've won your point, and if you maintain your present dignified attitude I see no reason why you should lose a position which you have worked hard to attain, because a man happens to have a silly streak.

don't even hear his name, as you say, and we haven't corresponded for ever so long."

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Bellville, Ont,
March 18, 1927.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am engaged to a boy who I met about forty miles from here, and, owing to bad roads has been unable to visit me for nearly two months. He wrote me over two weeks ago stating that he had obtained a position about four miles from here, and that he would call. From inquir es I have made I have found out he is now working in the new place and has been for about two weeks but he hasn't even as much as phoned me I do not consider it right to phone him but would like to know why he has not kept his word. This is the first time he has ever broken a date without phoning me the reason for doing so. Please advise me what is best for me to do.

Thank you.

DOUBTFUL.

DOUBTFUL: If you are engaged to be married to the young man, surely it is your privilege and duty to phone him and ask if he has been ill as no doubt the stories brought to you by supposed friends of his work ng may be incorrect. You can easily judge by his answer to your inquiry whether he has lost interest, or if idle tongues have carried tales to him. If you think he has lost interest do the same yourself and be thankful you found out before it was too late. As it is the first time he has ever broken his word to you, you will lose no self respect in finding out the reason why he has not written to you, but don't do it the second time.

Women Dispose

Of this new hygienic pad as easily as tissue —no laundry

By ELLEN J. RICHLAND
Specialty Course

COUNTLESS women have discarded old-time "sanitary" pads for a new and better way.

A way that offers far greater protection. A way, too, that banishes the old-time problem of disposal.

Eight in 10 better-class women now use "KOTEX."

Discards as easily as tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Deodorizes, thus ending all danger of offending.

Obtainable at all drug and department stores simply by asking "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Be sure to get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex. Proves old ways a needless risk. In fairness to yourself, try it.

KOTEX

No laundry—discard like tissue

If you wrap a piece of ice in a Blanket -

it will melt too slowly to preserve your food. For the ice must be exposed and melt in order to keep the refrigerator sufficiently cool.

It's the same with soap! It must dissolve from the bar before it can do its work.

The hard, common kinds of soap take their own time about dissolving.

But Sunlight dissolves freely, so it isn't necessary to leave it in the water. In fact it's wasteful to do so.

Just swish the bar around a little and right away you have plenty of bubbly, lasting suds — even with hard water!

Sunlight, being all pure soap, not only dissolves quickly, but works faster and does not hurt either hands or finest fabrics.

BELLE THEATRE

A splendid example of what may be accomplished when a heroism and conscientious effort is made to translate a great novel to the screen, was witnessed by the audience who saw the first showing of "The Country Beyond" at the Belle Theatre today.

In this widely read novel by one of America's foremost writers, James Oliver Curwood, there is a wealth of character material and story value, which Fox Films, under the direction of Irving Cummings has utilized to the best possible advantage. The producers sent a cast of players up into the Jasper National Park region in the Canadian Rockies and produced many sequences in country never filmed before.

With Olive Borden, the winsome Virginia beauty, in the role of Val, Gerda, and a cast of supporting play, each of whom interprets his or her peculiar role with understanding sympathy, it is no wonder that such pleasing and entertaining picture is the final result.

There is everything to commend "The Country Beyond" to the best interences—wholesome comedy, heart-gripping pathos, action and a swiftly moving plot.

Supporting Miss Borden are a number of favorites of the screen, including Ralph Graves, who plays opposite pretty star; Gertrude Astor, who plays the "menace"; J. Farrell MacDonald, in the role of Sergeant Cassidy of The Mounted, and Dorothy Sebile, Fred Kohler, Lawford, David son, Alfred Fisher and Lottie Wilkins.

Last night's song service was entitled "Great Big Blunders" based upon the Scripture Jeremiah 29, 13 and the first blunder the Doctor spoke on was that made by the many who do not seek the Lord. The reason many have not sought Him are that they will not hold out; but the Doctor said if we are true to our friends surely we can be true to The Great, Best Friend. Again many do not feel enough. Here the Evangelists sang "Jesus is Tenderly Calling You."

The second blunder is that many do not seek the Lord but seek other things; they try to get better on their own will power or resolution. Some try by assurance but the speaker pointed out acceptance comes first and assurance follows. Here the duet "Sweet Peace the Gift of God's Love" was sung by the evangelists.

Many seek the Lord but do not walk with all their hearts; the thing necessary in seeking the Lord is to do so with all our hearts. The most important business of any man is to make a Christian character, not merely making a living but a Christian life. A full surrender is necessary and at the moment this is made salvation is received. Here the evangelists sang "Some Time Soon."

Tonight Dr. Crossley and Rev. Mr. Leonard will preach on "Seven Practical Life Missions."

TORONTO LIZZIES IN ACTION HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

Napanee Collegiats and Belleville High School Play For Trophy

When the Elizabeth Intermediates from Toronto step out on the floor at the "Y" tomorrow night the fans will witness in action one of the smartest basketball teams that ever came out of the Queen City.

The Lizzies, all of whom are Jewish boys, learned their basketball at Central "Y" and this has been their home court for some years. Up to the present time they have won eighteen straight games without losing one but they are due for one on Saturday night if the talk around the locals' dressing room following last night's workout may be any indication. The boys went at it hammer and tongs last night, and for over an hour were seen through their paces by Ralph Morden and every one is in the pink for the big battle. Buchanan is undecided yet, but he will likely take his regular place on defence.

The is the last of the semi-final games for the Ontario championship and if the black and whites overcome the 23 point lead they will meet the losers of the St. Catherines-St. Thomas' series.

Sammy Gold who is rated as one of the cleverest cage men in Toronto will be in the visitors' line-up.

On the large floor in Toronto the Belleville team were handicapped but playing on their own court with their own crowd behind them should make a heap of difference.

The locals will likely line-up the same as in Toronto with Armstrong in centre, Weir and Kerr, forwards, and Buchanan and Alexander, defence, with Miller, Curry and Morrison for relief duty.

The game between Napanee Collegiate and Belleville High School for a silver trophy should be well worth seeing. The greatest of rivalry has always existed between these two teams. The school team will take the floor for the first game at 8 p.m.

James Murray of Napanee has consented to handle the tournament fixture.

Bothered With Headaches?

A lot of people are. Some have headaches from one cause, some from another. A very common cause is eye strain. Probably it causes more headaches than any other one thing. Here is good news — where headache is caused by eye strain all that needs to be done is to get rid of the eye strain. Glasses do that in thousands of cases. I supply them at reasonable cost.

CENT. ONTARIO LEAGUE AFFAIRS TO BE DISCUSSED

Annual Meeting Held in C.N.R. Library Here Saturday Afternoon

The magnates of the Central Ontario Baseball League will gather here tomorrow afternoon for the annual meeting and discussion of affairs relating to the league's welfare. Less interest has been shown on the part of the teams this year than ever before and for the reason the outcome of the meeting is being awaited with interest around the circuit.

Peterboro have organized and are on deck for action. Kingston have been talking some, while little has transpired in Belleville. Whether Oshawa will be represented is also doubtful but certain it is that the effort that a berth in the Central League again would be secured. The Oshawa group was not satisfactory and nothing has been advanced to solve the problem.

Kingston desires some sort of baseball while the talk locally has lead one to believe that the fans certainly want to see baseball here. If the Moguls deem it necessary to drop back to Intermediate ball let everyone get behind the proposition and put it over. Senior ball is preferred but better than none at all the lower caliber.

Tomorrow the whole situation will be gone over and it looks like a busy session for the representatives.

'TOOTS' HOLWAY MENTIONED AS STRATFORD PILOT

Belleville Boy Popularized Himself With Classic City Fans

Stratford, March 24.—Unless unforeseen circumstances arise between this writing and next October, Strat. ford will retain its franchise in the Canadian Professional Hockey League, despite the retirement of Roy Brothers, manager and one of the chief financial supporters of the Nationals this year.

This was the encouraging announcement made yesterday by one of the Classic City Arena directors. He declined however, to permit his name to be used in this connection, until after the meeting of the Arena directors which will be held the latter part of this week.

While nothing definite has been decided on in the way of selecting a successor to Roy Brothers, Albert "Toots" Holway, Nationals' stalwart defence player, is being mentioned prominently in this connection. He would act as a playing manager. Holway will be interviewed in this regard before he departs for his home in Belleville this week.

Cost Pretty Penny

While the exact figures are not available, from a source close to the team management, it was stated today that the operating expenses of Stratford's first professional hockey team were in excess of $30,000. The club's financers did not break even on the season.

Must Have Assistance

When questioned in this connection Roy Brothers said that it was impossible to operate a professional hockey team in Stratford without the assistance of an N.H.L. club.

"Anyone who will attempt it will lose money," he said.

HONOR WINNERS OF INTER-SCHOOL TITLE

Deseronto turned out en masse last night to honour the winners of the Inter-scholastic Hockey League, the Deseronto High School.

At six o'clock the champions were banqueted in a royal style, the feast being held in the Deseronto Community Hall.

Fine Prizes

Each member of the winning team was presented with a beautiful gold watch and a sweater in appreciation of their efforts which won them the district championship. The other officials of the team (trainer, etc.) received fine gold rings.

Mr. Geo. W. Henley, representative of the Ontario Rotary Club, presented the championship cup to the winners on behalf of the Rotary Club of Oshawa. Mr. Henley is an old Deseronto boy.

Enthusiasm ran high during the evening and the banquet was a complete and decided success.

GAME POSTPONED

Owing to a complication of arrangements the two indoor games in the Industrial League scheduled for the Armouries tonight have been postponed until a later date. The League experts to open the regular schedule next week.

BASEBALL HOLDOUTS MAY BE SUSPENDED

New York, March 25.—Baseball's two champion holdouts, Eddie Roush and Herb Pennock, will be fined heavily, suspended and placed on the ineligible list if they do not report to the New York clubs before the season opens, it was divulged from a source close to the two club owners.

Herb Pennock, mainstay of the Yankee pitching staff, and recognized as the best left-hander in baseball, is feeding and skinning silver foxes at his farm in Pennsylvania and refuses to talk terms to his employers.

Pennock, who thinks that twenty games which he believes he can turn in for the Yankees are worth $1,000 each, has turned back an offer of $15,000 a season with the ultimatum that he'll stay with his foxes if he doesn't get his price.

Eddie Roush, pioneer holdout who caused the Cincinnati Reds a heavy attack by reporting to the training camp once or twice, is receiving his mail on the banks of a fishing creek in Indiana.

Owners of the Giants, who gave George Kelly to the Reds for Roush, say they don't know what Roush wants in the way of compensation. They made him an offer which he stuck in his fishing jacket and wandered down to the creek to think it over.

Major league club owners are not averse to publicity and public attention is directed to holdouts of such prominence. But there comes a time when a little backselling instead of newspaper notices is more essential to the success of a club.

RESUMES WORLD FLIGHT

Para, Brazil, March 25.—Commander Francisco De Pinedo, Italian aviator, has resumed his flight this morning, leaving for Georgetown, British Guiana. From here he will fly to Curaco, off Venezuelan Coast.

ATHLETICS ARE CONCEDED FIRST PLACE THIS YEAR

Atlanta, Ga., March 25.— Three weeks' survey by major league training camps reveals a condition of supply and demand in baseball. There are more customers for the first division in the American League than there are seats.

Popular opinion in the training zone has adjusted the first four places to the Philadelphia Athletics, Washington Senators, New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers on a more or less extemporaneous basis. Cleveland insists that the Indians cannot be counted out of the first four, and the Chicago White Sox and the St. Louis Browns are in a receptive mood and hopeful. The Boston Red Sox objective at the moment seems to be anywhere but last place.

The American League teams enter the race with an unprecedented shifting of veteran players and hardly less startling arrival of young stars on the way up.

The Athletics are depending on tried old and young. Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins and Zack Wheat have brought batting strength to Connie Mack's outfit and added spirit. Jack Bentley, who ran amuck with the ball with any defender, has aided the defensive arrangements. The pitching staff has been brought out of former form by Connie Mack. Manager Connie Mack expects his improved offensive to enable his pitchers to exhibit more than a fair share of the debit side of the ledger last year.

Washington has added strength in the person of Tris Speaker, who umpired friendly has much good baseball left in his system. In Bobby Moore, the Senators have a greatly improved shortstop, and the club seems stronger in reserve material. The catch in the Senatorial equation is the pitching. Washington must develop some additional talent. Thurston, late of the White Sox, Braxton, formerly of the Yankees, and Hadley, a youngster, recalled from the Southern Association, may furnish the necessary reinforcements.

ARSON SOCIETY BIG MEMBERSHIP

Ontario Ring Has Expert Incindiaries to Give Service

Ottawa, March 25.—Investigation by the provincial fire marshal, E. P. Heaton, of Toronto, which is stated to have uncovered extensive operations of a professional arson ring, resulted in the appearance before Magistrate Charles Hopewell, in Police Court of James John Colcrew, for detention as a material witness in an arson charge against Harry N. Simpson, formerly of Ottawa, but now under arrest in Toronto.

The "arson ring" which the provincial authorities are stated to have uncovered is said to be in the form of an organized society having a paid-up membership in cities in all parts of the province of Ontario. A member of the society desiring to collect insurance on his property interred of relying on his own crude ideas regarding the setting of a fire communicates his intentions to the head office of the organization, said to be in Toronto, and an accredited representative of the society in what ever city the member happens to reside calls and does the work for him.

The agent of the society having her, there is stated to be little to performed his duty in an expert man attract surprise about the resulting fire and the owner collects his insurance in the usual way.

In the case against Simpson the authorities claim that Colcrew was a member of this society, and that Simpson acted as agent. Belief that Colcrew, either voluntarily or at the instance of the society itself, was about to disappear so that the Crown's case against Simpson would fall to the ground, resulted in his being placed behind the bars as a material witness. No bail was allowed.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"I promise," said Rafe, in deep voice. "Come and dine with me tomorrow—I'll write."

"It's too early for bed. We'll look into a little club of mine," said Ponsonby Jones, linking his arm in Rafe's.

Rafe being in the humor to go anywhere, they called a taxi and were driven to the Arc of Spades—its name indicates its character quite plainly. The cardroom was nearly full when the two men entered. Ponsonby Jones nicknamed Rafe to one or two of the members and presently he found himself seated at one of the green tables with cards in front of him and champagne at his elbow. At three o'clock in the morning Rafe had lost so large a sum of money that for a moment, he was staggered when he remembered his vast wealth and, with a laugh, signed the I. O. U. which one of the men drew up "I'll pay it off in the morning," he said, but the winners shook their head and sighed.

"Look in to-morrow night and win it back," said one. "Luck was against you this evening."

"No; the luck was all right," said Rafe. "But I'm not accustomed, you know, I'll come and take my revenge to-morrow. I've had a mighty pleasant evening, Mr. Jones."

As he went into the open air he felt confused and lost about the head. He, of the men called a taxi-cab, and then saw him off with great gentility, promising him of his presence. When he got home Rafe went straight to the bath room, plunged into the cold water, which himself like a Newfoundland dog and stood upright, shaking his head like a dog before him grimly. He knew that he had taken too much wine and he was full of self-reproach—he had spent a whol, night without thinking of Maude; and poor Rafe told himself that that was something to be sorry for.

Soon after breakfast, which Rafe took in his own room, Travers arrived. Rafe was sitting on the sill of the open window smoking his pipe and looking into the square, where Eva was walking demurely with her governess. On one or two occasions Rafe had gone over to the square and played with Eva, who had pronounced a need to be dreamy; but this morning Rafe, somehow or other, felt as if he could not join the child; he had not the headache which he deserved, but he had a feeling, the knowledge of his folly, hung about him, and he was not enough to feel unworthy of the child's companionship. Once she looked and looked up at the window, caught sight of him, and waved her hand, with a wistful look on her pretty face; but Rafe shook his head as he waved back and, startling the governess, shouted quickly: "Busy!"

Travers looked sideways at the grim little figure on the window sill, and smiled, as he wondered what Rafe would say—and he—if he knew that Phoebe, the girl of dumping Jane, was so near him, and the conquest that had been made between Travers and her.

"Any number of invitations for you this morning," he said. "You were quite a success the other night. Here's one, to a dinner, from Lady Quantock; and one—two—three—four letters from other fair dames; tea at Piper's, lunch at the Carlton, dinner at Burlington. You have become quite a man about town already, Strudley," he added playfully, but with a little bitter feeling of envy at the lack of his mind, as usual.

"Think so?" said Rafe, in level tone. "Well, it's not a bad town to be about in; and the people are mighty friendly and fair-minded. Say, and I want to give a feed at that gold-mined saloon, by Savoy. I owe them last night; dinner and supper with that pretty little girl, with the ciuddy face and hair, Madeleine Despard, and—some fellow I've met at different places; we had a good time, sent to the theater. And we had some play afterward——" He paused a moment, crammed down the tobacco in his pipe, and went on, with a slow drawl: "You'll have to write out a check for two hundred and twenty pounds fifteen shillings. That's what I lost."

STRIKE MOOTED AMONG CANADIAN PACIFIC CLERKS

Proceedings Taken to Issue Strike Ballot Among Employees

6000 AFFECTED

Negotiations With Company Officials Broken Off

Montreal, March 26.—A strike of freight handlers and clerks of the Canadian Pacific Railway seems large. Final negotiations between the men's committee and the company officials have been definitely broken off and the men's committee has instituted the necessary proceedings for the distribution of a strike ballot among employees affected. Five to six thousand men are directly affected while if the strike is called a similar number of non-union clerks will be indirectly affected.

Telegraphers Involved

Montreal, March 26.—With a 25 per cent. wage increase as the chief objective, the inner executive committee of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Order of Railway Telegraphers, will enter into negotiations on Monday officials of the C.P.R. company. This follows upon the termination yesterday of the triennial meeting of the council of the Telegraphers' organization. In addition to the higher salaries, the committee will discuss the revision of certain dates and rules at present in force affecting railway telegraphers.

Montreal, Que., March 26.—The present crisis in the extreme of the award of the Federal Board of Conciliation which granted the men a four-cent an hour increase. The company refused to accept the award but expressed a willingness to reopen negotiations. These, however, were of no avail and the men finally took the matter up with President Beatty. The men agreed to accept the increase of three cents an hour but the company refused to grant this. Negotiations were then broken off.

Frank H. Hall, Canadian Vice-President of the International Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, who is in charge of the men's committee, stated that as soon as President Fitzgerald of the Brotherhood sanctions his move, strike ballots will be issued to men.

MARKET PRICES SHOW DECREASE

Little Chance of Maple Syrup Reaching Lower Figure This Year

Prices at the market this morning were more attractive than in many weeks and the buyers thronged the market building pleased that everything had gone down several cents. Spring has brought eggs down each week and today they took a further dip reaching 25 cents a dozen. Other things, specially meats, some of the smaller ones selling as low as 22 cents.

Butter is for the first time this year went down to less than the price which has prevailed since November and 40 cents was asked, some as low as two pounds for seventy-five cents. Cream remained at 30 cents a pint and will probably remain at that figure.

Most of the fowl raised for killing have been sold and very few were brought in today. What few were offered sold at a dollar and a half, some at two dollars.

Maple Syrup Market

"I'll eat molasses or sugar and water before I'll pay the price they are asking for maple syrup" on woman said as she found that 75 cents was the figure named for the little which was offered. The vendor asserted that there is little chance of any lower price being asked as the run of sap is very poor.

Potatoes sold at from $1.30 to $1.35 this morning and there is every indication that they will go lower shortly.

Apples are selling at a dollar a peck. Small vegetables such as carrots and beets 20 cents a peck and turnips at 25 cents a peck.

The fine old rooms, beautifully decorated with spring flowers, formed an ideal setting for the successful evening, and the Manor promises to be one of the entertaining centres of the city. GOLD FISH IS RETURNED IN REAL COLLEGE STYLE

With fitting ceremony the gold fish which has been missing from the pool of Sulman's store was replaced in its old accustomed place, swinging high in the air by Albert College students yesterday afternoon.

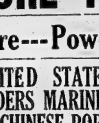

The long manster of the air fant the deed, had been harrowed by the students some weeks ago and has stood sentinel over one of the boys rooms since in charge of address but promised the leave of absence expired and the students decided to replace him with all due honors. They formed a procession, headed by Clarence Wilson whose birthday coincided with the return of the fish and who was gaudily dressed in a black and red checked suit, carrying a kiddie car and wearing a helmet made from an antique and discarded grey fish's coily mixed and mustard-pensive new kettle. Behind him ever the bearing the gold fish and several collegians and after that fifty lively cheering students and whatever fish in the vicinity proceeded down Front street to the house of the gold fish whose several of the collegians knocked them, halted and one of the boys climbed out of the taxi, calmly led on top and solemnly restored the fish placed in Albert college in the old stand.

The parade then proceeded to the corner of Bridge and Front where stump speeches were indulged in while the height of the birthday joined along the line and hopefully assisted contributions (which came?).

The students then fell in and marched back to the College where the gold fish's only missed and mourned.

Men Prominent In Belleville Life

JUDGE E. B. FRALECK

Prominently identified with Military and Legal Organizations for many years, Judge Fralick is regarded as one of the city's foremost citizens.

Perhaps one of Belleville's oldest citizens, a member of the Orange and Masonic orders and a well-known and respected man, Judge E. B. Fralick stands out prominently amongst his fellow citizens and townsmen.

Edison Baldwin Fralick (Junior Judge, County of Hastings) was born on February 6th, 1844, his father being Thomas Tillotson Fralick, and his mother, Hannah Nicholson, married in 1824.

Judge Fralick, who from a boy showed that he was brilliantly equipped with the attributes necessary to a clever man, received his primary education at the Bidney Township Public School. When he was thirteen years of age he entered the Frontenac Academy at Kingston and afterwards attended Queen's College. An interesting coincidence is that at that time one junior pupil was Hugh John Macdonald.

Taught School

In 1863 the young man matriculated, graduating in Arts in 1867 with honours in all branches. Upon the completion of his Academic course he went for a year to the United States returning to his home he accepted the principalship of the Stirling Grammar School, teaching for one year (1868). In January, 1869, he entered the law office of Ponton and Falkiner, where, after two years, he had his articles transferred to the Honorable Stephen Richards, the Commissioner of Crown Lands.

After receiving his certificate of call to the bar, young Fralick was called to the Bar at Easter, in the year 1868 and was admitted to practice in the fall of 1868 and was admitted to practice in the fall of the same year. He took up practice in Belleville immediately and shortly afterwards married Jane E. Judd, daughter of a Stirling merchant.

Upon the formation of the 49th Hastings Battalion he assumed a Lieutenancy in Number 4 Company under Captain Howe. His successful career was distinctly crowned by an order in council appointing him a Junior Judge on December 28th, 1881.

Mercantile Queen's Courtsi

In 1889 Judge Fralick was elected a member of Queen's University Council, which position he still holds. At one time an ardent sportsman, he has always been a staunch Conservative and a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Members on both sides of Judge Fralick's family for generations back have been famous for their longevity and the Judge appears to be no exception in the general rule. He is now in his 84th year and is still active in his office every day, never failing to appear for business.

At one time Mr. Fralick was appointed a revising officer for East and North Hastings. He was a Judge for thirty-five years, twelve years of which was of the Surrogate Court. He was retired on a full pension, and wishing something to keep his active brain employed, opened a law office on Front Street.

CENTRAL POWER ASSOCIATION TO MEET HYDRO P.C.

Committee to Ascertain Purchase Prices on Local Plants

As a result of a meeting of the executive of the Central Ontario Power Association, held at Cobourg yesterday afternoon, a special committee will interview the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario at an early date to ascertain upon what basis the local distributing plants may be purchased by the various municipalities.

The meeting was held in the Council Chamber at Cobourg and nearly all of the municipalities in the members of the Association had representatives present. The results of the recent conference with the Hydro Commission were discussed and it was realized that a large proportion of the information asked for had not been given out by the Commission. There had been an evident desire, however, upon the part of the Commission, as representing the Province of Ontario, to dispose of the local system to the different municipalities and establish the Central Ontario System up on the same basis as the one obtaining throughout western Ontario.

After considerable preliminary discussion the following resolution was proposed by ex-Mayor G. D. Conant of Oshawa, seconded by Mr. H. Patterson, manufacturer, of Cobourg, and unanimously carried:

Whereas the Hydro Electric Power Commission has suggested that the local municipalities in Central Ontario System purchase their local distribution systems—

And whereas this executive committee is not possessed of sufficient information to justify it in requesting the local municipalities asking the Commission to state the prices at which it will dispose of the local distributing systems.

Therefore be it resolved that a committee of five, to be named by the chair, be appointed to confer with the Commission as to the basis of prices the local distribution system if they are sold to the various municipalities; and to obtain basis of fixing the price of power to be sold to such municipalities as may purchase their local distribution systems. Following the passage of the resolution the chairman appointed the following special committee to interview Hydro Commission at the earliest opportunity and report back: Mayor T. A. Hodgson, Bowmanville; F. L. Mason, Oshawa; H. Fullerton, Cobourg; J. O. Herity, Belleville; G. D. Conant, Oshawa.

INCOME TAX OFFICE WORKING AT HIGH PRESSURE

April Busy Month—Many Forms Must Be Filed in March

Belleville District Income Tax Office, Campbell street, is working day and night at present, preparing for the rush season when the annual returns for income tax are filed for the year. Post offices in the different centres are busy just now handing out the forms for income tax reports.

The most interested persons just now are the employers and corporations.

Form T-4 is due to be filed at the Inspector's office in Belleville not later than March 31. A penalty of $50 is provided for non-compliance with this requirement. Employers who have in their employ persons sufficiently lucky to receive $1,000 during 1926, and those who were paid at the rate of $1,500 should complete these forms. They are for the benefit of checking the returns of employees.

The T-5 forms of returns for corporations should show the amount of dividends paid to shareholders during 1926, and is an important one.

While ordinary income tax returns are not required to be filed until April 30, most people are securing them now. The exemption in the case of single men is the same as last year $1,500. The exemption for married men is $3,000. The recent amendment did not change in any way the return of taxation, but the

AMBITIOUS GOOSE LAYS GIANT EGG

A toulouse goose owned by Mrs. J. Hanna, Corbyville, has broken every record in the County for egg production. On Thursday last she cackled triumphantly and, when the egg she was found to measure fourteen inches by nine and a half. When it was broken it yielded a half pint of yolk and albumen and a full sized second egg measuring 9½ by 7¾. The latter was minus the usual shell appendages and the white and yolk which was with it, five ounces. Lady Goose wasn't satisfied that her week's work was done and today laid another normal egg. Dan Hagerman of Corbyville has also an ambitious goose which laid a record egg on Thursday last. Neither were very large but the hen declared she was coming to her for her ambitious act.

TALES OF CHINESE BRUTALITY TOLD BY FOREIGNERS

Refugees Reaching Nanking Relate Details of Cantonese Actions

BRITISHERS KILLED

Manchurian War Lord Desirous of Arranging Truce With South

Shanghai, March 26—Harrowing tales of the escape from hands of the lawless, bestial Cantonese soldiers, inflicted against foreigners, were related today by refugees arriving from Nanking on steamers. The refugees totalled more than two hundred. Mr. John Davis, wife of the American consul and her two children arrived after suffering much abuse on their backs. She said the Cantonese had entered Consulate threatened to kill all foreigners. On Saturday morning, Americans had gathered at the consulate when the Consul ordered them to try to escape their arms for fear of provoking Chinese. They heard that British and Japanese consuls had been killed and the party fearing the concentration point at Socony Hill. They had just left when Nationalist soldiers fired on them. For two miles they walked through constant sniping, reaching Socony exhausted. Private Plumley was wounded. Cantonese soldiers became coming in large groups demanding money, threating to kill them. At last Chinese began attacking in earnest, when the signal was sent to warships for aid. The Cantonese had entered and were seeking for foreign women when shells from warships burst around the hill soaring Chinese off. The party reached the river and went aboard warships, still facing constant sniping. All Americans in Nanking except Dr. Williams, who was murdered, and one school were accounted for. Four others were missing, however. Two brothers were killed and one wounded, but reports that British landing party was killed have not been confirmed.

Shanghai, March 26.—General Chang Kai Shek, commander of the southern Cantonese forces arrived here today bent on preventing the capitulation of the British and American warships of Nanking, following the attack on foreigners there. In reply to his protest British Vice Consul at Nanking questioned the value of the assurances that he would protect foreigners. While Pan Nanking situation was less tense today, reports from other places on river Portray alarming state of affairs, necessitating the rapid evacuation of the remaining foreigners.

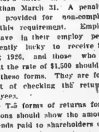

Although General Kai Shek says brutality should not be laid against the Nationalists, reports reaching Shanghai today of looting, burning and assault on men and women, imputed to the Nationalists at Nanking and other places.

Shanghai, March 26.—Marshal Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord is reported to be desirous of negotiating with the moderate southerners for truce, to be followed by the establishment of peace. This report is confirmed by representatives of the allied northern armies, of which Marshal Chang is commander in Chief.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

O friend, be men, and let your hearts be strong,
And let no audacity in the heat of fight or deed

BRYANT.

BRITAIN'S POSITION

The position of Great Britain, in respect of naval defense, has been stated by the first lord of the admiralty. It was a non-committal statement, to the effect that the Mother Country will be prepared to consider any proposal for the limitation of armaments which is acceptable to the other powers, but that it must not be forgotten that the Empire depends for its very existence upon the freedom of the seas. There has never been any doubt about the pacific intentions of the British government, and it is obvious that if the burden of expense incidental to naval armament could be safely reduced, nothing would please the British people better than such reduction. National interests cannot be sacrificed to sentiment, however, and it is necessary to see what other powers are doing before definite action is taken. The whole situation points once more to the ineffectiveness of piecemeal action. If the United States would co-operate in the League of Nations, instead of relying on conferences, sending out invitations, which are refused by some and accepted by others, she would be in a position to secure the triumph of her pacific ideals. Sooner or later, she must be brought to see that.

VIGILANCE ESSENTIAL

Montreal hospitals are full to overflowing with cases of typhoid fever. The number of victims approaches a thousand, and it mounts daily. The largest Canadian city is in the grip of a real typhoid epidemic.

Montreal's experience presents a warning and a lesson to other Canadian municipalities. The warning is that no municipality can afford to neglect the precautions necessary for the safeguarding of the public health. This Montreal epidemic is traceable to a polluted milk supply, and the pollution of the milk supply is due to inefficiency and disorganization in Montreal's Health Department. For a considerable time the position of public bacteriologist has been vacant. For some unexplained reason the civic authorities have neglected to fill the vacancy, and as consequence the milk supply has for a long time been without scientific supervision. With no check upon the dealers, no wonder that it has become polluted and that an epidemic has broken out. Where the public health is concerned, it is unsafe unwise to take risks and neglect to make necessary provision to safeguard the people against preventable disease. Eternal vigilance is the price of public health as well as of liberty.

COMPETITION

People in Canada are buying more now than they ever bought before, yet many individual concerns in the retail trade report business to be "poor."

The reason for this seeming anomaly lies in the fact that a situation unparalleled in economic history has arisen in Canada, just as it has arisen in the United States. Since the close of the war competition on this continent has entered into a new phase.

The traditional competition within defined groups still continues. But this is only one phase of present-day competition. Now department stores sell drugs, groceries, meat and even flowers and drug stores have found lucrative field in the lunch-counter business. Producers, wholesalers and jobbers compete with each other in various ways. Thus, dairymen and apple growers enter the distributive field, and mail-order houses and chain stores compete with everybody.

Industry competes with industry; as cotton fabrics compete with silk and silk competes with rayon. Paper boards compete with lumber; British Columbia lumber competes in Eastern markets with Eastern lumber; aluminum competes with steel; steel competes with lumber, cement competes with stone quarrying; auto trucks compete with railways. Not only individual producers and merchants, but industrial groups struggle for the consumer's dollar. Directly and, indirectly, in varying degrees, Canadian and American industrial and merchandizing ability is engaged in a fairly sharp struggle with that of other countries.

Changing needs and changing customs demand changing policies in management. This country is forging ahead, but a maximum effort will be required of management for these last years which would keep abreast of the times.

NATIONAL UNITY

The Hon. George P. Graham crowded a great deal of constructive utterance into the speech he delivered at the Canadian Club in Montreal on the subject of Canadian Confederation. Few things are stronger or more persistent than human prejudices. Many are current in Canada, as between east and west and as between province and province; but influences that are being directed to diminish them are having effect, slowly perhaps, but surely. They are the kind of influences Senator Graham would enlarge through an interchange of lieutenant - governors and more frequent interprovincial conferences. In the meantime, efforts to bring east and west into closer touch one with the other are recurrent. Montreal saw an instance of this a few weeks ago, when, at the invitation of Sir Charles Gordon, a party of prominent westerners, including Cabinet Ministers and members of parliament, visited this province and returned appreciative of the knowledge gained through direct contact with some of the issues of the industrial life and activities of Eastern Canada. In this way, and through admirable mission work of the kind Mr. Graham is conducting—for his speech this week was an enlargement of an address he delivered recently in the interests of the bonne entente—differences between the provinces will be lessened. there will be more sympathetic and unselfish thought east and west, national unity will be developed, and vaster and more magnificent will be the Dominion's prospects.

ARGUMENT

He tells me they are only lovely
Beauty and God and immortality!
That everything beneath Time's flow
Is ever dies.
He tells me I am blind who cannot see.

How futile is the hope I hold, and love,
How narrow is the pathway of my pride—
That there is but one truth; the dark, whereof
We little people drink when we have died.

Fame I can find no words to hem his way.
Here is the lamp of shining truth I hold:
Better a life all warm and golden say
Than live a truth ugly and dark and cold.

Consequent upon an agreement reached at a general conference of Canadian and United States telegraph companies the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs have announced that code words will be accepted at all their offices in future for day and night letters. This departure will affect both Canadian and international business, the companies concerned being: the Postal-Telegraph Company, the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs, the Canadian National Telegraphs and the Western Union Telegraph Company.

The development of a new industry from the propagation of muskrats and other water fur-bearing animals, in land and water areas, leased from the Province of Alberta through agreement with the Dominion Government, was indicated by Hon. George Headley, Minister of Agriculture, in committee discussion in the Alberta legislature. The amendment would give the Government power to regulate and license fur and game farms, and to lease the Dominion water and land areas for the propagation of such animals.

TASK FOURTH PLANT

The fourth Mining plant for the Harvie-Arebran operation reached its destination after a desperate race with the weather. The spring break up of the rivers came much earlier than usual this year, and for a time it looked as though the heavy machinery and three hundred tons of supplies would be left on the wrong side of the river until finally cleared of ice.

A wire from Dr. Robert Harvie says that the temperature has dropped to zero before zero and this will enable them to get the heavy stuff safely into camp.

Flourishing Immigration Prospects

Pictures 1 & 2—Typical examples of juvenile type of immigrants to Canada. No. 1 shows 7 children who arrived alone recently. No. 2 shows a few of the 1,000 children who came in a first glimpse of Canadian shores. Immigrants coming during the early days of spring

The active immigration season of 1927 that has just opened will see, according to authoritative information given out by the Department of Colonization and Development of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the largest and most effective addition to Canadian population of any similar period since the outbreak of the Great War. In the opinion of authorities it is not unreasonable for the Dominion to expect over 200,000 new citizens, or about 50% more than during the year 1926. During this year Canada received 124,164 settlers.

Several factors tend towards this promised increase, of which one of the most potent is the gradual evolution of systems and a development of new machinery that has made the organization well nigh perfect. Further reductions in ocean and rail rates from the British Isles have induced considerable numbers to submit to the examinations for acceptance under the cheap passage. Applications at the rate of several a day are being received, it is reported. Already this year well over 3,000 settlers have been landed in Canada by the Canadian Pacific liners plying between this country and the Motherland. It is interesting to note that about sixty per cent of the applicants are mi- rs and others who have some knowledge of and experience at farm work.

The volume of pertinent inquiries from United States is very gratifying with regard to western Canadian farming prospects, but from much heavier this year than for some years, in the report. Of this is regarded as a most reliable index to the trend of the movement. A new and significant movement to direction however is that of tobacco growers from North and South Carolina, Virginia and other states to Western Ontario, being attracted by the low prospects now facing this Canadian tobacco growing industry.

Though back-to-the-land conditions have drastically changed and the easy lands of the West no longer exist, vacant lands still in reasonable distance of the railways, are pointed out that it was a mistake to consider the homesteading is altogether a thing of the past as a factor of present Canadian development. During the year 1926 homestead acquisitions in the west amounted to an increase of 60 per cent over the acquisitions for the previous year, and accounted for the occupation of nearly a million acres of raw land. This movement in continuing as is evident in the figures of filings in January 1927 which were 32 per cent than those of the same month of the previous year.

The most significant factor today, it was pointed out, is the local colonization board, through which the general interest in immigration and colonization takes practical shape under the direction of the railways. About 150 similar boards now exist in western Canada.

Juvenile immigration, the importance of which is being increasingly realized in recent years, promises to be very heavily called for this year 1927, all of which is being directed to farm the land.

WOMEN WHO PURSUE ELUSIVE IDEALS

Rita thinks her life is being spoiled by the austere convictions of her family. Read her letter, then judge for yourself.

DEAR ELSIE:

My problem isn't some petty molehill. It's universal and I am sure that thousands are facing the same difficulty.

You know how sharply this country is divided into great religious sects. For generations all my people have belonged to one of those sects and hated the others. Mine is an old-fashioned, clannish family. Family traditions, honor, loyalty and all the rest of it. Being a member of such a family I am expected to use my head simply as a place to grow hair, and to automatically believe as becomes one bearing our time-honored name. Else, you don't know how I hate this tradition business. It smothers your individuality. You can't call your soul your own.

Now here's the point. Long ago I joined the church to which my family belongs. BUT MENTALLY I HAVE BECOME A CONVERT TO ANOTHER BELIEF. I have tried in every way to overcome this inner conviction, but I can't do it. Yet I don't dare announce the fact to anyone. I don't announce it to my mother.

Don't dare to picture her as sharp and critical and selfish. She's my only beautiful and pleasant—the idol of all who know her. Once she said that she would never stand in our way, no matter what religion any of us chose, but that it would worry her to death if we should choose to depart from the family religion. She really means that.

It is more than a matter of family tradition with her. It's a question of personal devotion. If I should go over to this other religion she would really believe me lost.

If she'd only rant and rave with the rest of the family, I'd do as my conscience dictates. If she'd snub me, or sense of my prejudiced friends would do. I could bear it. But she would only force herself to smile and try to make her baby feel less uncomfortable. So I see no way out save to pretend or hate the faith I love in order to honor my mother.

How I chosen the right way?

RITA.

You have said that your problem is universal. It is a UNIVERSAL PROBLEM. Your mother is probably all that you say she is—sweet, gentle and good. She has a rightful concern with your spiritual welfare. How far that may extend in the choice of your religion is a question that may properly be raised when your mind has reached a fuller maturity. In the meantime you need not "pretend to hate" the faith you love. That would be out of the true spirit of any religion.

Here's something to think about the next time you're hurt because someone is "impersonal" to you:

The Hindoos believe that it is the one who DOES THE FAVOR, rather than the one who receives it, who should be grateful. They believe that the reward for a noble act lies in beholding the harvest of that act.

We told about that belief in a recent article and a reader now retells the story with exquisite tenderness:

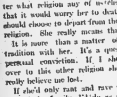

DEAR ELSIE:

Your article about gratitude interested me. In my youth I was inured at about gratitude, and later was aroused to astruitude.

After I came West I learned the truth about gratitude in this way: One spring morning the window of our cabin was down at the top. A little bird flew in. Buttered about and got between the two window panes. I jumped on a chair, took the bird by the wings. The bird got free by tearing off its left wings, and, with a long, loud call to his mate, circled up and away. I ran out to the porch to watch him go, but could not see if he caught up with the other bird. I hope he did.

MRS. E. G. S.

"The little bird flew away"—that was all the gratitude she needed for her Lord. In fact I set him free for the special enjoyment you have helped, or must you have a pound of flesh as well?

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my teens and have been going with a young man a few years my senior. I was away for a short time and when I came back he hardly paid any attention to me. I am very friendly with his parents and go over to his house about once a week for dinner. He is very friendly, but different than he used to be. Do you think it is all right for me to go to his home?

BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: There is no reason why your friendship with this young man's parents should be broken because of his changed attitude. They invite you to dinner—and, he—and consequently you need not feel hesitant in accepting their invitation.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and am very much in love with a young man who told he loved me. The other evening I went out with another friend of mine and since then this young man has not spoken to me.

Should I speak to him first when I see him, or let him speak first.

BLUE-EYED SALLY.

BLUE-EYED SALLY: Although she's young man's jealousy is unjust, I suggest that you speak to him first, Sally. Pretend that you know nothing of his anger and be as cordial as ever. Then, perhaps, he will "let loose."

If he does ask you to give up your other friends tell him that you do not intend to do this until you are engaged to be married. If he values your friend ship he will accept it on this basis.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Rose quartz is one of the leaders among semi-precious stones.

The four colors which will be featured at the summer fashion show of the Garment Retailers of America in New York, are a gray, a peach, a coral and a blue.

Ten million imbeciles in the United States are predicted by the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Morris Fishbein, as a result of the increase in beauty experts.

The Biarritz vogue for pastel satin frocks in honeydew, biscuit-beige, charred-beige, rose-beige, banana, green, new blues, rose, green, mauve, butter, cup or flesh, is being echoed in New York.

Palm Beach notes that a lavender-rose tends interest to the blue, shell and rose tones which so often are seen and red continues its promience, while a warm shade of tan is being given more attention, and green, yellow, and white also are favored.

Navy with pink, and fuchsia tones with pale blue, water and pale green; mulberry and fuchsia are among the new compose effects prescribed in wholesale dress collection

Paris notes that the waist-line is much the same as last autumn—belts are worn low and are often part of the frock itself; otherwise the waist-line is often marked by a shaped piece of inserted contrasting fabric or by a series of pleats and gaugings.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

"You dislike him?"

"Oh, no," she protested. "I have told you, he was a good friend to me for years. I have an affection for him still. I should hate to hurt him more than I have."

"Then," he said deliberately, "you should ask him to free you. You are spoiling his life as well as your own."

Hope sprang up in her heart and, at the same time, despair.

"But I loathe the very word 'divorce.' It's horrible, humiliating to both sides!"

"A divorce is not necessary. You have never been his wife. The law will give you an annulment. There is no stigma attached to that."

"How," she begged eagerly, "how does one go about getting it?"

"It is quite simple. You have only to ask this man for an affidavit, supporting your case, to the effect that you have never lived together as husband and wife. He would make no objection to your request, I suppose. He would be glad to follow your wishes in the matter. If there has never been any estrangement."

"Oh, yes, I'm sure Lew would not refuse me. But I hate to hurt him again. It seems so cruel and selfish of me to ask him to free me, after he married me to protect me."

"It is barely possible that he himself wishes to be free, though I can scarcely fancy it—when he is married to you," he added, with a smile. "However, a man in his position does know terrible loneliness and heartache—tied to a woman who doesn't love him and refuses in free him. Unjust—cruel to her—wanting a life and a home and children of his own—hitherto—"

The sudden bitterness in his voice made her raise her eyes in astonishment. He seemed to her that new, deeper chord had sprung into his face. His eyes were dark with an emotion she couldn't fathom. His hand on the table was clenched.

After a moment, he went on calmly, "You should offer him his freedom, Christine, just as he offers yours."

She promised to do so, wondering inwardly at his moment of vehemence. But she felt happy again. She was sure now that Vane was only waiting for her to be free before he asked her to become his wife. She told herself that, being a man with a high code of honor, he would probably never even have told her that he loved her, if he had known that she was married.

That evening, when he took her home, he drew her into the car, held her close, and kissed her with a tenderness that made the tears spring to her eyes.

"Christine, my beloved!"

There was a desperate note in his voice that made her cling to him in sudden fear.

A WISH COME TRUE

Christine let the days slip by without writing to Lewis Harris to ask for her freedom from a marriage that had never been a marriage.

London, March 25.—How he spent the wanted desperately to write and, at the same time, she feared to. She was so happy in the knowledge that Clifford Vane loved her and so sure that he was only waiting for her to obtain her freedom before asking her to become his wife, that a suspicionless notion had taken possession of her. She was afraid that causing anyone pain—even a mere dealer—would result in the loss of her own happiness.

She had found new work. She had finished the short story which had been the cause of her dismissal from her former job and, to her joy, had succeeded in selling it. Almost every evening she spent with Vane—at the theatre; at concerts; dining at his flat. Occasionally sometimes bad weather, during which he would call for his car, he would drive her to the studio parties any more. Once she met Nina on the street, though her work was far from Broadway, and she rarely ran across old acquaintances.

Nina was very evasive, a trifle uneasy. She was wearing a superb costume, and Christine, glancing back at her over her shoulder to wave good-bye, saw that Nina stepped into a handsome limousine.

With a little shock, she recognized Henry Sanford's car and chauffeur. It was several weeks later that she heard a bit of gossip. Nina had taken the place that might so easily have been hers, except for the fortunate intervention of an accident.

Poor Nina! The moth had fluttered once too often around the dazzling flame!

Christine shuddered at the thought of how narrowly she had escaped Nina's fate. She gave thanks anew to the Destiny that had protected her and sent her into Clifford Vane's life. If a big limousine had not dashed from a side-street into the path of a taxi at a certain moment on a certain night, she would have reached Sanford's apartment—and she never would have met Vane!

Nina's fate revived in her a sense of insecurity. Again she was afraid. She wanted to rush to Vane's arms; to barricade herself with his love against the hazards of the future.

That night she remained at home and painstakingly composed a letter to Lewis Hayes, asking for her freedom. It was a difficult task. Always before her was the vision of Lewis, as she had know him in her girlhood—the good, unselfish, adorable friend; Lewis on the night of commencement, going out of her life for the sake of Harvey Dandell; Lewis smoking his pipe at her firesides; Lewis beside her at her hospital bed; Lewis offering his name and protection to her and her two children.

She tore up letter after letter and burned the scraps in the fireplaces. Finally she went to bed with the letter still unwritten.

Two days later, she could have sung with joy and thankfulness that her letter had never reached its goal, for, when she returned from work, there was a telegram addressed to her in Lewis's familiar hand. She opened it and read:

"My dear Christine:—

I've come to you with a very difficult request and one which I had never expected to make. But Life does queer things to our resolves, as you very well know.

"Long ago, it was evident to both of us that our marriage was a mistake and that it could never be more than it was on that first day: a ceremony, a mockery of a bond. A situation. If you needed me, I should not ask of you—what I am about to ask; but you have proved by my assistance from the start and I have your assurance that you are well and happy and independent.

"Will you free me, Christine? Our friendship is of such long standing that I am confident you will see in this request no big request. I shall always honor and respect you, shall always cherish the tenderest memories of our friendship, but—there is "another one," if happens, you know. I cannot realinquish the future. It is beyond human power.

"I need not assure you, of course, that I am not asking you to divorce me. I have your promise to such action. I have consulted a lawyer and find that, although we went through a ceremony, we are not man and wife, and an annulment can be arranged easily.

"If this is satisfactory to you, will you communicate with me as soon as possible, so that we may make the proper arrangements?

"LEWIS."

Christine, half-laughing, half-crying, found herself kissing the letter.

"It's too wonderful to be true!" she cried aloud. "To think that Lew is going to be happy too!"

She seized Louise by the arms and whirled her around the room in a veritable whirl of joy.

She was dining with Vane. She dressed hurriedly in order to have time for a brief note to Lewis. Among other things, she said:

"Oh, Lew, I'm so glad you are going to be happy at last. You deserve it, I've been such a beast, but I'm sure she is going to make it all up to you. When you write, you must tell me all about her, just as you used to tell the old Chris about your hopes and plans."

She went downstairs to meet Vane, fairly thrilling with eagerness to tell him the good news.

A Body Sweetness that Even Perspiration Can't Spoil

All the trick laxatives in the world can't tempt people who understand the properties of cascara.

A hundred different drugs will purge the bowels, but a little natural cascara purifies the system clear through. Cleanses even the pores of your skin. Renders perspiration as inoffensive as so much dew!

Your grandparents took "pills," and slowly washed away the mucous membrane with the world. Mineral oils are better, but they leave the coating that your blood must then carry on through the pores. But when you cascarize the system, you get rid of all the poisons by normal muscular action of the bowels.

Don't get in the habit of taking medicine for constipation—or even for auto-intoxication. If you have the habit, stop. A candy cascaret is a delightful form in which to take cascara; children love them and the taste keeps most grown-ups to take "more." And what a comfort to know you are in that clean, wholesome condition that does away with worry needed dosages! Cascarets in vest-pocket vials, 10c and 25c.

"WHAT A JOY it was to find such an aid to sure cleanliness! My system is so purified, prostration doesn't stain my garments and I just forget all now after I've taken one or two—

GREYS SURPRISE PORTS IN DYING MINUTES OF GAME

Toronto, March 26.—Although Marcia Lauder, captain of the Owen Sound Greys had very little active participation in the scoring of three of the precious four goals, Won Ends of Port Arthur inside the costly mistake of inserting him in the closing minutes of last night's struggle. The first of a two out of three series between the Junior Champions of Eastern and Western Canada at the arena game for the Canadian title and custody of O. H. A. Memorial Cup. A automatic carelessness was manifested for the Greys left wing to go back up a pass and drift it into the twine behind Spooner, West End custodian. A defensive lapse by Potts gave the O. H. A. Junior title holders the victory and the edge in series.

There was little to choose between the two teams, although on play Greys seemed little better.

MacDougall scored for the Greys in the final, and their other four came from Paddon in the second, and Lauder twice. 22.

BELLE THEATRE

A typical Viennese street, faithful in every detail, was constructed on the Metropolitan lot for use in Marie Prevost's new starring vehicle, "For Wives Only" which will be on view at the Belle theatre Monday and Tuesday. Victor Varconi plays opposite the star.

The street is an adjunct of the famous Ring-Strasse, the beautifully laid-out boulevard that circles the Austrian capital. The latter thoroughfare is familiar to every continental traveler and is one of Europe's prevailing grounds of fashion. In the cool of the evening, during the prewar days that preceded the World War, the Ring-Strasse drew its slightly throng of carriages drawn by prancing steeds.

Along the glittering boulevard they drove these favorites of fortune, after the theatres had let out for a breath of air before retiring. Since the war conditions have changed perceptibly. Poverty has taken its toll and the shining conveyances no longer move in parceled array, with the brooding merry-makers, along the famed Strasse.

A Style Brunettes Will Surely Prefer

BUTTERICK 1336

Jeans is a Spanish swagger about this frock, a jaunty air that makes one feel a bit adventurous, a style that bids one enter a drawing-room with the graceful confidence of a toreador. The smart bolero and skirt may be of the same material—dark-blue silk crepe, for instance, with the collar, cuffs and swashbuckling girdle of gay striped ribbon (with lots of red in it). Or the skirt may be of checked wool or plaid taffeta; then the bolero is a solid color of the same material, trimmed with the plaid, and with plain ribbon sash to harmonize.

A Little Diapepsin Puts Life Into Worn Out Stomach

What a disappointment to eat a light lunch and yet suffer for hours with indigestion. No wonder so many people are frightened at the thought of gastric ulcer or catarrh of the stomach, when all they needed was a little Diapepsin to neutralize acids and aid in the digestion of meats, eggs, cream, seasoned dishes, cheese, baked beans and other foods that so often cause acid dyspepsia.

Diapepsin makes the sourest stomach sweet almost in a twinkling, and reduces the feeling of bloat or fullness right away, stops belching, or that sour, acid or gassy stuff in the liver, your stomach is empty and ready for the next meal.

Get a 50 cent package today at Pape's Diapepsin at any drug store.

IN MEMORIAM

MAYNE—In loving memory of Ida and "Jackie" Mayne who died March 25 and 27, 1930.
Dearest loved ones, thou hast left us.
And our loss we deeply feel,
But 'tis God who has bereft us
He can all our sorrows heal.

Yet again we hope to meet
When the day of life is fled
Then in Heaven with joy to greet
We in no parting words are shed.
Sadly missed by Father and Mother,
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mayne.

The Point Anne and Ye Min's teams will cross bats on Wednesday night. Each of these won their game last week and a great battle is sure to result. Both teams are looked upon as being among the best ball-tossers in the city.

Bothered With Headaches?

A lot of people are. Some have headaches from one cause, some from another. A very common cause is eye strain. Probably 11 causes more headaches than any other one thing. Here is good news — where headache is caused by eye strain all that needs to be done is to get rid of the eye strain. Glasses do that in thousands of cases. I supply them at reasonable cost.

MELBOURNE STRIKE ENDS

Melbourne, March 26.—After 20,000 men had been idle for three days, with the prospect of others being drawn into the vortex, the strike of employees at the state-owned electrical works at Yallour, which provides Melbourne and its million people with light, heat and power, has been settled.

SportOgramS

By "The Observer"

With the annual meeting of the C. O.B.L. taking place in the city today things are stirring in that field already the contenders are out on the greensward.

A full detailed account of the meet ing will appear in Monday's issue.

Soft ball fans will be treated to another double header on Monday night.

The two-base hit is back again
Where brassie shots will zoom, ..
But what are they to me compared
To dogwood trees in bloom?
And what are they to me compared
To Aarit's gold and blue,
Where all the world is young again
And all your dreams are new?

Taking into consideration batting and fielding, the National league may boast of three first-class third basemen—Bell of the Cardinals, Traynor of the Pirates and Lindstrom of the Giants. These players averaged more chances than Freigau of the Cubs and Dreesen of the Reds who had better fielding averages, but were outclassed by a wide margin at the bat.

Bell had 441 chances and batted .3351 Traynor topped the league in total chances of the "hot corner" with 481 and had batting percentage of .317, while Lindstrom encountered 418 chances and hit the ball for .302.

Willie Kamm of the White Sox is the leading third baseman in the American league. He made only 11 errors in 341 chances last year and averaged .291 with the stick. Non of Kamm's rivals at third-bat in the Johnson circuit surpassed him in batting.

Lutzke of the Indians ranked next to Kamm in fielding, followed by Hurley of the Red Sox, Regan of the Yankees, Bluege of the Senators and on on. But they were not in the same class with Kamm in all-around skill, while Kamm, in turn, deserved to be rated below Bill Traynor and Lindstrom.

Brooklyn, Boston and Philadelphia of the National league, also St. Louis and Detroit of the American, are interesting contenders at Clearwater. The Dodgers have Barrett and Mitchell; the Braves, High and Mooney; the Phillies, Freiberg, Weaver-man and Holdridge; the Braves, Mollen, Richards, O. Miller and O'Rourke, and the Tigers, Warner and Gehringer. There isn't a Jimmy Collins or an Arthur Devlin among them.

Tonight's game between Elizabeths and the local intermediates on the "Y" Court is sure to be the best of the season. The locals are hoping to cut down the "Lizies'" big lead. There are still some seats left and a good game is promised. The Napanee Collegiate and Belleville High School squad provide the counter attraction.

Referring to Toots' Hulsey whose name has been mentioned for the managership of the Senators Nation als next season the Buena-Herald says:—

No better man could be selected as Roy Brothers' successor. A quiet unassuming chap, popular with fans and players alike, Hulsey would make an ideal leader.

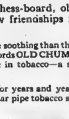

ACROSS many a chess-board, old friendships have been strengthened — new friendships formed—with the aid of mellow OLD CHUM.

There is no contentment more soothing than the contentment of a good pipe; and smokers know that the words OLD CHUM mean just that. They know that OLD CHUM is a classic in tobacco—a satisfying, understanding and sympathetic companion.

After smoking OLD CHUM for years and years, many men there are who say that Canada's most popular pipe tobacco still holds all records for smiles to the mile.

And the thousands of OLD CHUM admirers save the "Poker Hands" now packed in every package and tin and exchange them for valuable presents.

If you smoke OLD CHUM, you know all this. If you do not smoke OLD CHUM, you have yet to know the joys of genuine smoking contentment.

Ernie St. Goddard, youngest Manitoba dog musher from The Pas, carried off the honors in the Eastern International 120-mile dog derby at Quebec recently. St. Goddard's time for the three-day race was 11 hours and 57 minutes, over 54 minutes faster than the previous record for the same event. He nosed out Leonhard Seppala, hero of the Nome, Alaska, serum epic by 20 minutes and 20 seconds. George Chevrette took third place, while "Paddy" Nolan, 15-year-old musher, maintained fourth place throughout the race.

The official visit to Canada of the Gentlemen of His Majesty's Free Chapel of St. George, in Windsor Castle, and of the boy choristers of Westminster Abbey, who are giving song recitals across Canada from Fredericton to Vancouver and back, is made with the approval of His Majesty the King. They arrived at Saint John on the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose and travelled C.P.R. across the Dominion, giving their first recital at Fredericton and their second at Winnipeg. Their visit is more than a mark of international courtesy; it is a gesture that should do much to help the fuller, realization of possessions common to Canada and Great Britain.

Sales everywhere indicate the greatest Essex popularity of all time. Already far ahead of factory production, retail orders continue to gain on the largest output in Essex history.

ESSEX is a SUPER-SIX

And it differs from all other "Sixes" —not by little margins—but bold, vivid advantages that instantly stand out from all comparison.

Here is 50 miles an hour all day long, with ease to car and comfort to passengers. (Yet that is far below its maximum speed.)

Here is size, generous passenger room, simple, positive controls. No car of any price excels its easy riding qualities.

Here is economy, engineered not only to savings in fuel and oil, but particularly to freedom from early depreciation, and to lowest maintenance costs.

There are four new bodies on the Essex Super-Six chassis—beautiful, smart in line, luxurious in upholstery and appointment. They are the greatest and deservedly most popular values Essex ever built.

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

NO BLAME TO RAILWAY

Kingston, March 26.— That "Percy Young came to his death while walking on the railway tracks, and that no blame could be attached to the railway company for his death, was the verdict rendered on Thursday afternoon, by a jury empannelled by Dr. Nortlcote, coroner, of Bath to enquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of this young man, who was killed on the Canadian National Railway, near Kingston, about 5.45 p.m. Saturday last.

CONSIDERING CASE

Kingston, March 26.— Mr. A. B. Cunningham, K.C., who acted for Thomas McCorkery in his second trial at which he was found guilty on the charge of murdering Grand Trunk Jenkins, informed The White-Standard on Friday that he had received word from Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of Justice, that he was considering the case of McCorkery.

REFUSED OATH

Kingston, March 26.— Hugh Burns, a stranger in the city, who was gathered in on Thursday night, on a charge of drunkenness, refused to kiss the Bible and take the oath, when call d upon in do so in police court on Friday morning. trod was remanded for a day.

ORANGE WALK

Bowmanville, March 26.— After an absence of nearly 25 years Bowmanville, is to be honored with an Orange mass Walk and Celebration on Tuesday, July 12th. This will be the 27th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

GOOD TRAPPING SEASON

Petrolea, March 26.— Muskrat-trappers are having good luck in the Trent district this season. The opening price for pelts is $3.50, which is considered good. Never before, perhaps, have fat rats guarded so rigorously the marshes as they patrolled, which year are used to be public trapping grounds. If a farmer can catch 400 rats, which is not regarded as a large catch, he is assured of a sum in the neighborhood of $1,000 as a net-rap for his profits on the farm for the year.

GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Ottawa, March 26—Mrs. Laura St. Pierre was found guilty of assault and occasioning grievous bodily harm to Eli Bellrose, with whom she was living at 197 Champlain avenue, Hull, when she appeared before Judge Millar in the Hull court this morning, and remanded until Monday, March 28, for sentence.

THE SPRING TIME IS TONIC TIME

Something is Needed to Quickly Improve Your Health

With the passing of winter many people feel weak, depressed and easily tired. There's no particular disease, but the system has gone low. You find yourself tired, low-spirited often unable to get round sleep at night. All this is the result of closer indoor confinement of the winter months, and shows that the blood has become thin and watery. New, rich, red blood is what you need to put you right and there is no other tonic medicine can g ve you this new, rich blood so surely and as speedily as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This new blood goes to every part of the body and quickly improves the general health. The digestion is toned up, and you have better appetite, the nerves are strengthened and sleep is refreshing. The special virtue of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at this season is shown by the statement of Mrs. Elizabeth Clarke of R. R. No. 1, Hasting, Ont., who says:—"I know Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a great blood builder because I use them in the spring, when one naturally feels run-down after our long winter. Last spring I was feeling weak and easily tired, and again used the pill, with the result that I have had splendid health since. The pills also restored my daughter, Mae, who was badly run-down, and seemed almost bloodless. She used the pills faithfully for a time and has since enjoyed the best of health. Naturally I never hesitate to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to people who are run-down."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Rather more than you can swallow, isn't it?"

TO A CIGARETTE

You do no good that I can see.
In fact, quite bad you seem to be.
But still your personality
Completely overpowers me.

A school teacher was very much annoyed by the continued mischievousness of one of her boys. At last she exclaimed in exasperation: "I wish I could be your mother for just about one week. I would make you get rid of that nasty disposition of yours."

"All right, I will speak to father about it," was the cool reply.

IN THE BATH

How do the fishes know how to steer
When they're swimming around in the sea?
Why couldn't I have a nice fish here
To swim in the bath with me?
Why do my feet go up, do you s'pose,
While my head goes bobbling about?
Why don't I go where the water goes
When the stopper is taken out?

THE PRODIGAL

The way was long, the village street
Echoed the lone policeman's feet;
Remorse was in my heart, as I
Crept home in hunger's agony.

My, thefts, my crimes, lay on my mind,
My level pate, my wits unkind;
And, limping slow, at last I asked, "Ever yet
Can she forgive can she forget."

The friendly door stood wide, my foot
Stepped soft to avoid the vengeful boot.

I heard my angel's rustling s.lk;
Then, "Come, puss, come, and drink your milk."

"WITH CARE"

A ill gl.anced, farmer handed a rather frail-looking box to the porter at a small railway station in Scotland. "Do ye think this is strong enough to travel in the van?" he asked. "I dobt it's no," replied the porter, "but we'll see." He lifted the box in the air and jit it fell with a crash "It'll get that here," he said. "An' it'll get that!"—giving it another bang—"at the junction. An' at Dundee it'll get that!" The third "that" burst the box, and its contents were scattered over the platform.

RICHES

... (From the Chicago News.
It takes how alight a thing to richen me:
A glance from out a loving eye; a word
Of greeting from a friend; a glimpse of sea,
Forest, or peak; the carol of a bird.
The vast treasures of kings and potentates
Make not a trace of envy in my thought;
Many a journey through their haughty states
Has shown their power of little worth or naught.
Let me behold a shamrock, or a rose
Of Sharon, gracing Erin's mystic isle,
Or any other ways do light that glows
Along
What joy is mine, what cause I have to smile;
What ermine I put on, what thrones I mount;
Beyond the stores of kings, what gold I count.

THE WORLD WE CREATE

By Emma Playter Seabury

A fong of folks who roam at will,
And a shrug for the men who shirk,
But who will a ng of the prick and sting,
Of the bitter taunt and the cruel filing,
To the man who has no work!
The man who will delve if he had
With saw or plane would build.
the chance,
Or would give a turn to a thought to burn
Like an opel flame in a golden urn,
If the dream of life were filled.
Oh, who can tell of the bitter shame
To sink from man's estate,
And to humbly take for his children's sake
The coin that is flung! Oh, the hearts that break
In this world that we create!
For the plan of God was on the pride,
The right to be and do;
If only we would learn to see
That the world was made for you and me,
And not for a chosen few.
And we call it fate when our brothers fall
Because of the load we give.
Who suffers need through other's greed,
Trampled by selfishness though he bleed
That others at ease might live.
Oh, the saddest sight in the world today
Is our neighbor passing by
With a weary pace,a blanching face
Who is sick of work, and out of the race,
And we make it—you and I.

WOMEN CANNOT LIE HERE

The whole fabric of Abyssinian customs rests on the truth of its wives and mothers. According to Mr. Rodolphe Forbes, the well-known traveller, there is an unwritten tradition of the mothers: a woman's word is assumed to be inviolate. A woman may steal, and, if successful, be rewarded with approval for her "thrift". But she must not lie. Miss Rosita Forbes says that generally sisters and maids are conscious of their high responsibility. They know that their mere statement can send a man to slow strangulation at the nearest tree or to the prison, which is never full long. Since the prisoners are not fed, And their tongues are weighted not only by responsibility but by custom. A misstatement in the witness box, a trifling lie to avoid censure or ridicule, and, it is believed, punishment is swift and certain. Instantly the judge will summon the executioner.

Abyssinia is a land of women and evil problems. But among them all that for the lying woman is unique—and it is effective. The "executioner," whose function is usually combined with that of the local butcher, arrives at a run; but not to cut off the lying woman's head. Not at all. He is armed with clippers, followed by all the small boys and giggling girls in the town, and one by one Miss Rosita Forbes, the culprit sees the humiliated culprit

By Charles Garvice

Travers looked up quickly, with a sudden glint in his eyes. It was good to hear that Strayfyre had had so much money, pleasant to find that he possessed a weakness which might be fostered to good. He took out the check book.

"To whom shall I make it payable?" he said.

"Mr. Ponsonby Jones," replied Rafe. "Say, Travers, should you consider it a kind of favor to lend" he inquired, as one simply asking for information.

"For some person; certainly for Strayfyre," replied Travers, with a smile. "But certainly not for you."

He laughed as he tossed the check across to him. "I mention you could lose ten, twenty times the amount without feeling it. I suppose it's all right, then, added, with a grin, "if I mean the money was won fairly?"

"Oh, that's all right," said Rafe, as he took the Strayfyre" to open that cheerio. "They were all high-toned gentlemen, such friends of Lord St. Ives; good chaps, honest sports."

"Quite so," said Travers easily. "Of course you're in the right set; they play high because they can afford to, or so you. I suppose you're going to invest them again; they'll give you your revenge?"

"Tonight," said Rafe. "You might book a table at that Savoy—for six. That's a good fellow."

Travers nodded, opened some more letters, and, apparently absorbed in them, said casually:

"Did you play much at Jumping Jane?"

"No," said Rafe. "Cards are not much in my line, but then no more an swallowtail coats, starvpipe hats, or white kid gloves; but it seems I've got to go in for them all here."

"What a change you must find it all!" said Travers, raising his brows. "I've been told that before, but I can't help dwelling on it. I suppose you never handle after the old days, should like—"

Rafe drew at his cigar for a moment or two before he answered slowly:

"Well, I haven't—much, by no means but I might."

"It would be only natural," said Travers. "After all, it must have been a very happy time. To handle the cards conventionality, with pleasant companions, all those days as you always call them. And the girls. I imagine, no doubt Strayfyre, that you left a few sighing hearts behind you."

"Well, every man's free to imagine what he pleases," said Rafe, with his most pronounced drawl; but the ache, if there was any, was born of the making. There weren't many girls at Jumping Jane," he added tantalizingly" most of the women were old ma."

ORIGIN OF THE NEW REO NAME "FLYING CLOUD"
Romance of Seas Linked With Great Automobile Product

Throughout the long search for a name to symbolize the new Reo, to stand let always back to the sea, music first highway. For to all men, even to ndeds of many generations removed from salt water, the ships that speed over the unmarked pathways of the waves have been a symbol of the romance and glory of the seas. Hearts have ever thrilled to the call to go down to the sea in ships and age-old memories of homesick sailors with aerial longing to go somewhere at right of a ship under full sail.

Of all the ships that man has devised since his first trip on a raft of reed, bark ed logs, the American clipper represent his highest achievement in beauty and grace, in speed and endurance.

It was their swiftness more than anything else, that made them an important in that memorable conquest of the seas that marked the younger years of our country. Yet the swiftness depended on the staunchness of construction that made possible the great clouds of canvas that clipp r ships bore long after other types of vessels reduced sail to meet of storm.

When the days of '49 brought news of gold in California, a tidal wave of fleet-spirited speed took to the sea in search of golden fortune. The Overland trail that 31 overland trails in the history of man required one's prudence to offer, so many months of heartbreaking labor and danger, that restless men turned to the far longer sea road the born and forced it shorter in time than overland more certain of arrival than over the plateaus.

Yet even then the cry for speed, and more speed kept rising. The increasing possible the building of ships that would combine the landing of ships that would even their cost in a single voyage. So master of ship design labored day and night to build faster ships and the California clippers that came from the ways in the last years of her forties and the early days of the fifties, revolutionized ocean travel in comfort in safety and in swiftness.

Of that vast fleet whose performances in the hands of master mariners will ever last in the memory years of old ship thrill at great deeds, the "Flying Cloud" was, and still is the most famous.

Most famous by right of phenomental performance as a ship. The Flying Cloud not only travelled that unbroken sixteen thousand miles from old New York to New San Francisco in 89 days and 8 hours—a record never equalled, nor even approached. Not content with making the two farthest seas, the Flying Cloud hung up the still standing record for the fastest average for the six voyages over the same course.

Many a record has been set by trying, that challenging the Flying Cloud to race was inviting a beating. In fact when any of the great performances were kept the name Flying Cloud appeared time and again.

Wherefore, because she represents the high measure of speed which increasingly all became she is a symbol of speed and grace and repeated phenomenal performance, for all these reasons Reo has chosen the name of "The Flying Cloud" for the new Reo Speed Wagon.

EXPERT'S VIEWS ON SUBJECT OF "ADVERTISING"
Fred W. Smythe Speaks "Authority After Years' Experience

No sane man can deny that advertising—not merely blind expenditure of money in a few different ways of telling the public what the advertiser has for sale and where—is an American need of business before the public eye in a manner both tasteful and forceful, shrinking from its usefulness, its necessity, or its importance in the country.

This Page is dedicated to the expansion of industry in American itself of the article offered for sale—or to great, for of what avail is it to manufacture an article without having a market for it? You must stimulate demand and the demand must be systematical ecostant and lively.

Have you watched the different ways in which different people shi ien a hand pencil? One will use an ordinary pocket knife, but shave or not, he wears the knife in much the same manner as he would an axe handle. Then perhaps he finishes the pencil finer with sharpener. A woman in the house goes to the kitchen for the carving knife. To the sharpest knife she thinks of; she holds the pencil lengthwise in her hand and laboriously looks off the end. A handful of wood and she has a fancy looking pencil when she gets through, but to present a motor car of the same quality as which represents a similar retail distance by road its contemporaries.

Down the highways, and byways in this land, the new Reo Flying Cloud—latest, fastest, model of America's Longest Lasting Car—will put into the decisions of its owners as completely as did its predecessor and the hearts of every motorist who sees her. For in her will be the perfection of present day automobile design, together with some thing a touch of the future. You will see in her equipment and features that lends like the full roll of automobile advancement to the world of motor cars. We'd come day. In beauty, in performance, in comfort, economy and endurance, the Reo Flying Cloud, now from start to finish, proved from wheels to topmost cap, in its completeness.

See the Reo Flying Cloud at the Reo Flying Cloud tell its story of how well it grasses the great name it bears.

Throughout the Dominion, as well as in the United States, the pendulum of public favour is swing ng towards Studebaker, as sales reports from dealers everywhere in the country plainly show.

"Outlook for Sales in March fr Studebaker much better than over before in my experience as a dealer; would say at least 50 per cent. increase, owing in my estimation to prices, models and increasing popularity. Erskine creating a lot of enthusiasm. In spite of terrible weather and road conditions, we are having a lot of sale action Am looking on this year as the real Studebaker year."

WOMAN WON THE GRAND NATIONAL

Aintree, England, March 27.—A woman owner captured the Grand National here today for the first time so far as can be recalled, in the history of the world's greatest steeplechase. Sprig, owned by Mrs. M. Partridge, won the Hazardous 4½ mile jumping race in which thirty-seven starts dwnd just seven finished.

G. W. Pennington's Borril Three was second, and third place went to an American horse, Stephen Sanford's Bright Boy. Lord Stalbridge's Thrown in which the Prince of Wales jockeyed yesterday to win the race, was among the thirty horses which fell. The King, many thousands of his subjects and the Prince of Wales were at the rouge for the dangerous and thrilling classic and were rewarded with plenty of excitement as the big field was steadily thinned out as it passed over the obstacles. The long course has six-teen high thorn hedges, fourteen of which must be jumped twice, besides ditches, water jumps, streams and other hazards.

The race carried a Birmingham purse of £22,500 (about $120,000) on party of Priory Park, winner of the Lincolnshire handicap, Wednesday and here. The bookmaker who lost the bet has a total of £150,000 to pay on the race.

To clean a knitted wool jumper rub give it a thorough brushing with a clean carpet brush. After which spread it carefully on the table, lay a wet cloth on it, and iron it gently with a hot iron until the wet cloth is bone dry. The dress comes up like new; the hot iron over the wet cloth draws out all dirty marks and greases and gives the wool a new look.

This method will not hurt even the finest of woollen jumper suits.

CHILD CRIME IS RESULT OF POOR HOME TRAINING

Police Chief Dickson Says Children Now Control Their Parents

Toronto, March 25 — Responsibility for juvenile outbursts of crime was laid at the door of the home and the parents thereof by Chief of Police Dickson in his annual family life if juvenile delinquency is to be successfully coped with. Parents should make comparisons of their children. The boy who is never afraid to go to his father and confide in him, never becomes a criminal, and the girl, too, who is able to go to her mother with her problems, and find sympathy and counsel, will never sob behind prison doors. Teachers in our schools and other educational institutions have a wonderful opportunity to supplement the home influence for good.

"Defective home ties and domestic unhappiness are causes of the boys and girls going wrong. But companionship is responsible for many going astray. One bad boy can contaminate the whole neighborhood.

MUCH JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

So far this year, Chief Dickson pointed out there were the following cases of juvenile misbehavior: In January, 29 cases of theft, 3 of shopbreaking; in February, 33 cases of theft, 16 of shopbreaking, 4 of receiving, and 9 for malicious injury to property, and, so far this month, 18 cases of theft, 11 of shopbreaking and one of receiving.

"I favor probation for juveniles who are first and second offenders against provisions of the code" he added. "I have a great deal of sympathy for a boy as a first offender; considerable sympathy for him as a second offender, a little sympathy for him as a third offender but none whatever for a repeater. First offenders offer a fair possibility for reformation; second offenders offer some promise of salvage; third offenders are a general risk. But generally records will show that the rest will resume criminal operations at the first opportunity."

JUST PARKING PLACE

"It would seem that the home is merely a 'parking place' between shows and on the door of the home and the parents thereof by Chief of Police Dickson in his annual family life if juvenile delinquency is to

RUDYARD KIPLING AS A SCHOOLBOY

Great Story Teller Had No Imagination When at "Westward Ho"

London, March 25.—Rudyard Kipling when a schoolboy lacked imagination as a story teller, according to G. C. Beresford, one of his fellow students at the United Services College in Westward Ho.

Speaking of the first meeting of the Kipling Society in London last night, Mr. Beresford, who was the original "McTurk" in Kipling's "Stalky and Co." said Kipling was remarked by his school fellows as remarkable for his powers of versification, his knowledge of metre and knowledge of literature, which were considerable in a boy of his age.

But he was not a great teller of stories and never shone in the dormitories at night, Mr. Beresford continued. He could only retail stories which he had read.

As regards "Stalky and Co." it was what it professed to be—pure fiction, said Mr. Beresford. If the plots and counterplots of the book were ever carried out anywhere it was not at the college in Kipling's day.

The heroes of the book were unlike any boys in real life, Mr. Beresford declared, and the only true study of character in the book was of a king whose prototype prophesied that Kipling "would die in a garret, a scurrilous pamphleteer."

Kipling himself has thrown cold water on the Kipling Society, said another speaker, Sir George MacMunn, who quoted Kipling as saying:

"These things are better left until you are dead, if they must be done at all."

Kipling has been savaged by wireless of the success of the society. Together with greetings, said Sir George, but no reply has been received. Sir George added that the society hoped one day to induce Mr. and Mrs. Kipling to lunch with them and obtain his forgiveness for their efforts in honoring him.

Peking, China.—Over 400 passengers aboard the Canadian Pacific Empress of Scotland, now on a tour of the world, the largest number of foreigners, except the military, ever to intrude the city, were admitted recently to the Forbidden City for the first time since the young Emperor of China evacuated it, when he was driven out to Tientsin, two years ago. The Manchuria War Lord Marshal Chang Tso Lin accorded safe convoy to the party and every courtesy was shown to the visitors in their tour through a city which so far has been rigorously shut off from intercourse with the western world.

ONTARIO

to truck owners and drivers

DURING the months of March and April, it is against the law to load certain trucks and other vehicles on the highways of Ontario above one half of their rated capacity.

This applies to all vehicles having a carrying capacity of one-half ton or more if equipped with solid tires and of one ton or more if equipped with pneumatic tires, whether motor driven or horse drawn. It applies on every highway in the Province outside cities and towns.

The Government requests owners and drivers of trucks and wagons to obey this reasonable provision, but warns them that the penalties of The Highways Act will be vigorously enforced against those who neglect to do so.

Frost heaves the soil, and leaves it soft, porous and wet. For these reasons, it is at once the greatest fertilizer of the land and the greatest menace to the road.

Foundations of hard-surfaced roads are wet and spongy in spring, even when the top is dry. Heavy loads "churn" them. Fractures take place in the foundations. The surface thus is left weak because unsupported. On stone and macadam roads, heavy loads cut the surface as well. The "metal" is forced down into the sub-grade through the spongy earth.

Expensive repairs follow the abuse of any road in spring-time. In an hour one single truck may cause damage which will cost thousands of dollars and take weeks to repair.

As contributions to road building come from local municipalities as well as the Province, such abuses are a particular offence against enterprising communities which provide good roads. In their interest, as well as that of the public at large, the Government makes this request and issues this warning.

HEAVY DAMAGES FOR DETENTION IN AN ASYLUM

Toronto, Mar. 26.—Sequel to the release from the asylum, by order of the court, of Harry Zealand, will be issuance of a writ claiming $100,000 from Dr. English, medical superintendent of the Hamilton Asylum, for alleged illegal detention of Mr. Zealand.

"We think that amount is fair enough in view of the four years detention," said Louis Heyd, counsel for Mr. Zealand, this afternoon, in stating the intension to seek damages.

Mr. Zealand was released from the Hamilton Hospital here on Dec. 24, He is 26 years of age and formerly was well known as a commercial traveller. In August, 1924, he was committed to the Ontario Hospital for the Insane at Hamilton, escaped a month later, returned in 3 weeks and was released two days later. In May, 1927, he was again committed and in a month was sent to a sanitarium, where he remained 3 weeks. In December, he was accorded on the street by two policemen, taken before a magistrate and ordered to the asylum. In June, 1923 he escaped and went to Brantford, where he was rearrested and returned to the asylum. He finally was able to get his case before the judge at Osgoode Hall last October.

WHEAT RISES ON STRENGTH WAR NEWS

Chicago, March 26.—Warlike news from China tended to encourage early buying of wheat and to lift prices. The upturns, however, met with enough selling to keep the market within narrow bounds. Starting at 1.5 cent off to 3.8 cent up, wheat later scored some gain all around. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise firm, corn, opening at shade to 3.1 cent advance and holding near to the initial range.

London, March 26.—How he spent $200,000 in eight years was told to the Bankruptcy Court here today by Major Vernon Bradshaw. He inherited $600,000 from an uncle in 1919, he said, and testified that he had also inherited money under other wills, all of which is gone except $2,000. The major declared that for the last three years he had spent at the rate of $40,000 annually, as against an income of $10,000 annually. Much of the money was lost in unsuccessful business ventures.

CHINESE ARE BEING INFLAMED AGAINST GT. BRITAIN

France Says She Will Not Surrender Concessions --- Belleville Men Hurt in Highway Smash

REFUGEES CROWD INTO SHANGHAI FOR PROTECTION

Foreign Concession is Over-crowded and Hundreds Arrive Daily

EXPECT TROUBLE

Defenders Preparing For Serious Attack to Come Any Time

Shanghai, Mar. 28.—Scores of foreigners continued to flock into the International settlement at Shanghai today, fleeing from the storm of anti-foreign agitation sweeping the Yangtze Valley. They came from the larger ports on the banks of the great river and from places inland, where, since the Nationalist victories of last week, the situation has become increasingly menacing.

In some instances the refugees barely succeeded in escaping the fury of mobs bent upon destroying all foreigners because of Cantonese reports that two hundred thousand Chinese were killed when the British and United States warships opened fire at Nanking on Thursday.

There is no mistaking the relief of the refugees as they pour with in the confines of the International settlement for they are confident that the large combined army of the Foreign defense forces will serve to prevent any organized attempt at attack.

Prepared For Trouble

Meanwhile, those entrusted with the protection of the International settlement, are preparing for all eventualities, as strong feeling against foreigners is evident everywhere in the native city. Anti-foreign posters and fiery speeches by students keep the Chinese in such a frame of mind that anything is likely to happen. So, fixation of possible trouble, barriers of international settlement are being strengthened and the various generals are arranging for closer co-operation in event of toward incidents.

A virtual state of war exists between the National at soldiers and foreign vessels traversing the Yangtze river. Nearly every ship is fired on, making it perilous for merchantmen to proceed without naval escort. Naval vessels themselves are targets for Southern snipers.

Three United States and seven Japanese destroyers arrived today to reinforce the Shanghai naval concentration.

Emergency quarters in the International settlement are crowded. Beds are being set up in churches, care for foreigners, five hundred of schools and the navy Y.M.C.A. to whom, for the most part are stationed, have arrived in the last 48 hours. The next few days will probably see a greater influx as it is learned that large numbers of missionaries who had refused to leave their stations now are making ready to come to Shanghai.

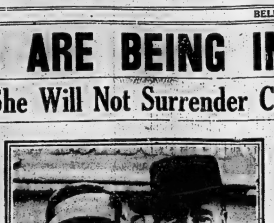

Unrest in Hankow

Shanghai, Mar. 28.—Messages received by Japanese here say conditions in Hankow are growing worse. Japanese women and children in the native city are reported to have taken refuge in the Japanese concession where they are preparing to embark on steamers. Japanese gunboat Atuka is leaving for Hankow today. Delayed advices say the labor unions dominate the situation at Hankow, much in the same way as in this city.

ALEMITE COMPANY GROWING PLANT

Nearly all of Belleville's industrial plants are now working to capacity or are busier than they have been for months past. This is particularly true of Alemite Products of Canada, Limited. The Alemite Company is now operating its plant night and day and is arguably a month behind on orders for delivery and there is work on the books to keep the plant operating for at least eight months if no further orders were received. During the last three months from $15,000 to $20,000 worth of new machinery has been installed.

The Alemite Company also renders another important service in advertising Belleville from coast to coast. The passenger of the Alemite Company has received the following very gratifying letter from one of the largest advertising agencies in Canada which speaks most appreciatively of the favorable publicity that is being given to Belleville by the methods in which Alemite products are being advertised. The letter speaks for itself and is as follows:-

"Before proceeding further please allow the writer to compliment your Company and yourself particularly on the amount of publicity that Alemite has given the city of Belleville. We do not know of another product in Canada that has given a centre a similar amount of publicity. Practically everyone knows Belleville as the Canadian home of Alemite Products. Have your publicity has been most effective."

BREAD PRICES ARE NOW AT A MORE UNIFORM LEVEL

Although more uniform prices are being asked for bread by the local bakers today, the war is still raging and no agreement has yet been reached among the Belleville bakers or to just what price the local association should fix their standard. The only change in the situation since the week-end is that Hiestt's Oliphant 16c. Bakery where the slaughter in prices commenced has increased their price from nine and a half cents, which they sold bread at for over a week, to fourteen cents, commencing this morning.

Prices as asked by Belleville bakers today were:—Hiestt 14c; Gilbert 16c; Taylor 16c; Harris 16c; Sentenl 15c;

Mrs. C. C. Walker and A. H. Ketcheson Are Champions

The Badminton season of the local Garrison Club was officially brought to a close Saturday evening with the playing of the finals for the ladies' singles and and semi-finals and finals of the men's singles and mixed doubles.

In the ladies' single finals, Mrs. C. C. Walker defeated Miss Sylvia Ross and won the club championship after taking the third and deciding game.

Those playing in the men's semi-finals were George K. Graham vs. H. M. Jones and A. H. Ketcheson vs. J. Ross. These contests resulted into the third game when the winners were George Graham and A. H. Ketcheson, after which "Jack" Ketcheson defeated George Graham for the Club championship.

In the mixed doubles, the players were divided into six groups, each being handicapped. The finals for this set were played by A. H. Ketcheson and Mrs. O. H. Scott vs M. Robb and Miss H. Fralick; the latter two playing with a handicap of seven with the winners of the Walker trophy.

Following the matches the players and their friends adjourned to the Badminton quarters where the presentation of the cups and trophies were made by Major Eric Keeler and Mr. C. C. Walker.

With the serving of refreshments, the most successful season in the history of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club was brought to an official close.

PREPARE AMBUSH FOR F. S. TROOPS

Battle Results in One Man Wounded on Each Side

Dublin, March 28.—A gang of twenty-five gunmen ambushed eleven Free State soldiers on the road near Dublin today while the latter were going on guard duty at Camp Tallaght. In the ensuing fight one man was wounded on each side.

Police later arrested four occupants of an automobile in the vicinity, charging that ammunition had been found in the car.

A series of raids was conducted on Free State police stations last November, causing the Free State to proclaim a state of national emergency under the Public Safety Bill.

Many arrests were made as a result of the raids, which the police ascribed to the extremist section of the Republicans.

COMBAT RESULTS IN SIXTY KILLED

Mexico City, March 28.—Sixty rebels were killed and one hundred captured and thirty-four Federal soldiers were killed and twenty wounded in a fierce combat at Cerro Picachow last week, it is reported in special despatches from Arrandas.

ANNOUNCEMENT IS PROMISED SOON

Ottawa, March 28.—"An announcement within a few days" was promised by Premier King in connection with the revision of salaries of the Civil Service.

The Cabinet which met Saturday for the morning and afternoon, gave several hours to the consideration of the report and recommendations made to it by the Civil Service Commission. This report recommends a general upward revision affecting many classes of the service.

It is understood that the Cabinet's final decision has not been made yet, but, as the Prime Minister stated, sometime definite could be expected before long.

ANGLICANS MEET TO PASS ON REVISED PRAYER BOOK

London, March 28.—Anglican church representatives meet in convocation tomorrow to pronounce their final "yes" or "no" upon the new Book of Common Prayer, now published in its revised form and unalterable either by Church or Parliament. It is to be "introduced" to members of the House of Commons by the Archbishop of York in the committee room on Wednesday, at a meeting presided over by Premier Baldwin, supported by leaders of the Liberal and Labor parties.

During the week end, the new Prayer Book was the subject of statements either in public or in the press, by church leaders. Bishop Barnes of Birmingham, leader of the modernist Anglican group, again expressed his opposition to the revised book, while Bishop Gore, formerly Bishop of Worchester, Birmingham and Durham, now retired and Bishop Henson of Durham supported the book.

PREMIER DENIES ANY INTENTION OF ABANDONING HER CONCESSIONS

Agitators Stir Up Feeling Against English Over Nanking Incident

Paris, March 28.—France intends to defend her concession in Shanghai against any Chinese aggression, it was made clear at the Foreign Office today that there is no thought of evacuating the concession, as reported. No secret orders for abandonment have been given, and no arrangements made for evacuation of French Nationals. On the other hand, reinforcements have been ordered from Tonkin, Annam.

Blame the British

Shanghai, March 28.—Leaflets and handbills passed about today by agitators in Shanghai fix the responsibility for the Nanking incident on the British and make no mention of the Americans. Boycott of British goods and calling out of all employees of Britishers are among the reprisals advocated by agitators. Growing anti-foreign feeling was noticeable in the native districts, where Nationalist soldiers and others made speeches denouncing foreigners, particularly the British.

Threaten Reprisals

Hong Kong, March 28.—The Nationalist Government at Canton, it is learned here, is threatening measures to deal with "British violence" as a consequence of last week's raid by a British punitive expedition on Chinese junks around Bias Bay, headquarters of one of the world's worst pirate gangs.

The people of Canton are said to be stirring up popular sentiment over this punitive expedition, spreading exaggerated stories alleging wholesale killing of villagers.

British Cabinet Meets

London, March 28.—The British Cabinet was summoned in special session today to consider the Chinese question. The meeting was called because of the rapid growth of anti-foreign propaganda in Shanghai, principal point of refuge for foreigners in Nationalist China. The decision to call the Cabinet together was reached last night by Premier Baldwin, who was at Chequers Court for the week-end.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

THE PENSION BILL

A rightabout turn has been made by the Dominion senate in its attitude towards the government's old-age pension bill. Last year the senate rejected the measure after it had been passed by the house of commons. Last week the bill received the approval of a large majority of the senators, including twenty-five Conservatives. Several Liberal senators voted with the minority. One of them, Hon. J. G. Turriff, expressed the opinion that the King government would be glad to have the measure killed by the upper chamber. Could that have been the reason why it received such direct support from the Conservatives and that some Liberals voted against it?

The bill will soon be enacted into law, and it will then be up to the provincial legislatures to give effect to it. Without provincial co-operation it will be a dead letter. So far, only one provincial government, that of British Columbia, has evinced any interest in the subject.

It is fairly general opinion that this old-age pension scheme will not prove to be generally acceptable in its present form, but will serve as the germ of a more comprehensive plan to which employees and employers and the government will be contributing parties.

WARLIKE MEASURES

Events in China now being reported daily are just such events as led to the war of 1840-2 between China on the one hand and Britain and France on the other. The immediate causes of those wars were outrages committed by Chinese officials and soldiers upon foreigners. During the last few days the British and U. S. governments have had ample cause for taking drastic measures to protect their nationals at points where their lives and property have been imperilled. British subjects and American citizens have been killed and wounded. The fact that their slayers were Chinese soldiers belonging to the victorious Cantonese army makes the outrages more than ordinarily serious. The action of the British and American sailors and marines at Nanking who have been co-operating to save the lives of foreign civilians, mostly Americans and including many women and children, is amply justified, as was also the shelling of the military area of the city by the small British and American war ships in the harbor. These measures were not taken as aggressive acts of war, but for the protection of human life. If they resulted in loss of life, the fire lies not with those of would-be murderers.

This is not a time for conciliatory policy by the powers in their attitude towards the dominant Chinese faction. It is a time for the exercise of force—of protective force. Striking evidence of this fact is the memorial sent to the British government by non-British residents of Shanghai, expressing gratitude for the foresight and energy manifested by the government in despatching troops for the protection of the international section of the city.

A GHOST

It is a great pity that Mr. King should have mixed with his policies for entry into the Dunean report a lot of partisan and futile talk about reciprocity with the United States. The Dunean report did not ask for reciprocity—certainly not the kind of reciprocity that Mr. King speaks of—and nobody in the Maritimes, so far as we are aware, is asking for it. But just because the Dunean report suggested that it might be a good thing if the Maritimes could get a market for their fish in the United States (this market was brusquely withdrawn by Washington some years ago) Mr. King seizes upon a chance to secure a talking point for the West and revives the ghost of reciprocity.

There is no more chance of a reciprocity pact between Canada and the United States at the present time than there is chance of a reciprocity pact between Canada and Mars. The Fordney-McCumber tariff is still in existence, and it will stay in existence just so long as American political parties try to carry the Northwest. Whether Canada wants reciprocity or doesn't want it really doesn't matter. The United States simply won't have it.

WHY WOMEN MURDER

Three Chicago women are to be tried for murder. They are in negligee at being hanged, and so we may view their cases with dispassionate eyes to consider what is of public interest.

One woman shot and killed her husband because he was attentive to other women and she was jealous. A girl of twenty killed her lover when he broke the news that he was "through" with her. Such crimes of passion excite no special attention in the United States. It is said there that a pretty woman can get away with murder and a good many of them do.

The third case is in a different class. It involves an issue which concerns every man in Canada as well as the United States, which affects masculine security and the well-being of society—the issue, in other words, of belt versus suspenders. Shall a man wear a belt for appearance sake, or suspenders and feel reasonably assured that embarrassing possibilities have been eliminated? Some timid souls wear both, and thus appease the gods both of fashion and utility, but there must be a bolder solution.

At any rate Bertha Heilman, of Chicago, and her husband Herman fell out on the question. Bertha voted for a belt, Herman for suspenders. They could not agree anyhow. Herman refused to be reasonable and wear a belt and so, obviously, there was only one course open to a determined and high-principled wife. Bertha strangled Herman with his own shirt. Silk stockings would have made a much more genteel job, for a woman of Bertha's nice feelings, but Herman would have been no more dead.

Bertha has done her best, but we fear the problem will crop up again. We see only one way out. If there were a law, with due penalties, enforcing all men to wear belts, or all men to wear suspenders, then we should achieve uniformity, because the majoline world with unanimity and enthusiasm would proceed to don the forbidden article of attire.

POOR PEACHES

It is probable that most people experienced a keen sense of satisfaction in the repulse sustained by "Peaches" Browning in his attempted raid on the bank account of her millionaire husband, Edward W. (Daddy) Browning. No sympathy is felt for Peaches in any connection. On the one side was an eccentric, publicity-mad, middle-aged man of wealth; on the other a large, blase, sophisticated girl of 18, round-shelled throughout by her years.

With all his admitted oddities Browning seems to have been prepared to establish a home for his girl bride, and the conclusion is inescapable that Peaches and her mother had other aims, not on a matrimonial settlement basis. They were determined to ensure their maintainance, for life in the style to which Browning had accustomed them, practically at his cost but at the cost of a terrific scandal if necessary. The scandal came up to every detail of the specifications, but as a result Peaches is left free to return to the chorus and her mother to the matron which she prefers, before Browning appeared on their horizon.

The result of the trial should be a salutary lesson to all "gold-diggers" of the genus American. The courts of United States have been notoriously susceptible to the wiles and blandishments of predatory ladies with designs on the connubial treasury, and to a large degree matrimony has become a game with alimony as the stakes. Chronicled by the undignified Mr. Browning and the grotesque Peaches have produced a far murder. They are in no degree of valuable service to their fellow-Americans.

THE HOUSE AND THE ROAD

The little Road says, Go,
The little House says, Stay,
And O, it's bonny here at home,
But I must go away.

The little Road, like me,
Would seek and turn and know;
And forth I must, to learn the things
The little Road would show!

And so I must, dear dears,
And journey while I may
Though hurt be sore for the first Hour
That had no sorrel but stay.

Maybe, no other day
Your child could ever know
Why a little House would have gone

"What?" exclaimed the old Doctor. "I'll have you know that Mrs. Macgregor's stomach put you through college!"

Piles Disappear
No Cutting or Salves Needed
External treatments seldom banish Piles and for the very good reason that the cause is inside—poor circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.
To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, exposed nerve membranes. Internal treatment is the safe method. Ointments and other external treatments only give lasting relief.
J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEMROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases. Any druggist can now HEM-ROID is sold by druggist under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take and can always be found at J. S. McKeown's who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

SERVICES CLOSE IN HOLLOWAY ST

Evangelists Crossley and Leonard Complete Evangelistic Campaign

The closing evangelistic services in Holloway St. Church by Dr. Crossley and Mr. Leonard yesterday were a fitting climax of the great campaign.

In the morning "Mysteries in the Material and Spiritual World" were discussed and Dr. Crossley brought in Dr. Cross-ley's best address.

In the afternoon there was an open meeting for the Bible School. Dr. Crossley spoke on three new things: "A New Commandment", "a new heart" and "a new covenant". The meeting was appropriately and cheerfully given to those between 10 and 20 to encourage them to be Christian in life, to which there was a gratifying response.

At the night service the house was filled to the doors and all who came to the meeting was pronounced "Wonderful". There was no excitement nor any attempt to work on the emotions. The community singing was heartily engaged in, and the solo by Mr. Leonard "Just as I am" by the evangelist was much enjoyed. The address was on "Man's Highest Title", from the text "The disciples were called Christians". At the close of the address, as the privilege to confess decision for the Christian life was given, some of the entire double pews were soon filled, reminding the congregation of the ever to be remembered meetings of Hunter and Crossley.

TO AMEND CRIMINAL CODE

Ottawa, March 28.—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, will introduce a bill in the House of Commons on Monday to amend the Criminal Code defining certain clauses respecting the right to appeal to the Crown, invoked as a result of the Winnipeg general strike of 1919.

Sunday legislation passed the House last session but was killed by the Senate.

Rice Lake trappers are beginning to get good muskrat catches.

MINING GOSSIP

Boston Creek, Ont., March 25.—The ball mill and other heavy equipment for the Gold Hill plant has arrived at the station and is being unloaded, preparatory to its transportation to the property. The roads are in bad shape, and it will require considerable time to get the plant in than a few weeks ago. The plant is of a capacity between 25 and 100 tons daily and it is expected will be placed in operation some time in August. By that time the mining will be opened up to a depth of 1,000 feet.

Northern Ontario Light and Power Company has submitted a final contract form to the operating mines of Kirkland Lake, tantamount to an ultimatum. The representatives of the mines who discussed the final issues with the power company officials, was informed that Timmins and Dupont Powder Company interests were behind Nesbitt, Thompson and Company, and the Canadian Northern Power Company.

4.63 per h.p. per month for each of the first 5,000 h.p.

3.78 per h.p. per month for each of the second 5,000 h.p.

3.65 per h.p. per month for each of the third 5,000 h.p.

3.29 per h.p. per month for each of the fourth 5,000 h.p.

MACassa, which is developing an interesting group to the west of Kirkland Lake Gold, is one of the interesting new operations on camp. While considerable success has been met with in the work on the 500-foot level, it is understood that the real effort will not be forthcoming until the Company gets a new shaft down. This will be started this Spring and pushed ahead. The new shaft will be nearer the middle of the property and will make it possible to get into several interesting geological areas on the property.

Sylvanite Mines, adjoining Wright-Hargreaves on the east, should have its new mill operating in April. There have been delays because of the non-delivery of parts of the necessary equipment.

The Mine is said to be in excellent shape. A great deal of work has been done from surface down to 1,500 feet and a great deal of excellent ore has been put in sight.

WHICH—SPANK OR NOT TO SPANK

By ELSIE MARLOWE

Do you believe in spanking children? Not infants—but half-grown children of six or twelve?

Edna does and she stands right up in meeting and testifies that she was spanked when a girl and profited by it. Edna was interested as a letter from an "Unhappy Wife" whose husband criticized her because she could not manage their unruly children. The husband wanted to whip the children, the wife objected and between them they raised merry Cain, while the child'n went undisciplined. Here's Edna's comment:

"As to the conduct of the girl, it seems to me that the mother should stop talking, as that seems to have failed, and try spanking her. Like the mother, I do not believe in beatings, but neither do I place much faith in "love pats." Nor do I believe in spanking if love and reasoning will accomplish the desired result, but the mother has tried this without success. It would be far more humane for the mother to spank her daughter with the open palm of her hand than for the father to beat her with a club. That is the best way to treat a sulking child. My parents spanked me and it helped.

"Lest I be misunderstood, I do not believe a child should be spanked for every little offense. This treatment should be given only as a last resort. But while spankings should be few in number, yet I think any mother with a stubborn child will find about fifty "fight, spanking blows will improve the youngster's conduct. If the mother will administer this treatment in real earnest when she has occasion to resort to it, she will not have to do it very often."

EDNA DAWSON.

Do I agree with Edna? Well, I have yet to see the child who was not harmed more than helped by corporal punishment. I admit that spanking and whipping often prevent the repetition of a mischievous act, but they may start a much graver mischief than they stop. In some cases they start lying and deceit, or cowardly subservience, that scars the whole life. That's only my opinion.

I said recently that young marriages didn't pay. And they have been making me eat my words ever since. So let's have an open discussion on this question.

Do YOU think that youthful marriages are wise?

Should a girl marry before twenty, or a boy before twenty-three? What age would you set if you had the making of the law?

DEAR ELSIE:

In reading in your columns about "A Happy Wife," I wish to say that I also married young.

I was nineteen—and my husband twenty—and all we had to start out on life's journey was our love for each other.

If I had my life to live over again I would do the same thing again. Of course, there were times that were hard and the future seemed dark, but this can always seemed to shine sometime.

So now, after twenty-one years, the sun is still shining and we are sweethearts still. Also, we have healthy young men to bless our home. Now that our baby will soon be fourteen years old, we can still go out and enjoy ourselves. So I say—Good Luck to a Happy Wife and I hope after twenty-one years she will be as happy as I am.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

For some, hot toasted cheese sandwiches are improved by a tomato sauce.

To straighten bracing soak them in hot water; then dry in the sun.

Cold roast veal or pork, with celery makes a good substantial salad.

To get good results, biscuit dough should be handled as little as possible.

Cream spread over the top crust of a pie just before it is put in the oven will make it brown and flaky.

Scissors kept in the kitchen are handy for cutting flowers; paper for lining bake tins and for cutting vegetables and fruit in small strips or pieces.

Fuller's earth made into a paste will remove grease spots from clothing if spread on the affected parts and allowed to dry. Remove with brush.

When washing your hands at the wash basin, remove your rings and slip them on a hairpin hook into your hair until the washing process is finished. Then you are in no danger of leaving them for some one else to find.

As you discover things that need mending while you are ironing, why not put them on a certain section of the ironing board so they can be carried right to the mending basket without further ceeting?

HEARTS' HAVEN

CHAPTER IV.

THE SECOND CONFESSION

Christine made up her mind to wait until the office came before telling Vane that she was to be free very soon. It was difficult to refrain from confiding in him at once, for she was finding pleasure on tiptoe in her exhilarance and relief at having the gift of freedom handed to her without her having to hurt Lewis by asking for it.

Clifford noted her high spirits, her glowing cheeks, and sparkling eyes, and smiled tenderly. He was looking very weary. There were new lines around his fine eyes, lines that could indicate deep longings. He looked like a man who was suffering some inner torment that he covered with a smile.

Once, when Christine glanced up and caught him off guard, she was struck by his unusual expression. It occurred to her suddenly that, for some time past, he had been looking tired and worried. She ate rather a slim lunch across the table and touched his.

"Dearest one, are you working too hard? You look so dreary tonight."

He shook his head.

"I'm quite all right. You mustn't worry about me—but I confess I like you to. It's very sweet to have some one care—and a long time since I've known such a thing."

She expressed a swift stab of jealousy.

"Have lots of other women been in love with you, Cliff," she demanded. Of course, they had, she told herself! What woman could help loving him.

He laughed for the first time that evening, but—it occurred to her suddenly—for the first time in many evenings.

"Of course not! Only you. Are you jealous, my jolousy?"

She nodded emphatically.

"I hate every woman who's been in your life before me." Tell me, Cliff, has there ever been anyone—anyone—like me?"

He met her eyes with his steady gray ones.

"There has never been anyone like you. There can never be again. Have I helped me?" he added, half under his breath.

"What a curious thing to say!" she murmured. "It sounds almost as if you were sorry you love me."

He looked at her for a long minute before he answered.

"Can't you imagine a man being afraid when he finds something so low by that he desires with all his soul? Can't you fancy what it would mean to him to have it at stake? from him? Can't you understand why his happiness is stabbed with regret that his life isn't his own, any more, that he is as completely possessed by another, that a whim, the flick or of an eyelash, may lift him to happiness, or plunge him into torment?"

She fought softly, reserved and disturbed, but he did not guide in return. His gravity, a strange something in his eyes, puzzled her.

"Come, smile!" she commanded him. "I have some interesting news to tell you. I was going to wait, but I can't keep it to myself any long r."

Was it a look of apprehension that flashed momentarily into his eyes?

Whatever it was, Christine's spirits were damped a trifle. A queer, inexplicable fear seemed to creep into her heart. Her buoyancy left her. She said quietly:

"I received a letter today from my husband."

He cut in quickly:

"You wrote him, asking for your freedom?"

"Fortunately not," she replied. "That is coincidence or telepathy, as you like. He wrote me, announcing an annulment. He has found some one else. From the urgent tone of his letter, I fancy that he wishes to marry again as soon as possible, so—" she smiled, and waited for him to speak.

He abruptly signaled the waiter for the check.

"You won't mind going at once?" he asked. "We'll go somewhere else to talk."

She assented, wondering. His strange abrupt manner made her uneasy. Why hadn't he been as glad as she to hear that her freedom was now only a matter of time?

The old fear sprang up again in her heart. Didn't he want to marry her?

In silence she seated herself in the car beside him. In silence they drove up Fifth Avenue and through the Park. The night was cold and gloomy. Once Christine felt her blood racing. Her haunting fear left her. Sheer physical exultation pounded her, and her mental reaction was a new reassurance that everything was to be well.

Perhaps Vane was driving to some remote spot, where he might ask her to be his wife.

He stopped the car in the lee of a wood. Until, protected from the chill night breeze. The light from a park lamp shone on his face. It was white and set.

He turned to her, and, when he spoke she hardly recognized his voice; it was so strained and desperate.

"Christine, my beloved, I have something to tell you that I should have told you long before now. But I was too cowardly too desperately afraid of losing you. Christine, I want you for my wife, but—I am already married."

Advice to Girls By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl seventeen years of age. I am in love with a man of nineteen, but he doesn't seem to care for me.

How can I win his heart?

HEARTBROKEN.

HEARTBROKEN: My dear, you have asked for the impossible. There is no way on earth to MAKE some one love you. Love is an emotion which must be developed naturally—without coercion or forethought. It is the eternal mystery—and it cannot be made to order. No one knows why or how it is brought about, no one knows how to instill love in the heart of another.

And that is why you can do nothing to make this young man fall in love with you. If you are certain he has no affection for you, turn your thoughts elsewhere and do your best to forget him. Otherwise you won't be very happy.

New York notes that the fluffy ruffle is back with us—all others so Easter bijoux gowns this year.

Beige silk lingerie must be real beige this season and not the pinky beige to be right.

Not only do flowers use Rumon in tea, but sometimes a teaspoon of raspberry or strawberry jam is used instead.

Choker beads or long strings from 60 to 70 inches, with pearls particularly good, are to lead all others this spring.

Lanolin notes that a plain platinum or gold wedding ring for the day and a diamond ring for evening wear is the latest fashion for young brides.

The tiny, brightly colored triangles of chiffon is a novel note in sports wear this season, and it is worn very simply twisted around the throat with the point in front, the other two points hanging on each side and giving a definite note of color to the all-white or cream suit.

Pigeon felt hats chosen in the same color as the suit, with cutout edges in points or scallops and folded into becoming brims, are modish with little sports dresses, and the hats are very simply trimmed—a blanket stitch ruff bordering at the edge is sometimes the only finish.

DR. BRUCE TAYLOR ADDRESSED TWO PACKED MEETINGS AT BRIDGE ST

The 109th Anniversary of Famous Church Fitting-ly Observed

SPLENDID MUSIC

John Street Congregation Joined in Evening Service

With the church filled to capacity at both services, Bridge Street United Church congregation yesterday relished together in the celebration of the one hundred and ninth anniversary of the founding of the Church. In a century and nine years the city has witnessed the growth of a congregation which at the time of founding was accommodated by a tiny frame building till yesterday when the members who number nine hundred and fifty crowded the historic edifice which now stands a living witness of the fruit of the labor of devoted clergy and laymen.

Dr. Taylor

Rev. R. Bruce Taylor, M.A., LL.D., Principal of Queen's University, was the special preacher at both services and in the evening spoke on, "What is Christianity."

The speaker preached a masterful sermon which was heard with keenest interest by the congregation which included the members of John Street United Church. Dr. Taylor chose as his text, John 15:4: "Abide in Me and I in You."

"After all these centuries," he said, "we ought to know that Christianity is manifesting itself to conditions of the moment. Nothing is as interesting as religion. Changes must take place in the Church as well as in our every day life.

"Christianity is not an orthodoxy of doctrine and the Church must adjust itself to the life of the age which is continually flowing. The heresy today is the orthodoxy of tomorrow. Our particular theological outlook is free of circumstances; if we are born in Moscow we are Jewish, in Quebec, Roman Catholic, etc. Geographical conditions are inspired in our particular religious viewpoint.

Religion is not the mere doing good or a philanthropic activity. Appeals for philanthropic purposes are made through sentiment by painting a picture of the suffering involved in the institution for which the appeal is being made.

Religion is no particular fraction of life such as the prohibition of smoking, golf playing on the Sabbath or any other of the local silences. We can never make a man a Christian by dictating to him but must appeal to his finer senses.

New Testament

"In studying the New Testament," Dr. Taylor said, "what words suggest themselves? Rest," he said, "is one of the great words, Christ said, 'Come unto Me all ye who are heavy laden and I will give ye rest.' This suggests freedom from care and the surging difficulties of the moment.

"Peace is the second word, Jesus said, 'Peace be unto you.' It follows pain and suffering. He showed His disciples His wounds to illustrate the smoking, golf playing on the Sabbath. He knew eternal peace. Many who have never suffered talk about peace but they do not know of what they talk. Life is not glum, fear not and doubt," the speaker said. He interjected other words which are predominant in the New Testament such as Hope, Love and Forgiveness. These relate to great positive ideas.

"Religion is something which dwells in us. There may be some external manifestations but it is something that binds us invisibly to God."

The Doctor referred to religion as an organic living thing. Many intellectual people, he said, are devoid of religion while many of the less intellectual possess the real love of Christ. The speaker instanced Henry Drummond who remedied the conditions emanating from men from the Scottish Universities who, having left home, fell into evil ways. His appeal was the true message and his influence has never been reproduced.

Material Danger

The two great dangers of this materialistic age are power and organization. We have gone too far in the organization of man in a business sense and Churches are leaning the same direction. In our mad desire for organization we are overlooking the new manifestations of life. Dr. Taylor spoke of a revival that will eventually come he queried the congregation as to its source. We have one new revival—Billy Sunday's work, but the speaker considered his course sheer vulgarity.

We must have a revival with the Living Christ above us. They course that this will take we are not privileged to predict. We are required to blame for conditions of today.

Dr. Taylor spoke of the delights of Canadian life—its openness and the benefits derived through cheerfulness with others. We live on the street to us spunk and not enough to ourselves. The speaker wondered if we religed upon relationship with God enough, by so doing we could do a great deal for ourselves. He instanced the soldiers at the front who in their moments of rest came to a realization of the presence of God.

Religion does not link up with any one Church but eventually a man who receives Christ worships in one particular sect. Religion can only be gained by the carrying of the Cross the Doctor observed in closing and each man's spirit will come in contact with the living Christ.

Morning Service

Dr. Taylor in the morning spoke from the text Lamentations 3.39 and his topic was "Wherefore do a man complain." He described the events transpiring after the fall of Jerusalem and told of the physical sorrows and moral distress among the people. Life, said the Doctor, is nourishing to be thankful for. His definition of a true Christian was one who keeps himself away from two forms of evil, impurity and drunkenness. One of the greatest vices in modern life is one of gloom and nonappreciation of the blessings about us. We are inclined to envy those apparently in better circumstances and believe that theirs is a better place in life than ours. Gloom is inevitable and will settle upon us if we do not guard against it. Many a day goes wrong because of a wrong start in the early hours of the morning when we start the day with selfish and faithless spirit.

109 Years Ago

Over a century ago this country was heavily wooded and the sturdy pioneers hewed the woods and built the original Bridge Street church. Bridge Street Church was built up by the very struggles of those who contributed to its upbuilding just as Scotland became great through education gained by a mighty struggle.

Plenty of people always find something to groan and grumble about. If we are looking about for slights we will find them wherever we go. Many a man are dissatisfied with their work and when they stop to realize that bigger men than they have handled the job they may get a different viewpoint. Dr. Taylor stressed the enormity of ingratitude as a sin. The sin of an idle grumbler as one our windy attitude becomes affected by it.

An Example

Stevenson was a great example of a man why rose above circumstances and although his life was one of sickness one could not detect it in his works. Life is a struggle and we will continue to be so until the end. We must take it as it comes and perform our daily tasks with a cheerful smile. If we think our life is ordered by God, why should we complain. The world is to us what we make of it and hopelessness lies just within our grasp.

The Music

The music at both services was very lovely. In the morning Mrs. Glen McKinnon delighted the congregation with a solo and in the evening violin selections by Miss Helen Hunt were a splendid feature thoroughly appreciated by the large congregation. The united choirs of Bridge Street United Church and John Street Church produced a very fine effect and the soloists, Mr. J. D. Bankier, Mr. Stobie, Mrs. Leo Rigg and Mrs. McKinnon were never heard to better advantage.

PLAYER REFUSES TO PARTICIPATE IN SUNDAY BALL

According to an attached agreement, governing the National and American leagues, players who are opposed to taking part in Sunday games cannot be signed. Each player must accept a "uniform contract" in which he pledges himself to give his "skilled services during the season, including the world series or any other official series in which the club may participate," which means all championship games scheduled for Sunday dates.

The effect of this agreement, violation of which can be punished by Commissioner Landis, is shown in the case of a young player named George Wood, who has filed a complaint with the commissioner against the Cincinnati club for refusing to engage him because he objects to participating in games on the Sabbath. He claims $1000 which the Cincinnati club only agreed to pay him as a bonus for signing a contract.

A professor of Texas Christian university whose brother is C. J. McDaniel, secretary of the Cincinnati club, recently sent in a first report of young Wood's pitching for Hillsdale academy at Houston. When Garry Hermann, president of the club, asked Wood for his terms the latter replied:

"I want $1000 to sign, a salary of $1000 for one year and a stipulation in my contract barring me from Sunday baseball."

Hermann agreed to Wood's terms pending a ruling by President Heydler of the National league regarding the requested Sabbath exception. The contract was forwarded to Heydler and Wood was ordered to report for duty at the Reds' training camp in Florida. Heydler refused to approve the anti-Sunday baseball clause, whereupon Hermann declined to pay the $1000 signing bonus to the Texan on the ground that no contract existed.

Meanwhile the Reds manager, Jack Hendricks, after watching Wood in practice for only two days, decided that the boy never would be a real big league pitcher, and notified Hermann so to leave him unconditionally. Wood, believing that he is entitled to $1000, has presented his claim to the commissioner. If Hermann shows that if Wood had not asked for the Sunday exception, the Cincinnati club would have paid the claim.

If Wood were the best pitcher in the world and placed in a contract covering him from Sunday games, we would not sign him," Hermann explains. "But I don't believe we should pay anything to a player we do not want when his religious scruples prevent us from using through only part of the active league agreement."

It will be recalled that, under the terms of the old player contract the late Christy Mathewson and several other stars were permitted to keep out of the Sabbath day games. Branch Rickey, while managing the St. Louis Cardinals always remained away from a team on Sunday.

HELD BY RING ON HAND

Kingston, Ont., March 28.—Charles Quackenbush, of Smiths Falls, was suspended in his stable by a cut on his finger when he left it while dressing from the kaybit. His hand caught on a projectile and he was left hanging by the ring on his finger. By the time he had disengaged himself his finger was badly cut and bruised and the ring had to be cut off.

Over a ton of fish was taken from the Bay of Quinte in addition to the lawful operation of three electric pumps for eight hours, which drained the lock dry.

News Of Movies

BELLE THEATRE

One of the famous cafes for which Vienna is noted plays a conspicuous part in the new Metropolitan production, "For Wives Only" starring Marie Prevost which will be on view at the Belle theatre today and Tuesday. Similar to other European people, the Viennese make the art of absorbing nourishment something of a ceremony. They object to swallowing their meals in a one-arm lunch room and labbing it all in a day's work as is more or less the custom in this country where speed in everything is essentially the keynote.

In these street cafes the continental man of fashion interrupts his repast as he impersonally observes the human flotsam passing before him. This unhurried manner of dining undoubtedly proves a great aid to the digestive organs.

"For Wives Only" was adapted for the screen by Antonio Moreno from the stage success "The Critical Year," by Rudolph Lothar and Hans Schwartz. Miss Prevost is supported by Victor Varconi and a well-known cast of screen players.

REGENT THEATRE

Brilliancy coupled with a shortage of sterling character may win out for a time but it is more often the modest, slow thinking but earnest and sincere who gets the final break.

This in a sense is the difference in character that forms a basis for the plot of "The Sea Tiger" a First National picture starring Milton Sills which comes to the Regent Theatre tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Milton Sills is the slow-witted fisherman in a shy Spanish colony in the Canary Islands. Opposite him is his younger brother, played by Larry Kent, who is keen but conscienceless. And in the end it is the older and slower brother who wins more and happiness and even redeems the erring youth.

Mary Astor, and the feminine lead while Alice White plays a disturbing element as a show girl who comes into the commonplace lives of the islanders and disrupts everything. Kate Price is cast for a good character part and the picture was directed by Francis Ford, brother of John Wilson handling the production management. He also wrote the scenario from the Liberty magazine story by Mary Heaton Vorse. It is declared to be one of the most romantic stories that has reached the screen in a long time.

CENTRAL LEAGUE TO SEEK AID FROM ONTARIO BASE BALL ASSO.

League Hopes to Secure Fourth Team—Deloro Can't Come In

WAIT TWO WEEKS

Delegates Disapprove of Continuing Organization With Three Clubs

It is altogether likely that the Central Ontario Baseball League will disband this year but fans in Belleville may be treated some class at least. A meeting was held here on Saturday to reach a decision in the matter but it was finally agreed to allow it to rest in abeyance for two weeks to determine if the O. B. A. A. will grant any assistance at the annual meeting next Saturday and in the meantime steps will be taken to procure a fourth team to round out the circuit. Failure in these two missions leaves only one alternative that of breaking up, one of the most successful baseball organizations that ever functioned in the Province. It is a most regrettable fact if the C. O. B. L. becomes a defunct league thus robbing the fans of one of their chief summer amusements.

A resolution proponed by Max Swanston of Peterboro and seconded by Jos Daley, Kingston, read to the effect that if a fourth team is not available by April 9th that the Secretary-Treasurer pay off all expenses and divide the remaining funds between the three teams.

Every one of the representatives were agreed that the three team league could not be operated again under the same circumstances as last year. At the present time there are no clubs seeking admission, as Oshawa have already cast their lot in with the Lake Shore League, and Cobourg are likely to retain their franchise in the Durham and Ontario circuit.

Manager R. A. Elliott of the Deloro Club was present and stated that their club did not feel in a position to climb into senior ball at the present time and the small gate receipts and long jumps to Kingston made it an almost impossible proposition. The Deloro Club expect to enter the Bay of Quinte again.

The thing is still very much "up in the air" as it were but there may be some new developments within a fortnight.

The following were present: Pres. McFadyan, Peterboro; Past Pres. Duff, Belleville; Jos Daley, Kingston; "Shiper" Johnston and Max Swanston, Peterboro; R. A. Elliott, Deloro; Walter Gerow, Belleville.

Stan Hagerman acted as Secretary in place of N. Thompson who is ill. The communications and minutes were read. Among the letters were two from the Intercounty League expressing the hope that the C.O.B.L. would continue to operate. The tone of the letters showed that they were not exactly in sympathy with the O.B.A.A. in the January 1st readence rule.

President McFadyen reported that the plea of the C.O.B.L. presented at a meeting of the parent body some months ago endorsed a May 1st rule was not endorsed and that the officials of the Ontario Association were audibly opposed to any such rule.

Mr. McFadyen suggested the course of going ahead with the three teams and reducing the number of games. However this found no favor among the delegates;

The pessy put the question of discussing the O.B.A.A. ruling in regard to the residence rule and running an independent circuit. Opposition from some quarters was voiced here.

Joe Daley was of the opinion that the Amateur Athletic Union might settle to grant playing certificates. It was felt that the O.B.A.A. in not treating the C. O. B. L. fairly when they know the conditions of affairs here and have been familiarized here.

Max Swanston of the Peterboro Club said that they wanted to know what the League was going to do as the Peters have a team ready to play on the field but desire to find some place to play.

Mr. McFadyen was delegated to attend the O.B.A.A. meeting and make one final effort to secure some sort of concession as to residence rules, etc., and if the Senior body turn down the proposition the League automatically disbands.

The delegates indulged in a few fond reminiscences of games and happenings in past years and then the meeting adjourned.

Joe Daley claims to have practically the same line-up with the exception of Cairns who has gone to Windsor. The Kingston pilot says exhibition games will be arranged if the C.O.B.L. passes out.

It is to be hoped that some solution to the problem may be advanced. The outlook is not bright but the clubs still hold some hopes of remaining together.

Just two weeks ago Georgetti finished first in New York's six-day grind, paired with Reggie McNamara.

ASSOCIATION TO PROMOTE SOFT BALL IS MOOTED

Meeting Called For Tuesday Evening, at Y.M.C.A.,

A meeting has been called for 8 pm Tuesday night at the Y.M.C.A. of all ladies and gentlemen in the city including Corbyville and Point Anne for the purpose of organizing a soft-ball association such as fixtures in Toronto.

The idea is to have boys' and girls' ladies teams controlled by one association with a set of rules for each.

The sponsors are especially interested in having any lady present who will take an interest. Lady officers should control the association along with a strong Advisory Board of Men. It is not a closed affair and all interested in any team or who were contemplating same should be present also any girls in Belleville who are anxious to take part in sport as they can get a line on the idea.

This will definitely organize and promote softball in the City, and will control players, teams, grounds and matters connected with the betterment of softball.

Allan Meagher has a Toronto Constitution and will place this before the meeting. It will give something definite to work on, and the constitution can be altered where necessary to govern local conditions.

The association is not a league but will govern local leagues and clubs affiliated. Any other organization in Belleville will be considered on an equal side and will not unless affiliated receive any recognition in softball circles.

It will place girls' sport thoroughly on organized basis which will encourage, develope and promote the game in such a way that it would be of more interest to persons who have been approached think it a good idea.

The Bay of Quinte league is well organized and has a good constitution. The Ontarios and Beavers will no doubt affiliate in order that the Bay of Quinte will run come under the association jurisdiction. This will not affect their standing in the Bay of Quinte League, and they will be behind the move.

All persons interested are urged to attend this meeting.

THE FIRST DIETITIAN

Scheduled for an untimely death at 35, because of excessive eating and drinking, Louis Cornaro, born in Venice in 1464 laughed at the doctors who said his end was at hand, adopted a rigid diet, regained his health, became known as the founder of a system of scientific eating and lived to be 120 years old.

When he was 80 he wrote a book, which has been famous ever since. He called it "The Temperate Life." When he was 86 he wrote another, titled "An admonitory advice to high livers." At 91 he was the world another volume of wisdom and at 95 he published his fourth.

The diet he adopted consisted of 12 ounces of food daily—bread, egg yolk, meat and soup. To this he added 14 ounces of wine. When he was almost 80 years old, his friends persuaded him to increase his rations to 14 ounces and 16 ounces. Ten days later he became ill, and it was feared he would die, but he recovered when he returned to his former rule.

DIZZIES PROVE TOO SPEEDY FOR BELLEVILLE INTS

Win Round and Enter Finals For Ontario Basket Ball Title

The Belleville Y's Men's Intermediate basketball team went toward into the finals by the fast Elmsleh quintette of Toronto on the "Y" floor on Saturday night. The locals dropped both games Saturday night's fixture going to the visitors 38-33 while the "Dizzies" also gained the decision in Toronto and they thereby reached the black and white by a 35-12 round 1ffin winning the round 82-47. This was the semi-finals for the O.A.A.A. championship and the winners will now meet St. Catharines in the finals.

One of the best galleries of the season turned out for this game and they were given the worth of their money despite the fact that the score was not favored. The locals believed they would have a much better chance on the small floor but the "Dizzies" were fighting for honors and went to work with a will and stayed a regular scoring bee.

Both teams were around the best at the start but the visitors slowly overcame them and at the halfway mark were leading 24-9. In the second period they piled up an even greater score. The Elmsleys have now won nineteen straight games and will give any intermediate team in the Province a great run for their money.

GOLD THE STAR

Sammy Gold the elusive little fight forward was easily the star of the game. He scored 6 points himself and was largely responsible in assisting in the tallying of several others. No bigger man than a dozen of cider Gold is a star as an end and is generally in a scoring position when within range of the basket. He is especially effective directly underneath the basket. Gold is rated as one of the line-pots in the cage game around Toronto.

Collins his running-mate at forward also managed to collect his share of the honors. He is a speedy basket-ball man.

Armstrong and Weir were the leading scorers for the Belleville five.

Weir is a clever forward who air-tight and seldom were the home crowd able to carry the ball inside. Their combination play was a treat and ball was snapped around in rapid-fire fashion.

They had considerable edge on Ralph Meagher's backward.

Buchanan who was ill was replaced by Miles and the latter turned in a fine game.

James Murray of Napanee who was in charge made the boys play real basket ball. The Belleville ball fans are duly kindly to some of his decisions. They were the worst offenders in the matter of fouls.

ELIZABETHS — S. Gold and Collins, forwards; Snyderman, centre; Freeman and I. Gold guards, and Baldwin and William subs.

BELLEVILLE — Weir and Kent, forwards; Armstrong, centre; Meagher and Alexander, guards; subs. Curry, Nause, Morrison and Faulkner.

HORNSBY TAKES JOB SERIOUSLY

St. Augustine Fla., March 28.—When John McGraw made Rogers Hornsby manager of the Giants he likely took the appointment seriously. The result is that for the first time in many years the Giants have a captain who doesn't think that carrying the batting order up to the umpire before a game completes his task for the afternoon. Where former captains stopped Hornsby starts. One's the game is under way and the team is on the field he directs the players, sometimes in response to signals from the bench, and sometimes on his own responsibility. He assigns plays he doesn't like and, being a very plain spoken young man, his criticisms, while never harsh, are direct.

Mcd, there is no division of authority on this ball club. The day that McGraw stepped out New York found that Hornsby became an absolute and dictatorial boss, and no man, not even Hornsby, may have an hour's talk with the baseball championship last year, he permits him to criticize the players who he knows that Hornsby is right and is saying only what he would say if Hornsby didn't speak first. On matters of judgment on the conduct of a game Hornsby makes not the slightest

CANADA BECOMES PROMINENT IN ATHLETIC WORLD

New York, N.Y., March 28.—The Associated Press, in a special article written by its sports editor, Alan J. Gould, Canadian athletics in United newspapers, deals with Canadian athletics, who are becoming more and more prominent in the limelight of the sports world.

Mr. Gould's article follows:

"The Maple Leaf may not wave forever victoriously over athletic fields, but within the past year at least the Canadian emblem has been somewhat triumphant. The Dominion has set the pace in some of the fastest fields.

"Canada's prowess in winter sports at hockey and speed skating, Canada has more than held her own. Hock y is the Dominion's national sport. Its Montreal Maroons are the present world's professional champions. The Ottawa Senators also have been input of the winter's pace in the National Hockey League, the "big league" of the game.

"Marshall Charles Cornwall, of Saint John, has just lifted the international outdoor speed skating crown in the championships on American ice at Saranac and Lake Placid, while a Toronto girl, Leila Brooks, rinks highest honors in women skaters.

"But these conquests are more or less traditional, so that it is the Canadian performers in such other sports as boxing, track and swimming that attract attention. No ring figure such as the late handsome French-Canadian, Jack Delaney, needs any introduction. George Young, the Toronto-old Toronto swimmer, exhibited a rare combination of courage, nerve and skill to be the first to conquer the Catalina Island channel, off California.

"The marathon running prowess of a sturdy young Nova Scotian, Johnny Miles, requires no introduction. Miles won the classic Boston A.A. marathon last year and in doing so conquered the best runners the United States championship, and Alain Sir mons, the Finnish holder of the Olympic title. Just now, in outdoor competition, his proved herself one of the fastest of feminine sprinters, a holder of several world's records. Lastly Charley Paddock before has famous 100 in 9⅘ seconds last year Cyril Coaffey, a Canadian, was among the greatest of the 440 meter's record of 9 3-5 seconds for the century.

"Canada has no concern quite up to the prowess of Percy Williams of bygone days, but has a potential champion in Joe Wright, Jr., a husky son of the former speedster, whose scorching efforts have been divided between Toronto and Philadelphia waters. Wright was victorious over the American champion, Walter Hoover, last season."

TONIGHT INDOOR DOUBLE HEADER PROMISES ACTION

High Pressures Confident of Taking Fall Out of Speedy Railroaders

At 8 p.m. Jim Carmichael Foster Wood gets inside Joe Guyer's Deseronto and a lively battle is expected as these two teams are battling for 2nd place in the series on Both teams are be at full strength as a win means a lot to both of them, so this game should result in a real old time scrap. The Foster Wood as will send either Knott or Coutt to the mound, it is expected, while the Deseron Sobs will start their ace Al Boulter. The former will be supported by players like Conlin (Down Eats) Coutt at backstop, the Adams girls of the classic High School team, the Knott sisters, Ethier, Bird, Ri Ryter, Smith and a few more outstanding girls. While the Deserons have strengthened up a bit too, with players like Jarrel, Wilkins, Kelleher, Smith, Hobergy, the Hobergy sisters, Ethier and a couple of dark horses that Joe Guyer has signed up, so everything is ready for the big battle for second position, this promises to be a "hummer," so get there early so as not to miss the fun.

At 9 p.m. the boys for mthe C.N.R. will battle it out with the High Pressures for second place in the Men's League. It is likely that Jack Allan will start either Kerr or Dig Bill" Davis the speed ball k-ng) in the box with Lateford on the ree being real. Hagyby (the sensational fielder from Trenton), Post, Rigby, Palmer, Stark, Smith, McKenna, Darrah, Flagler and Belnap in the field. The C.N.R. have O'Donohue and Hurley to send to the mound. Both are confident that they can turn back the hard hitting opposition so it is sure to be a real battle as second position is at stake and both teams want a win.

The local Senior Indoor League is over "dishing up" a high class of softball and the fans are taking advantage of it as well, there is a full house every night so the fans are at least satisfied with this brand of ball. It looks like the league will be the best that has ever played in the Armouries. There is a double-header every Monday and Wednesday night starting at 8 p.m.

DESERONTO IN O.B.A.A.?

Deseronto, March 28.—To be considered seriously this week building a covered skating rink and prominent business men are discussing ways and means of raising the money.

The success with which the high school team has met during the past two years is in a great measure responsible for the agitation and if plans for a covered rink materialize no doubt a junior O. H.A. team will be entered next year.

Your 1927 CAR

Will it be a 5-year comfort .... or a 5-month cripple?

FROM the day it's broken in—to the day it's broken down, your motor's fate depends on a thin film of oil.

The ability of that oil-film to resist destructive heat and friction largely determines the kind of service your motor gives—the size and frequency of repair bills—the length of your car's life.

If that film of oil breaks and burns under the fierce attacks of heat and friction, vital motor-parts are exposed. Hot, unprotected surfaces chafe against each other. Withstanding heat attacks raw metal. Increased friction begins its work of destruction. And you, eventually, pay big repair bills.

In Veedol, Tide Water technologists perfected the oil that masters heat 100 degrees hotter than the hottest friction-spot in your car—the oil that gives the fighting "film of protection," thin as tissue, smooth as silk, tough as steel.

Today, drive to a dealer who displays the orange and black Veedol sign. Have your crankcase drained and refilled with Veedol. It's the best and cheapest insurance on the life of your car.

TWO NEW SPANS ADDED TO BRIDGE

Frontenac Dredging Company Will Remain Here All Summer

When the Bay bridge is completed it will be just as permanent a piece of roadway as the provincial highway on the main shore. For years the traffic has been very heavy on the bridge with the result that it was decided the best thing had to be done to care for the increased traffic.

During the winter months two steel spans have been built on the Belleville side. It is the intention to have either a swing bridge or a jack knife on the Prince Edward side to care for the steamers which pass up and down the bay. The new steel bridge has a driveway of twenty-one feet with a five foot side walk.

The completion of the new road will mean a great thing for the city of Belleville and the residents of Prince Edward County. Although the old bridge did excellent service for years it has been felt that it was not large enough to handle the ever increasing traffic and something had to be done. The bridge will form a part of the provincial highway system and any weight of traffic should not bother it in the slightest.

A. M. Huskin, president and manager of the Frontenac Dredging Company had been awarded the contract to fill four spans in connection with the new bridge. This new company which means that the Frontenac Dredging Company will have work for the best part

By Charles Garvice

"Ah, yes," said Travers carelessly. "I thought you mentioned a girl the other day named Mesie—Twinkle—er, Phenie wasn't it?"

"Phenie," said Rafe shortly. "Yes; there was Phenie, she was a good little girl; Annie, right up in the first-class. She was fond of my dad, but—here! I'd like to do something for Phenie," he added, almost to himself.

Travers glanced up quickly, then returned to his writing.

"Sort of girl you could send money to?"

"No, sir!" responded Rafe, quickly and emphatically.

"Well, I don't see what else you can do," said Travers, with a shrug of his shoulders.

"I'd like to know her here and show her the sights," said Rafe musingly. "I'd like her to see this room, take her round the stores and to the theatres, shed left."

"Well, you could scarcely send for her," said Travers, with a smile.

"No, I suppose not," Rafe assented, a little regretfully, "but I'd like to, all the same. She's all alone there at Jumping Jane's—a girl, you understand, who always kept herself to herself. Phenie was a bit proud and stand-offish, she had to be; a woman had to take care of herself at Jumping Jane."

"This Miss Phenie of yours will make somebody a good wife," remarked Travers casually. "Probably, if you had remained there," he paused and looked up with a laugh—as if at a joke.

"You mean I might have married her? Well, perhaps I might," drawled Rafe, "and I might have, some time, but—he added, "that I shall never marry."

"Never is a long day," observed Travers, "and I might have known," he added, "that I shall never marry."

"Never is a long day," observed Travers, overbright. "Well, can I accept all these invitations? You are not obliged to go, you know, if we do see pi."

"Hush!" that!" inquired Rafe, on his way to the door.

"Oh, well, much is forgiven to a man in your position," replied Travers, with a smile.

"A promise is a promise," said Rafe, rather gravely. "If I am in your neighborhood, you bet it's up to me to keep my word. Say, I'm going to play cards tonight. Give me some of those checks, so as I can pay on the nail if I lose."

Travers tore out some blank checks, and handed them to Rafe, who put them in his pocket and went out of the room.

On the stairs he met Maude. They stood short and looked at her wistfully, the color rising in his face. She was dressed in a simple frock of white, and appeared to Rafe as beautiful and pure that the remembrance of last night's dissipation flashed across him and made him flush more deeply than before.

"Good morning, Strandyer," she said. "I've not seen you for ever so long. Where have you been—I mean," she corrected herself, for her father had remarked at breakfast that morning on Rafe's absence from dinner the preceding night, and told her not to ask Strandyer where he had been; "you were not at all gay yesterday."

"That's on," said Rafe gravely. "I was busy. I've been making friends with some friends of yours, and recent the town."

"I hope you've been content," she said. She was standing with her head on the balustrade and he leaned against the wall, his hands thrust in the pockets of his breeds; for he was still in riding kit.

"Fairly so," he replied. "I was speaking the evening with that little girl—Miss Dupont, Madelin—and some other girls. Maude smiled. "With Madeline? Yes, isn't she charming?" But she isn't quite—little girl, Strandyer, she added, somewhile.

"Is that so? It's what she seems. She was very kind to me, and I like her."

"Ex-cyclusly likes her," said Maude, pensively and pleasantly, and it would have required some acute mind reading on Rafe's part to detect the note of jealousy but of self-satisfaction in the assertion. "Will eight o'clock be too early for you?"

"I'd like to come very much," she said and though her voice was as even and serene as usual, her eyes brightened momentarily; "but I'm afraid there's nothing I can ride. Father bought a horse for me the other day; but it's not broken in yet."

"I'll have a horse for you, and it shall be a good one," said Rafe quietly. "It's a fine day, isn't it?" she added sweetly.

She nodded assent and went up the stairs. At the head she stopped and looked over her shoulder at him. He was still standing there, his eyes fixed on her, but he averted them quickly and moved downward.

"Are you dining at home to-night?" she asked.

"No," he replied reluctantly. "I'm going to ask some of those people I was with last night to dinner at the Savoy."

"I'm sorry. I mean, that you will not be at home; some people are coming whom you would like to meet. Lord Sunborne—you know him?"

There was a moment's silence, then Rafe said, very quietly, as he went down. "I'm sorry. Yes, I know Lord Sunborne."

He paused at the bottom of the stairs wondering whether he could ask her to join the party. But he felt that she would be out of place in that rather too gay set; that their laughter, and the superabundance of champagne would jar upon her; it would be a kind of desecration of her; and he set his lips, tightly and went on his way.

KING COMES TO THE RESCUE OF INFAMOUS POWER DEAL

Bill to Renew Ottawa - Montreal Canal Charter Passes Second Reading on Premier's Plea

TUMMON PLAYED PROMINENT ROLE IN FIGHT AGAINST THE RENEWAL

FOUGHT THE BILL

Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal Scheme Saved By King

SECOND READING

Urged on by Premier King, Liberals Sent Bill to Committee

Ottawa, March 29.—Ontario and Quebec coal, light and power users tonight had the first round of their fight to retain a million and a quarter horsepower of their potential electrical energy along the Ottawa River when the Georgian Bay charter renewal bill was given second reading by a vote of 103 to 88.

The Gatineau amendment, which would have declared the canal bill ineligible as a private measure, and instructed the Government to take responsibility for it as a public bill, was then voted down by 105 to 87. Party lines were strictly followed on the first division, Conservatives, U.F.A., and Laborites voting solidly for the amendment and the Liberals against.

Two Boiters

On the next division, however, on the main motion to give the bill second reading, Edgar D. B. Bissett, Springfield, and Gordon C. Edwards, Ottawa, and voted with the Conservatives-Liberals, behind the Government, while against second reading. As Hon. William A. Black (Conservative, Halifax) was not in the seat for the division, the bill was declared carried by 103 votes to 88. Beset a few days ago sought to introduce a public-ownership amendment, but it was out of order.

There were 52 absentees.

Premier King finished for second reading of the canal bill tonight, declaring that, unless the "broad principle" of a private bill was bad, all the authorities agreed that the principals should have an opportunity of explaining their case before committee.

Says Details For Committee

Faced with a question by James S. Woodsworth (Laborite, Winnipeg) as to whether the "principle" of the private ownership and operation of a canal and of wealth of public power resources was not bad, the Prime Minister still held that the details were for the committee to consider. The Government, he said, had no interest in the bill. Government ministers could vote as they saw fit when and if the bill entered the Railway and Canals Committee.

An astonishing development in the bill-battle, which might mean much in itself, in the afternoon until late at night, was the declaration of Hon. William Duff, Ex-Liberal Minister of Customs, that although utterly opposed to the bill, he would vote to give it second reading. He came from a pioneer Ryder constituency he said, and could hardly tolerate the consideration of a privately owned power project on the Ottawa. And he had received wires and letters from at least 50 municipalities urging him to vote against the bill. But none of them had said anything against sending it to committee. So he would vote for its second reading, but if it ever received amendments and came back for third reading he would oppose it and vote against it.

Tummon's Active Part

Perhaps no other member of the house has had as prominent a part to the bill and by the Conservative party to prevent the renewal of the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Charter as Mr. W. E. Tummon of South Hastings. It was Mr. Tummon who searched out the fine points of the bill and submitted to his leader the Hon. Hugh Guthrie the amendment on which the Vote was taken and which was developed to kill the measure. It was also Mr. Tummon who was the first to present on the floor of the house resolutions from municipalities opposing the renewal of the charter. These resolutions were from the Belleville City Council and the Deseronto Town Council. Scores of resolutions have been presented since.

The vote of this last night was probably the most important of the session. The abandonment of the amendments public ownership and the potential electrical developments of the Ottawa and French river was erroneously supposed by the whole membership. The Liberals and the Liberal Progressives agreed on by Premier King and the Hon. Hon. Duncan Ellis of the Gatineau amendment and the bill will now go to committee. It is not generally believed, however, that it will ever emerge from that stage as Premier King will hardly risk antagonizing the whole central the popular member for South Hastings, who actively assisted in the battle against the iniquitous renewal of the charter for the notorious canal and water power scheme.

Shanghai, March 29.—Withdrawal of British warships from Changsha, on the Yangtze River, was demanded today following a night encounter between a number of Chinese and a party from the British gunboat Woodcock. Reports in Shanghai say that the commissioner has withdrawn extra territorial rights of all Britishers at Changsha until the circumstances surrounding the encounter between British authorities are examining all their Nationals from that city.

TELEPHONES ARE BEING USED MORE

"There has been a noticeable increase in the number of new services installed in this city" stated J. A. Cokers, local manager of the Bell Telephone Company, to the Intelligencer, today, when asked if the telephone was beginning to be considered as a necessity instead of a luxury. Mr. Cokers said the during the year ending December 31 1926, one hundred and forty-four new phones were installed.

The local manager stated that the Belleville district extended from Napanee on the east, all Prince Edward County and Bancroft to the north. The local exchange included the territory between Brighton on the west and north to Foxboro, Corbyville and in the east Melrose, Point Anne and Bloomfield.

There are twenty-eight operators at the Belleville office. They do not have a regular hours, but work different shifts each week so that all the operators had their share of the long shifts as well as the short ones.

"There are more operators on duty between the hours of nine and twelve in the morning and one and four in the afternoon when the load is the heaviest, or in other words when most people are using the phone", said Mr. Cokers to the news paperman. Mr. Cokers stated that between midnight and seven in the morning only two operators were on duty. There are also eight other employees on the permanent staff at the local office.

The number of subscribers has now passed the twenty-seven hundred mark. The new directories are now in the press and will be ready for distribution among the subscribers about the middle of April. The recent rate increase seems to have had no effect whatever on the number of new subscribers.

JAP OFFICER FELT HIS FAILURE TRIED SUICIDE

Shanghai, March 29.—Lieut. Kano Araki, who was in command of guard at the Japanese Consulate at Nanking at the time of the outrages there last week, attempted suicide aboard the Japanese flagship this morning. He is in grave condition.

Araki was apparently weighed down by a sense of responsibility for what occurred at the Consulate, where he was on guard with seven blue jackets. That he forbore to fire on the mob of undisciplined Cantonese soldiers who attacked and looted the consulate was solely because he feared firing would mean the massacre of all consular officials and their families. Under ancient Samurai code of honor, officers who felt they had failed in carrying out duties assigned to them committed suicide.

BRUTAL ASSAULTS ON FOREIGNERS WITNESSED BY CORRESPONDENT

MURDER COMMON

Constant Stream of Refugees Run Gauntlet of Chinese Guns

Oshiu, Japan, March 29.—A graphic description of mistreatment of Japanese in Nanking, published by Asahi Shimbun in a despatch from that city, has caused a sensation here. The Asahi correspondent relates that last Thursday morning he was awakened by bullets pattering through the window panes of his hotel room in Nanking.

Shortly afterwards more than forty Chinese soldiers invaded the hotel and robbed him of his belongings. Others tried to snatch a ring from the hand of a maid in the hotel, the despatch continue, but found it tight, so they tried to cut off her finger.

Threatened to Kill

They then turned to about 40 Japanese guests of hotel, but were restrained when their superior officer arrived. The correspondent continues that he went to the Japanese consulate where he saw more looting in which men and women were robbed of all their clothing. More than a hundred Chinese soldiers swarmed into the consulate and attacked the staff with bayonets and rifle bullets, demanding money. When told there was no money, it is asserted they brutally murdered and finally killed Major Nemoto and threw his body out of the window. The correspondent confines his article to a description of events he actually witnessed, except for remarking that, according to information that he received, the behavior of Chinese towards the British was even worse.

Refugees Swarm in

Shanghai, March 29.—Conditions are continuing to pour out of the disaster zone in the Yangtze valley to points protected by guns of foreign warships. The mounted of citizens of the United States from that section of Central China held by Nationalists now has been extended to the districts theretofore by Nationalist advance. The steamer Suiwo, with normal capacity of only 25 first class passengers, arrived from Hankow today with 285 refugees from the interior are Hankow.

Foreign Naval commanders here are exerting all precautions and the International settlement is being guarded carefully against mob attack. TODAY'S THOUGHT

Life gives nothing to men without great labor.

HORACE.

CANCER

The largest cancer hospital in the world is to be established in New York in a building 27 stories high designed and partially built for hospital purposes but never completed. It is to be operated by the New York Cancer Association, and it is explained that this institution will contain 400 hospital beds, a clinic capable of caring for 300 patients daily, elaborate research laboratories having the most modern equipment and a department devoted to public education in cancer prevention and treatment. According to Sanders A. Wertheim, president of the Cancer Association, the hospital will be "the only one in the country of this magnitude equipped solely for the care of cancer patients and for the scientific study of the disease in all its every phase." A fund of $3,000,000 is to be raised for the purchase of the building and otherwise completely to finance this "Cancer Citadel."

More and more are the resources of medical science being concentrated in the war against cancer and in research laboratories all over the world endless experimentations goes forward towards a goal which means much to humanity. New York's new cancer hospital undoubtedly will take on honorable place in the work.

CENSORSHIP

Signor Mussolini professes to give Italy a censorship law which will guarantee "100 per cent. moral and political purity of the stage, motion pictures, paintings, books, newspapers, phonographs and advertisements." It is a beautiful ideal. Once the Puritans entertained it, and put into effect their rigid principles, but the license of the Restoration followed the suppression of the Cromwell era.

The difficulty of a dictator's position is that he must keep on dictating. Should he propose to sit back and take things a bit more easily the cry goes up that he is losing his grip, the iron hand is faltering at the wheel. Naturally an efficient dictator eventually runs short of evils which cry for remedy and institutions which demand abolition or reformation. Mussolini has revolutionized—for better or worse—Italy's whole system of government, her financial and economic life, the relations of capital and labor, the plan of municipal administration. Now he is seeking new worlds to conquer, and he enters the realm of the censorship of art, literature, and the drama.

Mussolini proposes to wipe out "pornography and sedition." Just why they should be linked is not clear. Sedition, in Italy, largely consists in speaking of the Fascisti in an unkindly way. Pornography ought to be struck down wherever its ugly head is reared, but censorship will not stop there. It always goes to extremes, and because opinions vary so widely on what is indecent, or undesirable, peace-time censorship always is unpopular with a large section of the population.

It may be unfortunate, but it is true that as yet it has not been found possible to legislate people into strict moral standards, or the acceptance of common convictions. Other dictators have tried it before Mussolini, and their failures are written.

CUTTING OUT TALK

A committee of the house of commons proposes to limit all speeches in general debate to forty minutes. It is a proposal that should make for improvement in the work of parliament. A great deal of the time of the house is wasted by lengthy speeches that might be cut down without any loss to the speakers and with gain to the public. It has been a frequent cause for complaint that too much of the time of the house is taken up with long-winded "orators," and that too much of the important business of parliament is rushed through during the closing days of the session when but little time is left for serious consideration.

It is said that most of the speeches in the house, after the leaders have finished, are really intended for the electors. If that be true the long-winded speakers miss their mark. Thousands of people will read and digest a short speech in which the points are well presented for the one who will wade through columns of uninteresting disjointed and often meaningless verbosity.

STRENGTH

Figures compiled by a member of the American consulate staff in London show that many British jails are being closed and "To Let" signs hung on their doors. "More than twenty prisons in England and Wales," says the American compiler of British crime statistics "to precisely a third of the total have been closed since 1914. There are now forty prisons in the country, and those are by no means fully occupied." This record is contrasted with the United States where the increase in prison population has been twofold; and where the death penalty is being seriously considered for bank robbers.

Is there any other country in the world which could provide such a record of law observance and moral steadfastness under such adverse circumstances as those which since the armistice have beclouded the economic life of the British people, and, inevitably, have reached out into every phase of social and political life? There has been for several years a surplus of unemployed varying between one and two millions. Depression has existed in most industries. The people have been more heavily taxed than any other country engaged in the war. The country as a whole has been undergoing, and is still undergoing, a post-war crisis which only a brave and patient people could have faced without giving way under the strain.

But despite these trials the British people have maintained their ancient moral, their patience and their poise. Conditions which might have been expected to produce an outbreak of crime, have produced only further proof of the calmness and courage of the people in face of trials and adversity. It is hard to believe, as some timid pessimists have predicted, that the British people will not safely weather the present economic storm and emerge triumphant and strengthened in the end, a prosperous and happy people and a courageous and tolerant nation.

MEMORY GHOSTS

"Athens Constitution."

Let the dead past bury its dead,
But oh, the shade that cannot die
The ghosts of Memory—imps of Dread
That haunt the soul and rest duly:
Pale images—Remorse, Regret,
That will not let the heart forgive!

"Let the dead past bury its dead,"
Let them rest in their graves in peace
Let memory ghosts no more give dread
Nor ink the mind—divine her fleece
O let the dead past's mold'ring tomb,
Forever with Love's rose bloom!

R morse, Regret, those dark veiled ghosts,
Which now the heart and mind distress
From out the dead past's ghastly hosts,
God sends them, the sad soul to bless.
They bring repentance, and through this
God's mercy, love and heavenly bliss.

PRESENTATIONS OF CANES

While on his rounds of the principal streets our genial Sergeant of Police, Mr. Jack Trusiach, noticed numerous strangers from his ancestral home, Ireland. Upon interviewing them he learned that they belonged to a detachment of new arrivals just registered at the Government Immigration and Colonization Office on Campbell Street. "Jack" immediately assumed the role of host of the city, combining the usual welcome and good council, all present enjoying the joke of being welcomed by a police officer, whereupon to commemorate the event two of the number presented Mr. Trusiach and Mr. L. Green each with a lovely Irish Blackthorn Cane. Both recipients replied feelingly, extending their sincere thanks and best wishes for prosperity in their new country.

BREAD REMAINS SAME

With the exception of Hiscott's Bakery, the rest of the Belleville bakers are selling bread to their customers at sixteen cents a loaf and to the grocers at fourteen cents, the commissioner of the association from Toronto has not yet come to Belleville to arrange an amicable settlement between all the bakers of this city. However, as all the bakers with the exception of two have settled on one price, it is not probable that any further steps will be taken by the association.

81ST BIRTHDAY

Mr. Samuel Curry, Victoria Avenue, received the congratulations of his many friends yesterday upon attaining his 81st birthday. Mr. Curry, despite his advanced years is still hale and hearty and enjoys his daily walk to the business section. Mr. Curry was born in Murray Township and has lived in this section all his life and for many years he was engaged in the hotel business. He was also prominently identified in horse-racing circles. His early life was spent on the farm. Mr. Curry is one of Belleville's valuable citizens and it is to be hoped that he will be privileged to enjoy many more happy birthday occasions.

CHANGES RESIDENCE

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Laffman, John Street, will vacate their present home within the course of a few days and take up their residence in what is known as the Old Walker House on the Trent Road. Mr. and Mrs. Laffman have been valued citizens of Belleville for many years, although the former expects to continue his contracting business here and in this way will be coming in contact with the people here. Considerable work has been done in the remodelling and redecorating of the new home.

This poster has a cut of a large Hermes cap finished in gold leaf and the printing on it is also done in gold leaf.

GUIDES TO BELLEVILLE

At the Chamber of Commerce are strangers' guides, called the Belleville Blue Book for 1927, which comprises forty-eight pages and contains a complete street guide, business, social and professional directory and other useful information regarding Belleville and is presented with the compliments of the advertisers which include nearly all the business people of this city. The book was published by the W. P. Knight Advertising Company, Limited of Ottawa.

POOR BENEFITTED

The bread war has had various angles and one more important one is the benefit it has been to the poor of the city. One woman whose weekly income, to keep a family which consumes two large loaves of bread a day, totals twenty dollars, welcomed the cut prices and bought two days bread ahead to provide against the sudden cessation of dough bottles. "It makes an awful difference" she said in a week getting the best of bread for half the usual price when you have to count every copper. When the price has not yet gone to normal, there is an agitation to bring it back to the old 20 cent level.

AWAITING NEW BABY IN LONELY HOURS

By ELSIE MARLOWE

It's no easy to grow excited over the big tragedies. But how about the little unconsidered tragedies that no one notices?

The tragedy of the Plain Girl who is always left out from the Office Parties.

The tragedy of the Shy Man who doesn't know how to be a Good Fellow.

The tragedy of the Growing Boy or Girl who does not fit in to the home—

Tragedies as poignant as any tale of Hamlet or Macbeth, but we never think of them.

And here's another tragedy that goes on endlessly yet who realizes it?

The tragic shut-in months when "she" is waiting for the baby to come."

DEAR ELSIE:—

I am a girl of eighteen. I have one darling baby girl and she is a great comfort to me. She is just a year old. I am also expecting another visitor in about two months.

Because it is impossible for me to go to all the dances and parties which my husband attends he says I am not a "sport" and goes with someone else. My husband is twenty-eight and is very restless and is never still. I never cared to go out with other men, although I have had many chances. But Elsie I'd rather be with my husband. He wears many children, but he doesn't seem to realize the hardship one has to go through. Will you tell me what to do?

J. L. S.

Dear little girl I'm sorry and I wish I could make you feel my sympathy in some warmer way than by the printed words. I do know how hard the long, lonely hours must be and how easy it is to grow resentful and suspicious of a husband who can come and go freely.

And yet—you don't REALLY distrust him, dear, nor do you love him. You'd be furious at anyone who told you he wasn't a good man. For there are so many beautiful memories at your knee —memories of his devotion when the first baby came—of his pride in his family and his ambition to have more babies —of his willingness to work for you all. How many men do you know who are like that? How many wives wil leave you as they read your letter!

Try to remember the good things and be patient, dear. These are the hard years of sacrifice. But if you will hold fast to your love and carry on, these years will pass quickly and soon you will be playing together—and the babies playing with you.

And even now, isn't there some way of managing to have good times? It is difficult for you to go to dances, but can't you have quiet little parties in your own home for your intimate friends? Your husband longs to go out after his hard day's work and he needs that amusement. Have you made any effort to provide that amusement in your home? There is no reason why you should not have only someone to go out with other men, although I have had many chances. But Elsie I'd rather be with my husband. He wears many children, but he doesn't seem to realize the hardship one has to go through. Will you tell me what to do?

Here's a letter which a little girl has asked me to print. It isn't a brilliant letter. It isn't written very well and I don't suppose there is any such word as "reprenful." But this little girl means to be true and honest, and I know that is what you want me to say.

Spring Broadcasts Notes of Color

BUTTERICK 1315

ABOVE strikes a new chord in this frock combining two tones of one color in the favorite combiné mode. Beginning with a light shade of crepe de Chine, beige for instance, the waist and sleeves merge into a band of darker brown and then finish, with the skirt, in a deep lesser shade. A narrow pleated jabot of the lightest color takes a rippling path from neck to waistline, giving the blending colors a sweet sense of unity. The shirred sleeves are a new note, as is the square, collarless neck. Silk crepes, light-weight jerseys, flannel, moire, and other fabrics may be used for this style with smart effect.

HEARTS' HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER LVI.

BRAND ALWAYS

"I am already married!"

Christine cried out at Vane's words.

"No, no, no! It isn't true! It can't be true!"

He took both her hands in his and crushed them against his lips. With his head bowed, she couldn't see his face, but she had caught the look of shame and desperation which he sought to hide by the gesture.

"Alas, my wedded, it is true."

There was silence all around them, except for the whir of a car that passed on an adjacent road, and the incessant muffled roar of the great city outside the Park gates.

Christine turned agonized eyes to Vane, but she had gained control of herself.

"Do you feel like telling me about it?" she asked quietly.

He raised his head, but he did not look at her. He stared straight before him, still holding her hands.

"It happened when I was twenty—and a headstrong fool. I fell in love about my age to the license clerk. She —Theresa — my — my wife was eighteen. A pair of youngsters who were in love with love, and thought they loved each other!"

Christine drew a deep, painful breath.

"We were happy at first," he went on. "I dare say Youth is always happy. There's a thrill just in living. When the baby came——"

"You love a child," cried Christine. "A son whom I have very dearly, but I rarely see him."

Christine felt as if a hand at her throat was choking her.

"They live in New York—your—your wife and child?"

He nodded.

"We were married in my home town in a middle western state—and lived there for the first two years. I think I told you before that I was graduated from the law college of the university your husband attended."

"Husbands," corrupt Christine, with a mirthless laugh. She wanted to hurt him, and it was with satisfaction that she saw him wince.

"After that we came to New York," he went on quickly. "But by that time our youthful romance was dead. It must have been my fault—I have no right to blame her—and yet I was miserable and I believe that I was made so by my wife's temper. She is far more to be pitied than I—except for the unspeakable regret that possess her. It is a disease that has grown worse with the years. She cannot help herself, and yet she suffers almost as cruelly as the persons on whom she vents her anger. Our life here was one continuous, bitter quarrel. It was humiliating to both of us, and terrible for our son."

He drew Christine's hands against his breast, turned his face to her, and looked down into her eyes.

"I tried, Christine," he said earnestly. "Heaven believe that I tried. But rather I didn't my hard enough, or I went about it the wrong way. Our son grew handsome as the ruck. We separated by mutual consent, but my wife has told me that she will never release me. She holds me, partly through her hatred for me, partly because her principles forbid divorce. She is my own son's wife's mother-in-law. She has me in the grip of a relentless hand. I cannot desert her. I owe her a debt I cannot discharge. The only decent thing left for me to do is to follow her wish—I cannot divorce her, if I would, even in a state where a divorce for desertion is possible, for she has cleverly circumvented that by saying that she will, at any time, accept me as her husband. And—and with me again. That, of course, is impossible. I could not endure such an arrangement."

He drew a deep sigh and released Christine's hands with a gesture of hopeless resignation.

"So, here you are!" Married and not married. Tied to a woman who hates me, and whom I do not love. And I never loved her. I realize it now. And I seem doomed to go on alone, while my whole heart yearns for a home and me son and the woman I do love."

Christine was silent for a minute. It never was clear to her what. He was done so, his expression of pain, which we have referred to Louise or other children in his common intercourse and vehemence when he urged her to free her own life, freed from a marriage that was not, and had never been, a real marriage.

She understood him at last. Her last vague fear was gone—the fear that he had never meant to ask her to marry him. In her heart she was only a deep deep pity for him and because that it is true could never be satisfied.

She turned to him in sympathy and understanding. He bowed head rested on his hands. She touched his dark curly with her fingertips.

"I never saw, I understand. There is nothing to reproach yourself for."

He caught her hand and held it to his lips.

"But there is!" he cried. "I had no right to thrust myself into your life, to let you love me, to tell you how I worship you, when I couldn't ask you to marry me. I should have told you, when you told me of your marriage, that you can't know what I have suffered, but thought myself inspired to my fate before that, but, when I knew that the

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The Callot dance ruffle frock in paste shades with tight bodice and full skirt of ruffle flounces are much the vogue for spring.

Booth Tarkington, at the close of his recent discussion of ideal husbands, thus summarizes in one sentence the needed feminine mate: "An ideal wife is any woman who has an ideal husband."

Paris notes that the subtle coquetry at present existing in evening gowns is expressed by the two extremes, a youthful and delightfully feminine simplicity or great elaboration and sophistication, and often the two extremes are met in evening wrap and under gown of the two types, worn as an ensemble.

London notices hats which look almost exactly like a police constable's helmet, as regards shape and style, are among the military vagaries of the spring, and they strike a note of originality, but they are quite different from the small, felt hats which women have been wearing for so long.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am twenty-one. I am not bad-looking and I try to be interesting, but I just can't make a hit with the boys.

At the age of seventeen I always had plenty of young men friends of twenty-four and twenty-five, but now only seventeen or eighteen-year-old boys become interested in me. And they bore me.

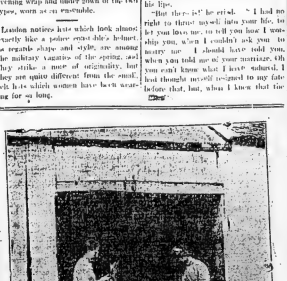

My brother's friends come to the house very often. They seem to like me but never ask me for dates. I often think it is because I am dignified and don't pet. I meet boys that go with my friends on twice and then no re-interest.

I am terribly lonesome. What shall I do?

PRETTY PEGGIE.

PRETTY PEGGIE: Don't be discouraged. There are plenty of young men who appreciate dignity and poise. They will give you deeper and more lasting friendships than the young men who find the frivolous most attractive.

woman I desired above all else in the world would be mine, if I dared to ask her—that was torture that nothing can equal!"

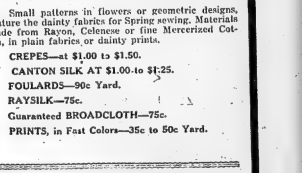

She smiled at him, though her eyes were wet with tears.

"You mustn't blame yourself. One never had to be. I'd rather have it so than never to have had it at all. You came into my life when I was on the very brink of a precipice. You gave me a hope and faith. I have become a different woman since I loved you. Even though it ends that way, it was wonderful."

He crushed her suddenly in his arms. "It cannot end this way!" he said.

DOES EXERCISES

Would Ask God's Forgiveness if He Even Had a Headache

Whistling like a bird, his body swaying in perfect rhythm in the stretching and relaxing exercises as revealed by God in the habits of the animals, Dr. Crossley, last night in Holloway Street United Church, showed a congregation which overflowed the church, how to keep young and free from disease.

The lecture, the last of the Crossley and Leonard campaign, so packed the church that many were turned away for lack of seating accommodation. As it was, every pew held more than each was meant to accommodate, the reserve supply of chairs was exhausted and the people lined against the walls and sitting at the foot of the choir loft.

Dr. Crossley said that the thirty five exercises he would show were but a reproduction of exercises taken by animals and tiny babies. Babies take one form of exercise by putting their toes in their mouth. I can do better than that, I can put mine on top of my head nulling the action to the words to the utter surprise of the assembly.

Man, the speaker asserted, is a trinity, spiritual, mental and physical and I would not fulfil my duties involved in apostolic succession if I did not tell how to keep the physical side which God declared was very good" if I did not tell how to increase the efficiency.

God designed us to be well and to live a long and natural life and if we neglect exercise stagnation which means disease will follow. To be well we must supplement our daily routine by Gods revealed system of stretching and relaxing. There are thirty-five exercises which are thirty-five keys to renewed vitality and longer life.

Hopped on Piano

Illustration one of the movements of an exercise the doctor hedged about for a carpet on the platform but finding none, bounded like a ten year old boy to the top of the piano and with the agility of a tiger, stretched himself at length and proceeded to show how to exercise the muscles of the legs. He ma ntained his perilous position for several minutes, hopped off and made the platform in a bound. He then proceeded to recount some, of the benefits or his exercises, telling how they cured falling of the stomach, strengthened the heart, developed the bust, stimulated circulation, prevented neuritis, hardening of the arteries and rheumatism, the last named by dispatching the acid crystals which congregate in the joints. He also showed they would prevent growing fat and correct stomach and intestine sluggishness.

"If you don't take exercise, you will probably get nerve trouble," he said, "I have the exercises classified specialized, systemized and Crossleized, and if I had so much as a headache which would indicate neglect of taking Gods exercises I would get down on my knees and pray the Almighty to forgive me for allowing myself to get "ill."

"The Lord didn't reveal his muscle stretching and relaxing for us to lay back in. Follow Me after day to keep the body, He gave us well and active."

Tribute and Thanks

At the conclusion of the Doctor's quo address, Rev. L. S. Wight thanked him for the splendid results of his and Mr Leonard's mission in the city. and assured him that the influence would long be felt He also thanked all who had contributed in making the campaign the excellent success it proved to be.

FINE CANBERRA IS A "MADE-TO ORDER" BIG CITY

Australian Capital Has Been Eleven Years in its Making

Melbourne, Australia, March, 29—(Canadian Press)—Canberra, Australia's new Federal Capital, to be formally as the seat of government by His Royal Highness the Duke of York on May 9 next, has already a population of about 5,000 persons. Incidentally, it is CANberra, not CanBERRA, the accent being properly on the first syllable. Canberra is 75 miles inland from the east coast of the continent and in respect to population, is practically centrally situated, being 150 miles direct from Sydney, 240 miles from Melbourne, and 500 miles from Adelaide, Brisbane and Hobart.

The "Made-to-order" city has been 11 years in the making. Canberra was first settled in 1823. It was accepted as the seat of future government and was conceded to the Commonwealth by New South Wales, in 1909. Commonwealth ownership became active in 1911 and constructional activity commenced with the official naming by Lady Denman in 1913. Designs for the best possible city were called for, and engineering works and some architectural construction was proceeded with until 1916. The activities which ensued then, were resumed in 1921 when the government appointed the Federal Capital advisory committee. In 1923 the sitting parliament decided the successful design must be at Canberra and appointed a Federal Capital Commission, which commenced upon the question and proceeded all activities. Private enterprise was admitted to share in the development and has already been going on to the city. In December, 1921, Canberra land is put to be disposed of for any estate in freehold, so that land surrounding the actual city is leased for terms not exceeding 25 years. Land within the city limits is leased for not more than 99 years, and buildings constructed must be approved by the government.

ATTRACTIVE CITY

The result of this guardianship is that Canberra, now an established city, is arising gradually according to the accepted design, and is already exciting the admiration of visitors. Dohas prophesied becoming not only a city of political and commercial importance but also by reason of its fine climate, and scenic beauty a city particularly attractive to tourists.

BELLE THEATRE

Jills, Inc., as it is lived by the average American family, with its many vicissitudes, some of them small in reality but mountainous to those directly concerned, is laid bare in dramatic style in "The Home Maker," Universal-Jewel-King Baggot production tomorrow at the Belle Theatre. Alice Joyce and Clive Brook are being featured in this gripping picture of everyday interest.

"The Home Maker," which was directed by King Baggot, pictures a young couple, one of which was daily being exacted in countless homes throughout the land. It gets over its lesson without having the teary appearance of attempting to be so for the Knapp family, the subject of this dramatic study, is a well known type, easily recognized among our own friends and neighbors.

It is differing; too in that the pic. ure refrains from the temptation of working into it the thread-bare "eternal triangle," for Eva Knapp could have been given a sweetheart when Lute, her husband, became an apparently hopeless cripple. This was skilfully stepped, much to the betterment of the picture and to the pleasure of the audience.

It is not a sad ending nor a sordid ending but one that gives those who see the picture something to think about on the way home.

REGENT THEATRE

"Love your brother as yourself" is the theme of "The Sea Tiger," Milton Sills' new starring picture which opened at the Regent Theatre last night.

In the story, Sills is a lonely, rather stolid fisherman in a village of the Canary Islands. His brother, played by Larry Kent, is a young Lothario but Sills loves him and protects him because he realizes the youngster's manifest failings. Then a woman's love enters and for a time they are estranged but at last love of his brother and the star finds a way to bring happiness to them both. Beautiful Mary Astor has the leading feminine role with Alice White, Larry Kent, Arthur Stone, Knte Price and others in splendid roles.

Sills has probably the outstanding part of his career in this colorful tale of the sea and the lives of men who go out to capture the denizens of the deep.

FORMER DODGER SUGGESTS WOODS TRAINING CAMP

St. Augustine, Fla., March 29.—Since Burleigh Grimes has been permitted to go about his training very much according to his own plan with scarcely a suggestion from John McGraw, it seemed reasonable that he might have some sound ideas on the subject. A brief interview with him confirmed the suspicion.

"My training really begins in the Fall," he said. "Baseball is my business and I give it all my attention then. I don't let it get on my nerves so that as soon as one season is over I begin to think about the next. My main thought is to keep in the best of condition and go as quickly as I can get out into the woods. I have an idea which has been strengthened the longer I am in baseball, that the cities are poor places for ball players in the off season. I've seen many a boy come up to the major leagues after a great season and then fall into the mistake of taking his early success too seriously. In most cases such a boy sticks around the city where he plays associating with the people he learned to know during the season and spending much his time around the theaters and cabarets. For a while he can get away with it, but a few winters every year and some day he wakes up to find it's all a mistake and that he is headed back to the sticks.

"Rose Garden" at the Woods

"Some day, of course, I'll pass out of the majors but it won't be while that route. I've got a home in the back near Yellow Lake, Wisconsin, and a couple of weeks after the season's over I'm on the water with gun and fishing tackle. The first week or two I don't do much of anything but loaf around and sleep from about 9 at night until 9 or 10 o'clock in the morning. Then when I am thoroughly rested I start hunting and fishing. I'm up at all day and I turn in right after supper. By 6 o'clock in the morning I've had ten or eleven hours of sleep and I'm ready to get up and out again.

"I stay in the woods practically all winter, hardly ever visit home around the holidays. Along about the middle of February I'm ready to go back to baseball. I weigh, as a rule, about ten pounds more than I did at the end of the previous season but very little of it is fat—just enough for me to work on when I start actual training two weeks or more, as this year, for instance, I go to Hot Springs for a week or ten days.

"Then I reach the training camp about all I have to do is to run a bit to strengthen my wind and then start to limber up my arm. I bring the arm along slowly now that I am getting on in years, so to speak, and I don't like to try to get anything on the ball until the stay at the training camp is over and the rush is ready to start north. Then I'll take my turn with the rest of the pitchers."

Grimes recommends that his rules for keeping in condition be followed by other ball players but admits there are some who can thrive for years in the major leagues without paying any other ball player to them or to any other rules, for that matter. "These are the supermen of baseball," he said. "There always have been a few of 'em who could do about as they pleased because they were endowed with more rugged physiques and greater powers of resistance than ordinary men. I am big and strong and always have enjoyed splendid health but I am no superman and I have had sense enough to realize it. If a young player breaking in thinks he's a superman and then drinks and he merry. If he lasts more than a couple of seasons he'll know he's right—but it's a big risk to take."

THRILLING GAMES FEATURE INDOOR DOUBLE-HEADER

C. N. R. and High Pressures Go 12 Innings Before Reaching Verdict

There were plenty of thrills baked up for the cash customers at last night's ball games last night. Both the girls' and boys' fixtures were finally won in back-raising finishes.

In the ladies' argument the Deacon Shirt girls went into the seventh frame seven runs down and a few minutes later they were yelling themselves hoarse when the lead was overcome and they walked off the floor victors.

In the boys' game the High Pressures staged a brilliant rally in their half of the ninth and tied the count and in the twelfth frame shoved the winning run over. The latter game had the crowd in a frenzy especially in the closing stages when a hit or an error intercepted at the right time meant a run and the game.

Deacon's 16; Foster Ward 14.

This game was almost allowed neatly away in the Foster Ward bat bag but the Deacon girls who don't know what it is to be beaten came through with seven runs and cinched the piece. "Jimmy" McKenna's smart club-ted throughout and the green tshirts seldom had a look in but they saved all of their reserve energy for the final spurt.

Gertie Hunter went the full route for Deacon's on the mound and although her offerings were ruthlessly slaughtered she came through with spring colors.

F. Knott pitched fairly effective ball until the 7th when it was found necessary to yank her in favor of Crucil and the latter was faced with the task of turning back the Deacons at the height of their rally. A couple of hits and a walk filled the bases and Joe Coyer's lassies tied the count. The winning run was forced over when Violet Rigby walked pending Thrasher home.

The game was featured by the smart playing of the midget Mary Adams at third base. She seldom missed bids and was whipping the sphere over to first in great style.

Crucil managed to get the longest hit, a home run to the east end door.

Score by innings:—

Foster Ward ..... 4 0 2 0 1 3 4—14
Deacon's ..... 1 0 3 1 0 2 7—16

Line-ups:—

Foster Ward—G. Knott, c; C. Crucil, 1b and p; M. Knott, r.f.; M. Adams, 3b; F. Knott, p; J. Adams, ss; Th. H. Bird, s.s.; D. Knott, l.f.; E. Smith, c.f.

Deacon's—Tuttle, 1b; Rigby, l.f.; Holway, c.f.; Kelleher, 2b; Desberry, s.s.; Wilkins, 3b; Boulter, p; Thrasher, c; Mason, r.f.; Hickey, r.f.

High Pressures 16; C. N. R. 15.

The railroaders had the edge in this game but in the ninth Jack Allen's boys came through with a brace of tallies which knotted the count and in the 12th frame the C.N.R. outfielders were slow in fielding "Jimmy" McKenna's drive and when the ball was finally tossed back to the box that individual was on third base and Catcher Rigby was at bat smashed one on the nose and sent it skimming to the garden and McKenna scampered over with the one needed.

In their half of the 12th the railroaders managed to get three up but Johnny Kerr tightened up promptly and no runs were scored.

What looked to be a bad decision cost the C.N.R. the game. In the 9th Piper Latchford over-ran second and in attempting to get back to the bag it looked as though he was tagged out by Amo but Ken Colling called him safe. This would have been the third out and the shoe would have been on the other foot. However in every game there is sure to be a number of close decisions and the majority of these went against "Skipper" Hurley's crew last night.

Deg O'Donahue went the whole route for the C.N.R. and pitched nice ball and was accorded fairly good support. He struck out four and yielded twenty-one hits.

"Cap" Smith was started and went nice until the 8th when he was derricked and Kerr relieved him. Starb came through with five juicy hits and Darragh closely followed him with four.

A Harmless Examination!

There is no annoyance nor distress in my examination. Even the smallest child can submit to it without the least nervousness. No drugs are used and the processes all the way through is as harmless as having the photograph taken. The time required varies from a few minutes to maybe an hour in more difficult cases. Only good can come from a visit here as thousands will testify.

S. BALL MEETING FOR GIRLS ONLY

Association Planned to Supervise Ladies' Game in City

In regard to a meeting called for tonight at the Y.M.C.A. to organize a Softball Association, one of those behind the proposition wishes to make it thoroughly understood that Association is to cover girls' games only.

One of those behind the proposition states that he will not in any way promote the game of softball for men as an outdoor game. It is alright for girls but that lets it out. Hard ball is the game for young men and boys.

Any men or women interested in promoting the game for the girls will be welcome at the meeting tonight.

TRAINING CAMP GOSSIP

New York, March 29.—The following gossip was gathered from the training camps of the major league baseball clubs:

Rogers Hornsby got his first home run of the season Sunday, but the New York Giants lost to the Washington Senators, 9-1.

Partenheimer and Barrett now are playing first ball at second and third, respectively, for the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Bob Herman, first baseman, is wearing the ball to distant places.

With seven straight victories under its belt over league opponents, to their credit, the Philadelphia Athletics have broken camp at Fort Myers, Fla., and are homeward bound.

The Philadelphia Nationals leave Bradenton, Fla., for Philadelphia tomorrow night, after playing Buffalo.

Six weeks of tuning up ended for the Boston Braves today and the tribe faced the northward trail after one last workout. The Red Sox left another week of work at New Orleans.

Amo, Seeney and O'Donahue hammered out three bingles apiece and let in the department for nine rally readers. The Moguls garnered a total of 18 hits.

Flagler made the nicest catch of the evening when he speared O'Donahue's long drive. Palmer turned in a lovely game at third.

"Scotty" Kendle peppery little catcher with the loosby by his performance stamped himself as one of the best in the league.

Score by innings:—

C. N. R. 5 0 0 0 0 0 2 5 0 0 0—12

Umpires—Grow, Woodely, Colling.

Scorer—S. B. Curry.

Another double-header is down on the card for Wednesday night.

PUNCH IN FIRST ROUND PROVED DEMPSEY'S FALL

A terrific right-hand punch, unbeheld by the first round was 20 seconds old was the lead cause of Jack Dempsey's defeat in Philadelphia.

Much has been written—thousands and tens of thousands of columns—in the effort to explain the cause of the dictionomists of the mighty battle-ring lich. A thousand-and-one pens some have written the "explanation" and a thousand-and-one explanations have been made.

Yet, for some inexplicable reason none of the experts—none of the critical watchers at the ringside that night seemed to have seen that punch and its terrible effect upon Dempsey.

I planned the delivery of that punch for ten months; practised it—but always in secret—a score of times a day, and I practised it every day. All my plans—my hopes—everything — were built around that blow.

And it was the fight for me—but it didn't win in a way that I had dreamed. I wanted to knock out the mighty Dempsey in the first round—and with the first punch. But in that ambition I failed for the blow was a trifle high. It missed Jack's chin and hit on the left cheek.

It didn't drop him—but it staggered him and threw him back against the ropes. Dempsey never recovered. From that moment on he was never himself because the punch rocked his brain, dazed him and took all the wild energy and furious action so characteristic of Dempsey completely out of him.

Many times ever has given it the credit for "Jack Dempsey's miserable showing." The boys have explained my victory by saying that Jack broke down under a nervous strain; that some body poisoned his milk; that a few wild mongolians bit him or that he was old and worn out.

But it was that punch that really was Jack Dempsey's undoing.

Ten months or so before we fought I felt certain that I'd be the next man to meet Jack Dempsey. And right then and there I began my training for him; started practise on that one right-hand blow.

The first time I ever saw Dempsey in action was when he whipped Bill Brennan in Madison Square garden. I watched him closely that night and the day of his prime. And I noticed that when each bell he'd rush out from his corner swinging both fists; that he was in a punching action with the left.

I saw him in a later fight—saw him often in his training. I noticed what also few had noticed. And that was that he no longer rushed out swinging. He had shifted his attack. He went out with his aggressiveness—and without swinging fists. He would go out and feint once or twice before he'd open up with his fistic fire.

"All him while he's looking for an opening." I said to myself, "and you've got him."

And so I began to practise shooting a straight right-hand—but I always practised it in private. Never in my room, when I was alone in my room but most always when I went for my road workouts. Again and again—and again and again—I let go with that punch at a phantom chin until I had made its delivery automatic.

I felt that I was aiming it for the exact spot where the chin of the crouched Dempsey would be. I knew it all the "battles" and let it go in such a way in practise that I was able to get my entire body into that smash.

Fight night came—and the first bell rang.

And out came Dempsey in his usual crouch—without swinging fists. He came in close, feinted, thought he had an opening—and he let me have it. I stepped outside of it and the punch failed to hit the target at which Dempsey had thrown it.

Into the blood in him in that moment, for even as my punch was in motion Dempsey, acting himself by years of battle of his own, crouched a bit low than usual, perhaps to get more leverage into his swing. I'll never know just what one impelled him from being knocked out in the first round for the blow hit his cheek and not his jaw.

I didn't knock out a world's champion—with the first punch of the fight—. I had so confidently believed I would. But I took the energy and vitality out of him, removed the "killing" power from his right-hand and thereby guaranteed him almost at will and took from him the most treasured prize in sporting realms.

Have you noticed how Grover Cleveland Alexander is pitching for the Cardinals in Florida? He appears to be in better condition than when he bumbled the Yankees in the world series last October. Opponents who have faced the 40-year-old right-hander this spring say that he never has delivered more speed and that his control of the ball is well high perfect.

The big reason for Alexander's amazing effectiveness is said to be a substantial increase in salary. When the Cardinals bought him from the Cubs last summer for the waiver price of $6000, he was receiving $15,000 and his contract was about to expire. Encouraged by his old catcher Bill Killefer, who was coaching the Cardinals pitching staff, Alexander took a tremendous brace and helped the team to participate in the world series.

Alexander was rewarded handsomely by by the owner of the Cardinals. A new contract calling for $20,000 a year is said by way accepted by the famous veteran, who pledged his word to earn every dollar of it. Naturally Alexander was grieved to learn that Killefer had gone over to the Browns as Manager Hawley's first breakaway but he had made a new friend in O'Farrell who, it is thought, persuaded the Cardinals' owner to pay the big pitcher the largest salary ever received by a National league hurler. Apparently one of the world champions' cronies, Alexander quickly conditioned himself for strenuous pitching in the exhibition games and, as a result, O'Farrell is delighted.

Bucholl the eyes in Florida produce a sensational year for George Sisler. Deposed from the management of the St. Louis Browns because of his failure to take a cut of $10,000 a year when he signed to play first base this season under the direction of Manager Hawley. But Sisler is looking for his position without a whimper. Although he is under contract for $15,000, as a player, he is looking for his job just the same. He has become one of Hawley's greatest admirers and promises to put up the game of his life.

Competent critics who have watched Sisler in action lately declare that he is hitting and fielding as he did in the palmy days when his eyesight became impaired for many months as a result of sinus trouble. And he runs considerably faster than ever, and in point of loyalty to Hawley he is setting a fine example for the younger players.

According to reported salaries of major league stars, Sisler will receive $10,000 less than Babe Ruth, $15,000 less than Cobb, $35,000 less than Speaker and $23,000 less than Rogers Hornsby, his former rival in St. Louis.

IS LACROSSE TO BE DEAD ISSUE IN BELLEVILLE?

Efforts May Be Made to Revive Canada's National Game Here

Ed Thomas is in receipt of a letter from A. H. Coo, President of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association relative to forming a team in this city.

Lacrosse is Canada's National game, and should be preserved. It was played here soon years ago and "Bing" Hayes who is to be present in Watertown headed the movement.

He was assisted by . Fred Finger, "Stub" Barrett and a host other clubplayers. These men would no doubt line up behind the movement again.

The logical course to take is to get the youngsters interested in the proposition and to in and instruct them in the game and in about four years the club would be able to step out with the best teams in this district.

Harry Moore of Deseronto is still strongly behind the great national game and will lend any support needed to reestablished the game in Belleville.

At the present time baseball is tottering between success and failure and the sporting public must be tendered some form of athletics.

There is probably some paraphernalia that might be relegated in order to get a start.

Any enquiries or suggestions will be welcomed by the Sporting Editor of the Intelligencer. Call 1245.

Following is a copy of the letter received here—

Winnipeg, Manitoba,
March, 22, 1927.

Mr. Ed. Thomas,
Secretary, O. H. A. Hockey Team,
Belleville, Ont.
Dear Sir:—

Now that the Hockey season is almost over, your players and supporters will be turning their thoughts to summer sports. Could we get you to help us form up to play Canada's grand old National game "Lacrosse"? Hockey and Lacrosse seem to work in well together and some of the great Hockey players have also starred as stars on the Lacrosse field. Will you organize your Hockey players into a Lacrosse Club, and thus keep the club active to the fore in summer and winter?

The Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association is out to put the old game right out in the front rank of summer Olympic Teams to Holland in 1928, the sports, and in the years to come. Officers would appreciate any assistance that you would give them. If you want any information write to any of the officers, and I am sure they will be pleased to help you along.

Yours very truly,
A. A. COO,
Presid. nt.

The Cleveland Indians are now set to show their stuff when they go up against the New York Giants at St. Augustine. Manager McCallister is believed to have decided upon an outfield combination with Jamieson in left, Gerken—in centre and Summa in right.

Six out of nine games is the record of the Chicago Cubs against the Southern California Coast League, as they leave their training territory bound for home. Observers conclude that Edwood English' $50,000 shortstop purchased from Toledo, will watch last year's regular, Jimmy Cooney, do the bulk of the shortfield performing this season.

Ossie Bluege third baseer of the Washington Senators, has been shifted to shortstop, the change being prompted by the inability of other players to give a satisfactory results on double plays between first and second. Myers is slated for third.

SIDNEY NEIGHBORS HONOR YOUNG COUPLE

On Wednesday evening, March 23rd, the home of Mr. John Tucker, fourth concession of Sidney, was invaded by the community to express their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Will Bradshaw (nee Miss Pearl Tucker) and to spend a social evening with them before they left for their new home near Harrowsmith where Mr. Bradshaw is a successful cheesemaker. When all the guests had arrived the bride and groom were called to the centre of the room while Mrs. Clarence Holmes read the following address and Miss Mondalene Lloyd presented them with a cut glass salad bowl mounted in silver. Miss Flossie Jeffrey and Mr. Everett Phillips presented them with a large tub full of pet eels which the bride unwrapped.

Dear Pearl:

We, your schoolmates and neighbours have met tonight to spend a social evening with you before your departure for your new home and to extend our good wishes for your future happiness and prosperity in the new phase of life you are entering upon. Looking over the past we recall many happy times together and your etherial presence and willing help has endeared you to us all. As a helper in the Sunday school you have aided us when your home duties permitted and we would ask you to accept this token as a slight remembrance of our school. Also these gifts from the community to you, and Will as tokens of our love and esteem for you both and as time passes may they serve to keep fresh and green the friendships of the past. Trusting your future may be spared to enjoy God's richest blessings we remain your schoolmates and friends.

Mr. Madeleine Lloyd
Flossie Jeffrey
Everett Phillips
Mrs. C. Holmes

The audience was again called to order and Mr. Merritt Lloyd read the following address while Mr. Frank Parliament and William Nales made the presentation.

To Pearl and Will:

We who have known you as friends and comrades in youth, and now look regretfully upon the necessity of your departure from your home neighborhood, wish to express to you our sense of loss in your going and our good wishes for a prosperous and happy married life. We have grown up together Pearl and in the days of childhood played together and in later days at youth, when many household duties engaged your time and rose you still shared with us in social pleasures and neighborhood interests in our home and in the church.

And since you came among us Will, you also have entered into our friendship and we are prepared to forgive you for taking away from us a playmate and our schoolday—and girl and boy pleasures and social life.

We wish you to accept these knives and forks as a token of our high regards and with it goes our united wishes for a long and happy life together.

Signed on behalf of the boys

Merritt Lloyd
Frank Pope
William Nales

After singing "For they are Jolly Good Fellows" Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw each replied thanking their friends for their kindness and cordially invited everyone to visit them in their new home.

CHAPTER XVI.

BONNIE SCOTLAND

Madeline Despard sent an interlocutor across and there was a repetition of last night's dinner; the laughter was just as loud and frequent, the wine flowed as freely—but not into Rafe's glass, for he drank Apollinaris, and scarcely touched the champagne. Mr. Pomeroy Jones remarked on the host's abstemiousness as, but Rafe said quietly: "I never was much of a drinker, and no further progress was taken. They went to a theatre, and Madeline was more delightfully affectionate with him than ever; her hand met his almost during the evening, but it received no unswering pressure from Rafe's. He was thinking of Maude all the time, and wished that she instead of this prattling little girl were by his side. Once he looked rather fiercely at the little beauty behind him, and saw, as Maude had said, that Madeline Despard was not so infantile as she looked.

"What is the matter with you this evening, Lord Stanhope?" she said, with a pout, as he helped her into the carriage on the way home.

"That's what I am, a bear," said Rafe with his slow drawl and as slow a smile. "When I seem anything else, it's unnatural."

"I like you best when you're unnatural," she pouted.

"Well, it's very kind of you to like me anyway," he said, as gently but also pointed again, slowly, her shoulder at him, and dropped back, jaded and dissatisfied. The red-headed man of the woods was not so simple as he looked, was her thought.

The men went on to the Arc of Triumph, Madeline was ordered, but Rafe asked for Apollinaris. They played for high stakes, as they had done on the preceding night. The luck went against Rafe for a time, but presently it changed and he won heavily. She clearly he made a mental calculation and rising, said:

"That makes me about quits, boys—I'm going to throw up my remonstrated one of them. "What's the use of leaving off when we're level? Well, I reckon that suits me best," said Rafe pleasantly but firmly. "To tell you the truth, I only played for the sake of your company, which is fine-state. You're all white men, and you've been mighty fine and friendly with me. On my earth should I want to win your money—and, come to that, why on earth should you want to win mine?"

They accepted the statement as fair reasoning and novel sentiment, then they burst into laughter, in the midst of which Rafe bestowed his terrible grip on each of them and took his departure. As he strode homeward his heart was heavy. This poor child and even to his cynical jolly place after all. This new life was beginning to pall on him. Something in his crude, simple nature rebelled against the kind of existence led by these people among whom he had been cast, and actually he was inclined to turn on a bonnie eye back to the purer life at Broad Acres and simply throw which had prevailed at Sandringham Lane. The sky as he strode through them, seemed to peer on him, the night airless.

He slept badly, an unusual thing for him, as a rule, he was off the moment his head touched the pillow; but to-night he was up in time to grow the mare, and he did this work more carefully than ever that morning. With his own hands he fitted accurately one of Lady Maude's many saddles and himself led the mare round to the front. The door opened, Maude appeared in her riding habit, and in Rafe's eyes she seemed more bewitching in that attire than she had done even in her ball dress. She exclaimed at sight of the mare:

"And she's as good as she looks," said Rafe, with a decided nod.

Maude finished buttoning her gauntlet and came down the steps. Rafe knew nothing about the proper mode of assisting a lady to mount; there was one, one way for him. He held out his arms, took Maude below the elbows, and lifted her boldly into the saddle, as lightly as if she were a bundle of straw, and not a large one at that; then, in a most utter-of-course fashion, he arranged her habit and straightened her reins, just as he would have done if she had been one of the girls at Jumping Jane. Maude submitted to his administrations, as she had submitted to his upliftings, as if there was just a faint color in her face, and her eyes drooped slightly. Rafe sprang lightly into his own saddle, and they rode for a minute or two in silence, he watching the mare closely; then Maude said with the enthusiasm of a hoyd lover-woman:

"Oh, she's simply perfect! Where did you get her? Did you borrow her?"

"She's the mare your father bought," replied Rafe. "I broke her in for you."

"And lovely and a good shape of her," said, with a quick and practical glance at him. "How good of you, Stanhope! And how much trouble you must have taken!"

"Nay trouble," he responded. "It's been good fun. She's as pretty as she's as quiet as a lamb, and as loving as a featherbed."

Maude laughed, and her eyes were shining as she turned them to him.

"What funny things you say, Stanhope! And, yet, they are so expressive. featherbed is 'loving' when you come to think of it. And I'm so grateful to you. She's my very own, isn't she?"

"If she behaves as well as she begins," said Rafe cautiously. "We'll see."

They turned into the park and Maude put the mare through her paces. Her performance was perfection, and presently the Row being fairly empty they broke from a canter into a gallop.

"Oh, she's a darling!" exclaimed Maude, when they pulled up. "How clever you must be, Stanhope, to be able to break in a horse like this so well and so quickly."

"There's nothing clever in it if you're used to 'em and fond of 'em; and she's a good-tempered little soul. I'm going to teach her to follow you like a dog, to stand still when you tell her, and to stop where you leave her till you come back."

"Yes, yes!" said Maude, with unusual eagerness, "you must teach me how to manage her; you must teach me every thing you can, Stanhope."

"It won't take long," he said, with sudden humility. "There's precious few things I know that I could teach you, as I don't want all the learning—"

"Why, no," she said, with a glance at him. "You pick up things so quickly—IT, he continued)

GOVERNMENT CONTROL NOW WAITS ONLY ROYAL ASSENT

Stanley T. Vandervort Died Today --- Loblaw's Stores Lease Thompson Furniture Building

LIQUOR BILL IS READ FOR THIRD TIME YESTERDAY

Last Minute Amendment Provides Penalties For "Poison" Vendors

NO OPPOSITION

Only Handful of Members Present to Witness Final Stages

Toronto, March 30.—Premier Ferguson to-third reading in the Legislature last night to his Liquor Control Act. Only the formality of Royal assent now stands between the measure and the Order-in-Council proclamation by which it will replace the Ontario Temperance Act on the Statute books of Ontario.

There was no opposition to the bill. Hon. W. E. Raney, Progressive Leader, from whom considerable last-minute opposition had been expected, was not even in the House to protest the measure he had so shouted. Only a handful of members heard and saw the bill go through.

Last-Minute Changes

The bill was given several minor amendments in the House more to clarify it in committee for this purpose. Chief in importance of these Government changes was that strict penalties be determinate between the ordinary vendor of illicit liquor and the man who sells what is commonly known as "poison" alcohol. Under the amendment the last-named law breaker will get from six months to a year, for the first offence, and not less than a year for the second offence, while the first-named offender will get from two to six months for the first, and not less than six months for the second offence.

Sec. 77, A. Section Added

The Government also saw fit to include in the new act the O.T.A. section regarding "prostitution," and the O.T.A. section dealing with certain types of civil suits based on fatalities in which liquor is involved.

E. Blake Miller, Liberal member for West Elgin, was the only Opposition member to interrupt the Government on the passing of the bill. Mr. Miller wondered if the Government had given consideration to his suggestion that the citizens in the new act dealing with the sale of cosmetics and tinctures by druggists, should be struck out. Premier Ferguson replied that the Government, while considering the suggestion, had been advised that the legislation was adequate that any difficulty that might arise out of inclusion of this section would be easily taken care of.

However, he met one of the mannequins, Miss Jane Dibble, and they have just landed in America on their honeymoon.

SOME MISSIONARIES REMAIN AT POSTS IN DISREGARD OF DANGER

Danger Zone Spreads to the Upper Yangtse Valley

Shanghai, March 31.—Many missionaries are remaining to leave their posts in Yangtse Valley notwithstanding the advice of foreign authorities and in face of a situation that is fraught with dangerous possibilities. The remainder of the missionaries are either enroute to or will shortly leave for Shanghai, where the International Settlement is afforded a haven of refuge from the fury of riotous mobs in ports and inland towns along the Yangtse River.

A United States destroyer called at Nankin today and took off 47 British and American missionaries, who will go to Kiukiang to await the first steamer. Members of the Spanish mission and Dr. Ernest Taylor of the China Inland Mission, with his wife have refused to come out. United States' Chamber of Commerce at Nanking has called for more protection, but it is understood that official notification was sent that United States' Nationals there should leave instead of expecting protection.

Cruiser Uses Guns

In response to a consular call for protection, the United States' destroyer, Preston, has gone to Chefoo, in Shantung. Later reports from Shantung have indicated that anti-foreign agitation is creeping into that province and that missionaries in the eastern section are making their way either to Tsingtao or Chefoo, where a Japanese cruiser arrived Sunday. As the United States destroyer Ford was on the way to Nanking yesterday it was fired on by Nationalist troops and replied with its four-inch guns and machine guns.

Danger Zone Spreads

London, March 30.—Messages received in authoritative quarters today say it is indicated that the situation in the upper Yangtse Valley may get out of control at any moment and that is felt the lives of foreigners there may be endangered.

Commander Apologizes

Shanghai, March 30.—Don Chang Kai Shek, Cantonese commander, sent his chief of staff and secretary ashore to apologize during the night this morning to convey his regrets to the Admiral of the Shanking affairs.

If approved by the church assembly the measure will go to parliament.

Looting at Hankow

Shanghai, March 30.—Telegram from a Japanese source in Hankow says soldiers in mufti, ruffians and pickets are overrunning the city and that Japanese women and children are to be embarked on first available steamer.

More British Troops

THEFT CHARGE WAS DISMISSED

Eli Johnston was acquitted upon a charge of theft by Magistrate Mikel this morning. The case was a peculiar one arising out of a liquor deal on March 16th.

A bell-hoster stated that on that date Johnston came to his house to procure medicine for stomach trouble and that he (the physician) gave him the scrip for a quart of whiskey to be used for office purposes. The physician stated that Johnston failed to return with the liquor. The doctor said he did not give the accused the money as he often ran a charge account at the drug store. He said Johnston was not to be given any part of the liquor for himself and was merely doing it as a favor.

The druggist said that the physician had phoned him to ask if the accused had been given the liquor and the answer was in the affirmative.

"He usually pays as he gets it," said the druggist who added that the liquor is generally paid for when presented.

Eli Johnston took the stand and swore that he went to the doctor's residence and asked the doctor if he could get a quart of liquor and without further action it was produced and given to him. He said both the doctor and he paid for the "scrip" and the druggist for the liquor. He said he had been given dozens of "scrips" for a quart and each time the druggist said "no office use."

No complaint was received by the police of the theft at the time the incident occurred.

Magistrate Mikel said that no evidence of theft was produced, and according Johnston was freed.

Col. E. D. O'Flynn appeared for the defence. At which is his first appearance in court since his re-election.

One thing positive, is that negotiations are underway with a new company for the reopening of the Rubber Plant for the manufacturing of textiles.

Edwards at present is occupying a portion of the building which Loblaw's have secured and when speaking with him over the phone this afternoon he would not make any comments regarding the transaction.

Mrs. Sun Yat-Sen., though still in her early thirties, is the widow of Sun Yat-Sen, is the centre of popular loyalty to the Cantonese cause and a leader of the people's party, but she sees a special leadership for herself in the education of Chinese women to political and social efficiency in a modernized China.

Whiskey Cleared By Canadian Customs When Loaded on Boats

BIG SHIPMENTS

Kept About Four Hundred Cases on Hand in Warehouse

Toronto, March 30.—Telephone calls from the home of Mrs. Helen Perri, at Hamilton, to Toronto will be investigated by the Royal Customs Commission. This morning, Mrs. Perri, whose husband, she said, was away, appeared and gave brief evidence. Her testimony consisted very largely of denials. She denied that she was in the liquor business. She denied receiving orders for liquor over the telephone to Gooderham and Worts. She said her husband was travelling for a cement firm and she knew nothing about his soliciting orders for liquor in the United States.

From Joseph Thibodeau, of Port Lambton, came information regarding liquor shipments to J. Meyers, of Detroit. This witness said that Meyers would deposit money in an American bank at Marine City, Mich., when he wanted a consignment of liquor. Thibodeau would order liquor from Gooderham and Worts, from another distillery and it would be delivered at Port Lambton or Sarnia. In his warehouse without the customs sanctions had about four hundred cases. Since January, he had probably sent one thousand cases across. Mr. Thibodeau said that, in his capacity as agent for Meyers, he bought liquor from Gooderham and Worts, Hiram Walker and Sons, Corby Distillery and Consolidated Exporters of British Columbia. Meyers sent boats across to get it. They were cleared by Canadian customs when loaded.

RUMORS OF GOV'T LIQUOR STORE

Speculation is Rife as to Who Will Get the Plums

From an authoritive source it has been whispered that Mr. B. L. Hyman will be appointed Liquor vendor for the Government Liquor store which is to open in this city in May. From the same source it is rumored that Mr. Harold Bateman will be Mr. Hyman's chief assistant.

Both these men are widely and favorably known. Mr. Hyman as proprietor of the S. A. Hyman, Furrier Store of this city and Mr. Bateman for some years manager of the Crystal Hotel.

The extensive business experience, which both Messrs. Hyman and Bateman have had, together with their knowledge of the people of this district, should prove a valuable asset in their new positions.

Nothing definite, as yet, could be learned as to the location of the vendor's store, but many rumors are heard, such as that of the lower floor of the old Bank of Montreal building, which is owned by the Government, will be utilized. Others are to the effect that it will be located on one of the down town business streets.

REMAND WOMAN TO COUNTY JAIL

Mrs. Betsy Loadsman Found Guilty of Corrupting Children's Morals

Mrs. Betsy Loadsman found guilty this morning of corrupting the morals of children was remanded to jail until Saturday for sentence.

Sergt. Boyd in his evidence told of a raid made by himself, Officers Morrison and Marine Inspector Fred Rostrup, early last Sunday morning of an apartment on Front Street. The witness said they broke in the door and found the accused and a male companion.

An adjoining door was ajar and presently two little girls came out into the room, evidently attracted by the noise made by the police in effecting an entrance. The accused had been living in a room rented from Mrs. Delime and had been assisting in the care of the children while Mrs. Delime was in the hospital.

Captain Rostrup said that the man accused of the same offense had been a frequenter of the place of late. The witness said the children had given the police to understand that authorities came.

"Mrs. Loadsman", said her Counsel "says both doors leading to the room were locked."

Mr. Rostrup—"No the one was ajar", Mr. Rostrup said the room was rented by the accused.

Magistrate Mikel said he could do nothing else but find Mrs. Loadsman guilty of the charge preferred. The two men mixed up in the case will be dealt with later by Mr. Donnan had to go to Deseronto this afternoon. The case was tried in Camera.

ROME CLAIMS ALL QUIET IN ALBANIA

Rome, March 30.—The Albanian question here, denying reports through Jozo Blevin of a state situation in Albania, today announced that "complete tranquility and perfect order prevail." Any reports to the contrary it added, were prejudiced.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Think of those existence doth depend on time?
It doth but actions are our epochs; mine
Have made my days and nights imperishable,
Endless, and all alike.

COOLING OFF

Now that spring is coming the mad Canadian will get a chance to cool off a little. There are many thousands of suffering men in this country who can appreciate the remark of the celebrated English visitor who said he "couldn't stand the heat of the Canadian winters."

Such a paradoxical attention may be blamed to the prevailing feminine fashions in dress—or undress. Indoors, modern women now wear the same sort of clothing both winter and summer. Wool at any time is simply not the thing. It is old-fashioned, and may be all right in the backwoods and the settler's shack, but the modern city maid and matron will have none of it, so it is reported. When they venture outdoors in winter they simply add a pair of rubbers or overshoes and a fur coat. In rare instances an extra pair of silk hose may be added.

The result is, of course, that inside the house it might be perpetual summer if one were to judge the climate by the thermometer. Seventy-five degrees Fahrenheit is not an abnormal temperature in an average Canadian home in winter. Sarcastic remarks from the women folk to the effect that the house is "like a barn" are vented upon the cranial head of the household if for a few minutes he should permit the thermometer to drop ever so slightly below 70.

Due to the feminine fashions it is necessary that father stoke the furnace at full blast to keep the dear things warm. The fact that he himself may be appropriately clad in woollens and tweeds counts for nothing. And at evening affairs, such as dinner parties, musicales and dances, he is the victim of extraordinary agonies. He is forced to divide his time between conversing agreeably under tropical conditions in the drawing room and playing winter golf with the bootlegs in the basement.

Some day it may occur to the worm to turn. Men may refuse longer to be sacrificed as burnt offerings to the great god, Fashion. At one of these functions the host will insist on appearing in his wife's dressing room appropriately clad in a suit of light-weight union overalls.

NEW BAIT

Treasure-Hunting has become popular again. In Panama City, it is reported two Englishmen and an American—under a concession which gives them all minerals right to hunt for treasures in the republic for five years—have discovered gold and precious stones buried by the pirate, Sir Henry Morgan, in 1671.

The pirate's treasure was found beneath the ruins of San Jose mission which Morgan destroyed when he invaded Panama. The pirate band is supposed to have buried the gold and gems expecting to return for them.

"Treasure hunts, especially successful ones, are always interesting, but the activities in Panama are the more fascinating because of the whispered use of a "radio locator" in the discovery of the treasure's hiding place.

The Panama treasure-hunters will pardon those who will observe a treasure detector has been invented when they see one actually "discover" real buried precious metal and stones. So many of them have been "invented" for the same reason that bricks were once credited that those whose gullibility extends no farther than subscription library sets and gilt-edged securities will hesitate before "biting."

CEASELESS

Ordinary rules of sanitation in the home and by municipalities are saving the lives of thousands of Canadians annually and making virulent epidemics almost unheard of.

How many people a few years ago knew that malaria germs were spread by the mosquito and that many disease germs were carried broadcast by the common housefly? No greater in number than those were those who realized the efficacy of screens, covered garbage cans, clean yards and the elimination of stagnant water in exterminating the mosquito and the house fly.

A fly in the house is a sign of excessive negligence in this era of sanitation. It is a slur in the poorest tenement districts that the housefly is still given free reign to taint food and carry disease germs from person to person. Neither is the mosquito permitted to infest the malaria germs into the veins of every sleeping human.

To successfully combat the fly and the mosquito the campaign should be launched early in the year. The municipal spring clean-up was designed to rid the home of the winter's accumulation of debris so these fly and mosquito breeding places would not be present when the breeding time arrived. The careful housewife also repairs and installs her windows and door screens before the spring debut of the fly and mosquito.

WAR IMPOSSIBLE

In one of a series of articles which he is contributing to the press, H. G. Wells ridicules the efforts which are being put forth to ban the use of poison gas, bacteria and such unusual death-dealing devices in future wars. Such efforts he attributes to the military class, which he says, desires to perpetuate war, would like to preserve it as a gentlemanly sort of game, and objects to extermination. But Wells' voice is for the development of the means of "chemical warfare" to the utmost limit. He would like to see it made practicable to rain poison gas and high explosives from the clouds, not only upon armies but upon cities, so that whole communities of non-combatants as well as armies in the field or the trenches could be wiped out of existence. This he urges because he is a pacifist. His reason is that it is humanely policy to make war so horrible that the nations will not dare to enter upon it.

His position is logical enough. But it is not new. All the views and arguments were familiar before the present century was born. In 1898 Jean de Bloch, a Polish banker and author, published a book which was widely discussed, entitled "Is War Now Impossible?" Bloch sought to show that such had been the development of military science, and the agencies of destruction were so numerous and terrible, that war would soon be universally recognized as an impracticable folly. Following Bloch, Norman Angell published a famous book "The Great Illusion," in which he proved that for economic reasons there could be no more great wars, for they would spell ruin for victors and vanquished alike.

And the discussion of these theories had not ceased when the greatest war in history broke upon the world. It is important to bank upon the prudence of mankind.

"WHEN HALF GODS GO—"

I'm glad our ship has been delayed so long
And sailed unchanted eons so many years;
Its swift arrival might have stilled my song
And chivalred you of my impassioned tears.

I have grown strong through waiting and through pain;
Have put my soul to more than mortal test,
Through love's dark night on your dream-breast I've lain,
In phantom arms each night have sunk to rest.

"When half gods go, the gods arrive" you said;
How blind I was, how wise you were my own!
The half-god woman that I was is dead,
To your majestic stature I have grown.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

Two facts seem to indicate that in Michigan the life of a murderer is valued more highly than the life of a respectable citizen. One fact is that the Michigan legislature has refused to consider capital punishment for murderers, and the other is that the average duration of "life" imprisonment in Michigan is twelve years.—Hamilton Herald.

Mr. Chevrier who is supporting the Georgian Bay Canal Bill in the House of Commons, is reported to have suggested that an attempt had been made to muzzle the press of the country. At the same time he must have noted that a number of newspapers have been speaking out quite emphatically in opposition to the bill.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Settlement of the controversy with the Old Country holders of Grand Trunk debenture is said to have some thing to do with British capital becoming again interested in Canadian investments, but it will hardly be expected that Canada will make good all future losses.—Toronto Globe.

Queen Marie is planning to increase the strength of the Rumanian navy. Financially, Roumania is experiencing great difficulty in keeping her head above water.—Vancouver Province.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Julian: Has a man ever kissed you while he was driving?

Juliette: I should say not. I've a man doesn't wreck his car while he's kissing me, he isn't giving the kiss the attention it deserves.

"You've made a mistake in your paper," said an indignant man entering the editorial sanctum of a country newspaper. "I was one of the competitors at that athletic contest yesterday and in your report you have called me the well-known lightweight champion."

"Well, aren't you?" inquired the editor.

"No, I'm nothing of the kind, and it's mighty awkward, because I'm a coal merchant!"

NO CLOSING NIGHT

It has been decided by the management of the Night School Classes that there would not be an official closing night at the end of the session which ends on Thursday night, March 31st.

EARLY SEED SOWING

For the second time in his life which has all been devoted to gardening, Mr. George Harris, well-known gardener of this city, sowed best, turnip and spinach seed in March. Mr. Harris is an expensive gardener and is considered as being one of the outstanding horticulturists of this district. He is particularly noted for the fine type of celery which is grown on his property which is so well adapted for this vegetable.

GOLF GAME

Chas. Hubert Jones and Capt. Sidney Gilmour of the local Income Tax played seven holes of golf at the Belleville Golf Club yesterday. Both chose one day that the grounds were in fairly good condition. Doubtless there will soon be a large following of this sport again on the courses.

CITY OFFICIALS IN TORONTO

Mayor C. S. Wilmot, City Solicitor R. J. B. Graham, Alderman R. Wolfe, and City Engineer Charles Campbell were in Toronto yesterday interviewing W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. for West Hastings and the Hon. George Henry, Minister of Highways, regarding the proposed charge against the City of Belleville in the matter of the Bay Bridge reconstruction.

FEW PATIENTS

There is not much illness in the city at present and the local hospital is not nearly filled with patients. This is somewhat of a relief as the Belleville General Hospital was filled to its capacity during most of the past month. "Outside of people having colds, everything is fine in the city," stated Miss Mabel Health Officer to The Intelligencer.

FRACTURED LEFT LEG

Joseph Hough, a resident of Read-neaville, sustained a compound fracture of the left leg yesterday afternoon when he was working with his tractor at his home. The injured man was brought to Dr. W. J. Thompson's surgery, Phoenix Street, where the fractures were X-rayed and reduced. Mr. Hough was able to return to his home after treatment.

MAKING ICE

"We are now making a large quantity of ice and storing it for future use," stated an official of the George K. Graham Cold Storage Plant, to The Intelligencer this afternoon. It was also learned that the ice trucks of this plant have been delivering ice to customers around the city during the winter months. "There is not much produce in store now," added the informant.

DANCE INVITATIONS OUT

Many Bellevillians have received invitations for the Knights of Columbus dance which is to be held in St. Peter's Hall, Trenton, April 18th. Burton E. Till and Orchestra of Toronto will supply the music. The patronesses are Mesdames J. J. Macnab, J. H. Armstrong, G. J. Shoniker, A. J. Doxon, J. M. Hennessey, E. T. McDonald and O. E. Fortune. The committee are: O. E. Fortune, chairman, Dr. A. C. Driscoll, C. L. Allore, F. J. Dedels, G. F. Shoniker, J. J. Hennessey, W. J. Lomotte, L. P. Kann, W. J. Allore, Charles Lamorre, S. H. Genise and J. J. Macnab.

HIGH SCHOOL DANCE

Don Dalrymple, Dill Rodbourne, Jack Cousins, Eddie Day and Ted Riggs, five popular High School students were hosts of a most enjoyable dance given last evening in the Oddfellows' Hall and about one hundred guests had a splendid evening. The patronesses for the affair were pupils of the students and music was supplied by the High School Orchestra until ten thirty o'clock when Jack Desmarais took over the piano. Mr. Art Grouse and partner won the spot light dance which was one of the features of the evening.

STOP STREET AGAIN

Another citizen was assessed $5.00 for violating the city's by-law regarding stop streets when he appeared before Magistrate Mikel this morning. He pleaded guilty to the offense. The police are checking up on motorists failing to obey and the guilty parties will be hailed into court.

IN LONDON

Rev. Archdeacon Beamish with Mrs. Beamish and daughter Hilda, are now living in London, England where Mr. Beamish is doing special preaching. According to letters received from them by relatives in this city they like London very much and are enjoying the best of health.

TENNIS CLUB MEETS

The initial meeting of the Argyle Tennis Club was held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening and arrangements for the coming season were discussed. The chief difficulty presenting itself is the need of good courts. Last season club matches were played on the armouries lawn but these do not fit the needs of the club. Several sites are in view and the matter was thoroughly talked over and in the meantime a committee will look over several proposed spots. The armouries is an ideal location but the club is not permitted to make any improvements and the presence of the rock ball games deters from the play. Delore, Point Anne, Tweed and other places have clay or cinder courts but in this respect Belleville is behind the times.

John Deforest, son of a Baron with $2,000,000 a year income, quarrelled with his father, and is living a truck in Lambeth.

BRILLIANT

which with a smart tailored bow fastened under the upturned collar serve to take away from the rather unfinished appearance of a bobbed neck.

THE DRESSES

The dresses were amazing in their beauty and fashionable lines and colors. Perhaps the most interesting at this time of year, when mid-July is considering bathing at the Club, where one appears practically all of which were two piece models featuring the plaid top with plain skirt. The sweaters were absolutely lovely and included Fraicine, Rose Marie Crepe, flat crepe and georgette. Many of the dresses seemed to have the chic embroidery mostly in floral designs. The more dressy gowns were remarkable in their new lines and contrast of every new material featured set in vestees and colored cuhrendrey.

THE COLORS

There were coats to suit every taste and every purse. Navy blue predominated with equal contrast and many were heavily and beautifully embroidered. Tweed coats which were so new as distinctive that they were almost because for breaking the commandment regarding covering were shown and featured new and some chic lines.

THE HATS

Small hats predominated; there were a few lovely large ones worn with the dressier models but cloche hats were the most worn. The new wood shades were much in evidence while one was very good. "Vert de gris" was a startling lovely shade and was much used in the new crotchet straws. Ribbon bows always been known for its exclusive millinery but this year the management has superceded any previous offerings.

THE CHILDREN

Dorothy Post, Mary Vere Thomson, Agnes Bland, Betty Chapman and Marguerite Russell, four of the city's loveliest little children modeled for the wonderful array of children's dresses. Voile dresses, crepe de chine frocks and sunny girl dresses of quality prints with sun-bonnets were worn by the tiny tots. Also most charming tweed and drapery coats.

DEACON MADE

Deacon made clothes made a big impression on the sport lovers who thronged the store and smartest creations were shown mostly in the plaid and plain combination sport dresses.

All in all the show was a revelation of what wonders fashion can produce for each year supplying new lines, new ideas, new color combinations and matter fact which are to be worn by the smart set during 1927.

NIPISSING: A special general meeting will be held on April 6th after the annual meeting of Coniagnum Mines, Limited, to pass a by-law selling for an increase in the company's capital from five to six million dollars by the creation of 200,000 additional shares of the par value of $5.00 each and providing for the issue and allotment of such new shares in such manner and proposition as the directors see fit.

This significant intention of Coniagnum of raising further moneys by an increase in capital is believed to be for the purpose of building a mill.

POTTER-DOLL: As a result of the four drills put down on the main present showing at the Potter-Doll Mine sinking of a shaft is regarded by the management as fully warranted. This work will be delayed until the snow is off the ground and a thorough survey of the big property is made. It would be imprudent to start shaft sinking while the possibilities of other sections of the property are still unknown.

News and Views for the Average Woman and the Occasional Man

MOTHER'S SACRIFICE FOR HER DAUGHTER

By ELSIE MARLOWE

You've heard of scenes like this. Perhaps you are running one yourself.

They're poverty pure practically bank rupt. The husband was smashed up in an accident a year ago. During his period of disability all their small savings were spent. He's working now, but they are still deeply in debt.

The wife is working, too. For eight months she has worked in factory, doing the hardest kind of manual labor, often lifting very heavy loads. She is a middle-aged, frail woman. She has heart trouble and anemia. At night she's utterly exhausted. She can hardly drag herself to bed. But her heart is radiant—FOR DAUGHTER IS GOING THROUGH COLLEGE!

"She's a wonderful girl," writes Mrs. A. B. "and it would break my heart for her to be deprived of this advantage. My husband is only her step-father, but he loves her as much as I do and is just as proud of her. He says one joy is to think of the chance she is getting."

But now the plot thickens. The neighbors are criticising. They say terrible things about this college daughter who lets her mother work in a factory. The mean things come back to her brothers, as mean things will and she reports indignantly that daughter is helping pay her way through.

"Huh!" say the neighbors, "what that girl earns wouldn't pay for her meals."

"I don't care," retorts the mother, "I want her to have a better chance than I had. I think it's splendid for her to go."

And with anger sharpening her feet, she has written to ask if we don't agree with her.

I'm afraid I'm going to hurt this poor mother still more, for I'm going to answer, NO! I DON'T THINK IT SPLENDID FOR THIS DAUGHTER TO GO THROUGH COLLEGE UNDER THESE CONDITIONS.

No girl can receive an education bought at such a price without some injury to her pride and honor. Can there be lasting "culture" in courses which are the result of a sick mother's slavery in a factory? Your girl may be, by nature, just as sweet and wonderful as you say she is, but if she goes through college on any such arrangement she may develop into a monster of hard ness and selfishness. Every penny she accepts from you or your husband may prove a sword against her.

Don't I believe in higher education? I most certainly do.

But I do not think that a college can really educate the average young person who spends four years in a vague, aimless taking of courses. To such a young girl, four years of work in some trade or profession would be much more educational.

If your girl is actually training for some definite line of work which requires collegiate instruction, a college course may be valuable to her. But even for any possible advantage which she may get in college may be offset by the loss in character which would result from the present arrangement.

That's what I think. Let's have some opinions on this subject. Do YOU feel that this girl should be sent through college at such a price? Are her father and mother helping or harming her?

WHAT IS YOUR OPINION OF COLLEGE EDUCATION IN GENERAL?

One of the most interesting developments reported at Palm Beach is the "kerchief effect which is pointed at back and ends either in a tie or in an embroidered tab in front. This is often of silk if the bodice is of a limited sort or other material, fashion will show in separate serifs which are a matching accessory of the dress, as well as in printed squares which offer a dash of color to a monotone frock.

Compose Fabrics Give Slenderizing Lines

BUTTERICK 1351

A WOMAN of conservative taste need not feel that the new compact mode is only for the very young and the very slim. The larger woman, to be sure, would not choose the frocks which combine three shades in horizontal bands. But she can wear the compact style becomingly in a dress like this, where contrasting fabrics combine in slenderizing lines. Lace—which is very smart this year—makes lower sleeve, collar and interesting vest, which is bound with the crepe de Chine of the frock. The vest binding joins the binding of the shirred tunic to give a long, flattering line.

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Should a young girl let her early teens pick her boy friends or should she take the advice of her parents? We don't object to the going out, but we want her to go with some one of good family who has worth while friends.

Our daughter thinks she should go when and where she wants to and with whom she pleases. She assures us it is none of our business.

M.

M.: I am glad that you have come to me with your problem. If more parents were as concerned with the methods of handling their daughters, as they are with their daughters unmanageability, they would soon discover these very tractable indeed.

The trouble very frequently lies with the parents. There are those who have lost touch with the younger generation and are get-rich. There are those who have been too indulgent through the years of childhood and there are those who are just tactless and domineering.

After all to expect your daughter to accept your judgment without question or reason is acting entirely too much. The first thing parents should realize is that daughter is no longer an impulsive child. In fact, even a child can be reasoned with. It is not enough to order your daughter to do this and not to do that. You must tell her the reason for everything you permit or prohibit.

So much for general advice to mothers who find themselves in your daughter. To you personally, I would suggest a campaign of considerable patience and tact. Have a long talk with your daughter. Tell her that you do not intend to make unreasonable demands upon her. That you would no more think of trying to give her your reasons for your approval or disapproval of the boys she chooses as friends. Tell her that it is her right to pick her friends, but that she must, second, use the privilege of passing judgment—not because you are her mother, but rather because you are her best friend and have had years of experience that she has yet to gain. Explain to her that you are in a better position to judge people and their worth than she is, that she will never benefit much pain and hard knock if she needs your advice.

I can only advise you to be reasonable and fair. Encourage your daughter to come to you with her problems.

HEARTS' HAVEN

CHAPTER LVII.

THE ONLY WAY

Chi-time drew herself gently from Vann's embrace.

"Won't you please take me home now. I'd like to think for a little—alone."

Without comment, he set the car in motion, but, as he turned it to retrace their all day.

"I don't wonder you want to run away from me. It would serve me right if you never set eyes on me again."

She felt a hand on his arm. "You must never say things like that—not even think them."

"I'm desperate tonight," he told her. "Quite without hope."

She could have said: "So am I," but she knew that it is a woman's duty to comfort, so she devised:

"No, no! You mustn't say that, either. Why, Cliff will difference on the whole dreadful muddle make, since we love each other? We tell the boy he's one relative of to know the truth. The fact that we have can't be changed by circumstances. We can go on as before."

"We can't go on!" he said shortly. "It isn't humanly possible."

She sensed with sound him that only a few minutes before he had said that their love couldn't end like that, either. Neither go on, as before, nor end! What then?

But she was too weary to talk any more, too spent with the conflicting emotions of the evening, too stunned by her swift descent from joy to despair. It seemed incredible to her that only a few brief hours had passed since she sped down the steps to greet him, fairly bubbling over with her glad news that Lewis Hayes was about to give her her freedom.

Like a tired child, she lifted her lips for Vance's kiss, when they reached her house. He held her gently and kissed her softly, tenderly.

"My poor little Christine! My sweet beloved. And I bring you nothing but sorrow."

"Hush." Her fingers lay admonishingly against his lips for a moment, and then she was gone.

She went upstairs with dragging feet. All the life seemed to be drained out of her. She went to bed, but sent to sleep and she didn't know that Vane drove all night long, wrestling with his despair.

Next morning she took up the burden of existence again with a courage that surprised herself. There was none of the listlessness, the cringing, the bitterness, that had followed the previous blow that Fate had dealt her. The fact Vane loved her gave her courage. She felt that whatever happened now she would be brave enough to face it and not go under—unless it was losing Vane. She told herself that she could never endure that.

But what was they to do? She would soon be free, but he was tied forever to a vindictive woman. He himself said they could not go on as they were at present. Yet they could but not reach either up!

In an endless circle these thoughts whirled round and round in Christine's brain all day.

What was to be the outcome? Was there no solution? No way to happiness for either of them?

Vane came to see her that night. His face was pale with fatigue; his eyes looked blurred out. She stepped into his car without a word, and they drove up-town in silence.

The day was gray and cheerless. Twilight was settling over the city. Leaving clouds presaging snow, were banking up in the west. The Hudson, as they turned into Riverside Drive, looked dark and cold-ish.

Christine shivered. Everything seemed cold and lifeless.

Quite abruptly, without turning his head, Vane spoke:

"Christine, I spent all of last night and all of today trying to think of a way out. There is only one."

She looked at him half-fearfully. Did he mean that they should give each other up?

"Can't you guess what it is?"

"No," she said slowly.

Another and even more frightening suspicion was dawning in her. He was going to suggest the thing that Sunfood would have offered her!

She cried out, quickly: "Don't tell me!"

Even in their desperation she mustn't let him soil the beauty and purity of their love, she thought.

He planned down at her momentarily, and his eyes were very tender and under standing.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads, one now wears absorbent hooks and gowns with never a fear of embarrassment. e another important factor, it deodorizes thoroughly, thus ending danger of offending.

Doctors and nurses now widely large it. 8 in every 10 better-class women employ it.

BELLE THEATRE

"The Home Maker," a Universal Jewel King Baggot attraction featuring Alice Joyce and Clive Brook and a splendid supporting cast of screen favorites, opens today at the Belle theatre. And the screen adaptation of Dorothy Canfield's famous story of the same name, it is a picture that is said to be of particular interest to married couples, young and old, and overlooking those persons of both sexes who are contemplating embarking upon the sea of wedded life. The story that it tells is one that is of daily occurance in the households of this and other countries.

No eternal triangle finds its way into "The Home Maker," yet there is the tragedy of a man and a woman whose roads diverged at the altar. The characters that flash on and off the screen are familiar types.

The average reader are birds of a feather with Lester Knapp and many are playing in daily life the role of Eva, his wife. There are also the characters portrayed by Brook and Miss Joyce. The Knapp home might be one's own.

Lester Knapp is only one of those thousands, so well known to everyone, daily plodding over endless rows of figures, wishing to be somewhere else, but not knowing where, and not daring to leave his desk to go there, even if he knew. The haunting sensation of knowing that an advance in salary is near, and that infamous sensation of not getting the expected raise,—these lights and tragedies of daily life are the stew of what is said to be a great American drama, listed as the best thing King Baggot has yet produced.

CAPITOL THEATRE

A good turnout at the Capitol Theatre last night greeted the second presentation of "The Passionate Quest," the picture film adapted from the Phillips Oppenheim Story, starring May McAvoy, Willard Louis, Louise Fazenda and an all star cast. Following the scenes of the glittering night life of London and Paris, but above all, the great dancer scene in the Hotel Savoy, London, is the high spot in an unusually good picture, and a scene that is assured worth the price of admission.

A clean refined professional Vaudeville Act with a whole lot of merit is presented across the first three days of the week, in a clever hand balancing act a man and his dog—it is a number that will merit the excellent reception that its performance received last night, and is among the best acts the Capitol has received patrons the first three days of this show; the entire offering is one well worth seeing, and entertainment of high order.

CAMBRIDGE IS FAVORITE FOR BIG BOAT RACE

London, Eng., March, 29.—(Canadian Press Despatch)—The great annual boat race between Oxford and Cambridge, to be rowed over the time-honored stretch of the Thames from Putney to Mortlake, on Saturday afternoon April 2nd, will dramatically climax the final works of lumdreds but several training undergone by both crews.

Impartial critics believe Cambridge's crew this year a shade better than Oxford's, although conceding that the Oxford crew's training form may be improved by the day of the race. Cambridge has won the last three races in succession, and in fact every one since the war except one, in 1923. On the basis erics, however, Oxford has a mile lead over the Light Blues in recent efkent rhythm. About a month before the race his wax kept from training by indisposition, but it was believed that he would be fit for the actual race, and would return to training before the big encounter. The crew as a whole is rhythmical, with an impression of real "punch" and their rowing is easy. J. A. Thomson, Old Blue and stroke of the oarsmen, has steered Cambridge to a win in each of the last three years.

The Oxford crew is not considered up the Light Blues. Their defeat last year was very unfortunate, caused as it was by the collapse of H. E. A. Edwards, old Westminster boat who was a passenger for the last half of the race. One of the Dark Blues' strongest men this year is C. T. C. Edwards, Christ Church, who at oarsmen seven has been in training; at least, a little less than the high standard expected of him. Kingsbury and Rich loose six and five respectively, are as good as the crew of Cambridge's boat with the aid of Edwards. If the latter regains his form, will turn the crew into a really fast eight, according to the critics.

Hundreds of thousands of people will watch the race, from the conceivable points of vantage along the whole course and the celebration in London's West End, particularly if Oxford wins, will be like a Race Night to be remembered ed for a long time.

The crews, in order and weights, are as follows:

OXFORD—
N. E. Whiting (Worcester) Bow 160 pounds; 2- P. Johnson (Magdalen) 167 pounds; 3- R. W. Shaw (Christ Church) 172 pounds; 4- J. W. D. Dodds (Univ carsity) 182 pounds; 5 s-W. Rathbone (Christ Church) 185 pounds; 6- H. T. Kingsbury (Queens) 187 pounds; 7- S-E. C. T. Edward (Christ Church) 173 pounds; 8- S. Lloyd-Lyn (Balliol) Stroke 161 pounds; Cox Jame Croft (Brasenose) Cox 126 pounds.

CAMBRIDGE—
Hon. J. K. Macfay (First Trinity) Bow 132 pounds; 2- T. E. Letchworth (Christ's) 164 pounds; 3- C. Holroyd (Pembroke) 164 pounds; 4- R. Beloby (First Trinity) 172 pounds; 5- s-L. V. Harcourt (Trinity Hall) 179 pounds; 6- s-J. R. H. Collins (Jesus) 178 pounds; 7- s-J. K. Tubbs (Christ's) 185 pounds; 8- J. Elles (Trinity Hall) Stroke 160 pounds; cl. A. Brown (Caius) Cox 124 pounds.

X—An Old Blue.

STEPS TAKEN TO ORGANIZE LADIES' SOFT BALL ASSO.

Great Enthusiasm Manifested in First Meeting of Proposed Club

The first step towards organizing an Association to govern softball in the city among the ladies was started last evening when a representative gathering of men interested in the ladies game got together in the Y.M.C.A. building and started the ball rolling.

A committee composed of men was chosen to draft a constitution and applications from the different clubs will be received until April 15th. The idea is to have the softball association govern all girls teams in the city and Fortyhille and Point Anne.

M. P. Duff was appointed secretary. Treasurer and applications for membership must be placed in his hands. The other needs re of the committee are A. G. Meagher and Steve Lorrice.

Every club should be affiliated with this new organization and the managers of each girls club in the city should get in touch with one of these men. The committee were given full power to act in making arrangements to place the association on a standard basis.

The following teams were represented last evening:

Oxford Co., E. W. Worth; Frontenac, Mr. Mascerelli; Green Club, F. Vannorman; Mr. Hyslop; St. Andrew's A.A., Mr. Pringle; Tigers, H. McDonald; Foster Ward, Jas. McKenna; Bowers, Miss Cooke and Miss Wortman and Vera Weir and M. P. Duff.

A. G. Meagher, President of the Bay of Quinte League, presided and read a portion of the Constitution of the Toronto Association. The local organizing will follow along the same lines.

Each club joining will be governed by the rulings of the association.

It is the only way to handle the growing softball game among the girls in the city.

QUEBEC ROADS IN GOOD SHAPE

Quebec, March 30.—Should the present mild weather continue, all the roads of the province will be open by April 1st, it was announced by J. L. Boulanger, Deputy Minister of Highways this morning. The latest reports from the different centres show that nearly all the roads are in pretty good shape, he said.

Fred Mackrory, shamless relief hurler of the Washington Senators, repeated the same yesterday with two out in the ninth, and the Senators tied the Brooklyn team, four all, in eleven innings.

Reports from the southern training headquarters of the Toronto Baseball Club are most encouraging. Manager Fohl is more than pleased with the manner in which his athletes are coming along and he expects a great deal of the trio shoe there. Lucas, at the left, is a right hander of much experience. He was with the Aussies Club of the Soly League last season. Bob Emslie, centre, is a short stopper of proved ability and Manager Fohl is confident that he will make the task forget Otis Miller. Lamotte, who is a first baseman, was with the Browns last summer. Bottomley, at the right, is a left-hander and looks the part. He is a collegian.

INDUSTRIAL SOFT BALL LEAGUE TO OPEN THURS. EVE.

Tomorrow evening at the Armouries the City Industrial Softball League will open. A double-a-day has been arranged for opening night and with four strong teams line up a fine evening of entertainment is assured. The proceeds from opening night will go to the Children's Aid Camp Fund and it is desired to avail this fund as much as possible.

In the first game the Tiger girls will clash with the Canoe, of Corbyville, and both teams are claiming a victory. The girls have been getting in some good practice and are eager to get on the diamond and do their stuff. The ball will be introduced to some new players by both managers.

In the boys game the Albert College team will stock up against a worthy foe in the Corbyville squad. The students are reported to have some smart players among their ranks and Coach Hardy Hill is predicting a win for his team.

These games will be fast. See them! Allan Meagher will umpire.

LEAGUE LEADERS BATTLE TONIGHT

Two Undefeated Teams Cross Bats in Indoor League

Tonight at 8 p.m. the two undefeated teams in the Mrs. L. Jones circle, Bay Bridge's Point Anne boys entertain Y. Weir's Y's men, neither team has lost a game so this should be best game that has been played in the Armouries to date. Weir has both Knott and Naphin all groomed to do the pitching for the Y boys, while both Pettis and Lynn (the sensational Toronto boy) to go the receiving along with Symons, Anderson, Weir and Armstrong in the infield and Brown (of Hamilton), Scott (of Kingston), Jerry Hooley, Mouzar and a couple of more sluggers to scamper around in the outfield. The Y boys are conded the hardest hitters in the league so "Sonny" Green will have to be right "on" tonight if the Cement boys expect to turn the trick. It is expected that the Pointers will start the same line-up as before with Green and Gover as battery. The game starts at 8 p.m. sharp so be on hand early.

The second game at 9 p.m. finds two teams having each other that have not lost a game as yet, when the High School vs Patricias fare each other this night. See the best game that has ever been in the Armouries under girls' softball. The Fairborn girls will oppose each other in the "box" tonight with Ann tossing them for Pats and Mar ion Heaving for High School, both girl are determined to win the game so girls battle is assured. Both teams will stick as near as possible to the lineup that has kept them in first place so far. Last one or the other must go down in a second game tonight so get four "ope and "rays" for the best team of the game starts at 9.30 p.m.

Don't forget that the above girls are the leading record of the city and is expected to be the battle for first place.

M'GRAW CLAIMS CHANCES BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

Fiery Pirate of Gothamite Celebrates 25 Years Service With Club

St. Augustine, Fla., March 30—John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, is celebrating his silver jubilee this year as the manager of the New York club, and he is hearing down with every thing to win another National pennant.

The Giants will start as one of the favorites for the championship. It is a strong defensive club, and probably will have one of the heaviest attacks in the league.

With Hornsby at second base, McGraw feels that he has perfected his infield defense with a double-play combination—Tinker to Evans to Chance.

With Lindstrom at third base, Jackson at short, Hornsby at second and Terry on first base, the Giants have a powerful defensive and defensive combination, but the outfield is still unsettled.

Eddie Roush, who has a hate against spring training campaigns, hasn't reported, but it is almost certain that he will be in center field before the season is far advanced.

Without Pep Young in right field, the Giant outfield will be handicapped offensively, but Young and Roush are of the best players in the game.

McGraw needs one more veteran pitcher and it is probable he will get Alex Ferguson from the Cincinnati Reds.

AS McGRAW SEES IT

With Giants, St. Augustine, March 30—The New York Giants, I believe are a much stronger club than we had last year, but it must not be forgotten that the competition in the pennant race will be more strenuous than it was last season.

The Pirates, the Reds, the Cardinals and the Cubs will be strong contenders with our club, and the Dodgers will be of the greatest importance.

The Giants have, in my opinion, the best infield in baseball and we will not lack for strength in the outfield despite the tardiness of Eddie Roush in reporting.

I have heard it said that we are not strong enough in catchers, but I am satisfied. If I had any serious doubts about a weakness behind the bat I would not have made the trade which sent Walter Henline to Brooklyn.

I have been in the business too many years to make rash predictions, but I feel that the Giants are as fine one of the best clubs in the league and that we will be serious contenders.

3 TEAMS ARE GIVEN CHANCES IN AM. LEAGUE

New York, March. 30—Even since the Boston Braves of 1914 started a miracle drive that gave a rank outsider and a National League championship and a world's series victory in straight games over the Philadelphia Athletics, there has been a disposition to figure that no team in major league baseball is entirely without a chance for the pennant.

But the Braves of 1914 were a miracle and there isn't one manager in baseball who would not trade his chance of a miracle for one good 200 hitter. The miracle for one good 200 hitter. The immortal lore is like that old story about the little boy, who was told in school that every American youngster has a chance to become president.

"I'll sell my chance for a nickel," he said.

Sixteen clubs in the major league have the right to a championship, but of the sixteen, there are six clubs, whose chances are as favorable as that of the legendary snowball in the familiar locality.

Throwing out 1914 miracles, 1926 surprises by the Cardinals and Yankees, and any other upsets that might be recalled, there are only two guesses—a right one and a wrong.

Exercising the conventional right to guess and take the chances, it looks as if—

The Philadelphia Phillies, the Boston Braves and the Boston Red Sox haven't a miracle's worth of chances.

The Brooklyn Robins, the Chicago Cubs, and the St. Louis Browns have chances worth fifty to one straight.

EDMONTON GRADS WIN

Edmonton, March 29.—The Commercial Grads defeated Vancouver Canucks 54-20 here last night in the first of a two game series for the Western Canada Ladies' Basketball Championship.

Red Pepper Rub takes the "ouch" from sore, stiff, aching joints. It cannot hurt you, and it certainly stops that old rheumatism torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat, in three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Al Harmless Examination

There is no annoyance nor distress in my examination. Even the smallest child can submit to it without the least nervousness. No drugs are used and the procedure all the way through is as harmless as having the photograph taken. The time required varies from a few minutes to maybe an hour in more difficult cases. Only good can come from a visit here as thousands will testify.

PRESENTED WITH CLUB-BAG BY BARBERS' ASSOC.

Prices of Hair-cuts and Shaves Increase on April First

At the local barbers' association meeting held last evening at T. Sullivan's barber shop, attended by all barbers of this city, it was agreed that commencing April 1st the price of a hair cut would be forty cents instead of thirty-five and that of a shave would also be accepted five cents. The barbers also decided to close Wednesday afternoon between April and December 1st.

The officers of the association were also elected for the ensuing year. Mr. James Skinner who has held the office of president for more than a dozen of years was again re-elected to that office and also presented with a beautiful leather club bag as a token of his untiring efforts in furthering the town-ails interest in this city. The address was read by Amasa Bennett and the presentation made by C. R. Belnap. The address is as follows—

THE BELLEVILLE BARBERS OF BELLEVILLE.

Mr. Jabbo Skinner:—

President of the Boot Barbers Society of Belleville.

Friend Jim:—

The Boot Barbers of Belleville feel that at this time and place they should put on record in some fitsnible way their deep appreciation of your kindly counsel and guidance as president of this society and being at all times willing to give us the benefit of your long experience in the trade. We pay honor to you as the Dean of the Barber Trade in Belleville, the oldest barber here, and still young strong, and as up-to-date as the youngest among us. We ask you to accept this address and this club bag as a token of our warm friendship and respect and trust that you may long be spared to train the exhuberant bock of the body politic and that you will hold up nearly on all occasions and that under your engineers will get it in the neck while the close shave will all go to the man in the chair. May your shadow never grow less and may the locks of the ladies never grow longer than at the present and may you live to see Sunday when customers will try and make us take a dollar for a shave and a dollar for a hair cut. Just let them try it, what?

PRESENTATION MADE AT REBECCA LODGE

President Sister Brett, of Napanee, paid her official visit to Gilford Rebekah Lodge No. 230 Frankford on Thursday evening 1st and an enjoyable and profitable evening was spent by all present.

After the business of the Lodge had been completed the degree staff under the direction of Staff Captain Sister Florence Smith put on the Rebekah degree. Thanking the members in a few well chosen words, the recipient of the handsome gift also gave a splendid address of instructions and helpful suggestions after a dainty supper consisting of which was spent by all present who included representatives from Belleville and Frankford. The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

"This is a poor place for a ride," he said presently, "it's too much like a prison. I wish we were somewhere then could stretch their legs. If they try here, one of those policemen follows hard on his heels, and you have to stop. This London of yours is hirbly small."

She looked at him attentively, without appearing to do so, and she noticed that already some of the tan had left his face that his eyes looked tired. She knew that he had come in late again last night, for she had been awake — not only awake, but thinking of him—and she had heard the hall door close just three o'clock in the morning, had heard his firm step on the stairs. His face was pale, and as he sat silent, for she was old enough to know that such a man as Rale would be subjected to some of the innumerable temptations of this vortex we call London. But the weariness disappeared from Rale's eyes after a while, for her presence was waking the joy in his heart; but all the while he was watching the man keenly and Rale he stared to Maude to halt, alighted, and rearranged and loosened the mare's curb.

"She's tremendously high-bred," he said, "you can ride her on the snaffle."

"Nothing escapes you, Straafyre," she said, laughing but pleased by all the time.

"Why, of course, I'm answerable for her," he said, then, with a sigh, he added: "I wish we were out in the country."

"That's a wish easily gratified," she observed with a smile. "Why do you not go up to Scotland, Straafyre? Every thing is ready. Hughes only waiting to leave London as soon as you're ready to leave London as well."

"I've had about enough of London," said Rale. "Shall go up to the Scotland to-morrow," he added decisively.

"To-morrow! I don't know that we could go so quickly as that—but the day after. Oh, by the way, Straafyre," she went on, turning him with a touch of color in her face, "would you like to come on with you? Perhaps you'd rather go alone?"

Rale looked at her and then laughed. The laugh was answer enough, and it turned the touch of color in her face to a deeper blush.

"I reckon I can put up with you, Lady Maude—why, what did you think?" he demanded suddenly.

Her eyes were bent on the mare's ears for a moment, then she looked at him and smiled.

"I shall be very glad to go," she said "I shall have no more things to show you or, if I have, Gledyne very well you know. Oh, it's a lovely place—but I won't tell you about it; I won't spoil your pleasure, and sometimes, in doing so unwittingly, and I want to be with you when you see it first."

"Say, that's more of you," he said "and I wouldn't enjoy it so much if you weren't there to show it to me."

He was very easy going, every now and then he leaned forward to let his cheek touch the mare's head, or to caress the mane, and sometimes, in doing so he touched the perfectly gloved hands of the mare's mistress. He began to talk, to tell her of the long rides on half-broken horses through deep valleys and over the swelling hills in the country he had left. His eyes shone with that peculiar brilliance which lit them up when he was happy, his suddenly his voice faltered and the light died out of his eyes. A hot-cross was coming toward him, and Rale's keen eyes saw that it was Lord Sunborne. He was riding a park hack—a quiet as a leopard rabbit. Sunborne, sitting like a sack, was nodding along with his eyelids and his vacant smile, which, at sight of Maude, turned into as vacant a grin of familiar recognition. He touched his hat to Rale in a casual way which speeds the blood of poor Rale's face, and, now as he sat Maude, said, with a drawl but one quite unlike Rale's:

"Morning, Lady Maude! I am more or less sorry to see you out so soon after last night. Most pleasant evenin', Lord St. Ives well? Hasn't New Issue left it?"

"Yes; one Lord Straafyre has been breaking in for me. Isn't she a beauty Lord Maude."

Sunborne surveyed the horse through his glass, then surveyed Rale in exactly the same fashion, as if he were another horse.

"Really!" he said, with mild surprise. "Really! Reckon, isn't it? Best to employ a professional; there's a very good man in South Audley Street, at the mews, I believe."

Sunborne did not mean to be offensive; it was just an expression of gentle surprise that Rale should ride Rale's fare, and that peculiar redness came into the whites of his eyes which always show it there when he was getting angry.

"Say now, Mr. Sunborne—oh, Lord Sunborne, isn't it—do you reckon your self in the know about horse flesh?"

"Do I reckon?" said Sunborne, staring at him. "No, how's aren't in my line."

"So I should say," said Rale, eying Sunborne's tame quadruped with grim scorn.

"I shoot," said Sunborne plaintily.

"Well, it's to be hoped that you shoot better than you ride," said Rale.

Not in the least offended, Sunborne nodd'd calmly.

"Well, I do," he said. "Then, as if the conversation with Rale were indeed he addressed himself to Maude, and began to talk of his and her friends, of this and that pony, as if Rale were not present.

Rale stood it for a time, then he said rudely: "I'm going home, Lady Maude."

"Morning," said Sunborne, before she could speak. "I'll take care of Lady Maude."

"Yes?" Rale from Rale, with supressed contempt; then he checked himself, and said, slowly and quietly: "Lady Maude's coming with me. That's all right, Lord Sunborne, and said:

"I don't believe there's any cause for anxiety, but I'm in Straafyre's charge. Good-by."

KEEP KIDNEYS CLEAN, DRINK MORE WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, excess headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get from any druggist about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no long er irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorder.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. FAILURE TO REPORT ACCIDENT RESULTS IN POLICE COURT FINE

Accused Said He Was Looking For Police Station at Wharf

At police court this morning before Magistrate Mikel, Clair Brennan of Lonsdale was charged with driving a car while under the influence of liquor and also of being in charge of a motor car and a party in a collision and failing to remain or return to the scene of accident and render aid, both charges occurring on the evening of March 26th. On the first charge the accused was acquitted after pleading not guilty and upon the second he admitted the fact and was fined fifty dollars and twelve dollars and sixty-five cents costs which was paid. R. C. Donnan appeared for the Crown and J. D. O'Flynn for Brennan.

Clair Brennan, the accused, under oath stated that he had never taken a drink in his life. The accused stated that he was driving down Pinnacle Street between nine and nine-thirty on the night in question and tried to turn at Campbell Street when he felt his car striking that of Bernard Brown's, he then immediately swerved his car around and struck the tree at the southwest corner of Campbell and Pinnacle Streets and then noticed that the glass of his windshield was smashed. Brennan stated in his solicitor that he was a stranger in Belleville and did not know the city very well and this way accounted for his being around down near Wharf Street, when he stated he was trying to locate the police station and inform them about the accident.

Smelled Liquor

B. W. Brown, owner of the car in which the accused collided, Sergt. D. T. Boyd, who was at the police station when the accused was brought in on the night in question, March 26th and Police Officer William Evans who made the arrest, all in the witness box, swore that they smelled liquor on the breath of the accused, but his voice was thick and his eyes inflamed.

On the other hand, Ex-Warden Wade of Trenditnaga, Robert Kinyear sites of that township and a

UNDESIRABLES KILLED OFF CHEAP BY CHINK ASSASSINS

Shanghai, March 31.—Ten dollars is the price of assassination in Shanghai, evidence to this effect was given in a case dealt with by the provincial court, in which a Chinese was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of a Local Policeman in a British citizen mill. The prisoner confessed that he shot a woman at the instance of a prominent member of the General Labor union, who gave him ten dollars before hand. He said the gun was loaned to him by a Labor leader.

ANTI-AMERICAN AGITATION GROWS WORSE IN CHINA

Warring Factions Tear Down American Flag on U. S. Consulate

SIX CHINESE KILLED

Defense Forces Augmented and Barbed Wire Stretched in Street

Shanghai, March 31. (C.P.)— A party of forty-seven British and Americans evacuated from Nanking by the United States destroyer Hulbert has reached the International Settlement here with another story of excesses by mobs here upon doing harm to foreigners. They said that before embarking at Nanking they were attacked and stoned by an angry mob.

As foreign refugees continue to find shelter, within the barriers of the International Settlement and the situation in Native quarter of Shanghai grows more interesting with a new general strike in prospect, defence force authorities are unquestionably necessary of letting up a great harb wire barrier stretching the length of avenue Edward VII.

The general situation in Yangtze Valley and in Shanghai is as strained as ever. Reports from up the river point to show increasing anti-foreign agitation, especially in Nanking and Hankow.

TEAR DOWN FLAG

Shanghai, March 31-(C.P.)—Chinese at Chunking on the Yangtze River in Szechwan province have torn down and destroyed the American flag on the United States consulate.

Anti-Americanism there has grown to such proportions that United States business houses are being closed and Americans are concentrating near the waterfront. The Consul and vice-consul are reported to have taken up quarters on gunboat Monocacy.

Shanghai, March 31. (C.P.)—Chinese casualties from Anglo-American bombardment of Socony Hill, Nanking, last Thursday were measured by Rear-Admiral Commander, Chang Kai Shek, in statement today, as six killed and fifteen wounded, with the majority of victims civilians. From forty to fifty houses were destroyed.

Chang emphasized that full and accurate report was not yet available and that these figures were subject to revision.

Shanghai, March 31.—This is first definite estimate of the number of Chinese killed by guns from United States naval authorities against "what I consider unjustified bombardment of city." Chang's statement was given as before bombardment" he added, "and no time was allowed in which to take measures to protect foreign lives and property. No ironclad military authorities consider the bombardment with good justification" and our advisers here in Nanking are deeply amazed and incensed."

London, March 31.—All Britishers at Nanking, Hankow province, except the Consul and another operator, are reported by exchange telegraph to have departed for Shanghai. One remains to remain there.

DOG OWNERS LAX IN PROCURING TAGS

"So far only about twenty dog tags have been sold this year" stated Sergt. Dan T. Boyd to the Intelligencer today. In answering the reporter's question as to how many dogs there were in Belleville, the police officer said "about six hundred and all dog owners have until June 1st for the purchasing of licenses for their canines."

BURNING MARSHES HARM WILD LIFE

A letter has been received from A. B. Casey, Timber Inst. and Game Warden at Ottawa, by the local overseer, J. J. Lyons relative to the burning of marshes along the shores of the Bay of Quinte during the bird nesting time. The letter states that several complaints in this matter have been received requesting that some action be taken. If it is necessary to burn the marshes the department suggests that it be done in the autumn after the ducks have gone south or in the spring before nesting begins. This is detrimental to wild life and should be observed.

MISS M'DOUGALL TO LEAVE CITY

Expects to go Abroad During Early Summer Months

"I expect to leave Belleville next Wednesday" stated Miss MacDougall, Manager of the Regent Theatre and late manager of the Griffin Theatre to the Intelligencer this afternoon.

Miss MacDougall will go to Iroquois, Ontario, from Belleville, where she will remain for some time visiting friends. Miss MacDougall expects to join Miss Daly, MacColl, Church Street, this city, in June when they will take a trip to England for the summer months.

Miss MacDougall during her nearly three years stay in Belleville made a host of friends who will regret her departure from Belleville and wish her every success wherever she might choose to locate. Miss MacDougall has been feted with many parties and teas during the past few weeks prior to her departure from Belleville.

J. C. McCarthy, owner and proprietor of the Bell Theatre has leased the Morton piping house from A. B. Hugg.

CATS REAR FOXES

George Graham Introduces Novel Experiment on His Farm

One of the most interesting places in this district at the present time is the large fox farm of George K. Graham on the Trent Road. Here are thirty large silver foxes and many baby foxes. As many of the mother foxes either will not rear their young ones or are cruel to them, Mr. Graham has bought a large number of mother cats with their kittens for rearing the young foxes. Of course the cats have to be separated from the older foxes, but they are extremely kind to the baby foxes, who are not much larger than kittens in size. Both the baby foxes and baby cats live in harmony together with the mother cat.

Bill Becomes Effective Upon Proclamation— Signed by Lt.-Gov.

Toronto, March 31.—The proclamation of the new liquor control bill, which was signed by the lieutenant governor yesterday, is not likely to be reached until the second week in May. The bill will become effective upon the proclamation. The state of the proclamation, it is understood, rests largely on the time needed to complete the machinery for sale and distribution of liquor. It is believed the government hopes to have every facility in readiness before the bill is proclaimed.

MARCH AN UNUSUAL MONTH THIS YEAR

March weather this year was the exception which proved the rule. According to traditions if the windy month comes in like a lion it goes out like a lamb and vice versa but this year it glided in with a nice warm breeze and today it is going out just as it came in with a temperature of 42. It is the first time in the memory of oldest citizens that the month has not either made its debut or adieu in a tempestuous manner and many claim that the unusual weather portends a rough April.

THOMPSON STORE TO BE EXTENDED

Front St. Block to be Completely Remodelled to Suit Needs

"The specifications were only given out yesterday and I do not expect any tenders for four or five days yet" stated Chauncey Adair, the Belleville agent for Loblaw's Groceterias, who are opening a store in this city in a short time, to the Intelligencer when asked when the alterations to the store secured by them would commence.

Mr. Adair informed the reporter that Loblaw's would occupy the whole north half of the Thompson Furniture store, including the portion now occupied by Dr. N. E. Edwards, optometrist. "Loblaw's will extend their hall of the building back right to the rear for the erection of a new addition," said he.

The William Thompson Furniture Company will occupy the portion of the store next to the Walker store and Dr. Edwards will have his quarters in an office which will be built between Loblaw's and Thompson's and will be about the same in size as that which he now occupies.

PARTY RETURNS AFTER SURVEY

Alderman A. B. Collins, Alderman Robert Gorman and Mr. W. A. Hardden, manager of the local Bell Telephone, returned on inspection of the Claplanta at Toronto, Kitchener and Guelph last night. During the three days, the party making a complete investigation of those gas companies.

When seen by the Intelligencer this morning, Mr. Gorman stated that Toronto had a wonderful plant and system. The plant is of private ownership. The plants at Kitchener and Guelph the electrical and gas department are under one Public Utilities Commission. Both companies were very accommodating, showing us everything, the whole plant and books", said Mr. Gorman.

"Kitchener and Guelph have two fine cities with a very little percentage above the rate. The plants of those Companies are more up-to-date than the local gas commission.

DR. T. T. SHIELDS, LEADER OF FORCES OPPOSING CHURCH MEASURE

Ottawa, March 31.—A bill granting the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec disciplinary powers was approved by the private bills committee of the House of Commons today, after an extended discussion during which differences in the convention were aired.

Opposition to the bill was led by Dr. T. T. Shields, Toronto.

The contentious clause in the bill gives the convention power by a three-fifths vote to "declare that any Church, conduct or attitude of which in the opinion of the said convention, is not in harmony and cooperation with the work and objects of said convention and thereupon any and all delegates of any such church in attendance at such meeting shall cease to be delegates and any church shall cease to be entitled to send delegates to any meeting of said convention."

Toronto, March 31.—Violent deaths numbered 62 in this city during the month of March, with automobile accidents leading in the list. Nine persons were killed or died from injuries in automobile accidents. These figures are declared highest in history of the city. There were seven suicides.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Adversity rises now, but virtue struggles after times regardless of the adverse heights.

ITALICUS.

SORRY SPECTACLE

The bill providing for a renewal of the charter of the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay company was given its second reading in the house of commons in spite of vigorous protests from the premiers of Ontario and Quebec that it constitutes a violation of provincial rights, and in spite of the fact that the public has evinced its opposition in decisive manner. The federal government has contemptuously ignored public sentiment, and by so doing has forfeited the confidence of the people. If the bill is of the innocent nature it pretends to be, why should those who voted for its second reading deem it expedient to apologize for their action and go so far as to express the hope that it will be killed either in committee or on its third reading, should it survive the committee stage?—

The government was obviously embarrassed. It knew quite as well as the opposition what should be done, but deliberately evaded its duty. No one could have spoken more determined ly against the bill than the minister of customs and yet, shocked to the core of party, he failed to strike a blow for popular rights. Later on, perhaps after further waste of time and money and patience, he will summon up courage to assert his independence and do what he admits will have to be done, unless the electorate is to be callously betrayed. As a member representing the "birth-place" of Ontario's Hydro-Electric enterprise, he cannot deny the enormity of the menace, but it is merely a matter of method where the bill shall be done to death."

It is his hope that the committee will assume the task of the executioner, but, if not, he promises to vote against it when it comes back to the house; for, he said, "it is almost unthinkable that control and ownership of such vast water powers should be placed in private hands." Unthinkable as it is, that is precisely what the action of Mr. Euler and those who voted as he did renders possible.

The battle is not over yet, though the preliminary skirmish marks the triumph of private interests as opposed to public interests. Developments at Ottawa make it all the more imperative that the public should be on the alert and increase the aggressiveness of its opposition. Premier Ferguson may be relied upon to do everything in his power to safe-guard the interests of Ontario, and Premier Taschereau will take an equally strong stand for Quebec. If necessary, the matter will be fought out in the courts of law. Let us trust, however, that the proposition will yet be given the "coup de grace" it so richly deserves by the people's chosen representatives in parliament.

SAD ENDING

Resolutions passed by the Imperial Conference are not to be submitted to Parliament for approval. This is the neatest blow yet dealt to Mr. King's "Magna Charta." For if the Imperial Conference is merely advisory, consultative body, without executive, binding or legislative power, and what it says or advises is left unratified by the Empire's Parliaments then what in the world does it matter what the Conference advises or says?

When Mr. King returned from England he made very play with the claim that the status of the Governor-General had been changed. But if the Imperial Conference itself has no power to change anything—a fact that everybody admits—and the Parliament of Canada takes no action at all in the matter, then wherein and how the change? And the same thing, of course, applies to everything else in the ornate little essay penned for the adroit Lord Balfour.

The fact is, of course, that Mr. King is stretching his own point. It was a gratuitous concession to persuade absent-minded Mr. King discovered that Quebec didn't like it—a word from Mr. Taschereau was sufficient. After that Mr. King journeyed up to Toronto and declared his offering; and although Mr. Cahan has rescued it from somewhere and wants to leave it on the Premier's doorstep, Mr. King's head is alarmed. It is a sad ending for a brave beginning. We can almost hear the racing of typewriters, like the ominous roll of distant thunder, as the editor of the Manitoba Free Press prepares his bolo against the apostates from his cause. After so long and deep a silence—it is since coinciding with the Georgian Bay Canal charter in Parliament—he must be eager for battle.

SPRING MEDICINE

There is a widespread belief that in the springtime it is necessary to build-up at least desirable, to swallow doses of "spring medicine." The theory is that the eating of heavy food during the winter, with less physical exercise than we are in summer, has caused poisons to accumulate in the blood, which need to be neutralized and expelled by means of certain "blood-purifiers" or tonics. If this is a superstition it is one which is widely prevalent in all northern countries where there is real winter. And so the careful mother does all the youngsters with sulphur and molasses or the equivalent of that repellent compound "Sarsaparilla" and the fearless spring medicine and cocaine of it were consumed about this time of the year; but it seems to have gone out of fashion.

It is more than doubtful if this course of spring dosing is very helpful. Certainly it is not necessary to health. Dr. Theodore B. Appel, state secretary of health in Pennsylvania, suggests something better—something so simple and easy that people who rely on medicine for health, as it ridiculous. Here is this experienced doctor's prescription: (1) Restriction in the use of meat; consumption of more fruit and vegetables. (2) Eight hours of sleep each night. (3) Plenty of work and a good day-dark of play."—That is all.

And the best of it is that this regimen is not good for spring only, but is worth observing all the year round.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

He was a stranger in the neighborhood and had been brought to a dance at the local deaf and dumb hospital by an old friend, the doctor.

"How on earth can I ask a deaf and dumb girl to dance?" he asked, a trifle anxiously.

"Just smile and bow to her," replied the doctor.

So the young man picked out a pretty girl and bowed and smiled. Again she bowed and smiled, and away they danced.

They danced not only one dance that evening but three, and he was on the point of asking her for another when a strange man approached his partner and said, soulfully:

"I say, darling, when are we going to have another dance? It's almost an hour since I had one with you."

"I know, dear," answered the girl "but I don't know how to get away from this deaf and dumb fellow!"

Lois, returning late from the theatre, found her sister Leatrice wrapped in absorption over a letter.

"Cut of grandmother's love letters," explained Leatrice, looking up.

"Gracious!" exclaimed Lois. "Isn't it terribly quaint and old-fashioned? It mustn't to be. She wrote after she got in town."

A grinning crowd stood around the two unconscious men lying on the sidewalk. "What's the matter here?" demanded a policeman who had rushed up, attracted by the crowd. "Oh, nothing," replied one of the by-standers. "A real estate man was trying to sell a Florida lot to the motor car salesman who was trying to sell him a car. They were pretty evenly matched, for they both dropped from exhaustion at the same moment."

SOUTH AND AGE

O you whose feet descend the twilight hills,
What message have you for us
beneath of Youth,
Whose path still winds beneath the morning skies?
Have you yet seen the flashing wing of Truth?

Is the way clear despite the gathering dusk?
Can you glimpse aught beyond the valley's gloom?
Is there a day again, to guide men's feet
Unto a living Christ beyond the tomb?

What sound comes stealing through the failing light,
Above the tolling of Life's vesper-bell?
Is Death's derisive laughter in your ears?
Or can you hear God's whispered: All is well?

MISSIONARY SOCIETY HOLDS EASTER MEET

The members of the Women's Missionary Society of the Tabernacle Church held their public Easter meeting in the Sunday School Hall Tuesday evening and a large number of both ladies and gentlemen listened to and enjoyed the splendid programme presented, several visitors from the surrounding circuits, as well as others from other city congregations availing themselves of this opportunity.

Mrs. C. S. Sharpe presided and with her on the platform were Mrs. Harris of Madoc, speaker of the evening, Mrs. (Rev.) White, Vice-President of the W.M.S. Provincial, Mrs. Francis, Hon. President of the Mission Circle, Miss Ruth Bell, President of the Senior Mission Band.

The meeting opened with the Doxology, Mrs. Duff at the piano, following with prayer by Mrs. White after which Mrs. Francis read in the responsive Easter Service which was interspersed with the verses of an Easter Hymn.

Miss Rice Wager, a member of the Circle, gave a touching missionary reading, "And a Little Child Shall Lead Them."

Mrs. Sharpe then introduced Mrs. Harris of Madoc who greatly contributed to the evening's entertainment with a most interesting and instructive address upon Practical Religion and Its Relation to the Missionary Cause at Home and Abroad, proving her points very convincingly with Scripture References from both the Old and New Testaments.

Those who missed hearing Mrs. Harris missed something really worth hearing and are themselves the losers. The sentiments of her address were further emphasized by those expressed in a duet, "Will the World Be Made Better?" sung by Mesdames Duff and Nicholson, whose good tone was in their most pleasing manner and was greatly enjoyed by all present.

The ladies then left the platform to allow for a rearrangement of furniture necessary in the presentation of a dialogue, "Aunt Margaret's Tenth Hen," the characters in same being: Aunt Margaret—Miss Phoebe Donald. Ruth (her niece)—Miss Ruth Nowson. Ruth's Mother—Miss Oliver Redmond. Miss Walton—Miss Lena Lobb.
Esther (a League worker)—Miss Laura Dougherty.

The dialogue was well given, each participant entering whole-heartedly into the spirit of the part she was playing and the ladies of the Auxiliary thoroughly appreciate the efforts of the Circle members in helping to make their meeting a success.

A vote of thanks for all who contributed to the evening's enjoyment was moved by Mrs. Fisher and seconded by Mrs. Lent to which all present responded heartily.

The meeting closed with the hymn, "The Light of the World is Jesus" and the Benedictus pronounced by Rev. Mr. White after which delectable refreshments were served.

CITIZENS URGED TO PATRONIZE LOCAL DEALERS

Boost Belleville By Purchasing Needs From Home Merchants

Will it boost Canada to buy all our goods in the United States and send them all our gold? Certainly not, all will answer.

If we as good loyal citizens of Belleville desire to make Belleville grow in population, wealth and prosperity is it not up to us to patronize our city business men? Who can count the thousand and tens of thousands of dollars that are sent out from our city every year for goods that can be procured from our up-to-date merchants in the City. Every dollar we send out in this way is a draw back to the advancement of our beautiful home city. Let us try and realize that in dealing with onsale citizens we are hindering the prosperity of our city. Belleville has a reputation far and wide as being a most desirable residential city. Let us all unite in building up business and general advancement for mutual support. What would Belleville be if the Drug Store, Dry Goods Store and Groceries were taken out. Who would pay the taxes? What a convenient place to live in! Down would go our great name. Are not those who pass by the Belleville merchant and send there cash elsewhere doing what they can to bring this about. Let us think about it!

MINING GOSSIP

South Porcupine, March 31.—Sinking started last week on the James property, near the Dobie-Shaw boundary line under auspices of the Porcupine Mines, Limited. The shaft will be carried to a depth of 275 feet and two veins explored from that horizon. At the present time sinking is by hand, but in about a month it is expected sinking will be expedited by the arrival of electric power. Construction of the power line from South Porcupine, delayed for a couple of weeks on account of the break up, has been resumed and shall be completed in about four weeks' time, J. C. Houston is directing the operation.

Schumacher, March 31.—According to reliable information that has just been obtained by your correspondent, another important deal has been completed for claims in the Clearwater Lake section of the Red Lake area. The Tripp-Gutcher property, consisting of fifteen claims, part of which are adjacent to the Jackson-Manion property, have been sold for $200,000 of which $7,000 cash has been paid, $20,000 is due on August 1, 1927, and the balance is due on August 1, 1928. The vendors retain a 20 per cent. non-assessable interest in the property. The names of the purchasers have not yet been officially divulged but it is understood that large Canadian mining interests are involved in the deal. The claims were staked last May by Captain F. C. Tripp of Cloud Bay, Ont., and Jack Gutcher, of Timmins.

Rouyn, Quebec, March 30.—Diamond drilling is under way on an extensive scale throughout the Quebec area. Dozens of these machines have been set up. Its use in mining has increased with leaps and bounds during the past few years. Those machines cost from $7,000 to $14,000 and work to a depth of 50 feet a day in some cases, giving quick knowledge of geology at depth. Many properties of greater promise can be stock market than on the ground are using diamond drilling equipment and for this reason prospects are rapidly proven, accounting for some of the rapid changes in market value of the stocks.

LOCAL OFFICE WORKING WELL

Ontario Superintendent is Pleased With Local Employment Service

That the Belleville office of the Employment Service of Canada is one of the most efficient in the Province, was the opinion expressed by Mr. H. C. Hudson, Ontario Superintendent, who visited the local branch today. "Mr. Some Greenaide local superintendent, appears to have gained the confidence of both employers and applicants, and as a result the work of the office has gained the support of every class in the community," stated Mr. Hudson. "Mr. Green is untiring in his efforts to secure the type of help required by the employers who list their orders with the office, and is equally energetic in placing men and women who register with him for employment," according to the statement of the Ontario superintendent.

"We greatly appreciate the assistance of the Intelligencer in giving publicity to our efforts," Mr. Hudson stated, "for those who hearted co-operation of the newspapers the Employment Service would be greatly handicapped in its work, but that co-operation has been given to us by the Intelligencer to such an extent that the entire community is now well posted regarding our work and the manner in which the Service is equipped to aid employers seeking help and workers seeking employment."

EMPLOYMENT PROSPECTS GOOD

Employment prospects for the province are more encouraging at the present time than they have been for several years, skilled help in the automobile and building trades being particularly difficult to secure. In addition, the demand for farm help looks very good, spring and farmers wishing to secure the better type of skilled workers are calling for men earlier this year than usual. A busy season is anticipated from the point of view of immigration, but there is every indication that every worker who comes to Canada during 1927 will have little difficulty in obtaining work, providing he or she is prepared to adapt himself or herself to conditions as they exist in this country.

UTILIZING CLEARANCE SYSTEM

Mr. Green is utilizing the clearance facilities of the Employment Service to the fullest possible extent, according to Mr. Hudson, and is at all times in close touch with employment opportunities elsewhere in Canada. Through the clearance system he is also able to secure workers possessing specialized training and experience for employers whose requirements cannot be met from the available supply of local labour.

"I am sure that the remainder of the offices which I will visit on my inspection trip will not be found in such satisfactory condition than the Belleville office," stated Mr. Hudson, in conclusion.

GRADS EVEN CUP SERIES

Toronto Team Stage Brilliant Last Minute Rally to Score 3

Vancouver, B.C., March 31.—Toronto Grads evened up the Allan Cup series last night when they administered a 4 to 3 defeat to Fort William team to one of the finest games of the season. The fourth game of the series, each team having won one, with the first game being a tie, will be played on Friday night.

The Grads played first-class hockey and were vair from the start. It was a different Toronto last night from the previous games and they had a decided edge on the play every period.

Red Porter, captain of the Grads, was the shining light in their win, scoring two of the goals and breaking the hearts of the Forts' forwards.

The first period was scoreless, the Grad's getting the only score in the second and two minutes after the last-session opened Cook tied the count on Ward's pass, but their hopes were short lived, for in less than four minutes Porter banged in what proved to be the deciding counter, and then added another, seven minutes later.

Trotter got the last score two minutes afterward, giving Kearney no chance to save after Delahay had passed the rubber out to him in front of the net.

The Grads last night were faster, played better combination and better defence than the Forts. Another capacity crowd of 10,000 jammed the rink and yelled for the Grads to even up the series.

AVONDALE CHOIR RENDER CANTATA

Excellent Voices Featured Fine Rendition at S. S. Entertainment

Avondale Sunday School Choir last night put on an excellent cantata under the direction of Mr. J. Spooner the leader of the choir, and the entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed by an audience which filled the school hall. The cantata "The Advent of Spring" the solos were Misses Flora Reid, Hazel Denyes, Blanche Helm, Lena Sharp, Helen Cummings, Myrtle Cummings, Beatrice Mayne, Margery Calnan, Marguerite Spooner, Nellie Fisher, Mrs. Grace Hagerman, and Col. Putman.

Mr. Melvin Blanchard accompanied by Miss Phyllis VanAllen gave an enjoyable violin solo. Miss Van Allen, a very fine piano solo and a reading by Col. Putman was an excellent feature of the offering.

All of the soloists proved themselves to be possessors of excellent voices well suited to the beautiful music of the cantata and the musical accompaniments and solos were deeply appreciated. Miss Lena Bates the pianist, was responsible for much of the success of the entertainment and Mr. Melvin Blanchard's violin solos were warmly received.

The chorus which included some very fine voices had been splendidly trained by Mr. J. Spooner and the harmony was very fine and all selections well balanced. All in all it was an offering long to be remembered by all who heard as one of the finest productions of the year.

A PRESENTATION

At the conclusion of the Cantata Mrs. J. Kitchen and Mrs Bell on behalf of the Avondale Sunday School presented the talented pianist with a beautiful gift of silverware accompanied by the following presentation:

To Miss Lena Bates:—

It is with mingled feelings that we find ourselves obliged to say a few words of farewell to you on this occasion.

We experience deepest regret that you must sever your official relations with our school after years of outstanding service in various capacities; service that has been gladly and freely given at all times and faithful beyond description.

Your influence in the community has been of the highest order, and we venture to say that there are few, if any, of the young people in the neighborhood who are not better for your having lived among them.

In closing we regret your departure we rejoice with you in the prospect of a fuller and richer life in the realization of your new home and community. Our very best wishes go with you and our hope is that you may be as great a blessing and help in some other school as you have been here, and that you may find your way back to visit us frequently.

On behalf of Avondale Sunday School we ask you to accept this gift as a small token of our esteem and as an expression of our good will toward you. We sincerely trust that your future days and years may be blessed with happiness.

Signed on behalf of the School.

ENTRANCE 1347

This is the trim sort of frock le'wiicl smart women of city and country spend their busiest days. It is simple enough to wear for shopping, traveling, office or chaucon, yet with its modish, new touches of flared cuffs, inserted plaits, and unusual pockets it is an stylish that it attends matinee, luncheon, and bridge with perfect propriety. It is made in light weight, heavy silks, linen, or tissue prints with the bosom front of a contrasting shade or fabric. REGENT THEATRE

Rhinestone Nights, splashed with music, hints of terse drama feature Lefty Flynn's latest F.B.O. release, "Mulhall's Great Catch" which opens today at the Regent Theatre. The story revolves around the rivalry between a policeman and fireman for the hand of the city belle, each man backed by his respective department. How Lefty as the fireman, after a thrilling rescue and a terse battle with the crooks, wins the girl, is the back ground on which dozens of screaming funny situations are planted, and the entire picture is one of the best specimens of entertainment seen here in a long time. Harry Garson directed the film with rollicking effect, and the heroine, Kathleen Myers, repeated her success in "Sir Lumberjack" in the new production. Harry Victor as the policeman and Harry Arros as the fire captain do excellent work, as does Sidney Bracey as the cast. Gerald Beaumont, the well-known magazine writer, is the author of the story, which was scenarized by Jefferson Moffitt. m29

POINT ANNE TOP INDOOR LEAGUE WIN FROM Y'S MEN

High School Girls Too Good For Patricias—Green Strikes Out 18

Point Anne retain an undisputed lead in the Indoor Softball League by virtue of their 5-3 victory over the Y's Men's Club last evening in the best game of the present season. The play was fast, pitching good and it required exactly an hour for the teams to complete the argument.

In the girls' game the High School had things rather easy and dispensed of the Pats 16-8.

Point Anne 5; Y's Men 3.

"Sunny" Green, the speedy pitcher from down Point Anne way, hung up a new record for this season when he struck out 18 batters. He had the Y's Men swinging at his choice assortment of curves and fast ones. The Y.M.C.A. boys were only allowed three hits, two of their runs resulting from walks when Green became a trifle wild.

Vince Naphin assumed the box for Vern Weir's boys and went fairly well until the 5th but in that chukker the cement-mixers hammered him hard and Billy Knott swung into action and held "Bob" Redner's champions scoreless durin the remainder of the piece. In substantiation parenthesis herein will be the two hurlers.

"Jerry" Hurley, giant outfielder with the Y's Men, pulled the two features fielding plays of the night and the fans were electrified with his beautiful work. In the 5th inning Bennell caught one to his liking and sent it on a direc, line ten feet over record base but Hurley came tearing across and snared the drive and whipped the sphere back to second base for a lightning double play.

Vern Weir's work at shortstop was another of the bright lights he having accepted 13 chances without an error. On one occasion he retired the whole side himself. It was "Bill" Strachan's screeching two bagger in the 5th that upset the apple-cart. Strachan sent two men in ahead of him and the Points were in a better position to walk home with the bacon.

"Sunny" Green besides pitching a nice game picked out for himself two juicy hits.

Score by innings:—

Point Anne ...	1	1	0	0	3	0	0	0	0	5
Y's Men ...	1	1	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	3

Point Anne—L. Marcelle, 1.f.; G. Smith, c.f.; G. Weir, 2b; C. Weir, 3b; F. Goyer, r.f.; M. Green, 3b; W. Strachan, 3b; G. Geulin, s.s.; P. Bennett, c.f.; R. Y's Men—J. Weir, s.s.; Armstrong, 2b; Scott, r.f.; G. Harley, c.f.; P. Symons, 1b; Logan, c; Pests c; Mcnamara, 1.f.; Riggs 2b; Anderson, 2b; Naphin, p; Knott, p.

B. H. S. 16; Patricias 8.

The Belleville High School girls led the Patricias to the wire and came down in front by three laps. They were the best by a wide margin although the east-enders fought a stubborn battle and would not admit defeat until the last man was out.

Jean Fairbairn was handed the assignment but the tricolor squad sent their heavy artillery into the firing line in the third inning and Edith Rathbird was brought from the outfield to do the flinging but she fared no better and her predecessor returned to the box.

Margaret Fairbairn went the full length and with the exception of the first inning she pitched fairly effective ball.

Colling and Woodley who alternated at the plate handed out at least two, what appeared to be bad decisions one against each team. Plays were made on runners coming home and in both instances it looked as though they were out but the umps ruled otherwise.

Walter Green was the other official.

SAYS WHEAT WILL BE OF LITTLE USE

Clearwater, Fla., March. 31.—Either Manager Wilbert Robinson is nursing a grouch over the fine reports that are being watted northward about Zack Wheat, and with the Athletics, or it took him a long while to discover the faults of his former star.

"Wheat is a great hitter, always will be as long as he can stand up to the plate and swing the bat, but his usefulness ends there.

"Despite his speed, Wheat is not a good base runner, because he never learned the knack of sneaking onto a pitcher.

"A ground ball has always been his glaring weakness. For years I tried to remedy that fault but somehow Wheat could never learn the trick of coming up with them.

"His arm was never strong and, of course, hasn't improved at this late stage of his career. Smart base runners never fail to take advantage of Zack's lack of power and accuracy in trying to peg out runners.

"Wheat will help the Athletics at the bat. However, if used as a regular, his failings in other directions may outtalk the value of his superior batting.

WELCOME TO PLAYERS

Owen Sound, March 31.—With bands playing, whistles blowing, and 3,000 fans cheering wildly, Owen Sound Greys, premier champions of the Dominion of Canada arrived home from Toronto to day at noon. They were met at the city limits of Toronto at a banquet there last evening, Mayor Amos Leslie, members of the City Council and other citizens, who were present to welcome the team and officials of the club. A parade was immediately formed and the team, followed by many hundreds of supporters was taken to the City Hall square, where the official welcome was tendered. The Greys are to be the guests of the club at a banquet Thursday evening and later on the will each be presented with workmen as mementos from the city.

"CASH AND CARRY" PYLE ENTERS HOCKEY

Los Angeles, Calif., March. 30—C. C. Pyle, and his syndicated football partner, Harold "Red" Grange have added to their laurels by their professional sport combinations.

Pyle announced today plans for the formation of a Californian ice hockey league of four teams with a franchise in San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles and Hollywood. With Grange, formerly University of Illinois gridiron star, as his associate, Pyle has purchased a large rink here and plans to build one costing $220,000 in San Francisco.

Pyle also revealed that he has options on two eastern hockey teams and probably will purchase the teams interests, bringing the players to compete in the California league.

The promoter who recently took Suzanne Lenglen through an arc, and a troupe of tennis players on a tour of the county, said the venture into hockey will in no way interfere with plans of himself and Grange for another professional season in the east. The pair will leave for the east within the next three weeks to reorganize the American Football League into a six team circuit, he said.

A'S CONCEDED FINE CHANCE

Fort Myers, Fla., March. 31—Back in 1911 Connie Mack broke up a championship ball club, a $100,000 infield and a reputation with the announcement that his players were too old and knew too much.

He disposed of Eddie Collins, Frank Baker, Stuffy McInnis and others of the "greatest ball club" and said that he would build up another championship club from the college diamonds.

It has been computed that since that time the Philadelphia Athletics have had almost a thousand young ball players and that Mack has spent a fortune looking for the inspired young ball players from the college lots.

Mack apparently has decided that wise old heads are better than fast legs of kids who can't think like old-timers, as may be witnessed by a line-up of the season which will present Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins and Zork Wheat.

In addition to those old-timers, the Athletics will have a shortstop, Joe Boley, who cost the Athletics a reputed sum of about $60,000.

The Athletics have more good baseball players than old Connie Mack has seen in a long time with. He has a pair of infields, a pair of outfields, three or four catchers and more than a dozen pitchers.

The Athletics, with millions of dollars worth of high-priced brains and a list of good players, will be one of the favorites in the American league pennant race.

While Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants refuses to make any definite predictions as to the outcome of the National league race, he likes the American all doped out.

"Don't see how they can beat you this year" was the way he greeted his old pal Kid Gleason, now Connie Mack's chief assistant.

The Kid agreed with him, remarking the Athletics were a much improved club over last year.

"I don't see it at," replied McGraw "It has been strengthened at least 50 per cent, and it was a contender most of the way last season.

"I really don't believe there is an other club in the American league that is improved as much as the Athletics. It doesn't look to have a weak spot.

"Can you imagine any good ball club picking up three players like Cobb, Collins and Wheat the same year, even though all of them are veterans stars who have passed their peak.

"These three will give the Athletics punch, poise and power, all very essential to a pennant winner."

Training Camp Gossip

New York, March 29.—The following gossip was gathered from the training camps of the major league baseball clubs:—

Greater Cleveland Alexander, of the St. Louis Cardinals, wore a pall about the New York Yankees last spring after a hit and a run, struck out with gusto when Alex bore down. The Cardinals won, 3 to 4, their second victory over the Yankees in a nine-game "little world series."

Manager McGraw is running about Florida on a mysterious errand that may concern the continued absence of Eddie Brough, New York Giant outfield holdout. The Giants were trimmed by the St. Louis Browns, 12 to 6, yesterday.

Practically all of yesterday's practice session at the Detroit camp was occupied with players tearing around the paths. Manager Moriarity has decreed that base running is to be revived to the highest possible degree.

It appears that the marital troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Adolfo Luque have been ironed out, and the Cuban can now settle down to pitching for the Cincinnati Reds. The Reds were defeated by Baltimore, 9 to 5, yesterday.

Mickey O'Neil has been purchased outright from the Brooklyn Dodgers to bolster the catching department of the Washington Senators. Herbert Conley Ogden and Le Marquis have been sold outright to Buffalo without strings attached.

Manager George Moriarity, of the Detroit Tigers, who had planned to farm out George Hudson to Toronto for another year's seasoning, is now considering a proposal to send the former Southern League player to Fort Worth, where Shortstop Kiddo Davis suffered a fractured jaw.

Gunmen ambushed Free State soldiers on a road near Dublin and several were wounded.

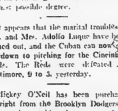

Oil is passing through Hamilton sewers to such an extent that fish and ducks on the bay are dying.

A Foolish Party

NO one knows exactly where it originated—perhaps in the days when court jesters were popular, but the April Fool Joke is still dear to the heart of every small boy.

The wallet tied to a string to be jerked away just as the gullible victim reaches for it may have gone out of style, with the nicely wrapped package filled with a brick and left on the sidewalk to intrigue the passerby, but the spirit of mischief and excitement still prevails on April 1st.

What is why a party, a regular rollicking boy party, is especially suitable for All Fools' Day.

It should be a very foolish party with more foolish the better, and it is just as well to stage the affair in the garage or the barn or the basement, or some other place which is not easily damaged.

Trick games are especially suitable for this party—they provide a good chance for "April Fooling" the victim.

One of the favorites with a small group is the game of mental telepathy. Select one of the boys to go out of the room while the rest decide on an object—something prominent in the room, the name of which they write on a piece of paper. The paper is turned upside down on the floor. When the victim returns he is told to stand on the paper as long as he thought may be transferred to him more easily. The announcer explains that the crowd will all think of the object and that if he has any latent psychic powers he will be able to guess what is on the paper. He is warned not to be too easily discouraged—that they will give him five trials. He, of course, guesses all of the most prominent objects in the room, but none of them are correct. When he finally admits that he can't guess what is on the paper, the crowd all yells in unison "Your foot—April Fool."

The "newspaper race" game uses two boys at a time, while the rest stand around and cheer for the winner.

Blindfold the two boys and set them to sit on the floor facing each other and give each a folded newspaper (whole sheet opened up and folded into a "swatter").

Number one calls "where are you?"—number two answers "right here." Whereupon number one tries to swat him with the paper, if he misses, the crowd all call out "April Fool." Next number two questions and number one answers, and Neither boy is allowed to get up from the floor. They can roll around or move as much as they want to without getting up from a sitting or reclining position. The game moves fast, after it is well started and is just as much fun for the spectators as for the two participants.

Another mental telepathy game makes use of a leader and a confederate. The confederate (well coached on the secret) leaves the room while the group decides on a number—any number up to and including nine. When the confederate is called back, the leader (who sees no remark always starting with a word which has a first letter corresponding to the position in the alphabet of the number). For instance, if three is selected, the leader says "Come on—you confederate." Immediately he knows the number is three, because C is the third letter of the alphabet. If the number should be six, the leader might say "Put your mind on it now," S being the sixth letter of the alphabet. After a few trials, which the confederate never fails, ask some other youngster who thinks he knows the system to try. It is improbable that he will really have caught on and the crowd can April Fool him when he misses.

There are a lot more games of this type, which every group of small boys know. Let them play some of the games themselves.

Just before lunch have each boy draw a number. Each number entitles the owner to a dunce cap, which has the corresponding number attached.

The lunch for a boys' party should, of course, be very substantial. Plenty of sandwiches together with pitchers of milk, may be placed on a table where the boys can help themselves. Or instead of sandwiches have a great platter of rolls, which look like plain rolls, but on being opened reveal a frankfurter sausage inside—concealed. Further mustard containers might be handy. Cookies and doughnuts may be served in shelter plates—not to eat from. Serve jelly on a large platter with a carving knife to cut it, and pickles in cups with spoons to eat them (add specific orders that they must be eaten with the spoon).

For dessert have surprise pies.

Frankfurter Rolls

4 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs
½ cup Crisco
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
Frankfurters

Sift salt, baking powder, and flour together. Work in Crisco. Beat egg and mix together. Stir liquid into dry ingredients. Roll out on well floured board to about ½ inch in thickness. Cut into pieces long enough to hold a sausage. Roll up sausage in dough. Fasten edges together with water.

Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) until nicely browned. Serve warm.

Surprise Pies
Crust

1½ cups flour
½ cup Crisco
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
2 tablespoons slightly beaten egg
2 tablespoons water

Sift flour, salt and powdered sugar together. Work in Crisco. Add egg and water (mixed together). If necessary to hold mix together, use more water.

Roll out to a thin sheet. Cut circles large enough to fit individual pie pans or muffin tins. Line pans with pastry. Prick with a fork to prevent "bubbling" during baking. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.).

Just before serving fill shells with ice cream (any kind—but it should be very hard). Cover with meringue. Return to a very hot oven for a minute—just long enough to brown the meringue. Serve at once. The ice cream will not melt if it is entirely covered with meringue and the oven is hot enough to brown the meringue quickly.

Meringue

2 egg whites
6 tablespoons powdered sugar

Beat whites stiff. Add sugar, continue beating.

A new 80 page cook book will be sent, free of charge, to any newspaper, upon receipt of three wrappers from cans of Crisco. Address Crisco, The National Household Institute, 241 Fifth Ave., New York City.

CHILDLESS MAY KNOW MOTHERHOOD'S JOY

By ELSIE MARLOWE

We have such pa-ne of pesire for hpy ny modern—such sone o pty for those others who have had their loved ones. But, who ever stops to think of the heart-broken women who can never hold a baby in their arms—the married and unmarried women who are denied the supreme joy of motherhood?

"I'll never have baby"—those are the five most terrible words to many a per sonin. The loneliness for the little ones who can never be born is infinitely more cruel than any poverty or pain.

So often-such disappointment makes all life sterile and cold. But today a brave woman enmeshs in and takes all the world into those hungry arms which are denied the comfort of a child. Such a woman speaks today—and to me her letter is a sacred thing. I give it to you with the same feeling that I would give a beautiful prayer or some great vision. To touch courage and tenderness like this is sustenance.

DEAR ELSIE:

Tonight I read a wonderful litter in your column from a woman whose ara had left it was as though a knife had been turned in an old wound—for I am one of those who never can know that glory—one of those who would gladly dare the pain of loss, if only they might first have the joy of fulfillment. Eight years ago today the tmendy God made it impossible for me to know the wondrous joy of motherhood came to me. Since early childhood I had dreamed of the day when I would have a baby of my own. I was never so happy as when caring for a little child, and knowing the royal joy such service brings.

I was young, only 22, when this came, and for a while my reason wavered. At times the mere sight of a baby made me ill I could neither eat nor sleep. For months this continued, and then I awoke to the realization that it wasn't the tragedy that had come to me that really mattered—it was what I was going to let that tragedy do to me, that really counted. Was I going to be tit endutive me, and make me selfish and hard? Or would I let it soften me and mellow my spirit, make me loving and helpful and understanding? Would I turn all my crushed, glowing service for others?

As was the blackness of that first hour so was the peace of that second hour, when I definitely turned from my heart broken bitterness and cruded God's goodness and wisdom, took up my cross and followed what I knew was His way. I do not mean that bitterness and rebellion and grieving have had no part, nor that I have served perfectly—for even yet the pain is so much.

And there are those children whose own mothers have deserted them—sick children—hurty children—crippled children—needy children—who are happier because my children have never been. For if I had had my own arms and heart would not have been big enough for these others.

And because I know there are others who are as I am—I am sending this little message. It has helped me; perhaps it may help some others to catch the Gleam and to learn to lose themselves and their pain, and their hopeless longings, in service for one of those unfortunate little tones who so greatly need the love and tenderness of a mother heart.

I ASK BUT THIS OF THEE

"Since through the years Thy will ean never be
That baby arms about my neck should twine,
NOr that I hold myself in fealty
To soft, rose-petal fingers curled in mine;
Nor press a dreamy head down on my breast,
And watch wide, starry eyes close sleepily,
Nor feel a little, trusting limpness rest
Within my arms; I ask but this of Thee:

"Oh, Lord, grant me a mother's heart, that I
May see the ittle wistful child look out
Through grave-up eyes; wisdom to know the why
Of staying steps, and there are tasks,
Hands strong to outile, and give him comfort to
All those who touch them, seeking aught of me;
And patient love, which holds each day anew
Faith in Thy children, Lord, through faith in Thee!"

FROM ONE WHO IS NOT A MOTHER.

Advic to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Do you think it possible for a man to be fond of a girl to the extent that he would do anything for her—and yet not want to marry her?

I have known a girl for several years. We go out everything for each other. She lost her mother an dfather and I tried to help her by being with her all right time. Then, when I cow I couldn't marry her, I was perfectly frink about it and told her.

A few weeks later she developed mental trouble and is now in a sanitarium—going for me. The doctors say if I go to her she will get well, if I don't she probably will not recover. If I should do as they say and she regains her health, what would there then be for me to do but marry her?

They want me to lie to her about my affections, which I can't honestly do under any conditions.

I think she is too dependent upon me. Then she lost her willpower completely. She cried all the time, didn't want me to work, wanted me to stay with her all the time. I have a responsible position that I enjoy me employed. Besides being unhappy if I married her, it would ruin my business future.

I am under no obligations to marry her and yet people have believed me secretly for my attentions. They say that I made her lose her mind. Think that unfair.

You've had more experience than I. What ought I to do?

Aside from my personal feelings or business future, would it be fair to marry her if I really don't want to? Should I lie to her to help her get well and then make her suffer the disappointment over again? I am tempted to go on and marry her and trust to luck.

She is in the hospital now beginning for me. But I don't think it's love. I think it is really a lack of self-control, will-power and common sense.

What shall I do? I will appreciate your advice.

SAM.

SAM: This is indeed a difficult and interesting problem. I doubt that any marriage that is based upon love, has any basis of success. But perhaps Sam is the sort of young man who can find recompetence in self-sacrifice. He is unquestionably fond of his unfortunate friend and pity sometimes is responsible for love fate. I rather think it is so hard to divide whether a person's sorrow would bring him more unhappiness that the doubts that now plague him.

Perhaps some of my readers may have a solution that may help Sam in the decision that he is trying to make. What word of advice have you to offer the unfortunate writer of this letter?

WHAT'S NEW
(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The favorite wedding present of Princess Mary to her intimate friends seems to be some sort of a standard lamp with a parchment shade.

A New York fashion authority notes just as the silver or pointed fox is a novelty red fox is perfect with one's tweed or sports costume.

Paris reports that navy blue colored glass is now made into evening purses, no doubt to accord with the navy blue shoes that so many smart women are now wearing.

Second Empire furniture is the latest fad in France, and Marc Rigaud has created some unusual furniture that will appeal to modern persons and at the same time give the impression of the elaborate Second Empire style.

The Queen recently set a new fashion when she carried a large white-kid muff of the "Granny" type at the Hunter show in the Agricultural Hall. Edington, when she wore a long, beautifully worked white-kid muff, into which was placed a petunia-coloured buttonhole, toning exactly with her hat, where many hims was mentioned.

A class of miscellarian consequently creature and clubhouses for women throughout the country is the ambitious project of the Catholic Daughters of America, of which Miss Mary C. Duffy, Newark, N.J., is supreme regital, and this is the largest feminine Roman Catholic organization in the world.

SINCLAIR'S

HEARTS' HAVEN
By Mildred Barbour

"Not that, beloved. Not quite what you think. But I can't give you up. I won't! You've got to come away with me—you and Louise."

"Come away with you?" she faltered. "To go to America — China — any place where we can be together. Stay you will go, Christine!. I will have you always. I will cherish and protect you always. Say you will go!"

CHAPTER LXVII.

"IN AN OLD-WORLD GARDEN"

Aghast at Vance's proposal, Christine turned away from him and stared into the deepening twilight.

"You can't really mean to—to run away and—and leave your wife and child!" she faltered.

"My wife forced me to that years ago," he reminded her bitterly.

"And I—I am still married to Irwin," Christine went on in desperate little voice. "Of course, I can be free when I choose, but you—oh, Cliff, it's a fright ful thing to contemplate. I think I'd die of shame!"

"No!" he cried sharply. "Our love is different from the sordid thing that gibbsomd to the world from time to time. It can't be wrong, when Fate has forced us to the same. My little Christine, there is no need of shame! I will love and honor and respect you always."

She hid her face in her burned hands. "I mustn't even think about it," she wailed.

A look of hope flashed over his tired face. He felt that he had won.

"I've ordered dinner at our favorite little inn," he said quietly. "We can talk quite undisturbed. And I took the liberty of sending the faithful Hildegarde Louise her supper and stay with her until you return."

Christine assented wearily. It was good to have some one anticipate all her wishes; good to have a strong man to depend on, to make her decisions for her!

She closed her eyes. "How wonderful, if she dared to let herself drift where he and Little Louise to take her never to worry about the future any more; to be happy in his love!

Vance refrained from proposing the subject that occupied their thoughts, until dinner was over and the discreet waiter had brought the coffee and withdrawn closing the door behind him. They were alone in a small, private dining-room, daintily furnished in the Italian mode, and heavy curtains at the windows shut out the winter night.

Vance stretched his hand across the table and laid it over Christine's.

"Come, now! ailing, you must decide," he reminded her gently.

She lifted piteous eyes to his.

"How do I know what to say? The very idea seems terrible, and yet I should die, if I were separated from you Oh, can't we go on like this?" she begged.

He shook his head.

"Impossible, my beloved. There are many reasons, one or which is that I am always afraid that my wife, in the spirit of revenge, might seek to injure you. Our beautiful love would be termed a sordid thing and dragged through the mire. But, if we go away quietly, no one will know anything about it until it is too late for the knowledge to be useful to anyone."

Christine withdrew her hand from his in a gesture of entreaty.

"But where could we go—where would we be safe from scorn and sneers and censure? Could we ever run away from our own consciousness?"

"I know a place," he told her quietly. "A friend of mine owned a hacienda in Brazil. It is remote and beautiful and peaceful. I spent a week with him there, two years ago. Later, when the business had pressed financially, I bought it. Now I see that the finger of Fate was pointing the way. We shall go there, beloved, far from the world."

"Your wife and child!" she faltered.

"What of them? If you give up your work, how can they live?"

"I have enough for them and for us two—think Heaven!"

She realized that he was beating down all her objections. She wrung her hands with a sense of despair at her helplessness.

"But your work, Cliff? you love it. You've accomplished such wonderful things. You're one of the finty lawyers in New York. You have a splendid reputation. How could you throw it away and not regret it?"

"I should have you," he answered. "You are more to me than work or reputation. You are more to me than everything else in the world."

She covered her eyes with her hands. "Suppose you came to hate me for the sacrifice you made?" she whispered.

He laughed softly, took her hands and kissed each soft palm.

"We are not talking nonsense tonight."

"Oh, what shall I say?" she cried.

"What shall I do?"

"You will say 'yes.' You will come with me, as soon as I have made the necessary arrangements. You and Louise and I will start a new life together, leave Irwin and Cliff and all our black and bitter memories. We will live in the sun again. Our hacienda has a garden with great high wall; there are rose-red flagstones on the paths and red roses tumbling over the wall. . . A fountain plays in the patio, and one can lie in a hammock all the long, hot afternoon in the cool shade of an acacia tree, watching the cloudless sky. . . Ah, my beloved, with you beside me, it will be Paradise."

Christine's eyes had lost their terror. They were soft with dreams. She followed his words feeling the sunshine of Brazil, forgetting the cold winter night outside. She watched the stealthy sunshine his shallely. . . .

"Say yes, my love—always."

But, when he had ceased to speak, she came back to stark reality.

"No, no, no!" she cried. "Take me home! I'm afraid of myself!"

For two days she refused to see him. On the third, white-faced and desperate, she telephoned him.

JAPAN WILL NOT MAKE TROUBLE

Anxious to Act in Conformity With Powers in China

Tokyo, March 30.—The Japanese Government today denied that its forces in China were engaging in any military activities. It also denied any intention of sending troops to China and declared that diplomatic activities were confined principally to negotiating jointly with other powers over the Nanking affair.

The Foreign Office has amended its earlier statement that no Japanese were killed in Nanking, saying that a sailor aboard a destroyer was killed by a stray bullet. Notwithstanding rumors to the contrary, foreign military and naval experts in Tokyo are unanimous in their belief that Japan does not intend to interfere in China unless there is extreme provocation. The press and public generally are in favor of this stand.

Hankow Quiet

Paris, March 30.—Orderly conditions prevail in Hankow, says a report from the French Consul General forwarded to the Foreign Office today by the minister in Peking.

The United States Marines at Fuchow is reported looted by the patch reaching Shanghai. Admiral C. B. Williams, Commander of United States' Asiatic Squadron, today advised Navy Department at Washington.

A delayed Reuter dispatch to London from Hankow, under date of March 26, says that communism now is in full power there and that conditions for foreigners, especially Britishers, are intolerable. The few Englishmen remaining have found it necessary to take refuge near the waterfront so as to be in a position to leave quickly.

STUDENTS COMING TO HELP

Oxford, March 30.—Oxford University students are planning to help harvest the Canadian wheat crop next summer. Parties of students are being recruited and will sail in July for Montreal.

WATCH EFFECT BETTING TAX

London, March 30.—A definite announcement that the tax on betting would not be changed until its effect during the flat racing season had been seen was made by Winston Churchill, Chancellor of Exchequer.

Miss Dorothy Autery, London schoolteacher, walked hour after her solo entirely demobilized by a C. P. R. flyer. She had slight head cuts.

PILES GO QUICK

WITHOUT SALVES OR CUTTING

Thousands who have piles don't know that quick and permanent relief can be accomplished with internal medicine. Cutting or any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will not remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called the prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in many, many cases with a marvelous record of success, and a wonderful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from J. S. McKeown today. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the musky mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

The Story of a Diamond

When the poet Lady Astor became big back his bride, Henrietta, the message, wore the Sanci diamond. Charles quarrelled with his queen and with his pavilion to, and not long after Cromwell asked for his head. Henrietta gave the diamond to the Earl of Worcester, and Worcester's successor passed it along to the Sun of.

The disastrous reign of James II. cost him his crown but he held tightly to the Sanci. That and other jewels which he took away with him represented various Stuart pretenders; the Sanci was sold to Louis XIV.

* * *

Stolen with other jewels in 1792, the Sanci disappeared for 50 years. A jeweller came by it, and Prince Demidoff purchased it for his wife. Twenty years later she let it go to Jamestine Jacobson, a rich merchant of Bombay. And he sold it at a Paris jeweller's shop, and was sold to the maharajah and time.

It was from a London jeweller that William Waldorf Astor bought it for his wife.

Another version of the diamond's history is that it goes back to the days of Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy who was its first owner. Just where he got it is a little vague. At any rate, in this version care, Charles wore the blazing gem in his helmet, probably with the idea of blinding his adversaries. But a shaft+ lost its charm, for Charles was killed in battle and his diamond was picked up by someone and sold to the king of Portugal. The king later sold it to Henry of Lancaster, Duke of Lancaster, whose celebrity, as the story goes, was owing as much to his possession of the great diamond as to any other quality.

For several generations the stone remained in the De Lancy family. Then one of the De Lancys artificially altered the valuable gem as security for money lent his king.

One of the servants, a trusted man, was selected to carry the jewel to the money lender. The messenger disappeared. He could not be declared that the servant had run abscounded with the diamond, but that he had been attacked by robbers.

Weeks after read the body of the servant was found in a ditch. On examination of the body the diamond was found in the man's stomach.

Investigation proved that the trusted servant had been waylaid by robbers and had swallowed the diamond rather than let it fall into their hands.

Later, so the story goes, the jewel came into possession of James II. of England and later passing through many hands was bought by Mr. Astor.

Here and There

When the internal trouble which has been devastating China for the last two years ceases, a tremendous market will open up for Canadian wheat in that country, according to A. E. Scott, representing a large British firm at Hong Kong, on his way back to London to report.

A keen competitor to Betsy Wiley, Sir Nova Scotia world's champion milk and butter producer, has been discovered at Fox River, Cumberland County. Mr. Henry R. Kerr of this place, claims that he owns the champion butter producing cow in our class. This cow is a grade Ayrshire and Durham cow, which has just recently freshened. In one week he produced 282 lbs. of milk, which formed 20½ lbs. of butter, after deducting approximately 12 quarts of milk and 1½ quarts of cream for home consumption. This record is creating keen interest.

Following upon his recent announcement to the effect that a Toronto firm of architects would be employed in connection with the erection of the new Canadian Pacific Hotel in that city, E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, recently stated that Messrs. Sproatt and Ralph Gray been appointed associates with the firm of Ross and Macdonald, of Montreal, to handle this work. Messrs. Ross and Macdonald have been employed by Canadian Pacific each far some time, the latest of their buildings being the company's new hotel at Regina. It is denied that the new hotel shall be the highly representative of the city in which it stands and the appointment of a firm of Toronto architects is made to further this purpose.

As Prosperity Advances

As the volume of business of all kinds transacted in Canada increases, citizens are protecting their business and domestic interests by taking out more insurance with Dominion Life Representatives.

This adds to the basic soundness of Canadian prosperity because when both business and family are protected by the large resources of the Dominion Life, much of the strain as to the future is relieved.

Dominion Life policies pay among the highest profits to policyholders, so that a Dominion Life policy is an investment rather than an outgo.

The constantly advancing tide of Dominion Life business is evidence beyond doubt that more and more Canadians consider Dominion Life protection—plus high profits—the best.

Consider a Dominion Life policy to suit your own individual case. Consult a Dominion Life representative for complete information as to the most suitable types of life insurance.

Representative Doctors declared continued use of laxatives harmful

WHEN we found that eight doctors out of ten were recommending the Nujol type of treatment we asked them why. 12.6% said: "Because it is non-habit-forming." 26% said "It is a more natural method." 13% favored it "because it is not irritating." And so on down the line. We found doctors had innumerable reasons for preferring the Nujol type of treatment for the relief of constipation.

The other side of the story is shown by the following typical answer to the question: "Do you consider mineral oil (a laxative and cathartic) harmful?" Over two-thirds of the doctors said "Yes," and gave as reasons: "Do not correct condition." "Laxatives destroy the peristaltic motility." "Laxatives are habit-forming and irritating." "Cause dehydration—weaken system."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Eight doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons:

1. Nujol is not habit-forming.
2. A more natural method.
3. A lubricant is better than a laxative.
4. Does not gripe.
5. Is not irritating.
6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to form a lining of the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it! Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation, whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

ALBERTA WILL HAVE A CLEAN PICTURE SHEET

Edmonton, Alta., March, 30—(Canadian Press)—"Family Pictures" — available to be seen by children guaranteed to contain nothing subversive to the proposition of clean ideals, pleasing evil and vice in an unfavorable light, and containing a minimum of sordid, sensual, brutal or criminal detail, will be Alberta's latest contribution to the motion picture industry of the province. The province, let's going to make such pictures,— but merely to place upon such as may come within this category, its official stamp and seal of approval in the form of the motion picture censor's "Passed by the Alberta Board of Censors as a Family Picture."

The plan is to be adopted as the result of suggestions made by women's organizations of Alberta, and by the council of child welfare for Canada, and the necessary legislation is included as part of the new Theatres act now before the Alberta legislature. No picture may henceforth be advertised as a "Family Picture" unless it bears upon its celluloid face the required inscription.

In reply to a delegation of motion picture men who object to the clause Premier Beveridge pointed out that the matter was being taken up strongly in other provinces, and that there was a definite feeling throughout Alberta, and in the legislature, that some steps were necessary to enable parents to decide what pictures they should allow their children to attend.

The Journal says in an editorial in regard to the bill: The regulation is a good one. There are plenty of films that are unobjectionable, so far as sex ills are concerned, but are not at all suitable for children. An American manager once, quite sincerely it appears minded his patrons very seriously by advertising there's "A Doll's House" and advising them to "bring along the kiddies."

NEW QUEBEC LAW HAS FEW FAULTS

Montreal, Que., March, 30—(Canadian Press)—One of the inconveniences of the new Quebec jury law which makes practically everyone liable for jury service was seen in King's Bench recently when a lawyer found himself liable to act as member of the jury and counsel for the defence at the same time.

A new panel was called for March, and reported for duty. Among the new jurors was Albert Thibergo, lawyer, and president of The Montreal Reform Club. He is also counsel for the defence in the trial of Harry Tom and Ham Doon Kai, which was the first cast on the roll.

"I should love to get on the jury in my own case," he remarked, in suggesting that an exemption was in order. "But I doubt whether your fellowship would think it correct."

"I think we must exempt you," the court answered. "I don't like to think what the verdict would be if you were on your own jury."

"I can tell you now what the verdict would be," the lawyer replied, and exemption was entered.

Mr. Justice Wilson questioned a young man applying for exemption some what closely, and seemed puzzled as to the man's reason for wishing to avoid jury, until the applicant explained that it was not for himself he wanted exemption. "It hasn't been called, but I say father that was called, and he has been dead some years."

"Oh, well! In that case you had better present your petition in parcible," the court replied and the applicant retired smiling."

A business man told the court that he would not, hope to give proper attention to the cases before the jury, because "I am alone in my business, and if I were on a jury I would be all the time divided between the case and worry about my business."

"In that case, we must exempt all engaged here, because their absence will be on their conscience all through the trial," the court commented. Exemption was refused.

BODY OF UNKNOWN WOMAN IN LAKE

Kingston, March 30.—The body of an unknown woman was washed into shore at the foot of Wolfe Island, on the south side today, and was discovered by Mr. Wallace Sudds, who happened to be walking along the shore at that point.

The body is that of a middle-aged woman and gives every appearance of having been in the water for some time.

The body was found near the property of Mr. George Sudds and the latter at once notified the Kingston police.

Coroner Dr. Morrison was notified and S. S. Corbett, undertaker, recoiffeured instructions to bring the body to Kingston.

ABOLITION OF COLLECTION IN THESE SCHOOLS

Toronto, Ont., March 30.—(Canadian Press)—Sentiment on the board of education seems to be growing in the direction of the abolition of collections in the schools. When the Daughters of the Empire asked reconsideration of the committee's refusal to allow a collection to be taken on Rose Day in aid of certain children's institutions a trustee pointed out that they were trying to reduce the number of collections rather than increase them, in spite of the fact that children were added. The I.O.D.E. pointed out that the money was to be applied children in England and were sold by children here but this did not change the Board's viewpoint.

ROMAN CHURCH FROWNS UPON MIXED MARRIAGE

Toronto, Ont., March 30—(Canadian Press)—That mixed marriages are deplored by the Roman Catholic Church and are a fruitful source of leakage from the household of the faith, was the declaration of Rev. Dr. O'Reilley preaching in St. Michael's Cathedral on "Mixed Marriages." "Good old Catholic names mean nothing today," he declared, "solely through the loss to the faith of the children of the mixed unions."

In an investigation made recently by an American Archbishop of 150 families of mixed marriages, ten per cent. only have remained steadfast to the Catholic Church. "Therefore is no reason in the world," he emphasized, "why Catholic young men and women should not seek mates of their own religion in marriage". It is only the very rare exception where a mixed marriage has turned out happy," he declared.

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

BOOM CONTINUES

Nine building permits for houses cost ing about $3,500 were issued in Oshawa today.

DEER AT LINDSAY

Lindsay, March 31.—A year-old deer entered the yard of Donald McGill at Jubilville Station yesterday. Mr. McGill was cutting wood at the time. The deer bopped a high fence and romped across the open fields.

DOG NUISANCE

Kingston, March 31.—The members of the Kingston Horticultural Society believe that the city council should strictly enforce the city by-law regarding dogs wandering at large in the city. Citizens are continually complaining about their lawns and flower beds being spoiled as a result of dogs scratching them to pieces.

BAD ROADS FIXED

Niagara, March 31.—Under the supervision of Mr. Clarence Dew new dirt and stone on the highway between Niagara and Kingston are being repaired to a depth of 3 ins.

The highway from Napanee to Desoronto is also being top-soiled, the first having proved too good, the frost having heaved the road in several places.

NO POSTMORTEM

Kingston, March 31.— Coroner M. J. Morrison, when asked if there were signs of foul play in connection with the death of Mrs. Piper, who was discovered at Clayton on New Year's Eve, and whose body was found on Wolfe Island yesterday, stated that he was not in a position to say.

Dr. Morrison said that no post-mortem examination was held at King ston and for that reason nothing could be said. "It is entirely at Kingston end and it is up to the authorities across the border to find out if there was foul play," he remarked.

NOT HUMAN REMAINS

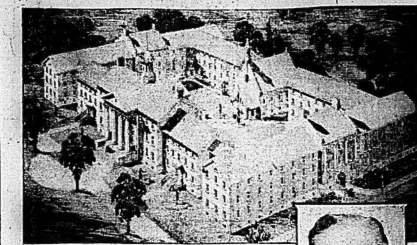

Brighton, March 31.—"I am almost certain that the parcel does not contain human remains, declared Dr. F. Dare, Brighton coroner, when interviewed by a Daily Times staff reporter this morning, in connection with the finding of a suspicious looking bundle near Orland on Monday. "I do not know where the ridiculous stories about an infant's body, upon which rough surgery had been practiced and to which acid had been applied, could possibly have origin ated."

NEW TYPE OF AMERICAN

London, March 29.—The first attempts to "Americanize" the outlook of Britain" movement are now busy in London sightseeing. Our paper finds them "an entirely new type of American tourist," inasmuch as "they dress like English people, they are not millionaires or film stars, or street pedestrians, they do not smoke fat cigars, they do not chew gum, and they have left all slang in New York."

Anatol Josefko, a Russian, reached New York three years ago penniless, and today has a million from sale of an invention to take strip photographs.

New Home For Canada's Oldest University

After 157 years of hither educational work in Nova Scotia, King's College, Canada's oldest university, is to have a new home. The above drawing shows the proposed buildings, which will resemble in character Oxford University, to be built as soon as the present campaign has attained its desired objective.

King's University stands as the only real monument in Nova Scotia to the United Empire Loyalist pioneers. In 1783 the U. E. L.'s who had come to the Dominion from New York planted an "acorn" in the establishment at Windsor, Nova Scotia, of King's College. Full University powers were granted in 1802 by Royal Charter, which was the first one received outside of the British Isles. From a dream in the souls of those pioneer Loyalists King's has reached a recognized and honored place in the Dominion.

Many famous Canadians have been Kingsmen. Sir James Cochran, Sir Frederick Borden, Judge Thomas Chandler Haliburton (Sam Slick), Basil King, Rev. Hil. A. Cody, and Canon Allan P. Shatford, are a few of King's products.

In 1923 King's took the first step towards a confederation of Maritime Colleges; the College was removed to Halifax and became associated with Dalhousie University.

Last year an Eskine Hamilton a campaign for $500,000, having received a promise from the Carnegie Corporation of $250,000 conditional upon the raising of the first amount. To date the total pledged in the Maritime Provinces, Ontario, Quebec and England is $240,000, and only $160,000 more is needed.

His Excellency, Viscount Willingdon, Governor-general of Canada, has accepted the office of Patron of the Rebuilding and Endowment Fund.

The Irony of Love

By Charles Garvice

They would have ridden home in silence but Maude broke it now and again intrinsically, but she noticed the more, and in doing so, conveyed her gratitude to Rafe delicately. When they reached the house, he held out the reins to take her down, but she slipped from her saddle without his aid. As they entered the hall, St. Ives came out of the breakfast room. He was about to exclaim in praise of the mare and Rafe's success with her; but Rafe cut him short.

"Say, Lord St. Ives," he said, "is there anything against our going to that Scotland place to-morrow?"

"To-morrow!" echoed St. Ives, with a laugh of surprise. "That's pretty sudden, isn't it, Stanley? Tired of London already? What?"

"That's so," said Rafe, "and I'll be worse than tired if I stay on another day. What's wrong with to-morrow?"

"Well—er—nothing," replied St. Ives hesitatingly, but better ask Maude. We can slip off easily enough, I dare say; but ladies take a little longer to pack."

"Oh, I can be ready, father," said Maude, halfway up the stairs. "Louise is a delight to him.

knew we were going soon."

"That's final, then," said Rafe quietly, but he turned away.

"Hi, where are you going, Stanley?" called St. Ives.

"To wipe the mare down," said Rafe.

"But the groom—" St. Ives called after him.

Rafe shook his head and followed the horses to the stable. When he returned to the house, he found the place already in mild confusion, a very mild confusion for people in the position of the St. Ives toil not, neither do they spin, they have not to pack a portmanteau and the tolling and spinning are done by other hands. The valets and Louise, the lady's maid, were taking a cursory portmanteau on the next day's express had been engaged; all the elaborate preparation for the journey were already making, and, of course, a telegram had been dispatched to Glenlyle, announcing the coming of the young master.

There was absolutely nothing for Stanley to do, and he was sitting, smoking his pipe and moodily gazing out of the window, brooding over Sunbeam's interruption of the morning ride when Travers came in.

"So your going to Scotland, Stanley?" he said as he took the heaped up kid gloves and threw the beautiful silk hat, the novelty of which was already palling.

"Do I go with you?" asked Travers. "Why, of course," said Rafe. "You can, I suppose?"

Travers considered audibly before he replied. He had an appointment with Phenie for the morrow; his plans, his preparations, were not complete.

"Unless you want me very badly, I'd rather follow you in a day or two."

"All right," said Rafe. "Come when it suits you."

"You look rather grave this morning," remarked Travers, as Rafe, eating himself at the table which was laid with a plentiful breakfast, helped himself to a liberal quantity of ham and eggs.

"Do I?" said Rafe. "Well, I'm a bit grave, I suppose."

"Yes," nodded Rafe. "To-morrow." Of color. I'm like a young colt, just brought in to be taught the tricks of the road, Stay, Travers, you know all about this business; do you think I shall ever learn to look over a mare's head while I'm talking to him, as if he didn't exist, to stick a pose of glue in my eye smile as if I were—were a darned fool?"

"Whom have you in your mind as a model?" asked Travers, with a laugh, but a keen glance at the grave face.

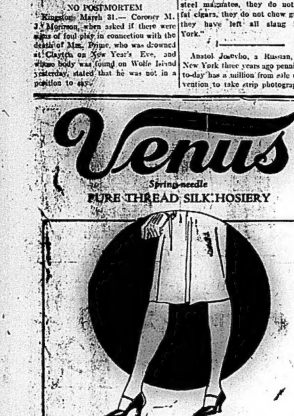

"Well," drawled Rafe, "I was thinking of some of the men I met in this town of yours, of that Lord Sunbeam—"

"My dear Stanley," said Travers, couldn't become like Lord Sunbeam if you were to try for a week of Sundays. And why try?"

"I dunno," said Rafe moodily, as he lit another his pipe from him. "But it seems to me as if that kind of man always has the pull of you. But I don't want to talk about him," he said with a sudden fierceness; "I want to forget him. He mixes the monkey in me, and—" He stopped suddenly, turned away from the breakfast table, and rifle his pipe.

The exodus of the morrow was conducted on lines so smooth as to make it seem that the party were going for a day's trip into the suburbs instead of a long journey due north. The railway officials had duly labelled the reserved carriage, the valets and Louise were busying about like animals in angels, the inspector stood by with obsequious smiles and eager little attentions, the porters bustled to and fro carrying wraps and cloaks. Lady Maude, in a traveling dress which made her look like a young girl coming home from school, ensconced by Rafe's side up and down the platform, and presently they made their way to the bookstall, where Rafe purchased enough literature for a year's trading. Wherever they moved, whatever they did, the pretty were the cynosure of all eyes; the other passengers found the usually timed lines on the reserved bible affixed to the luggage, and were whispering to each other and identifying the respective members of the group. "Should be in every home" Says Mme. Villemaire

Three years of stomach and kidney disorders wrecked her health. Now fully recovered and feeling splendid, she thanks Tanlac

Mme. Eliza Villemaire lives at 432 St. Patrick Street, Ottawa. She is ruddy and robust, showing no signs of the distressing ordeals she went through for three years. "Now, people can express what I suffered," she said recently, "At times I thought I surely must break, and I could not even stoop over to get the table.

"My stomach was just as bad, for food would lie there like a lump of lead. I used to bloat terribly, and at times could hardly catch my breath. Nervousness kept me awake half the night... I tried many remedies and treatments but though I spent a small fortune on them, nothing seemed to help me.

"I only wish I had taken Tanlac when my trouble first started for it certainly would have saved me a lot of suffering. The way my troubles disappeared after taking it was almost magical. It built me up and made me a new woman. Now my kidneys never bother me, I am free from all pain and my digestion is splendid. If I had my way I'd put Tanlac in every home in Canada. That's how much I think of it."
